SCRIPTURE.—2 K. 6: 8-18.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Fear not; for they that be with us are more than they that be with them."—2 K. 6: 16.

TOPIC.—"The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him, and delivereth them."—Ps. 34: 7.

HOME READINGS.

Monday, Ex. 11: 1-31. Tuesday, Judg. ... Wednesday, 1 Sam. 7: 1-17. Thursday, 2 K. 19: 14-37. Friday, Dan. 7: ... Saturday, Dan. 6: 1-24. Sunday, Acts ...: 1-18.

In the last lesson ... [illegible] ... intervening obstacles, the secret expedition of Gehazi was perfectly perceptible. In a similar wonderful way were the words uttered by the Syrian king in council with his captains plainly audible to the man of God though he was miles away.

Therefore the heart of the king was sore troubled. And no wonder. Failure after failure was enough of itself to dishearten one, but when to this was added the suspicion that they were all due to undiscovered treachery in his own camp, all the elements of a complete discouragement were together poured into his cup. Will ye not show me which of us is for the king of Israel? All of the places where he had intended to camp he had found already prepared against his coming. He was certain that this could not so constantly have happened unless the enemy had been apprised of his plans. There was nothing more natural than that he should infer that some one of his own council was a traitor. The servant tells his king that Elisha knew the words that he uttered in his bed-chamber—in the very privacy of his harem; and those who know how secluded and how jealously guarded a harem is will perceive that the servant could not have expressed himself more strongly. This was a great tribute to the prophet of Israel, and an unconscious one to God from whom he derived his powers. Often when a successful evangelist or minister is lauded, the praise belongs not to the man but to the One who inspires the man and makes his work effective.

Go and spy. It does not appear that he had any intention of injuring Elisha. He merely wanted to get him into his own power, so that he could no longer tell the king of Israel what he purposed to do.

... [illegible] ... Great pains and great caution are taken just to capture one man. Benhadad puts numbers and stratagem against Elisha's supernatural powers. When the servant of the man of God has risen early, behold, etc. ... [illegible] ... how shall we do? In that swift moment he sees before him a hopeless captivity for himself in Syria, and probable death for his master. But Elisha was not thus easily alarmed and he replies in those memorable words that have been a comfort to the church in all ages: "Fear not; they that be with us are more than they that be with them." The servant was up early, the enemy was there still earlier, but God was there earliest of all. There can be no surprise where he stands as sentinel.

I pray thee open his eyes. To Elisha the multitude of his celestial allies was already visible. He desired that the young man's eyes might be opened to see what he himself already beheld. He desired him to see no exceptional sight, but which might be visible to every faithful servitor of the living God ... [illegible] ... Lord encampeth round about them that fear him and delivereth them." ... [illegible] ... the young man. This, evidently, was a new servant, for Gehazi is al- ... [illegible] ... The Syrians ... about the hill and the celestial host surrounded its crest, and ... Elisha and the ... The Syrians could get at Elisha only through this protecting wall of fire ... [illegible] ... of the Assyrians one hundred ... four score and five thousand. 2 K. 19: 35. ... [illegible] ... The anointed eyes of the servant at first saw only the threatening hosts of the enemy and was afraid; but when his eyes were opened and he beheld between himself and them this innumerable and invincible fiery host, he was no more troubled. His own faith caught flame from the sight and ever thereafter, we may be assured, burned with an inextinguishable brightness. Oh, that the Church might have its eyes anointed with a new chrism of faith, and so be made to behold the innumerable multitude of celestial champions that environ her round and make her invulnerable.

Smite this people with blindness. From their acts, after the prayer was answered, we see that they were not deprived of actual sight, for they followed Elisha to Samaria. They were lured there with the idea of capturing there the prophet—a thing they would entirely have given up had they been unable to see. They were under a mental cloud. The victims of an illusion. They recognized neither the place they had encamped about nor the prophet whom they came to seek, and were led captives at his will into the very capital of his adversary. ... custom ... the times justified the slaughter of those taken in the battle. The real meaning of Elisha's question is: "If you should slay them, would you be destroying those whom you had taken captive with sword and bow?" That is, he could not plead anything as justification for so cruel an act. It would have been slaughter in cold blood. And so by a humanity as wise as it was strange, he made his prisoners ... welcome guests instead of detested marauders, and sent them home ... ity as well as the supernatural powers of their captor. His action was wise as well as benevolent, for the wonderful character of their capture was made known by them all through Syria. The result of their release was that partly from the obligations thus imposed upon them, and partly, from the feeling that it was useless to contend against such miraculous endowments the bands of Syria came no more into the land of Israel."

The Wesley Chapel Concert.

The Concert and Tableaux at Wesley Chapel, Tuesday evening April 10, under the auspices of the New Orleans Jubilee Singers was a splendid success! Mr. J. M. Vance Jr. and Mr. A. A. Goins had charge of the entertainment. Mrs. Julia Yarrington presided at the piano. The following ladies and gentlemen participated, Miss. M. Jones, Miss. E. Parker, Miss. R. Merritt, Mrs. Yarrington, Miss. Ritchie, Mr. A. A. Brown, Mr. Dupuy, and Mr. Dardis. Several of the songs were sung with fine taste and excellent effect. The voices of Misses Jones and Parker and Mrs. Yarrington are especially good. Mr. Brown has an excellent bass voice.

East Tennessee Wesleyan University, Athens, Tennessee.

THE Examination and Commencement Exercises of this institution take place in the first week in June, 1877. The following are the names of those who compose the Visiting and Examination Committee, and are desired to be present:

Rev. J. A. Ruble, Rev. J. J. W. Mann, Prof. R. Pierce, Rev. R. Gribble, Rev. J. B. Little, Col. J. R. Hoxie, Rev. R. O. Ayres, Rev. ... Cones, Wm. Rule, Esq., Rev. W. C. Graves, Rev. J. R. Shultz, ... Depue, Esq., Rev. A. S. Wright, Rev. T. H. Russell, Rev. A. B. Wright, Chas. Vinson, Esq., Rev. W. A. Cass, Rev. R. Q. Fuller, D.D., Georgia Conf., and Rev. J. OTTO Knight, of the Tennessee Conference, and Rev. T. L. Chandler, Tennessee Conference.

If brethren decline attending, please notify the President as soon as convenient.

J. S. MATTHEWS, Pres. Ex. Board.
Athens, March 30, 1877.

The signing of the protocol has not relieved the uneasiness that prevails in all the European capitals. The London correspondent of the New York Herald takes the following gloomy view of the prospects of peace:—Germany has the best disciplined army and the highest military prestige in Europe, and her financial and social conditions demand the stimulus of war. Russia wants Constantinople, Germany seeks Holland and the German provinces of Austria. Russia and Germany will move against Turkey and England with ships purchased in America, and scour English commerce from the ocean and blockade English ports, giving an immense impetus to American industry. It is evident that tremendous events are in preparation, in which America will play a prominent part.

News from the Interior of Mexico is unfavorable to Diaz. His forces are melting away, and there is a call for Lerdo in Mexico. The game of the usurper is up, and, he no doubt will be swept away by a fierce revolution in a few days.

Young Men's Christian Association.

The following are the topics which will be discussed at the Twenty-second Annual International Convention of Young Men's Christian Associations to be held at Louisville, Ky., June 6th to 10th.

1. The international work intrusted to the Executive Committee. 1. At the South; 2. On behalf of colored young men; 3. At the West; 4. In Canada; 5. Among Railroad men; 6. Among the Germans.

2. The work intrusted to State and Provincial Committees. 1. In New England; 2. In the West; 3. In the South.

3. How I use the Bible. 1. For myself; 2. With Christian workers; 3. With the unconverted.

4. The evangelistic work of the associations, its limitations, and the qualifications of those who engage in it.

5. Association work in its peculiar adaptations to the wants and temptations of young men.

Died.

In this city, March 6th, at the age of ninety-two years, Mrs. Maria Smith. Mother Maria was a native of Maryland, and was brought to this State in her early childhood. In her early youth she gave her heart to the Savior, and united with the M. E. Church, of which she remained a faithful, consistent member during all of her long life. Her death was peaceful, and she met it full of Christian hope and faith. Her memory will be long cherished by her large circle of friends and acquaintance. G.

Notices.

The Navasota (Texas) District Conference past a resolution, requiring the preachers to settle all amounts yet due for the minutes of 1876, on the third Sunday in June. The Stewards are directed to aid in this matter.

V. M. COLE, P. E.
O. WATROUS, Sec'y.
Bryan, March 16, '77.

The Presiding Elders of the Tennessee Conference will please meet at the Central Tennessee College on the 16th of May, on business of importance. The closing exercises of the College will be in progress at that time.

O. PICKETT, P. E.
Murfreesboro District.

About the middle of May, the green three-cent stamp is to give way to one with more white upon it, which cannot be so easily washed and set afloat a second time.

Mr. Diogenes.

This singular man lived ... was distinguished for his ... manners, and had ... chief business to find ... he took a lantern one ... shining brightly, and went out ... an honest man ... such persons ... When Alexander ... gentleman, paid him a ... what he could do for him ... To cap the climax of ... he dressed like a ... He was a sour ... We infer that he ... history does not ... cause no women would ... his habits, dress, or manners ... become mistress of his ... was an old woman who ... is true, but the women ... and especially with such a ... not been heard from ... spirit which possessed ... less due to ... lousness, one of the ... which is ... The tongue is ... a bad taste, the ... the patient feels dull, sleepy ... apt to be fretful ... ence lived several ... Pierce's Pleasant Purgative ... were invented, a few doses ... relieved him of ... to find ... did of his lantern ... fluence, combined with ... Medical Disc... might have ... view of life, ... habitation, to "spruce up" ... pearance, and at last have ... mend his clothes and his ... which were ... become the happy ... who would have ... the name, not of a cynic ... of a cheerful, healthy, ... man." [illegible]

Never too Late to Mend.

Twenty-one years ago ... dying with consumption ... terrible ... told me ... to 1032 Race ... East India ... cured me.

I now write to ask if you can still ... ness; or if I can obtain that same remedy. I am failing into poor health again, and for the first time since then feel the need of such a medicine.

O. S. BIGLER.
De Kalb Street, Lawrence, N. Y.
January 6, 1877.

N. B.—This Remedy speaks for itself. A single bottle will satisfy the most skeptical. We know that it positively cures Consumption, and will break up a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. $2 50 per Bottle, or Three Bottles for $6 50. Pills and Ointment, $1 25 each. Address, CRADDOCK & Co., 1032 Race Street, Philadelphia.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from active practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of consumption, bronchitis, catarrh, asthma, and all throat and lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for nervous debility and all nervous complaints, after having thoroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, feels it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive, and a conscientious desire to relieve human suffering, he will send, free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, with full directions for preparing and successfully using. Sent by return mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, Dr. ... C. Stevens, 126 Powers' Block, Rochester, N. Y.

BUSINESS COLUMN.

Publisher's Department.

OUR AGENTS.

All Pastors of the M. E. Church, are the authorized agents to receive subscriptions for the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

TERMS OF THE PAPER.

The price to Subscribers is $2 00, or for less than a year, at the rate of 5 cts. per week. Subscriptions may begin at any time, and will run until expiration of time paid for.

HOW TO SEND MONEY.

Send money by Post-office Order, or Registered letter. All Postmasters are required to register letters when asked to, and the only expense is 10 cts. additional postage. Post office orders, cost 10 cts. for any amount less than $10, and 15 cts. for any amount between ten dollars and $50.

BOOKS.

Any book published by the Methodist Episcopal Church, and advertised in this paper, will be sent on receipt of price.

NELSON & PHILLIPS,
20 Natchez St., New Orleans, La.

Quarterly Meetings.

Houston, Texas, District.

... [illegible] ... April 14 and 15; Oyster Creek, April 21 and 22; Richmond and Prairie Chapel, April 28 and 29; ... [illegible] ... Houston Circuit, June 2 and 3; ... June 9 and 10.

W. L. MOLLOY, P. E.

Murfreesboro, Tenn., District.
(Third Round.)

McMinnville, May 5-6; McMinnville Circuit, May 5-6; Shelbyville, May 12-13; Lewisburg, May 16-17; Springhill, May 19-20; Franklin, May 23-24; Mill Creek, May 26-27; Alexandria, June 2-3; Murfreesboro Circuit, June 2-3; Murfreesboro, June 9-10; Woodbury, June 9-10; Carthage, June 9-10; Stone River, June 16-17; North Lebanon, June 16-17; Clark Chapel, June 23-24; Nashville Circuit, June 23-24; Hartsville, June 23-24; Gallatin, 27-28; Mitchellsville, June 27-28; Springfield, June 30 and July 1; Dickson, June 30 and July 1.

The brethren will see from the arrangement of the above schedule that it will be impossible for me to be present at each of them. By consulting the Discipline (new edition) paragraph 175, sec. 4, it will be seen that the last General Conference makes it the duty of the preacher in charge to hold the Quarterly meetings in the absence of the Presiding Elder.

O. PICKETT, P. E.

Holly Springs, Miss., District.

Mt Pleasant, April 7-8; Kosciusko, April 14-15; French Camp, April 16-17; Greensboro, April 18-19; Winona and Vaiden, April 21-22; Duck Hill, April 26-27; Grenada, April 28-29; Grenada Circuit, April 30 and May 1; Oxford, May 5-6; Elijah, May 8-9; Abbeville, May 12-13; New Albany, May 19-20; Hickory Flat, May 26-27; Ripley, May 26-27; Holly Springs, June 2-3; Holly Springs Circuit, June 6-7; Chulahoma, June 9-10; Byhalia, June 11-12.

As the greater part of the work lies at a considerable distance from the Railroad, and as it is important to visit every part of it, I shall go by private conveyance.

J. G. JOHNSON, P. E.

Greenwood (Miss.) District.

Yazoo City, March 17 and 18; Benton, March 24 and 25; Pickens, March 31 and April 1; Goodman, April 7 and 8; ... [illegible] ... June 2 and 3; Shiloh, June 9 and 10; Austin, June 16 and 17; Bolivar, June 23 and 24.

[illegible], P. E.

San Antonio (Tex) District.

Atascosa Valley, April 21 and 22; ... [illegible] ... San Antonio, May ... [illegible]

[illegible], P. E.

Texas Lands.

Best Investment in the Nation!

640 acres rich prairie land ... [illegible] ... Title perfect. ... [illegible] ... Full particulars furnished on application (with stamps).

References: Rev. Wm. Brush, D.D., P. E. Austin District, Austin, Texas; First National Bank, Dallas, Texas; State Savings Bank, Dallas, Texas. Address,

REV. L. H. CARHART,
West Texas Conference.
Box 377, Dallas, Texas. [a19-tf

A. R. NELSON,

Commercial Stationer, Printer, Blank BOOK MANUFACTURER and LITHOGRAPHER.

THE best assortment of Blank Books in the city.

The Finest Specimens of Lithographic work to be found in New Orleans.

No. 57 CAMP STREET.

Sign of the Mammoth Letter Press.

Call and Prove My Statements.
[oct18-76 ly

SOUTHWESTERN AGENCY
for
School and College Text Books.

Office No. 6 CAMP STREET ...

Below we submit the ... of books (so conceded by the ... of this country) for use in PRIMARY, INTERMEDIATE and GRAMMAR schools. To insure their adoption by the progressive ... a careful comparison with books of a like grade, a critical examination and a thorough practical test in the class-room.

Harper's School Geography ... United States First Reader, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth ... Wilson's Primary Speller ... Larger ... Lamson's Penmanship, per dozen ... French's First Lessons in Numbers ... Elementary Arithmetic ... Mental Arithmetic ... Common School Arithmetic ... Swinton's Language Primer ... Language Lessons ... School Composition ... Progressive ... [prices illegible]

Catalogues, circulars, and testimonials sent on application. Correspondence ... and will receive prompt attention ... W. P. ROGERS & W. ... for the introduction of Harper's ... Educational Works, New Orleans, La. Lock Box ...

A. P. HARRINGTON,

No. 118 Canal Street,
New Orleans, La.
Dealer in
LAW, MEDICAL, SCHOOL, RELIGIOUS, AGRICULTURAL AND MISCELLANEOUS
BOOKS

Stationery, ... Books, Chromos, Photograph Albums, ... copes, Maps, Globes, Writing Desks, Etc.
PRINTING, RULING and BINDING.
Subscriptions taken for Newspapers and Magazines, Payable in advance.
Country Orders ...

MENEELY'S BELLS. ... [illegible] ... MENEELY & COMPANY ... P. O. Address either Troy or West Troy, N. Y.

THE ... Insurance Company OF NEW ORLEANS. Fire, River and Marine ... [illegible]

5,000 BOOKS GIVEN AWAY ... [illegible]

SOUTHWESTERN Christian Advocate. NEW ... PUBLISHERS ANNOUNCEMENT. ... The SOUTHWESTERN ... eight columns of matter ... excellent paper ... The SOUTHWESTERN ... devoted to the interests of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the South. ... [illegible] ... NELSON & PHILLIPS.

DENTISTRY.

DR. ... HAVING ... practice of ... Canal Street, corner of ... Orleans.

N. B.—A full set of Teeth ... for $12. ... [illegible]

BUSINESS COLUMN.

Hints to Farmers.

A bare pasture enriches not the soil, nor fattens the animals, nor increases the wealth of the owner.

One animal well fed, is of more value than two poorly fed.

The better animals can be fed, and the better they are kept, the more profitable they are—and all ... profit.

Good crops are more profitable than poor ones. Make the soil rich, pulverize it well and keep it clean, and it will generally be productive.

When you see the fence down, put it up; if it remains until to-morrow ...

What ought to be done to-day, do it—for to-morrow it may rain.

TEXT BOOKS

FOR THE

NEW COURSE OF STUDY.

B. J. WEST,

115 & 117 Magazine Street

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Wholesale Dealer and Manufacturer's Agent.

PLANTATION HARDWARE.

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS.

STEAM ENGINES, COTTON GINS

SAW MILLS, GRIST MILLS,

PUMPS, &c., &c.

AT LOW PRICES.

Send for Circulars and Price Lists.

R. HEATH. W. F. PIPPEY, M. LARA.

HEATH, PIPPEY & LARA,

99 ... CAMP STREET ... 99

NEW ORLEANS.

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

UPHOLSTERERS MATERIALS,

Wall Paper,

Window Shades, Cornices, and

CURTAIN GOODS.

PICTURES, FRAMES,

MOULDINGS, MIRRORS,

LOCKS, WIRE-CLOTH,

WINDOW & DOOR SCREENS

FRAMING DONE TO ORDER.

14-ly

THE

Houston and Texas Central Railroad,

Operating over 500 miles of superior road, runs North and South through the ...

FINEST AGRICULTURAL and GRAZING DISTRICTS in TEXAS

And offers the most desirable sites for location to parties immigrating to that great State. The

NORTHWESTERN BRANCH.

Of this road, which is now being pushed forward beyond Waco, will pierce the Great Mineral region of NORTHWESTERN TEXAS.

For further information, address

BEGIN THE WORLD

WITH

FAMILY BIBLE.

One in which you can register the names of your children. When they were born. When they die—(God Forbid). When they marry—(May they do well.)

Having within its covers Brown's Celebrated Concordance; The Psalms in Meter; A history of the Bible, and a place for photographs. These Bibles can be had of

JAMES A. GRESHAM,

Bookseller and Stationer, 92 Camp st.,

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Price, $6, $6, $7, and $10.

ROGERS & JARVIS,

Agents for introduction of the Publications of

HARPER & BRO'S.,

For the States of Louisiana,

Mississippi,

and Texas.

OFFICE, 80 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

HARPER & BROTHERS

PUBLISH

HARPER'S United States Readers,

...

SCOTT'S History of the United States,

...

WILLSON'S New Reading Charts,

SCHOOL HARMONIST, with instrumental accompaniments.

Harper's United States Readers, Willson's Spellers, Lamson's Writing Books, Willson's Industrial Drawing Books, March's Parser and Analyser, Willson's Reading and Object Teaching Charts have been adopted by the State Board of Education for exclusive use in all the Schools of Louisiana.

Supplies for introduction furnished at very liberal discount.

Correspondence with School Officers and Teachers solicited. Catalogue and Circulars sent free. [14-tf

---

Patents obtained for mechanical devices, medical or other compounds, ornamental designs, trade-marks, and labels.

Caveats, Assignments, Interferences, relating to Patents, Infringements, and all matters promptly attended to.

Inventions that have been rejected by the Patent Office may still, in most cases, be secured by us. Being opposite the Patent Office, we are able to make closer searches, and secure Patents more promptly and with broader and better claims than those who are remote from Washington.

Inventors send us a model or rough sketch and description of your device; we will make an examination, free of charge, and advise you as to its patentability. All correspondence strictly confidential. Prices as low as those of any reliable agency.

We refer to Officials in the Patent Office, and to inventors in every State of the Union.

Address, Louis Bagger & Co.

Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

E. D. ELLIOTT,

Madame FOY'S Corset Skirt Supporter

Increases in popularity every year. And for HEALTH, COMFORT and STYLE is acknowledged the BEST ARTICLE of the kind ever made. For sale by all leading jobbers and retailers. Beware of imitations and infringements.

MANUFACTURED SOLELY BY

FOY & HARMON,

New Haven, Conn.

ml-12tl

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine.

DURANG'S RHEUMATIC REMEDY.

Will most positively cure any case of rheumatism or rheumatic gout, no matter how long standing, on the face of the earth. Being an inward application it does the work quickly, thoroughly and permanently, leaving the system strong and healthy. Write to any prominent person in Washington city, and you will learn that the above statement is true in every particular.

Washington, July 18, 1874.

Messrs. Helpenstine & Bentley:

I suffered for more than thirty years from chronic rheumatism, at times in a helpless condition; during which time I employed the best medical skill, but finding no relief, bought a bottle of Durang's Rheumatic Remedy, and when I had taken it all (sixteen doses) was a well man, and as I write this certificate am perfectly free from pain, all owing to taking the above medicine. I regard it as the only preparation ever gotten up that will effectually cure rheumatism.

JNO. F. BENTLY,

Chief of Public Debt Division, 1st Auditor's office, Treasury Dep't Washington, D. C.

National Hotel, Washington, Dec. 2, '74.

Messrs. Helpenstine & Bentley:

GENTS.—I very cheerfully state that I have used Durang's Rheumatic Remedy, prepared by you, with decided benefit, and although yet somewhat troubled with rheumatism, I am in much better condition than I was some months ago, which improvement I alone attribute to this remedy.

Yours, truly, ALEX. H. STEPHENS,

Member of Congress of Georgia.

Price, $1 a bottle, or six bottles for $5. Ask your druggist for Durang's Rheumatic Remedy, manufactured by

HELPENSTINE & BENTLEY,

Druggists and Chemists, Washington, D. C.

Sold by dealers all over the United States.

[dec7-6m-eow

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $1 free. Stinson & Co., Portland, Me.

WANTED—SALESMEN. Salary $000 a year; Traveling and Hotel expenses paid, to sell our STAPLE MANUFACTURES direct to dealers; NO PEDDLING; address or apply to S. A. GRANT & Co., 2, 4, 6, & 8 Home st., Cincinnati, Ohio. [aug7-6m

---

$12 a day at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. TRUE & Co., Augusta, Me.

ELASTIC TRUSS

$12 a day at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. TRUE & Co., Augusta, Maine.

Dec 21 76 1y]

OFFICE AMERICAN COTTON TIE CO. LIMITED

47 Carondelet St. New Orleans, La.

To Dealers in Iron Cotton Ties, Planters, and Country Merchants Generally.

WE beg to inform you that we are prepared, through our regularly established agent, to supply the trade in any quantity with the following celebrated Ties:

BRANCH, CROOKE & CO'S LOCK TIE.

THE ARROW AND SIDE SLOT.

BEARD & BRO'S. LOCK TIE.

We also beg to inform the public that the interests of Messrs. Beard & Bro., and Branch Crooke & Co., are now merged into and with the American Cotton Tie Company, Limited. The following are the New Orleans Agents:

Stone & Tutt — Ogden & Bell

Chism & Boyd, — Archer & Borland,

Wm. Dillion, — D. L. Ranlett & Co.

For the American Cotton Tie Co., Limited.

R. W. RAYNE,

May28,761y] General Agents.

THE DEMOREST'S QUARTERLY JOURNAL OF FASHION, yearly 10 cts; post free. 17 E. 14 st., N. Y. [16

$66 a week in your own town. Terms and outfit free. H. Hallett & Co. Dec 21-76 1y] Portland, Maine.

Virginia Roofing Slate.—The Best and strongest in the world, not excepting the well-known Welsh Slate.

The undersigned having accepted the agency for the sale of the celebrated ONE BANK and IMPERIAL QUARRIES, is now prepared to fill orders at prices much below those of Welsh and but little in excess of those of ordinary American Slates. Builders, contractors, and slaters generally are invited to submit them to the severest tests.

ALEXANDER HILL,

jan17-76 1y] ... N. O.

COIN-SILVER

AND

Gold Premiums

GIVEN AWAY

To Every Subscriber of This Paper!!

TO EVERY SUBSCRIBER FREE.

Silver and Gold goods furnished under this Premium Proposition are from the well known and reliable Eagle Gold and Silver Plating Company, Cincinnati, Ohio. ...

FREE OF ANY CHARGE. All express and packing charges are covered by the ... and the Spoons will be delivered to you FREE. ... The order must in all cases be sent, to indicate that you are entitled to this Premium, as this very liberal offer is not extended to any who is not a patron of this paper. The retail price of this set of spoons is $4.50, as the following letter will show:

READ CAREFULLY.—If you prefer as a Premium our $7.00 CASTOR, or $6.00 set of SIX FORKS, we will furnish you with the Castor on receipt of $1.50, and the Forks upon receipt of $1.00; this includes the cost of packing, boxing, postage, and express charges; or we will furnish you any of the other goods named on same terms. ...

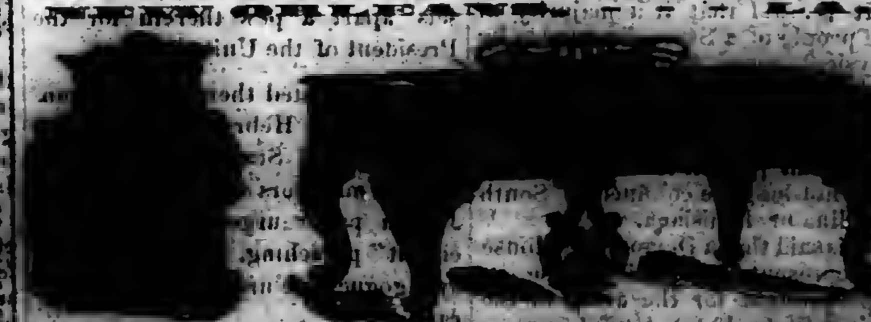
PREMIUM SILVER ORDER.

Premium Silverware; Warranted Extra Silver Plate.

PHILIP WERLEIN,

Nos. 78–90 Baronne Street,

NEW ORLEANS, LA.



LARGEST Piano House in This Country,

—OFFERS—

Chickering's New Scale PIANOS,

HALE'S PIANOS, HARDMAN'S PIANOS.

ESTEY & CO. ORGANS, MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS,

As low as any house North. Monthly Payments. Discounts for cash.

Music and Musical Instruments of Every Description. [feb22-1y

---

Pianos

AND Organs

E S T E Y

ORGANS,

This beautiful instrument is too well known to need description.

OVER 75,000

are now singing their praises. Why buy any other Organ when you can get the

ESTEY,

As Cheap as the Cheapest!

Bradbury Pianos

known all over the world as strictly first-class, and used in preference to all others by Grand Central, St. Nicholas, and Metropolitan Hotels, New York; Rev. Simpson and Janes, Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church; Rev. Dan'l Curry, Chaplain McCabe, Philip Phillips, Wm. Morely, Punshon and thousands of our leading men throughout the country.

CHICKERING Pianos.

The BEST PIANO made! Received more Gold medals, Higher Awards, and more solid recommendations than any other Piano made.

STORY & CAMP PIANOS,

THESE ELEGANT Instruments are unsurpassed, and are sold at exceedingly low prices. Every instrument Fully Warranted, and sold to responsible parties on easy time. Full description and illustrated catalogues sent to any address with any information desired.

STORY & CAMP,

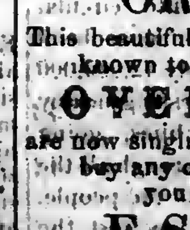
914 Olive street, St. Louis.

jel-1y] 211 State street, Chicago.

NATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER

Edited by M. C. HAZARD. ... the most thorough, helpful and ... lessons, the best corps of contributors, and the most popular ... departments. Needs only to be examined in order to be taken. Terms, $1.50 per year. Clubs of five or more receive six Lesson Papers with each copy. Sample copy sent free on application to

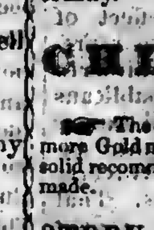
ADAMS, BLACKMER, & LYON PUB. CO., CHICAGO.



... BELL FOUNDRY.

Established in 1837.

[jan30-1y]



... BELL FOUNDRY.

VANDUZEN & TIFT,

Jan 30,76 tf

ASTHMA. ... ASTHMA ...

aug6-6m

GLASS STAINERS

CHURCH WINDOWS A SPECIALTY.

WM. COULTER & SON,

Cincinnati, O.

may1-76-1y

Southwestern Christian Advocate.

NEW SERIES—VOL. 1—NO. 17. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, APRIL 26, 1877. WHOLE NUMBER 347

SOUTHWESTERN
Christian Advocate.
PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT [illegible] New Orleans,
BY
NELSON & PHILLIPS,
[illegible]
[illegible] Methodist Episcopal Church.
[illegible] in Advance.
[illegible]

the combinations and transformations and phenomena of matter. All force, though interchangeable in form, is indestructible, and eternally invariable in quantity. It has always been, and always will be adequate to effect all results in the universe, without supernatural interposition and power.

(3.) The operations of Force have produced all things in the universe as they now exist.—From an intensely heated and gaseous and nebulous condition of matter (how it came in this condition they fail to tell us, and thus fail to disprove the creative fiat), a cooling, solidifying process generated the stars, suns, systems and constellations that revolve and shine in unlimited space. Hence, God, as the creator of worlds, is a mere figment of legend or myth, thus undermining the Bible. Cosmogony throws the Book to the waste-basket, and leaves the universe orphaned of God. Force is the only God.

(4.) Vegetable and animal life had a merely natural origin.—It may have originated by spontaneous generation, since in matter are "the promise and potency of every form and quality of life." All life may have been developed from one or more primordial germs that came from, from—somewhere! Perhaps these germs of life are the dying legacy of some wrecked world, that chanced to fall into the lifeless matter of our planet. But how came life into that wrecked world? Perhaps from an antecedent wrecked world? But how in that antecedent world? Alas! they cannot trace or tell its origin. Others declare that all life is developed from protoplasm, or a gelatinous substance, in which it primarily exists. But how came life in the protoplasm? Alas! again they are at sea. Yet, forsooth, from such dim and dismal misty and mythical genesis all the multitudinous and magnificent forms of vegetable and animal life have peopled rill and river, sea and ocean, field and forest, earth and air, both the [illegible] and the ephemeral and [illegible]. And in this evolution man is [illegible] climbing all the way up from the polyp through the frog, the fish, the reptile, the dog, the [illegible]—when he made a tremendous leap into manhood! I have no objection to these distinguished men tracing their own [illegible] through such a [illegible] [illegible] the Bible as my [illegible] which records that [illegible] created by God [illegible] glorying in a [illegible] the beginning [illegible] "which was the son of Adam, which was the son of God." [illegible] theory logically [illegible] God from the creatorship [illegible] the origin of life and the [illegible] of the human race. If [illegible] these four points [illegible] the [illegible] of a [illegible] God, and stifle theistic [illegible] in the human soul. Let this [illegible] and not another [illegible] to the [illegible] Deity! This thought is [illegible] Church extension [illegible] we are not [illegible] knowledge of God [illegible] of this [illegible] Deity is the logical [illegible] God [illegible] but a [illegible] knowledge, as [illegible] our own personality [illegible] of the universe. As [illegible] says, "And this [illegible] direct certainty of [illegible] minds per se, is the [illegible] atheism." [illegible] heathen of [illegible] suffocating [illegible] over [illegible] cardinal cry, God! I know that my [illegible] of God is [illegible] the strut- [illegible] teachings than [illegible] co- [illegible] convic- [illegible] of incor- [illegible] clear [illegible] uncertain- [illegible] truth than the [illegible] Con- [illegible] God [illegible] every doubt and pours over me the assurance of his Fatherhood and love.

> This awful God is ours,
> Our Father and our Love;
> He will send down his heavenly powers
> And carry us above.

Sure of our footing on this Rock of Ages, we erect the house of God. And every time we build a church we deny atheism; we protest against it; we raise our protest in architectural permanence; we proclaim the existence of God, and put our conviction into stately monuments of brick, stone and marble. The humbler edifice of the hamlet bears the same significant testimony. This Board of Church Extension is thus establishing and multiplying the substantial evidences of Christian theism in the faith of men. That was a magnificent sentiment of Lord Bacon, "I had rather believe all the fables of the Legend and Talmud and Alcoran; than that this universal frame is without a Mind." Devout men see physical and moral and revealed evidences all around them of the existence and sovereignty of God, and therefore build a house, that he may dwell among them, and manifest himself to them, within its sacred walls. It proclaims that he exists and reigns and overrules in our world. It testifies that he is Creator and Governor. It is a perpetual menace of atheism.

The House of God creates our conception of Deity.—God is omnipresent. We cannot grasp the idea of a Being at the same moment present at an infinite number of diverse points, at infinite distances, and filling immensity in his attributes. That is, we cannot comprehend God in his omnipresence. It is a necessity of the finite mind in worship to conceive of God as present at any given time and place. Our conception may locate him in heaven or on earth, but his special presence must be associated with some place. It was then and there that the special manifestation of God came to us in conviction, conversion, and subsequent blessing. God was really and absolutely present at that church, or school-house, or camp-meeting, or secret chamber. "The Lord loveth the gates of Zion more than all the dwellings of Jacob. The Lord shall count, when he writeth up the people, that this man was born there." Hence, wherever ideas of God obtain, men seek to localize his presence, and focalize their conceptions of him, at definite points, by erecting altars, shrines, tabernacles, temples, synagogues, mosques, churches and cathedrals. In this way the absolute and omnipresent Diety is made real to man's thought and worship at a given place. Such a place is the house of God. We specifically and solemnly consecrate it to him. Our profoundest thoughts of him cluster around its sacred altars and within its hallowed walls. There we expect to meet him. Hence, we enter the sanctuary with more solemn tread and more reverent bearing. We uncover the head. We speak in the low tones of awe and adoration. We feel that we are in the special presence of the Majesty of heaven. An instinctive solemnity comes over us as we pass down the isle. "How dreadful is this place! This is none other than the house of God, and this is the gate of heaven."

And God has emphasized this concrete idea in all his manifestations of himself to men. The Omnipresent has always made himself known, or seen, or felt, or heard at specific places—out there in the vision of Bethel, yonder in the burning bush, up there on thundering Sinai, now in the pillar of cloud and fire, then at the altar of Carmel, and here in the holy of holies. Though everywhere present, yet man is necessitated to conceive and know him as revealing himself somewhere in particular. Those old Hebrew saints saw and heard him in lightning and thunder, in snow and rain, in hail and "stormy wind, fulfilling his word." In this way God become concrete, and real, and present, and personal to their thought. He was no longer a vast Omnipresence, but a present, personal God, speaking and acting within the range of finite conception. But, more profound still was their realization of him in the house of God. They believed in him present in all his glorious and awful majesty in the holy of holies, in personal revealment and communion with man. They believed that he revealed himself in the house of God as nowhere else. Therefore the sanctuary became the dwelling place of the Most High—the concrete abode of the Divine Presence. Thus the house of God becomes the outgrowth and the expression of the most real conceptions of Deity. It enshrines in architecture the highest idea of God. It embodies the thought of God in brick and mortar, in wood and stone, and thus impresses the reality of his presence among men by visible monument and speaking memorial. The church becomes a perpetual sermon to both godly and ungodly. Every house of God erected by the aid of the Board of Church Extension is a hard, irresistable fact, [illegible] that God is in the world, and has taken hold of the thoughts of men. It preaches from stone lips [illegible], and peals accountability from iron tongues. Its steeples and turrets are silent ministers, which point the soul to God. Build a church anywhere, and you make God a reality in that community. Seing is believing. You force the thought of God through the eye into the intellect, and thence the conscience. The edifice is an unbribable monitor. The fact of the Divine presence is brought home to the conscience. God is not far off, but is a concrete reality in the midst, dwelling in the house of God.

(To be continued.)

Settled Forever.

Some persons are always confessing and re-confessing, repenting and re-repenting, and never can look upon any portion of their religious experience as a settled and accomplished fact.

A writer represents a minister, to whom a deacon told over his tale of perpetual trouble, as saying:

"Deacon, I remember your son stoutly rebelled against your authority some time ago, but afterwards felt sorry and repented of his sin, and humbly asked your forgiveness. Did you forgive him?"

"Of course I did."

"What did you forgive him for?"

"Because I could not help it, when I saw how sorry he was."

"And does he still ask forgiveness?"

"No—no! Nothing is said about it. It is all settled forever."

"Now, do you believe that you can be better to your son than God is to you? He pardons like a God."

It is easy for the father to forgive his erring son. And sin once forgiven is settled forever between them. And if the wanderer should come every day asking forgivness for what was already forgiven, and pleading for mercy when mercy has already been shown, would not the father feel both injured and insulted? When the prodigal son had worn the best raiment, and eaten of the fatted calf, and had received such tokens of his father's pitying and accepting love, would it have been fitting for him to plead with tears for forgiveness and acceptance? Would not every petition have been a proof that he doubted his father's sincerity and disbelieved his words of loving welcome? What excuse could the [illegible] tal hour in which the father said: "This my son was dead and is alive again, was lost and is found." Would it have been fitting in him to have refused a place at the feast because he was unworthy, or to have hidden away in some corner in shame and tears, while his father's heart was glowing with affection for his repentant son?—Baptist Weekly.

A Modern Parable.

A certain tyrant sent for one of his subjects, and said to him—"What is your employment?"

He said—"I am a blacksmith."

"Go home," said he, "and make me a chain of such a length."

He went home; it occupied him several months, and he had no wages all the while he was making the chain, only the trouble and pain of making it. Then he brought it to the monarch, and he said—

"Go and make it twice as long."

He gave him nothing to do it with, but sent him away. Again he worked on, and made it twice as long. He brought it up again, and the monarch said—

"Go and make it longer still."

Each time he brought it, there was nothing but the command to make it longer still. And when he brought it up at last, the monarch said—

"Take and bind him hand and foot with it, and cast him into a furnace of fire."

These were his wages for making the chain. Here is a meditation for you to-night, ye servants of the devil! Your master, the devil, is telling you to make a chain. Some of you have been fifty years welding the links of the chain; and he says, "Go and make it longer still." Next Sabbath morning you will open that shop of yours, and put another link on; next Sabbath you will be drunk, and put another link on; next Monday you will do a dishonest action, and so will keep on making fresh links to this chain; and so when you have lived twenty more years, the devil will say, "More links on still!" And then, at last, it will be, "Take and bind him hand and foot, and cast him into a furnace of fire." "For the wages of sin is death." There is a subject for your meditation. I do not think it will be sweet; but if God makes it profitable, it will do you good.—Spurgeon.

A man once took a piece of white cloth to a dyer to have it dyed black. He was so pleased with the result that, after a time, he went back to him with a piece of black cloth and asked to have it dyed white. But the dyer answered, "A piece of cloth is like a man's reputation; it can be dyed black, but you can not make it white again."

Hymns for Heaven.

"And they sung a new song."—Rev. 5: 9.

One of the ministers of Leicester, England, in relating some pleasing incidents in connection with his pastoral work gives the following:—

On visiting one of the courts of the town, I was requested by one of the poor people to call on an old woman who had been bedridden for some years, and who lived in the neighborhood. On reaching the cottage, and finding no response to my knocking at the door, I walked in, and went to the foot of the stairs, when I soon heard a faint voice requesting who ever it was to come up. In a small room at the top there lay an aged but cheerful invalid. I told her that I had been requested to call, and that I was a minister of the Gospel. She replied, "Well, then, you are just the visitor I want, and you are come at the right time." And taking up her hymn-book, which lay upon the bed, said, "Now I have been searching for a long time to see if I can find a hymn that will do to sing in Heaven, and I cannot. Now, can you?" I took the book and found

"There is a land of pure delight."

"Surely that will do." "Well, go on," she said; "read the hymn through." Presently I came to "Death like a narrow sea divides."

"Ah," she said, "that won't do." I then mentioned

"There is a fountain filled with blood."

"Go, on," she said. I read the last verse—

> "Then in a nobler, sweeter song,
> I'll sing thy power to save,
> When this poor, lisping, stammering tongue
> Lies silent in the grave."

"That won't do," she said smilingly; "mine shan't be a poor, lisping, tongue there." I found others, but all to no purpose. "No, no, dear sir, shut the book; there will have to be a new song made." "And they sung a new song."—Selected.

Strange Bible Facts.

The learned Prince of Granada, heir to the Spanish throne, imprisoned by order of the Crown, for fear he should aspire to the throne, was kept in solitary confinement in the old prison at the Palace of Skulls, Madrid. After thirty-three years in this living tomb, death came to his release, and the following remarkable researches, taken from the Bible and marked with an old nail on the rough walls of his cell, told how the brain sought employment through the weary years:

In the Bible the word Lord is found 1,853 times, the word Jehovah, 6,855 times, and the word Reverend but once, and that in the 9th verse of Psalm 111. The 8th verse of Psalm 117 is the middle of the Bible. The 9th verse of the 8th chapter of Esther is the longest verse; John 11: 35 is the shortest. In Psalm 107, four verses are alike, the 8th, 15th, 21st, and 31st; each verse of Psalm 136 ends alike. No names or words of more than six syllables are found in the Bible. Isaiah 37 and 2 Kings 19 are alike. The word girl occurs but once in the Bible, and that in Joel 3:3.

There are found in both books of the Bible 3,586,483 letters, 773,692 words, 31,373 verses, 1,189 chapters, and 66 books. Acts 26 is the finest chapter to read. The most beautiful chapter in the Bible is Psalm 23. The four most inspiring promises are John 14: 2, John 6: 37, Matthew 11: 28, and Psalm 37: 4. Isaiah 60: 1 is the one for the new convert. All who flatter themselves with vain boastings of their perfectness should learn Matthew 6. All humanity should learn Luke 6 from the 20th verse to its ending.

Beautiful Extract.

One of the finest things that George D. Prentice ever wrote is this inimitable passage:

It cannot be that earth is man's only abiding place. It cannot be that our life is a bubble cast upon the ocean of eternity, to float a moment upon its waves, and sink into nothingness. Else why is it that the high and glorious aspirations, which leap like angels from the temples of our hearts, are forever wandering unsatisfied? Why is it that the rainbow and clouds come over us with a beauty that is not of earth, and then pass off and leave us to muse on their lovliness? Why is it that the stars which "hold their festival around the midnight throne," are set above the limited faculties, forever mocking us with their unapproachable glory? And, finally, why is it that bright forms of human beauty are presented to our view, and taken from us, leaving the thousand streams of our affection to flow back in Alpine torrents upon our hearts? We are all born for a higher destiny than that of earth. There is a realm where the rainbow never fades, where the stars will spread out before us like the islands that slumber on the ocean, and where the beautiful beings that pass before us like shadows will stay forever in our presence.

It is a Solemn Thing to Live.

Most people say it is a solemn thing to die. And so it is. Death takes us from those we love, bears the body to the silent grave, and the soul to the unseen world. But is it not a great and solemn thing to live?

Of this we may be certain: that people generally die as they live. "Oh, if I had thought I should die as I do, I would not have lived as I did," cried an eastern king when dying. And if you would know what your last end may be, you are to only look at your present conduct. Is sin your delight or your dread? Does a true repentance lead you to forsake every way? Under a sense of guilt and danger, are you seeking for pardon and acceptance through him who died to save sinners? And are you, by the grace of the Holy Spirit, showing the sincerity of your faith by a holy life? It will come to these enquiries at last. Let them have your attention now. Learn that life is a sacred trust, and that as you use it, so will your eternal condition be in heaven or in hell. Be assured that a life of faith in Christ, and of obedience to the will of God, is the happiest life that can be spent on earth, and is the only way to a life of blessedness hereafter. T. C. Cuyler.

Stop-a-While.

There is growing in Africa a thorn called "Stop-a-while." If a person once gets caught in it, it is difficult that he escapes with his clothes on his back, for every attempt to loosen one part of his dress only hooks more firmly another part. The man who gets caught by this thorn is in a pitiable plight ere he gets loose. You would not like—would you, boys—to be caught in this thorn? And yet many, I fear, are being caught by a worse thorn than "Stop-a-while."

Boys and girls who disobey their parents and loiter about on Sabbath instead of going to Sabbath-school, who take the name of the Lord in vain, are caught in the worst of snares, from which it will be more difficult to extricate themselves than from the African thorn; for bad habits are strong, and constantly lure on their victims to pleasures which satisfy not.

The boy who roams the street at night has fallen into one of the worst of habits. It soon teaches him to neglect his duties, adopt evil practices, and to corrupt his heart, while he who spends his evenings at home escapes evil and grows wiser, better, and happier.—S. S. Gem.

The Power of the Gospel.

The celebrated missionary, Mr. Schwartz, relates an instance of a devotee, on the coast of Malabar, who under a sense of guilt inquired of his priest how he might make atonement for his sins. The priest directed him to drive spikes sufficiently blunted through his sandals, and walking on them with his naked feet, to make a pilgrimage to a place nearly five hundred miles distant. If through loss of blood or weakness of body he could not proceed, he might wait for healing or strength. He undertook the journey, and while he halted under a large shady tree where the Gospel was sometimes preached, one of the missionaries came and preached in his hearing from the words, "The blood of Jesus Christ, his Son, cleanseth us from all sin." The word was blessed to him. Jesus met him in the way. The man rose up, threw off his torturing sandals, and cried aloud, "This is what I want," and he became a lively witness that the blood of Jesus Christ does indeed cleanse from all sin.—Baptist Weekly.

The Stars and Stripes.

Two United States flags stand alone in a corner of the Propaganda at Rome. The story is that in one of the Italian rebellions the leader of the insurgents planted his cannon before the Propaganda, intending to destroy it. The frightened Papal authorities begged Minister Cass to save the building by the power of the American flag; neither the flag of England, France or Austria would be respected, but the American flag would. After much hesitation Mr. Cass publicly removed his consulate to the Propaganda and raised the flag of our Union over its roof. The chief of the insurgents swore he would not fire on the flag, made his cannon ready and moved away. The Propaganda was saved, and the flags have this honor for the good they did in time of peril.

One of the Columbus, Ga., mills, the Eagle and Phenix Company, since 1869, eight years, has declared dividends of $750,000. This year will be paid $100,000 in dividends. This, too, while mills at the North have been starving, working on shorter time and diminished force, at a loss or breaking.

General News.

The Methodist Episcopal Discipline provides for the organization of a lyceum in each church, for intellectual improvement.

The king of Holland received the Fisk Jubilee Singers at his palace at Loo, and gave them a good subscription for their University.

St. Louis, basing her claims on a computation made from her new city Directory, claims a population of 501,489. Chicago claimed last year a population of [illegible].

Tilden's majority in Chicago last fall was 4,971. A few days since the Republicans carried the municipal election by 15,000 majority.

A bill is pending in the Illinois Legislature for the purchase of statues of Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas worth [illegible],000 each, to be placed in the State Capitol. If [illegible] the statues can be [illegible] in season they are to be exhibited at the French Exhibition in 1878.

It costs $6 36 less per week to run the new dummy street-cars in Philadelphia than the horse-cars. Steam locomotion and cheap fare will go hand-in-hand in the future.

North China is suffering from a fearful famine, and thousands upon thousands have left their homes, going eastward or southward in hope of finding food in abundance.

A strong movement is on foot among the New York and Philadelphia capitalists to support Lerdo in his coming attempt to obtain control of the Mexican Government.

The British Government has sent the draught of a treaty for the suppression of the slave trade in Egyptian territory and the Red Sea to its Consul-General in Egypt, to be laid before the Egyptian authorities.

Six hundred and thirty persons pleaded guilty before the United States Court at Atlanta, Ga., of illicit distilling, and on promising to do so no more were all set free. This seems to be the sum total the recent raids into the mountains.

Thomas Balch, who died recently at his late residence in Philadelphia, was born at Leesburg, Loudon county, Va., July 23d, 1821. He was the first to propose a Court of International Arbitration. He was a profound student and possessed a remarkable memory.

The new bridge which was in course of construction over the Bazos river, one mile west of Courtney, in Grimes county, Texas, fell in a few days ago. Men were at work on the bridge, and [illegible] of them went down with the wreck. Three were killed outright, and the others were very seriously injured.

Louisville foundries now consume daily about 250 tons of pig-iron, which, although indicating a business of great magnitude, is not commensurate with the great possibilities which can be based on the astonishing richness of iron fields of Kentucky, Tennessee and Alabama.

The loss at sea during the past four months has been very extensive. The losses of cargoes and vessels are estimated at [illegible], the number of persons who found a watery grave about 400, and the number of ship owners ruined [illegible]. The number of total wrecks is set down at 149, and that of vessels merely damaged at 2,053. Of these crippled, 158 were steamers, 757 were schooners, 298 were brigs, [illegible] were barks, and [illegible] were ships.

More than 125 mountains in North Carolina have been measured by Prof. Guyot. Of this number, the lowest is some [illegible] feet and the highest is 6,707 feet. There are fifty-four mountains over 6,000 feet in height, forty-five mountains over 5,000 feet in height, but not so much as 6,000, and [illegible] over 4,000 feet, but not as much as 5,000 feet high. Black Mountain is the highest, being 6,707 feet.

A Telephone concert was held a few nights ago in Steinway Hall, New York. The performer played upon an instrument in [illegible], and the sounds were transmitted on a telegraphic wire, and reproduced in the concert hall in New York. Curiously enough, the airs sounded as if they were played on an instrument at a great distance from the hearer. Excepting that occasionally low notes were [illegible] ately loud, and high notes were heard with difficulty, the effect of the telephone music was, on the whole, very pleasant.

Several piano manufacturers have sent magnificent instruments to the White House, begging the President to accept of them either as gifts or loans; but he declines to be the recipient of favors of any kind. A carriage manufacturer of Cincinnati, and an old friend of the President, tendered him a [illegible] worth $1,800; but President [illegible] declined with [illegible]. [illegible] recently bought [illegible] harness, and [illegible] they are not ready for [illegible] the President [illegible] stable when he wants to ride.

SOUTHWESTERN
Christian Advocate.
[illegible]
J. C. HARTZELL, D.D., EDITOR.
[illegible] APRIL 26, 1877.

[illegible] and Turkey [illegible] will declare war on next Sunday.

[illegible] through [illegible] revival [illegible] University [illegible] he is President. [illegible] have already [illegible]

[illegible] Preachers' [illegible] be an interesting [illegible] meets on Thursday [illegible]. At the last [illegible] chapter of Acts [illegible] Dr. McCarty will [illegible]

[illegible] Grant of Law [illegible] become editor [illegible]

[illegible] of Chicago [illegible]

[illegible] said there can be no religion without an incarnation, or, as the heathens state it, "without the gods come down and dwell among men." Whether this be true or not, it is true that the idea of incarnation is as old as the world. Faint glimpses of it are found in all heathen religions. The Hindoo worships the Avatar, which is his god. The people of Thibet worship the Grand Lama or great high priest, because God is supposed to dwell in him. In Greek and Roman mythologies the multiplied forms the different gods assume, as well as the wilder worship of the aborigines of America, we see the same thought. So it is the world over, in all ages, the thought is universal that God, in some form or other has or does dwell among men. The early Christians thought these false incarnations to be caricatures of the true, devised by satan to deceive the world. Some, with more of truth, believed them to be evidences of an inborn desire of the human soul to be united with God, so as to be like Him, and, in the end, dwell with Him. Still another view, and to us the most reasonable, is that this idea of incarnation everywhere found, is one of the many rays of truth, that has gone out from God's revealed Word, and found expression in the religious customs of all men. There is a fable that accounts for the origin of precious stones. The gods had built a temple and every part of it was made of the most precious material. The walls were of Jasper, the columns were studded with [illegible], the steps, the altar, the ornaments were of the purest diamond. [illegible] pride entered that temple, and, shaken as by the power of an earthquake, it tottered, crumbled and fell, and that no trace of it might be left to tempt to a like sin, the gods scattered its fragments throughout the world, and these are the precious stones of to-day. Eden was God's spiritual temple on earth. It needed no adornment but nature, for God dwelt within it. But sin marred its beauty and destroyed it forever. Its children were scattered far and wide, and God no longer walked amid its bowers. But the truth that it contained remained [illegible] and although [illegible] up by sin it yet shines forth [illegible] lands. And these are the gems of truth we see shining in [illegible] out of which is this [illegible] incarnation.

There is, however, a close distinction between a false and a true incarnation. In the [illegible] between the Divine and human they are the same—still in another [illegible] they differ. Heathenism [illegible] Christianity [illegible] that God was truly incarnate. [illegible] In Him (Christ) [illegible] Godhead [illegible] wilderness 400 years before the war of Troy and 900 years before the publication of the works of Thales and Confucius, down to the last days of Jewish inspiration, the theme is the same. They never lose sight of that bright, rising, glorious star of the future—the birth of Christ. Take Christ out of the Old Testament and the sublimest prophecies lose their charm. Recognize Christ and every prophecy, every type and figure, every word of promise and of comfort to nations and individuals is lit up as with sunlight. "All point with steady ray to Bethlehem." The time, place and circumstances of His birth are given with marvelous accuracy. His offices as prophet, priest and king are foretold. The manner of his life is given. His humility and suffering are spoken of. All the chief points in His character are predicted.

[illegible]

Added to these prophetic words the ancient worthies were ofttimes made sensible of the presence of the coming God-man, and Moses on Sinai even caught a glimpse of His floating garments. So sensible was His presence made to Jacob that the old patriarch declared that he had seen Him face to face. He spoke to Moses from the flaming bush, and he moved in the pillars of cloud and fire in the wilderness. By Him the law was given. At His command a sanctuary was built and He took possession of it in visible form, as the Shechinah. Here He was consulted on all occasions and received the worship of ages. The Jehovah of the Old Testament was none other than the Christ of the New, and his visible manifestations of himself during the Patriarchal Mosaic, and Jewish dispensations were but prophetic types of the perfect revelation of His manhood in the fullness of time, upon the plains of Palestine.

Beyond the Bible were the expectations of all heathen lands. The heart, burdened with sin longed for deliverence, and it is a fact known to all students of history that every nation had its prophecies more or less clearly defined, of a coming deliverer, who would bring consolation and peace.

As the time approached for the birth of Christ the expectations of the world culminated. And at last when he came the song of the angels blended with the joys of the good and pious of the Jews to welcome Him, which welcome was heightened by the devout acknowledgement of the heathen wise men. Thus the redeemed in glory joined with the representatives of the world to be redeemed, to welcome God manifest in the flesh.

Moody and Sankey in Boston.

The revival meetings conducted in the mammoth Tabernacle are producing a very marked effect. These are seen in four particulars:

1st. In studying God's Word. It is a great victory to get men to listen to God and carefully contemplate His will. This effect is marked in the demand for Bibles. Mr. Moody is a preacher of one book. He recites Bible stories as though they were events that transpired in his day, in fact things that had just happened in an adjoining State, and by this method all the interest in a wonderful event is awakened; and instead of telling the whole story he tells just enough to lead people to search for the rest in the inspired record.

2d. The temperance work is one of the main features of the revival. One day in seven is specially devoted to this cause. Hundreds of the lowest men in the city have been reclaimed, converted and saved, and, we hope, will never return to their cups. Here alone, in Christ is hope for the fallen. Men may resolve, sign the pledge with their own blood, bind themselves by an oath taken in the face of God and go away to get drunk, but when men get new hearts, new dispositions, and new appetites by the grace of God and this latter continued, they [illegible] to stick. One lady, a Mrs. [illegible], seemingly called of God to this work, goes in and out among [illegible] abandoned like an angel of [illegible], and it is wonderful to see how ready these men are to obey [illegible] and godly woman. While Moody and Sankey are getting [illegible] of the Church, and [illegible] no more given to them than [illegible] God is honoring many, especially some elect women.

[illegible] feature is in breaking [illegible] in the churches. [illegible] preaches extemporaneously [illegible] even among our [illegible] ministers, have of late abandoned their paper wings. The singing is congregational, led by a vast choir, and this method is taking in our churches, minus the choir. The people will sing if they can only have a chance, and sing lustily, too. The city is being canvassed by earnest Christian workers, and the country is catching the enthusiasm.

4th. The new life is manifest. What a change. Worship in the household makes the family a type of Heaven. Here profanity has given way to praise; hatred to love, sorrow to joy; in fact, old things have passed away, and all things become new. A new life hid with Christ is the basis of manliness.

Truly yours, T. J. ABBOTT.

Lawrence, Mass., Apr. 16, '77.

Our Southern German Methodism.

Quietly, but surely and strongly, our German Methodism is being rooted in the South. In this city we have three vigorous churches. The First Church, Rev. J. Braun pastor, has just completed a $1,200 parsonage, and the Second Church, Rev. J. Kienle pastor, is being thoroughly repaired and painted. The Third Church, Rev. J. Ueber pastor, is steadily improving.

The Southern German Conference includes our German work in Texas. In that State there are sixty preaching places, over a thousand members and probationers; twenty churches, valued at $29,600, and thirteen parsonages, valued at $6,000. In 1876 six churches and five parsonages were built. All this property has been accumulated with only $2,800 help from the Board of Church Extension. In the development of this Texas work only sixteen out of the sixty preaching places have been established where there are Southern Methodist German churches.

A Pleasant Excursion.

We enjoyed a delightful day last week, in company with a few friends, visiting the United States Monitor, Canonicus, lying in the river in front of the city, and in visiting the National Cemetery and Jackson Barracks and Battle Ground, several miles below the city. Among the company were Rev. Dr. Buckley and family and Mr. Hoyt, of Stamford, Connecticut; Dr. McCarty, Hon. E. Heath and family and the wife and daughters of General Bussey, of this city.

Commander McGlensey sent his boats and took the party to the Canonicus, and an hour was spent in examining the wonderful mechanism of that boat. It carries two guns, each capable of throwing a four hundred and fifty pound solid shot. They lie side by side in a turret, encased by iron five inches thick. On the top of this is the pilot-house; also heavily encased in iron. The whole weight of the turret and guns is eight hundred tons. When in action this enormous weight is raised so as to swing clear, and the gunners can turn the muzzles of the great guns in any direction. This great weight is lifted by hydraulic power by the strength of a single man. All the rest of the ship is under water, including ample rooms for officers, a three hundred horse-power engine, &c., &c. The following is a complete list of the officers, all of whom did what they could to make the visit of our party pleasant: Commander J. T. McGlensey; Lieut. W. H. Meyer, Jr., Executive; G. M. L. Maccarty, Chief Engineer; Stephen Rand, Jr., Paymaster; Lieut. Fred. Singer, Navigator; Masters, W. E. B. Delahay and L. P. Jonelt; Dr. Wm. Martin, Surgeon; and T. K. Moore, Captain's Clerk.

After bidding adieu to these gentlemanly officers, Messrs. D. B. Wood & Co., placed their steam-tug, "Charlie Wood," at our disposal. Capts. Wood and Switzer accompanied us, and a pleasant ride down the river was enjoyed. An hour was spent at Jackson Barracks, commanded now by Colonel Scott. Another hour was spent at the National Cemetery, where lie buried 18,000 boys in blue. This Cemetery is on the famous Jackson battle-ground. Some of the old breast-works yet remain, and the place is pointed out where Gen. Packingham, commander of the English forces, died. An unfinished monument stands at the upper end of the battle-field. It was being built when the war began.

Hon. Charles Heath, who has been spending some weeks in this city and State on business, left for his home in Maldon, Mass., on the 22d inst.

Dr. Wheeler, editor of the New York Methodist, says:

There, for instance, in New Orleans, are Drs. Parker and Hartzell, both Americans of English blood, and both Methodists. A sceptic might say that, if Christianity really helps to a common vision, these two reverend doctors, whose sincerity is beyond question, ought to be able to make a common report of the facts that were made under their noses and eyes. But these doctors in Methodism are as far apart in their facts as any two wicked Senators in Washington. Perhaps the truth is, that ordinary doses of religion (the amount that doctors usually take) do not prevent the psychologizing of facts; and in some cases the more divinity one has studied, the more certainly will he think his facts into their relations so quickly as to both fail to take their exact measure, and to remember them photographically. A good deal more of religion would correct the evil.

The above is characteristic of a paper trying to be all things to all men, even where great principles are at stake. So far as we are concerned we thank God that we are blessed with positive convictions, on questions relating to the unity of this Government, the proper treatment of the colored people and upon the importance and success of our Southern Methodism. Dr. Parker is also a man of positive convictions, and as such we respect him, however much we may differ from him. Personally our relations are pleasant, and where we disagree we have too much respect for ourselves to impugn each other's motives.

Our eye has just fallen on a poem which we quote for the benefit of our New York friend. It is from the Phrenological Journal for May, and is entitled "On the Fence."

Once in a fearful battle
The birds and beasts engaged,
To prove which were the greater,
And high the contest waged.

A bat, from his position,
Thought neutral he'd remain,
Until he knew for certain
Which side was sure to gain.

So, from a fence commanding
A most extended view,
He watched the birds' hard fighting,
And watched the beasts all through.

He kept his wings and spirits
So very fresh and cool,
Watching each party's merits—
Predicting which would rule.

At length, the beasts prevailing,
He active joined their fight;
The birds a rally making,
Was found with them at night.

At last, when peace concluded,
Since for both he did fight,
Nor bird nor beast would own him—
He skulked away from sight.

Since then, earth's holes and corners
Are his abiding place;
Except in twilight's darkness
He durst not show his face.

* * * * *

How many men are sitting
Like bats upon a fence,
Waiting a breeze befitting
To jump off, hence or thence.

As in the world of thinking
Two sides must always be,
Each great soul unshrinking
His own right side will see.

Better a nail's firm power
In the humblest cot unknown,
Than a cock on the highest tower,
That moves with the wind alone.

The Louisiana Commission left for Washington last Saturday evening. They came to complete the work of delivering this State into the hands of the Democracy, and succeeded. We gather their mission from Mr. Evart's letter of instructions to them, and from the course of the Commission while here. We have only time as we go to press to say this much, and to add, that now that Gov. Nicholls is recognized as Governor of Louisiana, we cannot see by what right Mr. Hayes can continue to be the President of the United States. His title to the Presidency rests on the same vote as Mr. Packard's to the Governorship of Louisiana. If Gen. Nicholls is rightfully the Governor of Louisiana, then Mr. Tilden is rightfully the President of the United States.

By these remarks we do not in any sense place ourselves in opposition to the work of pacification toward the South; or express any lack of confidence in Governor Nicholls and his government. With the theory of President Hayes' policy towards the South we are in hearty accord, but we fear that already, he has placed himself in a position when the question is not, what he can do for the South, by what the South will permit him to do for the nation.

In the struggle of the past months Messrs. Nicholls and Packard have both shown themselves to be men of character, prudence, and strength. The former has won, and in the letter and pledges given in another column, we have as solemn guarantees as words can give, that all classes are to share alike in the benefits of his rule.

Disgraceful Journalism.

The New Orleans Democrat disgraces itself, by publishing in its issue of the 14th inst., from its Washington correspondent, a mean and vulgar attack upon the Methodist Episcopal Church. We will not pollute our columns with all that is said, but give the following as a specimen:

This North Methodist Church is the originator of the institution of carpet-baggery; for the portable statesmanship which has cursed the country and plundered the South for the last twelve years found its first model in the itinerant gospelry of the Methodist Church—which was itself founded on the theory that by shifting its preachers every two years religious intimacies of the paroxysmal variety could be reduced to the minimum of scandal.

I have made the political aspects of the North Methodist Church a profound study, and the more I watch its developments the firmer grows my conviction that nothing has been seen like it since the destruction of the Inquisition in Spain, the decay of the Jacqueries and Gabelles in France, and the end of the "No Popery" fury in England. Old Praise-God-Barebones, of the Cromwellian epoch, was a broad and liberal Christian by comparison with these North Methodist ranters, who have been for ten years trying to obtain control of the government and whose religion consists in a bastard mixture of the words of Christ with the meditations of the thieves between whom He was crucified.

Under Grant North Methodism had full swing and held such carnival as only hypocrites can hold who sneak about with prayer on their lips and plunder in their hearts; who crawl about high places holding up big Bibles in front to hide the pillage of the treasury by their confederates.

It is difficult to conceive how the editor of the Democrat so far forgot himself as to permit anything like the above to appear in his paper. The Methodist Episcopal Church is not the "North Methodist Church" any more than it is the "South Methodist Church." As a great Church its conferences and work extend to every part of the nation. If the editor of the Democrat would glance occasionally at the columns of the SOUTHWESTERN, he would learn that the Church which he permits his correspondent to slander, is one of the chief evangelizing forces in his own city and State. The 12,000 preachers and 1,500,000 members of the M. E. Church will in no way be effected by such vulgarism as the above, and we refer to them, hoping that the Democrat will not again be party to so disgraceful a publication.

Funeral of Dr. McDonald.

Rev. J. Morris Shumpert, of Holly Springs, under date of April 7th, gives some of the particulars of the funeral of Rev. Dr. McDonald which occurred at that place March 8th. The corpse was taken to Shaw University on Sunday, at 12 o'clock. The Chapel was crowded to its utmost capacity. Prof. W. W. Hooper delivered a touching and eloquent address. Miss Smith, one of the teachers, presided at the organ, and the faces and singing attested the deep feeling of those present. Bros. J. Hall, J. Oglesby, R. D. Miller, T. D. Hall and Robt. Cunningham were pall bearers. All the people followed the remains to the grave.

In due time we hope that we will be furnished with an appropriate memorial of the life and services of Dr. McDonald. He was one of the most faithful and devoted workers in our Southern work. His place will be hard to fill. He fell at his post of duty a martyr to overwork and care. For his family, who, we understand, is left without means, we have the profoundest sympathy.

Death of Rev. J. G. Webster, West Texas Conference.

Rev. Mack Henson, of Victoria, Texas, gives us the following particulars of the death of this brother: "Bro. Webster was taken very sick the second day after Conference. He had been appointed to Dallas, and was anxious to get to his appointment, but thought best to go by his home in Nockernut and leave his eldest son with his grand-parents. Bro. Webster was a widower. When he arrived at Nockernut, his friends found that he was too ill to proceed to his work. He suffered for some weeks with pleurisy and hemorrhage of the lungs. On March 14th he fell asleep in Jesus. From Bro. I. Smith I learned of his last words. He said, 'I am going up on high to rest with Jesus.' Our loss is his eternal gain."

Bro. Webster was one of the first ministers in the West Texas Conference. He was among the first organizers of this work, and from the first has been a leading member of the Conference. He was an excellent preacher and a wise counselor, and in his death our work has lost one of its most valuable ministers.

Bro. Henson also says: "We have also to record the death of Miss Rosie Campbell, one of our Sunday-school teachers. Our work is prospering in the midst of all opposition."

Questions.

A brother asks, "Can a man who is under charges be admitted into the Quarterly Conference, and be allowed to vote on business questions?" No. When a man is under charges he is suspended from all church privileges, until the charges are disposed of by trial.

The same brother asks, "Is money in the hands of trustees subject to the order of the Quarterly Conference?" The Discipline directs that the trustees must make a report of all moneys received and expended to the fourth Quarterly Conference.

Rev. Dr. McClean, one of the Corresponding Secretaries of the American Bible Society, who has made a tour of the Southern States, has been spending some time in this city. His stay has been prolonged by the illness of his wife. Dr. McClean has had several consultations with the officers of the Southwestern Bible Society, and an arrangement has been effected by which, it is hoped, the distribution of the Word of God will be more efficiently carried forward—especially in Louisiana. Dr. McClean preached in the First Presbyterian Church Sabbath evening. He left, yesterday, for New York, by steamer.

Drew Theological Seminary Catalogue for 1876-77 is a pamphlet of thirty pages. This institution is located at Madison, New Jersey—and enrolls one hundred and four students. Among the graduates of 1876 we notice the name of Rev. S. H. Werlein of the M. E. Church South in this city. We have noticed from time to time, the lectures and sermons delivered before the students of this institution, by representative men. The faculty is a very able one. Drs. Hurst, Strong, Kidder, Buttz, and Miley are among the very best educators in the Church.

Our Southern Methodism.

Rev. M. Adams, Presiding Elder of Meridian District, Miss., writes, April 12, that Rev. N. Cannon, of Meridian has been very sick for the last two months. He has been able to preach but twice since Conference, and will not be able to preach for some time. Bro. Adams will spend some days at Meridian, to assist in a protracted meeting in progress. Rev. John Baldwin, of the M. E. Church South, preached the opening sermon of the meeting.

Rev. M. Dale, pastor of Union Chapel, New Orleans reports that the protracted meeting in progress in his church continues with increasing interest. Thirty-two have been soundly converted and over fifty are seeking the Lord. The church is crowded every night. On last Monday 16th inst., Lovefeast was held, and the house was filled to overflowing, and the interest was very great. On Sunday night the Lord's Supper was administered, two hundred and twenty-five communed.

Rev. J. Hayward of Donaldsonville, says: At the request of my presiding elder I attended the quarterly meeting at Thibadeaux on the 15th. The pastor Bro. Royal is popular among his people at Thibadeaux, and the church rallies about him. His salary was estimated at $300. The presiding elder's claim was fixed at $30 a year. The Sunday-school numbers 60, and is organized as a missionary society. The whole church is in a good condition. Bro Royal is preparing for a basket meeting the first Sunday in May—to raise money for the church. Sister Hayward accompanied me on the trip—and assisted me in the singing. She was invited to return and visit the church.

Mr. Editor I feel that the greatest necessity in our church is the administration of the Discipline.—No plan is so good for all kinds of work as the plan laid down in the Discipline. Our Discipline is plain and our brethren as pastors should read and explain it often to the public, and require all to obey it.

April 12th, I officiated the pleasant of uniting in marriage, Mr Mansfield Carter, and Miss Catherine Bonds.

[illegible] Miss, [illegible] are [illegible] blessed. So far [illegible] ersions [illegible] to the church, and the work goes forward. [illegible] bring [illegible] into the fold. Pray for us, that the Lord may direct us. Our family school numbers 106.

Rev. A. Jackson, Franklin, La., writes: Everything is quiet here, prospects for crops good, and the [illegible] spirit. During a [illegible] I am happy to [illegible] were several conver- [illegible] have undertaken [illegible] a perso[illegible] At a meeting [illegible] sixty-four dol- [illegible] for this purpose, [illegible] raging.

[illegible] people have gon- [illegible] lots where they [illegible] expect soon [illegible] are [illegible] as young [illegible] to learn to read [illegible] people [illegible] preach- [illegible] for this year [illegible] to the [illegible] and in the Dis- [illegible] Mississippi, Miss., [illegible] The P. E. [illegible] administered [illegible] number were [illegible] and we had a [illegible]

[illegible] preaching of a sermon by the presiding elder, especially to the unconverted. The altar is crowded with penitents at our meetings, and we are praying for the salvation of very many souls."

Rev. C. Young, Lulling, Texas, says: We have recently had seven accessions to the church. A deep religious feeling is manifest in our congregations, and we hope for a speedy baptism of the Spirit."

General News.

A colony for settlement in Texas has been organized in Columbia, Indiana.

Eight Turkish iron-clads are now stationed at the mouth of the Danube.

A colony of fifty families from Iowa will shortly settle in Falls county, Texas

Application has been made by a Scotch colony of Chicago for [illegible],000 acres of land in Colorado, and Lavaca counties, Texas.

There was a d[illegible] at Friar's point, [illegible] k. Eight buildings were [illegible] lit- [illegible] their contents [illegible]

Hereafter all appointments of railway post-office clerks, route agents and mail messengers will be made on a probation of six months.

A committee of land explorers from Ohio have been negotiating for the purchase of 100,000 acres near Keachi, Texas.

A fire at Constantinople on Tuesday night, 10th inst., destroyed between 300 and 500 houses. It originated in the Greek quarter.

The London Field now has a special representative in Texas for the purpose of writing up the agricultural and stock raising capabilities of the State.

It is rumored that a block of dwellings thirteen stories high is to be built on the land on the east side [illegible] the United States, as thirteen to [illegible] and her exports from Great Britain are to those from the United States as [illegible] to six.

[illegible] of large vessels [illegible] for [illegible] at [illegible] cleared. They [illegible] loaded by the [illegible]

Mr. E. Berlin has purchased 30,000 acres of land in Morris county, [illegible] three hundred French families who have already been sent for.

Large quantities of marble are being shipped from Knoxville, Tenn., to San Francisco to build a stock Exchange which it is claimed, will be the finest structure of its kind in the United States.

The king of Holland intends to exhibit at the Paris Exhibition a collection of forty thousand [illegible] for the removal of the plants at in- [illegible]

[illegible] by one Georgian; and another, a descendant of the General, has [illegible] camp-chest with its frugal [illegible] of silver.

Contrary to the expectations of [illegible] Siphons, the United States Court has decided that the [illegible] loss of $3,200,000 must be refunded to the Government, be- [illegible] the stock holders are repaid any [illegible] of their shares.

[illegible] Alexander H. Stephens, of [illegible] states that he will be [illegible] to the House of Representa- [illegible] on the day of the meeting of [illegible] for the purpose of electing [illegible] for Speaker. He contin- [illegible] improve in strength.

[illegible] hundred and eighty miles [illegible] were constructed in [illegible] It is thought a [illegible] will be the [illegible] of [illegible] also [illegible] be a [illegible] operation of church [illegible] Dea, Bishop [illegible]

[illegible] the Russian advance; 36,000 in the vicinity of Widin, on the Upper Danube; 110,000 at Shumla, Varna, and Silistria, and behind the Balkans a reserve of 200,000. Russia has concentrated at Kischeneff, Odessa, and other points in the south over 200,000 men ready for action.

A recent marked increase in the number of applications for patents at the Patent Office is considered indicative of a general revival of business throughout the country. The receipts of the office last month were nearly $75,000, being $12,000 more than the total receipts during February, and $20,000 more than the receipts for January.

The Secretary of the Treasury has decided to suspend the issue of one dollar greenbacks in sums exceeding ten dollars. This is done for the purpose of bringing silver coin into more general circulation; and as a further step towards specie payments, under the act of 1875.

The President has wisely determined to sustain the Indian policy so successfully inaugurated by President Grant. No effort of the Administration has accomplished such satisfactory results as the peace policy.

A railroad will be built to the Black Hills within the next eighteen months. Contracts for the [illegible] have been entered into, and the road will reach O[illegible] the beginning of the [illegible]ber.

Three of the steamers which left New York on the 14th for Europe, carried an extraordinary quantity of fresh beef. The city of Richmond, for Liverpool, had 200,000 pounds. The Celtic, for Liverpool over 90,000 pounds, and the California for Glasgow, about 95,000 pounds, besides 2,000 quarters of fresh beef and many live sheep. All carried large quantities of bacon, pork and lard. These three vessels and the Nectar, for Bremen, took 1,000,000 bushels of grain.

Republican-Democratic Principles.

Governor Nicholls and the Democratic Legislature of Louisiana have, in the strongest possible language, affirmed their adherence to the principles of the Republican party. If these pledges can be carried out, the principles of the Republican party will continue to triumph in this State, although the party as an organization has been defeated.

The following letter was addressed to the gentlemen of the late Presidential Commission.

GENTLEMEN—I have the honor to transmit herewith a copy of joint resolutions adopted by the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana.

In so doing I desire to say that they express, not merely abstract ideas, but the conviction of our people, which will be practically executed by them through their representatives, their courts and their executive government.

As the chief magistrate of the State it will not only be my pleasure but my boundon duty to give every assistance in my power leading to that end.

I am thoroughly satisfied that any course of political [illegible] traced on a nar[illegible] color or con[illegible] lead to dis[illegible] on this subject [illegible] to the con[illegible] nominated, and to the people by whom I was elected, and every day's experience fortifies me in the belief that any policy founded on these principles must necessarily result in the attainment of the ends for which all just governments are established.

I have earnestly sought to obliterate the color line in politics and consolidate the people on the basis of equal rights and common interests, and it is a source of gratification to be able to say that this great object is about to be realized. I feel I do but speak the sentiments of the people when I declare that their government will secure:

1. A vigorous and efficient enforcement of the laws, so that all persons and property will be fully and equally protected, and, should occasion require it, I will proceed in person where any disorders may menace the public peace of the political rights of any citizen.

2. The establishment of a system of public education, to be supported by equal and uniform taxation upon property, so that all, without regard to race or color, may secure equal advantages thereunder.

3. The fostering of immigration in order to hasten the development of the great natural resources of the State.

Having thus committed our government and people to these great principles, I desire to add the most emphatic assurance that the withdrawal of the troops of the United States to their barracks, instead of [illegible] any disturbance of the peace [illegible] tendency to riot or disorder [illegible] the source of profound gratification [illegible] people, and will be [illegible] as proof of the [illegible] of the President in their capacity for orderly self-government. Enjoying under the blessings of divine providence the happiness resulting from a Government based upon liberty and justice, the people of Louisiana can not fail to appreciate that their good fortune is largely due to the magnanimous policy so wisely inaugurated and so consistently maintained by the President of the United States.

I have the honor to be, your obedient servant,

F. T. NICHOLLS.

WHEREAS, The people of the State of Louisiana, after years of suffering and misrule, have, with supreme satisfaction, seen the wise determination of President Hayes, as expressed in his inaugural, and already happily executed in South Carolina, to restore local self-government to the Southern States, and peace and prosperity to the whole country by the return to and rigid following of the wise principles of constitutional government; therefore,

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives, etc.,

1. That we cordially indorse the policy of the President, as enunciated in his inaugural, and we pledge our hearty co-operation, aid and support in the execution thereof.

2. That the execution of the said policy in Louisiana will prove the source of inestimable blessings to her people, lift up their burdened spirits, heal their wounded prosperity, renew their wasted fields, bring happiness to their homes, and give to the whole people, without distinction of race or color, a future of progress, as well moral as material.

3. That as an earnest of our endeavors, we hereby solemnly declare that it is and will be the purpose of the government of Louisiana, represented by Francis T. Nicholls as its executive head—

First—To accept in good faith the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth amendments to the constitution of the United States in letter and spirit.

Second—The enforcement of the laws rigidly and impartially, to the end that violence and crime shall be suppressed and promptly punished, and that peace and order prevail, and that the humblest laborer upon the soil of Louisiana, throughout every parish in the State, of either color, shall receive full and equal protection of the laws in person, property, political rights and privileges.

Third—To the promotion of the kindly relations between the white and colored citizens of the State upon a basis of justice and mutual confidence.

Fourth—The education of all classes of the people being essential to the preservation of free institutions, we do declare our solemn purpose to maintain a system of public schools by an equal and uniform taxation upon property as provided in the constitution of the State, and which shall secure the education of the children of white and colored citizens with equal advantages.

Fifth—Desirous of healing the dissensions that have disturbed the State for years past, and anxious that the citizens of all political parties may be free from the feverish anxieties of political strife and join hands in honestly restoring the prosperity of Louisiana, the Nicholls government will discountenance any attempted persecution, from any quarter, or individuals, for past political conduct.

"Heavenward."

This is the appropriate name of the coming Sunday-school music-book, to be ready May 1st, containing the best and most popular sacred songs of the lamented Gospel singer, P. P. Bliss. "Heavenward" promises to be the most valuable as well as the most popular collection of Sunday-school songs ever issued. The author, Mr. James R. Murray, is well known among Sunday-school workers as the author of "Pure Diamonds," and other popular books, and was an intimate friend and musical companion of Mr. Bliss for many years. Every Sunday-school in the land will want "Heavenward," as it is the only new Sunday-school book which will contain Mr. Bliss's most famous songs, such as "Hold the Fort," "What shall the Harvest be?" etc., etc. A sample copy will be sent (in paper covers) for 25 cents, or in board covers for 35 cents, as soon as ready. Address S. Brainard's Sons, Cleveland, Ohio. "Heavenward" will be for sale by book and music dealers throughout the country.

It will be hard to find a better magazine for the young than "Golden Hours." There are others that are showier—whose writers have been longer before the public perhaps—but for solid worth gives us the "Golden Hours." Its sketches are not overdrawn, its stories are instructive as well as entertaining, and all its articles bear with them a hearty influence that cannot but be a benefit to the young reader. The number before us contains an exceedingly interesting paper on "Chalk," an illustrated and touching little story of "Meg's Green Pasture," a charming sketch of "The Boy Life of Mozart;" the usual installment of its historical serial, "The King's Cousin;" an instructive article on "The Wonders of Words;" an illustrated article about "The Shovel-nosed Shark," and many more stories and poems. Owldom contains a talk on "Decoration Day," "Toyland," "A Primary Arab School," "Color," "Napoleon I. and the Gardener," "Animals," "Paper Dolls," Puzzles, Music, and a host of other good things.

This magazine costs but $1 60 per year, post paid. For the July number the editor anhounces the beginning of a new serial, "General Peg and her Staff." Subscriptions may begin with that number. H. V. Osborne, editor. Hitchcock & Walden, publishers, Cincinnati, O.

Notice.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE—BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.

The Board of Church Extension of the Louisiana Conference will meet at 39 Natchez street (office of SOUTHWESTERN) at 11 o'clock a.m., May 7th. All churches in the Conference desiring aid will have their applications in the hands of the Secretary in due form.

E. WILLIAMS, Pres't.

New Orleans, April 23, '77. [2t

Sunday School.

May 6, 1877.—THE FAMINE IN SAMARIA.—SCRIPTURE.—2 K. 7: 12-20.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"The things which are impossible with men are possible with God." —Luke 18: 27.

TOPIC.—"My words shall not pass away." —Luke 21: 33.

HOME READINGS.

Monday, Lev. 26: 21-39; Tuesday, 2 K 9: 24-33; Wednesday, 2 K. 7: 1-11; Thursday, 2 K. 12: 12-20; Friday, Ps. 147: 1-20; Saturday, Ps. 33: 1-22; Sunday, Ps. 34: 1-22.

(Condensed from Nat. S. S. Teacher.)

The desperate character of the defence. Refused to surrender though food, practically, was unobtainable, and the people were reduced to devouring their own offspring. There is no hint of giving up—no reproaches from the inhabitants because Jehoram still held out. King and people manifested a heroism that compels our admiration.

The discovery of the fight. There was despair outside of the city as well as in it. Four lepers sat outside and balanced their chances of death and found them about equally certain whether they went in to their friends or over to their enemies. They did not go inside, because there they were sure to starve; they went over to the Syrian camp, because there their appalling misery might save them from being slain. They started [illegible] twilight for the [illegible] my. No joyful j[illegible] but many a journey [illegible] in anxiety may end in joy. We can easily imagine the revulsion that came upon them when they found the camp ungarded, went into a tent and found it empty, and ate and drank, carried away their booty, and, returning, found all the other tents also deserted. From the depths of despair they were exalted to the topmost pinnacle of exultant self congratulation.

A Great Abundance (15, 16).—The chariots found that the news brought in by the lepers was true, and, pursuing their reconnoissance, discovered that the Syrians had actually fled, with all the signs of a precipitate, terror-urged flight. Garments, vessels, arms, accoutrements—everything was thrown away that would, by its weight, retard their efforts to escape the imaginary host that was just upon their heels, thirsting for their blood.

The chariots followed the path of that flying host until they could see that it had not stopped on the hither side of Jordan, and then returned with their report to the king. And the people went out. Imagine how impatiently they had awaited for the return of the scouting party—how carried away they were with the thought of such great plenty so near them—how tumultuously they rushed out to secure it when the privilege of doing so at last was given! And how many they were that, with streaming eyes, thanked God that now there was no danger that their eyes would be evil toward their own children. Without any such miracle as the skeptical lord had prescribed, the word of God as spoken through Elisha was fulfilled A "a measure of fine flour was sold for a shekel, and two measures of barley for a shekel." Things which see hard to us, with God are easy of accomplishment. Specially was it true in this case, [illegible] the "the which are not to bring to naught things that are"?

A Prophecy Accomplished (17, 20).—There were two predictions that were fulfilled: 1.—In relation to provisions; 2—in relation to the scoffing noble. The stress in the narrative is laid upon the fact that each of these prophecies was literally accomplished. Hence the [illegible] verse 18. The "lord" was appointed by the king to have charge of the gate. By some he is supposed to have been placed in charge of the gate for the purpose of collecting the usual tax on articles there sold, and that the people, indignant that a tax should be attempted at such a time, trode him under foot. The more reasonable supposition, and the one naturally conveyed by the text, is that he was assigned to the duty of preventing such a tumultuous rush through the gate as would be sure to result in the sacrifice of many lives. In attempting to do this he was himself trampled down by the crowd, which was too eager for food and plunder to be restrainable. And thus it turned out as Elisha predicted—he saw the abundance of the supply with his eyes, but he did not eat thereof.

Knowledge is Power.

This is a nation of enlightened freemen. Education is the corner-stone and foundation of our government. The people are free to think for themselves, and that they may act wisely it is necessary that they be well informed. Every individual gain increases public gain. Upon the health of the people is based the prosperity of a nation, by it every value is increased, every joy enhanced. Health is essential to the accomplishment of every purpose; while sickness thwarts the best intentions and loftiest aims. Unto us are committed important health trusts, which we hold not merely in our own behalf but for the benefit of others. In order that we may be able to discharge the obligation of our trusteeship and thus prove worthy of our generous commission, it is necessary that we study the art of preserving health and prolonging life. It is of paramount importance to every person not only to understand the means for the preservation of health, but also to know what remedies should be employed for the alleviation of the common ailments of life. Not that we would advise every man under all circumstances to attempt to be his own physician, but we entreat him to acquire sufficient knowledge of his system and the laws that govern it, that he be prepared to take care of himself properly, and thereby prevent sickness and prolong life. In no text book will the people find the subjects of physiology and hygiene, or the science of life and the art of preserving health, more scientifically discussed or more plainly taught than in "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, by R. V. Pierce, M. D., of Buffalo, N. Y. It is a volume of over nine hundred large pages, illustrated by over two hundred and eighty-two engravings and colored plates, is elegantly bound in cloth and gilt, and is sent, post-paid, to any address by the author at the low price of one dollar and fifty cents a copy. Nearly one hundred thousand copies have already been sold, and the present edition, which is revised and enlarged and more especially adapted to the wants of the family, is selling very rapidly. It treats of all the common diseases and their remedies, as well as of anatomy, physiology, hygiene, human temperaments, and many other topics of great interest to all people, and is truly what its author styles it, "Medicine Simplified."

LOST FRIENDS.

NOTE—We receive many letters asking for information about lost friends. All such letters will be published in this column. We make no charge for publishing these letters PROVIDING THEY ARE PAID FOR. All others will please enclose fifty cents to pay for publishing the notices. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any cases where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.

I desire information concerning my son, Jerry Able. We formerly belonged to Robert Able, Red Mill City, Kentucky. I was sold to Bill Matney, a negro trader, about 18 years ago. My name now is Rosean Letcher. Address me, care of Rev. A. M. Gregory, Waco, Texas.

I desire to know the whereabouts of Stepney Brown, Susan Collins, Savannah or Elsie Bates, Joe Brown or Samuel Nelson. Their original home was in Carrol Parish before the war, and they belonged to Mr. Warren Bouton. Address James Brown, Navasota, Texas.

We desire information of our long lost son, Albert. He was born at Columbia, Marion county, Miss., and was raised by Mr. James Atkinson, at that place. Address us, at Marshall, Texas.

Sampson and Harriet Brakefield.

I desire information concerning my kindred. Our family belonged to Mr. John C. Paine, in Louisiana. My father's name was Randall and my mother's Celia. I had four brothers, Levi, William, Leonard and Warren; one sister named Elvira, but usually called Puse, and one named Hannah. The family had the name of Paine, but since they were free may have changed it. I was separated from the family in 1857, when I was five years old, being brought to Texas by my young mistress whose name was Florida, and who had married a Mr. John Baily.

Address, care Rev. Paul Douglass, Galveston, Texas, Sarah Williams, (formerly Sarah Bailey).

I will be very thankful for any information concerning my relations. I was raised in Middle Tennessee, in the family of Judge Humphries. My father and mother were named Jerry and Caroline Pennwright. I had a brother named Jerry and a sister named Maria. My name was then Lucy Pennwright. My mother died when I was five years old, and I was separated from my father when I was seven, and from the rest of the family shortly after. I am now forty-seven. I heard that my father is a Baptist minister and that at one time he was in New Orleans. Address Lucinda Harrison, care of Rev. S. E. H. Morant, Sereveport, La.

Quarterly Meetings.

Houston, Texas, District.

First Church, Houston, April 1; East Church and Wesley Chapel, Galveston, April 7 and 8; Spring Creek, April 14 and 15; Oyster Creek, April 21 and 22; Richmond and Frost Chapel, April 28 and 29; Houston, Second Church, and Edwards Chapel, May 5 and 6; Harrisburg and West Point, May 12 and 13; Columbia and Brazoria, May 19 and 20; Stafford's, May 26 and 27; Houston Circuit, June 2 and 3; Cypress, June 9 and 10.

W. L. MOLLOY, P. E.

Gulf (Miss.) District.

(First Round.)

The last three appointments of the Gulf District, (Miss. Conference) First Round are as follows:

China Grove, Thursday and Friday, April 26 and 27; Columbia, Saturday and Sunday, April 28 and 29; Augusta, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 1st and 2nd.

L. BRADFORD, P. E.

Shreveport District.

(Second Round.)

Cross Lake Circuit April 28-29; Scotts Circuit May 5-6; China Grove Circuit, May 12 and 13; Shreveport, St. James and St. Paul, May 19-20; Fairfield Circuit, May 20-27; Mansfield and Red Spring, at Mansfield June 2-3; Coushatta, June 9-10; Natchitoches and Campti, at Natchitoches June 15-17; Allensville, June 30 and July 1; Alexandria and Catoken, at Alexandria July 7-8.

S. DARAGH, P. E.

Greenwood (Miss.) District.

Yazoo City, March 17 and 18; Benton, March 24 and 25; Pickens, March 31 and April 1; Goodman, April 7 and 8; Durant, April 14 and 15; Greenwood, April 21 and 22; Robuck, 28 and 29; New Midway, May 5 and 6; Pancola, May 12 and 13; Hernando, May 19 and 20; Spring Hill, May 19 and 20; Candy Creek, May 26 and 27; Walnut Ridge, June 2 and 3; Shiloh, June 9 and 10; Anaiga, June 16 and 17; Bolivar, June 23 and 24.

J. W. DUNN, P. E.

San Antonio (Tex.) District.

Mission Valley, April 21 and 22; Cuero April 28 and 29; Indianola and Lavacca, May 6 and 7; Columbus and Alleyton, May 12 and 13; Peach Creek and Columbus Circuit, May 19 and 20; San Antonio, May 26 and 27; Boerne, June 2 and 3; Houde, June 9 and 10; Floresville June 16 and 17; Sutherland Springs, June 23 and 24; Nockenut, July 1; Cibolo, July 4 and 5; Riddleville, July 4 and 5; Leverett, 7 and 8; Gillett Circuit, July 11 and 12; Belmont, July 14 and 15; Refugio, July 18 and 19; Wrightsboro, July 21 and 22; Goliad, July 28 and 29.

D. GREGORY, P. E.

Holly Springs, Miss., District.

Mt. Pleasant, April 7-8; Kosciusko, April 14-15; French Camp, April 16-17; Greensboro, April 18-19; Winona and Vaiden, April 21-22; Duck Hill, April 26-27; Grenada, April 28-29; Grenada Circuit, April 30 and May 1; Oxford, May 5-6; Elijah, May 8-9; Abberville, May 12-13; New Albany, May 19-20; Hickory Flat, May 26-27; Ripley, May 26-27; Holly Springs, June 2-3; Holly Springs Circuit, June 6-7; Clulahoma, June 9-10; Byhalia, June 11-12.

As the greater part of the work lies at a considerable distance from the Railroad, and as it is important to visit every part of it, I shall go by private conveyance.

J. G. JOHNSON, P. E.

Never too Late to Mend.

Twenty-one years ago I was dying with consumption. There was no escaping that terrible death—at least so all the doctors told me—when a friend advised me to send to 1032 Race Street, Philadelphia, and get East India Hemp, which finely and fully cured me.

I now write to ask if you are still in business; or if I can obtain that same remedy. I am falling into poor health again, and for the first time since then feel the need of such a medicine. O. S. BISLAY,

De Kalb Street, Lawrence, N. Y.

January 8, 1877.

N. B.—This Remedy speaks for itself. A single bottle will satisfy the most skeptical. We know that it positively cures consumption, and will break up a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. $2 50 per Bottle, or Three Bottles for $6 50. Pills and Ointment, $1 25 each. Address, CHADDOCK & CO.,

1032 Race Street, Philadelphia.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from active practice, having had placed his hands by an East India missionary, the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of consumption, bronchitis, catarrh, asthma, and all throat and lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for nervous debility and all nervous complaints, after having thoroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, feels it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive, and a conscientious desire to relieve human suffering, he will send, free of charge, to all who desire it, this receipt, with full directions for preparing and successfully using. Sent by return mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, Dr. W. C. Stevens, 123 Power's Block, Rochester, N. Y.

BISMARCK.

THE Authentic Biography of the great German statesman, with curious researches into his ancestry; lively incidents of his youth and student life; and a full account of his career, [illegible] and the growth of his political and public [illegible] A translation from the German, with an introduction by BAYARD TAYLOR, and over 100 illustrations [illegible] scenes, battles, portraits, etc. Virtual [illegible] and absorbing as a romance [illegible] dramatic incident and great historical events. [illegible] Ohio Agents wanted to supply the [illegible] demand for this live book. J. R. [illegible] Hubbard, 27 Park Place, N. Y. [illegible]

Medical Students.

Thoroughly qualified [illegible] THE MORTON COLLEGE OF MEDICINE, LOUISVILLE, KY.

(The clinical school of the West.)

No student [illegible] cannot show that he can intelligently [illegible] for the cases presented. For catalogue and information concerning special advantages, address W. H. BOLLING, M. D., [illegible]

"The principle of combining lectures and [illegible] can writers in a common literary enterprise [illegible] all encouragement." J. LADD HERRICK, [illegible]

THE INTERNATIONAL REVIEW.

A NEW YORK AND LONDON [illegible] EMINENT CONTRIBUTORS OF BOTH [illegible] LYTIC. No articles [illegible] articles original.

CONTENTS.—May [illegible]

The New Administration.
The Life Insurance Question. [illegible]
Disestablishment of the Church of Ireland. [illegible]
Dr. James H. [illegible]
The Philadelphia Exhibition.—Part I. [illegible] and Administration.
Francis A. Chief of the Bureau of Ethnology.
Temperance Criticism. [illegible]
Our Foreign Service. [illegible]
American and European Literature. [illegible]
Contemporary Events. [illegible]

Price, Single Number, $1. [illegible] Annual subscription (4 numbers) $5.

D. APPLETON & CO., New York. [illegible]

"HEAVENWARD."

A New Collection of

Sunday-School Songs

THE thousands of Sunday-school [illegible] who have used and admired Mr. James R. Murray's popular books, and P. P. Bliss's [illegible] sacred songs, will be glad to learn that a new collection of Sunday-school music, will be ready [illegible] titled "Heavenward," which has been in preparation many months, and which will contain, besides contributions from most of the [illegible] writers of Sunday-school songs in America, the best and most popular sacred songs of Mr. Bliss.

The book has been compiled and edited by Mr. R. Murray, who was an intimate friend and musical companion of Mr. Bliss for many years, and will be found a worthy tribute to the world to the [illegible] whom he writes says: "All who have [illegible] been helped by his music shall seek to vote for the [illegible] among the living."

It is confidently expected that the combination of talent secured in the compilation of "Heavenward" will produce a work never before equalled for Sunday-school purposes, and destined to attain a popularity second to no work of the kind ever published.

Price, in boards, 35 cents, by mail, $3 per hundred by express. Sample copy, in paper covers, mailed for 25 cents. Specimen pages now ready, and first free. Orders now received and will be filled in turn.

To be sold by Book and Music Dealers generally.

S. BRAINARD'S SONS, Publishers, Cleveland, Ohio. [illegible]

SOUTHWESTERN AGENCY

School and College Text Books.

Office No. 39 CAMP STREET (up stairs). [illegible] now we submit the MODEL SERIES of [illegible] (as conceded by the leading educators of the country) for use in PRIMARY, INTERMEDIATE and GRAMMAR schools. To secure their adoption by the progressive teacher we have only to ask a careful comparison with books of a like grade, a critical examination and a thorough practical test in the class-room:

Harper's School Geography	Price.
United States First Reader	$1 [illegible]
" " " Second "	[illegible]
" " " Third "	[illegible]
" " " Fourth "	[illegible]
" " " Fifth "	[illegible]
" " " Sixth "	[illegible]
Wilson's Primary Spelling	[illegible]
" Larger "	[illegible]
Lawton's Penmanship, per Series	[illegible]
French's First Lessons in Numbers	[illegible]
" Elementary Arithmetic	[illegible]
" Mental Arithmetic	[illegible]
" Common School Arithmetic	[illegible]
Swinton's Language Primer	[illegible]
" Language Lessons	[illegible]
" School Composition	[illegible]
" Progressive Grammar	[illegible]

Catalogues, Circulars, and [illegible] applications. Correspondence [illegible] receive prompt attention.

W. P. [illegible] & Co. [illegible] Street.

Family Circle.

[illegible]

Robbie Lost his Ride.

[illegible]

House and Farm.

Brilliant Whitewash.

A correspondent wishes the recipe given some years since for the whitewash used on the east end of the White House. For her benefit and the benefit of others it is repeated. Take one-half bushel of nice unslacked lime, slake it with boiling water; cover it during the process to keep in the steam. Strain the liquid through a fine sieve or strainer, and add to it a peck of salt, previously well dissolved in warm water; three pounds of ground rice, boiled to a thin paste; one-half pound of powdered Spanish whiting and one pound of clean glue, which has previously been dissolved by soaking it well, and then hang it over a slow fire in a small kettle with a larger one filled with water. Add five gallons of hot water to the mixture, and let it stand for a few days covered from dust. It should be put on hot, and for this purpose it can be kept in a kettle on a portable furnace. It is said that about a pint of this mixture will cover a square yard upon the outside of a house, if properly applied. Fine or coarse brushes may be used, according to the neatness of the job required. It answers as well as oil paint for wood, brick or stone, and is cheaper. It retains its brilliancy for many years. There is nothing of the kind that will compare with it, either for inside or outside walls.—N. Y. Tribune.

What to Do in Case of Accidents.

Prof. Wilder, of Cornell University, gives these short rules for action in case of accident:

For dust in the eyes, avoid rubbing, dash cold water in them; remove cinders, etc., with the round point of a lead pencil.

Remove insects from the ear by tepid water. Never put a hard instrument in the ear.

If an artery is cut, compress it above the wound; if a vein is cut, compress it below.

If choked, go on all fours and cough.

For slight burns, dip the part in cold water; if the skin is destroyed cover with varnish.

For appoplexy raise the head and body; for fainting lay the person flat.

Chicken Cholera.

For a few years my chickens died so rapidly that I abandoned all care of them, thinking it labor lost. In 1872 I commenced feeding with air-slacked lime; I lost very few that summer. In the summers of 1873 and 1874 I lost none at all by the disease. I put half a pint in a vessel and filled it with water (or milk if I had it), and put it for them to drink. As they drink off the top I fill up again. Sometimes I mix half a pint with a peck of stirred-up feed and give them. The lime also helps to form the shell for laying hens. I give the lime two or three times per month, and always when I see any signs of disease. I raised about twenty dozen last summer, and healthier, brighter-looking chickens I never owned.—Indiana Farmer.

Intelligent farmers should realize that it takes less feed to make the first hundred pounds of pork than the second, or the third; hence, instead of making a scavenger of the pig for the first eight or ten months, and then giving him with a surplus of food for the next few months [illegible]

Facetiae.

Mr. Hayes' opposition to nepotism is as intense [illegible] get the St. Louis post-office.

A State of health—Me. A State of suffering—Ill. A fatherly State—Pa. An enjoyable State—Ga. A State of safety—Ark. O. La.

A little boy, after his customary evening prayer, continued, "and [illegible] and Jenny and Uncle [illegible] after a moment's [illegible] remark, "his [illegible] or three attempts to record it, gave it up amid roars of laughter.

[illegible]

The Government reservation at Hot Springs, Ark., is to be laid out in lots and squares, and commissioners will adjudicate all claims to land where parties have made improvements and determine their right to purchase the same at an appraised value. The Government will perpetually reserve the tract on which the springs are located, and will levy a special tax, on the water used, to pay for the improvement of the park or reservation.

Encouragement for the Feeble.

Debility, whether it be inherent, or caused by overtaxed strength, or protracted illness, has a most depressing influence upon the mind, breeding an abject melancholy nearly akin to despair, and enforcing the abandonment of cherished projects and high hopes. Happily, the enfeebled system, even in extreme cases, is susceptible of invigoration. It is proved by incontrovertible evidence that Hostetters Stomach Bitters is an unfailing strengthener of the weak, and that in addition to vitalizing the physical organization, it establishes regularly among those organs upon whose efficient discharge of the duties imposed on them by nature, continued vigor and health depend. Thousands of instances might be cited to show the regenerating influence of this health-giving agent in cases of debility, liver disease, dyspepsia, nervous ailments, constipation, intermittent fever, urinary and uterine troubles, gout and rheumatism, and other maladies.

DENTISTRY.

DR. M. M. OLDHAM,

HAVING twenty years experience in the practice of Dentistry, feels confident he can give perfect satisfaction to all who may favor him with a call at his office, 211 Canal Street, corner of Rampart, New Orleans.

N. B.—A full set of Teeth (upper or under) for $12. Specimens can be seen at office.

Texas Lands.

Best Investment in the Nation!

640 acres rich prairie loam, producing cotton, grains, fruit and vegetables, and adapted to stock, lying in the high and healthful latitude of Northwestern Texas, for the nominal sum of $266.

Title Patent, direct and perfect. Taxes low. Worth several times the cost. Now is your time to plant a small sum fruitfully. No fraud. All work personally supervised. Handled in the interest of education in Texas. Full particulars furnished on application (with stamps).

References: Rev. Wm. Brush, D.D., P. E. Austin District, Austin, Texas; First National Bank, Dallas, Texas; State Savings Bank, Dallas Texas. Address,

REV. L. H. CARHART,
West Texas Conference.
Box 377, Dallas, Texas. [a19-tf

A. R. NELSON,

Commercial Stationer, Printer, Blank

BOOK MANUFACTURER and LITHOGRAPHER.

THE best assortment of Blank Books in the city.

The Finest Specimens of Lithographic work to be found in New Orleans.

No. 57 CAMP STREET,

Sign of the Mammoth Letter Press.

Call and Prove My Statements. [oct12-76 1y

THE FIREMENS'

Insurance Company,

OF NEW ORLEANS.

Fire, River and Marine Insurance.

[illegible] President; T. PRUDHOMME, Vice President. [illegible] H. BENNERS, Secretary. JAS. BOYCE, W. E. RODDY, Inspectors.

Office corner Camp and Gravier sts. Represents the Fire Association of Philadelphia. [mar1-1m]

A. P. HARRINGTON,

No. 118 Canal Street,

New Orleans, ... La.

Dealer in

LAW, MEDICAL, SCHOOL, RELIGIOUS, AGRICULTURAL AND MISCELLANEOUS

BOOKS

Stationery, Gold Pens and Pencils.

Pocket Books, Card Cases, Pocket Knives, Scrap Books, Chromos, Photograph Albums, Stereoscopes, Magic Lanterns, Writing Desks, Etc.

PRINTING, RULING and BINDING.

Subscriptions taken for Newspapers and Magazines, Payable in advance.

Country Orders Solicited.

MENEELY'S BELLS,

THE GENUINE "TROY CHURCH BELL," known to the public since 1826, which have acquired a reputation unequaled by any and a sale exceeding that of all others, including more than seventy chimes and peals. One thousand testimonials received during the last six years. Every bell made of best tin and copper, and formally warranted. New patent rotary fixtures. Catalogue free. No agencies.

MENEELY & COMPANY,
P. O. Address either Troy or West Troy N.Y.

5,000 BOOKS GIVEN AWAY For the Asking.

WHILE Dr. H. James was attached to the British Medical Staff in the East Indies, his high position enabled him to call about him the best chemists, physicians and scientists of the day, and while experimenting with and among the natives, he accidentally made the discovery that CONSUMPTION can be positively and permanently CURED. During the many years of his sojourn there he devoted his time to the treatment of Lung Diseases, and upon his [illegible] he left with us books and papers containing full particulars, showing that [illegible] one can be his own physician and prepare his own medicine, and such information [illegible] received we now offer to the public [illegible] price, only asking that each remit a [illegible] cent stamp for return postage. Address

CRADDOCK & CO.,
[illegible] Race st., Phila., Pa., giving name of [illegible] [m15Sm

TEXT BOOKS

FOR THE

NEW COURSE OF STUDY,

As authorized to be pursued by candidates for the ministry in the Methodist Episcopal Church, by the Bishops, for the ensuing four years, to commence with Spring Conferences, 1877.

(Books are bound in CLOTH, where not specified.)

For Admission on Trial in the Traveling Connection.

Books to be Studied:

RAWLINSON'S Ancient History. A Manual of Ancient History from the earliest times to the fall of the Western Empire. By George Rawlinson, M.A. Large 12mo.... $2 50

STUDENT'S Old Testament History. From the Creation to the Return of the Jews from Captivity. With an Appendix, containing an Introduction to the books of the Old Testament. Edited by Wm. Smith, LL.D. With maps and wood-cuts. Large 12mo.. 2 00

STUDENT'S New Testament History. With an Introduction, connecting the History of the Old and New Testaments. Edited by Wm. Smith, LL.D. With maps and woodcuts. Large 12mo.... 2 00

HISTORY of the United States, from the Aboriginal Times to the present day. By John Clark Ridpath, A.M. 8vo.... 3 00
Half morocco, 8vo.... 3 50

AMERICAN Methodism: Abridged from the author's History of the Methodist Episcopal Church. by Abel Stevens, D.D., LL.D. Ten engravings. 8vo.... 3 50

RHETORIC: A Text-book, designed for use in schools and colleges, and for private study. By E. O. Haven, D.D., LL.D. 12mo.... 1 50

ELEMENTS of Logic. By C. K. True, D.D. 16mo.... 80

DISCIPLINE of the Methodist Episcopal Church, 1876:
24mo; cloth.... 40
24mo; morocco tuck.... 1 00

Books to be Read:

CHRISTIAN THEOLOGY; or, a concise, comprehensive, and systematic view of the evidences, doctrines, morals and institutions of theology. By Samuel Wakefield, D.D. 8vo; sheep.... 3 50

LIFE of Rev. John Wesley. By Rev. Richard Watson; 12mo.... 1 25

HAND-BOOK of Bible Geography, containing the name, pronunciation, and meaning of every place, nation, and tribe mentioned in both the Canonical and Apocryphal Scriptures. By Rev. George H. Whitney, A.M. Illustrated by nearly one hundred engravings and forty maps and plans. Large 12mo.... 2 50

CHRISTIAN PURITY, Nature and Blessedness of. By R. S. Foster, D.D. Revised. 12mo.... 1 75

STUDENT'S Gibbon. The History of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire. By Edward Gibbon. Abridged. Incorporating the researches of recent commentators. By Wm. Smith, LL.D. 100 engravings on wood; 12mo.... 2 00

First Year's Course.

Books to be Studied:

WATSON'S Theological Institutes.
2 vols; 8vo; sheep.... 7 00
2 vols; calf.... 8 00
2 vols; half calf.... 8 00

CHRISTIAN PERFECTION, Plain Account of. By Rev. John Wesley; 24mo.... 45

HISTORY of the Church from the earliest ages to the Reformation. By Rev. George Waddington, M.A; 8vo.... 3 00

A TREATISE on Homiletics. By D. P. Kidder, D.D; 12mo.... 1 75

MENTAL Philosophy. By T. C. Upham; 16mo.... 75

Books to be Read:

WESLEY'S Sermons; 3 vols; 8vo.... 6 00

HISTORY of Methodism. Vols. 1, 2 and 3. By Abel Stevens, LL.D; 1 mo; cloth, each.... 1 75
Half morocco.... 3 50
Illustrated, morocco; 8vo; each.... 3 50

THEOLOGY of the New Testament. By Rev. J. J. Van Oosterzee; 12mo.... 1 75

EARLY YEARS of Christianity. By E. De Pressense; 4 vols; 12mo; each.... 1 75

Second Year's Course.

Books to be Studied:

WATSON'S Theological Institutes (Part II.)
2 vols; 8vo; sheep.... 7 00
2 vols; calf.... 8 00
2 vols; half calf.... 8 00

HIBBARD on Baptism. Its subjects, mode, obligation, import, and relative order. By F. G. Hibbard, D.D; 12mo.... 1 75

THE ELEMENTS of Moral science. By Francis Wayland, D.D; 12mo.... 1 75

Books to be Read:

THE FREEDOM of the Will. By D. D. Whedon, D.D; 12mo.... 1 75

DEFENCE of our Fathers. By Bishop Emory; 8vo.... 1 00

COMPENDIUM of Methodism. By James Porter, D.D. Revised edition; 12mo.... 1 75

THE BIBLE: Its divine origin and inspiration, deduced from internal evidence and the testimonies of nature, history and science. By L. Gaussen, D.D. 12mo.... 1 75

THE HISTORICAL evidences of the truth of the Scripture Records. By George Rawlinson, M.A.; 12mo.... 1 00

HOMILETICS and Pastoral Theology. By William G. T. Shedd, D.D., Professor in Union Theological Seminary, N. Y.; 8vo.... 2 50

Third Year's Course.

Books to be Studied:

WATSON'S Theological Institutes (Part III. and IV.) Two volumes; 8vo; Sheep.... 7 00
2 volumes; calf.... 8 00
2 volumes; half calf.... 8 00

AN INTRODUCTION to the Gospel Records. By William Nast, D.D. 12mo.... 1 75

ANALOGY of Natural and Revealed Religion. By Bishop Butler. Edited by Joseph Cummings, D.D.; 12mo.... 1 50

[illegible]

Fourth Year's Course.

[illegible]

For Local Preachers, Candidates for Deacon's and Elder's Orders.

[illegible]

Any of the above books will be sent on receipt of price. Address

NELSON & PHILLIPS
[illegible] New Orleans.

B. J. WEST,

115 & 117 Magazine Street

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Wholesale Dealer and Manufacturer's Agent.

PLANTATION HARDWARE.

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS.

STEAM ENGINES, COTTON GINS SAW MILLS, GRIST MILLS, PUMPS, &c., &c.

AT LOW PRICES.

Send for Circulars and Price Lists.

E. HEATH. W. F. PIPPEY, M. LARA.

HEATH, PIPPEY & LARA,

99........CAMP STREET........99

NEW ORLEANS.

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

UPHOLSTERERS MATERIALS,

Wall Paper,

Window Shades, Cornices, and CURTAIN GOODS.

PICTURES, FRAMES, MOULDINGS, MIRRORS, LOCKS, WIRE-CLOTH, WINDOW & DOOR SCREENS

FRAMING DONE TO ORDER.

14-1y

THE

Houston and Texas Central Railroad,

Operating over 500 miles of superior road, runs North and South through the

FINEST AGRICULTURAL and GRAZING DISTRICTS in TEXAS

And offers the most desirable sites for location to parties immigrating to that great State. The

NORTHWESTERN BRANCH

Of this road, which is now being pushed forward beyond Waco, will pierce the Great Mineral region of

NORTHWESTERN TEXAS.

For further information, address

J. R. COFFIN, S. P. A., Chattanooga, Tenn.
C. R. WHITNEY & CO., New Orleans, La.
J. WALDO, G. P. A., or J. DURAND, Gen'l Superintendent, Houston, Texas. [mar29-1y

BEGIN THE WORLD

WITH

FAMILY BIBLE.

One in which you can register the names of your children. When they were born. When they die—(God Forbid). When they marry—(May they do well.)

Having within its covers Brown's Celebrated Concordance; The Psalms in Meter; A history of the Bible, and a place for photographs. These Bibles can be had of

JAMES A. GRESHAM,

Bookseller and Stationer, 92 Camp st.,

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Price, $5, $6, $7, and $10.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $1 free. mar25-1y] STINSON & Co., Portland, Me.

WANTED—SALESMEN—Salary $900 a year; Traveling and Hotel expenses paid, to sell our STAPLE MANUFACTORIES direct to dealers; NO PEDDLING; address or apply to S. A. GRANT & Co., 2, 4, 6, & 8 Home st., Cincinnati, Ohio. [mh7.4t $12 A day, at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. mar25-1y] TRUE & Co., Augusta, Me.

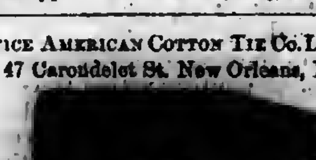
OFFICE AMERICAN COTTON TIE CO. LIMITED
47 Carondelet St. New Orleans, La.



To Dealers in Iron Cotton Ties, Planters, and Country Merchants Generally,

WE beg to inform you that we are prepared, through our regularly established agent, to supply the trade in any quantity with the following celebrated Ties:

BRANCH, CROOKE & CO'S. LOCK TIE.
THE ARROW AND SIDE SLOT.
BEARD & BRO'S. LOCK TIE.

We also beg to inform the public that the interests of Messrs. Beard & Bro., and Branch Crookes & Co., are now merged into and with the American Cotton Tie Company, Limited. The following are the New Orleans Agents:

Stone & Tutt — Ogden & Bell
Chism & Boyd, — Archer & Borland,
Wm. Dillion, — D. L. Raniett & Co.

For the American Cotton Tie Co., Limited.

R. W. RAYNE,
May28-761y] General Agents.

THE DEMOREST'S QUARTERLY JOURNAL OF FASHION. 5 cts.; yearly 10 cts.; post free. 17 E. 14 st., N. Y. [1t

Patents obtained for mechanical devices, medical, or other compounds, ornamental designs, trademarks, and labels.

Caveats, Assignments, Interferences, relating to Patent, Infringements, and all matters promptly attended to.

Inventions that have been rejected by the Patent Office may still, in most cases, be secured by us. Being opposite the Patent Office, we are able to make closer examinations, and secure Patents more promptly and with broader and better claims, than those who are remote from Washington.

Inventors send us a model or rough sketch and description of your device; we will make an examination, free of charge, and advise you as to its patentability. All correspondence strictly confidential. Prices as low as those of any reliable agency.

We refer to Officials in the Patent Office, and to inventors in every State of the Union.

Address, LOUIS BAGGER & Co.
Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

PHILIP WERLEIN,

Nos. 78–90 Baronne Street,

NEW ORLEANS, - - - LA.

LARGEST Piano House in This Country,

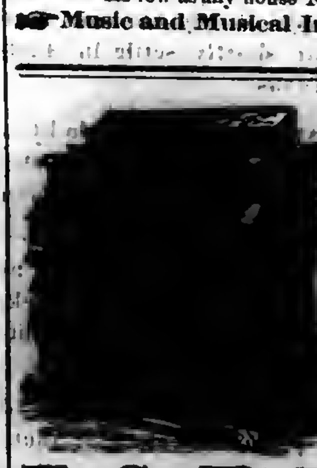
—OFFERS—

Chickering's New Scale PIANOS.

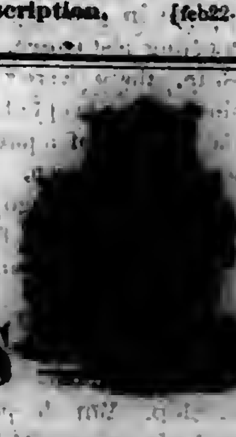
HALE'S PIANOS, HARDMAN'S PIANOS.
ESTEY & CO. ORGANS, MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS,

As low as any house North. Monthly Payments. Discounts for cash.

Music and Musical Instruments of Every Description. [feb22-1y



Pianos AND Organs



ESTEY ORGANS,

This beautiful Instrument is too well known to need description.

OVER 75,000

are now singing their praises. Why buy any other Organ when you can get the

ESTEY,

As Cheap as the Cheapest!

Bradbury Pianos

known all over the world as strictly first-class, and used in preference to all others by Grand Central, St. Nicholas and Metropolitan Hotels, New York; Rev. Simpson and Janes, Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church; Rev. Dan'l Curry, Chaplain McCabe, Philip Phillips, Wm. Morely, Punshon and thousands of our leading men throughout the country.

CHICKERING Pianos.

The BEST PIANO made! Received more Gold medals, Higher Awards, and more solid recommendations than any other Piano made.

STORY & CAMP PIANOS.

THESE ELEGANT Instruments are unsurpassed, and are sold at exceedingly low prices. Every Instrument Fully Warranted, and sold to responsible parties on easy time. Full description and illustrated catalogues sent to any address with any information desired.

STORY & CAMP,
914 Olive street, St. Louis.
jol-1y] 211 State street, Chicago.

NATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER

Edited by M. C. HAZARD. Is undoubtedly the [illegible] Has the most thorough, helpful and [illegible], the best [illegible] and the most popular editorial departments. Needs only to be examined in order to be taken. Terms, $1.50 per year. Clubs of five or more receive six Lesson Papers with each copy. Sample copy sent free on application to

ADAMS, BLACKMER, & LYON PUB. CO., CHICAGO.

THE NEW ELASTIC TRUSS [illegible]

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY. [illegible] VANDUZEN & TIFT, [illegible] Jan 30 76 tf

$12 a day at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. TRUE & Co.,
Dec 21 76 1y] Augusta, Maine.

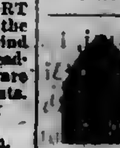
ASTHMA [illegible]

Madame FOY'S Corset Skirt Supporter

Increases in popularity every year.

And for HEALTH, COMFORT and STYLE is acknowledged the BEST ARTICLE of the kind ever made. For sale by all leading jobbers and retailers. Beware of imitations and infringements.

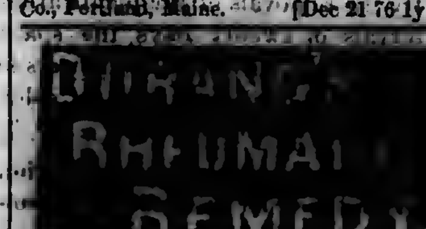
MANUFACTURED SOLELY BY
FOY & HARMON,
ml-13t] New Haven, Conn.



GLASS STAINERS [illegible] CHURCH WINDOWS A SPECIALTY. [illegible] WM. COULTER & SON, [illegible] Cincinnati, O. may4-76-1y

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. STINSON & Co., Portland, Maine. [Dec 21 76 1y

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY. [illegible] [mar29-1y]



Will most positively cure any case of rheumatism or rheumatic gout, no matter how long standing, on the face of the earth. Being an inward application it does the work quickly, thoroughly and permanently, leaving the system strong and healthy. Write to any prominent person in Washington city, and you will learn that the above statement is true in every particular.

Washington, July 13, 1874.

Messrs. Helpenstine & Bentley:

I suffered for more than thirty years from chronic rheumatism, at times in a helpless condition; during which time I employed the best medical skill, but finding no relief, bought a bottle of Durang's Rheumatic Remedy, and when I had taken it all (sixteen doses) was a well man, and as I write this certificate am perfectly free from pain, all owing to taking the above medicine. I regard it as the only preparation ever gotten up that will effectually cure rheumatism.

JNO. P. BENTLY,
Chief of Public Debt Division, 1st Auditor's office, Treasury Dep't Washington, D. C.

National Hotel, Washington, Dec. 2, '74.

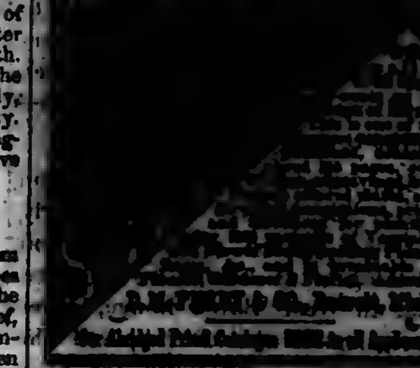
Messrs. Helpenstine & Bentley:

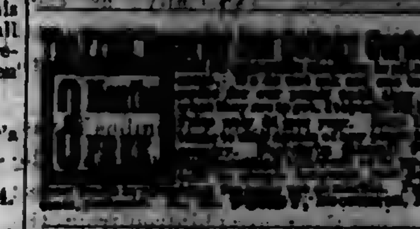
GENTS.—I very cheerfully state that I have used Durang's Rheumatic Remedy, prepared by you, with decided benefit, and although yet somewhat troubled with rheumatism, I am in much better condition than I was some months ago, which improvement I alone attribute to this remedy.

Yours, truly, ALEX. H. STEPHENS,
Member of Congress of Georgia.

Price, $1 a bottle, or six bottles for $5. Ask your druggist for Durang's Rheumatic Remedy, manufactured by

HELPENSTINE & BENTLEY,
Druggists and Chemists, Washington, D. C.
Sold by dealers all over the United States.
[dec7-6m-eow





sept28-76-1y

Virginia Roofing Slate.—The Best and strongest in the world, not excepting the well-known Welsh Slate.

The undersigned having accepted the agency for the sale of the celebrated ORE BANK and IMPERIAL QUARRIES, is now prepared to fill orders at prices much below those of Welsh and but little in excess of those of ordinary American Slates. Builders, contractors, and slaters generally are invited to submit them to the severest tests.

ALEXANDER HILL,
jan1-76 1y] 110 Carondelet st., N. O.

$66 a week in your own town. Terms and outfit free. H. Hallet & Co.
Dec 21 76 1y] Portland, Maine.

ROSE GROWER'S COMPANION AND FLORAL GUIDE [illegible] ROSES [illegible]

Southwestern Christian Advocate.

NEW SERIES—VOL. 1—NO. 18. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, MAY 3, 1877. WHOLE NUMBER 348

SOUTHWESTERN
Christian Advocate,
PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT [illegible] Natchez St., New Orleans.
BY
NELSON & PHILLIPS,
FOR THE
Methodist Episcopal Church.
Terms: $2 a year, Cash in Advance.

All Travelling Preachers of the Methodist Episcopal Church are authorized Agents.

Subscriptions may begin at any time and the paper will be sent as long as paid for.

Remittances [illegible] made by Registered Letter, P. O. Money Order, or by Express.

Advertising Rates.
(Per [illegible] line, each insertion.)

One time or [illegible]	8 cents
One month, [illegible]	7
Three months, ([illegible])	6
Six months, [illegible]	5
One year ([illegible])	4
Marriage notices	25
Special Notices	8 cents, net cash

FROZEN.

BY MRS. E. W. BRADFORD.

"Frozen to death"—so the papers said.
They found him laid in a world-wide bed,
Where winds had covered his fragile form
With snowy blanket so soft and warm.
The sun looked out from the clouds and smiled
To see how lightly the snow was piled.

One [illegible] under his curly head;
"The boy was lost so the papers said,— [illegible] saw him the day before,
Look wistfully through the open door
With a hungry look of the great blue eyes,
Which caught their color from warmer skies.

But where he wandered, or whence he came,
None thought to question, or what the name
Of this poor waif who had never found
So soft a bed as this snowy mound.
[illegible] have opened
To fill the place of a [illegible] lost.

Ah! [illegible] when from Heaven estrayed,
[illegible] earth had never a welcome made,
Till [illegible] the cold stormy night,
[illegible] of night,
[illegible] told;
God [illegible] would unfold
[illegible] of the Soil.

[illegible]

[illegible] of the House [illegible]

BY REV. J. [illegible], D. D.

(From the Church Extension Annual.)

The House of God [illegible] great [illegible] community [illegible] new [illegible] of [illegible] in the place. [illegible] a new invention [illegible] to work for the public good. It is a new evangelizing agency, the [illegible] a new force in the world, [illegible] a new [illegible] is planted, [illegible] a [illegible] an [illegible] of [illegible] its declaration [illegible] new continent [illegible] the tyrants of [illegible] It [illegible] the heroic endeavor of Christian patriots to [illegible] of this [illegible] of our [illegible] territory, [illegible] and [illegible] Wherever our [illegible] the stars and [illegible] the foundation for new church [illegible] of Calvary for [illegible] It is a [illegible] to [illegible] of God, [illegible] is a [illegible] con[illegible] church [illegible] for[illegible] of forti[illegible] we expect [illegible] by [illegible] build and [illegible] the [illegible] hundreds of these citadels built every year, on the boundaries of opening empires, and at the center of new populations, we attain an enlarged and juster conception of the progress and entrenchment of Christianity in the Republic. For every church means a center of moral influence. Of better civilization, of national prosperity. Law and order are promoted. Life is more secure. Property appreciates. Society is elevated. Intelligence increases and education thrives. The rights of mankind are more justly recognized and maintained. Home is ennobled and emparadised. Innocence is protected and helplessness is surrounded by bulwarks. Temperance is reinforced, philantropy inspired, and benevolence quickened. Vice is exposed and crime punished. The individual is entranchised in higher manhood, and the commonwealth is environed with new security.

From the Church issues this river of life that makes glad the face of society; from the Church pre-eminently, stream the influences and are born the forces that are regenerating the world, and are establishing new heavens and new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness. All this centers in the house of God. Its erection is, therefore, an event in history. It is of vast significance to the local community. It has a vital relation to the evangelization of this ransomed world.

The House of God is a monument of Christian faith. The erection of a church means the reaffirmation of the faith of Christian men in the truth of the all-conquering Gospel. It is the most significant and conclusive evidence of their belief that the Gospel is destined to capture the world. Men do not invest their money and toil where they have no faith in results. They don't love to sink them in hopeless enterprises. They won't put money into rickety structures, which they beleive or fear will tumble in ruins to-morrow. They will not invest nor transport their treasure in rotten hulks, which they fear will go down in mid-ocean. But their readiness to put their money in a cause is the measure of their devotion and faith in that cause. This is a powerful testimony—a tremendous argument. It cannot be overestimated nor overstated. The amount men give, according to ability, especially when it costs personal sacrifice, demands hardship, doubles burdens, crucifies pride, bankrupts ease and mortgages the future, is the plummet that sounds the depths of their real conviction and faith. Infidels and skeptics may rant in furious words of their non-beliefs or disbeliefs in Christianity, but they are niggardly about giving their money to support and extend their negative philosophy. And the fact that it is negative, explains their parsimony. No man can get happy, or become enthusiastically benevolent, over—nothing! Negatism extinguishes all inspiration. But men, with a positive truth, and the conscious demonstration of its glorious realities and world-wide fame benefits, have a ceaseless inspiration to give and sacrifice, to promulgate their convictions.

About 1868, Mr. Abbott established his infidel paper, "The Index," at Toledo, Ohio. Its career opened with a grand flourish of trumpets, and the calithumpian bands of infidelity greeted it with, "Hail to the Chief!" It wrote down Christianity! It [illegible] and excoriated the Bible. It sneered and mocked at Jesus. It strode up and down, like another giant of Gath defying the armies of Israel. It vaunted infidelity and glorified free religion. It numbered the people, and boasted of controlling the best brain and culture of the land, with much of its wealth. But, sad to relate, so recreant were these distinguished devotees of free thought in furnishing the sinews of war, that in few years the editor was forced to loud complaints of their niggard support, and, in 1873, visited Boston, to beg money enough to remove his languishing, consumptive prodigy to that city, with a view, perhaps, of trying the benefits of sea air. But it was of no avail. Boston free-thinkers left it to die of [illegible]. They believed it was a good thing, of course; but they [illegible] have not [illegible] in these anti-Christian [illegible] to put their hard-[illegible] coveted dollars into their [illegible]. They start out [illegible] hoop, but soon languish [illegible] gasp for breath. Now, when men, Christian or Infidel, love their money more than their professed beliefs, the common [illegible] of the world discounts the sincerity and depth of their faith.

[illegible] the shallowness [illegible] for the well [illegible] that [illegible] and free [illegible] spiritual[illegible] The latter [illegible] conception, it [illegible] that it num[illegible] of adherents in [illegible] as chara[illegible] [illegible] temples in twenty-five years, and one of them cost the enormous sum of four hundred dollars.

But there are single churches in America that give fifty thousand dollars per annum to spread the Gospel of the Son of God. Christians have faith enough in their religion to contribute of their money generously. Rich men give their thousands and poor men their dollars (with greater sacrifice) to establish and perpetuate the Gospel in the house of God. Both classes believe it a good investment; both evince a noble philantropy, an intelligent benevolence, a profound conviction, a triumphant faith. The house of God is thus a monument of faith. It is a significant and substantial witness to their convictions.

And the grander the edifice, the more emphatic is the faith. A magnificent stone or marble church is a bold, brave act of faith. It means permanence. It tells men that Christianity has come to stay till the world is converted. We are building these forts, and garrisoning them with the soldiers of the Cross, to hold the land for Christ. Men build on a magnificent scale only by a magnificent faith. It tells of increased zeal, augmented devotion, large liberality, advancing confidence. The temple of God at Jerusalem cost seven thousand millions of dollars. And David gave nine millions from his private fortune. He declared, "I will not offer unto God that which cost me nothing." He would make a sacrifice. Romanism has impressed the world by her grand structures, as she has cemented her people to her altars by making them build, by sacrifice, her stately temples. I commend her faith and wisdom in building on the grandest scale, on the best sites, of the most imperishable material. Her moss-grown cathedrals of Europe, dating back for centuries, command the veneration of her people. Protestantism in America is building larger, grander, solider, the house of God. It is significant of grander faith. We are not pitching movable tents for a night, to strike them in the morning and desert our camp-fires. We are erecting enduring edifices that silently proclaim that we have come to stay till the world surrenders to Christ.

And on the frontier, in the poorest hamlet, where the Board of Church Extension aids the heroic and struggling handful of Christians, giving with a sacrifice and devotion unknown to the rich, the little plain church, born of agonizing travail, is the sublimest monument of heroic faith. Thus, everywhere, the house of God stands as a monument of the faith of Christians.

The House of God is a public witness for Christ. It is called by His name—a Christian church. Therein men approach God through the merits and atonement of Jesus. They offer their petitions in His name, and seek forgiveness "for Christ's sake." Every church where His divinity is preached, his praises sung, and his name adored, evinces that he has lost none of his power, but is still drawing all men unto him. Other names wane and lose their charm in the lapse of centuries but, after eighteen hundred years, his name is more potent and magnetic to-day than ever. Men look on him with a profounder reverence and deeper love. He is the most positive and masculine character in the world's history. There is more granite strength, more intellectual power, more fiery energy, more iron grasp of will and purpose, in the Christ of God, than in all sages and heroes and statesmen of the world's renown. Then, surmounting and controlling these tremendous and surging forces of his character, there is a Divine tenderness which glorifies all with transfiguring love. As multiplied churches arise, crowned with his Cross, they testify to the mighty hold which his transcendent name has on the world. They declare his dominion enlarging, his census increasing. They proclaim him "King of kings and Lords of lords." They challenge the world to behold him. They stake the intelligence and destiny of the Christian world on his Divinity and eternal Sonship. They testify to the unfaltering faith of Christians in the truth and triumph of his Gospel. And more. After the most severe analysis and destructive criticism of hostile chiefs and clans, these believers declare their unshaken confidence in the system that bears his name. They still proclaim it to be the power of God unto salvation; the only hope of the moral regeneration of the race. They see it is the cohesive power of civilization—counterworking the disintegrating forces at work to destroy society—superior to invention, art, education, the press and statesmanship, all of which it subsidizes as allies.

The historic proof of the strength of Christianity amazes me. Its history is stranger than fiction, more romantic than romance. It was born in dark, barbaric, troubled times. It was cradled in a storm of persecution. It was baptized in blood. All the fanaticism of priestcraft, and the power of monarchial and military despotisms combined to crush it. It waded up through carnage, ran the gauntlet of dungeon and fagot, survived the malice of centuries, defeated the leagues with hell and covenants with death, and has captured the throne of the nineteenth century. There is blood upon its garments and hacks upon its armor, but there is the tread of a giant in its steps, the majesty of a king upon its brow, and it shakes the world with the thunder of God! It started out with the governments and learning and wealth of the world against it in solid phalanx. To-day its hand is on every sceptre of power, and its foot on every threshold of empire. The learning and literature of the world are saturated with its Divine philosophy. The wealth of the world is largely under its control. The sentiments of the world are being elevated by it, its convictions won towards it. Never was the press so freighted with its utterances as to-day. The reason that the great metropolitan dailies deliver broadsides of sermons and religious news, is that the people demand it. And this religions demand shows that Christ is drawing all men unto him. His Gospel flows into glittering crystals from the pen of genius, and the very air is full of its music. Because men have faith in Christ and his Gospel, they pour out money to build churches, from which to preach Christ and reach mankind. They see that the providence and power of Almighty God are behind Christianity. They have faith in a cause he champions.

During an earthquake the denizens of a town where much alarmed at the danger, but as much astonished at the ecstatic joy of an aged Christian woman. "Were you not afraid?" "No, No! I am so glad that I have a God that can shake the world!" Brethren, we have a Gospel that can shake the world. It is shaking the things that are shaky, that the things which cannot be shaken may remain. It is shaking down the altars of superstition and idolatry. Within the past six years, over six hundred temples of Buddha, in Japan, have been converted to secular purposes, while Christianity cannot get money fast enough to build houses of God for her increasing worshipers. The Gospel is rending open the dungeon doors of unjust institutions, and liberating the captive rights of man. It is upheaving the very foundations of entrenched and hoary wrongs, that the conditions of human society may be rebuilt in equality and righteousness. It is consolidating humanity into one vast brotherhood, and leavening the world with the ethical precepts and transcendent truths of the Son of God. Men can afford to build the house of God in every hamlet, and along every pioneer trail, when such priceless benefits flow from the pulpits and altars of the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

Cypremort and La Teche.

Mr. Editor:—Having spent a recent Sabbath at Cypremort, assisting our good brother, Duncan in a special meeting held for the purpose of raising money toward paying the debt on their church edifice in that place, I drop a few lines to the Southwestern in reference to my visit there, etc.

The congregation was large and attentive, giving evidence of a good degree of intelligence and thrift. Through the efforts of their pastor, and by the blessing of God, quite a number have been converted and joined the church of late. Judging from the manner in which they went about raising money, and the interest manifested, it would seem, to me at least, as though the prospect for that church was very encouraging. One feature of the occasion impressed me especially—the people appeared so happy in giving. They gave so promptly and cheerfully. In a very few minutes they, of their limited means, laid on the tables $132. Brother Duncan is doing a good work. A word in reference to the church at La Teche of which I have pastoral oversight at present. There is certainly an upward tendency in the condition of affairs connected with this church. Greater harmony among the members than formerly; congregations larger; leading members manifesting a stronger desire to get their new church building completed. A number of valuable accessions to the little band of Sunday-school workers, with a most remarkable improvement in the condition of the Sunday-school itself constitute some of the indications which lead us to hope for the dawning of a bright day in the history of our beloved Zion here.

J. Matlock.

Taking a cigar out of his mouth, the minister said to one of his parishioners, found sleeping in sermon-time, "There is no sleeping-car on the road to heaven." "And no smoking-car, either, I recon," said the man in reply, now wide awake.

Characters never change. Opinions alter; characters are only developed.—Disraeli.

The First Texas Campmeeting.

During the first week of September, 1836, the first successful campmeeting was held in eastern Texas. Several previous attempts had been made but were perfect failures. The country was settled by professional gamblers, forgers, thieves, robbers and murderers, with uneducated hunters and herdsmen, without courts, prisons, churches, schools or civil law, and fierce passion enthroned waved its bloody sceptre—the Bowie-knife. This was the state of affairs in Shelby county where, ten years later, forty persons were poisoned to death at a marriage supper. Bands of armed desperadoes, headed by the notorious Watt Yoeman, invaded places of worship, broke the altar, scattered mourners and, ascending the pulpit, threatened preachers with a gratuitous coat of tar and feathers, and for two years no attempt had been made to erect the cross in so perilous a field. At length, however, an advertisement appeared promising another effort in behalf of the Gospel. The notice was unique, a perfect curiosity. Here it is:

BARBECUE CAMPMEETING.

There will be a campmeeting, to commence the last Monday of this month, at the Double Spring, near Peter Brinson's, in the county of Shelby. The preparations are being made to suit all tastes. There will be a good barbecue, best of liquors, and best of Gospel.

Paul Denton,
Missionary M. E. C.

Sept. 1, 1836.

This strange document seemed to be nailed everywhere, in public houses and groceries, on trees, at cross-roads, even in the mountains.

Some regarded the matter as a hoax, but this was denied by Peter Brinson, proprietor of the Double Spring Grove, who informed all inquirers that he had been employed and paid by a stranger calling himself a Methodist missionary to provide an ample barbecue at the time and place mentioned. "But the liquor, the best of liquor; are you to furnish the liquor too?" was the invariable question asked by visitors.

"The missionary said he would attend to that himself," said Brinson.

"He must be a precious original," was the general answer, an opinion afterwards verified. Excitement prevailed. Rumor took wings and flew to every part of the country till nothing else could be heard of but the barbecue campmeeting. The unknown preacher had insured one thing in advance—a congregation embracing nearly the entire population of the country.

I was traveling in Texas at the time, and, sharing the general curiosity, went to hear and see the strange preacher. The pen of a Homer or the pencil of a Hogarth would alone be sufficient to describe the scene. A space had been cleared away immediately around the magnificent Double Spring, which bubbled up with force enough to turn a mill-wheel, in the very center of an evergreen grove. Here a pulpit had been raised, and before it the inseperable altar for mourners. Beyond these, at the distance of fifty paces, were great plank tables, in the shape of a great circle, completely inclosing the space about the spring. In the pits of the adjacent prairie, the slaves of Peter Brinson were cooking the promised barbecue. The grove itself was literally alive, swarming, running over with strange figures in human shape—men, women and children. All Shelby county was there. The hunters had come rifle in hand and dogs at their heels, the rogues, refugees and gamblers, with pistols at their sides and big knives peeping out from their shirt bosoms, while here and there were seen a sprinkling of well-dressed planters and their wives and daughters. The noise was deafening, a tornado of babbling tongues, talking, shouting, quarreling, betting and cursing for amusement.

Suddenly a cry arose. "Colonel Watt Yeoman; hurrah for Colonel Watt Yoeman!" and the crowd parted right and left to let the lion lyncher pass. I looked at the man. He was young, handsome and powerfully built, but in the savage fire of the eye lay a look which was hideous in its ferociousness. His train, a dozen armed desperadoes, followed him. Yoeman spoke in a voice sharp, piercing as the point or a new dagger, "Ed Brinson, where is the new missionary? We want to give him a plumed coat."

"He has not yet arrived," replied the planter.

"Well, I suppose we must wait then, but put the barbecue on the boards, I am as hungry as a starved wolf."

"I cannot 'till the missionary comes; the barbecue is his property."

A fearful light blazed out of Yoeman's eyes as he took a few steps toward Brinson, and fairly shouted, "Fetch me the meat instantly or I'll fill your own stomach with a dinner of lead and steel."

This was the ultimatum of one whose authority was the only law, and the planter obeyed without a murmur. The smoking viands were placed on the table by a score of slaves, and the throng prepared to commence the sumptuous meal, when a voice pealed from the pulpit, loud as the blast of a trumpet in battle, "Stay, gentlemen and ladies, 'till the giver of the barbecue asks God's blessing." Every one started, every eye was directed to the speaker, and all alike was struck by his remarkable appearance. He was almost a giant in stature, though scarcely twenty years of age. His hair, dark as the raven's wing, flowed in waves of natural ringlets more beautiful than ever adorned the brow of a Queen. His eyes were black as midnight, and beamed like stars over a face pale as marble, calm, passionless, spiritual, and wearing an expression such as might have been shed by the light of a dream from paradise or the shadow of an angel's wing. The crowd gazed in astonishment.

The Missionary prayed, and such a prayer it was—for the present people and the present time. It was the cry of the naked soul, and that soul a beggar for the bread and water of heavenly life. He ceased, and not till then was I conscious that I, in common with the multitude around me was weeping.

"Now, my friends, partake of God's gifts at this table, and then come and sit down and listen to His Gospel. The sweet tones of kindness in an instant made him at least five hundred friends. But one heart in that assembly was maddened by the evidences of the preacher's wonderful power.

Colonel Watt Yoeman exclaimed, in a sneering voice, "Mr. Paul Denton, your reverence has lied. You promised us not only a good barbecue but the best of liquor. Where is your liquor?"

"There!" answered the missionary in tones of thunder, pointing his motionless finger at the Double Spring, "gushing up in two strong columns with a sound like a shout of joy from the bosom of the earth. There!" he repeated, with a look terrible as the lightning, while his enemy actually trembled at his feet. "There is the liquor which God the eternal brews for his children. Not in the simmering still over smoking fires, choked with poisonous gasses and surrounded with the stench of sickening odors and rank corruption, doth your Father in Heaven prepare the precious essence of life—pure, cold water. But in the green glade and grassy dell where the raindeer wanders and the child loves to play, there God himself brews it, and down, low down in the deepest valleys, where the fountains murmur and the rills sing; and high upon the mountain tops, where the naked granite glitters like gold in the sun, where the storm-clouds brood and the thunder storms crash, and away far out on the wide sea, where the hurricane howls music and big waves roar the chorus sweeping the march of God, there he brews it, that beverage of life—health-giving water. And everywhere it is a thing of beauty—gleaming in the dew-drop, singing in the summer rain, shining in the ice gem 'till the trees seem turned to living jewels, spreading a golden veil over the setting sun, or a white gauze around the midnight moon, sporting in the cataract, sleeping in the glacier, dancing in the hail-storm, folding bright snow curtains softly over the wintery world, weaving the many colored iris, that seraph zone of the sky whose warp is the rain of the earth, whose woof is the sun-beam of heaven all checkered over with celestial flowers by the mystic hand of rorifaction, still always it is beautiful—that blessed cold water. No poison bubbles on its brink; its foam brings not madness and murder; no blood stains its liquid glass; pale widows and starving orphans weep not burning tears in its clear depths; no drunkard's shrieking ghost from the grave curses it in words of dispair. Speak out, my friends, would you exchange it for the demon drink, alcohol!"

A shout, like the roar of the tempest, answered "No! No!"

The missionary held the hearts of the people, as it were, in his hand, and so strong was the popular feeling that even the duelist, Watt Yoeman, dared not venture another interruption during the meeting.

The camp-meeting continued and a revival attended such as never before or since was witnessed in the forests of Texas. But unfortunately, on the last day of the exercises, news arrived on the ground that a neighboring farmer had been murdered and his wife and children carried off prisoners by the Indians. The young missionary sprang into the pulpit and proposed the immediate organization of a company to pursue the savages. The suggestion being adopted, the mover himself was chosen leader. After several days hard riding they overtook the Indians in the grand prairie. The missionary charged foremost of the troops and, having performed prodigies of bravery, fell, not by the hand of an Indian, but by a shot from one of his own horsemen. I need not name the assassin, the reader has already anticipated me—the incarnate fiend, Colonel Watt Yoeman, chief hangman of the Shelby county lynchers and, ten years later, a master cook at the poisoned wedding.

Such is the only fragment of the biography of a wounded genius, the one ray of a dazzling luminary that rose and set in the wilderness—a torn leaf from Paul Denton's life. Peace to his ashes! He sleeps well in the tomb—nature's gift to every beloved son.—From Tales and Takings.

Sabbath and Sunday.

There is a general confusion in the use of these terms, and we hear them uttered or see them written as if they were synonomous. That the same day is designated by both words when applied to a single day, is well understood, and yet there is no identity between them. The first is a Hebrew expression for the quality of any arbitrary period of time, as of a day, or a year, or any indefinite number of years, and the other the Saxon name for a specified day in the week. The one signifies the character of the time set apart, the other a fixed division of time. Sabbath means simply "rest," and is used in Scripture solely with this meaning. If applied to a single day, it denotes a "day of rest"—a phrase now often used for Sunday. The first day of the week is a Sabbath only in this sense, otherwise it is designated as the "Lord's day," "first day," Sunday." That the Hebrew word was not usurped to name a single day, the following passages indicate: "Thou shalt number seven sabbaths of years unto thee, seven times seven years; and the space of the seven sabbaths of years shall be unto thee forty and nine years." "When you come into the land which I give you, then shall the land keep a sabbath unto the Lord; in the seventh year shall be a sabbath of rest unto the land, a sabbath for the Lord." (Lev. xxv, 8, 2, 4.) "As long as the land lay desolate, she kept sabbath to fulfill threescore and ten years." (2 Chron. xxxvi, 21.) Here periods of one year, of seven years, and of seventy years are signified by this term, and though constantly applied to periods extending from one sunset to another, it never denoted the exact day as does the word Sunday. The specially appointed day for the weekly sabbath among the Hebrews was every seventh day—apparently not designated by any name as with us, but only numbered. In addition to this weekly sabbath other days were appointed to be observed as sabbaths, having just as sacred an obligation and demanding a cessation of labor just as strict as the weekly seventh day. Thus the day of atonement was a sabbath, "the tenth day of the seventh month," in the feast of tabernacles, commencing on the fifteenth and ending with the twenty-second of the month, both the opening and closing days were sabbaths; and probably other days were so set apart for sabbaths. This term, therefore, does not point out the day, but shows simply the character of the day which God set apart for his worship. It is better to use the word Sunday, as we do the names of other days, to denote the specific day of rest; sabbath, whether applied to Sunday, a year, a term of years, the land, the nation, or otherwise, to denote simply "rest." Sunday is our Sabbath; but sabbath is not Sunday.—National Repository.

Why Am I Not a Christian.

1. Is it because I am afraid of ridicule, and what others may say of me?

"Whosoever shall be ashamed of Me, and My words, of him shall the Son of Man be ashamed."

2. Is it because of the inconsistencies of professing christians?

"Every man shall give an account of himself to God."

3. Is it because I am not willing to give up all for Christ?

"What shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?"

4. Is it because I shall not be accepted?

"Him that cometh unto Me I will in no wise cast out."

5. Is it because I fear I am a great sinner?

"The blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth from all sin."

6. Is it because I am afraid I shall not hold out?

"He that hath begun a good work in you will perfect it unto the day of Christ Jesus."

7. Is it because I am thinking that I will do as well as I can, and that God ought to be satisfied?

"Whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all."

8. Is it because I am postponing the matter without any definite reason?

"Boast not thyself of to-morrow, for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth."

"Choose ye this day whom ye will serve, for this is a faithful saying and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners."—Ex.

SOUTHWESTERN
Christian Advocate.
30 Natchez St., New Orleans.
J. C. HARTZELL, D.D., Editor.
THURSDAY, MAY 3, 1877.

The bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church will hold their Spring meeting in Cleveland, Ohio, May 17th.

Forty years ago the Fiji Islanders were cannibals, and now there are 40,000 children in the Sunday-schools, and thousands of the people are consistent Christians.

We are sorry to learn, by a note from Rev. Mack Reason, of Victoria, Texas, that Rev. D. Gregory, Presiding Elder of Columbus District, was very sick at Mission Valley, April 22. He was suffering from nervous prostration, and the Physicians had not been able to help him.

Bishop Wiley has appointed Rev. D. McLachlan Presiding Elder of the Okolona District, Mississippi Conference to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Dr. McDonald. [illegible] will notice Bro. McLachlan's announcement of appointments on our third page. Bro. M. [illegible] vigorous canvass for the SOUTHWESTERN.

The South needs schools. She [illegible] the whole nation [illegible]. In the South [illegible] about 1,700,000 [illegible]. Of this number about [illegible] are white, and about 600,[illegible]. No statesman can [illegible] and not feel that the [illegible] of educating these masses is [illegible].

[illegible] shows that there [illegible] in the General Minutes [illegible] the Eastern [illegible] a portion was [illegible] the Pittsburg Conference [illegible] 26,901 members [illegible] from the foot [illegible] and the increase [illegible] 6,948 instead of 41,782.

[illegible] learn that Rev. [illegible] School [illegible] South came very [illegible] on the 18th of [illegible] of Elizabeth [illegible] crossing the [illegible] at Hart's Ford [illegible] and fell, the [illegible] feet hung in [illegible] Nashville Christian [illegible] was bruised and [illegible] back hurting [illegible].

[illegible] final letter [illegible] from the Gubernatorial [illegible] addressed to the [illegible] of Louisiana, is free [illegible] very [illegible] states the views [illegible] the late con[illegible] is directly [illegible] influence [illegible] from [illegible] the Democratic [illegible] Returning Board [illegible] the Governor [illegible].

[illegible] of the [illegible] Weekly, pub[illegible]. It [illegible] the [illegible] New [illegible] understand its [illegible] is [illegible] value in [illegible] the people [illegible].

[illegible] Sunday [illegible] regular [illegible] Coliseum [illegible] Sunday [illegible] Bro. Mc[illegible] to [illegible].

The War in Europe.

Russia has declared war against Turkey, and already contending armies are face to face, and fighting has begun. Elsewhere we publish a statement of the strength of the various armies of the countries already involved and which may yet be involved in the contest.

The difficulties between Russia and Turkey are of long standing. In fact they are inherited troubles, and had their origin in religious quarrels between Eastern and Western Europe. The Christian Church was for many centuries in Europe a united body, with its center of power in Rome. But Constantine made Constantinople the capital of the Roman Empire, which Empire then ruled all Europe. Then began a religous war between the Bishops of Constantinople and Rome, each claiming to be the head of the Church. Constantinople was the head of the Eastern or Greek section of the Church, and Rome was the head of the Western or Latin portion of the Church. The Western half of the Roman Empire was destroyed by the Northern barbarians, but again, under Charlemagne practically regained its power, with France as the controlling nation. Charlemagne made Rome the head of the Church. All this while Constantinople remained the capital of the Roman Empire, and its Bishops claimed to be the head of the Christain Church.

Here then were two great Empires, one east and one west; and two great Churches, one east and one west; and known in history as the Greek and Latin Churches. Between these Churches and nations waged the most bitter controversies, the effects of which are to be traced in nearly every trouble which has agitated modern Europe. So bitter were religious controversies between the Eastern and Western sections of the Christian Churches, that the Western Crusaders turned aside from their purposes to posses Jerusalem, to capture and pillage Constantinople.

In 1453 a new factor entered into the controversy between the East and the West. In that year the Turks from Asia captured Constantinople and planted the standard of Mohammedanism on European soil. With the fall of Constantinople fell the Roman Empire of the East, and with it the Greek or Christian Church of the East. The policy of the Turks was to crush out the political spirit of the East, and to trample out its Christian religion. The religion of the Turk is the religion of the sword. Wherever Mohammedanism has the power its simple but relentless demand is, be Mohammedans or die. The Eastern Christians resisted the Turkish rule and then followed centuries of struggles, often terrible and bloody.

Russia, then a weak power, espoused the cause of the Greek Church, and the oppressed Christians of European Turkey looked with longing eyes to her for help. Russia, on two points, was the natural enemy of Turkey. She was the friend of the Christian religion, which Turkey was seeking to destroy, and she wanted to possess the territory of the old Roman Empire of the East, which Turkey had captured, so as to control the commerce of the eastern Mediterranean and Black Seas, and thus be master of the highway from Europe to Asia. Here is the key to Russian tactics to-day. She strikes in the name of humanity, but her real hope is to capture and possess Constantinople. By her defense of the Greek Church and by the development of her natural ambition to control the East, Russia has grown to be one of the greatest nations of the world. Her flag waves over one-seventh of the earth's surface. Her subjects number more than those of all other European countries. Her armies are vast in numbers, well equipped and officered, and the whole nation is united in sentiment. The Czar's late manifesto declaring war was received with applause, even in the churches throughout the Empire.

But Western Europe could not remain [illegible] and see Russia extend her [illegible] down to the Bosphorus. [illegible] has her India Provinces [illegible] the highway to them [illegible] of another nation. All [illegible] nations of Europe are [illegible] in the commerce of Asia, [illegible] consent to be compelled [illegible] to have a share of [illegible]. Besides, and [illegible] important than all, is [illegible] of preserving the bal[illegible]. No one [illegible] to become [illegible] the rest. [illegible] France, Germany and Austria are therefore interested in the Eastern question. It was this that led England and France to take part in the Crimean war between Russia and Turkey in 1853. Those nations fought with Turkey, not that they loved Turkey, but Russia could not be permitted to increase her territory and control the commerce of the Mediterranian and Black Seas. As a result Russia was defeated, and put on her good behavior, and what was more important, the matter of dealing with Turkey was taken in hand by the great nations of Europe. This was the substance of the Paris treaty. All the late negotiations between the Powers and Turkey have been on the basis of this treaty. In the celebrated protocol a few weeks since the Powers united in demanding of Turkey that she should protect her Christian subjects and institute certain reform measures. Turkey said she proposed to carry out the reforms but would do so in her own way, and put her reply on the ground that she was a nation and capable of ruling her own people. While England and the other great Powers were waiting and hesitating what to do, Russia, on her own authority declares war, claiming that as Turkey refuses to listen to the united voice of the Powers, she has forfeited all right to the benefit of the Paris treaty. Russia declares war on the ground that she has no faith in Turkey's purpose to protect her Christian subjects.

These are enough facts to indicate the many complications entering into the present war in Europe. Turkey fights for Mohammedanism and her national existence. Russia strikes in the name of Christ to protect Christians under Turkish rule, and subject to the persecutions of Mohammedan bigotry. England and the other great powers of Europe, while they agree with Russia in sentiments of religion and humanity, cannot allow her to increase her territory, and, to prevent this, would join Turkey.

It is idle at this stage to conjecture either the result or extent of the struggle. We can only record the events as they occur from week to week.

Dodging the Sabbath.

Hon. Wm. E. Dodge, of New York, addressed a letter of censure to Gen. Newton, who blew up Hell Gate in New York harbor, on Sunday, last Summer. Not long since, Mr. Dodge was in Texas looking after his large railroad interests. He was President of the Texas Central, but owned more stock in the International, and was using his influence to put the Central in the hands of a receiver. When at Austin attending the Court where the trial was being held, to determine whether the Central should go into the hands of a receiver or not, Mr. Dodge received word that Mr. Chas. Morgan was buying up the stock of the Central with a view of controlling it. As quickly as a special train could take Mr. Dodge and his party to Houston, one hundred and sixty-five miles, they were there. They met on Sunday morning, to consider the situation, and while in that meeting Mr. Dodge received the unpleasant news that his plans were blown up, and that Mr. Morgan would thereafter pay the debts of and control the Texas Central. Mr. Dodge, to be consistent, should have addressed a note to Mr. Morgan and suggested that it was improper to blow his plans up on the Lord's day. But then Mr. Morgan could have replied that if Mr. Dodge did not want Sunday disregarded he ought not to have used that day for his meeting. Mr. Dodge is not the first leading Christian gentleman who seems to forget that Sunday is as much the Sabbath in Texas as in New York.

An Important Omission.

The St. Louis Christian Advocate (Southern Methodist) goes into ectacies in the following manner, over the fact that all the Southern States are now under Democratic rule:

"If we may be allowed to call up an expression or two that were very commonly used a dozen years ago—then, "the greatest and best government the sun ever shown on," after an expenditure of more than three thousand millions of dollars, and the sacrifice of nearly, or quite, as many lives as it had to contend against, succeeded in putting down the "greatest rebellion the world ever saw," in the short period of about five years; and now, in the short period of ten years, has pretty well succeeded in "putting down" its own "carpet baggers," "scalawags," "barnacles," "leeches," and other "blood-suckers." At least it has made a good start—succeeded very well, so far; and the prospect is that very soon all will "be quiet along the Potomac."

But that good religious paper, in its political harangue made an omission which, in view of its significance, is very important. It does not state that the principles represented by the party that put down "the greatest rebellion the world ever saw," now compose the political capital of the party to which the editor of that paper belongs. And, too, that his party has been forced to accept those principles, first, at the point of the bayonet, and next, gradually as a matter of policy, but now, let us hope, because convinced, they are right.

The Southwestern in Tennessee.

Several brethern in the Tennessee Conference have, during the past few months, been very active in canvassing for the SOUTHWESTERN. They are strangers to us, and so far as this office is concerned were uninfluenced in beginning the canvass. Since they began we have mentioned their work favorably and filled their orders promptly. They say they and their people like the SOUTHWESTERN and want it, and, in turn, we are glad they like it and are pleased to send it to them. One Tennessee District has made the SOUTHWESTERN their official journal. We were surprised and gratified at this, especially when the resolution was adopted to put the subscription list in that District up to 500 copies.

The Methodist Advocate, of April 25th, has a communication signed "Itinerant," in which this paragraph occurs:

Why then an effort to raise 500 subscribers for a paper in New Orleans, and not a word for "one" subscriber for the Methodist Advocate? I fear there are dead flies in that ointment.

The editor of the Methodist Advocate replies:

"Our answer is this: We have served the Tennessee Conference at least a hundred per cent. better than any other paper, North or South. Color-lineism is probably the main point in the case."

We know of no law that forbids Methodist preachers subscribing for and circulating any religious paper which in their judgment is the best. The law of charity, however, forbids Christians from impugning the motives of their brethren. "Itinerant's" "dead flies" have a bad odor, but they are a part of his own "ointment." The Tennessee brethren are abundantly capable of judging for themselves, and will certainly do so in spite of any criticisms from interested quarters. As to the editor's reply we have to say that the Methodist Advocate is an excellent paper, but we have seen as good, even in the South, our friends being judges. That paper has had a leading influence in establishing "color-lineism" in the South, and if that fact leads an occasional District Conference in Tennessee to adopt some other paper as its organ we shall not object if the SOUTHWESTERN is substituted.

Encouraging.

The Episcopalian Clergymen of New Orleans have just held an interesting denominational convention in this city. Bishop Wilmer of this State, and two Bishops from Texas were present. Among the questions discussed was the duty of their Church to the colored people. Interesting papers were read, and the general tone of the discussions were excellent. It was decided that an agent should be set apart to investigate the prospect of developing a work among the colored people and report to the General Convention. Bishop Wilmer has already organized a colored Episcopalian church in this city, and it is proposed to buy property at once, and it is hoped to secure a suitable pastor soon. Bishop Wilmer and Ex-Gov. Warmouth head the subscription to purchase property with $500 each.

All this is encouraging. Ever since the war the Methodist Episcopal Church has been organizing and building up Churches among the colored people. God has wonderfully blessed her work. She has been reviled and persecuted by all the aristocratic white Churches of the South because of her work among the colored people. But now a better day dawns. All the Churches are feeling their duty in this work and seeking how to do it.

The New England Conference is heartily in favor of lay delegation in the Annual Conferences.

Up to this writing (Monday 30th) there has not been much fighting between Russia and Turkey. The armies of both nations are in motion and heavy battles may be expected any day. Russia says she has plenty of Money. Germany protests against Russian subjects in Constantinople being considered under her (Germany's) protection. Roumania has granted to Russia the use of her territory, railways, rivers and telegraphs, for transportation of troops and binds herself to help Russia in erecting camps and forwarding baggage. Russia has the right to complete the necessary railroads, and ground is ceded for that purpose, and also the right to establish military hospitals anywhere except at Bucharest the Roumanian capital. Roumanian neutrality is to be respected according to the treaty of Paris.

Judge Spofford, United States Senator elect from this State, by the combined Democratic and Republican Legislatures, is one of the leading Conservative men of Louisiana. In his speech of acceptance he said that he accepted the pledges of Gov. Nicholls as his own and would stand by the rights of all. Ex-Gov. Kellogg is still in Washington city, and proposes to contest with Judge Spofford for the long term seat in the Senate from Louisiana. Mr. Kellogg was elected by the Republican Legislature when its quorum was undisputed. It will be claimed that Mr. Packard is de jure Governor of Louisiana. This contest will bring the Louisiana case directly before Congress.

Rev. C. Pickett, Nashville, Tenn., a stranger to us personally, wrote us several weeks since that he had seen a copy of the SOUTHWESTERN and liked it, and that he should endeavor to send us fifty subscribers. His list now numbers seventy-seven, and he writes that he intends to make it a hundred. Bro. Pickett will accept our most hearty thanks, and if his District can bring up its pledge of 500 subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN both its ministers and people will be greatly aided in their work.

We publish elsewhere the advertisement of Dr. J. M. Howe, of Passaic, New Jersey, and we voluntarily call attention to it. From the number and character of its recommendations we are satisfied that Dr. Howe's inhaling tube, for the cure of lung and throat diseases, by the use of common air, is most valuable. No medicine is given. The principle is simply to use pure air in a manner to exercise and purify the lungs. This will promote arterializing of the blood, quicken circulation and toughen the organs of the throat.

Personal.

Mrs. Van Cott began a series of meetings in St. Louis, April 21st.

Dr. Dashiel, of the Mission Rooms, New York, has been quite sick, but is better.

Bishop Wiley presided at the Indiana Conference. 26,952 members and 6,804 probationers were reported.

Ex-Gov. W. G. Brownlow, of Tennessee, died at Knoxville, Tenn., at 2 o'clock p.m., the 29th ult.

Rev. J. T. Gracy will assist the Missionary Secretaries until the next session of the New York Central Conference.

We are sorry to learn that Mr. James M. Vance, son of Rev. J. M. Vance of this city, is sick in Washington city with the small-pox.

Bishop Haven is spending a month at Clifton Springs, New York, by order of his physician, to recover from the malarial effects of his visit to Africa.

Dr. J. B. Wentworth commends, in the Northwestern, in very high terms, Dr. Raymond's forthcoming work on "Systematic Theology."

Dr. O. H. Tiffany has been transferred from Trinity Church, Chicago, to St. Paul's, New York city. His old church is sorry to lose him, and the new one receives him gladly.

Bishop Merrill, having completed his spring Conferences has returned to his home in Chicago and will remain there until the meeting of the Bishops in May.

We regret to state that Prof. A. B. Collins, who has done excellent work as an instructor in the New Orleans University for several years, is compelled, by ill health, to stop work and go North. The many friends of Prof. Collins in this city will unite in hoping that he will be speedily restored to health. He was in Chicago last week and went from that point to his home in the East.

Judge King, of St. Landry Parish, La., has been appointed Collector of this port, and will succeed Col. Casey. Judge King is an Old Line Whig, and has been a resident of this State for many years. He is well spoken of.

Dr. Hodgeson, for many years a leading minister of the M. E. Church, died in Philadelphia April 17. He has filled many important pastoral charges. In 1875, at the age of seventy, he ended his active ministry. His funeral was largely attended and his memory is treasured in many hearts.

Our Southern Methodism.

Rev. L. H. Carhart, of Dallas, Texas, reports fifty accessions in January.

Our People of Denison, Texas, under Rev. M. A. Daugherty are building a brick church that will seat three hundred and fifty.

Rev. E. Graves, Summit, Miss., says: "In a protracted meeting just closed we had seven accessions to the Church. Our membership has been greatly revived and prospects for the future are encouraging."

Rev. Casmor Stewart, Mayersville, Miss., writes: "So far this year I have had thirteen accessions to the Church. Our Sunday-school numbers eighty members. I find among these people many faithful workers in the Master's vineyard."

Rev. L. R. Brown, Kosciusko, Miss., writes: "We have an interesting meeting now in progress. So far twelve accessions to the Church, and many seekers at the altar. In my own family we suffer a great affliction in the death of our little daughter, Lillie."

Rev. J. A. York, Byhalia Circuit, Miss., says: "With the blessing of the Lord I have succeeded in again organizing our work on this circuit; it now numbers 88 members, there being three recent accessions. We have also a good Sunday-school of 45 members."

Rev. R. Anderson, Bolton, Miss., writes: "We have been blessed with a gracious revival. Our little band of membership has been increased from 45 to 62, besides 8 probationers. Our people begin to realize that their only happiness is in the service of the Lord."

Rev. Amos Gunby, Stoney Point, La., says: "Our first quarterly services have just closed. We had a good meeting. Our congregations were large and composed of both white and colored. I have received during the quarter two in full connection and eighteen on probation."

Rev. C. L. Crump, Batesville, Miss., writes: "I am happy to say that we are now in a fair way of having a house of worship of our own. We purchased a lot, and had the deed made as the Discipline directs. Our building is now up, and we hope to complete it by the time our presiding elder visits us again. Our people all like the SOUTHWESTERN; we would not know how to do without it." Some of Bro. Crump's members write concerning him: "He is a good preacher and a good worker. If he had been with us earlier we might now be better off than we are."

Rev. L. Madison, Austin, Texas, sends $17 40 on subscriptions to the SOUTHWESTERN and adds: "We just closed a meeting protracted for one week. There were twenty conversions and sixty accessions to the Church. There were many others, whose hearts were touched by the Holy Spirit during meeting, and our people are praying for them that they may be speedily converted to God. Our members were greatly blessed, and strenghtened in faith and hope. Our Sunday-school is doing well. We love the SOUTHWESTERN—it is a great help to us. We hope to give it a large circulation among our people."

A Good Book.

There is a late volumn published at the Book Rooms of the M. E. Church entitled "All for Christ," of which Dr. E. O. Haven, Chancellor of Syracuse University, says: "A copy of a work with the above title fell into my hands not long since. I wish every one would read it. The pathway from conversion up to the higher Christian life is made so plain and clear that no one need misunderstand it, and its illustrating naratives of a perfect consecration captivate the heart and keep up the interest of the reader. It is a book which ought to be a blessing to our Church." Price 75 cents.

Religious Items.

The Second Presbyterian Church, Staunton, Va., has voted every third pew in their new church edifice free to the public.

The receipts of the American Bible Society the past year were $543,579. The number of volumes issued was 621,726.

The Congregational National Council will meet in Detroit, Mich., October 17th. One delegate can be appointed by associations or conferences for every ten churches.

Mr. Lyman Bennett has given $10,000 to the Freedmen's Aid Society of the M. E. Church for the erection of a college for the colored people at Greensboro, N. C.

The Southern Baptist Convention meets in this city in the Coliseum Place church, on May 10th. Arrangements have been made with different hotels, by which delegates will be entertained at reduced rates.

The First African church of Richmond, Va., perhaps the largest Baptist church in the world, has completed a large and hadsome church edifice, free from debt. Much money was lost by the failure of the Freedman's Bank.

The Catholics stand to the Protestants in Ireland as four to one. There are 4,150,867 of the former and 1,260,510 of the latter. Of the Protestants the Episcopalians are the most numerous body, having 667,998.

A Swede who looks like Moody, and was converted in Sweden by reading his sermons, is preaching them, translated into Swedish, to 2,500 of his countrymen in Moody's church in Chicago. Moody is also translated into Armenian, Italian and Spanish.

The annual renting of the pews of the Metropolitan Church, Washton, D. C., took place Monday the 19th ult., and were taken to the amount of about ten thousand dollars. This will meet all the necessary expenses of the church for the ensuing year, and presents a good showing.

Probably the most remarkable revival Baltimore Methodism has witnessed for a quarter of a century is progressing under the direction of the evangelist, Rev. Thomas Harrison, of Boston, at the Union Square Church, Dr. France, pastor. During ten weeks there have been six hundred conversions, and the interest is intensifying rather than abating.

There are 3509 Congregational churches with 350,658 members in the United States, and 3333 ministers. In 1876, 20,884 were added on profession of faith and 12,400 by letter. There were 10,466 adults and 5,388 infant baptisms. The benevolent contributions reported were $1,278,252, and the expenditures were $2,584,166. There was a gain of 71 churches, and a large increase in membership.

Chicago will soon have a fifth Theological Seminary. The establishment, by the Reform Episcopal Church of their "University of the West" is now assured. For this purpose Edwin Martin, Esq., of Red Hook, Dutchess county, New York, has given 150 acres of land lying just outside the city limits, and for which he has recently refused to take $200,000.

General News.

The Jubilee Singers cleared $12,000 in Holland.

Missouri's legislature offers a reward of five cents for every rat killed in the State.

A Pennsylvania company has built a bullet-proof passenger car for use on a Cuban railroad.

Last month 3,490 emigrants arrived in New York, nearly one third of whom are Germans.

The first battle of the war has been fought. It took place at Tchuruksou. The Turks were the victors, and the Russians lost 800 men.

A mass meeting of the people of the Black Hills has memoralized Congress to form a new Territory, embracing that region, to be called Lincoln.

At the Hartford High School graduating exercises, Unang Kal Kah, a Chinese lad, took the prize in declamation over six American boys.

The franking privilege was supposed to have been restored by a clause hastily added to the post-route bill near the close of the last session of Congress. It enacted that "all members may send and receive by mail all documents published by order of Congress." It is now discovered that the important word "free" was omitted.

Secretary of the Navy Thompson has been invited to deliver the annual address in Washington at the anniversary celebration of the American Bible Society.

Two Congregational churches in New England have refused to call two students of the Senior Class of Andover Seminary, because they are addicted to the use of tobacco.

The "Big Bonanza" yielded $20,108,958 gold and $25,700,682 silver, from its discovery to Sept. 30th, 1876. In this deposit the usual preponderance of gold over silver is reversed.

It is thought that the Indian war is over. Sitting Bull and his band have fled into the British possessions, and are badly demoralized, and also said to be almost in a famished condition.

Prominent European capitalists have been negotiating for some time past, at last successfully, with the Land Commissioners of Florida for [illegible] worth of orange lands. They intend to bring into the State 2,000 or 3,000 hardy farmers from England, Germany, France, and Italy.

The rapid extension of the cultivation of peanuts is due to the use now made of them for the oil they contain. Last season's product reached 2,000,000 bushels, valued at $3,000,000. The oil is in large demand as a substitute for olive and almond oils, and keeps a much longer time without becoming rancid.

The Lynchburg Virginian says: "Wednesday called on last night by the representatives of a Massachusetts colony of a thousand persons who propose to locate in Virginia. They desire to engage in manufacturing and farming and want a [illegible] of land. They mean [illegible] quickly."

[illegible] of this century have been the most bloody and costly since the palmy days of Rome and Greece. For its ten great bloody wars, viz: the Napoleonic, Crimean, Italian, Danish [illegible], American, Abyssinian and Franco-German wars—not counting not minor expeditions and [illegible] the figures foot up [illegible] expended, and 11,[illegible] men destroyed from 1800 to 1875. Two-thirds of this appalling array of men and money are to be charged on the ledger to Napoleon I., up to his closing battle at Waterloo.

Louisiana.

The 24th of April, the sixteenth anniversary of the surrender of New Orleans to the Federal [illegible] under Farragut was fixed upon [illegible] Hayes as the day for removing troops from the vicinity of the House. [illegible] were removed at [illegible] little excitement. There was no occasion for [illegible] of real excitement [illegible] Legislature [illegible] warrant repre- [illegible] and [illegible] 044 [illegible] State House [illegible] adjourned [illegible] its session the following [illegible] the Unit- [illegible] A. James D. [illegible] M. [illegible]

[illegible] Napoleonic, [illegible] Crimean, Italian, Danish [illegible] American, Abyssinian and Franco-German wars—[illegible] not minor expeditions and [illegible] the figures foot up [illegible] expended, and 11,[illegible] men destroyed from 1800 to 1875. Two-thirds of this appalling array of men and money are to be charged on the ledger to Napoleon I., up to his closing battle at Waterloo.

True the majority in the legislature is small now but that will be increased at next election, with the entire patronage of the State in the hands of a Democratic Governor. Already Gov. Nicholls is being severely criticised for appointing three or four colored men to important positions.

What the future politics of the State is to be it is idle to conjecture. We sincerely hope that Gov. Nicholls can carry out his pledges. What we want is protection to all classes, and less of political agitation and more business.

New Orleans Preachers Meeting.

The opening religious exercises for the session of April 26th, were conducted by Rev. J. Hayward, of Donaldsonville.

The Chairman conducted the discussion of the thirteenth Chapter of Acts as far as the fifth verse. The subject of the discussion was "The first Missionary Tour to the Gentiles;" and the points developed were, that the originator of missions is the Holy Ghost; that the first contribution to the missionary cause by the early church was two of its ablest ministers; they were called directly by the Holy Ghost; their call was recognized by the Church as indicated by the laying on of hands and prayer. The discussion will be resumed at next meeting.

Rev. C. Hunt, pastor of Mt. Zion Church, gave an encouraging account of his church work. The congregations are large, and last month $300 were raised on debts, and this month $400 will be raised. Bro. Hunt is also principal of one of the city schools.

Bro. Hayward spoke of the prosperity of his work, and expressed a continued interest in Mt. Zion, his old charge, and in all the churches of our people.

Central Tennessee College.

This institution closes the eleventh year of its history on the 17th inst. The annual sermon will be preached by Rev. D. W. Hays, of Murfreesboro, on Sunday, May 13th, at 3 o'clock. The Annual College Love Feast will be held on the same same day at 11 o'clock a.m. On Tuesday, May 15th the Annual examinations will begin. Wednesday the 16th, the annual meeting of the Board of Trustees at 3 o'clock p.m. At night the educational meeting will be addressed by Rev. C. S. Smith, of Clark Chapel, Nashville, and a meeting of the Centennial Endowment Association will be held —Rev. D. W. Hays presiding. On Friday night, the 18th, the addresses of the graduating class in the Normal Department.

J. BRADEN, President.

A Wolf in Sheep's Clothing.

We are requested by a reliable member of our Church in Texas to warn our people against a man who goes by the name of H. McCoy, a preacher. Says he is sent by the preacher in charge, and then expects the people to feed him. If they do so, he has a habit, the first chance he can get, of ransacking trunks which do not belong to him.

Strength of Various Powers.

The countries directly interested in the settlement of the Eastern Question are Russia, Turkey, Austria, Italy, Germany, France, and Great Britian. Turkey is prepared. To the north of Turkey in Europe lies Austria (with Servia and Bosnia intervening), and Roumania. To the east of Roumania is Russia, the river Pruth forming the boundary line. To the east of Turkey in Asia is Persia, and to the north of Persia is Russia.

Russia has been careful to pave the way for her invasion to Turkey. She has advised with all the great powers, and they joined in submitting the protocol as a basis of peace. Turkey rejected this, and gives Russia the pretense of acting in the name of Europe, or at least by permission of the powers interested.

Extending along the northern boundary of Turkey are Bosnia, Servia, and Roumania—all to some extent under Austrian influence, none of them Turkish in feeling. If Austria does not dispute the passage of Russian armies they will cross the Pruth and move promptly into Turkish territory. The Pruth is about five hundred miles in length, and about 300 miles forms the boundaries between Russia and Roumania. In 1829 the Russian armies crossed the Pruth, and marching towards Constantinople, penetrated as far as Adrianople, not more than 100 miles from Constantinople, when peace was concluded [illegible] dictating the terms. In [illegible] Russian army crossed the [illegible] at the same time the [illegible] threatened Turkey [illegible] November the Turkish [illegible] destroyed by the Russian [illegible] town of Sistova almost [illegible] This called England [illegible] to the aid of Turkey; [illegible] to the Dardanelles, made a stand at Sebastopol. The end was the treaty of Paris, in which Europe dictated terms to Russia.

Turkey is ready for war, and will fight Russia whether she is supported or not. She has a splendid navy and a well-equipped army. Austria and Italy or uneasy. Germany is reticent. England is non-committal, and France is neutral. Just how soon they will all be in a turmoil of war it is impossible to say. The military and naval strength of the different nations is shown in the following statement:

The total of the military forces of Turkey in 1874 were estimated at 170,376. Besides this there is a reserved force amounting to 310,680, so that the actual available forces may be estimated at 459,360.

The effective force of the army in Roumania in 1873 was estimated to consist of: Infantry 22,463; Cavalry, 12,184. Total, 34,647.

The Russian army in 1873—and there has been little change since—was at 808,670. To this number may be added 120,000 men classed as local troops, and 189,000 men as irregular troops. Every man between 18 and 45 years of age is subject to military duty, and, of course, the army can be recruited to almost any extent from this source.

The German army numbers 1,251,691.

Germany has a navy consisting, at the present time, of forty-nine steam vessels, mostly iron-clads of the latest style, besides forty-five sailing vessels and hospital ships, mounting in all to 593 guns. The Russian fleet consists of 274 steam vessels—thirty-six of the number being iron-clad gunboats—and twenty-five sailing crafts. These mount in all to about 1,400 guns, but only three of the vessels carry ordnance of large caliber.

Great Britian has in the field of all grades, 105,434; reserve and auxiliary force, 346,751. Total, 452,085. This is independent of 62,924 men serving in India, and 21,470 serving in the colonies, part of whom may be called upon in case of war.

The active force of France consists of 705,000; Reserve of active army, 510,000; Temporary exemptions, 141,000; Permanent part of the army, 120,000. Total, 1,475,000. It is estimated that in case of immediate necessity the effective force of the army would not greatly exceed 1,000,000 men, although the number indicated above could be thrown into the field after reasonable warning.

The war establishment of Austria is 752,080.

The war footing of the Italian army consists of 361,000 men.

EFFECT OF WAR ON THE UNITED STATES.

The effect of war on the United would be to stimulate the demand for food supplies for military consumption, which, in time of war, is always attended with a sudden increase of commissariat stocks and a large amount of waste; this rule applying to navies as well as armies. The markets therefore would immediately feel the effect of a large government demand for grain and for provisions. The next effect would be to stop the supply of such products from the countries engaged in conflict. Just what this implies may be inferred from the fact that Russia usually exports 35,000,000 bushels of grain to England and European countries; and that Turkey and her dependencies exported last year to Great Britian alone 6,800,000 bushels. So that war would cut off 42,000,000 bushels of grain usually distributed throughout Europe; which deficiency the United States would be mainly expected to supply. Besides this, a proportionate extra demand would fall upon us for pork and packed beef. And beyond this we should probably receive important orders for munitions of war. But, when this has been stated, little more remains to be said as to the war causing any increased demand for American products. In respect to most other articles, its effect will be to diminish the demand. The depression of trade in Europe will check the consumption of our cotton and put down its price; and petroleum and all minor exports will be similarly affected; so that what we may gain on one class of exports we shall lose on another.—Methodist Advocate.

The New York Conference has not only stopped the retreat on the missionary contributions, but it has more than regained all the ground lost in past years, by an advance of over $8,000. We congratulate Drs. Dashiell and Reid on this grand result in the field so constantly under their personal supervision. We expect it to become universal, and to be followed up by still greater advances. The world for Christ in this century!—N. Y. Advocate.

The difference between the two branches of Episcopal Methodism and their papers on this subject is this: The Church South disclaims politics nominally and practices them actually, while the Methodist Episcopal Church tries to reverse the terms. Neither Church refrains enough to make itself useless. We trust both handle sin in spite of its political cloak. Our papers do not head departments in their columns "Political," and it is not necessary that a man should be a Republican to be acceptable to our people.—N. Y. Advocate.

There are in the United States 250,000 teachers and 9,000,000 pupils.

Sunday School.

May 13, 1877.—JEHU THE KING.
SCRIPTURE.—2 K. 10: 20-31.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"But Jehu took no heed to walk in the law of the Lord God of Israel with all his heart."—31.

TOPIC.—"Serve God with a pefect heart."

HOME READINGS.

Monday, 2 K. 9: 1-10; Tuesday, 2 K. 9: 11-37; Wednesday, 2 K. 10: 1-19; Thursday, 2 K. 10: 20-36; Friday, Duet. 6: 1 25; Saturday, Josh. 1: 1-18; Sunday, Deut. 26: 1-19.

(Condensed from Nat. S. S. Teacher.)

The Ruse.—Jehu deceitfully announced to all the people that in the worship of Baal he was going to outdo even Ahab. This occasioned no public surprise, for his overthrow of the Ahab dynasty was regarded as a political and selfish rather than a moral and religious revolution. Under cover of this public proclamation he gathered together, first, the prophets, priests, and all the ecclesiastical servitors of that deity, and caused them to proclaim a solemn sacrificial assembly in his honor. This indeed looked zealous. The new king appeared as if he were really about to redeem his promise and be noted among the kings of Israel as a devotee of Baal. To inaugurate his reign by such an assembly was the adroitest and most acceptable sort of flattery to its worshipers, who had been having rather a hard time of it since Elijah made such a sudden and destructive attack on the ranks of their prophets. It promised them a restoration of their former prestige and prosperity. Once more the worship of Jehovah was to be put under ban, and that of Baal made compulsory. Lured by these illusions of resplendent supremacy, there was scarcely a follower of that god but what responded. The house of Baal, a structure which must have been large, inasmuch as it had a retinue of four hundred and fifty prophets (1 K. 18: 19), was full "from one end to another."

Jehu had his victims trapped. His next move is to separate from them any of the worshipers of Jehovah, who, from curiosity or from other motives had mingled with the great crowd that had rushed into and filled the temple. First from the vestry of the edifice he had the garments for the priests and temple servitors brought forth, and had them put on, in order that they might be so prominently distinguished by their clothing as to leave no chance for their escape. Then he and Jehonadah went in, and the king gave order to search and see whether a single servant of Jehovah was in the building. No suspicion would be excited by that, but the precaution rather would commend him to all the adherents of Baal; for worshipers of the true God in such a place and on such an occasion would be looked upon as interlopers and spies, beholding sacred mysteries to the sight of which they were not entitled. His care to exclude them was proof to the deluded victims that Jehu was indeed a Baalite of Baalites. Now if there were present any worshipers of the God of Israel, that were led by Jehu's strong endorsement of Baal into denying their own faith in the hope of sharing the prosperity which seemed about to descend upon the devotees of that god, or of escaping the danger which appeared to threaten an adherence to the true religion—how deserved was the fate they met.

A Retribution.—(24-28).—The details of the massacre are too sickening to dwell upon. Eighty men were stationed without whose own lives were to be forfeited should they let any one escape. Then, when the offerings were ready to be offered (not "made an end of") the signal for the massacre was given, and the king's body guard (literally "the riders and runners") went in and butchered the defenceless multitude that had been thus entrapped.

That the people so exterminated were amenable to death is perfectly evident. Ex. 32: 27; Deut. 13: 6-11 very plainly expresses the obligation that was upon all Israel to exterminate those who worshiped other gods. But nothing in those passages justifies such a proceeding as that adopted by Jehu. In this case it was a slaughter and not an execution. It had no sanction by any prophet or divine oracle. It was a conception of Jehu's alone, carried out, not from zeal to God, but from motives of self protection.

A Reaction (29-31).—Jehu had gone just as far as his own interests would take him, and no farther. He had put down Baal worship, but he still adhered to the abominations of Jeroboam. The calf worship was the root from which Baal-worship was propagated. That he did not care to touch. The same policy that led to its establishment led him to retain it. If he had done away with that, the temple at Jerusalem would have been the only place where God could have been worshiped according to the law he had laid down. Worship there would have endangered, as he no doubt thought, the permanence of his kingdom. Jehu was a fair sample of those who want to make their religion help them along in their worldly affairs. He was rewarded, however, in so far as actually he had done the will of God. His children were allowed to sit on the throne during four generations. Instead of the perpetual covenant he might have had, he obtained only a temporary reward; and during his own reign, even, he began to experience the displeasure of the Lord in that God began to shear off portions of Israel for the Syrians. No other acts of his were esteemed worthy of mention. He began promisingly, but ended ingloriously. He flashed out like a meteor in the beginning of his career, but, like it, went out in darkness.

LOST FRIENDS.

NOTE.—We receive many letters asking for information about lost friends. All such letters will be published in this column. We make no charge for publishing these letters FROM SUBSCRIBERS TO THE SOUTHWESTERN. All others will please enclose fifty cents to pay for publishing the notices. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any cases where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.

I ask information concerning my father, mother and brother, who formerly belonged to Mr. Marion Andrews of New Orleans. Their names are Adam, Fanny and Henry. Address Harriett Preston, care W. W. Cochrane, Hempstead, Texas.

I want to find my long lost children. They belonged to Pinkeney Frierson, in Alabama. I had two sons named John Calvin and Joshua, and a daughter, named Winnie. Their mother's name was Annie. I was then called Caesar Dent. Address

Rev. C. King, Oakland, Texas

I ask for information concerning my relatives. I was sold from them two or three years before the war, leaving them at San Angstine, Texas. My father then belonged to Mr. Gambler. His name was Isham, my mother's name was Zamy. The other children were named Harriet, Mary, Stewart, Elizabeth, Willis, Humphry. My father was a Missionary Baptist preacher. Address, Ann Starling, Dallas, Texas.

I wish to find my sisters, Lucy and Hannah. When I was parted from them they belonged to Roll Harris, in North Carolina. My name is Henry, I was the youngest of the family. I had a brother named Jacob. Our mother was named Elizabeth Steele; our father was named Hubert Davis. He ran away from slavery in 1852 to some land of freedom. Hannah, the elder of my sisters, if living, I think is now about 26. I will pay twenty dollars for any information that will enable me to find them. Address, H. L. Davis, county Treasurer, of Waller county, Hempstead, Texas.

Special Notice.

DALLAS, TEX., Apr. 11, 77.

The Waco District Conference will be held at Calvert June 14-17. Rev. A. M. Gregory and Rev. E. E. Cooper will preach the introductory sermons. I hope all the preachers and brethren will be present. The pastor, Rev. A. Campbell will provide for all the members.

S. GATES, P. E.

Notice.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE—BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.

The Board of Church Extension of the Louisiana Conference will meet at 89 Natchez street (office of SOUTHWESTERN), at 11 o'clock a.m., May 7th. All churches in the Conference desiring aid will have their applications in the hands of the Secretary by that time.

J. WILLIAMS, Bres't.

New Orleans, April 23, 77. [2t

Obituary.

Died, at Seguin, Texas, March 14, 1877, Rev. J. G. WEBSTER, of of the West Texas Conference.

Bro. Webster was born in Virginia, where he lived until he was nearly grown. About twenty-five years ago he was brought to Texas, and from that time till his death lived near San Antonio, with the exception of the last year of his life.

When the Methodist Episcopal Church took possession of this great South-west in the name of the Lord, after the war closed, he was among the first to respond. His mother [illegible] he first came to us, but not ordained. He was one of the first itinerants of the Texas Conference, in a time that tried men's souls. More than once has he had a revolver pointed at his heart, and his life threatened if he did not quit preaching for the "Northern Church." But he "dared to have a purpose true," and "dared to make it known." In San Antonio and Columbus, and some other prominent appointments in the Southern part of the State his name is fragrant with precious memories, and those strong churches owe their prosperity very largely to his energy and devotion.

At the Conference of December 29, 1875, he was appointed to Dallas. The St. Paul's M. E. Church at Dallas could hardly be said to have an existence when he first took his place as its pastor. The membership was less than twenty, and most of them seemed disheartened. With his cheerful, earnest piety, he seemed to stimulate the membership with a new zeal. His great love for children gave the Sunday-school a new impulse. Bro. Webster had no enemies. If any were disposed to be such he killed their enmity with kindness.

At the last session of the Conference he was re-appointed to Dallas, but he never came. He went to visit his motherless children who lived with their grandparents at Seguin, and, while there, was taken sick. He lingered till the 14th of March and passed away. I received the last letter that he wrote to any of his friends in Dallas, and probably the last he ever wrote. In this he expressed strong faith in God and strong attachment to his cause, especially to the Sunday-school work, almost his last words to me were "give my love to all the children, and don't let that Sunday-school go down."

G. W. RICHARDSON,
Dallas, Texas.

The best thing for cleansing tinware is common soda. Dampen a cloth and dip it in soda, and rub the ware briskly, after which wipe dry. Any blackened or dirty ware can be made to look as well as new.

"The Age of Reason."

The boy that went to mill on horseback, carrying the grist in one one of the bag and a stone in the other, when reproved by the miller, and told to divide the grist, replied that his father and grandfather had carried it that way, and he, being no better than they, should continue to do as they did. Similar or equally absurd, reasons are accounted as sufficient by some to warrant them in indiscriminately condemning Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines, even though there is overwhelming proof that they possess the merit claimed for them. For many years the Golden Medical Discovery has been recognized as the leading liver and blood medicine in the market. Each year has brought an increase in its sale, and it is now used throughout the civilized world. Thousands of unsolicited testimonials are on file in the Doctor's office, attesting its efficacy in overcoming aggravated coughs, colds, throat and lung affections, also scrofula, tumors, ulcers, and skin diseases. Are you suffering with some malady? If so, and you wish to employ medicines that are scientifically prepared; that are guaranteed to contain by the chemical process employed in their manufacture; that are positive in their action, and specific to various forms of disease for the cure of which they are recommended, use Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines. Full particulars in Pierce's Memorandum Book, kept for free distribution by all druggists.

Lungs and Throat.

Inhalation of common air in Incipient Consumption will cure. Dr. J. M. Howe, of Passaic, N. J., sends his Tube, with full directions, post free for $3 50. Send for circulars. may2tf.

Quarterly Meetings.

Okolona District.

(Second round.)

Okolona May 5-6; Corinth and Corinth Circuit, May 12-13; Tupelo, May 14-15; Spring valley and Shady Grove, May 19-20; Big Black, May 26-27; Calhoun, June 2-3; Houston, June 6-7; Pontotoc, 9-10; Union Grove, June 16-17; West Point, June 23-25; Columbus and Columbus Circuit, June 30 and July 1; Tibbe, July 7-8; Tampico, July 14-15; Athens, July 21-22.

The Okolona District Conference will meet at Pontotoc June 10. I hope all the member of the Conference will be present. All the ministers of the Okolona District who are in charge of a work will please send on their post-office address at once.

D. MCLACHLAN, P. E.

Gulf District.

(Second round.)

Pascagoula, May 17-18; Ocean Springs and Biloxi May 19-20; Handsboro, May 21-22; Bay St. Louis, May 23-24; Pass Christian, May 26-27; Crystal Springs, May 31 and June 1; Simpson Circuit, June 6-6; Hazlehurst, June 7-8; New Hope Circuit, June 9-10; Union Church Circuit, June 11-12; Brookhaven, June 13-14; Hamburg Circuit, June 21-22; Meadville Circuit June 23-24; Liberty, June 26-27; Summit and Magnolia, June 28-29; China Grove, June 30 and July 1; Coldmbia, July 2-3; Augusta, July 4-5.

L. BRADFORD, P. E.

Houston, Texas, District.

First Church, Houston, April 1; East Church and Wesley Chapel, Galveston, April 7 and 8; Spring Creek, April 14 and 15; Oyster Creek, April 21 and 22; Richmond and Frost Chapel, April 28 and 29; Houston, Second Church and Edwards Chapel, May 5 and 6; Harrisburg and West Point, May 12 and 13; Columbia and Brazoria, May 19 and 20; Stafford's, May 26 and 27; Houston Circuit, June 2 and 3; Cypress, June 9 and 10.

W. L. MOLLOY, P. E.

Shreveport District.

(Second Round.)

Cross Lake Circuit April 28-29; Scotts Circuit May 5-6; China Grove Circuit May 12 and 13; Shreveport, St. James and St. Paul, May 19-20; Fairfield Circuit, May 26-27; Mansfield and Red Spring at Mansfield June 2-3; Coushatta, June 9-10; Natchitoches and Campe, at Natchitoches June 15-17; Allenzville June 30 and July 1; Alexandria and Catoken, at Alexandria July 7-8.

S. DARAGH, P. E.

Greenwood (Miss.) District.

Yazoo City, March 17 and 18; Benton, March 24 and 25; Pickens, March 31 and April 1; Goodman, April 7 and 8; Durant, April 14 and 15; Greenwood, April 21 and 22; Rebuck, 28 and 29; New Midway, May 5 and 6; Panola, May 12 and 13; Hernando, May 16 and 16; Spring Hill, May 19 and 20; Coney Creek, May 26 and 27; Walnut Ridge, June 3 and 3; Shiloh, June 9 and 10; Austin, June 16 and 17; Bolivar, June 23 and 24.

J. W. DUNN, P. E.

San Antonio (Tex.) District.

Mission Valley, April 21 and 22; Cuero April 28 and 29; Indianola and Lavacca, May 5 and 6; Columbus and Alleyton, May 12 and 13; Peach Creek and Columbus Circuit, May 19 and 20; San Antonio, May 26 and 27; Boerne, June 2 and 3; Boudo, June 9 and 10; Floresville June 16 and 17; Sutherland Springs, June 23 and 24; Nockernut, July 1; Cibola, July 4 and 5; Riddleville, July 4 and 6; Lavernia, 7 and 8; Goliad Circuit, July 11 and 12; Helmont, July 14 and 15; Refugio, July 18 and 19; Wrightsboro, July 21 and 22; Goliad, July 28 and 29.

D. GREGORY, P. E.

Holly Springs, Miss., District.

Mt. Pleasant, April 7-8; Kosciusko, April 14-15; French Camp, April 16-17; Greensboro, April 18-19; Winona and Valden, April 21-22; Duck Hill, April 26-27; Grenada, April 28-29; Grenada Circuit, April 30 and May 1; Oxford, May 5-6; Elijah, May 8-9; Abbeville, May 12-13; New Albany, May 19-20; Hickory Flat, May 26-27; Ripley, May 26-27; Holly Springs, June 2-3, Holly Springs Circuit, June 6-7; Chulahoma, June 9-10; Byhalia, June 11-12.

As the greater part of the work lies at a considerable distance from the Railroad, and as it is important to visit every part of it, I shall go by private conveyance.

J. G. JOHNSON, P. E.

Never too Late to Mend.

Twenty-one years ago I was dying with consumption. There was no escaping that terrible death—at least so all the doctors told me—when a friend advised me to send to 1032 Race Street, Philadelphia, and get East India Hemp, which finely and fully cured me.

I now write to ask if you are still in business; or if I can obtain that same remedy. I am falling into poor health again, and for the first time since then feel the need of such a medicine. O. S. BISLEY,
De Kalb Street, Lawrence, N. Y.
January 8, 1877.

N. B.—This Remedy speaks for itself. A single bottle will satisfy the most skeptical. We know that it positively cures consumption, and will break up a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. $2 50 per Bottle, or Three Bottles for $6 50. Pills and Ointment, $1 25 each. Address, CRADDOCK & Co.,
1032 Race Street, Philadelphia.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from active practice, having had placed his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of consumption, bronchitis, catarrh, asthma, and all throat and lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for nervous debility and all nervous complaints, after having thoroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, feels it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive, and a conscientious desire to relieve human suffering, he will send, free of charge, to all who desire it, this receipe, with full directions for preparing and successfully using. Sent by return mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, Dr. W. C. Stevens, 126 Powers' Block, Rochester N. Y.

BISMARCK

THE Authentic Biography of the great German statesman, with curious researches into his ancestry; lively incidents of his youth and student life; and a full account of his social surroundings and the growth of his official and public career. Translation from the German, with an Introduction by BAYARD TAYLOR, and over 100 illustrations—house scenes, battles, portraits, etc. Vivid, Picturesque and absorbing, it is replete with anecdote, with romantic incident and great historical events. SPECIAL CANVASSERS wanted to supply the urgent demand for this live book. J. B. FORD & Co., Publishers, 27 Park Place, N. Y. [apr26-3t

Medical Students

Thoroughly qualified for successful practice by THE HOSPITAL
COLLEGE OF MEDICINE,
LOUISVILLE, KY.
[The clinical school of the West.]

No student leaves the College who cannot show that he can intelligently examine and prescribe for the cases presented. For catalogue and information concerning special advantages, address,

W. H. BOLLING, M. D. DEAN,
apr26-6m] Louisville, Ky.

"The principle of combining English and American writers in a common literary enterprise, merits all encouragement."—J. Anthony Froude.

THE
INTERNATIONAL REVIEW,
A NEW YORK AND LONDON REVIEW.
EMINENT CONTRIBUTORS ON BOTH SIDES OF THE ATLANTIC. (No articles at second hand. All articles original.)

CONTENTS.—MAY-JUNE—NOW READY.

The New Administration.
The Life Insurance Question. Carlton E. Lewis.
Disestablishment of the Church of England. Dr. James H. Rigg, London.
The Philadelphia Exhibition.—Part I. Manufactures and Administration. Francis A. Chief of the Bureau of Awards.
Tennyson.—A Criticism. Bayard Taylor.
Our Foreign Service. Hon. John Jay.
American and European Literature. Phillip Gilbert Hamerton.
Contemporary Events.

Price, Single Number, 40. For six months $2. Annual subscription (6 numbers) $3.
New York: A. S. BARNES & CO.
apr27-1t] Publishers.

"HEAVENWARD."
a New Collection of
Sunday-School Songs

THE thousands of Sunday-school Teachers who have used and admired Mr. James E. Murray's popular books, and P. P. Bliss's beautiful sacred songs, will be glad to learn that a new collection of Sunday-school music, will be ready early in April, entitled "Heavenward," which has been in preparation many months, and which will contain, besides contributions from most of the best writers of Sunday-school songs in America, the best and most popular sacred songs of the late Mr. Bliss.

The book has been compiled and edited by Jas. E. Murray, who was an intimate friend and musical companion of Mr. Bliss for many years, and will be found a worthy tribute to the worth of one whom the editor says: "All who have sung and been helped by his music shall seek in vain for his like among the living."

It is confidently expected that the combination of talent secured in the compilation of "Heavenward" will produce a work never before issued for Sunday-school purposes, and destined to rival in popularity, except to the work of the kind ever before published.

Price, in boards, 35 cents, by mail, $30 per hundred by express. Sample copy, in paper covers, mailed for 25 cents; Boards, paper cover, 30 cents and 2 cent free. Orders now received and will be filled in turn.

To be sold by Book and Music Dealers generally.
S. BRAINARD'S SONS, Publishers, apr26-7t-1y] Cleveland, Ohio.

SOUTHWESTERN AGENCY
FOR
School and College Text Books.

Office No. 89 CAMP STREET (up stairs).

Below we submit the MODEL SERIES of books we succeeded by the leading educators of this country) for use in PRIMARY, INTERMEDIATE and GRAMMAR schools. To insure their adoption by the progressive teachers we have only to ask a careful comparison with books of a like grade, a critical examination and a thorough practical test in the class-room:

	Price.
Harper's School Geography	$1 50
" United States First Reader	20
" " " Second "	25
" " " Third "	40
" " " Fourth "	75
" " " Fifth "	1 00
" " " Sixth "	1 50
Wilson's Primary Speller	20
" Larger "	25
Lamson's Penmanship, per dozen	1 50
French's First Lessons in Numbers	40
" Elementary Arithmetic	60
" Mental Arithmetic	60
" Common School Arithmetic	1 00
Swinton's Language Primer	40
" Language Lessons	75
" School Composition	80
" Progressive Grammar	75

Catalogues, circulars, and testimonials sent on applications. Correspondence solicited and will receive prompt attention, when addressed to

W. P. ROGERS & W. L. JANVIER, Agents for the introduction of Harper & Brothers' School Series, Metal Works, New Orleans, La., Lock Box 384.

Family Circle.

What Mothers are Doing To-Night.

Placing the little hats all in a row,
Ready for Church on to-morrow, you know;
Washing wee faces and little black fists,
Getting them ready and fit to be kissed;
Putting them into clean garments and white,
That is what mothers are doing to-night.

Spying out holes in the little worn hose,
Laying by shoes that were worn through the toes,
[illegible] garments so faded and thin,
[illegible] where to begin?
[illegible] to make it look right,
[illegible] are doing to-night.

[illegible] all round her chair
[illegible] their evening prayer,
[illegible] Seals of old,
[illegible] gather the lambs to His fold;
[illegible] listen with weary delight—
[illegible] mothers are doing to-night.

[illegible] softly to take a last peep,
[illegible] all are asleep;
[illegible] to know if the children are warm,
[illegible] each little form;
[illegible] rosy and bright—
[illegible]

[illegible] beside the white bed
[illegible] she bows down her head
[illegible] a mother can pray,
[illegible] keep them from going [illegible] them, O Lord, by thy
[illegible]
[illegible] what mothers are doing to-night.

The Beginning.

[illegible] a cent and you may
[illegible] the rings, and if it
[illegible] I'll give you
[illegible]
[illegible] but enough, so the [illegible] a cent, and took a
[illegible] back to a stake,
[illegible] caught on one of [illegible] to pitch
[illegible] the answer, and [illegible] were put into [illegible] off well
[illegible] he had done,
[illegible] having an idea
[illegible] A gentle-
[illegible] watched
[illegible] he had time
[illegible] rejoin his com-
[illegible] on his
[illegible]
[illegible] your first lesson
[illegible]
[illegible] your penny and won

[illegible]

House and Farm.

A Cheap and Excellent Disinfectant.

Dissolve half a drachm of nitrate of lead in a pint of boiling water; then dissolve two drachms of common salt in a bucket of water; when both are dissolved, pour the two mixtures together, and when the sediment has settled you have a pail full of clear fluid, which is a saturated solution of the chloride of lead. A cloth saturated with the liquid, and hung up in a room, will at once sweeten a fetid atmosphere. Poured down a sink, water-closet, or drain, or on any decaying mass, it will produce the same result. The nitrate of lead is very cheap, and a pound of it will make several barrels of the disinfectant. The salt which furnishes the chlorine would not cost more than the water.

Cold Soap.

Have a clean, tight, iron-hooped barrel. Take three-quarters of a pound of clear grease to one gallon of lye. Pour the grease into the barrel, then the lye, stirring well. Set the barrel in the sun. Stir several times through the day. Cover at night. The lye should be strong enough to bear a common sized egg to the surface—not out, or above it.

A Good Soup.

A very good family soup is made from one and a half pounds of lean beef, two pounds of potatoes, sliced thin, one large carrot, one large onion, a few shalots, one turnip, one stick of celery, four quarts of water. Let it simmer four hours, flavor to suit the taste with salt, pepper, etc.

Grease Spots.

The best material for cleansing coat-collars and grease spots of all kinds is pure benzine. The article is sold at the principal drug stores in the cities.

Gum camphor placed in draws, or distributed throughout the places moths frequent, will prove effectual [illegible].

PRICE CURRENT.

New Orleans, La., April [illegible], 1877.

[illegible]

BACON—	Shoulders ℔	[illegible]
	[illegible]	[illegible]
	Clear sides ℔	[illegible]
	[illegible]	[illegible]
BRAN—	Per 100 lbs	[illegible]
BEANS—	White Northern ℔	[illegible]
	White Western ℔	[illegible]
	Red Kidney ℔	[illegible]
BUTTER—	[illegible]	[illegible]
	Choice Western ℔	[illegible]
	Medium ℔	13 @ 15
	Inferior ℔	10 @ 12
COTTON—	Good Ordinary ℔	[illegible]
	Low Middling ℔	[illegible]
	Middling ℔	[illegible]
	Good Middling ℔	[illegible]
CORN—	[illegible]	[illegible]
	In Bulk per bushel	[illegible]
CORN MEAL—	Per barrel	[illegible]
COFFEE—(Gold)—	Prime ℔	[illegible]
	Good ℔	[illegible]
	Fair ℔	[illegible]
CHEESE—	[illegible]	[illegible]
DRIED FRUITS—	Apples ℔	3 @ 6
	Peaches ℔	[illegible]
ESCULENTS—	Apples ℔ bbl	[illegible]
	Potatoes ℔ bbl	[illegible]
	Onions ℔ bbl	[illegible]
FISH—	Western per doz	[illegible]
FLOUR—	[illegible]	[illegible]
HAY—	Prime ℔ ton	[illegible]
	Choice	[illegible]
HIDES—	[illegible]	[illegible]
LARD—	[illegible]	[illegible]
MOLASSES—	[illegible]	[illegible]
OATS—	[illegible]	[illegible]
POULTRY—	Chickens ℔ doz	[illegible]
	Ducks ℔ doz	[illegible]
	Geese ℔ doz	[illegible]
	Turkeys ℔ doz	[illegible]
RICE—	[illegible]	[illegible]
SUGAR—	[illegible]	[illegible]

[illegible]

SOUTHWESTERN Christian Advocate, NEW ORLEANS, LA.

PUBLISHERS' ANNOUNCEMENT.
1877.

The SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE published at New Orleans is an official Journal of the Methodist Episcopal Church. It is a four paged paper containing twenty-eight columns of matter. It is printed on excellent paper with large, clear type.

The SOUTHWESTERN is a Southern paper, devoted to the interests of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the South.

The publishers appeal to the whole Church to help sustain this paper.

I. Our ministers and people in the North want information as to our Southern work. The South is the great home missionary field of the Church. There, is expended the largest proportion of the funds spent in America from the treasuries of the great benevolent societies of the Church. Such information will explain the reasons and results of these large outlays.

II. As our Southern work is largely a missionary work, scattered over a vast domain, comprising nearly a fourth in numbers of the Methodist Episcopal Church, surrounded by many hostile influences, two things are evident. 1. The necessity for this paper is absolute. It is simply impossible to marshal the newly organized, and in many respects untrained hosts of our Church in the South, without the centralizing and directing power of the press. 2 The difficulty of sustaining a paper in such a field is very great. Our people are poor. The heroic age of Methodism is being repeated among our Southern ministry. Outside help must be given liberally or the paper cannot be a success financially.

Our Terms,

$2 00 cash in advance pays for the SOUTHWESTERN one year, postage included.

All travelling ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church are authorized agents, and to them the paper will be sent for $1 00 a year cash in advance.

Club Rates. To any person sending us four subscribers and $8 00 we will send the paper free for one year.

Send for a specimen copy. Address,

NELSON & PHILLIPS,
Lock Box B, New Orleans.

Texas Lands.

Best Investment in the Nation!

640 acres rich prairie loam, producing cotton, grains, fruit and vegetables, and adapted to stock, lying in the high and healthful latitude of Northwestern Texas, for the nominal sum of $266.

Title Patent, direct and perfect. Taxes low. Worth several times the cost. Now is your time to plant a small sum fruitfully. No fraud. All work personally supervised. Handled in the interest of education in Texas. Full particulars furnished on application. (with stamps).

References: Rev. Wm. Brush, D.D., P. E. Austin District, Austin, Texas; First National Bank, Dallas, Texas; State Savings Bank, Dallas, Texas, or editor of this paper. Address

REV. L. H. CARHART,
West Texas Conference.
Box 877, Dallas, Texas. [fal9-tf

A. R. NELSON,

Commercial Stationer, Printer, Blank BOOK MANUFACTURER and LITHOGRAPHER.

THE best assortment of Blank Books in the city.

The Finest Specimens of Lithographic work to be found in New Orleans.

No. 57 CAMP STREET,

Sign of the Mammoth Letter Press.

Call and Prove My Statements. [oct12-76 1y

THE FIREMENS'

Insurance Company, OF NEW ORLEANS.

Fire, River and Marine Insurance.

I. N. MARKS, President, T. PRUDHOMME, Vice President, R. H. [illegible], Secretary.
JAS. BOYCE, W. E. [illegible], Inspectors.

Office corner Camp and Gravier sts.

Represents the Fire Association of Philadelphia. [mar1-1m]

A. P. HARRINGTON,

No. 118 Canal Street,

New Orleans, . . . La.

Dealer in

LAW, MEDICAL, SCHOOL, RELIGIOUS, AGRICULTURAL AND MISCELLANEOUS

BOOKS

Stationery, Gold Pens and Pencils.

Pocket Books, Card Cases, Pocket Knives, Scrap Books, [illegible], Photograph Albums, Stereoscopes, Maps, Globes, Writing Desks, Etc.

PRINTING, RULING and BINDING.

Subscriptions taken for Newspapers and Magazines, Payable in advance.

Country Orders Solicited.

MENEELY'S BELLS,

THE GENUINE "TROY CHURCH BELLS," known to the public since 1826, which have acquired a reputation unequaled by any and a sale exceeding that of all others, including more than seventy chimes and peals. One thousand testimonials received during the last six years. Every bell made of best tin and copper, and formally warranted. New patent rotary fixtures. Catalogues free. No agencies.

MENEELY & COMPANY,
P. O. Address either Troy or West Troy N.Y.

5,000 BOOKS GIVEN AWAY for the Asking.

WHILE Dr. H. James was attached to the British Medical Staff in the East Indies, his high position enabled him to call [illegible] best physicians and chemists of the day, and while experimenting [illegible] he accidentally [illegible] that CONSUMPTION can be positively and permanently cured. [illegible] he devoted his time to the [illegible] of Lung Diseases, and upon his [illegible] books and papers [illegible] showing that [illegible] information [illegible]

CRADDOCK & CO.,
[illegible] st., Phila., Pa., giving name of this paper. [m158m

DENTISTRY.

DR. M. M. OLDHAM,

HAVING twenty years experience in the practice of Dentistry, feels confident he can give perfect satisfaction to all who may favor him with a call at his office, 211 Canal Street, corner of Rampart, New Orleans.

N. B.—A full set of Teeth (upper or under) for $12. Specimens can be seen at office.

B. J. WEST,

115 & 117 Magazine Street

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Wholesale Dealer and Manufacturer's Agent.

PLANTATION HARDWARE.

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS.

STEAM ENGINES, COTTON GINS
SAW MILLS, GRIST MILLS,
PUMPS, &c., &c.

AT LOW PRICES.

Send for Circulars and Price Lists.

E. HEATH, W. F. PIPPEY, M. LARA.

HEATH, PIPPEY & LARA,

99 ......CAMP STREET...... 99

NEW ORLEANS.

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

UPHOLSTERERS' MATERIALS,

Wall Paper,

Window Shades, Cornices, and

CURTAIN GOODS.

PICTURES, FRAMES,
MOULDINGS, MIRRORS,
LOCKS, WIRE-CLOTH,
WINDOW & DOOR SCREENS

FRAMING DONE TO ORDER.
14-ly

THE

Houston and Texas Central Railroad,

Operating over 500 miles of superior road, runs North and South through the

FINEST AGRICULTURAL and GRAZING DISTRICTS in TEXAS

And offers the most desirable sites for location to parties immigrating to that great State. The

NORTHWESTERN BRANCH

Of this road, which is now being pushed forward beyond Waco, will pierce the Great Mineral region of

NORTHWESTERN TEXAS.

For further information, address

J. R. COFFIN, S. P. A., Chattanooga, Tenn.
C. E. WHITNEY & CO., New Orleans, La.
J. WALDO, G. P. A., or J. DURAND, Gen'l Superintendent, Houston, Texas. [mar22-ly

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $1 free.
mar25-1y] STINSON & Co., Portland, Me.

WANTED—SALESMEN—Salary $900 a year; Traveling and Hotel expenses paid, to sell our STAPLE MANUFACTORIES direct to dealers; NO PEDDLING; address or apply to S. A. GRANT & Co., 2, 4, 6, & 8 Home st., Cincinnati, Ohio. [mh7.4t mar25-1y] TRUE & Co., Augusta, Me.

$12 A day, at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free.

OFFICE AMERICAN COTTON TIE CO. LIMITED
47 Carondelet St. New Orleans, La.

To Dealers in Iron Cotton Ties, Planters, and Country Merchants Generally,

WE beg to inform you that we are prepared, through our regularly established agent, to supply the trade in any quantity with the following celebrated Ties:

BRANCH, CROOKE & CO'S. LOCK TIE.
THE ARROW AND SIDE SLOT.
BEARD & BRO'S. LOCK TIE.

We also beg to inform the public that the interests of Messrs. Beard & Bro., and Branch Crookes & Co., are now merged into and with the American Cotton Tie Company, Limited.

The following are the New Orleans Agents:

Stone & Tutt	Ogden & Bell
Chism & Boyd,	Archer & Borland,
Wm. Dillon,	D. L. Ranlett & Co.

For the American Cotton Tie Co., Limited.

R. W. RAYNE,
May28-76 1y] General Agents.

THE DEMOREST'S QUARTERLY JOURNAL OF FASHION. 5 cts.; yearly 10 cts.; post free. 17 E. 14 st., N. Y. [1t

Patents obtained for mechanical devices, medical, or other compounds, ornamental designs, trademarks, and labels.

Caveats, Assignments, Interferences, relating to Patent, Infringements, and all matters promptly attended to.

Inventions that have been rejected by the Patent Office may still, in most cases, be secured by us. Being opposite the Patent Office, we are able to make closer examinations, and secure Patents more promptly and with broader and better claims, than those who are remote from Washington.

Inventors send us a model or rough sketch and description of your device; we will make an examination, free of charge, and advise you as to its patentability. All correspondence strictly confidential. Prices as low as those of any reliable agency.

We refer to Officials in the Patent Office, and to inventors in every State of the Union.

Address, LOUIS BAGGER & Co.
Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

$66 a week in your own town. Terms and outfit free. H. Hallet & Co.
Dec 21 76 1y] Portland, Maine.

TEXT BOOKS

FOR THE

NEW COURSE OF STUDY.

As authorized to be pursued by candidates for the ministry in the Methodist Episcopal Church, by the Bishops, for the ensuing four years, to commence with Spring Conferences, 1877.

[Books are bound in CLOTH, where not specified.]

For Admission on Trial in the Traveling Connection.

Books to be Studied:

RAWLINSON'S Ancient History. A Manual of Ancient History from the earliest times to the fall of the Western Empire. By George Rawlinson, M.A. Large 12mo.... $2 50

STUDENT'S Old Testament History. From the Creation to the Return of the Jews from Captivity. With an Appendix, containing an introduction to the books of the Old Testament. Edited by Wm. Smith, LL.D. With maps and wood-cuts. Large 12mo.. 2 00

STUDENT'S New Testament History. With an Introduction, connecting the History of the Old and New Testaments. Edited by Wm. Smith, LL.D. With maps and wood-cuts. Large 12mo.... 2 00

HISTORY of the United States, from the Aboriginal Times to the present day. By John Clark Ridpath, A.M. 8vo.... 3 00
Half morocco. 8vo.... 3 50

AMERICAN Methodism: Abridged from the author's History of the Methodist Episcopal Church. By Abel Stevens, D.D., LL.D. Ten engravings. 8vo.... 2 50

RHETORIC: A Text-book, designed for use in schools and colleges, and for private study. By E. O. Haven, D.D., LL.D. 12mo.... 1 50

ELEMENTS of Logic. By D. K. True, D.D. 16mo.... 80

DISCIPLINE of the Methodist Episcopal Church, 1876:
24mo; cloth.... 40
24mo; morocco tuck.... 1 00

Books to be Read:

CHRISTIAN THEOLOGY; or, a concise, comprehensive, and systematic view of the evidences, doctrines, morals and institutions of theology. By Samuel Wakefield, D.D. 8vo; sheep.... 3 50

LIFE of Rev. John Wesley. By Rev. Richard Watson; 12mo.... 1 20

HAND-BOOK of Bible Geography, containing the name, pronunciation, and meaning of every place, nation, and tribe mentioned in both the Canonical and Apocryphal Scriptures. By Rev. George H. Whitney, A.M. Illustrated by nearly one hundred engravings, and forty maps and plans. Large 12mo.... 2 50

CHRISTIAN PURITY, Nature and Blessedness of. By R. S. Foster, D.D. Revised. 12mo.... 1 75

STUDENT'S Gibbon. The History of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire. By Edward Gibbon. Abridged. Incorporating the researches of recent commentators. By Wm. Smith, LL.D. 100 engravings on wood. 12mo.... 2 00

First Year's Course.

Books to be Studied:

WATSON'S Theological Institutes.
2 vols; 8vo; sheep.... 7 00
2 vols; calf.... 8 00
2 vols; half calf.... 8 00

CHRISTIAN PERFECTION, Plain Account of. By Rev. John Wesley; 24mo.... 45

HISTORY of the Church from the earliest ages to the Reformation. By Rev. George Waddington, M.A; 8vo.... 3 00

A TREATISE on Homiletics. By D. P. Kidder, D.D; 12mo.... 1 75

MENTAL Philosophy. By T. C. Upham; 16mo.... 75

Books to be Read:

WESLEY'S sermons; 3 vols; 8vo.... 6 00

HISTORY of Methodism. Vols. 1, 2 and 3. By Abel Stevens, LL.D; 1 mo; cloth, each 1 75
Half morocco.... 3 50
Illustrated, morocco; 8vo; each.... 3 50

THEOLOGY of the New Testament. By Rev. J. J. Van Oosterzee; 12mo.... 1 75

EARLY YEARS of Christianity. By E. De Pressense; 4 vols; 12mo; each.... 1 75

Second Year's Course.

Books to be Studied:

WATSON'S Theological Institutes (Part II.)
2 vols; 8vo; sheep.... 7 00
2 vols; calf.... 8 00
2 vols; half calf.... 8 00

HIBBARD on Baptism. Its subjects, mode, obligation, import, and relative order. By F. G. Hibbard, D.D; 12mo.... 1 75

THE ELEMENTS of Moral science. By Francis Wayland, D.D; 12mo.... 1 75

Books to be Read:

THE FREEDOM of the Will. By D. D. Whedon, D.D; 12mo.... 1 75

DEFENSE of our Fathers. By Bishop Emory; 8vo.... 1 00

COMPENDIUM of Methodism. By James Porter, D.D. Revised edition; 12mo.... 1 75

THE BIBLE, its divine origin and inspiration, deduced from internal evidence and the testimonies of nature, history and science. By L. Gaussen, D.D. 12mo.... 1 75

THE HISTORICAL evidences of the truth of the Scripture Records. By George Rawlinson, M.A.; 12mo.... 1 00

HOMILETICS and Pastoral Theology. By William G. T. Shedd, D.D., Professor in Union Theological Seminary, N. Y.; 8vo.. 2 50

Third Year's Course.

Books to be Studied:

WATSON'S Theological Institutes (Part III. and IV.) Two volumes; 8vo; Sheep.... 7 00
2 volumes; calf.... 8 00
2 volumes; half calf.... 8 00

AN INTRODUCTION to the Gospel Records. By William Nast, D.D; 12mo.... 1 75

ANALOGY of Natural and Revealed Religion. By Bishop Butler. Edited by Joseph Cummings, D.D.; 12mo.... 1 50

THE BIBLE Hand-book: An introduction to the study of Sacred Scriptures. By Joseph Angus, D.D.; 8vo....

ELEMENTS of Logic; comprising the substance of the article in the Encyclopedia Metropolitana. With additions, etc. By Richard Whately, D.D.; 18mo.... 75

Books to be Read:

A TEXT-BOOK of the History of Doctrines. By Dr. K. R. Hagenbach, Professor of Theology in the University of Basle; 2 vols; 8vo.... 5 00

HISTORY of Rationalism. By J. F. Hurst, D.D.; 8vo.... 3 50

HISTORY of the Reformation of the sixteenth century. By J. H. Merle D'Aubigne, D.D; 5 vols; 12mo.... 3 00
1 vol; 8vo; illustrated.... 5 00

THE AGREEMENT of Science and Revelation. By Rev. J. H. Wythe, M.D. 12mo.. 1 75

Fourth Year's Course.

Books to be Read;

LECTURES on the Evidences of Revelation. By Bishop Edward Thomson. 12mo.... 1 50

THEOLOGICAL Encyclopedia and Methodology. By John M'Clintock, D.D. Edited by Rev. John T. Short, B.D; 12mo.... 1 50

THE CHRISTIAN PASTORATE; its character, responsibilities and duties. By D. P. Kidder, D.D.; 12mo.... 1 75

CHRISTIAN RHETORIC: A System of. By G. W. Hervey, M.A; 8vo.... 3 50

THE LIFE AND EPISTLES of St. Paul. By Rev. W. J. Conybeare, M.A., and Rev. J. S. Howson, M.A. Unabridged edition. 2 volumes in one; 8vo....

Books of Reference:

THE VOCABULARY OF PHILOSOPHY, Mental, Moral and Metaphysical; with Quotations and References for the use of students. By William Fleming, D.D.; 12mo.... 2 50

SMITH'S Classical Dictionary. A new Classical Dictionary of Greek and Roman Biography, Mythology, and Geography. By Wm. Smith, LL.D. Revised by Chas. Anthon, LL.D. Royal 8vo; sheep, extra.... 6 00

M'CLINTOCK AND STRONG'S Cyclopedia of Biblical, Theological, and Ecclesiastical Literature. By John M'Clintock, D.D., and James Strong, S.T.D. With maps and numerous illustrations. Four volumes, comprising the letters A to K are now ready. Price per vol:
Cloth.... 5 00
Sheep.... 6 00
Half morocco.... 8 00

HAYDN'S Dictionary of Dates. Edited by Benjamin Vincent. Revised for the use of American readers. 8vo; cloth.... 5 00
Sheep.... 6 00

For Local Preachers, Candidates for Deacon's and Elder's Orders.

Books to be Studied:

WATSON'S Institutes. 2 volumes.... 7 00

WESLEY'S Plain Account of Christian Perfection.... 45

APPEAL to Matter of Fact and Common Sense. By Rev. John Fletcher; 18mo.... 55

Books to be Read;

METHODIST Discipline.... 40

WATSON'S Life of Wesley.... 1 25

EMORY'S Defense of the Fathers.... 1 00

PORTER'S Compendium of Methodism.... 1 75

BAPTISM, Christian. Its subjects and mode. By Bishop S. M. Merrill; 18mo.... 1 25

RUTER'S Church History. Revised and Enlarged. 8vo.... 2 50

THEOLOGICAL Compend. By Rev. Amos Binney. 12mo.... 60

STEVENS' History of Methodism. 8vo.... 3 50

Any of the above books will be sent on receipt of price. Address,

NELSON & PHILLIPS
Lock Box B. New Orleans.

PHILIP WERLEIN,

Nos. 78–90 Baronne Street,

NEW ORLEANS, - - - LA.

LARGEST Piano House in This Country,

—OFFERS—

Chickering's New Scale PIANOS,
HALE'S PIANOS, HARDMAN'S PIANOS.
ESTEY & CO. ORGANS, MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS,

As low as any house North. Monthly Payments. Discounts for cash.
Music and Musical Instruments of Every Description. [feb22-ly

Pianos AND Organs

ESTEY ORGANS,

This beautiful Instrument is too well known to need description.

OVER 75,000

are now singing their praises. Why buy any other Organ when you can get the

ESTEY,

As Cheap as the Cheapest!

Bradbury Pianos

known all over the world as strictly first-class, and used in preference to all others by Grand Central, St. Nicholas and Metropolitan Hotels, New York; Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church; Rev. Dan'l Curry, Chaplain McCabe, Philip Phillips, Wm. Morely, Punshon, and thousands of our leading men throughout the country.

CHICKERING Pianos.

The BEST PIANO made! Received more Gold medals, Higher Awards, and more solid recommendations than any other Piano made.

STORY & CAMP PIANOS.

THESE ELEGANT Instruments are unsurpassed, and are sold at exceedingly low prices. Every instrument Fully Warranted, and sold to responsible parties on easy time. Full description and illustrated catalogues sent to any address with any information desired.

STORY & CAMP,
914 Olive street, St. Louis.
jel-ly] 211 State street, Chicago.

NATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER

Edited by M. C. HAZARD, Is undoubtedly the best Teachers' Help published. Has the most thorough, helpful and inspiring lessons, the best corps of contributors, and the most popular editorial departments. Needs only to be examined in order to be taken. Terms, $1.50 per year. Clubs of five or more receive six Lesson Papers with each copy. Sample copy sent free on application to ADAMS, BLACKMER, & LYON PUB. CO., CHICAGO.

THE NEW ELASTIC TRUSS

[illegible]
EGGLESTON TRUSS CO., Marshall, Mich.

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY.

[illegible]
VANDUZEN & TIFT, 102 and 104 East Second St., Cincinnati.
Jan 30 76 tf

$12 a day at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. True & Co.,
Dec 21 76 1y] Augusta, Maine.

ASTHMA. D. LANGELL'S ASTHMA AND CATARRH REMEDY.

[illegible]
D. LANGELL, Apple Creek, Ohio. For sale by Druggists.
aug3-6m

Madame FOY'S Corset Skirt Supporter

Increases in popularity every year.

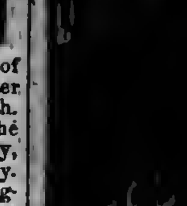
And for HEALTH, COMFORT and STYLE is acknowledged the BEST ARTICLE of the kind ever made. For sale by all leading jobbers and retailers. Beware of imitations and infringements.

MANUFACTURED SOLELY BY
FOY & HARMON,
ml-13t] New Haven, Conn.

GLASS STAINERS

CUTTERS AND EMBOSSERS.
CHURCH WINDOWS A SPECIALTY.
Estimates and Designs on application.
WM. COULTER & SON,
102 & 104 E. 2d St., CINCINNATI, O.
may4-76-1y

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine. [Dec 21 76 1y



BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY.

[illegible]
VANDUZEN & TIFT, 102 and 104 East Second St., Cincinnati.
[mar22-ly]

DURANG'S RHEUMATIC REMEDY.

Will most positively cure any case of rheumatism or rheumatic gout, no matter how long standing, on the face of the earth. Being an inward application it does the work quickly, thoroughly and permanently, leaving the system strong and healthy. Write to any prominent person in Washington city, and you will learn that the above statement is true in every particular.

Washington, July 18, 1874.
Messrs. Helpenstine & Bentley:

I suffered for more than thirty years from chronic rheumatism, at times in a helpless condition during which time I employed the best medical skill, but finding no relief, bought a bottle of Durang's Rheumatic Remedy, and when I had taken it all (sixteen doses) was a well man, and as I write this certificate am perfectly free from pain, all owing to taking the above medicine. I regard it as the only preparation ever gotten up that will effectually cure rheumatism.

JNO. P. BENTLY,
Chief of Public Debt Division, 1st Auditor's office, Treasury Dep't Washington, D. C.

National Hotel, Washington, Dec. 2, '74.
Messrs. Helpenstine & Bentley:

GENTS.—I very cheerfully state that I have used Durang's Rheumatic Remedy, prepared by you, with decided benefit, and although yet somewhat troubled with rheumatism, I am in much better condition than I was some months ago, which improvement I alone attribute to this remedy.

Yours, truly, ALEX. H. STEPHENS,
Member of Congress of Georgia.

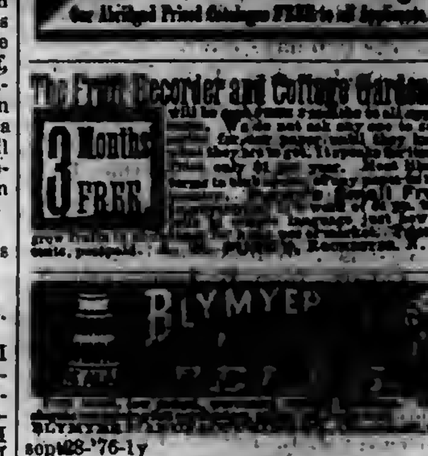
Price, $1 a bottle, or six bottles for $5. Ask your druggist for Durang's Rheumatic Remedy, manufactured by

HELPENSTINE & BENTLEY,
Druggists and Chemists, Washington, D. C.
Sold by dealers all over the United States.
[dec7-6m-eow

Virginia Roofing Slate.—The Best and strongest in the world, not excepting the well-known Welsh Slate.

The undersigned having accepted the agency for the sale of the celebrated ORE BANK and IMPERIAL QUARRIES, is now prepared to fill orders at prices much below those of Welsh and but little in excess of those of ordinary American Slates. Builders, contractors, and slaters generally are invited to submit them to the severest tests.

ALEXANDER HILL,
jan1-76 1y] 110 Carondelet st., N. O.



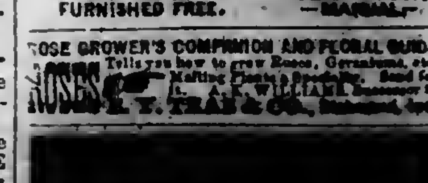
D. M. FERRY & CO., Detroit, Mich.

Our Abridged Priced Catalogue FREE to all Applicants.

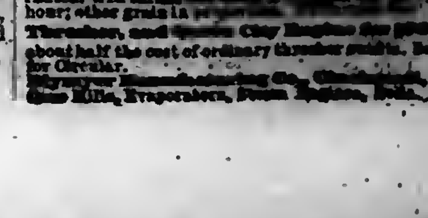
The Fruit Recorder and Cottage Gardener

3 Months FREE

[illegible]



BLYMYER [illegible]
sept28-'76-1y



E. N. FRESHMAN & BROS. ADVERTISING AGENTS
186 W. FOURTH ST. CINCINNATI, O.
ESTIMATES FURNISHED FREE. SEND FOR OUR MANUAL.

ROSE GROWER'S COMPANION AND FLORAL GUIDE. Tells you how to grow Roses, Geraniums, etc. [illegible]
ROSES [illegible] T. TRAB & CO. [illegible]

[illegible] hour; other grain in proportion.
Threshers, and [illegible] Engines for [illegible], about half the cost of ordinary thresher outfits. Send for Circular.
[illegible] Manufacturing Co., [illegible], O.
[illegible] Mills, Evaporators, Steam Engines, Boilers.

Southwestern Christian Advocate.

NEW SERIES—VOL. 1—NO. 19. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, MAY 10, 1877. WHOLE NUMBER 349!

SOUTHWESTERN

Christian Advocate.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT

26 Bagatelle St., New Orleans.

BY

NELSON & PHILLIPS,

FOR THE

Methodist Episcopal Church.

Terms: $2 a year, Cash in Advance.

All Travelling Preachers of the Methodist Episcopal Church are authorized Agents.

Subscriptions may begin at any time and the paper will be sent as long as paid for.

Remittances must be made by Registered Letter, Bank Draft, Money Order, or by Express.

Advertising Rates.

One inch, each insertion.....$ cents

" 3 months.....7 "

" 6 " .....5 "

" 12 " .....3 "

Business notices, not each.

CONFESSION.

I came down the garden path,
My neighbor's door behind me,
The scent of rose and violet
Could nothing do but find me;
While coming, all the flowers from me,
They knew where I was going,
And knew I knew a tempting snare
Per head and heart were throwing.

The rosebuds pleaded a creamy white
From out the shadowed bushes,
I plucked and stole a bud or two—
The morning hid my blushes.
My footsteps sounded loudly on
The path—the rosebuds where I hastened,
I pressed the rosebuds to my lips,
Aware how sin is chastened.

The stars were twinkling in the sky—
I fancied that they saw me—
Their mute reproof of guilt was all
I needed to awe me.
I felt the eyes of her who sat
Behind me,
And felt her kindly spirit sent
Then, even then, to find me.

MRS. R. W. B.

To Mrs. J. G. H.

New Church at Galveston.

The Methodist Episcopal congregation, near second church, will dedicate their new building on Sunday morning next. The Rev. [illegible] Presiding Elder, will preach the dedicatory sermon. Yesterday was very intelligent work vigorously prosecuted. The building, when completed, will be an ornament to the city, and a credit to the noble religious enterprise upon which it is based. The following is a statement from about ten years since. As it was then, so it is now, a mere plastered and unpainted mat. [illegible] $7,500, as follows: The [illegible] by Mrs. E. [illegible] cost of repairs [illegible] Board (without the [illegible] have [illegible] donations for [illegible] priving people [illegible] in the very centrally [illegible] from the city in capacity [illegible] and will [illegible] people. By [illegible] were yesterday [illegible] Presiding Elder [illegible] Dr. Bunting, [illegible] at a [illegible] religious [illegible] upon which [illegible] from [illegible] about ten [illegible] building [illegible] and, dif- [illegible] moved in ten [illegible] of one hundred [illegible] wisely [illegible] several years since. As it [illegible] nearly plastered and [illegible] carpets and mat- [illegible] worth is $7,500, [illegible]

SOUTHWESTERN
Christian Advocate.
39 Natchez St., New Orleans.

J. C. HARTZELL, D.D., EDITOR

THURSDAY, MAY 10, 1877.

Bishop Wiley has appointed Rev. J. Gould Presiding Elder of Baton Rouge District, for the remainder of this Conference year.

Rev. J. H. McCarty, Pastor of Ames Church, will deliver his course of Four Scientific Lectures before the Students, beginning Monday, June 14, 7½ p. m.

The Western, of May 2d, says: "Rev. Dr. Rust, after having been confined to his house by illness for over a week, was able to be at his office last week."

Rev. Dr. W. W. Patton, founder and editor of the Advance, has been elected President of Howard University, Washington city.

God and the sinner must meet some time, either at the cross for [illegible] pardon and life, or at the great white throne for judgment and doom.

President Hayes made Gen. Hampton governor of South Carolina, and yet in a long message to his legislature, Governor Hampton does not so much as refer to the President.

Gen. Sherman thinks the European war will be general, and that it will culminate in the greatest war of civilized times. He thinks the [illegible] Europe will be very [illegible] as one of the results.

We were pleased to greet our friend [illegible] Rodenhausen, who re[illegible] city to remain, after a [illegible] in McComb City, [illegible] an important position [illegible] the N. O. St. Louis and [illegible] Company.

[illegible] of Wm. Goanaway [illegible] known as "Parson [illegible] whose death we an[illegible] week, took place [illegible] at the First M. E. [illegible], Tenn. Rev. [illegible] the pastor officiated [illegible] T. W. Hames.

[illegible] who it was re[illegible] murdered at Marlboro, [illegible] is still alive [illegible] learn this authori[illegible] A. W. Cumming of [illegible] O. We are glad to [illegible] make the correction.

[illegible] April 27, was at [illegible] physician had [illegible] from work [illegible] into his [illegible] Africa could be [illegible] He [illegible] City for [illegible]

[illegible] of State, [illegible] York, last [illegible] a reception [illegible] Democratic [illegible] would recog- [illegible] Cabinet as [illegible] their post [illegible] Eldon advised [illegible]

[illegible] service on the [illegible] Sherman [illegible] the White [illegible] to the Presi- [illegible] leave [illegible] about [illegible] "You [illegible]

Development will not Save us.

The theory is this. The human race lives under laws of progress, and these laws whether we study them in their relations to the physical world, to nations, or individuals necessarially tend to higher types of development. All the evils and wrong that come on earth, producing misery and pain come from misunderstanding the laws of nature, and not following her prescribed laws of development. As the flower blooms upon the mature stock, so human happiness and redemption are to be complete, when nature's laws are fully known and natural development has done its work. If we ask how are nature's laws to be known, we are told that all needed instruction is acquired by experience. Every law is its own vindicator by its penalties. As the child after having once been burned will not again put its hand into the fire, so a man by suffering from the violation of any law will learn to obey all law.

Development is the central idea of this plan. Nature is not so much a creation as a development. Nations are outgrowths from barbarism. Language was at first among men what it is now among brutes. The individual whether considered physically, intellectually or morally is but a more or less perfect development.

The apostles of this plan bring to their aid every form of advanced civilization and government, every new step in literature by which the world is made wiser, every new discovery in science by which new theories are solved as to the earth's history or destiny, or by which a deeper insight is given into the mysteries of nature: every new discovery by which the burdens of the race are lightened, in short every thing that indicates progress in the world, and claim all the legitimate result of natural development, and as prophetic of the time when the race is to be completely and gloriously saved from Sin. In this view, christianity is considered a good thing for the time being. Christ was probably the best man that ever lived. But both Christ and christianity will serve their time and pass away. They together form a leaf in the book of development to be read and then to be a thing of the past.

Now let us test his plan by the logic of facts and experience.

And first, there is a broad distinction between development as a fact and development as a cause. Progressive development is a law that is universal. We see it in the physical universe from the insect, so small that millions may flutter in a single ray of light without casting a shadow, up to the grandest system of worlds on high. We see it in the rising progressive power of civilization, we see it in every department of science, whether of nature, language or thought; we see it in the individual, first he is a babe then he is a man; first he chatters, then talks; first he is a mere animal, then his thought rules empires. But development as a fact and as a cause are two things, as distinct and different as night and day. Back of every fact must stand a cause, and therefore it is absurd to say that development is the prime cause of the world's reformation.

Again as to nations, history gives no instance of permanent development from the savage to the civilized state under strictly natural causes. Take a few facts—(1) The savage state bears upon it every mark of being not the natural, but a degraded state, of man—(2) Natures are called "savage" because there is no longer any hope of development from within themselves, (3) All advanced nations appear to have had more or less supernatural light. Underlying all civilizations of the past can be traced distinct evidences of the power of recorded truth. The scriptures in many places indicate this. The true God was known in Egypt. Cyrus also acknowledged him. [illegible] Moses, father-in-law, the Midian priest was not ignorant of God. Neither was Cornelius. [illegible] civilization was not a natural [illegible] from the Pelasgic [illegible] so many evidences [illegible] handed down, [illegible] sentiments from [illegible] religions. [illegible] The Teutonic [illegible] the evi- [illegible] (4) [illegible] sunset. Assyria is gone. Babylon is no more. The Medes and Persians are lost And so of many others. The Aztect or Mexican race, are so degraded that they do not know their own movements.

> "Nations live and die like men
> The old powers never revive again
> They are lost in the nations to be,
> Lost as the rivers are lost in the Sea."

Still again, let it be stated, that God does not mend the disasters that came to the world physically, by mere development. We see this in the succession of species as revealed by geology. When one passed away another took its place by a new creation. The gradual grading of species from lower to higher orders shows development to be a law of nature, and even if we admit all that Mr. Darwin claims in his development theory, the birth of every new species would be a creation.

Notice again how the healing power in nature (vis medicatrix) operates, in curing the wounds of animal and vegetable life. The mode is not by natural development. Suppose the bark of the tree is torn, or the muscles of the body are torn. Now nothing short of some new bark and new muscle can heal the wounds. To develop a wound is no way to cure it. There must be a direct and specific creation of material, to replace that which is destroyed. What an impressive type is this of the plan by which God proposes to heal the diseased soul! By the power of the Holy Spirit the stony heart is broken, and the heart of flesh takes its place. Hence the meaning of the new birth.

But let us admit all that the Apostles of the natural development theory claim. Let us suppose that all the laws of nature were perfectly understood. And that man knew well every law of his own being. What then? Would this afford any refuge for the sinner? To begin with, the teachings of nature would not harmonize. The evening zephyr would whisper in softest accents of God's love: and the hurricane would speak of his anger.

Then, again, there would be no balm for the woes of life. When death would sweep away loved ones, or when poverty would come upon us, or sadness from disappointed hopes shroud the soul, how could nature give any solace or comforts? It may be very well for a man to be posted in physiology, so that he may know how it is the body die, and be able to explain the nature of every disease, but a lesson in physiology, or a lecture on some disease, would be poor comfort to a dying man.

And, then, what provision for the soul does this plan make. The soul is something more than matter or thought. It has an immortal being. It has moral faculties that demand something more than simple knowledge of nature, and how to shun the penalties of her laws.

Decoration Day.

The 30th inst. is "Decoration Day," and we trust that it will be properly observed. 18,000 Union soldiers lie buried at Chalmette, a few miles below this city. Gov. Hartranft, of Pennsylvania, Commander-in-Chief of the national organization of the Grand Army of the Republic, has issued the following general order, dated Philadelphia, April 26, 1877:

In accordance with the annual custom, Wednesday, May 30, 1877, will be observed as "memorial day," in commemoration of our dead comrades. It is fitting that we should turn aside from accustomed pursuits to do honor to those who have given the strongest testimony of patriotic devotion, and a general observance of the day through the active participation of the members of societies, the children of the various schools and the citizens generally is earnestly invited.

Every effort should be made to mark the last resting place of each soldier and sailor, and we should also remember with tenderness those who died away from home and kindred and now rest in distant or unknown graves. Each post will be the judge of the manner in which it may best perform this duty, but concert of action should be had wherever practicable. Wherever there are no posts of the Grand Army to lead in this good work the Commander-in-Chief, in behalf of their surviving comrades, asks the citizens to take steps to decorate the graves of the gallant dead and secure a proper observance of the day.

The Central of May 2, reports that the first week of Mrs. Van Cott's meetings in St. Louis have been successful. About 70 had made a profession of religion or of having been recovered from back sliding.

Gov. Nicholl's Thanksgiving Proclamation.

Gov. Nicholls has issued the following proclamation:

Whereas, The political troubles which have weighed upon the people of the State of Louisiana for the past years have under the merciful dispensation of the Providence of God been brought to a happy end; and, Whereas, It is meeet that, in the hour of their deliverance and union, the people should return thanks for danger past and seek strength to fulfill the promises held out by the dawning of an auspicious future: Therefore, I, Francis T. Nicholls, Governor of the State of Louisiana, do issue this my proclamation, fixing THURSDAY, the 10th day of May, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer, and do invite all the good people of this State on said day to abstain from their several avocations and to resort to their wonted places of public worship, there to offer up their hearts in thanksgiving to that Divine and merciful Providence, who has vouchsafed to guide them to a haven of peace and union, and to ask at His hands for the future the blessings of His Divine guidance so that all the people of the State, forgetting past dissensions and bitterness, may unite in the fulfillment of a common and happy destiny.

{L. S.} In testimony whereof, I have signed these presents and caused the same to be authenticated with the seal of the State of Louisiana, at the city of New Orleans, this twenty-eighth day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven, and of the one hundred and first year of the independence of the United States of America.

By the Governor:
FRANCIS T. NICHOLLS,
Governor of the State of Louisiana
WILL A. STRONG, Secretary of State.

To say the least such a proclamation is an anomoly in American politics, and is, in our judgment an unwise precedent. If it is intended to ask the people of Louisiana to offer thanks to God for the success of the political party of which Gov. Nicholls is the successful candidate, the proclamation is an insult to the intelligence and liberty of all who voted against him. In this nation, the right of every citizen to vote as his best judgment dictates, is sacred, and the successful candidate is bound to regard the convictions of them who voted against him, as sacred as those who voted for him.

But we will not insist on an interpretation of this proclamation, which Gov. Nicholls probably did not intend. His words during the past months have proclaimed a policy truly wise and good. He promises protection and education to all classes, and the discountenance of of social and business ostracism on account of political differences. No good citizen of Louisiana can withhold a word of cheer to the Governor who, in spite of the baser elements of his party, commits it to such a policy. While, therefore, we doubt the expediency of the proclamation, because of the partisan interpretation to which it is liable, we will not charge Governor Nicholls with any such narrow and unstatesmanlike motive.

There are many things for which Louisiana should be thankful, a few of which we name.

1. We thank God that Louisiana is still a part of the American nation. Years ago a political heresy, known as—the right of secession—triumphed in a large part of this nation. And the fair State of Louisiana was swept into the current, and for a time was lost in the horrible war which followed. Thank God, the nation is yet one, and that heresy is buried.

2. We thank God, that not only is the institution of human slavery past away in our commonwealth, but that many of its former advocates and apologists have come to acknowledge, that its destruction was right.

3. We thank God for the establishment of the public schools of Louisiana, where under the constitution all children are invited to go and receive an education.

4. We thank God for the spirit of brotherly kindness which is rapidly increasing between the races.

5. We thank God that the party which years ago taught the secession heresy; which defended slavery as a divine institution; which passed laws making it a penal offence to educate the Negro; and which opposed his enfranchisement; has, in these last days, under the benign influences of American unity; and liberty, proclaimed itself the rightful champion of national unity; of the equality of all before the law; and the special guardian of our educational system, by which all, irrespective of race are to be educated.

The Internal Revenue receipts for the last year to April 30th were $93,382,710; receipts for 1877 have been 95,932,210-18, showing a gain for ten mouths of $2,599,499.

A New York clergyman makes the announcement that there are, in that city, five hundred and twenty-five converts from Judaism to Christianity. These conversions have come through several Jews converted at the time of the Moody and Sankey meetings in that city.

The Archbishop and Gov. Nicholls.

The Catholic Archbishop of New Orleans has issued a pastoral letter to the Catholics of Louisiana, calling upon them to observe May 10th, the Thanksgiving Day appointed by Gov. Nicholls. He says:

It is peculiarly incumbent upon us Catholics to enter into the religious and Christian views of Governor Nicholls, and, in thanking God for His favors, to beg of Him a continuance of his blessings upon our State, and the completion of the work of pacification so happily begun. The accomplishment of this will be so much the more easy for us that the day of thanksgiving is fixed for the 10th of May, the day on which we celebrate the Feast of the Ascension, a holiday of obligation for Catholics.

Here is the first instance when the Roman Catholic Church, through her highest representative in an American State, has pointedly and directly identified his Church with a political party. Why it is "peculiarly incumbent", for the Catholics of Louisiana to "enter into the religious and Christian views of Gov. Nicholls," it is not difficult to infer. A majority of the present State officers are Roman Catholics. A majority of the City Council of New Orleans are Roman Catholics. A large majority of the city Schools Board of New Orleans are Roman Catholics. A Majority of the city police are Catholic. And from all we can gather a chief passport to preferment in any city appointment, is a certificate from some priest that the bearer is a Roman Catholic. We have heard it asserted that Gov. Nicholls is himself a Catholic. We do not know, and do not care, provided he does not allow himself to be the instrument of Jesuitism. The fact that the Governor's proclamation fixed a Catholic holliday, as a thanksgiving day, we suspect was not an accident. The Governor may not have known it, but probably some Jesuitcal lips or pen inserted the date.

Collector King.

Judge King, who has been appointed Collector of this port by President Hayes, has been a leading man in this State for many years. He was born in Opelousas, where he now lives, received part of his education in New England, but is an Alumus of Centenary College of this State. He was an active whig for many years in this State. He opposed secession but went with his State into the rebellion and did active service. In 1865 was elected to Congress. 1870 he was appointed Judge of the Eighth Judical District, where he served three years. After the war he acted with the Democratic party, but after the passage of the constitutional amendments he became an earnest Republican.

The appointment has given general satisfaction.

The Christian Recorder comes to hand for the first time in several weeks. It has changed its form from eight to four pages, and has a now head and outfit. The general appearance of the paper is greatly improved. This issue—April 26—contains an extract from Bishop Haven's letter to the SOUTHWESTERN, and this paper receives no credit for it. We are glad the extract was quoted, but would have liked it better had the SOUTHWESTERN received its dues.

The editor prefaces his quotation from Bishop Haven, with a compliment to him and thinks the M. E. Church will yet live even "if it have some congregations among it, that will not allow a colored man to attend its service—not even if he sit in the gallery. The M. E. Church has some such congregations, and we challenge any of its organs to dispute it."

We except the challenge and say, that within the scope of our knowledge the M. E. Church has no congregation, where a colored man cannot attend service, even if he sit in the gallery. If such a church exists we never saw it or heard of it. We profess to stand among the foremost in the battle against cast prejudice in this nation, but we want to be just to all, including those whom occasionally we must criticise.

Mount Zion Church, New Orleans, is having great prosperity under the pastorate of Rev. C. Hunt. The congregations are very large, and an excellent spirit pervades the church and congregation. Since January 15th, when Bro. Hunt took charge of the church, 806,45 have been raised.

War Notes.

Roumania a province of Turkey has joined against Turkey.

The Russian Imperial family gives $30,000,000 from their private purse for the war.

The first battle between Russia and Turkey occurred Tuesday April 27 near Kars, an Asiatic city. But little fighting occurred.

The Powers refuse to grant to Turkey the benefits of the Paris treaty. So Turkey must go alone, unless Russia whips her so badly as to awaken the jealousy of the Powers.

England and Austria have issued proclamations declaring that they will stand neutral, unless the protection of their own interests should demand their active interference. This is practically the position of all Europe.

Napoleon the First saw the rising power of Russia and foresaw that the day would come when Western Europe must either let Russia control the East, or destroy the power of Russia. His plan was to break the power of Russia and devide her territory. He failed and now Russian ascendency in the East is a fixed fact.

France proclaims neutrality, but at the same time is developing her military power with wonderful rapidity. Germany sees this and Gen. Von Moltke, who now speaks where Bismarck formerly did, says Germany must recognize this fact and "could not avoid a measure destined to compensate her for it." This means that Germany is determined that France shall not gain her old leadership among the nations of Europe.

Russia has a population of 86,586,000; Turkey 28,500,000; Austria-Hungary, 35,904,435. The Russian debt is £301,000,000; the Turkish, £200,000,000. The total Russian army is 1,789,751 men; the Turkish 629,736; the German, 1,248,834; the French, 1,118,525; the Austrian, 964,028; the Italian, 871,871; the English, 655,808. Of England's force only 183,342 are regulars. In the other countries the proportion is about half active and half reserve forces.

The Crimean war was opened in October, 1853, between Russia and Turkey. Six months after, on April 10, 1854, France and England had united with Catholic France and England lashed boats, and notified Russia that Protestant England had united, and Catholic France to maintain Mohammedan Turkey against Greek Christian Russia. That is a problem that ought never to be repeated. Annihilate the Turk in Europe, re-establish the old Greek Empire, give to that new nationality a public police, and then let time and the Gospel do the rest. But we fear the repetition of the old game. When will Europe outgrow a general war?—Christian Advocate.

A writer in the Church Union says that "As regards the puerile assertions of Russian intolerance, there seems to be a wilful forgetfulness that this is a government which has led the world of late in political emancipations, and is gradually throwing open her whole ecclestical establishment—her clergy life, her mission work, her external relations to the full light of this reforming and reviving age. There can be no possible question to any candid mind that Russia—Russian civilization—means light, means life, means progress, improvement, aspiration—Christianity, in short; while, on the contrary, Turkey—Turkish ideas—mean darkness, decay, deterioration, degeneracy, death—heathenism, in short."

The American Navy in the Bosphorous consists of the following vessels under the command of Rear Admiral Wordon.

The Trenton, flagship, carrying eleven guns and 434 men. The Marion, eight guns and 214 men. The Vendalia, eight guns and 160 men (not a full complement). The Alliance, six guns and 119 men. All of these are new vessels. The Gettysburg, two guns and seventy-five men, is on special service in Mediterranean, but will render any assistance required of her in looking after American interest. The Despatch, one gun and forty men, sails from Norfolk for Constantinople in a few days for special service under direction of the American Minister at that city.

The Secretary of the Navy has instructed Admiral Worden to ask permission of the Turkish Government to move the fleet up to Constantinople, so as better to look after and protect American Commerce during the war between Russia and Turkey.

The Paris Treaty.

What is known as the Crimean war between Russia and Turkey began in 1853. In 1854 England and France and Sardinia united with Turkey and fought Russia. When Sebastopol was captured Sept. 8, 1855, by the allied armies, an armistic was declared. The representatives of Russia. Turkey, England, France and Sardinia met in Paris, determined to establish a permanant peace on the basis of maintaining the "independence ant integrity of the Ottoman Empire." Austria and Prussia were invited to participate in the conference and did so. The conference began February, 1856, and March 30, the treaty was signed.

The treaty opened the Black Sea to the commerce of the world; also Bosphorous and Dardanelles; made semi-independent States of Romania and Servia, which were to be under Turkish rule, subject to advice from Europe, and no nation was to be allowed to go to war with Turkey unless the other power had the "opportunity of protesting such an extremity by means of their mediation". Turkey was pledged to care for and protect her christan subjects.

It is rumored that Austria and England will unite in demanding of Russia to preserve the integrity of the Ottoman government under the Paris treaty. But Russia will claim that when all the powers united in the late protocol, addressed to Turkey, which Turkey rejected, the powers had used their "Mediation", to prevent trouble and their mediation had failed. Therefore Russia takes the matter in her own hands

It is believed that the interpretation and force of this Paris treaty, will decide whether other nations besides Russia and Turkey will be drawn into the present war. The treaty was never popular with Russia, and in the negotiations of the past months she has been shrewd enough not to be embarrased by that treaty, and at the same time Turkey has been forced into and attitude of opposition to some of its provisions, and the great Power have been allowed their "Mediation."

Southern Methodism.

Rev. M. B. Pullman, Rose Hill, Texas, says: "We have a protracted meeting in progress. So far there have been twelve persons join on probation and five in full connection."

Rev. T. Kennedy, Napoleonville, La., says: "There have been 81 accessions to the Church since I have been here. A protracted meeting has just been commenced; there have been two conversions. At Woodlawn there have been 31 accessions and 12 conversions."

Rev. Edward Lee, Bryan, Texas, says: "We have been greatly blessed of the Lord during this conference year. There have been 37 accessions to the Church and 17 adult conversions; eight men and nine women. Our Sunday-school has been organized into a Missionary Society, and is doing effective work."

Rev. C. Thompson, Mansfield, La., says: "Our new parsonage is up, and nearly completed; we are getting ready to move into it in a few days. And the best of it is that it is all paid for excepting fifty dollars, and we expect to get that within thirty days. In temporal and in spiritual matters my church seems prosperous."

Rev. D. A. Williams, Grenada, Miss., writes: "So far in our protracted meeting there have been 24 conversions and 49 accessions to the Church. Our quarterly services were specially interesting; Presiding Elder Johnson was present and preached for us. Our people are much pleased with the SOUTHWESTERN; all the principal families among the colored people of Grenada are subscribers."

Rev. Provine, Gallatin, Tenn, says: "Since our quarterly services we have been holding a protracted meeting. One has made profession of religion and several seekers are at the altar every night. Some greatly needed repairs are being made on our church building. We invited the annual Conference to hold its next session here. Our friends of the Church South have promised us their assistance in caring for our white brethren at the Conference."

Rev. W. D. Sims, Meridian Circuit, Miss., says: "The good Lord is blessing us on this work. There have been three recent conversions and eighteen accessions to the Church. A new church building is now in process of erection. And as a matter of no little importance to me personally, in doing the work of this circuit, I may mention that my people have provided me with a horse."

Rev. A. Cook, Columbia, Miss., says: "We have just closed a one week's protracted meeting. There were four conversions and eleven accessions to the Church. Our Sunday-school is very prosperous. On last Sunday it numbered one hundred and eighteen; we very much [illegible] sent for by some of the [illegible] of the school." (The [illegible] sent as soon as we [illegible] to what express [illegible]. We wrote to [illegible] the money for [illegible] at as yet have no [illegible]

[illegible] Wesley Jones, Columbus, Miss., writes: "We commenced a protracted meeting on the 11th of March which continued until the 29th of April. It was a season long to be remembered on account of the outpouring of the Spirit. There were seventy-five conversions and forty-five accessions to the M. E. Church. Thirty-eight persons have been baptised, and five [illegible] baptism. In addition to the assistance of Rev. Hardy of the [illegible] Circuit, several of our brothers of other denominations [illegible] and preached for [illegible] W. M. Wordsworth of the M. E. Church South, Rev. Robert [illegible] of the Baptist Church, and [illegible] of the Christian [illegible] brethren I return [illegible] thanks."

[illegible] Harrisburg, [illegible] interesting so- [illegible] school to which [illegible] its exercises. She [illegible] reads the Southwestern [illegible] all [illegible] figures, [illegible] for this depart-[illegible]

[illegible] Items.

[illegible] of the Young [illegible] will be [illegible] Louisville, Kentucky, June [illegible]

[illegible] Methodists in the [illegible] the Baptists, there [illegible] all branches of [illegible] about 800,000 of the [illegible]

[illegible] of Rhode Island, [illegible] Wesleyan [illegible] American [illegible] to that [illegible] of the [illegible] the past [illegible] 124,000 in [illegible] of those [illegible] The legs [illegible] indicate [illegible] this cause has [illegible]

[illegible] a State [illegible] of Ohio, has [illegible] France. [illegible] the [illegible] in [illegible] Presbyte- [illegible] the [illegible] Ill. [illegible] and [illegible]

Gulf District Mississippi Conference.

Presiding Elder L. Bradford, says, May 4th:

I have just finished my first round on the Gulf District, and desire to say a few words in regard to the work, through your valuable paper, in the interests of which I have faithfully labored, but, owing to the exceeding hard times, I must confess, with little success. I am quite pleased with the condition of the work as a whole. At several points revivals have been or are in progress, and quite a number have been converted, and united with the Church. The preachers I found, generally, at their posts, laboring faithfully, and, in some instances I may say, heroically. One preacher had received 75 cents, during the quarter with a large family to support. Another had received 30cts, both on large circuits that report 300 to 400 members!

Let me say to those concerned, Brethren, these things ought not so to be.

While, perhaps, the majority of the people are poor, many are in good circumstances—as, owners of pleasant little homes, and some possess large farms, or plantations, containig from 160 to 500 acres of land, with stock and every necessary to carry on the same successfully. I would direct the attention of the preachers and people to one evil, viz: the condition of our Church property. In several places I found that we have no title for the land. At one place where the Church property was given in last year to be worth $1,055 there being four or five churches, they have not a single title, consequently, no Church property. This would indicate that the preachers who have allowed this have not studied, sufficiently, our Discipline.

I hope this matter will be promptly attended to, titles obtained when it is possible, and no more churches built until a perfect title for the land is secured.

I would especially commend the excellent singing I heard at a few places, and the attention paid to the cultivation of music. Would that it were universal on the Dist. At Moss Point on the Pascagoula work, they have a good choir and good singing.

At Bay St. Louis, Bro. Peany has organized a choir that sings by note, sings our good old Methodist hymns and are not surpassed anywhere on the work. In several places there is much interest manifested in the Sunday-schools. On the Columbia circuit, at Zion's Ridge the school numbers upward of 180 and is the best trained school I have found on the work. It was my privilege to visit this school last Sabbath, and was greatly pleased with the exercises, they being, in part, entirely new to me. I would like to describe them for the benefit of others, did space permit me.

Dr. McCarty's Lectures.

As announced last week, Rev. Dr. McCarty, of Ames Church, gave the first of a series of Popular Lectures on Scientific subjects. The subject of the first Lecture was "The Air we Breathe," and was intensely interesting and instructive. After a general discussion of the importance of scientific studies, the Doctor discussed the elements which compose the air and exhibited the different gases in jars and by a series of simple tests showed to the audience their peculiarities. Many practical hints were given on the importance of having pure air to breathe. We regretted that the audience was not larger.

After the lecture, the audience was invited into the session room where ice-cream and strawberries were for sale.

The next lecture will be given next Friday night, on "The Water we Drink." The component parts of water will be discussed. The combustible elements in water will be discussed and illustrated, and experiments with oxygen and hydrogen will be made. Admission 25 cents. We hope to see the house crowded.

The New Orleans City Police.

What was known as the "Nich[illegible]" numbered over twen-[illegible]. The regular [illegible] been reduced to [illegible] thrown out of [illegible] whom [illegible] that [illegible] the place, has [illegible] and much [illegible] says, he [illegible] with so few, [illegible] and that his recommendations were disregarded in their selection. One correspondent in the Times says the three hundred to many are Irish, while the Times shows that the Irish of our city compose one-third of our foreign born, and one-sixteenth of our population. There are forty colored men on the force.

Our Mission Work in Mexico.

Dr. Butler, Superintendent of the Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Mexico, reports that, notwithstanding the terrible year of uncertainty, revolution and bloodshed through which Mexico has passed, God has protected all our missionaries and their fellow-laborers, and has advanced and consolidated their work, so that it is in a better and more spiritual condition than it was twelve months ago. In illustration of this, he states: "I have just returned from visiting our central mission at Guanajuato, where yesterday week I saw 118 persons in morning service, 101 in Sabbath-school, 153 in the evening service, and at night 49 received the holy sacrament of the Lord's Supper (all of whom are members in full, or on probation in our Church,) while at all of these services fully one-half were women." All this work had been accomplished during the past eleven months.

Methodism in the Fiji Islands.

The annual meeting of Methodist missionaries in Fiji has been recently held. The following are the statistical returns for the past year: Chapels, 668; other preaching places, 265; missionaries, 10; English school-master, 1; native ministers, 54, catechists, 764; day school teachers, 2,941; Sunday-school teachers, 3,107; local preachers, 810; class leaders, 2,406. English Church members, 39; members, 17,302; on trial, 5,436; Sunday-schools, 1,178; Sunday-school scholars, 39,873; day schools, 1,462; day scholars, 37,9d2; hearers, 89,531.

That Mississippi Horror.

Jackson, May 1.—Thursday evening, John W. Gulley, a prominent citizen of Kemper county, was assassinated by an unknown party, which created intense excitement. Every means was resorted to discover the perpetrator. On Saturday two colored men made affidavit that Benjamin Rush, a white man, did the shooting, and that Judge Chisholm, who ran for Congress on the Republican ticket in the third district at the last election, his son, Gilmer, Rosenbaum and Hopper, prominent white Republicans, knew of and instigated the crime. Chisholm and his son were arrested and imprisoned at DeKalb.

Mrs. Chisholm and daughter insisted on sharing their confinement. Sunday Chisholm sent to Scooba for Gilmer, for whom a warrant had been issued. Gilmer came, and on his arrival was arrested; but just as he arrived at the jail he was set upon by a mob and killed. The jailor was then overpowered by a mob, who immediately attacked Chisholm, mortally wounding him and killing his son. Miss Chisholm, in defending her father, shot and killed Dr. Rossen, and Mrs. Chisholm severely wounded young Gulley, a son of Gulley who was assassinated. Miss Chisholm was also seriously wounded. Rosenbaum and Hopper, were carried to the woods by the mob to extort from them the whereabouts of Rush, the alleged assassin of Gulley. When last heard from, some weeks ago, Rush was in Arkansas. It is supposed that Rosenbaum and Hopper were hanged. It is reported that a horrible state of affairs exists throughout that section. The people are wild with excitement, and other hangings will probably follow.

President Hayes' Views.

The President in a conversation with a personal friend recently, referred to the agitation in some quarters for a new party, with a new name, when the President said, in substance, that it is one of the last thoughts that could occur to him to abandon the name or principles of the Republican party, and though the threatening storm, which is imminent in and out of Congress, might rage about his course, he would never swerve from his conviction, and that his intention and aim is the perpetuity of that party, on the line on which so much good has already been done. Nothing could be further from his thoughts than the surrender of its name; as well might his opponents accuse him of wishing to surrender its principles.

The President holds it near to his heart that the differences in the South shall be perfectly harmonized, and that this is a duty which he owes to the country at large, as well as to the Southern States. The charge that he would forget the interests of the emancipated race would be preposterous were it not made by those whose prominence gives them a right to be heard. Nothing troubles him more than this. All the labors of the President are easy beside the burden of being unjustly accused. He was a supporter of the Republican party when it first had an existence. Even in his boyhood his sympathy was with Garrison and Phillips on the anti slavery platform. The idea that he could forget for a moment the great opportunity he has of bettering the condition of the freed people of the South is so preposterous that he has hardly the patience to assure his accusers of their mistake. He knows the course he is to pursue, and he is confident that the end will justify the means he has taken to insure the promotion and welfare of every citizen of the South. It is no recent conviction with President Hayes that the time has gone by for holding an iron hand over the Southern States had He been President four years ago that which has but recently been done would have come to pass in the early day of the administration. The pacification of the South is the only outcome for the colored race. He sees it is the only possible source of sustaining the Republican party, and he repeats as to the key of that policy, "He serves his party best who serves his country best." More than this the President leaves to the future to decide.—National Republican.

LITTEL'S LIVING AGE. The numbers dated April 21st and 18th respectively, of this sterling electic weekly, contain Spinoza, the Man and Philosopher, from the Contemporary Review; On the Influence of Authority in Matters of Opinion, by Rt. Hon W. E. Gladson, Nineteenth Century; The religion of the great Pyramid, by Richard A. Proctor, Fraser; Dr. Schliemann on Mycena, Nature; The Gossip of History, Cornhill; Natural Religion, part VIII, Macmillan; News from Jupiter, Spectator; Deronda's Mother, a Literary Parallel, Temple Bar; Mail Coaches, St. James Magazine; Walter Bagehot, Spectator; Australian Perl fishing, Gentleman's Magazine; together with shorter articles poetry and miscellany, and installments of the "Marquis of Lossie," by George MacDonald; "Carita," by Mrs. Oliphant, and Wm. Black's new and fine serial.

A new volume, began with April. For fifty-two numbers, of sixty-four large pages each (or more than 3000 pages a year), the subscription price ($8) is low; while for $10.50 the publishers offer to send any one of the American $4 monthlies or weeklies with The Living Age for a year, both postpaid. Littell & Gay, Boston, are the publishers.

Our Bishops.

The New York Advocate of May 3rd. has a good editorial on, Our Bishops. Of their work it is said:

The work they are required to do is of the utmost importance. The fixing of the appointments of the preachers is the most sensitive, as it is the most vital, part of their duties. It is no small matter to determine the field of labor of 10,000 preachers every year; to touch so delicate a question as the society, surroundings, and friendships of these 10,000 families; to enter the school-relations of these 10,000 families, and change them all about. To bear this responsibility is no mean load. Add to this the responsibility of furnishing the religious instruction and pastoral care of 5,000,000 of people, and the work becomes immense. Add to this the administration of all the business of eighty annual conferences, and advice on every Church matter every waking hour in the year, and the work becomes too vast to be treated indifferently.

The special work of our Bishops at the conferences is one of inspiration. The majority of the pastors have been on their charges in a quiet fidelity, that has sought to please the King by doing well the work he has assigned to them.

They are not starring it. They are not running over the country, doing every body's business except their own. They are not able to take many journeys out of their work. They are common-sense men, doing much of the hard work of saving this world. This work sometimes seems difficult and discouraging. It does not go on as they desire. It is a load on their faith and patience. They are seldom permitted to hear any one preach. They are kept preaching all the time. Thus it happens that they not unfrequently come up to conference with a heavy heart, hardly knowing what to do. They are anxious to do their work the best possible, and they go to conference praying that God will give them new life and light and help, and thus enable them to preach better for the future.

"Keep thy Heart."

REV. C. HUNT.

Yes, keep your heart, young man! Set a watch over it. Post a guard at its gate and suffer not vain thought or desire to find either entrance or lodgment. The warrior in battle fails not to keep strict guard over his magazine of gunpowder least the enemy beselge and take it, or lest a spark of fire or flaming combustible reach it, and immediate explosion and destruction ensue. But a thousand times more dangerous is your heart! The enemy is at the gate; keep it shut. For, permitting entrance to an evil thought, an unchecked desire, a flaming passion, may ruin your reputation, destroy your peace, drive you from the society of friends, and sink you to perdition's depths. Then, you may find no place of repentance, though you seek it carefully with tears. "Keep thy heart with all dilligence for out of it are the issues of life."

Believers should not have a slavish dread of death; for where is the infant that fears to go to sleep in his nurse's arms.—Toplady.

Sunday School.

May 20, 1877.—JONAH AT NINEVEH.
SCRIPTURE.—Jonah 3: 1-10.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"The men of Nineveh shall rise in judgment with this generation, and shall condemn it; because they repented at the preaching of Jonas; and, behold, a greater than Jonas is here."—Matt. 12: 41.

TOPIC.—"Godly Sorrow Worketh Repentance to Salvation."—2 Cor. 7: 10.

HOME READINGS.

M. 2 Sam. 12: 1 13. T. Judg. 10: 1-16. W. 2 Chr. 33: 1-20. Th. Joh. 42: 1-17. F. Luke 15: 1-32. S. Matt. 26: 57-74. S. Luke 23: 26-43.

(Condensed from Nat. S. S. Teacher.)

The Command. (1, 2).—This was the second time it had been given. When, first, Jonah was told to go to Nineveh his response was flight. He took ship at Joppa, and for Tarshish, or Tartessus, a city supposed to have been in the South of Spain. He went to the opposite point of the compass from the one to which he had been directed. His design was the shallow one of fleeing from the presence of the Lord.

The Cry.—So Jonah arose and went. From that baptism and burial he had come up a new man, ready to do the Lord's will. He had now the same temper that those have who have been buried with Christ in baptism and risen with him into newness of life.

Yet forty days and Nineveh shall be overthrown! Short sermon that was. No text, no elaborate introduction, no logical division into heads, no climax, no closing exhortation. No adroit way of putting an unwelcome truth so as not to offend the hearers—nor arouse them to their danger. It was plain, blunt, harsh, uncompromising. It suggested no way of escape. It did not set forth the sins for which this judgment was coming—the people knew them too well to need to be informed why, at last, it was so close at hand. It was a singular cry from a singular preacher. Into the great city of Nineveh one day walked a foreigner, showing the signs of long travel afoot, uncouth in speech and aspect. No sooner was he in the city than he commenced to proclaim its doom. In forty days. Probably the first groups that heard him eyed him curiously and then passed on esteeming him a lunatic. But in one place and in another that monotonous but terrible, earnest, presaging cry was heard. Conscience took hold of the people and made them feel that their destruction was deserved, and this really was the voice of God pronouncing their sentence. When the Spirit of God is upon him, even one man can shake a great city.

The Contrition (5-9).—So the people of Nineveh believed God. Not Jonah. Jonah uttered the prediction, but the voice of God in their consciences was louder than that of the prophet. His words would have been in vain had it not been for that inner witness. Believed God. An expression that under the circumstances is remarkable. Fear we should have expected, but hardly belief; for belief in this [illegible] their [illegible] shall rise in judgment with [illegible] eration, and shall condemn it; because they repented at the preaching of Jonas; and behold a greater than Jonas is here."

Proclaimed a fast. There was but one fast ordained by Moses. That was on the day of atonement. Lev. 23: 26-32. This appears ever to have been solemnly kept. Afterwards, on account of great national calamities, other fasts were instituted—fasts of fourth, fifth, seventh, and tenth months. Zech. 7: 3-5; 8; 19. Extraordinary fasts, to obtain God's blessing or forgiveness, or to avert impending danger, were not unusual occurrences. They seem to have been born not of law, but of nature—for when one sorrows deeply on account of sin or any other reason, there is but little disposition to eat. Doubtless the Ninevites had at times fasted before their idols, but never before had there been such universal abstaining from food. The king himself set the example—and when the king becomes repentant and humble the people cease to be hardened and proud. Under the black shadow of their impending doom he and all the city felt the extreme necessities of the hour, and they not only wore sackcloth and sat in ashes, but even impressed the cattle into their service to help express their sorrow. Everywhere was seen that coarse texture of goat's hair, called sackcloth, the symbol of mourning. It was as if in some modern city, people and horses and houses were all dressed and draped in black.

The people not only repented, but, 1st, they cried "mightily unto God," and 2nd, they turned "every one from his evil way." Repentance without prayer, which is the sign of faith, and without reformation, which is a guarantee of the genuineness of repentance, amounts to but very little. And the cause of this mourning and amendment was the hope, expressed by the king, that perhaps God, seeing their change of heart, would refrain from his fierce anger. It was a remarkable faith for a heathen king to exhibit. It showed an intelligent and correct appreciation of the attributes of God.

God's Compassion (10). God saw the works. Not their sackcloth and ashes, nor the draping of their beasts, nor their fasting, nor their profession of sorrow—but their works. They had ceased to do evil and learned to do well. They were not pardoned on account of their works, but because their works testified to the reality of their repentance. God repented of the evil. It was man that changed, not God. Punishment and blessing are both conditioned. Men can escape the one or forfeit the other without involving the least change on the part of God. God is eager to forgive. His great, tender heart yearned over Nineveh as Christ's did over Jerusalem.

CHEER UP.

If fortune frowns on you to-day,
She'll smile again to-morrow,
Be bright and cheerful while you may,
And do not trouble borrow.

You know each dark and gloomy cloud,
Is lined with silver bright,
And morning light will surely dawn,
Upon the darkest night.

A smiling face will sunshine make,
However dark the day,
And where contentment finds a home,
There, trouble will not stay.

Then banish dismal fears, and try
Each day to do your best
To make your home a happy one,
And leave to God the rest.

Okolona, Miss. MRS. S. M. MCL.

Married.

In Thibodeaux, by Rev. E. P. Royal, March 7th, 1877; Mr. Henry Brown to Charlotte Josey of Thibodeaux.

Superstition.

A panacea, or "cure-all," is one of the myths of the age of superstition. Dr. R. V. Pierce does not recommend any one or even his whole list of standard remedies as adequate to cure every disease. For severe lingering coughs, bronchial, throat, and chronic lung diseases, he believes his Golden Medical Discovery is unsurpassed, but it will not cure you if your lungs are half wasted by consumption. The Discovery not only exercises a potent influence over pulmonary affections, by reason of its pectoral properties, but possesses also the most valuable alterative, or blood-cleansing properties, and is therefore a sovereign remedy in blood and skin affections. But while it will cure scrofulous and other ulcers or sores, blotches, pimples, and eruptions, it will not cure cancer, nor does its manufacturer claim any such merit for it as is done by proprietors of other blood-cleansing medicines, who dishonestly try to deceive the afflicted into the belief that their preparations will accomplish impossibilities. By reason of its real intrinsic merit it has a sale surpassing that of any other blood and cough medicine.

BUSINESS COLUMN.

Publisher's Department.

OUR AGENTS.

All Pastors of the M. E. Church, are the authorized agents to receive subscriptions for the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

PRICE OF THE PAPER.

The price to Subscribers is $2 00, or for less than a year, at the rate of 5 cts. per week. Subscriptions may begin at any time, and will run until expiration of time paid for.

HOW TO SEND MONEY.

Send money by Post-office Order, or Registered letter. All Postmasters are required to register letters when asked to, and the only expense is 10 cts. additional postage. Post office orders, cost 10 cts. for any amount less than $10, and 15 cts. for any amount between ten dollars and $25.

BOOKS.

Any book published by the Methodist Episcopal Church, and advertised in this paper, will be sent ON RECEIPT OF PRICE.

NELSON & PHILLIPS,
30 Natchez St., New Orleans, La.

Quarterly Meetings.

Meridian (Miss.) District.

Paulding and Claiborne, May 12-13; Garlandville, May 14-15; Newton, May 16-17; Crawford, May 19-20; Starkville, May 26-27; Brooksville, May 26-27; Carthage, June 2-3; Mishularville, June 2-3; Trenton, June 2-3; Whitefield, June 16-17; Louisville, June 19-20; Rome, June 23-24; Ex-Prairie, June 30 and July 1; Macon, July 7-8; Shuqualak, July 11-12; DeKalb, July 14-15; Lauderdale July 21-22; Daleville, July 24-25; Meridian 28-29; Meridian Circuit August 4-5; Quitman August 11-12; Shubuta Circuit, August 15-16; State Line, Aug. 18-19; Shubuta, August 21-22; Enterprise Circuit, Aug. 25-26; Enterprise, Aug. 28-29. M. ADAMS, P. E.

Okolona District.

(Second round,)

Okolona May 5-6; Corinth and Corinth Circuit, May 12-13; Tupelo, May 14-15; Spring valley and Shady Grove, May 19-20; Big Black, May 26-27; Calhoun, June 2-3; Houston, June 6-7; Pontotoc, 9-10; Union Grove, June 16-17; West Point, June 23-25; Columbus and Columbus Circuit, June 30 and July 1; Tibbe, July 7-8; Tampico, July 19-15; Athens, July 21-22.

The Okolona District Conference well meet at Pontotoc June 10. I hope all the member of the Conference will be present. All the ministers of the Okolona District who are in charge of a work will please send on their post-office address at once.

D. MCLACHLAN, P. E.

Gulf District.

(Second round.)

Pascagoula, May 17-18; Ocean Springs and Biloxi May 19-20; Handsboro, May 21-22; Bay St. Louis, May 23-24; Pass Christian, May 26-27; Crystal Springs, May 31 and June 1; Simpson Circuit, June 5-6; Hazlehurst, June 7-8; New Hope Circuit, June 9-10; Union Church Circuit, June 11-12; Brookhaven, June 13-14; Hamburg Circuit, June 21-22; Meadville Circuit June 23-24; Liberty, June 26-27; Summit and Magnolia, June 28-29; China Grove, June 30 and July 1; Columbia, July 2-3; Augusta, July 4-5. L. BRADFORD, P. E.

Houston, Texas, District.

First Church, Houston, April 1; East Church and Wesley Chapel, Galveston, April 7 and 8; Spring Creek, April 14 and 15; Oyster Creek, April 21 and 22; Richmond and Frost Chapel, April 28 and 29; Houston, Second Church and Edwards Chapel, May 5 and 6; Harrisburg and West Point, May 12 and 13; Columbia and Brazoria, May 19 and 20; Stafford's, May 26 and 27; Houston Circuit, June 2 and 3; Cypress, June 9 and 10.

W. L. MOLLOY, P. E.

Shreveport District.

(Second Round.)

Cross Lake Circuit April 28-29; Scotts Circuit May 5-6; China Grove Circuit May 12 and 13; Shreveport, St. James and St. Paul, May 19-20; Fairfield Circuit, May 26-27; Mansfield and Red Spring, at Mansfield June 2-3; Conshatta, June 9-10; Natchitoches and Campo, at Natchitoches June 15-17; Allenсville June 30 and July 1; Alexandria and Catoken, at Alexandria July 7-8.

S. DARAGE, P. E.

Greenwood (Miss.) District.

Yazoo City, March 17 and 18; Benton, March 24 and 25; Pickens, March 31 and April 1; Goodman, April 7 and 8; Durant, April 14 and 15; Greenwood, April 21 and 22; Rohuck, 28 and 29; New Midway, May 5 and 6; Panola, May 12 and 13; Hernando, May 15 and 16; Spring Hill, May 19 and 20; Caney Creek, May 26 and 27; Walnut Ridge, June 2 and 3; Shiloh, June 9 and 10; Austin, June 16 and 17; Bolivar, June 23 and 24.

J. W. DUNN, P. E.

San Antonio (Tex.) District.

Mission Valley, April 21 and 22; Cuero April 28 and 29; Indianola and Lavacca, May 5 and 6; Columbus and Alleyton, May 12 and 13; Peach Creek and Columbus Circuit, May 19 and 20; San Antonio, May 26 and 27; Boerne, June 2 and 3; Hondo, June 9 and 10; Floresville June 16 and 17; Sutherland Springs, June 23 and 24; Nockernut, July 1; Cibola, July 4 and 5; Riddleville, July 4 and 5; Lavernia, 7 and 8; Goliad Circuit, July 11 and 12; Belmont, July 14 and 15; Refugio, July 18 and 19; Wrightsboro, July 21 and 22; Goliad, July 28 and 29.

D. GREGORY, P. E.

Holly Springs, Miss., District.

Mt. Pleasant, April 7-8; Kosciusko, April 14-15; French Camp, April 16-17; Greensboro, April 18-19; Winona and Vaiden, April 21-22; Duck Hill, April 26-27; Grenada, April 28-29; Grenada Circuit, April 30 and May 1; Oxford, May 5-6; Elijah, May 8-9; Abbeville, May 12-13; New Albany, May 19-20; Hickory Flat, May 26-27; Ripley, May 26-27; Holly Springs, June 2-3, Holly Springs Circuit, June 6-7; Chulahoma, June 9-10; Byhalia, June 11-12.

As the greater part of the work lies at a considerable distance from the Railroad, and as it is important to visit every part of it, I shall go by private conveyance.

J. G. JOHNSON, P. E.

HEARING RESTORED.—Great invention by one who was deaf for 20 years. Send stamp for particulars. JNO. GARMORE, lock box 905, Covington, Ky.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from active practice, having had placed his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of consumption, bronchitis, catarrh, asthma, and all throat and lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for nervous debility and all nervous complaints, after having thoroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, feels it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive, and a conscientious desire to relieve human suffering, he will send, free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, with full directions for preparing and successfully using. Sent by return mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, Dr. W. C. Stevens, 126 Power's Block, RochesteN. Y. [may10-77-4t

JewelRY for all. The EUREKA JEWELRY CASKET contains one pair gold-plated engraved sleeve buttons, one set (3) spiral shirt studs, one Gents Im. coral pin, one improved shape collar stud, one Gents fine link watch chain, and one Ladies Heavy wedding ring; price of one casket, complete, 50 cents; three for $1.25; six for $2, and 12 for $3.50, all sent postpaid by mail. Sixteen and a solid silver watch for $20. Agents can make money selling these caskets. Send 50 cents for sample and catalogues. We have all kinds of jewelry at low prices.
COLES & CO., 736 Broadway, N. Y. City.
☞ We are the originals in this business, and have no "Milton Gold" or "brass" jewelry.
This Jewelry casket is remarkably attractive, and COLE & Co. are reliable dealers.—Boston Globe. [may10-4t

GET THE BEST
New Sunday-school Music-Book,
"HEAVENWARD,"
BY JAMES R. MURRAY,
With old and new favorites by
P. P. BLISS,
and contributions from most of the leading writers of Sunday-school music.
"HEAVENWARD"
is the only new Sunday-school book containing the best and most popular sacred songs by the late
P. P. BLISS,
with new hymns and music never before published. Don't fail to examine
"HEAVENWARD"
Price, 35 cents; $30 per hundred, in boards. A sample copy, in paper covers, mailed for 25 cent. Sold by most booksellers. Specimen pages free.
S. BRAINARD'S SONS, Publishers, apr26-77-1yl Cleveland, Ohio.

Lungs and Throat.

Inhalation of common air in Incipient Consumption will cure. Dr. J. M. Howe, of Passaic, N. J., sends his Tube, with full directions, post free for $3 50. Send for circulars.

may2tf.

BISMARCK.

THE Authentic Biography of the great German statesman, with curious researches into his ancestry; lively incidents of his youth and student life; and a full account of his social surroundings and the growth of his official and public career. A translation from the German, with an introduction by BAYARD TAYLOR, and over 100 illustrative home scenes, battles, portraits, etc. Vivid, Picturesque and absorbing, it is replete with anecdote, wit romantic incident and great historical events. SPECIAL CANVASSERS wanted to supply the urgent demand for this live book. J. B. FORD & Co., Publishers, 27 Park Place, N. Y. [apr26-3t

SOUTHWESTERN AGENCY
FOR
School and College Text Books.

Office No. 80 CAMP STREET (up stairs).

Below we submit the MODEL SERIES of books (so conceded by the leading educators of this country) for use in PRIMARY, INTERMEDIATE and GRAMMAR schools. To insure their adoption by the progressive teacher we have only to ask a careful comparison with books of a like grade, a critical examination and a thorough, practical test in the class-room:

	Prices.
Harper's Introductory Geography	[illegible]
Harper's School Geography	$1 25
" United States First Reader	15
" " " Second "	[illegible]
" " " Third "	37
" " " Fourth "	56
" " " Fifth "	75
" " " Sixth "	90
Wilson's Primary Speller	15
" Larger "	30
" New "	34
Lamson's Penmanship, per dozen	1 [illegible]
French's First Lessons in Numbers	25
" Elementary Arithmetic	37
" Mental Arithmetic	36
" Common School Arithmetic	70
Swinton's Language Primer	30
" Language Lessons	[illegible]
" School Composition	37
" Progressive Grammar	55

Catalogues, circulars, and testimonials sent on applications. Correspondence solicited and will receive prompt attention, when addressed
W. P. ROGERS & W. L. JARVIS, Agents for the introduction of Harper & Brothers' Educational Works, New Orleans, La.; [illegible]

WHICH LOVED BEST?

"I love you, mother," said little John;
Then, forgetting his work, his cap went on,
And he was off to the garden swing,
And left her the water and wood to bring.

"I love you mother," said rosy Nell;
"I love you better than tongue can tell."
Then she toyed and pouted full half the day
Till her mother rejoiced when she went to play.

"I love you, mother," said little Fan;
"To-day I'll help you all I can;
How glad I am school doesn't keep!"
So she rocked the babe till it fell asleep.

Then stepping softly she fetched the broom,
And swept the floor and tidied the room;
Busy and happy all day was she,
Helpful and happy as child could be.

"I love you, mother," again they said,
Three little children going to bed,
How do you think that mother guessed
Which one of them really loved her best?

A Great River from A Little Rill.

A Welch clergyman asked a little girl for the text of his last sermon. The child gave no answer, she only cried. He ascertained that she had [illegible] in which to look for the text. And this led to inquire whether her parents and neighbors had a Bible; and this led him to [illegible] meeting in London in 1804 of a few devoted Christians to devise means to supply the poor of Wales with the Bible; the grand issue of which was the foundation of the British Bible Society, a Society which has already distributed more than fifteen millions copies of the Bible; its issues now reach nearly [illegible] hundred thousand [illegible]. And this in turn led to the formation of the American Bible Society, and to the whole beautiful [illegible] of sister institutions throughout the world, which are so many [illegible] of life, scattering the golden [illegible] of immortality among all [illegible] on the earth. This mighty [illegible] so broad, so far-reaching in its mighty branches, we may [illegible] the tears of that little [illegible].

Prepare Ye the Way.

[illegible] will build a house on [illegible] never can you lay [illegible] upon rolling [illegible] or loose lumber. [illegible] to have a [illegible] work on top of [illegible] and the devil. [illegible] baptised and [illegible] understanding in the world, build a foundation; [illegible] when [illegible] must dig deep [illegible] and lay [illegible] Christ Jesus the [illegible] foundation; [illegible] when the storm [illegible] on that house it will not fall, for it is founded on a rock. [illegible] Athens have [illegible] and pride and [illegible] been fostered and cherished, until [illegible] such a [illegible] own [illegible] Work, [illegible] Brook [illegible] Let the Gospel [illegible] no [illegible] If [illegible] Work, [illegible] Brook [illegible] Let the Gospel [illegible] no [illegible] Confess your old [illegible] Purge out the Athens [illegible] before the [illegible] for your [illegible] way of the [illegible] straight [illegible] wait [illegible] The Bible [illegible] The Christ [illegible] German [illegible] that tide [illegible] [illegible] Work [illegible] Brook [illegible] Let the Gospel [illegible] no [illegible] Confess your old [illegible] Purge out the Athens [illegible] before the [illegible] for your [illegible] way of the [illegible] straight [illegible] wait [illegible] The Bible [illegible] The Christ [illegible] German [illegible] that tide [illegible]

the achievement of German unity diminish the chances of demoralization from European wars and by contagion from France.

7. That in the field of exegetical research, while Rationalism has caused the discovery of many new facts and the adoption of a new method, the naturalistic theory by Paulus, the mythical theory by Strauss, the tendency theory by Baur, and the legendary by Renan, have been so antagonistic to each other as to be successively outgrown by both Christian and by rationalistic scholarship.

The American Giant.

The largest man on record was Miles Darden, a native of North Carolina, who was born in 1798, and who died in Tennessee in 1857, at the age of fifty-eight years. He was seven feet six inches in height, and in 1846 weighed eight hundred and seventy-two pounds. At his death he weighed over one thousand pounds. In 1839 his coat was buttoned around three men, each of them weighing over two hundred pounds, who walked together in it across the square of Lexington. In 1850 it required thirteen and one-half yards of cloth, one yard wide, to make him a coat. Until 1853 he was active and lively and able to bear labor, but from that time was compelled to stay at home, or be hauled about in a two-horse wagon. His coffin was eight feet long, thirty-five inches deep, thirty-two inches across the breast, eighteen inches across the head, and fourteen inches across the feet. It required twenty-four yards of black velvet to cover the sides and lid of the coffin. Miles Darden was twice married, and his children are very large, though it is not probable that any of them will ever attain the gigantic weight and size of their father.

What a new home we should live in, if we would only allow every kind thought that comes to us to blossom into words and deeds.

A Wonder-Working Remedy.

No remedial agent has ever been offered to the sick and debilitated at all comparable to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, in cases of remittent and intermittent fevers, constipation, nervous ailments, rheumatism and disorders involving constitutional weakness or physical decay. It literally "works wonders." The botanic ingredients which its spirituous basis holds in solution, act like a charm upon the stomach, and through the stomach upon the brain, liver, bowels and nervous system. There is nothing in its composition that is not salubrious. It contains some of the most potent tonics of the vegetable kingdom, and the juices of the best aperient and anti-bilious roots and herbs, combined with a perfectly pure stimulating element. The bitters are peculiarly adapted to those engaged in exhausting or unhealthy occupations, for by its use the strength is sustained and the vitality of the system to resist atmospheric and other influences prejudicial to health largely increased.

PRICE CURRENT.

NEW ORLEANS, LA., May 9, 1877.

It must be borne in mind that the following quotations represent what we pay or sell for small lots, higher rates are obtained and in selling small quantities a low price must be accepted.

BACON—
Shoulders ₱ lb	4½@ 7
Ribbed sides ₱ lb	9 @ 9½
Clear sides ₱ lb	9½@10
Hams ₱ lb	10 @11½
Breakfast Bacon ₱ lb	9½@10½
BRAN—Per 100 lbs	.81 50
BEANS—
White Northern ₱ lb	4 @ 4½
White Western ₱ lb	3½@ 3½
Red Kidney ₱ lb	5 @ 5½
BUTTER—
Choice Western ₱ lb	26 @28
Medium " ₱ lb	18 @24
Choice Western ₱ lb	20 @22
Medium " ₱ lb	13 @15
Inferior ₱ lb	10 @12
COTTON—
Good Ordinary ₱ lb	9 @ 9½
Low Middling ₱ lb	10 @10½
Middling ₱ lb	11 @11½
Good Middling ₱ lb	12 @12½
Fair ₱ lb	12 @13
CORN—
Yellow per bushel	60 @ ----
White per bushel	60 @ ----
Mixed per bushel	50 @ ----
In Sack per bushel	50 @ ----
CORN MEAL—
Per barrel	$3 00@3 25
COFFEE—(Gold)
Prime ₱ lb	20½@22½
Good ₱ lb	19 @20
Fair ₱ lb	18½@19
CHEESE—
Goshen ₱ lb	16½@17
Western good ₱ lb	15½@16
Medium ₱ lb	13 @13½
Inferior ₱ lb	8 @10
DRIED FRUITS—
Apples ₱ lb	3 @ 6
Peaches ₱ lb	---@---
EGGS—
Western per doz	10 @ 10
Creole per doz	11 @ 14
FLOUR—
Superfine ₱ bbl	$5 50@$6 75
Double Extra per bbl	7 00@ ----
Treble Extra ₱ bbl	8 00@ 8 50
Family Brands ₱ bbl	10 @11 00
RAY—
Prime ₱ ton	$16 00@$18
Choice "	19 00@20
HIDES—
Country Green, ₱ lb	7 @ 8
Dry Salted ₱ lb	8 @10
Dry Flint ₱ lb	12 @14
LAND—
Tierce ₱ lb	10½@11
Keg ₱ lb	10½@10½
Pail	12½@13
MOLASSES—
Common ₱ gallon	30 @35
Fair ₱ gallon	35 @37
Prime ₱ gallon	40 @47
Choice ₱ gallon	48 @50
OATS—
St. Louis ₱ bushel	35@----
Galena ₱ bushel	30@35
POULTRY—
Chickens Small ₱ doz	$3 00@----
Chickens Small ₱ doz	3 00@4 00
Ducks ₱ doz	3 50@4 50
Geese ₱ doz	5 00@6 00
Turkeys ₱ doz	$24 00@----
RICE—
Carolina ₱ lb	7½@8½
Sack ₱ lb	4½@5
Rangoon ₱ lb	3½@4
SUGAR—
Louisiana ₱ lb	7 @8
"	8 @8½
"	8½@9
"	9 @9½
"	9½@10
"	10 @10½
"	10½@11
"	11 @12
"	12 @12½
"	12½@13
"	13 @14
"	14 @15
"	15 @16
"	16 @17
"	17 @18
"	18 @19
"	19 @20
"	20 @21
"	21 @22
"	22 @23
"	23 @24
"	24 @25
"	25 @26
"	26 @27
"	27 @28
"	28 @29
"	29 @30
"	30 @31
"	31 @32
"	32 @33
"	33 @34
"	34 @35
"	35 @36
"	36 @37
"	37 @38
"	38 @39
"	39 @40
"	40 @41
"	41 @42
"	42 @43
"	43 @44
"	44 @45
"	45 @46
"	46 @47
"	47 @48
"	48 @49
"	49 @50
"	50 @51
"	51 @52
"	52 @53
"	53 @54
"	54 @55
"	55 @56
"	56 @57
"	57 @58
"	58 @59
"	59 @60
"	60 @61
"	61 @62
"	62 @63
"	63 @64
"	64 @65
"	65 @66
"	66 @67
"	67 @68
"	68 @69
"	69 @70
"	70 @71
"	71 @72
"	72 @73
"	73 @74
"	74 @75
"	75 @76
"	76 @77
"	77 @78
"	78 @79
"	79 @80
"	80 @81
"	81 @82
"	82 @83
"	83 @84
"	84 @85
"	85 @86
"	86 @87
"	87 @88
"	88 @89
"	89 @90
"	90 @91
"	91 @92
"	92 @93
"	93 @94
"	94 @95
"	95 @96
"	96 @97
"	97 @98
"	98 @99
"	99 @100
"	100 @101
"	101 @102
"	102 @103
"	103 @104
"	104 @105
"	105 @106
"	106 @107
"	107 @108
"	108 @109
"	109 @110
"	110 @111
"	111 @112
"	112 @113
"	113 @114
"	114 @115
"	115 @116
"	116 @117
"	117 @118
"	118 @119
"	119 @120
"	120 @121
"	121 @122
"	122 @123
"	123 @124
"	124 @125
"	125 @126
"	126 @127
"	127 @128
"	128 @129
"	129 @130
"	130 @131
"	131 @132
"	132 @133
"	133 @134
"	134 @135
"	135 @136
"	136 @137
"	137 @138
"	138 @139
"	139 @140
"	140 @141
"	141 @142
"	142 @143
"	143 @144
"	144 @145
"	145 @146
"	146 @147
"	147 @148
"	148 @149
"	149 @150
"	150 @151
"	151 @152
"	152 @153
"	153 @154
"	154 @155
"	155 @156
"	156 @157
"	157 @158
"	158 @159
"	159 @160
"	160 @161
"	161 @162
"	162 @163
"	163 @164
"	164 @165
"	165 @166
"	166 @167
"	167 @168
"	168 @169
"	169 @170
"	170 @171
"	171 @172
"	172 @173
"	173 @174
"	174 @175
"	175 @176
"	176 @177
"	177 @178
"	178 @179
"	179 @180
"	180 @181
"	181 @182
"	182 @183
"	183 @184
"	184 @185
"	185 @186
"	186 @187
"	187 @188
"	188 @189
"	189 @190
"	190 @191
"	191 @192
"	192 @193
"	193 @194
"	194 @195
"	195 @196
"	196 @197
"	197 @198
"	198 @199
"	199 @200
"	200 @201
"	201 @202
"	202 @203
"	203 @204
"	204 @205
"	205 @206
"	206 @207
"	207 @208
"	208 @209
"	209 @210
"	210 @211
"	211 @212
"	212 @213
"	213 @214
"	214 @215
"	215 @216
"	216 @217
"	217 @218
"	218 @219
"	219 @220
"	220 @221
"	221 @222
"	222 @223
"	223 @224
"	224 @225
"	225 @226
"	226 @227
"	227 @228
"	228 @229
"	229 @230
"	230 @231
"	231 @232
"	232 @233
"	233 @234
"	234 @235
"	235 @236
"	236 @237
"	237 @238
"	238 @239
"	239 @240
"	240 @241
"	241 @242
"	242 @243
"	243 @244
"	244 @245
"	245 @246
"	246 @247
"	247 @248
"	248 @249
"	249 @250
"	250 @251
"	251 @252
"	252 @253
"	253 @254
"	254 @255
"	255 @256
"	256 @257
"	257 @258
"	258 @259
"	259 @260
"	260 @261
"	261 @262
"	262 @263
"	263 @264
"	264 @265
"	265 @266
"	266 @267
"	267 @268
"	268 @269
"	269 @270
"	270 @271
"	271 @272
"	272 @273
"	273 @274
"	274 @275
"	275 @276
"	276 @277
"	277 @278
"	278 @279
"	279 @280
"	280 @281
"	281 @282
"	282 @283
"	283 @284
"	284 @285
"	285 @286
"	286 @287
"	287 @288
"	288 @289
"	289 @290
"	290 @291
"	291 @292
"	292 @293
"	293 @294
"	294 @295
"	295 @296
"	296 @297
"	297 @298
"	298 @299
"	299 @300
"	300 @301
"	301 @302
"	302 @303
"	303 @304
"	304 @305
"	305 @306
"	306 @307
"	307 @308
"	308 @309
"	309 @310
"	310 @311
"	311 @312
"	312 @313
"	313 @314
"	314 @315
"	315 @316
"	316 @317
"	317 @318
"	318 @319
"	319 @320
"	320 @321
"	321 @322
"	322 @323
"	323 @324
"	324 @325
"	325 @326
"	326 @327
"	327 @328
"	328 @329
"	329 @330
"	330 @331
"	331 @332
"	332 @333
"	333 @334
"	334 @335
"	335 @336
"	336 @337
"	337 @338
"	338 @339
"	339 @340
"	340 @341
"	341 @342
"	342 @343
"	343 @344
"	344 @345
"	345 @346
"	346 @347
"	347 @348
"	348 @349
"	349 @350
"	350 @351
"	351 @352
"	352 @353
"	353 @354
"	354 @355
"	355 @356
"	356 @357
"	357 @358
"	358 @359
"	359 @360
"	360 @361
"	361 @362
"	362 @363
"	363 @364
"	364 @365
"	365 @366
"	366 @367
"	367 @368
"	368 @369
"	369 @370
"	370 @371
"	371 @372
"	372 @373
"	373 @374
"	374 @375
"	375 @376
"	376 @377
"	377 @378
"	378 @379
"	379 @380
"	380 @381
"	381 @382
"	382 @383
"	383 @384
"	384 @385
"	385 @386
"	386 @387
"	387 @388
"	388 @389
"	389 @390
"	390 @391
"	391 @392
"	392 @393
"	393 @394
"	394 @395
"	395 @396
"	396 @397
"	397 @398
"	398 @399
"	399 @400
"	400 @401
"	401 @402
"	402 @403
"	403 @404
"	404 @405
"	405 @406
"	406 @407
"	407 @408
"	408 @409
"	409 @410
"	410 @411
"	411 @412
"	412 @413
"	413 @414
"	414 @415
"	415 @416
"	416 @417
"	417 @418
"	418 @419
"	419 @420
"	420 @421
"	421 @422
"	422 @423
"	423 @424
"	424 @425
"	425 @426
"	426 @427
"	427 @428
"	428 @429
"	429 @430
"	430 @431
"	431 @432
"	432 @433
"	433 @434
"	434 @435
"	435 @436
"	436 @437
"	437 @438
"	438 @439
"	439 @440
"	440 @441
"	441 @442
"	442 @443
"	443 @444
"	444 @445
"	445 @446
"	446 @447
"	447 @448
"	448 @449
"	449 @450
"	450 @451
"	451 @452
"	452 @453
"	453 @454
"	454 @455
"	455 @456
"	456 @457
"	457 @458
"	458 @459
"	459 @460
"	460 @461
"	461 @462
"	462 @463
"	463 @464
"	464 @465
"	465 @466
"	466 @467
"	467 @468
"	468 @469
"	469 @470
"	470 @471
"	471 @472
"	472 @473
"	473 @474
"	474 @475
"	475 @476
"	476 @477
"	477 @478
"	478 @479
"	479 @480
"	480 @481
"	481 @482
"	482 @483
"	483 @484
"	484 @485
"	485 @486
"	486 @487
"	487 @488
"	488 @489
"	489 @490
"	490 @491
"	491 @492
"	492 @493
"	493 @494
"	494 @495
"	495 @496
"	496 @497
"	497 @498
"	498 @499
"	499 @500
"	500 @501
"	501 @502
"	502 @503
"	503 @504
"	504 @505
"	505 @506
"	506 @507
"	507 @508
"	508 @509
"	509 @510
"	510 @511
"	511 @512
"	512 @513
"	513 @514
"	514 @515
"	515 @516
"	516 @517
"	517 @518
"	518 @519
"	519 @520
"	520 @521
"	521 @522
"	522 @523
"	523 @524
"	524 @525
"	525 @526
"	526 @527
"	527 @528
"	528 @529
"	529 @530
"	530 @531
"	531 @532
"	532 @533
"	533 @534
"	534 @535
"	535 @536
"	536 @537
"	537 @538
"	538 @539
"	539 @540
"	540 @541
"	541 @542
"	542 @543
"	543 @544
"	544 @545
"	545 @546
"	546 @547
"	547 @548
"	548 @549
"	549 @550
"	550 @551
"	551 @552
"	552 @553
"	553 @554
"	554 @555
"	555 @556
"	556 @557
"	557 @558
"	558 @559
"	559 @560
"	560 @561
"	561 @562
"	562 @563
"	563 @564
"	564 @565
"	565 @566
"	566 @567
"	567 @568
"	568 @569
"	569 @570
"	570 @571
"	571 @572
"	572 @573
"	573 @574
"	574 @575
"	575 @576
"	576 @577
"	577 @578
"	578 @579
"	579 @580
"	580 @581
"	581 @582
"	582 @583
"	583 @584
"	584 @585
"	585 @586
"	586 @587
"	587 @588
"	588 @589
"	589 @590
"	590 @591
"	591 @592
"	592 @593
"	593 @594
"	594 @595
"	595 @596
"	596 @597
"	597 @598
"	598 @599
"	599 @600
"	600 @601
"	601 @602
"	602 @603
"	603 @604
"	604 @605
"	605 @606
"	606 @607
"	607 @608
"	608 @609
"	609 @610
"	610 @611
"	611 @612
"	612 @613
"	613 @614
"	614 @615
"	615 @616
"	616 @617
"	617 @618
"	618 @619
"	619 @620
"	620 @621
"	621 @622
"	622 @623
"	623 @624
"	624 @625
"	625 @626
"	626 @627
"	627 @628
"	628 @629
"	629 @630
"	630 @631
"	631 @632
"	632 @633
"	633 @634
"	634 @635
"	635 @636
"	636 @637
"	637 @638
"	638 @639
"	639 @640
"	640 @641
"	641 @642
"	642 @643
"	643 @644
"	644 @645
"	645 @646
"	646 @647
"	647 @648
"	648 @649
"	649 @650
"	650 @651
"	651 @652
"	652 @653
"	653 @654
"	654 @655
"	655 @656
"	656 @657
"	657 @658
"	658 @659
"	659 @660
"	660 @661
"	661 @662
"	662 @663
"	663 @664
"	664 @665
"	665 @666
"	666 @667
"	667 @668
"	668 @669
"	669 @670
"	670 @671
"	671 @672
"	672 @673
"	673 @674
"	674 @675
"	675 @676
"	676 @677
"	677 @678
"	678 @679
"	679 @680
"	680 @681
"	681 @682
"	682 @683
"	683 @684
"	684 @685
"	685 @686
"	686 @687
"	687 @688
"	688 @689
"	689 @690
"	690 @691
"	691 @692
"	692 @693
"	693 @694
"	694 @695
"	695 @696
"	696 @697
"	697 @698
"	698 @699
"	699 @700
"	700 @701
"	701 @702
"	702 @703
"	703 @704
"	704 @705
"	705 @706
"	706 @707
"	707 @708
"	708 @709
"	709 @710
"	710 @711
"	711 @712
"	712 @713
"	713 @714
"	714 @715
"	715 @716
"	716 @717
"	717 @718
"	718 @719
"	719 @720
"	720 @721
"	721 @722
"	722 @723
"	723 @724
"	724 @725
"	725 @726
"	726 @727
"	727 @728
"	728 @729
"	729 @730
"	730 @731
"	731 @732
"	732 @733
"	733 @734
"	734 @735
"	735 @736
"	736 @737
"	737 @738
"	738 @739
"	739 @740
"	740 @741
"	741 @742
"	742 @743
"	743 @744
"	744 @745
"	745 @746
"	746 @747
"	747 @748
"	748 @749
"	749 @750
"	750 @751
"	751 @752
"	752 @753
"	753 @754
"	754 @755
"	755 @756
"	756 @757
"	757 @758
"	758 @759
"	759 @760
"	760 @761
"	761 @762
"	762 @763
"	763 @764
"	764 @765
"	765 @766
"	766 @767
"	767 @768
"	768 @769
"	769 @770
"	770 @771
"	771 @772
"	772 @773
"	773 @774
"	774 @775
"	775 @776
"	776 @777
"	777 @778
"	778 @779
"	779 @780
"	780 @781
"	781 @782
"	782 @783
"	783 @784
"	784 @785
"	785 @786
"	786 @787
"	787 @788
"	788 @789
"	789 @790
"	790 @791
"	791 @792
"	792 @793
"	793 @794
"	794 @795
"	795 @796
"	796 @797
"	797 @798
"	798 @799
"	799 @800
"	800 @801
"	801 @802
"	802 @803
"	803 @804
"	804 @805
"	805 @806
"	806 @807
"	807 @808
"	808 @809
"	809 @810
"	810 @811
"	811 @812
"	812 @813
"	813 @814
"	814 @815
"	815 @816
"	816 @817
"	817 @818
"	818 @819
"	819 @820
"	820 @821
"	821 @822
"	822 @823
"	823 @824
"	824 @825
"	825 @826
"	826 @827
"	827 @828
"	828 @829
"	829 @830
"	830 @831
"	831 @832
"	832 @833
"	833 @834
"	834 @835
"	835 @836
"	836 @837
"	837 @838
"	838 @839
"	839 @840
"	840 @841
"	841 @842
"	842 @843
"	843 @844
"	844 @845
"	845 @846
"	846 @847
"	847 @848
"	848 @849
"	849 @850
"	850 @851
"	851 @852
"	852 @853
"	853 @854
"	854 @855
"	855 @856
"	856 @857
"	857 @858
"	858 @859
"	859 @860
"	860 @861
"	861 @862
"	862 @863
"	863 @864
"	864 @865
"	865 @866
"	866 @867
"	867 @868
"	868 @869
"	869 @870
"	870 @871
"	871 @872
"	872 @873
"	873 @874
"	874 @875
"	875 @876
"	876 @877
"	877 @878
"	878 @879
"	879 @880
"	880 @881
"	881 @882
"	882 @883
"	883 @884
"	884 @885
"	885 @886
"	886 @887
"	887 @888
"	888 @889
"	889 @890
"	890 @891
"	891 @892
"	892 @893
"	893 @894
"	894 @895
"	895 @896
"	896 @897
"	897 @898
"	898 @899
"	899 @900
"	900 @901
"	901 @902
"	902 @903
"	903 @904
"	904 @905
"	905 @906
"	906 @907
"	907 @908
"	908 @909
"	909 @910
"	910 @911
"	911 @912
"	912 @913
"	913 @914
"	914 @915
"	915 @916
"	916 @917
"	917 @918
"	918 @919
"	919 @920
"	920 @921
"	921 @922
"	922 @923
"	923 @924
"	924 @925
"	925 @926
"	926 @927
"	927 @928
"	928 @929
"	929 @930
"	930 @931
"	931 @932
"	932 @933
"	933 @934
"	934 @935
"	935 @936
"	936 @937
"	937 @938
"	938 @939
"	939 @940
"	940 @941
"	941 @942
"	942 @943
"	943 @944
"	944 @945
"	945 @946
"	946 @947
"	947 @948
"	948 @949
"	949 @950
"	950 @951
"	951 @952
"	952 @953
"	953 @954
"	954 @955
"	955 @956
"	956 @957
"	957 @958
"	958 @959
"	959 @960
"	960 @961
"	961 @962
"	962 @963
"	963 @964
"	964 @965
"	965 @966
"	966 @967
"	967 @968
"	968 @969
"	969 @970
"	970 @971
"	971 @972
"	972 @973
"	973 @974
"	974 @975
"	975 @976
"	976 @977
"	977 @978
"	978 @979
"	979 @980
"	980 @981
"	981 @982
"	982 @983
"	983 @984
"	984 @985
"	985 @986
"	986 @987
"	987 @988
"	988 @989
"	989 @990
"	990 @991
"	991 @992
"	992 @993
"	993 @994
"	994 @995
"	995 @996
"	996 @997
"	997 @998
"	998 @999
"	999 @1000

"The principle of combining English and American writers in a common literary enterprise, merits all encouragement."—J. Anthony Froude.

THE
INTERNATIONAL REVIEW,
A NEW YORK AND LONDON REVIEW.
EMINENT CONTRIBUTORS ON BOTH SIDES OF THE ATLANTIC. (No articles at second hand. All articles original.)

CONTENTS.—MAY-JUNE—NOW READY.

The New Administration.
The Life Insurance Question. Carlton T. Lewis.
Disestablishment of the Church of England. Rt. Rev. James H. Rigg, London.
The Philadelphia Exhibition.—Part I. Mechanism and Administration. Francis A. Chief of the Bureau of Awards.
Tennyson.—A Criticism.....Bayard Taylor.
Our Foreign Service.....Hon. John Jay.
American and European Literature. Phillip Gilbert Hamerton.
Contemporary Events.

Price, Single Number, $1. For six months $3. Annual subscription (6 numbers) $5.
New York: A. S. BARNES & CO., Publishers.
apr27-10t]

Texas Lands.

Best Investment in the Nation!

640 acres rich prairie loam, producing cotton, grains, fruit and vegetables, and adapted to stock, lying in the high and healthful latitude of Northwestern Texas, for the nominal sum of $266.

Title Patent, direct and perfect. Taxes low. Worth several times the cost. Now is your time to plant a small sum fruitfully. No fraud. All work personally supervised. Handled in the interest of education in Texas. Full particulars furnished on application, (with stamps).

References: Rev. Wm. Brush, D.D., P. E. Austin District, Austin, Texas; First National Bank, Dallas, Texas; State Savings Bank, Dallas, Texas, or editor of this paper. Address

REV. L. H. CARHART,
West Texas Conference.
☞Box 377, Dallas, Texas. [a19-tf

A. R. NELSON,

Commercial Stationer, Printer, Blank BOOK MANUFACTURER and LITHOGRAPHER.

THE best assortment of Blank Books in the city.

The Finest Specimens of Lithographic work to be found in New Orleans.

No. 57 CAMP STREET,

Sign of the Mammoth Letter Press.

☞Call and Prove My Statements. [oct12-76 1y

A. P. HARRINGTON,

No. 118 Canal Street,

New Orleans, La.

Dealer in

LAW, MEDICAL, SCHOOL, RELIGIOUS, AGRICULTURAL AND MISCELLANEOUS

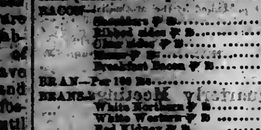
BOOKS

Stationery, Gold Pens and Pencils. Pocket Books, Card Cases, Pocket Knives, Scrap Books, Chromos, Photograph Albums, Stereoscopes, Maps, Globes, Writing Desks, Etc.

☞ PRINTING, RULING and BINDING.

Subscriptions taken for Newspapers and Magazines, Payable in advance.

☞ Country Orders Solicited. ☜ [a19-76 1y



WILL most positively cure any case of rheumatism or rheumatic gout, no matter how long standing, on the face of the earth. Being an inward application it does the work quickly, thoroughly and permanently, leaving the system strong and healthy. Write to any prominent person in Washington city, and you will learn that the above statement is true in every particular.

Washington, July

Southwestern Christian Advocate.

NEW SERIES—VOL. 1—NO. 20. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, MAY 17, 1877. WHOLE NUMBER 350.

SOUTHWESTERN
Christian Advocate.
PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT
29 Natchez St., New Orleans.
BY
NELSON & PHILLIPS,
FOR THE
Methodist Episcopal Church.

Terms: $2 a year, Cash in Advance.

All Travelling Preachers of the Methodist Episcopal Church are authorised Agents.

Subscriptions may begin at any time and the paper will be sent as long as paid for.

Remittances must be made by Registered Letter, P. O. Money Order, or by Express.

Advertising Rates.
(Per Nonpariel line, each insertion.)

One time or more	8 cents
One month, (4 times)	7 "
Three months, (13 times)	6 "
Six months, ([illegible] times)	5 "
One year, ([illegible] times)	4 "
[illegible] notices	25 "
Special Notices	8 cents, net cash.

Between the Lights.

A little pause in life while daylight lingers
Between the sunset and the pale moonrise,
When daily labor slips from weary fingers
And soft grey shadows veil the aching eyes.

Old perfumes wander back from fields of clover,
Seen in the light of suns that long have set;
Beloved ones, whose earthly toil is over,
Draw near, as if they lived among us yet.

Old voices call me; through the dusk returning,
I hear the echo of departed feet;
And then I ask, with vain and troubled yearning:
What is the charm that make old things so sweet?

"Peace! peace!" The Lord of earth and Heaven knoweth
The human soul in all its heat and strife;
Out of his throne no stream of Lethe floweth,
But the clear river of Eternal Life.

He giveth life, aye, life in all its sweetness;
Old loves, old sunny scenes will he restore;
Only the curse of sin and incompleteness
Shall taint thine earth and vex thy heart no more.

Serve him with daily work and honest living,
And faith shall lift thee to her sunlit hights,
While a sweet psalm of gladness and thanksgiving
Shall fill the hour that comes "between the lights."

Preaching in Song.

BY IRA D. SANKEY.

I believe there are more ways of praising God than by singing hymns. There is another kind of singing which I observe here in Boston and elsewhere. It is put under the head of praise, while there is no praise in it at all. Singing to one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs; now this is solo singing, or singing alone, as we have been doing here and elsewhere. I conceive that this kind of singing is not thoroughly understood by most of the people. That is to say, our understanding of it and theirs are not alike. If I should come here and sing a solo, as we shall have to-night some songs sung in that way, there is no praise in that; [illegible] in our prayers on this platform [illegible] ask God's blessing upon [illegible] of praises, and we join [illegible] his praise. [illegible] ever ask a blessing [illegible] of his word in [illegible] mission of preaching [illegible] in song is not under[illegible]y. I believe that the [illegible] "Jesus of Nazareth passeth [illegible] Ninety and Nine," [illegible] the harvest be?" [illegible] a word of praise, and [illegible] in all the meet[illegible] country. I wish [illegible] the distinction [illegible] hymns is to teach, [illegible] such as "Praise God, [illegible] blessings flow," and [illegible] of my soul," are [illegible] whole congre[illegible] praising God. [illegible] to sit here and try [illegible] for this whole [illegible] be a strange per[illegible]

[illegible] many wonder why I [illegible] to praise God. It [illegible] that by these [illegible] I might reach [illegible] great congrega[illegible] God that he has [illegible] sung in these [illegible] God has been [illegible] when it has [illegible] testimonies [illegible] poor [illegible] message [illegible] these little [illegible] therefore, I [illegible] have faith [illegible] way of de[illegible] of love; and [illegible] heartily [illegible] the [illegible] the bed[illegible] and [illegible] you [illegible]

Wiley University, Marshall Texas.

BY REV. W. H. DAVIS.

The Texas Annual Conference, at its last session passed a resolution to take up a collection at sometime during the present year in aid of Wiley University. With our educational work on a good footing, we can raise the banner of our church in many new fields already whitering for the harvest; but without an improvement in this respect and an awakened enthusiasm on the subject, we will hold but our ground already occupied with tremulous hand. Most marvelous have been our successes, but like raw militia we have hurled back the opposing powers without the necessary discipline to make good our conquests, and carry forward this work, so grandly begun, to ultimate success. Wherever Christianity has shed its gladdening rays, it has not attempted to hold its ground without fostering the cause of education. The light of education follows everywhere in the wake of religion; and darkness, poverty, and vice, only haunt the countries and dwellings where religion is not known. "Methodism was born and cradled in a College," and much of its success it owes to the polished minds that shaped its doctrines, and directed its policies. In keeping with progressive Methodism the Texas Conference passed this resolution. We hail the breaking morn of better times. The Freedmen's Aid Society proposes to put up for us a new College Building, provided only that we rally to their aid. The church through this society has done nobly, and we can hardly ask them to do more, unless we are willing to do something ourselves. The good work is already begun. Marshall begins the work with a $6000 subscription, Jefferson promises $147 on subscription, and the work is only begun. Let all respond to this call. Wiley University ought to be sustained well if it is worthy of our support at all. Dr. Rust, Cor. Sect. of Freedmen's Aid Society, has promised as much as we will raise. We need a $10,000 building to meet our wants. Can we not raise half of this amount. Heretofore our school has been crippled for the want of sufficient accomodations. We trust every member of our Conference will raise all that can possibly be raised. Subscriptions will be duly credited in the SOUTHWESTERN. I give below an additional list of subscriptions secured.

MARSHALL.		B. Wright	$ 5
John Scott	$ 25	J. F. Thomas	5
Abraham Robinson	25	Mack Richard	5
Jack Gant	60	Jo. Seamore	5
Sandy Edwards	5	Fred Tyler	5
Robert Ray	5	D. Scott	5
Maryland Baltimore	60	Jane Worthern	1
J. K. Price	20	A. Harper	5
Jerry Moore	5	Robert Williams	10
Alonzo McFarlin	5	J. W. White	10
Felix Grundy	5	Pryor Lee	5
W. J. Powel	5	J. Robertson	5
James McCarver	5	J. Snips	5
Charley Pemberton	5	A. Jones	5
Knall Golightly	20	Frank Grayson	5
Henry Oliver	10	John Hemes	5
T. B. Cooper, Jef	5	John Simpson	5
King L. Williams	10	A. Williams	5
James Massey	10	James Evans	7
W. E. Singleton	20	Charley Williams	5
J. P. Lynch	10	S. Smalley	1
Jordon Strong	2	James Jordon	5
Edward Phillips	2	Fanny Jordon	2
Mann Ware	10	Charles Haughn	3
Frank Dunlap	5	J. Brisker	1
E. A. Snow	1	F. C. Bishop	5
George Augustus	300	E. Davis	5
Ben. Warsch	100	O. Wheeler	2
C. A. Crawford	50	C. Garlon	1
W. H. Pope	5	C. M. Campbell	2
SUBSCRIPTIONS FROM JEFFERSON.		A. G. Halaway	5
		James Homes	2
George Gill	2	W. P. Woodroof	3

India Methodism.

—Northern Christian Advocate gives the following interesting facts concerning Methodist missions in India. The Methodist work in India is divided into two Annual Conferences, North and South. In 1876 1,174 probationers, 2,460 members and 8,190 Sunday school scholars were reported. "There has been money enough contributed in India by the people living there directly to the treasury of our mission, to pay all the salaries of all the missionaries sent out by our church, with their wives, from the very beginning of our work until now. More than that, the sums raised in India for our work would exceed this by at least $50,000, possibly by $100,000. Besides this, however, there have been contributions to our work, not reported to our treasury there, which amount to a considerable sum. For instance the Bible and Tract Societies of India have contributed the cost of an average of fifteen colporteurs for some years past, all of whom have been exhorters, preachers or Bible readers, and all of whom have labored exclusively in our own mission field and under our own missionaries, just as if they were paid by our society. The societies have also donated literature which, we judge, in round numbers, to stand about as follows for my five years past: Vernacular Old Testament, 60 copies; New Testament, 2,500 copies; portions of Scripture, 15,000; Bibles, over [illegible] of tracts, considerably [illegible]. All these have, of [illegible] to our general [illegible] and augment our [illegible] from India resources to [illegible] than half a million of dollars.

Ecumenical Council of Methodism.

The proposition for an ecumenical council of Methodism was evidently received with much favor at the late General Conference. A committee appointed by the Bishops has the matter in hand. We can see no grave reason to hesitate before such a proposition, even were there no very important reason for encouraging it. Of course the council would have no legislative power; it could enact nothing hazardous to the Churches. At most it could make suggestions for the action of the only authoritive bodies of the denomination. Its importance and power would necessarily be entirely moral; and in this respect it would not only be safe, but might be most salutary.

Methodism has become so ecumenical in extent and in common interests that an ecumenical gathering might well be approved as a means of promoting its common ties, of invigorating its common spirit. The latest authentic summary of its numerical force which we have seen (Methodist Almanac for 1876) gives for the whole world:

Itinerant Ministers	27,812
Local Preachers	69, 180
Lay Members	4,172,579

These millions scattered around the world, maintain a certain moral unity which is represented by delegates from the leading branches of the denomination in their respective highest assemblies. These assemblies are, however, bodies of great and pressing labors, legislative, judicial, executive; they have hardly time enough for their indispensable business, much less for purely religious exercises or moral ends We fear that few Methodists would find a visit to the Methodist General Conference a special means of grace. Nor could they reasonably expect it to be so. The sessions are particularly for business—for legislation, and its attendant incidents of discussion, debate, canvassing, even caucussing, and the nomination and election of candidates for office Whosoever expects to find the more spiritual phases of Church life especialy brought out amid such scenes knows little of human nature, and perhaps demands too much of it.

An ecumenical council would be exempt from most of the harassing, hurrying incidents of a General Conference. It would be preeminently a devotional, rather than a business assembly. Its spirit would be its chief power, and that spirit could hardly fail to radiate out from the central assembly to all the circumference of the denomination. It should be a baptism of the Holy Spirit and of fire; and the gathering might well be looked to as a pentecostal one, for the promotion of Methodistic catholicity and the renewal of spiritual Church life. It would, indeed, be a grand occassion in this respect alone—the interchange of fraternal greetings among representative Methodists from all the ends of the earth; the commingling of their prayers and praises; the reports of their work, their prosperities and adversities, from their many and far seperated nations, and the devout communication of opinions and counsels on subjects common to them all. The "love feast" of such a meeting ought to be a sublime scene.

There might, also, be some more directly practical matters considered by such an assembly. The relations of their respective mission fields might be better adjusted, providing against mutual intrusions by defining better their respective boundaries, and thereby securing a better distribution of their common work. Though this could not be legislatively accomplished, it could be better ascertained in such a gathering than anywhere else, and perhaps be effectively suggested to the bodies having power in the premises.

There is one thing especially which we should like to see attempted by such a council, namely, the introduction of a common psalmody or hymnal for universal Methodism. Charles Wesley's hymns have been called the liturgy of Methodism. They were so once, but we have now different hymn books in the different great sections of the denomination. Why should not a Methodist, travelling in any part of the wide world, be able, on entering any Methodist chapel, to sing his old hymns, to recognize the old denominational liturgy of song, as readily as a member of the Church of England finds his old prayer book in all the colonies and chaplaincies of his nation. A common hymnal for universal Methodism would be one of the best possible guarantees of moral unity to our growing brotherhood throughout the world. Charles Wesley's hymns should be the chief substance of such a psalmody, but there could be added any desirable amount of other hymns, to adapt the book to the wants of the denomination.

Such a council might also lead to a uniform plan of congregational worship for universal Methodism. Every Methodist, traveling anywhere on the planet, should know exactly what to do when he enters a Methodist church or chapel; but he would find it impossible nowadays. Not only do we differ, in detail at least, in different countries, but among ourselves at home. We have tried to attain uniformity, but have not succeeded. An ecumenical agreement in this respect would have moral weight enough, we think, to settle the question. Most good Methodists would be willing to sacrifice any local or personal partialities for entire denominational uniformity.

But the moral advantages of such a convention would be its chief recommendation; and these might be precious beyond all price. At least one attempt of the kind should be made, even should we not approve of ecumenical councils in general. One gathering, one devout, universal greeting of Methodists, could not fail to be a signal; a salutary, a sublime occasion, even should we then adjourn to meet no more in the present generation. The Presbyterians have had a similar gathering in London, under the presidency of Dr. M'Cosb, and found it a blessing. At this epoch of the general revival of the higher spiritual life in Protestant Christendom—a marvelous revival of what for a long time had been almost peculiar and distinctive ideas of Methodism—an ecumenical gathering of Methodists, without dogmatic discussions, might give a world-wide inspiration to the highest spiritual aspirations of the denomination; might turn back the tide of worldliness with which our great temporal prosperity threatens us; and might bring out more prominently than ever, before not only our own denomination, but the whole Christian world, what was Wesley's greatest idea of Methodism: its chief mission in the world, its "grand depositum," as he called it, the doctrine of holiness, the "spread of scriptural holiness over these lands"—over all lands. The advocates of this one idea would, doubtless, favor an ecumenical gathering for its promotion alone, and deem that single motive a sufficient justification of so great an occasion. Much more would it be desirable if, in connection with such a purpose, it could accomplish the other ends we have mentioned.—N. Y. Advocate.

Noah and the Antediluvians.

"And the Lord said unto Noah, Come thou and all thy house into the ark, for thee have I seen righteous before me in this generation." When God speaks we want to listen. This text is from His own lips; they are His own words. It was the voice of grace; it was the voice of mercy. God called Noah out of the world that must be destroyed, and one hundred and twenty years before Noah had the most awful communication that had ever come from heaven to earth. God had told him that He was going to destroy the world. The world was corrupt. Men lived longer than they do now, and they had time to go into all manner of sin; and there was not any sin those men did not plunge into. They cared nothing for God's word, and now he was coming to rise in judgment, but he came first in mercy. These Antediluvians were warned. Noah's building that ark right before them all those years was a warning to them. But they didn't believe the word of God. They said God could not destroy the world if He wanted to. Noah told them that the deluge would come, but they did not believe it; they could not see any sign of a storm. But Noah knew that God would come and judge the world in righteousness, and all those long years he preached righteousness. I don't doubt that often the sound of the carpenters' tools was not heard in the ark, and that Noah was off upon the hills preaching. Not a man outside of his own family believed him. The carpenters didn't believe in him, and you can see them in billiard saloons scoffing at him and ridiculing him. But they worked for him because he paid as well as any one else, and it was money they were after. They cared nothing for Noah. There were probably a great many visitors to it, and they made sport about it, and if they had performances, and I don't doubt that they did, you would see that ark represented at them. People said they would not be influenced by that fanatic that was going out of his mind. Some one said that Noah must have been deaf that he did not hear this scoffing, but if he were deaf he could hear the voice of God, and he obeyed it. One hundred years passed and there was no sign of the deluge. They said there is no sign of its coming, and Noah has been telling this for one hundred years. Where are the signs of the coming storm? Methusaleh told them nothing about it. Yet the old man toiled on until it was finished. The people continued to laugh. They said they never were more prosperous. If God was going to destroy the world why did He let them prosper as they were doing. When the ark was finished Noah moved into it. As long as he remained outside of it they did not mind it so much, but when he moved into it they were somewhat astonished, and some of his neighbors wanted to know what he was going to do with his old homestead. And he said, "Any one may have it, for God is going to destroy the world." And men reason that way now. They say: "If these things you preach are true, why don't the whole world believe." There are a great many who don't believe it, and they think because the world don't believe what God says He will do that He will not do it, and that these threatenings and warnings in the Bible are just to frighten a few weak-minded people, and the strong-minded are not moved by them at all.

We are told that God shut Noah in. Bear in mind, Noah didn't shut that door, but God shut him in. "When once the master of the house has risen up and shut the door, there is no hope." The door that shut Noah in shut the world out, and the moment the door was shut the doom of the world were sealed. Noah was safe in the ark, but God gave them seven days of grace; and I can just imagine, during this seven days of grace, they still were all ridiculing Noah. Christ gives us the picture, for there was not one left to tell the story. He said, "They bought and sold, and were married and given in marriage, till the flood came and took them all away." Judgment came suddenly. You will find when God has risen to judge the world He will come suddenly. Bear in mind some in this vast assembly are spending their last year on earth, and some their last month. But the last year had come to those antediluvians, the last month had come, the last week had come, the last day had come, and now the last hour had come. The sun has gone down and they have seen it for the last time. When it shall rise the next morning the clouds shall obscure it from their faces. I don't know what time the storm set in, but I can imagine it was midnight. They heard the rolling thunder, and perhaps the women at first were alarmed, and then the children began to grow frightened. It kept on raining, and not only did it rain, but the fountains of the deep were broken up, and the great ocean burst its chains and flowed over its banks and the rivers began to swell. The people who lived on the low lands now began to climb up the mountain side. But the storm didn't abate. And, my friends, that storm was not twenty hours, no, it was not ten hours, before that ark of Noah was worth more than all the world put together. So, a time is coming that Christ will be worth more to each one of us than the whole world; for the heavens and the earth are to be destroyed, they shall roll together like a scroll. If we have an interest in Christ, and if we are hid in His ark, it will be worth more than ten thousand worlds like this. But the storm rages. I have no doubt but that a crowd gathered around the ark and cried to Noah, "Let us in." But there came a voice from within: "God has shut the door, I cannot open it. The Lord has shut me in." The people began to build boats, but the storm did not abate. Business was all suspended the first day. Bear in mind there was no distinction between their great men and their little men; their mighty men and their wise men; their learned and unlearned, they all perished alike. Every man outside the ark was swept away. The ark was the only safe place of refuge, and they had mocked and made light, and ridiculed Noah and his entreaties, and now they must perish. I have no doubt they cried for mercy; but it was too late. People now cavil at religion. They scoff at the God of Noah; they cavil at people; they make light of these services; but oh! my friends, the time is coming when these scoffers will pray; and they will cry out to God for mercy; but we are told in Scripture that the time is coming when it will be too late. Then prayers will not be heard; then prayers will not be answered. You to-day are on praying ground; to-day you can intercede with God if you will. Every thing may be very prosperous, but oh! how suddenly judgment may come. It may come to some of us here to-day; it may be that some of us here to day are bearing our last invitation to come into the ark. Let me extend it to you again. "Come thou and all thy house into the ark."—Moody.

A memorial of colored citizens of Louisiana was presented to the President recently by T. Morris Chester and James M. Vance, indorsing Gov. Packard but accepting the situation, and asking the appointment to Federal offices in Louisiana of men who have the respect of the whites and the confidence of the blacks. The President said he had no doubt his policy would bring ample protection to the colored people and a happier condition of affairs. He had no idea of deserting the colored people, and in the event of changes in the Federal offices in Louisiana representative colored men would be recognized.

The Duty of Parents to Baptize Their Children.

First. It is the duty of parents to baptize their children because baptism is substituted in the place of circumcision. Upon this point all that the argument strictly requires is that it be shown that baptism answers the same ends to the Church under the New Testament that circumcision did to the same Church under the Old Testament.

(1) The Church under the Old Testament and that under the New are substantially one and indentical.

(2.) Circumcision under the Old Testament was the initiating rite into the Church, the same as baptism is under the New Testament.

(3.) Circumcision was an indication of purity of heart. As the flesh which was circumcised was not cast away, it indicated the putting off all carnal and fleshly lusts which war against the soul; or as Paul says, it was putting off the sins of the flesh. To this baptism now answers. Circumcision attested the right of the person who bore its mark to the blessing of the covenant of Abraham, which covenant embraced the Messiah. So baptism in the New Testament, is but the mature and complete development of the Abrahamic covenant, and baptism attests our connection therewith and our right thereto. Must not baptism then be considered as succeeding to circumcision?

Second. It is the duty of parents to baptize their children because of the relation that baptized infants hold to the Church. It is important to our general interest that we should understand that baptism introduces a person into the catholic or general Church of Christ.

Third. It is the duty of parents to baptize their children, because the principle of infant Church membership is recognized by civil laws, sound reason and the practices of civilized nations.

Fourth. It is the duty of parents to baptize their children, because infant baptism is an impressive memorial of original sin. "Behold." says David "I was shapen in iniquity and in sin did my mother conceive me." No method could have been adopted which could have more fitly aroused the human mind to a just sense of corruption of our nature and of our utter need of sanctification in order to enjoy the favor of God. This is the Jewish ritual respecting outward washing, the same emblematical sense is preserved in the Christian ordinance of baptism and in this sense the rite is fitly applied to infants.

Fifth. It is the duty of parents to baptize their children, because they belong to the kingdom of heaven, as that term applies to this life, for if it be not synonymous with, evidently it includes idea of the visible Church. Our Savior affirms that infants are included in the kingdom of heaven, and thus affirms what is tantamount to their Church membership. And what is the grand object of the visible Church but to gather together in one, all the people, whether Jews or Gentiles, and thus to erect a spiritual kingdom in this sindisordered world.

A FATAL MIRACLE.—Nothwithstanding the success which has attended some of the pretended miracles of Rome, others have sometimes failed of the desired result. The Imparcial, a Spanish paper, is credited with the following story, the events of which occurred at Cervera, a town of 5,000 inhabitants, in the Province of Logrono:

A rich proprietor, well known in the country for his advanced opinions, refused on his death bed to accept any spiritual help, nothwithstanding the prayers of his family and the advice of his best friends. There was a moment, however, when it was thought that the patient had modified his determination. The priest of the parish presented himself by the bedside of the dying man, but finding that he persisted in his refusal, he retired precipitately, saying aloud to those present that after the death of the reprobate the devil would come in person to take charge of his body, and conduct him to hell. Two days after, the family were watching over the corpse of the relative they had lost, when the door of the mourning room was suddenly flung open, and an indefinable being, dressed in scarlet, smelling of sulphur, and dragging an immense tail, presented himself before the mourners, who, full of terror, rushed away from the room. On hearing the screams of these people, a man-servant, who was in the next room, snatched up a revolver and entered the scene of the scandal. As may be supposed, he stood terrified at the sight of the devil; but thinking that it would be better to kill his infernal majesty than be killed by him, he fired three shots at him point blank. Shortly after, the family of the deceased found themselves face to face with the sacristan of the parish, deguise en diable, with three shots in his breast, and the foam of death upon his lips. The authorities at once interfered and took four priests into custody. On the following day the unhappy sacristan was buried.

General News Items.

Brigham Young is arming and drilling the Latter-day Saints, to resist Federal authority.

Europe has no grain to spare. Asia is exhausted, and the United State alone have a surplus of provisions.

Carlotta, wife of the unfortunate Maximilian, of Mexico, is slowly fading away at Brussels. She is hopelessly insane, and is a prey to the wildest madness, in which she breaks everything that comes to hand.

Three hundred girls were recently reported to have been sold as slaves in Cairo, and the British Government has requested its representative in Egypt to make inquires with a view to remonstrance.

Part of a large meteor, which passed over Vermont recently, has been found buried four feet in the earth. It is composed of iron ore, lava and soapstone. It weighs two tons.

In Corvell county, Texas, on the 22nd ult., Mr. Alex. McEtheney and Miss Bettie McAdams, both deaf and dumb from infancy, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony The marriage service was written out, and the couple placed their fingers on the words "I will," and thus promised to love, cherish etc.,

North Carolina's cotton crop last year was 250,000 bales, worth $13,000,000. This is a small portion of the State's possible capacity, and the Legislature is considering the founding of agricultural colleges and draining Great and Little Dismal Swamps, which would give some 3,000,000 additional acres of cotton land.

"Uncle Tom," Rev. Josiah Henson, is now 88 years old. He has recently been to England, and by lecturing, etc., collected $7,000 for his home and school in Canada. He told the Archbishop of Canterbury that he graduated at the University of Adversity.

There is a heavy foreign demand in the United States for ship-building timber by European nations. Great Britain is buying largely. The live oak in the country is mostly owned by the United States government, and is stored in the navy yards.

The New Braunfells, Texas, woolen mills are now meeting with an extensive demand for their fabrics from various portions of the country; large quantities are now sold in Missouri, Kansas and Arkansas. The manufacture of cadet cloth has been commenced and soon the various military schools in Texas will adopt it in preference to that imported from the east.

During July an aeronautic convention will be held in Philadelphia. Professor Coleman will attempt to cross the atlantic in an air ship, constructed on a new model, and which will be inflated with hot air instead of gas. Arrangements are also in progress for a grand easterly current balloon race between six of the prominent aeronants of this country, the six balloons to ascend simultaneously from West Philadelphia, and the aeronaut making the greatest distance in an easterly course from the point of departure to be declared the champion aeronaut of the United States, and receive a gold medal.

Certain persons of New York, Williamsburg, and Union Hill, N. J., claim to have recently made the discovery that they are the heirs to property in Philadelphia, estimated at $150,000,000, and are about to institute proceedings for its possession. It is claimed that one Henry Becker came to this country in 1741, and located in Philadelphia, where he resided until his death in 1801 or 1802. During those years he accumulated a large property. Having never married, he bequeathed his entire wealth to his only sister, who had two sons, Ludwig and George Maudller, residing in the old country. It appears that these men took no steps towards its recovery, but their descendants intend to enforce their claim. The property consists not only of valuable blocks in Philadelphia, but also of a block of houses on Third Street, New York, the entire town of Beckerville, Berk County, Penn., about forty miles from Philadelphia. The lawyers may gain something.

The Washington correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette says nothing hurts the President so much as the charge that he will forget the interests of the emancipated race in the South. The correspondent adds: "Nothing troubles him more than this. All the labors of the President are easy beside the burden of being unjustly accused. He was a supporter of the Republican party when it first had an existence. Even in his boyhood his sympathy was with Garrison and Phillips on the anti-slavery platform. The idea that he could forget for a moment the great opportunity he has of bettering the condition of the freed people of the South is so preposterous that he has hardly the patience to assure his accusers of their mistake."

SOUTHWESTERN
Christian Advocate.
30 Natchez St., New Orleans.

J. C. HARTZELL, B.D., EDITOR

THURSDAY, MAY 17, 1877.

Col. J. K. Berry of Chicago, a Baptist minister and well-known railroad operator of that city, was in New Orleans attending the Southern Baptist Convention, and gave us a friendly call on Wednesday.

Rev. Conrad A. Sipe, of Pittsburg Conference of the Methodist Protestant ... Church gave us a call last week. He is spending a few weeks in the South for his health.

Mr. W. H. Thomas has been appointed District Superintendent of the Southwestern Bible Society. He has been successfully engaged in the work of a colporteur for several years, in the other states.

The Protestant population of Rome is four thousand. The whole population of the city is 245,000. The late anniversary of the establishment of the Methodist church in Rome, was a joyful occasion. The largest theatre of the city was crowded.

Our Missionary Secretaries report that letters from different parts of Turkey received lately, indicate no anxiety on the part of the missionaries for their personal safety. So far as heard from the Turkish government, has favored them in every instance.

[illegible] Texas State Sunday-school [illegible] held lately at Houston [illegible]. The attendance was good, and the work of thoroughly [illegible] every county in the [illegible] planned for the coming [illegible] L. H. Carhart, of [illegible] was president of the Convention.

[illegible] Baptist Convention [illegible] in this city last [illegible] large and influential [illegible] the Southern States [illegible] Home Missions, [illegible] work among the [illegible] of the South, occupied a good share of the time of the Convention.

[illegible] Mrs. Godman having [illegible] some parties find fault [illegible] name "New Orleans [illegible]" applied to the [illegible] are organizing to take [illegible] them, wish us to [illegible] have not yet named [illegible] The SOUTHWESTERN [illegible] the name above, and [illegible] a good one, and see no [illegible] unfavorable criticism [illegible]

[illegible] sometimes names sent [illegible] request on the part [illegible] we charge to his [illegible] the statement that [illegible] for them. [illegible] to remember [illegible] in advance [illegible] on our sub- [illegible] If a [illegible] can not [illegible] part be ad- [illegible] time.

[illegible] to try the [illegible] including [illegible] Hamburg [illegible] all the [illegible] ex- [illegible] gravest [illegible] only three [illegible] are to be [illegible] free. [illegible]

The Church of God.

The church of the living God is unlike any other body in the world, in the fact that while in one sense it is a human organization, yet in another there enters into it the element of divinity—like Christ its Founder, it is both human and divine.

The language of Gamaliel was indeed replete with significance when he said—"if this counsel or this work be of man it will come to naught—but if it be of God ye cannot overthrow it; lest happy, ye be found to fight against God."

The word church etymologically considered is most likely derived from the Greek word Kuriakon from Kurios—Lord, and hence (church) means the the Lord's house. We have as derivatives the Scottish Kirk. The German Kirche and the English Church. The word Ekklesia by others has been held to be the original word rather than Kuriakon.

In the New Testament the Greek word Ekklesia is found in many places in the sense of calling, as in Matt. 16: 18. "Upon this rock I will build my church"—Ekklesian from Klesis a calling, or Kletor called," and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it."

As synomymous with the word Ekklesia Christ uses the term "Kingdom of God"—"Kingdom of Heaven"—"Thy Kingdom," etc.

Hence we are to conclude that in the use of the words which designate the people of God, all these words have an accommodated sense. The church is the body of God's Saints in the whole universe. The term may apply to the building in which they meet, or to the members which compose it—the "called."

1st—The divinity of the church It cannot be said that there is any prescribed form of church government to which the word absolute may properly apply. A few cardinal principles are laid down in the New Testament, while all the details are left to the judgment of mankind to suit the circumstances and conditions of times, places and customs of society.

The divinity of the church lies in the subjective life wrought in the hearts of all true believers by the operations of the Holy Spirit.

He who spake as never man spake, once said—"If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself, which is in fact subjecting the christian religion to a logic peculiar to itself, as every thing has its own logic. The true test of the gospel is in the heart of the believer. Hence the church of God consists, not in any outward form or ceremony, but in the spiritual life of the soul. "The kingdom of God cometh not with observation, not of form, but is "within you."

We may see here the absolute folly of exclusiveness. The utter preposterousness of any sect setting itself up as supreme, calling itself "the church," and making a mode of baptism, or the laying on of hands or anything else, the conditions of the soul's salvation in eternity.

Had Jesus intended that baptism in order to be valid, must be performed by immersion of the whole body in water, he would have said so; but in as much as he did not say so, and we challenge any man on earth to prove that he ever did, we therefore conclude that the mode of baptism is not in any sense essential. If Jesus had intended that the true ministry must descend in some way by a regular succession, as an essential features of its validity it would have been so stated, but in as much as it is not stated any where, therefore we claim that what men have called "succession" is only something of imagination, a myth.

The divinity of the church in a strict sense, then is first found in the few items specifically laid down, and flexible; and secondly the divine life which is communicated to the soul of the individual by means of the atonement of our Lord Jesus Christ, who tasted death for every man. Beyond this we [illegible] go.

[illegible]—The human element in the church.

[illegible] mankind have been left to [illegible] of reason in church [illegible] strictest harmony [illegible] plan. But then [illegible] divine gift; and [illegible] is Godlike [illegible] in logic it- [illegible] of God—whose [illegible] self, said, "I am the way, the truth and the life." (John 14: 6.)

And that which is in itself true cannot be any more when uttered from the clouds by the voice of God. So that even reason itself has in it the element of divinity.

A plan of salvation to be world wide in its application, to reach all climes, where men live amid eternal snows or pant beneath oppressive tropical suns—to reach and affect the lowest grades of humanity as well as the more elevated and refined, to address itself to those whose minds have scarcely opened to thought, as well as to sages who have looked into the arcana of nature; we say a plan of salvation to be thus adapted must be simple, flexible and free from the absolute in form.

Methodism as a whole is a system. We will not say it is complete save in the sense of aim. If we look the world over we discover that in different nations and places it adapts itself to its surroundings. It clings to its Divinity—that is its spiritual power and life, and its spiritual work, while its forms may of right vary as the circumstances of men may determine. At the basis of Methodist Church economy there is this maxim of old St. Augustine: "In essentials, unity; in non-essentials, liberty; in all things charity." Her discipline says: "It is not necessary that rites and ceremonies should in all places be the same, or exactly alike, for they have always been different and may be changed according to the diversity of countries, times and men's manners, so that nothing be ordained against God's Word." By this we simply assert that the human part may vary as the reason of man shall determine—provided the divine part, the divine life and the sources of the divine life shall not be disturbed. It matters not how men and saved only so they are saved.

Self Reformation cannot save the Soul.

This plan has been tried under different forms for centuries. There is the ethical education of China. The plan is to educate men upon the principles of moral science, and let their laws and habits be shaped upon those principles, and the result will be virtue. The classics of Confucianism are wonderful for their pure doctrines and great wisdom. The precepts of poor Richard are not more true than the principles of Confucius, teachings. He gave five precepts and three laws. The precepts were truth, justice, charity, sincerity, and conformity to established institutions. The laws were the law of the family, of the State and of the universe. The leading principle was that all moral evil springs from the antagonism between superiors and inferiors. Filial obedience is therefore the prime necessity, hence the monarch is the father of the people. No system of morals aside from revelation could be more perfect. China has been a world within itself for thousands of Years, so that the opportunity was the very best to test its power. What is the result? China is a nation devoid of the highest types of manhood, and sits in the darkness and gloom of superstition.

Another form under which the self reformation theory has been tried is that of metaphsical culture. In this, sin is regarded as the result of the soul's being overshadowed by the improper elements from natures. Hence it must be isolated from the senses, and given up to abstract thought. The body must be considered only as worthy of death. India is an example. Her system of philosophy has never been equaled. It inspired Greece, and has of late attracted the attention of modern thinkers. Much of the skepticism of today is but repetitions from it. India astronomy dates fifteen hundred years before Christ, and long before the ancient nations bordering on the Mediterranean arose to power. Her trigonometry was a thousand years in advance of that of Europe. The intellect of India is still the speculative mind of the East, and is to Asia what Germany is to Europe. The fascinating Pantheism which Germany elaborates and England echoes, and Emerson discourses of as if it was new, has been taught for two or three thousand years. The language of India Sir William Jones pronounces more perfect than the Greek and more copious than the Latin, and more refined than either, and is capable of expressing every movement of the human passion, with unsurpassed clearness, elegance and force.

What is the result of this wonderful culture? A nation living in grossest idolatry, every form of animal or of human device worshipped. Widows buried with the bodies of their husband, children destroyed to save the expense of raising them, and murder performed as a religious rite.

There is still another form under which the plan of salvation by self-reformation has been tried, viz, Aesthetical Culture. It is said delicacy of taste, increases our sensibilities to pleasure or pain. This increases sympathy, invites communication, and this leads to good will and love. Also external beauty is closely allied to internal moral beauty, so that the study of that which is beautiful and chaste must elevate and purify the soul. Greece and Rome were examples. The former under Pericles and the latter under Cicero. The culture was unsurpassed. Athens counted under the shadow of her Acropolis 30,000 Gods. Her marble breathed under the chisel of Phidias and the birds picked at the grapes on the canvas of Apolles. There Thucydides, Demosthenes and Plato cast their grand thoughts in style of wonderful beauty.

What was the result? Paul gives it to us in the first chapter of Romans. A nation reveling in sins too gross to be even mentioned.

But it may be said, that these forms of culture failed because they were one-sided. Let them all be combined and then the result will be different. This is precisely what the moralist of today claims, that modern civilization does. But alas: look at the most enlightened nations of today, and behold their leading cities where there is concentrated the most of learning, and so-called moral culture,—Washington, London Paris etc. The conclusion that all are forced to reach is that men do not grow better as they grow wiser.

The plan that proposes to save men by self-reformation must fail. It begins in and depends upon the will of man which by no sort of practice can restore the diseased soul. The salvation that is to save from sin is something more than a legal transaction. There must be an inspiration.

Then the coner stone of the self-reformation plan is transgression.

But let us grant the greatest posible blessing that can come from the study of nature, and self culture. Let all law be fully comprehended, let the culture include everything that is pure and elevating; what then?

We have no provision for the immortal soul.

We have no preparation to meet God.

A Southern Democratic View of Education.

Hon. Alexander H. Stephens is regarded as one of the best exponents of conservative Southern democracy, and his views are just now of importance in view of the fact that the whole South is under democratic rule.

The National Republican of April 30. has an account of an Interview with Mr. Stephens, from which we extract his views on Education, especially as related to the colored people. In the first place we have the old story that colored people pay no taxes, where in his own state of Georgia, they already have several millions of property and are rapidly gaining more. He believes in educating colored people because "it will make them better servants and citizens." The idea of servitude stands first. He expects to see the old plantation regime reestablished, without of course the right to buy and sell colored people. He don't believe in free public schools. The "Boss" planter is to take enough out of the wages of the colored people on his place, to support teachers and build chapels, but mark, "the lord of the manor, could reserve the right of presentation of teacher and preacher."

No man knows better than Mr. Stephens, that his plan means the practical restoration of slavery. The colored people are not to own land. Their labor, their education, (the precious little they would get) their church privileges, are to be controlled by the 'Boss planter,' who is the "Lord of the manor." Under this system the plan of "working and voting the colored people," would be a complete success for the land owners, but alas, for the poor Freedmen

Here is what Mr. Stephen. Says: He said that he had some decided views on education, but they were not matured for publication. He has always been a firm supporter of theory of the education of all classes. He long advocated the education of the colored race when slaves because he believed that education would render them better capable to discharge even their most menial duties. Now that they were free, he believed they ought to be educated, as it would make them better servants and better citizens. He said that while the colored people of the South were in some places in large majority, yet they paid no Taxes. As a general rule, taxation falls upon the white population, and public schools, if maintained at all, would have to receive their support from the white people. As to public or free schools, generally, he was not much inclined to believe in them. His experience has taught him that men seldom fully appreciate that which costs nothing. He thought every child in attending school should be impressed with the idea that he was enjoying a privilege for which he or his parent was bound to pay. He said further, that the colored people were lacking in the skill required to run a large farm or plantation, and for this reason they would always, more or less, depend upon the whites. They would be found flocking around their old masters or those treating them best and paying highest wages. It would then be feasible for each "boss" planter to establish a general school fund on his place, to which all the laborers should contribute alike. They could have their own school houses and chapels while the lord of the manor could reserve the right of presentation of teacher and preacher. This contribution could be fixed at a sum certain and prearranged by the contract of tenantcy. He talked at some length on the subject, strongly approving of education of the masses.

A Pointed Question.

When will the democratic religious Editor of the South, come to have sufficient regard for the truth, to acknowledge the good work done by christian men and women, from the North among the Negroes in the south, since the war? We do not now recall a single instance, of a religious journal of the south edited by a man of southern sentiment, where the work for example, of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the South, has received a fair representation, to say nothing of commendation. This cannot be the result of ignorance. Our work in the South is known to every reader of newspaper literature. The work of our Missionary, Church Extension, and Educational Societies in the South: together with the ingathering of over 300,000 members in the South since the war are known. It is not a question of knowledge: it is a question of regard for the truth. Scarcely a day passes but we read some mean, contemptable insinuation against the Christian workers who have labored for the colored people since the war. Just now we read in the Central Methodist the following:

If the conduct of the Northern preachers sent South don't so disgust the better part of the Negroes as to drive them into the Romish Church, there is, we think, little cause for alarm in that direction."

And yesterday we saw in the Richmond Christian Advocate, a slur upon Mr. Charles Heath, of Malden, Mass., who with his brother in this city had sold their plantation on the Ouchita in small parcels to colored people. The sales have been made and the people are paying for their places and doing well. The Richmond paper would like to know how much "Mr. Heath made by that little transaction," and then speaks of the Freedmen's bank swindle etc. Mr. Charles Heath, and his brother of this City, are christian gentlemen of so high a type, that any man who would insinuate against their honesty is not worthy of their contempt.

Another German Church in Texas.

A good Brother writes: We again have reason for great rejoicing in our German work in Texas. On last Sunday (April 29) we dedicated to the service of Almighty God a neat chapel, at Giddings, Lee County, Texas. It is a suitable church edifice in every respect and free from debt. The Board of Church Extension gave $200, and the citizens and members raised $700. Glory to God! it was needed and it is a harbinger of great joy to many, Two souls joined the church. Rev. Wm. Pfeffle, Presiding Elder directed the meeting. Rev. F. v. Schlenmbach of Galveston preached in German in the morning and in english in the evening. Rev. Stroteer of Brenham preached in the afternoon. Bro. Schlenmbach lectured to a good congregation on Monday night on "Infidelity and its Consequences." Dr. Bun of the Presbyterian church assisted, but no brother of the M. E. Church South found the place. Please, Mr. Editor, publish again the Cape May Report for the Texas Southern Methodist brethren. Our people at Giddings rejoice in the Lord.

On last Sunday the Roman Catholics of New Orleans celebrated the Fiftieth Anniversary of Pope Pius IXth, priest hood. An immense procession paraded the streest, and the ceremonies at Lafayette square were of an imposing character. A salvo of fifty guns was fired as the procession moved from Canal street. In the evening, Lafayette square was ablaze with fire works.

As we beheld the magnificent display, and remembered that this was a Protestant country, we could but remember how differently Protestants are treated in Catholic countries, Spain for example. Only a few days ago, four hundred Spanish Protestants were worshiping in their chapel in Cadiz, when two policemen entered the room, armed with swords and pistols, passed up the aisle ascended the pulpit and directed the preacher to dismiss the Congregation.

The New Orleans CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, follows the SOUTHWESTERN, in regretting that the majority of the New Orleans City School Board are Roman Catholics. That paper however says: "It is a hard fate indeed to be compelled to choose between the Catholics, and the carpet-baggers, and the negroes." No matter about the "fate,"—that is just where the Southern white protestants of Louisiana have in the providence of God, been brought. They must either strike hands with the good men of all creeds and professions, who come to their state to live, dropping their use of that word "Carpet-bagger," and with these allies, lay hold manfully of the work of elevating and educating the Negroes, or they must go quickly and surely, under the political yoke of the Roman Catholic hierarchy.

The Greek Church is similar to the Roman Catholic in church government, but differs widely from it in other respects. The Greek Church denies the spiritual supremacy of the Pope, it prohibits the celibacy of the clergy, it authorizes all individuals to read and study the scriptures in the vernacular tongue, it rejects the doctrine of purgatory, and has nothing to do with works of supererogation, indulgences, and dispensations, and reorganizes no one as the visible vicar of Christ on earth. No priest can perform any spiritual function before be is married, nor after he becomes a widower.

Mrs. Dr. Daily left this City in the Steamer "Golden Rule," on last Thursday evening for Madison, Indiana. She took with her the remains of her late husband, Rev. Dr. W. M. Daily, intending to bury them at Madison, where other friends and loved ones are buried. We but speak the sentiment of all our people here when, we commend the bereaved widow to our heavenly Father, whose love and sympathy are by his own word, made sure to her.

The Christian Intelligencer to our great surprise, criticises President and Mrs. Hayes for refusing to have wine on their tables. It says: Like every other polite host he is to consider the habits and wishes of his guests. If he, as President, invites to his table distinguished gentlemen, who from early youth have been accustomed to take one or two glasses of wine at dinner, he is to provide for this want. As an individual, at his private table, he can do as he pleases, as President he may not."

We say all honor to the President and his wife, for boldly taking the stand in favor of total abstinence from all intoxicating drinks, at their table. This world needs just such examples in high places, and shame on any religious paper, which will not commend them.

Italy has declared its seventeen universities open to women. Similar action has been taken by Switzerland, Norway, Sweden and Demark. A ministerial order has been issued in Holland, opening every university and gymnasium to women. France has opened the Sorbonne to women, and Russia its highest schools of Medicines and surgery.

Subscribe for the SOUTHWESTERN.

Our Southern Methodism.

Rev. A. J. Turner, Victoria Texas, says: "We have had fifteen recent conversions and accessions to the Church. The cause of religion is making progress among my people."

Rev. B. F. Smith, Hallettsville, Texas, says: "The Lord has been very gracious to us this year. My church is in a very prosperous condition. On last Sunday we had six accessions. Times are very hard, but our people are determined to keep up their subscription to the SOUTHWESTERN."

Rev. P. Jamison, Shubuta, Miss., writes: "Our protracted meeting has just been brought to a close. There were fourteen coversions and fifty-four accessions to the Church. And the revival has had a good effect upon our Sunday-school as upon our congregation—sixty-five new members have been added to it."

Rev. P. Martin, Brentwood, Tenn., writes: "We have just closed a protracted meeting in which there were nine conversions and a number of accessions to the Church. Our membership at this place has increased from 26 to 40 this year. We have four Sunday-schools on the circuit; we are not forgetting the missionary cause in our collections."

Rev. H. T. O. Abbott, Shreveport, La., sends subscribers and adds: "We have had a meeting in progress for three weeks, and have been greatly blessed of the Lord. There have been thirty-three conversions and forty-four accessions to the Church. May the Holy Spirit direct our efforts in building the walls of Zion."

Rev. L. Callaway, Fairfield, Texas, says: "The package of Sunday-school books was duly received and we are well pleased with them. Our Sunday-school now numbers one hundred and ten scholars, which we think does well for this locality. Our people are learning that the things they most need in this world are educated minds and the love of God in their hearts."

Religious Items.

The Presbyterians have four churches and one academy in Uthah Territory.

The General Conference of the Methodist Church South will meet next May at Atlanta, Ga.

The General Assembly of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church will meet at Lincoln, Illinois, on the 17th inst.

The receipt of the American Bible Society for the year ending April 1, 1877 from all sources, amounted to $543,579.55. The income exceeds that of the previous year by $16,000.

Pro. A. Yeager, Professor of Hebrew in the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, at Greenville, S. C., has joined the protestant Episcopal Church, and resigned his professorship.

The Methodist Episcopal Church in Boston was organized by Rev. Jesse Lee in 1791. There are now in the New England States 125,000 members of the church, 500 church buildings, 1,900 ministers.

Baltimore has 288 churches. Of these 52 are Methodist Episcopal, 38 Protestant Episcopal, 22 Roman Catholic, 18 Lutheran, 17 Presbyterian and 15 Baptist. The Methodist churches of all branches number 79.

St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church in New York contributed to benevolent objects during the conference year just closed the sum of $14,774,55, besides its current expenses about $8,000 more. The General Missionary Society received $10,395.48 of this sum, and the City Church Extension and Missionary Society $1,479.12.

The Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church carries on its foreign work in Africa, South America, China, Germany, Switzerland, Scandinavia, India, Bulgaria, Italy, Japan and Mexico. Its foreign mission was undertaken in Africa in 1838. It now has in the foreign field 207 missionaries and assistants, 246 native preachers, 782 local preachers, exhorters and teachers, making in all 1,235 agents. In the African field there are 2,500 communicants; in China, 2,300; in Germany and Switzerland, 10,224; in Scandinavia, 9,149; India, 3,664; Bulgaria, 77; Italy, 73; in Mexico, 518. All these missions have been fruitful the past year.

General News Items.

Nearly 100,000 Germans are settled in forty counties in Texas.

The extra session of Congress has been deferred until October 15th.

Hon. A. H. Stephens has entirely recovered from his recent illness.

A New York Engineer proposes to light the streets of New York by electricity.

The Graniteville factory at Augusta, Ga., consummed 8,688,410 pounds of cotton during the last year.

The West Point graduating class this year numbers 77, the largest ever graduated.

The Public Debt Statement shows a reduction of $4,315,509 for the month of April.

The Niagara Falls water power on the American side was sold at auction recently for $71,000.

It is reported that the Stevens battery has been bought by the Russian Government for $1,000,000.

It is rumored that the British Government has authorized the Canadian military authorities to raise five batallions of infantry.

The plague has appeared at Resht, in Persia. One hundred and seventy-six deaths occurred in Bagdad between April 16 and 23.

Personal applications to the President for office will not be considered. They must be made in writing and presented to the proper department.

The bullion product of New Mexico is reported by Gov. Rich to be as follows for 1876: gold, $281,862; silver, $425,328; copper (ore mine) 306,000 lbs.

A dispatch from Havana says: "Planters have decided to introduce Chinamen as laborers. The capital required is fixed at 2,000,000, half of which has been subscribed.

Mrs. Geo Sherman, who has been managing in this country contributions for the Pope, to be presented this month, on the fiftieth anniversary of his elevation to the Episcopate, has $230,000 in hand.

Steam street cars in Philadelphia have proved so successful that the horse car companies of New York are talking of adopting them, if they can get the right to do so.

The accumulation of gold in the United States during the current year will probably be greater than during any previous year of its history. It is estimated at $50,000,000.

The balance of trade, which was [illegible] in favor of the United States for the nine months ending March 31, 1876, was $155,000,000 for the same period this year, an increase of over a hundred per cent.

A dispatch from Cape Town, Africa, states that Great Britian has taken forcible possession of the Republic of Transvaal. The President objects, and prominent citizens are on their way to Europe and America to protest against the annexation.

Texas is larger than France by [illegible] square miles. If every man woman and child in the United States should emigrate to Texas, [illegible] would then be less thick- [illegible] per square mile than [illegible] is at present.

[illegible] in Colorado over fifty [illegible] rise more than 14,000 [illegible] the sea level. Blanca [illegible] State, the elevation of [illegible] determined last year by [illegible] survey, is probably the [illegible] within the limits of [illegible] being 14,464 feet [illegible] the sea.

[illegible] are endeavor- [illegible] in Charles- [illegible] feet of sawed [illegible] for lock gates of [illegible] The order was [illegible] of the great [illegible] of the pieces, [illegible] sufficiently [illegible] in Canada.

[illegible] floating in [illegible] the other day with [illegible] fastened upon [illegible] evidently [illegible] but had [illegible] weight of [illegible] to hold [illegible] shortly

[illegible]

War Notes.

Turkey proclaims a holy war, and the Sultan is to be blessed by Sheik Ul Islam as its leader.

It is said that the cheif rabbi at Constantinople have ordered prayers to be offered for the success of the Turks in all synagogues of Roumania.

Egypt tells Turkey its Mother Country that it cannot furnish the 18,000 troops asked for. Russia forbids Egypt to send them, and France has warned the Khedive against using money for war which has been set apart for his creditors.

The sultan was much pleased with Earl Derbys reply to Prince Gortchakoff's circular, and has ordered the porte to officially thank the English government. He has also sent Said Pasha, his aide-de-camp, to thank Mr. Layard.

Intelligence is received from Sulina that on Wednesday the Russians attempted to cross the Danube at Reni. They threw a bridge over the river, but were met by Turkish infantry and artillery, assisted by three gunboats. The bridge was broken and a large number of Russians killed and captured. The Russians were completely defeated.

The British press is sensitive regarding the presence of the Russian squadron at San Francisco. It expresses the belief that its chief purpose is an attack and seizure of British Columbia in the event England allies with Turkey in the pending war. Many concur in the recently expressed declaration by the Pall Mall Gazette that in no other part of the world could British commerce be so seriously damaged as by a few active vessels in the Pacific Ocean. It is also suggested that the Russian Grand Duke's visit to New York with several war vessels looks to a readiness to swooping upon steamers in the Atlantic trade in the event of war.

The Parliamentary debate Nov 7. clearly discloses the fact that the British foreign policy is helplessly drifting on a sea of uncertainty on the Eastern question. The dangers pointed out by Gladestone are not denied by the ministerial party but the latter safely taunts the opposition with inability to get popular approval of any proposition to join in alliance with Russia for the purpose of coercing Turkey, The position of parties confirms the impressions that England will do nothing rashly, but watch and wait until British interests shall be threatened by overt acts, either East or West.

In the meantime preparations for the war are being energetically pressed forward, and no effort is spared to place the army and navy in the bes tcondition.

The Loss of Trade from New Orleans.

The loss of trade from New Orleans has been immense since the war. St. Louis, Memphis, Louisville, Cincinnati and Galveston have all come to control large trading interests which in former years belonged to this city. The popular notion has been that this was caused by the Republican politics of the State. The New Orleans Times states the true reasons, and gives our business men a plain talk:

We think the loss of trade is largely due to mere inertia and a silly over-estimate of themselves which is no better than stupidity. They sit in their dignity like an ancient three decker dressing of the glories of the past, unconcious that their style is superannuated and their armament a laughing stock. The merchant who formerly shipped large invoices to Tennessee, Kentucky, Alabama and Arkansas, fondly imagines that he is as important as he was thirty years ago, and that the country dealers are only waiting for something or other to turn up in order to rush to his arms again. That ardent rush will never be. The country merchants are meditating nothing of the kind. Where New Orleans is as accessible as other cities, they may, other things being equal, prefer to trade here, but they will not pay two cents a year for the privilege. Henceforth forever they must be secured by superior or at least equal inducements. When our merchants reach this commonsense and efficient basis they will accomplish something, not before. In the meantime, there is no doubt that the drummers are swarming all round us and literally camping on our customers. While we are sadly in want of facilities comparable to those of Western and Northern cities, still New Orleans has more "facilities" than her people use wisely or effectively. She ought to compete where she does not compete and ought to regain trade she has lost. She has been a vast and antiquated mutual admiration society long enough. While we have been indulging in high-toned complacency the subtle and stealthy drummer has been dazing up our channels of traffic and decimating our [illegible]. The Times will decline to [illegible] over this unpleasant state of affairs [illegible] merchants wake up and at least [illegible] natural and adequate effort, that [illegible] can do no better than they are doing.

One tree in Adams county, Fla., bore 4,000 oranges last season.

Sunday School Meetings.

The following from Rev. J. B. Ford, Sunday-school agent for the South, explains itself. We shall be glad to meet Bro. Ford in the Southwest.

Mr. Editor.—Please publish in the "SOUTHWESTERN" the following list of appointments for me. I am anxious for the preachers on adjoining circuits to attend.

I want large enthusiastic meetings. I will have with me books, papers, maps, charts, etc.

Kingston, Tenn, May 10–11; London, Tenn., May 12–13; Knoxville, Tenn., May 15.

Memphis District Sunday-school convention at Clarksburg, Tenn., May 22; Huntsville, Ala., May 25; Dadesville, Ala., June 1–3; Athens, Tenn., June 5–6; Greensboro N. C., June 8–10; Columbia, S. C., June 12–13; Atlanta, Ga., June 15–16.

Springfield District Conference at Center, Ala., June 22. I visited the annual conferences in Tenn, Ga., Ala., N. C., S. C., and Florida, and think it best to spend my time until fall within the bounds of these conferences, lookingafter and working up the Sunday-school interest. Then if I am spared, visit the Southwest, work there as I work here.

Some might think I felt no interest in the Southwest, as I had not visited any part of it. In my work I know no section or conference. I am deeply interested in the prosperity of the Sunday-school cause in the entire South. I hope to visit every conference and every section.

We want a collection from every station and circuit for the Sunday-school union.

A Sunday-school at every appointment (a Methodist school) and a collection by every pastor for Sunday-school union.

Brothers, if you would build up a strong Methodism, look after every interest connected with the Sunday-school cause.

J. B. FORD.

The New Orleans Southern Methodist Churches.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate says:

We are glad to report a considerable degree of prosperity in our New Orleans churches. St. Charles Avenue, under the ministrations of Rev. John Hannon, has a large and increasing congregation, and all departments of church work there are in vigorous operation. Louisiana Avenue, under its new preacher, Rev. J. T. Sawyer, has been in a revival condition for some time. A number have been converted, and about twenty-five have been added to the membership. Felicity Street, Dr. Walker's charge—has enjoyed a special season of refreshing during a protracted meeting of three weeks' duration. At last accounts a good number were seeking salvation. Bro. Mathews, at Carondelet, gathers some members every week; there are conversions frequently, and prayer meetings are lively and well attended. The large church on Sundays is well filled. Brother Schroeder, at Moreau Street, is doing a good work. Congregations good for that place, and a number have been received into the church. In Algiers Bro. Werlein is preaching to good congregations, and making progress. Last fall there was a large ingathering there, and the results are still apparent. Our city Sunday-schools are more flourishing than any time within the past ten years.

Shaw University.

The annual examination of classes in Shaw University will begin on Friday, May 25, and close on Wednesday May 30. The annual sermon will be preached on Sabbath afternoon by Rev. J. W. Dunn. On Monday evening the literary societies will give an entertainment in the college chapel.

The Board of Trustees will meet on Tuesday afternoon, and the closing exercises will take place at the M. E. Church on Wednesday evening.

W. W. HOOPER.
President.

The summer term of the University will begin on Monday, June 11th.

In a letter to the Nashville Advocate Bishop Marvin refers to the Chinese as follows: "They are the progressive people of the East. The Government of China is not progressive, but the people are. They have overflowed on all the shores on Eastern Asia and Western America. They are influential, especially in Asia. The conversion of China would go far to complete the conquest of the world for Christ. It is the great achievement which the Church has before it now. That accomplished, between Russia and China on this side and the North, and Europe on the other, Western Asia would be compelled to capitulate; and, as for Africa, it will ultimately be what Europe and Asia make it."

The forms of religion profit not when the life-giving power is absent.

When our work is ended, if we are faithful, God will take us to Himself in heaven.

Sunday School.

May 27, 1877.—THE DEATH OF ELISHA.
SCRIPTURE.—2 K. 13: 14-21.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"He being dead yet speaketh."—Heb. 11: 4.

TOPIC.—"O grave, where is thy Victory." 1 Cor. 15: 55.

HOME READINGS.

Monday, Gen. 50: 14-26; Tuesday, Deut. 34: 1-12; Wednesday, Josh. 24: 14-31; Thursday, Judg. 16: 23-30; Friday, Acts 7; 51-60; Saturday, Luke 23: 33-56; Sunday, I Cor. 15: 35-58.

(Condensed from Nat. S. S. Teacher.)

Now Elisha was fallen sick. The longest and most useful life must have its close. Even the prophets do not live forever. Elisha had overcome death for others, but could not conquer it for himself. Probably he would not have done so if he could. Perhaps, like Paul, having fought a good fight he was now ready to be offered.

Joash the king of Israel came down to him. And yet he was not a good man. "He did that which was evil in the sight of the Lord." Very likely Elisha had often counseled with and rebuked him. Though uncompromising toward evil, yet the prophet seemed to possess the rare faculty of making the erring one feel that he was his friend. Joash wept over the departure of Elisha—the king, for the time, being lost in man, and being exalted by the act. No good man dies, whose life has been full of beneficence, but what, to the surprise of every one, there are those who, though supposed to be lost to all influences, show that in his death they have been sorely wounded. One's death is apt to reveal how much his life has been worth.

The Royal Pupil (15-19). There is, also, a strong contrast between the prophet and his visitor. The one old, feeble, and sick—the other young, strong and full of health. But of the two the dying seer evidently is incomparably the stronger man. The king is despondent—the prophet reliant. It is the the dying man, unmindful of his own sufferings, that comforts, instructs, inspires the well one. So it often is at the death-bed of the saints. Take bow and arrows. We have here a prophecy in symbolic action. One reason of the detection of Joash was that for so long a time his kingdom had been overrun by the Syrians that defeat had become chronic with the Israelites, and the prospect either of expelling their enemies, or even preventing further encroachment, seemed quite remote. A symbol appealed to one's imagination much more powerfully than a mere prediction would have done. Symbols forshadowed—hence, "take bow and arrows." See, for example Is. 20; Ezk. 4, 5, and 12.

Put thine hand upon the bow. Position for shooting—left hand grasping the bow, etc. Elisha put his hands upon the king's hands. To show that when it came to the battle, typified by the shooting of the arrow, the hand of God would be with Joash even as the hands of his prophet were now upon his. Strength to overcome the enemy was thus symbolized. It was, too, an assertion, in act, that it would not be Joash that should gain the victory, but God through Joash. Joash might hold the bow, but unless God gave him strength, and directed the arrow, his effort would be in vain. Open the window eastward. Toward the country where the victories were to be gained—not Syria, for that was northward, but the east side of Jordan, where Hazael and Benhaded had wrested away portions of Israel. The "window" was a mere grating.

The arrow of the Lord's deliverance and the arrow of deliverance from Syria. In that came the explanation of the mystery. There was no doubt now of the prophet's meaning. Joash felt that all the horizon was brightening; for he could not doubt the words of the man who had received, again and again, such divine endorsement. It was the arrow of the Lord's deliverance. Once more Jehovah was to interpose in behalf of Israel. Its rescue was to be clearly his work, and not man's.

Take the arrows. Elisha had given a general promise of deliverance, specifically naming only one victory. Now he bids the king take all the arrows that he may appropriate this general promise and make the most of it. The promise of victory was his, and it now remained for his faith to say how complete it should be. He was not limited in that any more than the widow whose oil was increased was limited as to the number of jars which should be filled. It was a test of Joash as well as a promise to him. Smite upon the ground. Our translation gives a wrong impression. Joash was not to take one arrow, or the bundle of arrows, and smite upon the ground as though he were striking an enemy. That is not the meaning at all. He was to take the arrows and shoot them in the ground, as typical of shooting them into the ranks of the Syrians. "Hit" the ground is our corresponding expression. 1 K. 22: 35; 2 K. 9: 24. Smote thrice and stayed. As we have before remarked, this was a test of the man. It tested both his faith and his natural temperament. That he shot no more than three arrows indicates that he lacked both faith and perseverance enough to give him a thorough triumph. He was a man, evidently, who, from natural indolence or lack of zeal and force, never made use of all the means he had. He had more arrows, but he did not shoot them. Understanding, as he no doubt did, that shooting those arrows into the ground was the same almost as shooting into the Syrian host itself, he was aroused to no such ardor and fury as would have led him to exhaust his quiver upon the ground, that semblance of his foe. In not doing this he betrayed the fact that he was no warrior to drive out not only, but also in turn to subjugate his foes.

The man of God was wroth. He was a patriot as well as a prophet, and was vexed that when God was ready man should prove so weak. He was angry because he loved his pupil—wanted him to be conspicuously victorious. Anger sometimes is the very best proof of love. Till thou hadst consumed it. War would not have stopped with merely reclaiming the cities taken from Jehoahaz, nor even with the boundaries of Israel, but would have been aggressive, destroying the power that had proved itself such a destructive and persistent enemy. The Church should never content itself with victories that drive sin out of it, but should carry on the war beyond its own boundaries to the very strongholds of Satan's kingdom. But thou shalt smite Syria but thrice. And so it fell out. Verse 25 tells how Joash was victorious over Benhaded three times. He recovered his cities, but left his enemies so that at any time they could resume the offensive.

— A great many are hindered from the religious choice because they do not know the proper order of events. They think that there must first come the correction of evil habits and then the choice of Christ. That is not the order of grace at all. It is first acceptance of Christ, and then the correction of the life. You say, "When I shall get rid of this or that habit; when I can quench my thirst for strong drink; when I can break this particular shackle of sin and temptation, then I will enter into the life and hope of the gospel." You have mistaken the order of spiritual events. The first thing for you to do is to come to God, and say, "Lord Jesus, take me. I find myself incompetent to do the work of correcting my life, and delivering myself from evil habits. Do thou the work." That is the order of events.—Christian at Work.

"Let me see," says the nurse of a sick man, "the doctor said one tablespoonful every ten minutes, that makes six every hour, say seventy-two during the night. I shall give him seventy-two spoonfuls right away, and have a chance to get a little sleep myself."

"We wish there were more missionaries like Mr. Charles Heath of Malden, Mass., who some years ago with his brother in New Orleans purchased a farm of eleven hundred acres, on the Black river, of Louisiana. He sold it in small lots to the freedmen, who were to pay a small sum yearly. Mr. Heath's success is complete and the small farmers are prosperous and laying up money, which is about the first Christian duty of the negroes. We would like to see a denomination started in the South of Three-Principle-Baptists, or Methodists, or Presbyterians, no matter what; said three principles, to which all members should be most faithfully pledged—being, first, one against theft,—second, one against adultery, —and, third, a requirement to become landholders and keep a bank-account."—Independent.

DIED.

In Hallettsville, Texas April 25th, at the age of 23 years, Sister Ellen Govan. After a long illness, her death was peaceful, and she met it full of christian hope and faith. Her memory will be long cherished by her large circle of friends and acquaintance.

B. F. SMITH,
Pastor.

Cross Husbands and Scolding Wives.

"Domestic infelicity," which newspaper reporters nowadays credit with playing such an important part in life's drama, is often the result of lingering or chronic disease. What husband or wife can be cheerful, smiling, and pleasant constantly suffering from the tortures of some dread disease? Perhaps the husband's liver becomes torpid, and he experiences bitter, disagreeable taste or nausea, has chilly sensations, alternating with great heat and dryness of the surface of his body, pain in his sides, shoulders, or back, eyes and skin or tinged with yellow, feels dull, indisposed, and dizzy. Through his suffering he becomes gloomy, despondent, and exceedingly irritable in temper. Instead of resorting to so reliable a remedy as a few small doses of Dr. Pierce's Purgative Pellets, and following up their action with the use of Golden Medical Discovery, to work the biliary poison out of the system and purify the blood, if he play the part of a "penny wise and pound foolish" man he will attempt to economize by saying the small cost of these medicines. Continuing to suffer, his nervous system becomes impaired, and be is fretful and peevish—a fit subject to become embroiled in "domestic infelicity." Or the good wife may, from her too laborious duties or family cares, have become subject to such chronic affections as are peculiarly incident to her sex, and being reduced in blood and strength, suffering from backache, nervousness, headache, internal fever, and enduring pains too numerous to mention, she may become peevish and fretful—anything but a genial helpmate. In this deplorable condition of ill health, should she act wisely and employ Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, it will in due time, by its cordial tonic and nervous properties, restore her health and transform her from the peevish, scolding, irritable-tempered invalid, to a happy, cheerful wife. Laying aside levity and speaking seriously, husbands and wives, you will find the Family Medicines above mentioned reliable and potent remedies. For full particulars of their properties and uses, see Pierce's Memorandum Book, which is given away by all druggists.

War Maps.

Schedler's Map of Turkey, Greece, Roumania, and the North-western part of Asia Minor, together with special maps of the Black Sea, Constantinople and the Bosphorus. Size, 17x22 inches. Colored. Price, folded and in cover, $0 25. Published by E. STEIGER, 22 & 24 Frankfort Street, New York, by whom copies will be promptly mailed on receipt of price. The same publiser is issuing a number of other War Maps, which we shall mention hereafter.

WEBSTER'S UNABRIDGED DICTIONARY.—It has now stood the test of time, and received in approval not only that popular verdict which in the United States has culled for over fifty million copies of the Webster series, but the thorough endorsement of our best scholars, as put forth individually, and in the pages of the authorative periodicals. It is not only, to quote Professor Stowe, in many respects the greatest literary work which America has ever produced, but it is in many respects the greatest literary work produced in any nation or age.—New York Mail.

War Maps.

Schedler's Map of the Black Sea, Asia Minor, the Caucasus, Southern Russia, Roumania, and Eastern Turkey. Engraved on stone, carefully printed and colored. Scale, 1: 3,000,000. Size, 22x28 inches. Price, folded and in cover, $0 40.

This map is very accurately compiled from the latest and most complete material. It presents, at one glance, the scene of the war, both in Europe and in Asia.

Published by E. STEIGER, 22 & 24 Frankfort Street, New York, by whom copies will be promptly mailed upon receipt of price. This publisher has made preparations for bringing out additional War Maps, as soon as such may become necessary.

BUSINESS COLUMN.

Publisher's Department.

OUR AGENTS.

All Pastors of the M. E. Church, are the authorized agents to receive subscriptions for the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

PRICE OF THE PAPER.

The price to Subscribers is $2 00, or for less than a year, at the rate of 5 cts. per week. Subscriptions may begin at any time, and will run until expiration of time paid for.

HOW TO SEND MONEY.

Send money by Post-office Order, or Registered letter. All Postmasters are required to register letters when asked to, and the only expense is 10 cts. additional postage. Post office orders, cost 10 cts. for any amount less than $10, and 15 cts. for any amount between ten dollars and $25

BOOKS.

Any book published by the Methodist Episcopal Church, and advertised in this paper, will be sent ON RECEIPT OF PRICE.

NELSON & PHILLIPS,
30 Natchez St., New Orleans, La.

Where is my son, Willie Franklin, from Galveston City. He was last year with Hon. G. Schlichor on a centennial tour, but got lost at Dallas, Texas. He is 12 years old in June next—any one able to give us information through Rev. F. von Schluembach, Drawer No. 3, Galveston, Texas, will confer a great favor upon

Thomas Franklin
and Silvia Franklin.

Quarterly Meetings.

Meridian (Miss.) District.

Paulding and Claiborne, May 12-13; Garlandville, May 14-15; Newton, May 16-17; Crawford, May 19-20; Starkville, May 26-27; Brooksville, May 26-27; Carthage, June 2-3; Mishularville, June 2-3; Trenton, June 2-3; Whitefield, June 16-17; Louisville, June 19-20; Rome. June 23-24; Ex-Prairie, June 30 and July 1; Macon, July 7-8; Shuqualak, July 11-12; DeKalb, July 14-15; Lauderdale July 21-22; Daleville, July 24-25; Meridian 28-29; Meridian Circuit August 4-5; Quitman August 11-12; Shubuta Circuit, August 15-16; State Line, Aug. 18-19; Shubuta, August 21-22; Enterprise Circuit, Aug. 25-26; Enterprise, Aug. 28-29. M. ADAMS, P. E.

Okolona District.

(Second round,)

Okolona May 5-6; Corinth and Corinth Circuit, May 12-13; Tupelo, May 14-15; Spring valley and Shady Grove, May 19-20; Big Black, May 26-27; Calhoun, June 2-3; Houston, June 6-7; Pontotoc, 9-10; Union Grove, June 16-17; West Point, June 23-25; Columbus and Columbus Circuit, June 30 and July 1; Tibbe, July 7-8; Tampico, July 1g-15; Athens, July 21-22.

The Okolona District Conference well meet at Pontotoc June 10. I hope all the member of the Conference will be present: All the ministers of the Okolona District who are in charge of a work will please send on their post-office address at once.

D. MCLACHLAN, P. E.

Gulf District.

(Second round.)

Pascagoula, May 17:18; Ocean Springs and Biloxi May 19-20; Handsboro, May 21-22; Bay St. Louis, May 23-24; Pass Christian, May 26-27; Crystal Springs, May 31 and June 1; Simpson Circuit, June 5-6; Hazlehurst, June 7-8; New Hope Circuit, June 9-10; Union Church Circuit, June 11-12; Brookhaven, June 18-14; Hamburg Circuit, June 21-22; Meadville Circuit June 23-24; Liberty, June 26-27; Summit and Magnolia, June 28-29; China Grove, June 30 and July 1; Columbia, July 2-3; Augusta, July 4-5. L. BRADFORD, P. E.

Houston, Texas, District.

First Church, Houston, April 1; East Church and Wesley Chapel, Galveston, April 7 and 8; Spring Creek, April 14 and 15; Oyster Creek, April 21 and 22; Richmond and Frost Chapel, April 28 and 29; Houston, Second Church and Edwards Chapel, May 5 and 6; Harrisburg and West Point, May 12 and 13; Columbia and Brazoria, May 19 and 20; Stafford's, May 26 and 27; Houston Circuit, June 2 and 3; Cypress, June 9 and 10.

W. L. MOLLOY, P. E.

Shreveport District.

(Second Round.)

Cross Lake Circuit April 28–29; Scotts Circuit May 5–6; China Grove Circuit May 12 and 13; Shreveport, St. James and St. Paul, May 19–20; Fairfield Circuit, May 26–27; Mansfield and Red Spring. at Mansfield June 2–3; Coushatta, June 9–10; Natchitoches and Campe, at Natchitoches June 16–17; Allenville June 30 and July 1; Alexandria and Catokon, at Alexandria July 7–8.

S. DABABE, P. E.

Greenwood (Miss.) District.

Yazoo City, March 17 and 18; Benton, March 24 and 25; Pickens, March 31 and April 1; Goodman, April 7 and 8; Durant, April 14 and 15; Greenwood, April 21 and 22; Rohuck, 28 and 29; New Midway, May 5 and 6; Panola, May 12 and 13; Hernando, May 15 and 16; Spring Hill, May 19 and 20; Caney Creek, May 26 and 27; Walnut Ridge, June 2 and 3; Shiloh, June 9 and 10; Austin, June 16 and 17; Bolivar, June 23 and 24.

J. W. DUNN, P. E.

San Antonio (Tex.) District.

Mission Valley, April 21 and 22; Cuero April 28 and 29; Indianola and Lavacca, May 5 and 6; Columbus and Alleyton, May 12 and 13; Peach Creek and Columbus Circuit, May 19 and 20; San Antonio, May 26 and 27; Boerne, June 2 and 3; Hondo, June 9 and 10; Floresville June 16 and 17; Sutherland Springs, June 23 and 24; Nockernut, July 1; Cibola, July 4 and 5; Riddleville, July 4 and 5; Lavernia, 7 and 8; Goliad Circuit, July 11 and 12; Belmont, July 14 and 15; Refugio, July 18 and 19; Wrightsboro, July 21 and 22; Goliad, July 28 and 29.

D. GREGORY, P. E.

Holly Springs, Miss., District.

Mt. Pleasant, April 7-8; Kosciusko, April 14-15; French Camp, April 16-17; Greensboro, April 18-19; Winona and Vaiden, April 21-22; Duck Hill, April 26-27; Grenada, April 28-29; Grenada Circuit, April 30 and May 1; Oxford, May 5-6; Elijah, May 8-9; Abbeville, May 12-13; New Albany, May 19-20; Hickory Flat, May 26-27; Ripley, May 26-27; Holly Springs, June 2-3, Holly Springs Circuit, June 6-7; Chulahoma, June 9-10; Byhalia, June 11-12.

As the greater part of the work lies at a considerable distance from the Railroad, and as it is important to visit every part of it, I shall go by private conveyance.

J. G. JOHNSON, P. E.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from active practice, having had placed his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of consumption, bronchitis, catarrh, asthma, and all throat and lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for nervous debility and all nervous complaints, after having thoroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, feels it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive, and a conscientious desire to relieve human suffering, he will send, free of charge, to all who desire it, this receipe, with full directions for preparing and successfully using. Sent by return mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, Dr. W. C. Stevens, 126 Power's Block, Rochester, N. Y. [may10-77-4t

Agents Wanted.

For new edition of History of great temperance Reforms, and "Belshazzar's Feast," by a London artist, in chromatic colors, 19x26. Bothave sold for $5; are now sent free on receipt of $3 25. Address Rev. James Shaw, Rossville, Ill. may17,4t

Webster's Unabridged.

3000 Engravings; 1840 pages Quarto.
FOUR PAGES COLORED PLATES.
A Whole Library in itself.
Invaluable in a Family.

Now contains twenty-five per cent. more matter than any other one volume English Dictionary published in this country or Great Britain.

A NATIONAL STANDARD.

The sale is 20 times as great as the sale of any other large Dictionary.

More than 30,000 copies have been placed in the public schools of the United States.

Recommended by 38 State Superintendents of schools.

Warmly recommended by Bancroft, Prescott, Motley, Geo. P. Marsh, Halleck, Whittier, Willis, Saxe, Elihu Burritt, Daniel Webster, Rufus Choate, H. Coleridge, Smart, Horace Mann, President Woolsey, Wayland, Hopkins, Nott, Walker, Anderson, (more than fifty College Presidents in all) and the best American and European scholars.

"Indispensable to every student of the English language."—M. R. Waite, Chief Justice United States.

The Highest Authority in Great Britain as well as in the United States.

"The best practical English Dictionary extant. —London Quarterly Review, Oct. 1873.

ALSO

Webster's National Pictorial Dictionary.

600 Engravings; 1040 Pages Octavo.

Published by G. & C. MERRIAM, Springfield, Mass

Webster's Abridgments,

Published by IVISON, BLAKEMAN, TAYLOR & CO. N. Y.

Webster's Primary School Dictionary,	204 Engr'gs
" Common "	"	274
" High "	"	297
" Academic "	"	344
" Counting House "	with numerous illustrations and many valuable tables not to be found elsewhere.

JEWELRY for all. The EUREKA JEWELRY CASKET contains one pair gold-plated engraved sleeve buttons, one set (3) spiral shirt studs, one Gents Im. coral pin, one improved shape collar stud, one Gents fine link watch chain, and one Ladies Heavy wedding ring; price of one casket, complete, 50 cents; three for $1.25; six for $2, and 12 for $3.50, all sent postpaid by mail. Sixteen and a solid silver watch for $20. Agents can make money selling these caskets. Send 50 cents for sample and catalogues. We have all kinds of jewelry at low prices.

COLES & CO., 785 Broadway, N. Y. City.

We are the originals in this business, and have no "Milton Gold" or "brass" jewelry.

This Jewelry casket is remarkably attractive, and COLE & Co. are reliable dealers.—Boston Globe. [may10,4t

SOUTHWESTERN AGENCY FOR School and College Text Books.

Office No. 80 CAMP STREET (up stairs).

Below we submit the MODEL SERIES of books (so conceded by the leading educators of this country) for use in PRIMARY, INTERMEDIATE and GRAMMAR schools. To insure their adoption by the progressive teacher we have only to ask a careful comparison with books of a like grade, a critical examination and a thorough, practical test in the class-room:

	Prices.
Harper's Introductory Geography	60
Harper's School Geography	$1 25
" United States First Reader	15
" " " Second "	26
" " " Third "	37
" " " Fourth "	56
" " " Fifth "	75
" " " Sixth "	90
Wilson's Primary Speller	15
" Larger "	30
" New "	34
Lamson's Penmanship, per dozen	1 80
French's First Lessons in Numbers	25
" Elementary Arithmetic	37
" Mental Arithmetic	35
" Common School Arithmetic	70
Swinton's Language Primer	20
" Language Lessons	37
" School Composition	37
" Progressive Grammar	55

Catalogues, circulars, and testimonials sent on applications. Correspondence solicited and will receive prompt attention, when addressed

W. P. ROGERS & W. L. JARVIS, Agents for the introduction of Harper & Brothers' Educational Works; New Orleans, La.; Lock Box 194.

E. D. ELLIOTT,

[illegible]

30 Natchez st., (3rd floor) New Orleans, La.
Takes contracts for printing newspapers,
Job Work neatly executed.

FIND A WAY, OR MAKE IT.

[illegible] dreams, lad, in your brain,
[illegible] hopes may soon awake it—
[illegible] the goal, but ne'er a path,
Then find a way, or make it.

To get the covenant's rich meat—
[illegible] shell is hard—you break it;
[illegible] leaf his elder holds
Until you bruise or shake it.

[illegible] in the path you choose—
[illegible] may be wise to take it;
[illegible] ahead, all danger see,
[illegible] time you may forsake it.

[illegible] mountain, far too steep to climb—
[illegible] then, don't try and do it;
[illegible] may be able to go round,
[illegible] patiently dig through it.

[illegible] you say, but ne'er a gate!
[illegible] can you do? you wonder.
[illegible] scale the wall, mount if you can,
[illegible] if you can't, crawl under.

[illegible] deep, you can not swim!
[illegible] there, you know it?
[illegible] there is no other way,
[illegible] your own boat and row it.

[illegible] we know the way is hard—
[illegible] and an open mountain;
[illegible] drink from muddy stream
[illegible] some clear fountain.

[illegible] you'll have many a kick,
[illegible] maps will push you;
[illegible] way and praise will come
[illegible] who tried to crush you.

[illegible] river, toiling through a fear,
[illegible] hurriedly go and shake it,
[illegible] don't rest—to reach your goal,
[illegible] way or make it.

[illegible] Golden Rules for [illegible] Families.

[illegible] confined to this world. [illegible] as followers of God, [illegible] children. Eph. v. 1. Be ye [illegible] and watch unto prayer. [illegible] 7. Be kindly affectioned [illegible]. Rom. xii. 10. Be [illegible] such things as ye [illegible]. 5. Be ye the doers [illegible] and not hearers only. [illegible] of one mind, live in [illegible] xiii. 11. Be patient to[illegible] 1 Thess. v. 14. Be [illegible]ffity. 1 Peter v. [illegible] courteous. 1 Peter [illegible] in the Lord, and re[illegible]. 11. Be ye ready, [illegible] man cometh. Luke [illegible]

[illegible], of Space.

[illegible] delivered in [illegible] Profes[illegible] idea of the [illegible] said a [illegible] night and [illegible] miles an [illegible] in six [illegible]dred [illegible] the [illegible] you'll have many a kick, [illegible] maps will push you; [illegible] way and praise will come [illegible] who tried to crush you. [illegible] river, toiling through a fear, [illegible] hurriedly go and shake it, [illegible] don't rest—to reach your goal, [illegible] way or make it.

LOST FRIENDS.

NOTE—We receive many letters asking for information about lost friends. All such letters will be published in this column. We make no charge for publishing these letters FROM SUBSCRIBERS TO THE SOUTHWESTERN. All others will please enclose fifty cents to pay for publishing the notices. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any cases where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.

My father and mother were Samuel and Leona Rhodes. The other children were Mary Jane, Eliza Nelson, Jordan, John and Wilson. We belonged to Stephen and Nancy Johnson, who lived about ten miles from Richmond Virginia. I will be thankful for information concerning any of my relations.

Address me at Shreveport, La., care of St. Paul's M. E. Church.

MALINDA RHODES JONES.

My family belonged to Mr. Bennett, in Charleston, S. C., and we had his name. I do not remember my father. My mother's name was Nancy; she died at Bennett's. I had a sister Eliza, and another sister Frances. Bennett sold us just before the war to a slave dealer named Anker, and we were separated. Our grand-parents were Jacob and Milly Roberson, and they lived at Beaufort, S. C. I had two aunts named Mary and Hester Bennett and three of my uncles were Joseph, Benjamin and Peter Roberson. I was sold by Anker to Mr. Dean in Tennessee. I will receive any information concerning my dear relatives most thankfully. Address Solomon Dean, Nolensville, Tennessee.

My two sisters, named, one of them Sarah Catharine and the other Frances, and myself belonged to Selia Hunt, in Lexington, Ky., and we had the name of Hunt. Our mistress married Jim Crane, and he sold both my sisters. It is one of them, Sarah Catharine, that I desire to find. Please address Rev. W. W. Brown, Marshall, Texas.

I desire information of my brother, Sam Kennedy. We belonged with our mother, who was named Eliza, to Wm. Kennedy, in Jasper Co., Miss. My brother left us one Sunday night in Feb. 1863. Address H. L. Kennedy, Paulding, Miss.

A Wonder-Working Remedy.

No remedial agent has ever been offered to the sick and debilitated at all comparable to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, in cases of resultant and intermittent fevers, constipation, nervous ailments, rheumatism and disorders involving constitutional weakness or physical decay. It literally "works wonders." The botanic ingredients which its spirituous basis holds in solution, act like a charm upon the stomach, and through the stomach upon the liver, bowels and nervous system. There is nothing in its composition that is not salubrious. It contains some of the most potent tonics of the vegetable kingdom, and the juices of the most aperient and anti-bilious roots and herbs, combined with a perfectly pure stimulating element. The bitters are peculiarly adapted to those engaged in enhancing or unhealthy occupations, as by its use strength is sustained and the ability of the system to resist atmospheric and other influences prejudicial to health largely increased.

PRICE CURRENT.

NEW ORLEANS, LA., May 9, 1877.

It must be borne in mind that the following quotations represent wholesale prices. In purchasing small lots, higher rates are charged, and in selling small quantities a late price must be accepted.

BACON—
Sugar cured ₱ lb	6½ @ 7
Smoked ribs ₱ lb	9 @ 9½
Clear sides ₱ lb	9½@10
Hams ₱ lb	10 @11½
Smoked Beef ₱ lb	9½@10½
BRAN—Per 100 lbs	$1 50
BRAND—
White Northern ₱ lb	4 @ 4½
White Western ₱ lb	3½@ 3¾
Red Kidney ₱ lb	5 @ 5½
BUTTER—
Choice Goshen ₱ lb	26 @28
Medium " ₱ lb	18 @24
Choice Western ₱ lb	20 @22
Medium " ₱ lb	13 @16
Inferior ₱ lb	10 @12
COTTON—
Good Ordinary ₱ lb	9 @ 9½
Low Middling ₱ lb	10½@10¾
Middling ₱ lb	11 @11½
Good Middling ₱ lb	11½@12
Fair ₱ lb	12 @13
CORN—
Yellow per bushel	62 @ —
White per bushel	60 @ —
Mixed per bushel	58 @ —
In Bulk per bushel	58 @ —
CORN MEAL—
Per barrel	$3 00@3 25
COFFEE—(Gold)—
Prime ₱ lb	20½@22
Good ₱ lb	19 @20
Fair ₱ lb	18 @18
CHEESE—
Goshen ₱ lb	16½@17
Western good ₱ lb	15½@16
Medium ₱ lb	13 @13
Inferior ₱ lb	8 @10
DRIED FRUITS—
Apples ₱ lb	5 @ 8
Peaches ₱ lb	—@—
MOLASSES—
Apples ₱ bbl	$2 50 @3 00
Peaches ₱ bbl	4 00 @ 5 00
Quince ₱ bbl	4 50 @ —
EGGS—
Western per doz	10 @ 12
Creole per doz	11 @ 14
FLOUR—
Superfine ₱ bbl	$5 50 @ $6 75
Double Extra per bbl	6 75 @ —
Family Extra ₱ bbl	8 00 @ 9 00
Family Extra ₱ bbl	10 @ 11 00
HAY—
Prime ₱ ton	$16 00 @ $18
Choice "	19 00 @ 20
HIDES—
Country Green ₱ lb	7 @ 8
Dry Salted ₱ lb	8 to 10
Dry Flint ₱ lb	12 to 14
LARD—
Tierces ₱ lb	10½ @ 11
Kegs ₱ lb	10½ @ 10¾
Pails	10 @ 12
MOLASSES—
Cuba ₱ gallon	30 @ 32½
Fair ₱ gallon	35 @ 37
Prime ₱ gallon	40 @ 47
Choice ₱ gallon	48 @ 50
OATS—
St. Louis ₱ bushel	60 @ —
Choice ₱ bushel	50 @ 52
POULTRY—
Chickens ₱ doz	$4 00 @ —
Hens ₱ doz	3 00 @ 4 00
Roosters ₱ doz	3 00 @ 3 50
Turkeys ₱ lb	12 @ 14
Geese ₱ lb	75 @ 80
Ducks ₱ doz	3 @ 3½
Pigeons ₱ doz	1 @ 1½
Rabbits ₱ doz	1 @ 1½
Venison ₱ lb	5 @ 6
Bear ₱ lb	3 @ 4
Beef ₱ lb	3 @ 4
Mutton ₱ lb	3 @ 4
Pork ₱ lb	8 @ 9
Turkey Gobblers ₱ lb	12 @ 14
Turkey Hens ₱ lb	12 @ 14
Ducks ₱ pair	1 @ 1½
Geese ₱ pair	1 @ 1

Southwestern Christian Advocate.

NEW SERIES—VOL. 1—NO. 21. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, MAY 24, 1877. WHOLE NUMBER 351.

SOUTHWESTERN

Christian Advocate.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT

[illegible] Natchez St., New Orleans,

BY

NELSON & PHILLIPS,

FOR THE

Methodist Episcopal Church.

Terms: $2 a year, Cash in Advance.

All Traveling Preachers of the Methodist Episcopal Church are authorized Agents.

Subscriptions may begin at any time and the paper will be sent as long as paid for.

Remittances should be made by Registered Letter, P. O. Money Order, or by Express.

Advertising Rates.

(Per Nonpareil line, each insertion.)

[illegible]

"LO, I AM WITH YOU ALWAYS."

It is sweet to read the promise he hath given,
To cheer the hearts along the pilgrim way,
But sweeter far to know its blest fulfillment,
And humbly walk with Jesus day by day.

[illegible] Who shall tell the [illegible]
Of those whose daily life the Master [illegible]
Who hear his voice so full of love and pity,
And [illegible] him their burdens and their [illegible]

And this is mine—the joy of knowing [illegible]
[illegible] in the sunlight of his [illegible]
[illegible] floweth like a river,
[illegible] growing all the [illegible]

No more a transient guest my Savior comes [illegible]
To [illegible] but a while and then depart [illegible]
[illegible] his glad presence fills my [illegible]

Sometimes when busy with my daily labor
[illegible] of the mighty love he [illegible]
[illegible] he giveth,
[illegible] but never mine [illegible]

[illegible] he gives his choicest [illegible]
[illegible] of his love,
[illegible] it runneth over,
[illegible] his wondrous grace I [illegible]

[illegible] he called me, so unworthy,
[illegible] way toward his [illegible]
[illegible] willing feet I [illegible]
[illegible] to hear him say,
[illegible] in paths of his own [illegible]
[illegible] along the [illegible]
[illegible] journeying [illegible]
[illegible] the pilgrim's path [illegible]

[illegible] Shepherd.

[illegible] preached [illegible] He said: [illegible] John we [illegible] down [illegible] Paul [illegible] gave [illegible] man in the twenty-third [illegible] Shepherd [illegible] of death though I walk [illegible] in the green pastures, and leadeth us beside still waters. There was a friend of mine in England who told me that she went out to ride one day, and met with a shepherd with a large flock of sheep in front of him—instead of being like the Good Shepherd, he was not leading them but driving them—and if they stopped to eat the grass by the wayside a dog started out to scare them on, and she got so interested, as she thought he was very cruel, that she watched them for a long time; but by and by he opened the gate, and they passed into a beautiful park, and she saw a beautiful stream running through that park, and after he had got them into that inclosure they went down to that stream and drank, and then laid down by the side of that river, and then she understood why he didn't want them to eat by the roadside—there was danger there. He wanted them to lie down in the green pastures and beside the still waters. Now we turn over to this fifteenth chapter of Luke, and we find one of the sheep going astray, and we find the Shepherd going after him. I may be speaking here to-night to some backslider. I am come to-night to tell you that the Good Shepherd loves you still. He wants to bring you back, and if you will give up your evil ways, and let Him bring you back, you can say with the Psalmist, "He restoreth my soul." But the trouble with a good many is, they are not willing to be brought back in h's own way. Dr. Andrew Bonar told me how, in the Highlands of Scotland, often a sheep would wander off into the rocks and get into places that they couldn't get out of. The grass on these mountains is very sweet and the sheep like it, and they will jump down ten or twelve feet, and then they can't jump back again, and the shepherd hears them bleating in distress.

There may be there for days, until they have eaten all the grass, and he will wait until they are so faint that they cannot stand, and then they put a rope around him and he will go over there and pull that sheep up out of the jaws of death. Why don't they go down there when the sheep first gets there? I asked. "Ah!" he said, "they are so very foolish they would dash right over the precipice and be killed if they did!" And that is the way with men; they won't go back to God till they have no friends and have lost everything. If there is a wanderer here to-night I come to tell you that the Good Shepherd will bring you back the moment you have given up trying to save yourself and are willing to let Him save you in His own way.

Christ says, "You can get the victory through Me." How easy, when the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts, it is to speak kindly of those who hate us and speak contemptuously of us. Some men want to get the whole world in their grasp, and never care for the unfortunate. He wants the Lord to bless him and his family, and let the rest of the world perish. Ah! my friends, you want to take that fault to the Lord and ask him to correct it. Another feeling men have is that of self-righteousness and self-sufficiency. That was the trouble with Peter once. He said that, though all the rest might deny the Lord, he would not, and it was not many hours before he denied Him, and said he never knew Him at all. Ah! how soon we learn the lesson that we need His care. Then we have another besetting sin—the flesh. How it lusts against the spirit! How the lust of the pleasure of the world comes in and mars our happiness, but if we take it all to Christ He will give us the victory. Then there is another thought, if we are truly His there is no power, infernal or on earth, than can take us from His grasp. Neither the devil nor man can take the sheep out of the Shepherd's hand. "They shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of my Father's hand" (John x. 28.) If you read that carefully you will find that "man" is put in italics, and really the true rendering is that "none shall take them out of my hand." The Lord, our Shepherd, is able to take care of His sheep. It would be a reproach to Him for all eternity if Satan should prove stronger than He. Why not to-night every one of us make the Lord our shepherd and say, "By the grace of God we will just follow Him?" He will never lead us astray, but will lead us into green pastures and beside still waters. Dr. Booth, of New York, who has lost all his children—I say lost, but they are not lost, they are all in heaven—was telling [illegible] being in an Eastern country [illegible] to get their [illegible] into the water [illegible] by name, but they [illegible] the bank and bleated [illegible] were afraid to follow [illegible] of the water [illegible] his lambs [illegible] and [illegible] the water, and the old ones looked up to the shepherd instead of down into the water—they wanted to see their little ones—and so he got them over the water and led them into the green pastures on the other side. How many times the Good Shepherd has come down here and taken a lamb to the hilltops of glory, and then the father and mother begin to look up and follow! Am I not talking to some father or mother to-night that has some loved one gone over the stream? The Good Shepherd has taken it that He may draw you to that world of light where He has gone to prepare mansions for those that love Him.

The Second Sunday in June.

There is a recommendation in the Discipline, paragraph 371, that ought not to be overlooked, as follows:

"It is recommended that the second Sunday in June, be everywhere observed as 'Children's Day,' and that whenever practicable, a collection be taken in the Sunday-school in aid of the 'Sunday-school Fund' of the Board of Education."

The Sunday-school Fund of the Board of Education was collected from comparatively a few Sunday-schools during the Centenary year of American Methodism, 1876. The Board of Education of the Methodist Episcopal Church obtained its Charter from the State of New York in 1868, pursuant to instructions of preceding General Conference. The Board of Education also has charge of the Centenary Educational Fund, which consisted of collections taken during the Centenary year in the public congregations to assist needy students for the ministry. Though these funds were small, yet they were larger than any other Centenary contributions made for a general purpose. The S. S. Children's Fund was originally $70,000, and the General Educational Fund $14,000. Both have been enlarged slowly since, and now the S. S. Children's Fund and is more than $75,000, and the Centenary Educational Fund about $27,000.

Both funds are invested safely at seven per cent. and the income only is used. Any additions to the income made by the collections is also used.

The object of the Sunday-school Children's Fund is "to assist meritorious Sunday-school scholars in obtaining a more advanced education." These are the words of the Charter.

In the execution of this trust the Board deems it best to distribute the small proceeds of the children's fund so as to help a few of the needy Sunday-school scholars, who are recommended by Sunday-school superintendents and pastors as deserving aid, and, not only on account of good character, but because they intend to use their education in some way to advance the interests of the cause of Christ. Students preparing to teach in foreign mission fields, both male and female, as well as candidates for the ministry, are assisted. None receive more than $100 a year, some have received only enough to pay their tuition bills. All recipients sign an application in the following words:

The undersigned, a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church at ——, being —— years of age and in sound health, feeling it is my bounden duty to prepare myself for the work of the ministry, or other service in behalf of the cause of Christ, and to devote my life to that work; and cordially approving of the doctrines and discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church, to whose ministry or service it is my serious purpose to devote my life, solicit a loan from the Board of Education of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in accordance with the Constitution of the said Society. I will endeavor after my school education is completed, as early as possible, to repay the sum received, without interest, to the Board of Education.

Dated, —— 187—.

It will be seen that the recipients promise to endeavor to repay the [illegible] received. One only as yet, a young lady, employed as teacher has made a re-payment. But it is only a short time since the Board began to help students, and yet there are several members of Conferences and several foreign missionaries who have received from one hundred to two or three hundred dollars each from this source.

The sum of $8,635 was distributed during 1876, to about 100 students in all parts of the country.

The reason why the Board has no more money is because the Conferences appropriate it for education themselves. This they have a disciplinary right to do by Conference action. But the Children's Day collections are an exception. The collection recommended by the Discipline on that day is "In aid of the Sunday School fund of the Board of education." Besides, the constitution of the Board of Education says: "Each annual Conference shall share in the annual proceeds of this fund—provided no Conference shall share in the proceeds of money contributed hereafter, which shall not take annual collections in behalf of this fund in the Sunday Schools within the bounds of said Conference."

In 1873 when I entered upon the duties of Corresponding Secretary, small collections began to come in from all parts of the country, and the practice was begun of distributing monies to students in nearly all our colleges, but of late no collections being received from some of the Conferences it becomes necessary to restrict the distribution to a narrower territory.

I would therefore respectfully suggest that Sunday Schools in all parts of the country observe Children's Day, this year, June 10th, and that the collections be transmitted to the Board of Education. Receipts will be returned and it is proper that every Church should receive credit in the Conference statistics for this collection, under the head of Education. Any other collections for Education taken by the Church can be added to this by the Pastor, and the Church be credited for the sum. All the proceeds received by the Board, together with the interest of its funds will be distributed, and every Conference whose Church sends collections to the Board will receive in the form of assistance granted to students attending schools within its bounds more than it sends to the Board.

E. O. HAVEN, Corresponding Sec.

Syracuse, N. Y., May 7, 1877.

Inspiration of the Bible.

Open the Bible, examine the fifty sacred authors therein from Moses—who wrote in the wilderness 400 years before the siege of Troy—to the fisherman son of Zebedee, who wrote 1500 years after in Ephesus and Patmos, under the reign of Domitian; and you will find none of those mistakes which the science of every country detects in the works of preceding generations. Carefully go through the Bible from Genesis to Revelations, in search of such faults, and as you carry on the investigation, remember that it is a book that treats of everything, which describes nature, which recounts its wonders, which records its creation, which tells us of the formation of the heavens, of the light, of the waters, of the air, of the mountains, of animals, and of plants; that it is a book that acquaints us with the first revolutions of the world, and which foretells also its last; that it is a book which describes them with circumstantial details, invests them with sublime poetry, and chants them in fervent melodies; that it is a book replete with Eastern imagery, full of majesty, variety and boldness; that it is a book which treats of the earth and things visible, and at the same time of the celestial world and of things invisible; that it is a book in which nearly fifty writers of every degree of cultivation, of every order, of every condition, and separated from one another by 1,500 years, have been engaged; that it is a book written variously in the center of Asia, in the deserts of Judea, in the porches of the Jewish Temple, and in the rustic schools of the prophets of Bethel and Jericho, in the magnificent palaces of Babylon, and on the idolatrous banks of the Chebar, and afterwards in the center of western civilization, in the midst of the Jews and their ignorant councils, among Polytheism and its idols, and, as it were, in the bosom of Pantheism and its foolish Philosophy; that it is a book whose first writer was, during forty years, brought up among the magicians of Egypt, who regarded the sun, planets and elements as endowed with intelligence, reacting upon and governing our world by their continual evaporation; and that it is a book whose first pages preceded by more than 900 years the most ancient philosophers of Greece and Asia—Thales, Pythagoras, Zaleucus, Xenophon and Confucius; that it is a book which carries its records into the scenes of the invisible world, the hierarchy of angels, the latest periods of futurity, and the glorious consummation of all things. Well, search in its 50 authors, its 66 books, its 1,189 chapters, and its 31,173 verses—search for a single one of the thousand errors with which every ancient and modern author abounds when they speak of the heavens or of the earth, of their revolutions or their elements, and you will fail to find it. It never does violence to facts, nor to the principles of sound natural philosophy. Never in one single instance will you find it in opposition to the just ideas which science has given us regarding the form of our globe, its magnitude and its glory. There is, therefore, no physical error whatever in the Scriptures; and this transcendant fact, which becomes more admirable in proportion as it is made the subject of closer investigation, is a striking proof of the inspiration which dictated them even to their least expressions.—Gaussen.

The administrative divisions of Turkey in Europe are Adrianople, Bosnia, Constantinople, Danube, Salonica, Scutari, Uscub, and Yanina. In Asia, Smyrna, Adana, Aleppo, Angora, Archipelago, Bagdad, Castamboul, Crete, Erzeroum, Hedgaz, Hondavendighiaz, Konia, Kourdistan, Sivas, Syria, Mount Lebanon, and Trebizond. In Africa, Tripoli.

Webster and Jenny Lind.

Jenny Lind gave a concert at Washington during the session of Congress, and as a mark of her respect, and with a view to the eclat, sent polite invitations to the President, Mr. Fillmore, the members of the Cabinet, Mr. Clay, and many other distinguished members of both houses of Congress. The concert was nearly over when Webster, Clay, Crittenden and others came in. After the applause with which these gentlemen were received had subsided, and silence was restored, the second part of the concert was opened by Jenny Lind with "Hail Columbia." This took place during the height of the debate and excitement on the slavery question, and the compromise resolutions of Mr. Clay, and this patriotic air, as part of the programme, was considered peculiarly appropriate for a concert where the head of government and a large number of both branches of the legislative departments were present. At the close of the first verse, Webster's patriotism bolled over; he could sit no longer, and rising, like Olympian Jove, he added his deep sonorous bass voice to chorus, and I venture to say, never in the whole course of her career, did she ever hear or receive one-half the applause with which her song and Webster's chorus were greeted. Mrs. Webster, who sat immediately behind, kept tugging at his coat-tail to make him sit down or stop singing, but it was of no earthly use—and at the close of each verse Webster joined in, and it was hard to say whether Jenny Lind, Webster, or the audience, was the most delighted. At the close of the air, Mr. Webster rose with his hat in his hand and made such a bow as Chesterfield would have deemed a fortune for his son, and which eclipsed D'Orsay's best. Jenny Lind, blushing at the distinguished honor, courtesied to the floor; the audience applauded to the very echo. Webster, determined not to be outdone in politeness, bowed again—Miss Lind re-courtesied, the house re-applauded, and this was repeated nine times.

Pilgrims and Puritans.

The Pilgrims were originally of the sect of Separatists, or Brownists, and they, or the most of them, lived in Yorkshire, England, near Scrooby. They refused all connection with the Church of England, and were bitterly persecuted. Under the lead of John Robinson, Brewster, and Bradford, they escaped to Holland and lived for some time there. Becoming dissatisfied with the bigotry of their fellow Separatists, they left them, and formed the first church of the denomination of Independents. Fearing the evil influences of Holland for their children, they embarked for America, and before landing at Plymouth they drew up and mutually subscribed a form of democratic government. For seventy years they maintained a separate government, and were recognized as a distinct colony. They were remarkably tolerant of differences of religious opinion, and, as all histories agree, they did not persecute any one for conscience' sake. The Puritans were the founders of the Massachusetts Bay colony. They belonged to the Church of England, but after their arrival at Salem determined to form a church organization of their own. They did persecute Qakers and Baptists; and their government, both in matters ecclesiastical and civil, was much more severe and intolerant than that of the Plymouth colony.

Perils of Falsehood

When once a concealment or deceit has been practiced in matter, where all should be fair and open as the day, confidence can never be restored any more than you can restore the white bloom to the grape or plum which you have once pressed in your hand. How true is this! and what a neglected truth by a great portion of mankind! Falsehood is not only one of the most humiliating vices, but sooner or later it is most certain to lead to serious crimes. With partners in trade, with partners in life, with friends, with lovers, how important is confidence. How essential that all guile and hypocrisy should be guarded against in the intercourse between such parties! How much misery would be avoided in the history of many lives, had truth and sincerity been guilding and controlling motives, instead of prevarication and deceit! "Any vice," said a parent in our hearing a few days since, "any vice, at least among the frailties of a milder character, but falsehood. Far better that my child should commit an error, or do a wrong, and confess it, than to escape the penalty, however severe, by falsehood and hypocrisy. Let me know the worst, and a remedy may possibly be applied. But keep me dark, let me be misled or deceived, and it is impossible to tell at what hour a crushing blow, an overwhelming exposure, may come."

"Uncle Tom" in Scotland.

The veritable "Uncle Tom" of Mrs. Stowe's novel appeared before a large audience in Edinburgh lately. In the course of an interesting address, he said he had heard a great deal about Scotland, and had a peculiar reason for desiring to see it. About thirty-seven years ago he was in the deepest distress. He had made an attempt to get his freedom by walking away, and he accomplished the journey, thus entered upon without much misgiving, till he came to a place where there was no road or other outlet for a traveler. With a poor wife and four children he had fought his way through bushes for 600 miles, and reached Lake Erie—about three hundred miles in length, and eighty miles in breadth. At this stage of the journey he did not know what to do, when unexpectedly, a Scotchman stepped forward and addressed a few words to him. The Scotchman, however, spoke English so badly, as he thought—not being acquainted with languages—that he could scarcely understand what was said. The Scotchman asked him if he was trying to obtain his freedom, but he was afraid to reply, as at that time he looked upon every white man as his enemy. "Now," said the Scotchman to him, "open your heart like a man, and you'll find a friend. Are you trying to get your freedom?" After hesitation, Mr. Henson replied that he was, and his friend exclaiming, "That's right," took him on board his vessel, conveyed him to the city of Buffalo, handed him a dollar and sent him across Niagara to a place called Erie. If that would not make a man love Scotchmen he did not know what should. Mr. Henson then proceeded to narrate the leading incidents of his life, mentioning that he was born in 1789 at Port Tobacco, that when he was about five years old his father was taken away from his home and never again seen by his family. Later the whole of them were placed upon the auction block and sold to different slave dealers, but that subsequently he was sold to the dealer who purchased his mother, and by her lead to the study of the word of God. He afterwards gave a sketch of his labors in Canada, and concluded by observing that he had now a dear little wife, ten children, forty-four grandchildren, eighty-eight great-grand children, and was not so very badly off after all.—Missionary Messenger.

What a Fall.

A minister of the Gospel told me one of the most thrilling incidents I have heard in my life. A member of his congregation came home for the first time of his life intoxicated, and his boy met him upon the door-step clapping his hands and exclaiming "Papa has come home!" He siezed that boy by the shoulder, swung him around, staggered, and fell in the hall. That minister said to me "I spent the night in that house. I went, out bared my brow that the night air might fall upon it and cool it. I walked up and down the hill. There was his child dead! there was his wife in strong convulsions, and he asleep. A man but 30 years of age asleep, with a dead child in the house, having a blue mark upon the temple where the corner of the marble steps had come in contact with the head as he swung him a round and a wife upon the brink of the grave! 'Mr. Gough,' said my friend, 'I cursed the drink. He had told me that I must remain until he awoke, and I did. When he awoke he passed his hand over his face, and exclaimed "What is the matter? where am I? where is my boy?" 'You cannot see him.' 'Stand out of my way. I will see my boy.' To prevent confusion I took him to the child's bed, and as I turned down the sheet and showed him the corpse, he uttered a wild shriek, 'Ah my child!'" That minister said further to me, "One year after that he was brought from a lunatic asylum to lie side by side with his wife in one grave, and I attended his funeral." The minister of the Gospel who told me that fact is to-day a drunken hostler in a stable in Boston. Now tell me what rum will not do. It will debase, degrade imbrute and damn everything that is noble, bright, glorious and God-like in a human being. There is nothing drink will not do that is vile dastardly, cowardly, sneaking or hellish When are we not to fight till the day of our death?—J. B. Gough.

The Russian Empire embraces about one-seventh of the territory of the entire globe, or over 8,000,000 square miles. About one-quarter of this, known as Russia in Europe, lies west of the Ural Mountains, which form the boundary line between Europe and Asia, while the remainder, over 6,000,000 square miles, lies east of the Ural range, and reaches to the Pacific and Behring's Straits.

Mean souls, like mean pictures, are often found in good-looking frames

General News Items.

Street railways at Little Rock, Arkansas, are in course of construction.

The peach crop in the Indian Territory will be larger than ever this year.

About 100,000 young shad were recently planted in the Neuse river, near Melburnie, N. C.

New England owns one-third the number of sailing vessels of the country, and one-half the tonnage.

Persia has just been celebrating the hundreth anniversary of the founding of the present dynasty.

The government is said to lose $15,000,000 annually by the undervaluation of silk importations at New York.

San Francisco has just opened another palatial hotel, called "The Baldwin." It cost $3,500,000.

The Russian government recently purchased 10,000 American plows for distribution among the Russian farmers.

Miss Maud Grubbs, Dennison, Texas, has taken the honors at the National School of Elocution at Philadelphia.

A census of Berlin, completed in February, gave it a population of 1,000,309. It is now the fourth city in Europe and the ninth in the world in point of population.

American made boots are making inroads upon Europe, and the Swiss shoemakers have sounded an alarm. American boots are sold in Switzerland at $2 per pair.

A law has just been passed in Indiana requiring the doors of every theater, church, college, school and other public building to be made to swing outward within sixty days, under penalty of $1000.

The North German Lloyd's steamship, Numberg, on the 8th inst., ran into and sunk the Norwegian bark, Azow, in Chesapeake Bay. Four of the crew of the bark were lost.

General Lew Wallace, of Indiana, has been invited to deliver an address on Decoration-day at Louisville. The citizens of Louisville, New Albany, and Jeffersonville will unite in the observance of the day.

The last intelligible words of the late Dr. Muhlenberg, author of the hymn beginning, "I would not live alway," were: "Lower not the flag at half-mast, but place it at the top as an emblem of my victory over sin and death."

Tampa Guardian says: South Florida is blessed, indeed. The Northern people who have settled here are intelligent and industrious, just such people as it takes to build up a country. More of these good citizens are constantly arriving, and others are making up their minds to come.

Petersburg Index-Appeal says: About 130 vessels from foreign ports have been ordered to Hampton Roads, all of which will arrive there within the ensuing two months. They will be distributed among the ports of Norfolk, Richmond and Baltimore to load with grain for Europe.

The following are the annuities received by Queen Victoria's children: The Princess Royal, £8000; Prince of Wales, £40,000; the Princess of Wales, £10,000; Prince Alfred, £25,000; Prince Arthur and Prince, Leopold, £15,000; the Alice, Helena, and Louise, £6000 each.

The Russian Church separated from the See of Rome in 1054, and from the Byzantine patriarchate in 1589. It has now its own independent Synod, but maintains the relations of a sister church with the four patriarchates of Constantinople, Jerusalem, Antioch, and Alexandria. The sacred synod of the Greek Church was established with the concurrence of the Russian clergy and the four Eastern patriarchs. The Czar is not the head of the church in the same sense as the Pope of Rome. He is officialy termed the protector or defender of the church. The Czar appoints to every office in the church, but has never claimed the right of deciding theological and dogmatic questions. The judgment of the church being once given, the Czar commands its execution.

Don't be a Loafer.

Young man, don't be a loafer; don't keep company with loafers; don't hang about loafing places. Better work for nothing than sit around day after day with your hands in your pockets. It is better for your health, better for your reputation. Bustle about if you mean to have anything to bustle for. Many a lawyer has got a paying client by working for a poor man who could not pay. Many a poor doctor has got a good practice by attending closely to a poor one. Such is the world; to him that hath shall be given. Quit dreaming and complaining; keep busy, busy, and mind your chances.

SOUTHWESTERN
Christian Advocate.
[illegible] Natchez St., New Orleans.
J. C. HARTZELL, B. D., EDITOR
THURSDAY, MAY 24, 1877.

In going North take the Great Jackson Route.

Vote for the New Orleans and Pacific Railroad Tax.

Captain George L. Norton has been appointed Harbor Master for this port.

Rev. Dr. McCarthy, pastor of [illegible] M. E. Church of this city delivers the oration on "Decoration Day," at the National Cemetery, below the city.

The California Advocate gives full [illegible] accounts of Sunday-school gatherings under the leadership of Dr. J. H. Vincent and Dr. C. C. McCabe.

Rev. I. S. Leavitt formerly of [illegible] Conference but now of [illegible] is enjoying prosperity [illegible] Waupaca. [illegible] January, 60 have united [illegible] the Church, mostly adults.

Let none of our readers fail to [illegible] Dr. E. O. Haven's announcement on the first page of this issue. The Doctor as Corresponding Secretary of the Board of Education, asks that none forget Children's Day, June 10th. Read what he says.

Christians are spending about [illegible] a year for the conversion [illegible] while merchants from [illegible] countries are taking from [illegible] every year $00,000,000, and [illegible] her in its place 0,000 tons of [illegible] every twelve months. So [illegible] Central.

[illegible] Great Jackson Route now [illegible] two trains daily; its track has [illegible] relaid with new rails; [illegible] superb, and it is the [illegible] route to Chicago, Cincinnati [illegible] St. Louis. Buy tickets of [illegible] D. Sheldon, 22 Camp street, [illegible] City Hotel.

[illegible] Christian [illegible] the democ[illegible] gained [illegible] adopting the prin[illegible] party. The [illegible] stands for [illegible] we suppose [illegible] at the end of his [illegible] doubly deceived.

[illegible] Methodist Episcopal [illegible] City where [illegible] His family [illegible] subscription [illegible] The President [illegible] to the trustees [illegible] an amount [illegible] given by any [illegible] for [illegible]

[illegible] social and [illegible] immediate [illegible] the things [illegible] every day [illegible] to behold [illegible] to [illegible] shall you be [illegible]

[illegible] this word [illegible] it will no [illegible]

[illegible] Adams has been [illegible] Louisiana Conference [illegible] Erie, Pennsylvania [illegible] reports [illegible] with many [illegible]

Human Influence.

Human influence is not a matter of choice but of necessity. There is no such power given us by which we can wrap ourselves in the cloak of our own individuality and withdraw from the world. As every spire of grass casts its shadow in the sunshine, so every soul has an influence—not from choice but from necessity. God has so constituted the soul of man, that it is wonderfully and universally susceptible of giving and receiving impressions. And this divinely appointed soul-power makes human influence a necessity as absolute as is the law that matter attracts matter. The mere fact of living makes us a power for evil or good. Let a single clod of matter by some infinite power be annihilated, thus breaking natures unending chain of relation, and the universe would be a wreck. The harmony and adjustment of God's moral universe is just as complete as that of his physical universe. How certain must it be then that no man liveth to himself.

Exactly what a man's influence is, is a separate and most important question. Every man's influence is to be judged in two respects—as regards its force and moral quality. Its force depends upon position and capacity. The more favorable the position and stronger the mind, the greater the influence. Abraham Lincoln at the head of our nation, could with a single stroke of his pen, strike the shackles from millions who were in bondage. Descartes as a private citizen, completely isolated from the world, sent forth from his retreat in Holland, thoughts which made him the father of modern philosophy. On the other hand the vast majority of men, labor a life time for their daily morsel of bread. It must not however be supposed that an extended influence is necessarily the best or the most to be coveted. So many mistake here. Not having an extended influence they conclude either that they have none, or that it is so small as to be of no importance. Many, many thousands have thus robbed themselves of a life of joy—the world of a noble example and heaven of a jewel. The cascade that tumbles down the mountain side to give drink to the beasts that roam in the valley below, and then to be lost in the adjacent bogs, is just as important in the eye of nature, as the rolling river that sweeps the distant plain. If there were no cascades there could be no river.

But more important than the question of force is the question of the moral quantity of our influence. It is vastly more important to be good than it is to be great in the worldly sense. To be good is to be great, as God considers greatness. The more highly exalted a wicked man is, the more does he curse the earth. God looks at men's souls and considers their capabilities and opportunities, and to him they are great, as they are what they ought to be, morally.

Deeper than all questions of accidental surroundings, lies the matter of man's moral character. This is the great thing to be studied in considering human influence in this life. That a man must have an influence is a fact, that is in itself solemn; but of more immediate importance is the corresponding facts that a man's influence must be good or bad—as he is virtuous or not. As the rose sends forth its fragrance to perfume the air, so the virtuous man sheds about him a hallowing influence, and on the other hand as the poisoned swamp sending forth its deadly miasma, scatters death along its borders, so he who lacks virtue scatters moral pestilence wherever he goes.

Every man's influence is eternal. If a hundred master artists should paint the same scene, each following the same general plan as to every form and shade. There would yet be enough diversities in the hundred pictures to tell us, that no one man painted any two. And [illegible] these paintings might be [illegible] by successive generations, [illegible] retain the peculiarities [illegible] master. So with the soul. [illegible] is a wonder of perfection and power, hanging upon its every [illegible] of divinity; and [illegible] a mold and shape [illegible] about it in this [illegible] of ages cannot [illegible] the soul is in time, it [illegible]

Dr. Harrison's Fraternal Visit in the North.

Rev. Dr. Harrison, of Atlanta, Georgia, a leading minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, is in the North lecturing and raising money to complete his church, a twenty-five thousand dollar edifice, in which the Southern General Conference is to meet next May. The first city visited was Chicago, and the pulpits of our churches were freely accorded him, and a hearty welcome given by our Chicago Preachers' Meeting. Dr. Harrison's sermons are highly spoken of and the universally fraternal greeting given him by the Chicago Methodists is worthy of high commendation.

The Northwestern, however, intimates that Dr. Harrison was not altogether satisfied with his visit to Chicago. The amount of money raised was not large, but whether this was the measure of the Doctor's disappointment we do not know. The Northwestern states that the fact that he wanted to raise money was not distinctly announced at first, and thinks if this had been fairly understood, much more would have been given.

The Northwestern's further remarks are so much to the point on the subject of fraternity that we quote them entire:

"One other point has perhaps misled Dr. Harrison, as many other Southern men have been misled. They come to fraternize, and therefore they have in mind a half-nation of angry, choleric, frowning, ready-to-fight semi-irreconcilables, and their inevitable idiom is that of peacemakers on the edge of a battle-field. They are, however, surprised by the quiet, oblivious, sincerely friendly, cordial way in which they are met, and are by our non-combative air mis-led into the belief that we say nothing about past wars only because we are so bent on having no future peace. The facts are—not one in a score of our people realize that we have had any non-fraternity with the Church South, and none but the few half professional contestants know more about the Plan of Separation than they accurately know of the finer points in the Russian protocal. Another generation of Methodists did the past fighting, and the very logic of the present generation has found our Southern brethren the only ones who had an interest in remembering the battle. We accept the separation by wholesale, and are ready to fraternize by unconscious but willing adjustment of that which has somehow got out of joint. Argument, rehersal of past differences, and formal stipulation will not procure a recodable treaty of peace, but, as we believe, fraternity will come when the rank and file on both sides—the people, not the professional champions of anti-discord—mutually feel that the two churches have somehow been baptised by the spirit of good behavior in current, average practical issues. The spirit of fraternity, like the quality of mercy, must not be strained or strained at; it must like dew, distil gently from heaven. Some day the two churches will get so sweet and harmonious while they are looking heavenward, that when they recover their terrestial thoughts they will find their hands in mutually-loving grasps. The short road is not by labored, stinted plans of no more separation, not by agreements to be loving, but through the the divine something that excludes everything else save—the soul of unity. The man who, as a fraternal messenger to a listening conference, insists on loving his disunited brethren with the suppressed but manifest sotto voce ("even if you are a set of little scamps,") does not forward fraternity at all. The consolidation, for instance, of foreign mission work by the two churches would go further toward melting down barriers than ten weeks of talk or a car load of treaties.

We shall not have fraternity until we cease talking about it, which latter is too much like practicing tears for a mourner's bench.

Liberian Aid Soociety.

The American Colonization Society has just had its anniversary, partly in Washington and then adjourned to New York. Years ago this society was strong and influential, spending hundreds of thousands of dollars each year, in aiding Negroes to emigrate from America to Africa. Now scarcely twenty-thousand dollars can be raised annually, and the best speakers cannot draw an audience in Washington at its anniversaris. In other words, this Society organized to promote the colonization of American Negroes in Africa, which was a success during slavery times, is a failure when slavery is gone. This single fact is enough to indicate that this Society never had a sufficiently broad and christian basis to make it live. It ought therefore to die. Its object was to relieve the South of its surplus Negroes before the war, and gave some conscientious slave-holders an opportunity to free their slaves, or to ease their consciences by giving money. Rev. Dr. J. M. Reid gives the suggestion in the New York Advocate, that the name of the Society ought to be changed to the Liberian Aid Society. We would rather see it die and receive a decent burial as a relic of the past. But Dr. Reid makes some excellent suggestions upon the true policy toward Liberia, and we quote and endorse them.

The infant republic on the western coast of Africa, if we do not mistake the future, will have most important relations to the world's progress. It has played no insignificant part in the suppression of the slave trade in the coast and in the work of the missions upon which the redemption of that dark continent depends. What connection it may have with our future commerce and wealth we can but dimly foresee. The treasures of gold, ivory, diamonds, dye stuffs, and productions of the soil of all kinds, are, it may be, reserved to enrich the colored race of America, and recompense them for their generations of suffering. All is inscrutible, but it is easy to see that an immensity of consequence may flow from a proper bearing of the United States toward Liberia. Up to this moment we have not at all appreciated the case as has England, and yet, with millions of the sons of Africa among us, we ought to excel England in all good offices to Africa.

The Colonization Society is just the agent by which we can most effectually promote the interests of the Republic of Liberia and the civilization of all Africa. We recommend a radical reconstruction on this line. Change the name of the society to Liberian Aid Society. Remove the office to New York, and sprinkle its board with some of our rich, enterprising philanthropic citizens, who have caught a glimpse of the possibilities of Liberia. Set on foot some broad and comprehensive scheme for inspiring the Republic itself. Bend all the energies of the society toward running a railroad to Kong Mountains. Call upon the United States for a defense and help. Speak to Chambers of Commmerce and capital as well as Senates. Men will then go to Africa as they go to the Black Hills, for land and for business. And we will in turn be enriched by the traffic brought us.

As a general thing a man who cannot rake up the trifle now necessary to take him to Africa is of the kind of which we have too many there now. We want thrift, energy, enterprise—Yankee pluck and push in Liberia! A line of steamers once a month from the United States with regular mail, under this policy, would soon spring up, instead of a sailing vessel once in six months, as now. The colonizing of Africa would then take care of itself.

This, too, would wake up the country, and give enthusiasm to the cause. This would pour money into the treasury. No mere change of office location will. The society must be born again. It must be made worthy of the best efforts of the most gifted secretaries. Instead of reducing salaries we must pay more than a mere pittance, and expect the worth of our money.

The American Colonization Society has no longer a mission, unless it possesses power of adaptation to the new and unanticipated circumstances in which it finds itself. Old things have passed away and all things must become new. The day for congressional grants for the purpose of sending colored labor out of our country is past. There is no use setting on that old nest at Washington in the hope of hatching out a new brood, for there are no eggs in it. Put in some fresh eggs, and the prospect will brighten. The Government of the United States can be induced to help that young Republic, if the eye of the society will but be single for the good of Africa; and the Republic will help the colored American; and the benevolent aspirations of the life-long colonizationist will become satisfied; and even the life-long abolitionist will be found one with the life-long colonizationist in interest for Liberia.

The Missionary Board of the Methodist Episcopal South at its meeting in Nashville, May 4th, apportioned $78,662 to its various missions for the coming year, and the conferences are asked to raise for foreign missions $100,000. We notice that Colorado, Montana and California receive large donations. We are glad to see this. If there are people anywhere in any Northern State, which the M. E. Church South can reach better than any church already on the ground, it is her duty to go to them and to help them. By-the-way that reminds us that the Southern Methodist papers have a habit every year of growling about our Missionary appropriations to the South. It strikes us that this is hardly consistent with the fact, that the Southern Church is pushing her missions wherever she can in the North.

The National Repository for June is at hand, and is fully up to its predecessors. This number ends Volume I. The first article is illustrated and gives the history, success and present condition of the Ohio Wesleyan University. Among the students of the Ohio Wesleyan University for two years was Miss Lucy Webb now Mrs. President Hayes. The second article is especially interesting, and gives illustrations, and an extended account of the old Spanish missions near San Diego California. A similar and equally interesting article could follow on the Spanish missions in and near San Antonio, Texas. Dr. Daniel's story, That Boy—who shall have him—continues with unabated interest, although we disapprove of Mrs. Leighton's superstitions about her dead husbands portrait.

The editorial miscellany is good. Dr. Curry in his Ex Cathedra, gives a brief note on the New Administration in which he says: "Mr. Hayes became President of the United States because in the final counting, the votes of all the three doubtful Southern States, South Carolina, Florida and Louisiana, were given to him. And in its decision the law-abiding people in this country, of all parties, very generally acquiesced, for two reasons; first, because, according to the forms of law, they belong to him; and second, because there was a prevailing conviction that whatever may be the facts in respect to the number of votes given, a majority of the legal voters of each of these States, if left free to express their own wishes, would have voted for him who has been declared elected." But the Doctor, like many others, is puzzled to understand how it is, that the Republican votes of South Carolina and Louisiana being good enough to make Presidents, are not equally potent in electing Governors of the same States.

A general convention of the Methodist Protestant Church, and also of the Methodist Church, the two principal non-Episcopal Methodist Churches in the United States, is now being held in Baltimore, the special purpose being a formal reunion of the two denominations. Previous to 1830 they constituted one organization, and were then divided on the slavery question. In October, 1875, commissions appointed by the General Conferences of the two Churches, with the view of re-establishing fraternal relations, met in Pittsburg and agreed upon a basis of re-union. Bishop Simpson and Dr. Alexander Gibson attended as fraternal messengers from the Methodist Episcopal Church. The re-united body will comprise about 150,000 communicants. Telegraphic dispatches announce that the union is complete. In the new body it is expressly announced that colored people are to be admitted in all churches on equal membership with whites.

The Mormons really seem to mean war. The confessions of Lee before his execution implicate Brigham Young in the Mountain Meadow massacre, and the report that he is to be arrested and tried, has led to the organizstion of military companies all over Utah. Arms are being furnished and warlike preparations are the order of the day. This defiant attitude toward the United States Government ought to be promptly met will military occupation of Utah by United States troops. Then let Brigham be brought to trial and if found guilty shot on the same spot where Lee was.

New Orleans St. Louis and Chicago Railroad

Travelers going North cannot do better than to take the "Great Jackson Route." This road has been thoroughly repaired, the cars are superb, connections close, and the time several hours shorter than by any other route. It is by 200 miles the shortest route from New Orleans to Chicago: 112 miles the shortest to St. Louis: 63 miles the shortest to Cincinnati and Louisville, and 63 miles the shortest to all eastern cities via Cincinnati and Louisville. There are two daily trains. The train from St. Louis reaches New Orleans five hours ahead of any other route, with Pullman cars through.

Mr. A. D. Sheldon is the gentlemanly Southern Ticket Agent of this route, and has his office at 22 Camp under the City Hotel, where tickets can be bought and all arrangements made for sleeping cars and movement of baggage. Mr. D. M. Morey General Ticket Agent of the road may be found at the general office of the Company on St. Charles street. He will gladly furnish any desired information.

Our Southern Methodism.

Rev. George W. Barney, Macon, Miss., says: "We have just closed a protracted meeting. There were ten conversions and thirty accessions to the church. Our Sunday-school is doing well."

Rev. R. Hodge, of New Orleans, spent Sabbath 13th, with Rev. B. L. Lynch on St. Charles Circuit, La., preaching and administering the sacrament in St. John's Parish. He reports the church in a good state of prosperity.

Rev. S. Gates, writes from Austin Texas: "On Austin circuit Rev. E. Nesbit has had a meeting in progress for some weeks. Up to this time there have been twenty-nine accessions and many conversions, and the interest is unabated."

Rev. Thos. Wadkins, Sutherland Springs, Texas, says: "During a meeting just closed, there were two conversions and ten accessions to the church. We all like the SOUTHWESTERN, and if money was not so scarce, all our people would take it. I expect to send other names soon."

Rev. J. B. Bradford, Friendship, Tenn, writes: "When I came to this work in Februry of last year, we had no place for worship that we could call our own. Now, through the help of the Lord, we have a church at each of the five appointments, and mostly paid for. In each we have a good Sunday-school, in all one-hundred and twenty scholars."

Rev. W. Wesley, Cold Springs, Texas, says: "We have just closed a two weeks meeting. There were four conversions, and eleven persons joined the church on probation. The hearts of many others in the congregation were deeply moved by the Holy Spirit. We are praying for them that they may soon be enabled to give up all for Christ."

Rev. W. W. Browne, Marshall, Texas, says: "We have a meeting in progress with favorable prospects. So far three have united with the church on probation. We are praying for the salvation of many souls before the meeting shall close. Our Sunday-school is largely attended. The good sisters of our church have a flourishing organization of the "Daughters of Conference," with a good supply of funds in their treasury to carry on their works of benevolence."

Rev. Geo. W. Smith, Indianola, Texas, writes: "Our Presiding Elder has just visited us and held the quarterly services. Fifteen persons united with our little band, and there were six infant baptisms. Our people have just completed a nice little church, built upon a lot presented for the purpose by Lawyer Proctor, of this place. I had the pleasure of joining with the Elder in the solemn service of dedicating it to the worship of Almighty God. May it prove a place of great spiritual blessing, not only to our present membership, but to all the kind friends outside who have aided so generously in its erection, and to this entire community."

Rev. S. E. H. Morant, Shreveport La., writes: "After continuing our meeting for over six weeks, we have been compelled to bring it to a close for the sake of rest. The good Lord permitting, we will commence again after awhile just where we left off, in the midst of gracious display of divine love and power. At our last meeting the altar was crowded with penitents, our church members all on fire with holy love and zeal, and Bro. Davage, our presiding elder, standing in the midst like a big angel just come down from glory. But he, like the others of us, was exhausted and needed rest. There were one hundred and two accessions to the church on probation; fifty of whom give evidence of having been truly converted to God. There were forty-two baptisms; twenty-nine of which were by immersion, ten by sprinkling and three by pouring."

The foundation-stone of the Shakespeare memorial was laid at Stratford-on-Avon, on Monday, April 23d, the 313th anniversary of the birth of Shakespeare. The plan embraces a theatre, free library and picture gallery, but $20,000 more are required to carry it out.

The season has arrived when the young man with finances to cover just two plates of ice cream awaits breathlessly to answer to, "Will you have some cake?"

General News.

The army will be reduced to 19,000 men.

T. Barnum offers $10,000 reward for the recovery of Charlie Ross.

Professor Tice predicts a dry summer and advises farmers to plow deep.

The postal union will include, after July 1, Japan, Brazil, and the Portuguese colonies.

Gen. Logan denies the report of his having accepted a commission in the Russian army.

The subject of specie payments is being considered by the Administration.

President Hayes has emphatically informed the Mexican Government that they must stop the outrages on the Mexican border.

Secretary Sherman has disposed of $5,000,000 of the 4 1-2 per cent. bonds at par and gold, the proceeds to be devoted to resumption purposes.

The loss occasioned by the fire at Sherman, Texas, the 5th, is now estimated at $150,000. The Schneider building was the finest structure burned.

Texas is now the sixth State in the American Union, New York being first, Pennsylvania second, Obio third, Illinois fourth, Indiana fifth.

Brenham has just been allowed $1,200 for her public schools by Dr. Sears, agent of the Peabody fund. Why does not every town and city in the State avail itself of this fund!

Dom Pedro and his wife visited the tomb of the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem, where they received communion. The wife of Pedro is the first empress who has trod the streets of Jerusalem, since Queen Helena.

Father Hyacinthe has hired the great Circus in Paris, which holds over 4,000 persons, in which to give his lectures on "The Present Moral crisis;" the lectures began on the 18th of April.

A Baptist minister in Iowa who wrote pleasant paragraphs about himself and got them printed in the local paper, has been found guilty of "an attempt to gain reputation as a minister by means unworthy a Christian."

No liquor is sold in Vineland, N. J., a town with a population of 10,000. It has practically no debt, taxes are one per cent. on the valuation, and police expenses, summed up in the duties of the constable and overseer of the poor, amounted to $75 last year.

Iowa Agricultural College has in its employ a teacher of domestic economy, who superintends the institution's kitchen. In that kitchen each young lady of the junior class will have to spend one morning in each week of this year for practical instruction.

A memorial statue of the late Rev. Dr. Norman Macleod is to be erected in front of the Barony Church, Glasgow. The statue will be in bronze, and will cost about £1,409, of which amount £637 have been already collected.

Religous Items.

There is a Y. M. C. A. at Yokahama, Japan, with 43 members.

Jewish currency was worth in our money; a gerah, 2 cents; a zuzah, 12 cents; a bekah 25 cents; a shekel of silver, 50 cents; a golden dram, $5.18; a shekel of gold, $9; a maneh, $29.50; a talent of silver, $1.707; a talent of gold $27.320.

The receipts of the American Tract Society during the past year were $449,269; expenditures, $441.119 in the same period. Two hundred and nine colporteurs labored in thirty-two states, addressed 6,937 meetings, made 152,883 family visits, and prayed with 96,378 families. During thirty-six years over 13,000,000 volumes have been distributed.

The annual meeting of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions was held recently in New York. From the summary of the Annual Report presented, we learn that the number of ordained missionaries was reduced during the year from 135 to 129. The outlay of the year amounted to $418,316.46, and the receipts to $410,949.64, leaving a deficit of $7,366.82, which added to the deficit of the previous year makes the present indebtedness $43,554.75. The receipts from the contributions from the churches have fallen off $44,000, and from legacies $1125 during the year.

War Notes.

The Sultan has determined to admit Christians into the Army. A draft of 200,000 will be made, regardless of race or creed.

The success of the Turks and Circassions at Sonkgonm-Kalet was complete. They drove the Muscovite garrison and road guards all over the district, chasing them to Malgara, which they also burnt.

The simple statement that Turkey proposes to "unfurl the flag of Mohammed" contains a real and vital threat. A glance at the figures will show that Turkey, Persia, Arabia, India, even Russia, and other populous districts in Africa and elsewhere contain teeming millions of Mohammedans. That flag is the reputed banner under which the followers of Islam have won their victories. It has been in deposit under cover of three score thicknesses of silk for centuries, and its unfurling would rally the faithful as fully as though Roman Catholics were waved to battle by the miraculous motion of a scepter shaped from a portion of the Cross of Calvary. Should such a holy war be declared, that entire continent would run with blood. East Indian Mohammedans might attempt to revolt against England, and Northern Africa might revolt against France, of course all civilization would unite against the Mohammedan, and no human being could approximate a guess how the map of Europe and Asia would look when the smoke cleared over.—Northwestern

Lord Derby's answer to Gortschakoff's circular note was published May 7. It is quite lengthy, and concludes as follows:

In taking action against Turkey [illegible] and having recourse [illegible] further consultation with its allies. The Emperor [illegible] has separated himself from the concert, and has at the same time departed from a rule which himself had solemnly [illegible] his consent. It is impossible [illegible] consequences of such an [illegible] Majesty's government [illegible] have refrained from [illegible] one is regard to it, but [illegible] Gorchakoff seems to assume [illegible] addressed to [illegible] of Europe that [illegible] the interests of [illegible] of other Powers, [illegible] in a manner [illegible] public that the [illegible] Russian Government [illegible] which one have their con[illegible]

[illegible] European War is [illegible] by a recent lecturer: [illegible] and Rorpathian, [illegible] two chains inclose [illegible] Roumania—form [illegible] where succes[illegible] Barbarians first ap[illegible] of Europe to [illegible] scenes in [illegible] the plains of [illegible] the legions [illegible] now be[illegible] Scythians; [illegible] Great fought [illegible] the Hoeth; there [illegible] shed in the early [illegible] and the Turkish [illegible] oracular [illegible] to be [illegible]

Western Africa.

Bishop [illegible]'s recent visits to Liberia and the adjacent coast, though short and hasty, have very benefited to the interests of our Church there, and his letters and addresses have added much to our knowledge of that land. The Bishop [illegible] Christian [illegible] There is a [illegible] Grade of Barbarians. Some of them present a strange [illegible] and civilized [illegible] Is many of [illegible] may be found [illegible] in the [illegible] One of these vessels, anchored off an African trading-post, presents a strange appearance. Men of every shade, and of all degrees of dress, and undress, clamber up its sides and, according to their means and station, go at once to the stem or stern of the steamer. At one end is a huge store where all sorts of merchandise, boots and shoes, umbrellas, knives, and pistols, dress goods, and provisions, with an endless et cetera, are disposed of at reasonable rates. At the other end similar goods are sold to the more pretentious at dearer rates. Purchases of small value are paid for in gold coin; larger quantities or more costly goods are exchanged for the produce of the country. This consists in part of ivory, gold-dust, cam-wood,—a brilliant dye, second only to the cochineal in beauty and costliness,—and many rare tropical fruits, flowers, beasts, and birds. The ships pass from one trading-post to another, until they have disposed of their entire stock, and then return to England. The trade of the coast is now almost entirely in the hands of the English, and if no rival soon appears, they will soon add the whole of Africa—with possibly the exception of Egypt and the Mediterranean coast—to her imperial domain. Bishop Haven, with others, favors the possession of Liberia as a "territory" of the United States. But, whatever may be the political outcome, the "signs of the times" all point to speedy Christianization of the entire African continent. In the present thirst for European knowledge and aping of European manners, "Ethiopia stretches out her hands unto God."—National Repository for June.

Meridian District, Mississippi Conference.

Presiding Elder Adams writes, May 12th: I have just finished my first round on the Meridian District, and am glad to be able to report the District in a good condition, except in the matter of finances. The people have but little money. Committees were appointed at every charge to raise money for the Shaw University, and we hope something can be done. The pastors are all urging the people to take the SOUTHWESTERN. The people are pleased with the paper and want it, but only a few are able to subscribe. We are determined to get our share of the one thousand subscribers promised by Mississippi.

Rev. N. Cannon, pastor of Meridian, is still very sick. Rev. R. Williams is acting as pastor for the present. Bro. Cannon has the sympathy and prayers of his whole congregation. The people of Macon feel that Bishop Wiley did a wise thing in sending them Rev. G. W. Barney. They say he is the right man in the right place. The Church has been greatly blessed during the year. A large number have been converted and added to the Church, and the Sunday-schools has largely increased.

Rev. P. Jamison is well-liked a Shubuta and that Church is now enjoying a gracious revival. Fourteen have been converted, and sixty-six added to the Church.

Rev. M. Lockman has withdrawn from the Church under charges, and has surrendered his credentials. Rev. P. C. Clemens has temporary charge of the Starkville Circuit.

Our collections will be better this year. The committees on raising money for Shaw University are to report at the second quarterly meetings.

I dedicated a new Church this round and will have another to dedicate next round.

Our District Committee on education met May 4th. There were present Rev. P. Samison, chairman; and Rev. W. D. Sims was made Secretary. The other members were M. Adams, S. Doby, D. W. Maddox; D. D. Goodwin; P. C. Clemens and J. W. Johnson. The following was adopted: "Whereas, the Mississippi Conference at its last session in Macon, January 18, 1877, pledged the Mississippi Conference to raise $5,000 to assist in erecting new buildings for Shaw University at Holly Springs, said institution to accommodate students from all parts of Mississippi; therefore,

Resolved, That as representatives of the Meridian District, we heartily endorse this action, and that we will do all in our power to raise our proportion.

The Quarterly Conference of our District has already organized committees on education, and we hereby call upon pastors to help said committees in their work, and hope that the amounts raised will be forwarded to President W. W. Hooper, at Holly Springs. We are glad to know that the bricks for the building are already burnt and paid for. Meridian District ought $500 within three months.

Southern Presbyterian Assembly.

This important body of christian ministers is now in session in the city. The members number one-hundred and fifty. Rev. Dr. Smith, of Virginia, the moderator of last year, conducted the opening religious exercises. Dr. Stillman of Albany, was elected moderator. Thursday and Friday were given principally to preliminary business. We will publish further from their proceedings.

Funeral of Dr. Wm. Daily, at Madison, Indiana.

Mrs. Dr. Daily, whose departure from this city with the remains of her late husband we mentioned at the time, arrived safely at her destination in Manison, Indiana, where the remains were deposited with solemn ceremonies in Springfield Cemetary.

The pall bearers were D. G. Phillips, John Sering, John Marsh, W. E. McLeland, A. Daniels, John Roberts, R. J. Hurlburt, and J. R. Cravens. Rev. C. Tinsley conducted the exercises and delivered an eloquent address. A company of singers, led by Mr. McCoy, of Trinity Church, sang a touching hymn—"Gathering Home." We quote these facts from the Evening Star and Evening Courier, of Madison, Indiana.

The Courier also publishes the following:

IN MEMORIAM.

REV. W. M. DAILY, D. D., LL. D.
(Deceased Feb. 5, 1877.)
BY MRS. A. L. RUTHER DUFOUR.

A prince in Israel has fallen,
A veteran of many scars,
Seals of the Great Commander,
Won in the mighty wars;
Wars against [illegible] legions;
Faithful and tried and true;
Fallen but never vanquished,
One of God's residue.

What! with the world's distractions,
Its scars and scorn and loss,
His spirit grew cold, but undaunted
Bore upward the Savior's Cross.
When shall be counted the soldiers
To the cause of the Master he won,
Think how his spirit was welcomed,
By God—"Faithful servant, well done."

Years full of toil and discipline,
Of study, ardor and strife,
To accomplish the work of his mission
Made all of what mortals call life.
Now his labors are finished,
No longer his spirit earth bars,
Safe, safe beyond peril it triumphs,
Beyond Heaven's turret of stars.

So they pass onward, our loved ones,
The brave, wise and good from our sight,
Groping 'mid shadows we follow
Till a glimpse of ineffible light
Streams out through the portal they entered
And a beckoning hand comes in view;
And the gate of the Beautiful Temple
Swings open to welcome us through.

Mourn not—but rather chant anthems,
That a glorious life has been won;
Think of the crown he is wearing;
How grandly he sings at his [illegible]
"Glory to God in the Highest"
He sings near the great [illegible]
There may we meet him when [illegible]
Counts up all the jewels he wears.

Washington, D. C., March, 1877.

PETTENGILL'S NEWSPAPER DIRECTORY.—A very useful and interesting volume under this title has just been issued by the old and well-known advertising agency firm of S. M. PETTENGILL & CO., New York, entitled PETTENGILL'S NEWSPAPER DIRECTORY AND ADVERTISERS' HAND-BOOK FOR 1877. The preparation of the work has involved much careful labor in information having been sought from every city, town and village where even a weekly newspaper is published. The leading facts are given respecting 8,874 separate publications, designating the political or other distinctive character, the frequency of the issue, the names of the publishers, etc., and showing how much of each edition (daily, weekly, monthly etc.,) is published in each State and Territory in the United States and Provinces in British America. The work is elegantly printed from new type, and, besides being a mine of information, it contains portraits of the leading newspaper journalists and [illegible] of the extensive offices. The publishers transact the business in New York, Philadelphia, and Boston, and it is sold at the low price of $1 per copy, and is cheap at the price to any business man who does advertising, or to any person who is interested in the extent of the Newspaper business in America.

Pulmonary Consumption.

BY JOHN M HOWE, M. D.

If the value of the inhalation of common air in incipient lung and throat diseases was known, precious lives would be saved and health restored. Nearly forty years since the life of the writer was preserved by this instrumentality. Its benefits may be summed up as follows:

1. Exercise and air in the lungs, thereby enlarging these organs, and causing the surfaces of cavaties to be brought together and healed—thus pushing out the thorax. The circumference of the chest will be increased several inches, and one's weight several pounds.

2. In introducing a large quantity of oxygen of the air into the lungs, thus more perfectly arterializing the blood, and quickening its circulation.

3. It will arrest hemorrhage, and consumption from becoming seated in those predisposed to it. It will cure consumption if seasonably employed.

4. The action of the digestive organs will be promoted.

5. It will cure bronchitis, and thoughen the throat, proventing colds from exposure. It will increase the compass of the voice, and reduce enlarged tonsils.

6. It will tend to prevent sudden deaths from congestion of the lungs, brain, appoplexy, and heart diseases.

7. It will benefit asthmatics.

8. A few month's systematic use of the inhaling tube will increase the compass of the voice, and work in many instances large results, so that one's clothing will have to be enlarged.

Rev. B. M. Adams, of the New York East Conference, writes, March, 1876:

I thank the Lord I ever saw you. The inhaling tube I obtained from you almost twenty years ago has been a wonderful blessing to me, and I am glad through my recommendation to many. I think Scuseman Halstead's life was lengthened years by it. His chest enlarged, and he led the Lord's battles with a shout long after the doctors him he must stop. Many other friends of mine have had their lives lengthened by its use.

Rev. J. H. Vincent, D. D., writes: I have use the tube at times for several years, and have unbounded faith in its philosophy.

Dr. Howe sends his Tubo with full directions, post paid for $3 50 Passaic, New Jersey.

Sunday School.

June 3, 1877.—THE LAMENTATION OF AMOS.

SCRIPTURE.—Amos 5: 1-15.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"If thou seek him he will be found of thee; but if thou forsake him he will cast thee off forever."—1Chr. 28: 9.

TOPIC.—"Seek the Lord and ye shall live."—6.

HOME READINGS.

Monday, 2 Chr. 30: 1-20; Thursday, 3 Chr. 34: 1-28; Wednesday, Eccl. 12: 1-14; Thursday, Jer. 29: 1-19; Friday, Zeph. 2: 1-15; Saturday, Matt. 7: 1-29; Sunday, Luke 15: 11-32.

(Condensed from Nat. S. S. Teacher.)

A word of Lamentation (1-3).—The wreck of a nation is a sad thing to look upon. Specially sad is it when, as was the fact with Israel, it is a nation which the Lord had highly favored. The virgin of Israel is fallen. Israel is spoken of as a "virgin," because she never before had been reduced to subjection. No more to rise. The calamity here predicted happened in B. C. 721—fifty to sixty years subsequent to the prediction. Israel had sinned with singular persistence ever since the days of Jerobbam. With a patience just as singular God had dealt with Israel, treating it with such love and forbearance as only God can exercise. But even to infinite love there is a final limit to lenity. Transcressed, the transgressor sinks down to rise no more. "Because I have called and ye refused; I have stretched out my hand and no man regarded; but ye have set at nought all my counsel and would none of my reproof, I also will laugh at your calamity and mock when your fear cometh." She is forsaken upon her land. The inhabitants were carried out of it by the Assyrians, and the country was re-populated by a colony from the land of their captors. None to rise her up. No deliverer was sent by God as of old time—no Moses, no Othniel, no Samson, no Gideon, no one so inspired by the Lord so as to be able with a view to overcome the many. For over two hundred years Israel had been earning her fate, and now there was to be no escape from it. God's judgment came slowly, but they are both sure and terrible.

The city that went out by a thousand shall leave an hundred. The strength of a city was estimated by the number of those who went out of its gates to battle. Only a tenth of its strong men should be left. Nine-tenths of them were to perish or to be carried into captivity. Seek me and ye shall live. No sooner is the doom written than side by side with it glow the words which point out the way of escape. The prisoner at the bar has been judged guilty and his sentence pronounced; but, at the very moment of his condemnation, the ever-merciful judge thrusts into his hands a scroll which bids the guilty man to seek him and apply for pardon! That is ever God's way of dealing with a sinner. All his judgments against him are conditioned on the fact that he does not repent. Until they are actually in process of execution there is still hope. Then they are beyond the possibility of arrest. The unrepentant man at last must abide by his choice. But till then the door of escape is always held open, and he is urged to take advantage of it. How strange that men will listen—and yet impassively, recklessly, go on toward the certain destruction of which they are fully aware!

But seek not Bethel—to worship its idols. The calf-worship began there and was still carried on. Nor enter into Gilgal, and pass not to Beersheba. Both had become seats of of idolatrous worship. Gilgal was near Jericho, and Beesheba in the southern part of Judah. There were, it appears, not enough abominations of worship in Israel to satisfy the zeal of the people, so they must needs seek for others even the uttermost boundaries of their rival kingdom. Jerobeam wiled away his people from the true worship at Jerusalem by saying to them that it was too much for them to go up to the sacred city; and yet here were the descendants of this same people esteeming it no burden to go a much greater distance to bow down before the idols. If the worship is a crucifixion of the flesh, any distance is "too hard"—if it is a gratification of the flesh, no distance is too great.

For Gilgal shall surely go into captivity and Bethel shall come to nought. No use to seek them, for they will be no place of refuge. Instead of delivering their worshippers they will themselves need to be delivered. Seek him that maketh the seven stars. In this beautiful passage the omnipotence of God is held up to alarm those who have set at naught his commands and defied his power—the puny arm of flesh lifted against the mighty arm of Jehovah. Note the extremes that are here coupled together: "Seven stars and Orion," the one rising while the other sets; "shadow of death" (poetical for the thick darkness of the night), and "the morning;" "day" followed by "night."

For I know your manifold transgressions. "The eyes of the Lord are in every place, beholding the evil and the good. Let this fact comfort his people when the right seems weak and the wrong securely triumphant. He who takes note of everything. No deed of oppression escapes his eye, or is blotted from his record. Against the reckoning that account is kept—and that day will surely come.

For it is an evil time. When bad men are rampant and good men dare not speak, truly it is an evil time. It is an evil time when the strong oppress the weak, when the rich grind down the poor, and the judges take bribes. And yet, paradoxical as the statement seems, it was a time of self-righteousness. The people punctiliously went to Bethel and to Gilgal, and offered up their sacrifices every morning, gave their thithes, called out for, and published, the voluntary offerings then made (4: 4, 5), and, no doubt, like those who get large incomes by unscrupulous means, but who give liberally to the Church, thought they were pretty good after all,—as if God's account with them was very promotion on other days than Sundays.

Seek good, and not evil, that ye may live. Some were complacently seeking God as a means of obtaining life and of avoiding death be more strenuously insisted upon? God deals with a nation as with a man, and with a man as with a nation. Repentance of evil and the seeking of good are the essential conditions. Christ's atonement does not do away with, but only emphasizes them the more strongly. And the seeking of God are one and the same thing—only that it is easier too seek a person than an abstraction. Lord of Hosts shall be with you as ye have spoken. They had claimed that he was with them—that the idols of Bethel and Gilgal represented him, and that they worshipped not them but the God whom they personated. They were the children of promise—God's peculiar people. And in this way they cheated themselves into believing that they had the substance while they only had the shadow.

DIED.

At Galveston, Texas, May 6th, Mrs. Rose Shackleford, wife of Rev. Jesse Shackleford, of Texas Conference. Ohitnary hereafter.

At Sutherland Springs, Texas, April 14th, Grandmother Sasan Tabor, aged, 112 years.

She was a faithful member of the M. E. Church, meeting with the congregation last, but three weeks before her death.

Thos. WADKINS.
Pastor.

"Survival of the Fittest."

The ingenious doctrine propounded by Mr. Darwin, the tireless investigator of nature and her laws, is as applicable in determining the fate of medicines as in that of animal species. Every new year remedies are brought before the public, and are soon completely discarded as their sale rapidly decreases. Only those medicines which are best suited to the people's wants survive the first test. If they are tried, and found wanting in the merits which they lay claimed to possess, no amount of advertising will make them popular. Of all the remedies ever introduced to the public, none are so popular as Dr. Pierce's Family medicines. Their sale has steadily increased each year, and wholesale druggists assert that the present demand for them is greater than ever before. If you would patronize medicines scientifically prepared use Dr. Pierces Family Medicines. Golden Medical Discovery is alterative, or blood-cleansing, and an unequalled cough remedy; Pleasant Purgative Pellets, scarcely larger than mustard seeds, constitute an agreeable and reliable physic; Favorite Prescription is a remedy for debilitated females; Extract of Smart-Weed, a magical remedy for pain, bowel complaints, and an unequalled liniment for both human and horse-flesh; while his Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy is known the world over as the greatest specific for Catarrh and "Cold in the Head" ever given to the public. They are sold by druggists."

Quarterly Meetings.

Greenswood (Miss.) District.

(Second Round.)

Wesley Chapel, 9 and 10th of June; Silver Creek, 16th and 17th of June; Yazoo City, 23d and 24th of June; Piney Grove, 30th of June and 1st of July; Deasonville, 7th and 8th of July; Pickens, 14 and 15 of July; Lexington, 21st and 22d of July; Goodman, 28th and 29th of July; Jones Chapel, 4th and 5th of August; McNutt, 11th and 12th of August; Caney Creek, 18th and 19th of August; New Midway, 25th and 26th of August; Hernando, 1st and 2d of September; Pahola, 8th and 9th of September; Cold Water, 15th and 16th of September; Walnut City, 22nd and 23d of Sept; Shiloh 26th and 30th Sept. J. W. DUNN, P. E.

Waco (Texas) District.

Seguin, May 26th to 27th; Waco Circuit, June 2d and 3rd; Waco, 9th and 10th; La Grange 14 and 15; Calvert Dist. Conference, June 16th and 17th; ——— June 30th and July 1st; Battle Creek 7th and 8th; Bisa 14th and 15th; Belton, 21 and 22; Shiloh, 28th and 29th.

S. GATES, P. E.

Meridian (Miss.) District.

Paulding and Claiborne, May 12-13; Garlandville, May 14-15; Newton, May 16-17; Crawford, May 19-20; Starkville, May 26-27; Brooksville, May 28-27; Carthage, June 2-3; Mishularville, June 2-3; Trenton, June 9-3; Whitefield, June 16-17; Louisville, June 19-20; Rome, June 23-24; Ex-Prairie, June 30 and July 1; Macon, July 7-8; Shiquatala, July 11-12, DeKalb, July 14-15; Lauderdale July 21-22; Daleville, July 24-25; Meridian 28-29; Meridian Circuit August 4-5; Quitman August 11-12; Shubuta Circuit, August 15-16; State Line, Aug. 18-19; Shubuta, August 21-22; Enterprise Circuit; Aug. 25-26; Enterprise, Aug. 28-29. M. ADAMS, P. E.

Okolona District.

(Second round.)

Okolona May 5-6; Corinth and Corinth Circuit, May 12-13; Tupelo, May 14-15; Spring valley and Shady Grove, May 19-20; Big Black, May 26-27; Calhoun, June 2-3; Houston, June 6-7; Pontotoc, 9-10; Union Grove, June 16-17; West Point, June 23-25; Columbus and Columbus Circuit, June 30 and July 1; Tibbe, July 7-8; Tampico, July 14-15; Athens, July 21-22.

The Okolona District Conference will meet at Pontotoc June 10. I hope all the member of the Conference will be present: All the ministers of the Okolona District who are in charge of a work will please send on their post-office address at once.

D. MCLACHLAN, P. E.

Gulf District.

(Second round.)

Pascagoula, May 17:18; Ocean Springs and Biloxi May 19-20; Handsboro, May 21-22; Bay St. Louis, May 23-24; Pass Christian, May 26-27; Crystal Springs, May 31 and June 1; Simpson Circuit, June 5-6; Hazlehurst, June 7-8; New Hope Circuit, June 9-10; Union Church Circuit, June 11-12; Brookhaven, June 13-14; Hamburg Circuit, June 21-22; Meadville Circuit June 23-24; Liberty, June 26-27; Summit and Magnolia, June 28-29; China Grove, June 30 and July 1; Coldmbia, July 2-3; Augusta, July 4-5. L. BRADFORD, P. E.

Houston, Texas, District.

First Church, Houston, April 1; East Church and Wesley Chapel, Galveston, April 7 and 9; Spring Creek, April 14 and 15; Oyster Creek, April 21 and 22; Richmond and Frost Chapel, April 28 and 29; Houston, Second Church and Edwards Chapel, May 5 and 6; Harrisburg and West Point, May 12 and 13; Columbia and Brazoria, May 19 and 20; Stafford's, May 26 and 27; Houston Circuit, June 2 and 3; Cypress, June 9 and 10.

W. L. MOLLOY, P. E.

San Antonio (Tex.) District.

Mission Valley April 21 and 22; Cuero April 28 and 29; Indianola and Lavacca, May 5 and 6; Columbus and Alleyton, May 12 and 13; Pesch Creek and Columbus Circuit, May 19 and 20; San Antonio, May 26 and 27; Boerne, June 2 and 3; Hondo, June 9 and 10; Floresville June 16 and 17; Sutherland Springs, June 23 and 24; Nockernut, July 1; Cibola, July 4 and 5; Riddleville, July 4 and 5; Lavernia, 7 and 8; Goliad Circuit, July 11 and 12; Belmont, July 14 and 15; Refugio, July 18 and 19; Wrightsboro, July 21 and 22; Goliad, July 28 and 29.

D. GREGORY, P. E.

Holly Springs, Miss., District.

Mt. Pleasant, April 7-8; Kosciusko, April 14-15; French Camp, April 16-17; Greensboro, April 18-19; Winona and Vaiden, April 21-22; Duck Hill, April 26-27; Grenada, April 28-29; Grenada Circuit, April 30 and May 1; Oxford, May 5-6; Elijah, May 8-9; Abbeville, May 12-13; New Albany, May 19-20; Hickory Flat, May 26-27; Ripley, May 26-27; Holly Springs, June 2-3, Holly Springs Circuit, June 6-7; Chulahoma, June 9-10; Byhalia, June 11-12.

As the greater part of the work lies at a considerable distance from the Railroad, and as it is important to visit every part of it, I shall go by private conveyance.

J. G. JOHNSON, P. E.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from active practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of consumption, bronchitis, catarrh, asthma, and all throat and lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for nervous debility and all nervous complaints, after having thoroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, feels it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive, and a conscientious desire to relieve human suffering, he will send, free of charge, to all who desire it, this receipe, with full directions for preparing and successfully using. Sent by return mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, Dr. W. C. Stevens, 126 Power's Block, Rochester N. Y. [may10-77-4t

NOW READY.

"HEAVENWARD."

A new collection of Sunday-school Songs
BY JAMES R. MURRAY,

containing, besides new contributions from most of the leading writers of Sunday-school music in America, the best and most Popular HYMN and Music of the late

[illegible]

most of which will be found in no other book.

"Heavenward" is now ready, and for sale by booksellers and music dealers throughout the country.

"Heavenward" is unequaled by any other book; both in words and music.

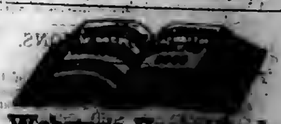
"Heavenward" is the only new book in which you will find P. P. BLISS's most famous songs.

"Heavenward" is our usual Sunday-school style, printed on fine tinted paper, and containing 160 pages. Price, 35 cents, by mail, $30 per hundred. Specimen pages free. Single sample copy, in paper covers, mailed for 25 cents. Order from your bookseller, or of the publishers,

S. BRAINARD'S SONS, Publishers,
Cleveland, Ohio.
apr26-77-1y]

Agents Wanted.

For new edition of History of great temperance Reforms, and "Belshazzar's Feast," by a London artist, in chromatic colors, 19x26. Bothave sold for $5; are now sent free on receipt of $3 25. Address Rev. James Shaw, Rosville, Ill. may17,4t.



Webster's Unabridged.

3000 Engravings; 1840 pages Quarto.
FOUR PAGES COLORED PLATES.
A Whole Library in itself.
Invaluable in a Family.

Now contains twenty-five per cent more matter than any other one volume English Dictionary published in this country or Great Britain.

A NATIONAL STANDARD.

The sale is 30 times as great as the sale of any other large Dictionary.

More than 20,000 copies have been placed in the public schools of the United States.

Recommended by 32 State Superintendents of schools.

Warmly recommended by [illegible] Mosby, Gen. P. Morgan, Hallock, [illegible] Sam. Houston, [illegible] H. Coleridge, [illegible] Wayland, [illegible] many thousands of other eminent men.

"Indispensable to every student of the English language." — M. E. Wells, Chief Justice, United States.

The Highest Authority in Great Britain as well as in the United States.

"The best practical English Dictionary extant." —London Quarterly Review, Oct. 1873.

ALSO

Webster's National Pictorial Dictionary.

600 Engravings; 1000 Pages Octavo.

Published by G. & C. MERRIAM, Springfield, Mass.

Webster's Abridgements.

Published by Ivison, Blakeman, Taylor & Co. N. Y.

Webster's Primary School Dictionary, 300 Engravings.
" Common " " 224
" High " " 297
" Academic " " 344
" Counting House " with numerous illustrations and many valuable tables not to be found elsewhere.

Jewel BY far all. The EUREKA JEWELRY CASKET, containing one pair gold-plated engraved sleeve buttons, one set (8) spiral shirt studs, one Gents Im. coral pin, one improved shape collar stud, one Gents fine link watch chain, and one Ladies Heavy wedding ring; price of one casket, complete, 50 cents; three for $1.25; six for $3, and 12 for $5.50, all sent postpeid by mail. Sixteen and a solid silver watch for $20. Agents can make money selling these caskets. Send 50 cents for sample and catalogues. We have all kinds of jewelry at low prices.
COLES & CO., 785 Broadway, N. Y. City.
We are the originals in this business, and have no "Milton Gold" or "brass" jewelry.
This Jewelry casket is remarkably attractive, and COLE & Co. are reliable dealers.—Boston Globe. [may10-4t

SOUTHWESTERN AGENCY FOR
School and College Text Books.

Office No. 36 CAMP STREET, [illegible]

Below will submit the MODEL SCHOOL BOOKS (as decided by the leading educators of this country) for use in PRIMARY, INTERMEDIATE and GRAMMAR schools. The books thus adopted by the progressive leaders are those which to ask a careful comparison with books of a lower grade, a critical examination and a thorough practical test in the class-room:

	Prices.
Harper's Introductory Geography	20
Harper's School Geography	81 25
" United States First Reader	15
" " Second "	25
" " Third "	37
" " Fourth "	38
" " Fifth "	75
" " Sixth "	90
Wilson's Primary Speller	15
" Larger "	20
" New "	34
Lamson's Penmanship, per dozen	1 80
French's First Lessons in Numbers	25
" Elementary Arithmetic	37
" Mental Arithmetic	38
" Common School Arithmetic	70
Sanford's Elementary Primer	30
" Larger Reader	60
" Second "	75
" Progressive Grammar	75

Catalogues, circulars, and testimonials sent on applications. Correspondence solicited and will receive prompt attention when addressed to

W. P. ROGERS & W. L. JARVIS, agents for the introduction of Harper & Brothers' Educational Works, New Orleans, La. Lock Box 104.

B. J. WEST,
115 & 117 Magazine Street
NEW ORLEANS, LA.
Wholesale Dealer and Manufacturer's Agent
PLANTATION HARDWARE,
AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS,
STEAM ENGINES, COTTON GINS,
SAW MILLS, GRIST MILLS,
PUMPS, &c. &c.
AT LOW PRICES.
Send for Circulars and Price List.

Medical Students

Thoroughly qualified for successful practice by THE HOSPITAL COLLEGE OF MEDICINE, LOUISVILLE, KY. [The oldest school of the West.]

No student leaves the College who cannot show that he can intelligently examine and prescribe for the cases presented. For catalogues and information concerning graduating advantages, address

W. H. BOLLING, M. D. DEAN,
apr26-4m Louisville, Ky.

Lungs and Throat.

Inhalation of common air in incipient Consumption will cure. Dr. J. M. Howe, of Passaic, N. J., sends his Tube, with full directions, post free for $3 50. Send for circulars. may24.

THE LOOM OF LIFE.

All day, all night, I can hear the jar
Of [illegible] far
[illegible] sound,
As [illegible] always around.

Busily, ceaselessly goes the loom
In the light of day and the midnight gloom.
The wheels are turning early and late,
And the woof is wound in the warp of fate.

Click! Clack! there's a thread of love wove in;
Click! clack! another of wrong and sin;
What a checkered thing will this life be
When we see it unrolled in eternity!

[illegible]

When shall this wonderful web be done?
In a thousand years, perhaps, or one;
Or to-morrow. Who knoweth, not you, nor I?
But the wheels turn on, and the shuttles fly.

Ah, sad eyed weaver, the years are slow,
But each one is nearing the end, I know;
And some day the last thread shall be woven in,
God grant it be love instead of sin!

[illegible]

[illegible]

I will be most thankful for information concerning my daughter, [illegible] Lockett. We belonged to [illegible] who brought us to Texas in 18[illegible] [illegible] Gen'l. [illegible], was afterward sold to [illegible] Ward of Matagorda Co. [illegible] which time I have heard [illegible] When brought to [illegible] was twelve years old. [illegible] Lockett, in care of Rev. [illegible] Madison,
Austin, Texas.

I wish to acquire concerning my [illegible] Sam and my sister [illegible] belonged to a Mr. [illegible] [illegible]

I want to find my father and [illegible]

[illegible] Susan [illegible] Rev. H. Prinis, Cen[illegible] St. Memphis.

hand, the powers, duties and privileges of the lay officers of the Church. Trustees are told of their work and responsibilities, and how to secure and hold property. The stewards have their work made plain, and class-leaders are helped in their very important work. We wish a copy of this book could be placed in the hands of all our official members. We are sorry Dr. Porter did not give a chapter on local preachers. They are laymen, and are in a sense official members of the Church to which they belong.

HISTORY OF THE REVISIONS OF THE DISCIPLINE OF THE M. E. CHURCH. David Sherman, D.D. New York: Nelson & Phillips; 420 pages. Price, $1 75.

This book is invaluable to all who desire to study intelligently the growth of the Methodist Episcopal Church. As Dr. Stevens says: "The Methodist polity, instead of being a contrived system imposed by the ministry upon the people, providentially grew up in the progress of the denomination." This book of Dr. Sherman's enables the reader to trace this providential growth from the beginning of Methodism in America to the present time. By a simple arrangement of the matter and dates the arrangement and contents of any edition of the Discipline can be quickly gathered.

Book first discusses the revisions of the forms of the Discipline. In this book we have (1) the rules and regulations prior to the organization of the General Conference in 1792. (2) An abstract of the doings of the General Conferences. (3) An outline of the Discipline of 1784 as compared with the Large Minutes. (4) The arrangement of the Discipline. These chapters, especially the first and third, are very valuable in giving the germs of almost every peculiarity in the doctrines and government of the Church.

Book second discusses at length the revision of the text of the Discipline, and makes up the main body of the work. The text of the Discipline of 1872, the last published when Dr. Sherman wrote, is printed in large type and all the changes are inserted in different type. The dates of the year on the left of the page indicate when the changes were inserted and the dates on the right indicate when they were omitted. No Methodist minister can have an intelligent appreciation of the organization and growth of his Church without the knowledge contained in this book.

LOST FRIENDS.

NOTE.—We receive many letters asking for information about lost friends. All such letters will be published in this column. We make no charge for publishing these letters from subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN. All others will please enclose fifty cents to pay for publishing the notices. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any cases where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.

I desire information concerning my son, Thomas Johnson, who formerly belonged to Philip Johnson of Clarksville, Tennessee. Address me at Galesville, Coryell Co., Texas.
JESSE HARRISON.

I desire information concerning my relatives. In 1856 they were living in north Mississippi, between Cockrum's Cross Roads and Holly Springs, with John and Jake Anderson and the estate of Anderson. Some of their names were Elijah, [illegible], Maria, Milly and Morton. When I was free I was called Jacob Cockrum. Address me, care of Mr. D. C. Pennell, Stockdale, Texas.
JACOB PIERSON.

combined with a perfectly pure stimulating element. The bitters are peculiarly adapted to those engaged in exhausting or unhealthy occupations, as by its use strength is sustained and the ability of the system to resist atmospheric and other influences prejudicial to health largely increased.

E. HEATH. W. F. PIPPEY, M. LARA.

HEATH, PIPPEY & LARA,

99 ....CAMP STREET........ 99

NEW ORLEANS.

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

UPHOLSTERERS MATERIALS,

Wall Paper,

Window Shades, Cornices, and

CURTAIN GOODS.

PICTURES, FRAMES,
MOULDINGS, MIRRORS,
LOCKS, WIRE-CLOTH,
WINDOW & DOOR SCREENS

FRAMING DONE TO ORDER.
14-1y

"The principle of combining English and American writers in a common literary enterprise, merits all encouragement."—J. Anthony Froude.

THE

INTERNATIONAL REVIEW,

A NEW YORK AND LONDON REVIEW.

EMINENT CONTRIBUTORS ON BOTH SIDES OF THE ATLANTIC. (No articles at second hand. All articles original.)

CONTENTS—MAY-JUNE—NOW READY.

The New Administration.
The Life Insurance Question. Carlton T. Lewis.
Disestablishment of the Church of England. Dr. James H. Rigg, London.
The Philadelphia Exhibition.—Part I. Mechanism and Administration. Francis A. Chief of the Bureau of Awards.
Tennyson.—A Criticism. Bayard Taylor.
Our Foreign Service. Hon. John Jay.
American and European Literature. Phillip Gilbert Hamerton.
Contemporary Events.

Price, Single Number, $1. For six months $3. Annual subscription (6 numbers) $5.
New York: A. S. BARNES & CO., Publishers.
apr27-18t

Texas Lands.

Best Investment in the Nation!

640 acres rich prairie loam, producing cotton, grains, fruit and vegetables, and adapted to stock, lying in the high and healthful latitude of Northwestern Texas for the nominal sum of $265.

Title Patent, direct and perfect. Taxes low. Worth several times the cost. Now is your time to plant a small sum fruitfully. No fraud. All work personally supervised. Satisfied in the interest of education in Texas. Full particulars furnished on application (with stamps).

References: Rev. Wm. Brush, D.D., P. E. Austin District, Austin, Texas; First National Bank, Dallas, Texas; State Savings Bank, Dallas, Texas, or editor of this paper. Address

REV. L. H. CARHART,
West Texas Conference.
Box 377, Dallas, Texas. ja19-tf

A. P. HARRINGTON,

No. 118 Canal Street,

New Orleans, - - - - - La.

Dealer in

LAW, MEDICAL, SCHOOL, RELIGIOUS, AGRICULTURAL AND MISCELLANEOUS

BOOKS

Stationery, Gold Pens and Pencils, Pocket Books, Card Cases, Pocket Knives, Scrap Books, Chromos, Photograph Albums, Stereoscopes, Maps, Globes, Writing Desks, Etc.

PRINTING, RULING and BINDING.

Subscriptions taken for Newspapers and Magazines. Payable in advance.

Country Orders Solicited.
feb16-77-1y

THE

Houston and Texas Central Railroad,

Operating over 500 miles of superior road, runs North and South through the

FINEST AGRICULTURAL and GRAZING DISTRICTS in TEXAS

and offers the most desirable sites for location to parties immigrating to that great State. The

NORTHWESTERN BRANCH

Of this road, which is now being pushed forward beyond Waco, will pierce the Great Mineral region of

NORTHWESTERN TEXAS.

For further information, address
J. E. COFFIN, S. P. A., Chattanooga, Tenn.
C. E. WHITNEY & CO., New Orleans, La.
[illegible] G. P. A., or J. DURAND, Gen'l Superintendent, Houston, Texas. [mar22-77-1y

[illegible] Roofing Slate.—The Best and strongest in the world, not excepting the well-known Welsh Slate.

The undersigned having [illegible] [illegible] BANK and IMPERIAL QUARRIES, is now prepared to fill orders at prices much below those of Welsh and but little in excess of those of ordinary American Slates. Builders, contractors and slaters generally are invited to submit them to the severest tests.
ALEXANDER HILL,
may1-76 1y] 110 Carondelet st., N. O.

GOOD BOOKS GIVEN AWAY
For the Asking.

WHILE Dr. H. James was attached to the British Medical Staff in the East Indies, his high position enabled him to call about him the best chemists, physicians and scientists of the day, and while experimenting with and among the natives, he accidentally made the discovery that CONSUMPTION can be positively and permanently CURED. During the many years of his sojourn there he devoted his time to the treatment of Lung Diseases, and upon his retirement he left with us books and papers containing full particulars, showing that anyone can be his own physician and [illegible] [illegible] we now offer to the public [illegible]
CRADDOCK & CO.
[illegible] Phila., Pa., giving name of [illegible] [mar15-77-3m

[illegible] per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Stinson & [illegible] Maine. [Dec 21 76 1y

TEXT BOOKS

FOR THE

NEW COURSE OF STUDY,

As authorized to be pursued by candidates for the ministry in the Methodist Episcopal Church, by the Bishops, for the ensuing four years, to commence with Spring Conferences, 1877.

[Books are bound in cloth, where not specified.]

For Admission on Trial in the Traveling Connection.

Books to be Studied:

RAWLINSON'S Ancient History. A Manual of Ancient History from the earliest times to the fall of the Western Empire. By George Rawlinson, M.A. Large 12mo. ... $2 50

STUDENT'S Old Testament History. From the Creation to the Return of the Jews from Captivity. With an Appendix, containing an Introduction to the books of the Old Testament. Edited by Wm. Smith, LL.D. With maps and wood-cuts. Large 12mo. ... 2 00

STUDENT'S New Testament History. With an Introduction, connecting the History of the Old and New Testaments. Edited by Wm. Smith, LL.D. With maps and wood-cuts. Large 12mo. ... 2 00

HISTORY of the United States, from the Aboriginal Times to the present day. By John Clark Ridpath, A.M. 8vo. ... 3 00
Half morocco, 8vo ... 3 50

AMERICAN Methodism: Abridged from the author's History of the Methodist Episcopal Church. By Abel Stevens, D.D., LL.D. Ten engravings. 8vo. ... 3 50

RHETORIC: A Text-book, designed for use in schools and colleges, and for private study. By E. O. Haven, D.D., LL.D. 12mo. ... 1 50

ELEMENTS of Logic. By H. N. Tree, D.D. 16mo. ... 80

DISCIPLINE of the Methodist Episcopal Church, 1876:
24mo; cloth ... 40
24mo; morocco tuck ... 1 00

Books to be Read:

CHRISTIAN THEOLOGY; or, a concise, comprehensive, and systematic view of the evidences, doctrines, morals and institutions of theology. By Samuel Wakefield, D.D. 8vo; sheep ... 3 00

LIFE of Rev. John Wesley. By Rev. Richard Watson. 12mo ... 1 25

HAND-BOOK of Bible Geography, containing the name, pronunciation, and meaning of every place, nation, and tribe mentioned in both the Canonical and Apocryphal Scriptures. By Rev. George H. Whitney, A.M. Illustrated by nearly one hundred engravings, and forty maps and plans. Large 12mo. ... 2 50

CHRISTIAN PURITY. Nature and Blessedness of. By R. S. Foster, D.D. Revised. 12mo ... 1 75

STUDENT'S Gibbon. The History of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire. By Edward Gibbon. Abridged. Incorporating the researches of recent commentators. By Wm. Smith, LL.D. 100 engravings. Large 12mo. ... 2 00

First Year's Course.

Books to be Studied.
WATSON'S Theological Institutes.
2 vols; 8vo; sheep ... 7 00
[illegible] ... 5 00
[illegible] ... 45

[illegible]

Second Year's Course.

[illegible]

Third Year's Course.

[illegible]

Fourth Year's Course.

[illegible]

For Local Preachers, Candidates for Deacon's and Elder's Orders.

[illegible]

Any of the above books will be sent on receipt of price. Address

NELSON & PHILLIPS,
Lock Box 2. New Orleans.

A. R. NELSON,

Commercial Stationer, Printer, Blank BOOK MANUFACTURER and LITHOGRAPHER.

THE best assortment of Blank Books in the city.

The Finest Specimens of Lithographic work to be found in New Orleans.

No. 57 CAMP STREET,

Sign of the Mammoth Letter Press.

Call and Prove My Statements.
[oct12-76 1y

Patents obtained for mechanical devices, medical or other compounds, ornamental designs, trademarks, and labels. Caveats, Assignments, Interferences, relating to Patent, Infringements, and all matters promptly attended to.

Inventions that have been rejected by the Patent Office may still, in most cases, be secured by us. Being opposite the Patent Office, we are able to make closer examinations, and secure Patents more promptly and with broader and better claims, than those who are remote from Washington.

Inventors send us a model or rough sketch and description of your device; we will make an examination, free of charge, and advise you as to its patentability. All correspondence strictly confidential. Prices as low as those of any reliable agency.

We refer to Officials in the Patent Office, and to Inventors in every State of the Union. Address, LOUIS BAGGER & CO. Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

DURANG'S RHEUMATIC REMEDY.

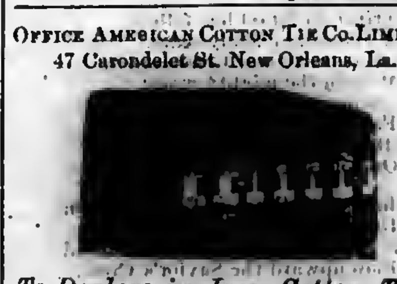
Will Positively Cure any case of rheumatism or rheumatic gout, no matter how long standing, on the face of the earth. Being an inward application it does the work quickly, thoroughly and permanently, leaving the system strong and healthy. Write to any prominent person in Washington city, and you will learn that the above statement is true in every particular.

Washington, July 18, 1874.
Messrs. Helpenstine & Bentley:
I suffered for more than thirty years from chronic rheumatism, at times in a helpless condition; during which time I employed the best medical skill, but finding no relief, bought a bottle of Durang's Rheumatic Remedy, and when I had taken it all (sixteen doses) was a well man, and as I write this certificate am perfectly free from pain, all owing to taking the above medicine. I regard it as the only preparation ever gotten up that will effectually cure rheumatism.
JNO. P. BENTLY,
Chief of Public Debt Division, 1st Auditor's office, Treasury Dep't Washington, D. C.

National Hotel, Washington, Dec. 2, '74.
Messrs. Helpenstine & Bentley:
GENTS.—I very cheerfully state that I have used Durang's Rheumatic Remedy, prepared by you, with decided benefit, and although yet somewhat troubled with rheumatism, I am in much better condition than I was some months ago, which improvement I alone attribute to this remedy.
Yours, truly, ALEX. H. STEPHENS,
Member of Congress of Georgia.

Price, $1 a bottle, or six bottles for $5. Ask your druggist for Durang's Rheumatic Remedy, manufactured by
HELPENSTINE & BENTLEY,
Druggists and Chemists, Washington, D. C.
Sold by dealers all over the United States.
[dec7-6m-eow

OFFICE AMERICAN COTTON TIE CO. LIMITED
47 Carondelet St. New Orleans, La.



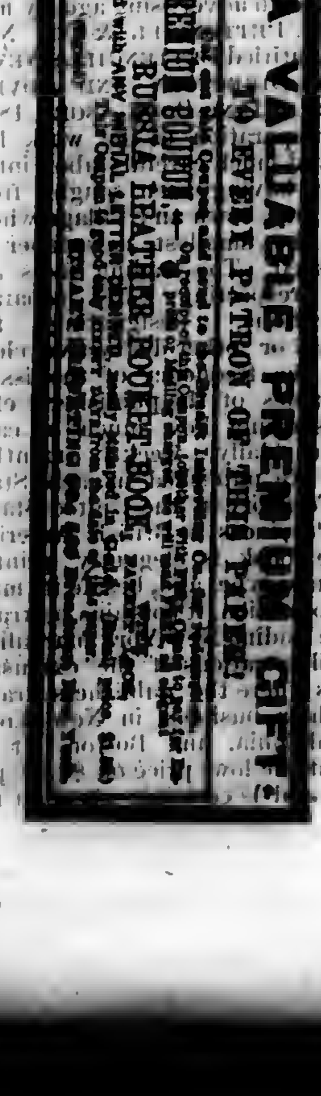
To Dealers in Iron Cotton Ties, Planters, and Country Merchants Generally,

WE beg to inform you that we are prepared, through our regularly established agent, to supply the trade in any quantity with the following celebrated Ties:

BRANCH CROOKE & CO'S. LOCK TIE.
THE ARROW AND SIDE SLOT.
BEARD & BRO'S. LOCK TIE.

We also beg to inform the public that the interests of Messrs. Beard & Bro., and Branch Crookes & Co., are now merged into and with the American Cotton Tie Company, Limited. The following are the New Orleans Agents:
Stone & Tutt, Ogden & Bell
Chism & Boyd, Archer & Borland,
Wm. Dillion, D. L. Ranlett & Co.
For the American Cotton Tie Co., Limited,
R. W. RAYNE,
May28-76]1y] General Agents.

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY. [illegible] VANDUZEN & TIFT, [illegible] East Second St., Cincinnati. Jan30 76 1y



THE
SINGER AGAIN TO THE FRONT!
GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICES
—OF THE—
WORLD-RENOWNED
Singer Family Sewing Machine!

THE SINGER MANUFACTURING COMPANY, ever awake to the interests of the public, have determined to PUT THE PRICE OF THEIR MACHINES within the reach of every man, woman and child in the land.

THE GENUINE SINGER SEWING MACHINE IS NOW OFFERED AT PRICES BELOW THE BOGUS ONES, OR ANY OTHER.

The fact that the only Sewing Machine which unscrupulous men have ever attempted to imitate, is the Singer, is sufficient evidence of its superiority over all others. There is no longer any excuse for buying any of the cheap machines hawked about the country, with no claim for patronage but their cheapness.

THE SINGER MANUFACTURING COMPANY,
S. E. RUNDLE, Agent.
may24-6m] No. 91 Canal Street, New Orleans, La.

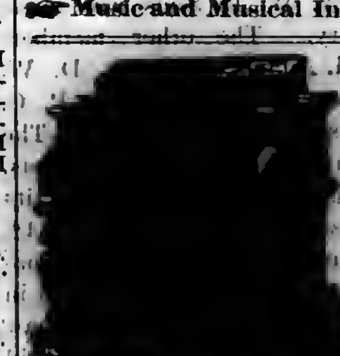
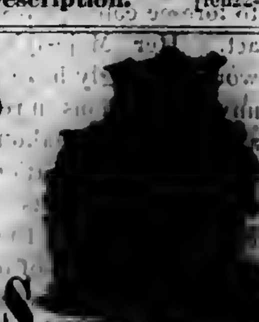
PHILIP WERLEIN,
Nos. 78–90 Baronne Street,
NEW ORLEANS, - - - LA.

LARGEST Piano House in This Country,
—OFFERS—
Chickering's New Scale PIANOS,
HALE'S PIANOS, HARDMAN'S PIANOS,
ESTEY & CO. ORGANS, MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS,
As low as any house North. Monthly Payments, Discounts for cash.
Music and Musical Instruments of Every Description. [feb22-1y



Pianos AND Organs



ESTEY ORGANS,

This beautiful Instrument is too well known to need description.

OVER 75,000

are now singing their praises. Why buy any other Organ when you can get the

ESTEY,

As Cheap as the Cheapest!

Bradbury Pianos

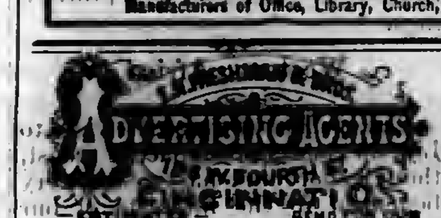
known all over the world as strictly first-class, and used in preference to all others by Grand Central, St. Nicholas and Metropolitan Hotels, New York; Rev. Simpson and Janes, Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church; Rev. Dan'l Curry, Chaplain McCabe, Philip Phillips, Wm. Morely, Punshon and thousands of our leading men throughout the country.

CHICKERING Pianos.

The BEST PIANO made! Received more Gold medals, Higher Awards, and more solid recommendations than any other Piano made.

STORY & CAMP PIANOS.

THESE ELEGANT Instruments are unsurpassed, and are sold at exceedingly low prices. Every Instrument Fully Warranted, and sold to responsible parties on easy time. Full description and illustrated catalogues sent to any address with any information desired.
STORY & CAMP,
914 Olive street, St. Louis.
je1-1y] 211 State street, Chicago.



THIS NEW ELASTIC TRUSS

[illegible] EGGLESTON TRUSS CO., Marshall, Mich.
Mar28-76-eow

Madame FOY'S
Corset Skirt Supporter

Increases in popularity every year.
And for HEALTH, COMFORT and STYLE is acknowledged the BEST ARTICLE of the kind ever made. For sale by all leading jobbers and retailers. Beware of imitations and infringements.
MANUFACTURED SOLELY BY
FOY & HARMON,
New Haven, Conn.

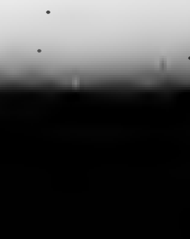
$66 a week in your own town. Terms and outfit free. H. Hallet & Co.
Dec 21 76 1y] Portland, Maine.

Victor Cane Mill
And
COOK EVAPORATOR.

[illegible] STATE FAIRS. Grand Medal at Centennial Exhibition. Over 44,000 sold. [illegible]

Cane Growers can't afford to risk Crops with light, weak, unfinished mills, liable to break in the midst of the season. [illegible]

[illegible] BLYMYER [illegible]
sept28-'76-1y



BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY. [illegible] VANDUZEN & TIFT, [illegible] East Second St., Cincinnati.
[mar22-1y]

$12 a day at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. True & Co.
Dec 21 76 1y] Augusta, Maine.

Southwestern Christian Advocate.

NEW SERIES—VOL. 1—NO. 22. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, MAY 31, 1877. WHOLE NUMBER 352.

SOUTHWESTERN
Christian Advocate.
PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT [illegible] Natchez St., New Orleans.
BY
NELSON & PHILLIPS,
FOR THE
Methodist Episcopal Church.

Terms: [illegible] a Year, Cash in Advance.

All Travelling Preachers of the Methodist Episcopal Church are authorized Agents.

Subscriptions may begin at any time and the paper will be sent as long as paid for.

Remittances must be made by Registered Letter, P. O. Money Order or by Express.

Advertising Rates.
(Per Nonpareil line, each insertion.)
One time or more ... 8 cents
[illegible]
Special Notices ... 8 cents, net cash.

DECORATION DAY.

[illegible] when day [illegible]
[illegible] when night [illegible]
[illegible] "Yes!" "Where?" "In the [illegible]
[illegible] then with the rest!"
[illegible]
"[illegible]—"Oh, no, not much!
[illegible] would say,
[illegible] to-day!"
[illegible] when night had come,
[illegible] Bows her head!
[illegible] mother's dead!"
[illegible] to-day,
[illegible] side by side
[illegible] died!
[illegible] of the fray,
[illegible] braves
[illegible] graves!
—N. Y. Post.

[illegible] Graduates in [illegible]

[illegible], M. D.

[illegible] to place before [illegible] not only the [illegible] citizens of this [illegible] integrity of [illegible] of learning, [illegible] "happy land," may [illegible] by its false rendering, [illegible] was informed by a worthy member of the Board, that they were invested by the law, with authority to issue certificates of qualification to non graduates! These were doubtless, for the good of the "country" by way of equalizing the "sanitary" distribution? and, may we opine, of displacing, if possible, that "northern radical," who had dared to enter the professional arena, as a competitor, for its honors and emoluments.

The writer is an alumnus of one of the best medical colleges of the North, and fears not to challenge a comparison of moral and professional records, with the very best in the field of practice in the State of Texas, and yet, by the Dallas Board, has been refused a certificate of qualification; they having no more use for him after taking off his head professionally, and pocketing his $15,00. All right gentlemen, you are perhaps, justly entitled to the royal tribute, as a just recompense of reward, for the kindly services rendered. And again, I would say, look well to your laurels ye colleges of the North and South, and, rising up in the majesty of your undivided strength, hurl back indignantly the unjust imputation that the Dallas Medical Commission alone was capable of properly determining the professional qualifications of a practicing physician. As rendered by the Dallas Board, temporary, this law is an unmerited insult to the honesty and intelligence of the citizens of this beautiful and attractive portion of God's natural heritage, and an execrable blotch upon the statute books of this, the land of our adaptation. And shall it longer thus remain, in all its glaring offensiveness, a relic of barbarianism, as a legal bulwark behind which the professionally impotent may hide, who instinctively shrink before the valiant front of honorable competition? No! I reply; let every one say no. And I implore the generous people of this goodly land to appeal to the members of the next Legislature, personally and through the columns of the press, for its repeal, or to be so amended that it shall not be used as a means in the hands of the designing, for the purpose of monopolising the medical practice of the State of Texas. More anon.

Superstitions of the Aborigines of Liberia.

BY REV. J. H. GRACEY.

One of the noticeable things of this entire West coast is the general agreement of religious belief. We have no disposition [illegible] now to theorize concerning [illegible] fact. The Aborigines of Liberia hold their religious notions in common with the others. There is, of course, an endless variation of the details of their superstitions embraced in the general uniformity.

All believe in a God who created the world, but who has committed it to the care of two great spirits, one of whom they deem good and one evil, but really both revengeful and wicked, the good deity being only less vicious and harmful than the evil one. But even these are too high to be approached directly, and hence the invention of inferior spirits varying in character, limited in power, presiding over special departments, and local in their habitation. They abide in parts of a mountain; in deep caverns; in fissures of rocks; in old stumps. These they dread, and attempt to appease with offerings, and influence by prayers. In some localities idol worship is common, in others, rare. In some villages in Liberia [illegible] But idols [illegible] be placed in the [illegible] ward [illegible] evil. The [illegible] may consist of anything that strikes the fancy of the worshipper. Rudely carved images of wood, old heaps of stones or bundles of sticks, may be worshipped to secure good harvests, [illegible] Below these [illegible] from them, are [illegible] of their deceased relatives. These dwell near the spot where the body is buried, and they [illegible] no harm, or advise and assist in the affairs of life. A small [illegible] of food is placed near [illegible] for the [illegible]

As death is supposed to proceed from supernatural sources, immediately after death the corpse is interrogated as to why he left his family and friends, and who bewitched him. [illegible] The body [illegible] in Liberia is [illegible] ary recently on the St. Paul's river begging for powder, as his wife was sick and likely to die, which latter fact did not seem to be the occasion of any grief, while he was in a dreadful forboding lest he would not be able to procure a sufficient quantity of powder for the "big play"—the feast of the dead—after her decease.

It did not follow, however, that he was not affectionate, but rather the contrary, as he wished his wife to secure an impressive admission to the next world, and if there is not a great fuss and feast like an Irish wake the soul will be interrogated in scorn with, "Who you be? I no hear big gun—big feast." We have heard of a single native chief, on the coast farther South, spending £150 in a single day for powder. The consequence is here that funerals often prove to be ruinously expensive, involving a family in debt which embarrasses them, and may result in their being reduced to a mild species of slavery. Often some of a person's property is buried with him. After the burial a heap of stones is placed over the grave, or a tree planted over the spot to keep an enemy from discovering the spot, as they have great dread of the bones of their relatives being dug up and insulted. The food placed at the graves is a palaver-sauce of chicken cooked with ochre. The Congoes wrap their dead in enormous quantities of white cloth.

The corpse is sometimes placed upright against a tree and the wives of the deceased brought out, together with his oxen and sheep, some tobacco, kola nuts, and kitchen utensils, and all being placed around him, the interrogation as to his departure takes type accordingly. Some one says: "Now you have so many wives, and cows and sheep and goats and tobacco; why did you die at all when you have so much that would have contributed to your happiness had you remained?"

In placing the person upright in the grave, the thought is said to be that God, the Great Father, will come one day and call so loud that all who are buried in the ground will come forth, and if they are placed in this sitting posture they will be ready to get up quickly at the great Father's call. Along with this, however, there are found, in some parts of the coast, traces of belief in transmigration, children being named after an eminent deceased person, it being claimed that he had reappeared in these children. The distinctions of rank which obtained in this world are supposed to obtain also in the next, though the individual may rise or fall in the social scale. Death as we have said being caused by witchcraft, of course on the decease of a person investigation is had as to who bewitched him, and the ordeal of drinking the bowl of poisonous sassywood is resorted to in order to detect the criminal. The bark of this tree is pounded in a mortar and a decoction made from it. The old men form a circle, in the midst of which is placed the accused. The priest charges him with the crime of having "a witch in his belly." It is a natural emetic, but may fail to produce vomiting, when the person falls sick and loses his self-control. Much is said to depend on the disposition of the "witch doctor" toward the accused, as to the manner of the preparation, administration, and fatality of results.

Amongst the Vais, perhaps the most enterprising, industrious and sprightly tribe of Liberia, the person convicted of witchcraft is hung on stakes erected for the purpose, after being rubbed with palm oil and wrapped in cotton and thus he is burned.—Central.

Salaries of the Bishops and General Conference Officers.

Pursuant to the action of the last General Conference, the Book Committee at its session February last instructed the undersigned to publish the statement given below. It has been delayed by waiting for information from Oregon and California, which only came to hand March 29.

J. L. SMITH, Chairman.
L. C. MATLACK, Sec'y.

The salaries as determined by the Book Committee, at its session in February last are as follows:

Each Bishop, Book Agent, Editor at New York, Cincinnati, Chicago, and St. Louis	$3,000
The Editor of the Northern Christian Advocate	2,500
The Editor of the Methodist Advocate	1,500

The above are allowed an additional sum for house rent, varying according to locality.

The Editor of the Pittsburgh Christian Advocate	$3,000
The Editor of the Californian Christian Advocate	2,200
The Editor of the Pacific Christian Advocate (gold coin)	1,500
The Editor of the Southwestern Christian Advocate	[illegible]

Neither of the last four have any additional sum allowed for house rent.

*Contingent Salary.

Nine Choctaw Indians have entered the Roanoke ([illegible]) College, intending to take the fall course.

Will Governor Stone Execute the Laws?

His Excellency J. M. Stone, Governor of the State of Mississippi, on the fourth day of October, 1876, caused to be transmitted to the Attorney General of the United States a telegraphic dispatch in which he said: "I am more than willing, and have been able to execute the laws in Mississippi and conserve the public peace." * * * "The reports to the Department of Justice in regard to this State often times allege wrongs in communities which receive first information of the said wrongs in dispatches from the national capital."

His excellency also sought to enlighten the benighted Attorney General by conveying to him this startling intelligence: "The perpetrators of wrongs are responsible to State authorities, and I am able to bring all such to justice and I am determined to do so."

Mississippi was at that time, according to the Governor's assertion, "quietly and orderly, affording amplest protection to all."

We presume that no one will have the hardihood to deny that "wrongs" were perpetrated in Kemper county.

In December of last year a cowardly attempt was made to take the life of John W. Gully, and it is now stated, on good authority, that the assassin was known to his intended victim and others, but no attempt was made to bring him to justice. On Thursday, the twenty-sixth day of April, the same John W. Gully was brutally slain by an assassin who lurked in a thicket by the roadside for the purpose of effecting his murderous work. The succeeding Sunday, April 29, Kemper county was overrun by an infuriated mob of more than 100 men. Prominent white Republicans were arrested and carried to the jail at De Kalb, at the dictation of the mob. A prisoner (Gilmer) who was entitled to protection from the officers of the law, while in their custody, was shot in the back while being taken to jail, and literally riddled with bullets where he fell.

The brave Scotchman, McClellan, was also mercilessly slain. The jail was attacked, and Judge Chisholm and daughter was shot down, and his son was instantly killed. Judge Chisholm lingered in torture for two weeks, and expired on Sunday last.

His brave and devoted daughter Miss Cornelia—all honor to her memory—who clung to her father during that awful and bloody struggle, in the hope of being able to save him from the fury of the demons, writhed in agony until yesterday, when she too was relieved by death from the sufferings which she heroically endured without a murmur of complaint.

Seventeen days have elapsed since the murderous work at De Kalb and no arrests have been made.

Will his excellency now repeat his assertion that he is able to bring all perpetrators of wrongs to justice, and that he is determined to do so?

Since the horrible tragedy was enacted the survivors of the Chisholm family—have nursed their dying loved ones with windows barricaded, in hourly fear of another attack from the murderous mob who they believed were determined to complete their hellish purpose and slay their victim if his recovery was possible from the wounds already received. Mrs. Chisholm desired to have her family removed to a place where they would feel a sense of security, and petitioned the Governor for protection. His excellency should have used his own judgment as to the manner of granting the protection prayed for, but such an appeal should not have been disregarded by an executive who is "more than willing to conserve the public peace."

It is believed by many that the chances for the recovery of Miss Chisholm would have been greatly increased if she had been moved and thereby relieved from apprehensions with which her mind was constantly tortured.

We are not prepared to express an opinion on this subject, but, however it may be, the death of the brave girl should incite Governor Stone to vigorous action in the performance of his duty in bringing to justice the perpetrators of these horrible crimes.

Will his excellency now furnish evidence that his dispatch to Attorney General Taft was well founded?

We repeat: Is Governor Stone able and will he see that the laws are faithfully executed?—Jackson Pilot.

To this we add a letter written for Miss Chisholm just before her death giving the particulars of her injuries, to a friend in Washington:

DEKALB, Miss., May 12.

MADAME: At the request of Miss Chiselm, whose wounds render it impossible for her to write, I serve as her amanuensis. She takes great pleasure in acknowledging the receipt of your kind letters, which have come to hand since the De Kalb horror took place, and let me assure you that your kindness is appreciated. I have had the pleasure of opening your letters and reading them to her, and from your writing judge that you do not know that the brave and devoted little daughter was shot, beaten, and mangled equally with her father. Her right arm was shot through and through while endeavoring to shield her father. A whole charge of buckshot, which first struck the flat iron bars of the cell, struck her full in the face, filling it with chips of lead and burned powder. She was struck in the face by some brutal hand, which was blackened and disfigured in a fearful manner. She was also shot in the right leg, below the knee and is now lying prostrate and helpless as an infant, and nothing but the tenderest care and best surgical aid can save her arm and precious life. Her father is still alive but suffering intensely; yet we have some hope of his final recovery. The house is being guarded by a few faithful friends and relatives, but we do not know at what hour the savage barbarians may renew the attack. You can do us all no more good at present than to lay the enormities of the massacre before the people of Washington, and especialy the President.

To the above was added the following post-script in the handwriting of Mrs. Chisolm: "Our son, the little heroic Johnnie, was shot to death because he persisted in getting before his father for his defense."

Put Life Into Your Work.

A young man's interest and duty both dictate that he should make himself indispensable to his employers. He should be so industrious, prompt and careful that the accident of his temporary absence should be noticed by his being missed. A young man should make his employer his friend by doing faithfully and minutely all that is is intrusted to him. It is a great mistake to be over-nice or fastidious about work. Pitch in readily and your willingness will be appreciated, while the "high-tone" young man who quibbles about what it is and what it is not his place to do, will get the cold shoulder. There is a story that George Washington once helped to roll a log that one of his corporals would not handle, and the greatest Emperor of Russia worked as a shipwright in England—to learn the business. That is just what you want to do. Be energetic, look and act with alacrity; take an interest in your empoyer's sucess; work as though the business was your own, and let your employer know that he may place absolute reliance on you word and on your act. Be mindful; have your mind on your business; because it is that which is going to help you, not those outside attractions which some of the "boys" are thinking about. Take a pleasure in your work; do not go about in a listless, formal manner, but with alacrity and cheerfulness, and remember that while working thus for others you are laying the foundation of your own sucess in life.

The City of Kars.

Kars, or Kers, which comes into prominence in the war dispatches, is the citadel of the Turkish military power in Asia. It stands upon the river Kars, in the northwestern portion of Armenia, midway between Mount Ararat and the Black Sea, and on the road between Tiflis and Erzeroum, the capital of Armenia, and the center of traffic between Turkey and Northern Persia. It is a very strong fortress, both naturally and artificially, and is mounted with hundred-pounder Krupp guns and otherwise protected against attack. It is the scene of the memorable defense of Sir Fenwick Williams. Kars can hardly be taken except by siege, but its possession is necessary to the occupation of Armenia. The Russians may, however, confine their present operations to Trebizond, on the coast across the Antitaurus Mountains. Of this district the capital, Trebizond, Rizeh and Batoum, are the principal seaports, and it is for the possession of the eastermost of these, Batoum, that the first battle of the war appears to have been fought.

Number of Words in Use.

The vocabulary of the ancient sages of Egypt, at least as far as it is known to us from the hieroglyphic inscriptions, was about 685 words. A well-educated person seldom uses more than 3,000 or 4,000 words in actual conversation. Accurate thinkers and close reasoners, who wait until they find a word that exactly fits their meaning, employ a larger stock; and eloquent speakers may rise to a command of 10,000. Shakespeare produced all his plays with about 15,000. Milton's works are built up with 8,000; and the Old Testament says all it has to say with 5,642 words.

Hold the Fort.

In his memoirs of P. P. Bliss, the author, Maj. Whittle, describes the circumstances from which originated in the mind of Mr. Bliss, many of those remarkable hymns written by him. The following concerning "Hold the Fort" is of thrilling interest; we add the first verse, with chorus of the hymn.

"During October, 1864, just before Sherman began his famous march to the sea, while his army lay camped in the neighborhood of Atlanta, the army of Hood, in a c a r e f u l l y prepared movement, passed the right flank of Sherman's army, and gained his rear, commenced the destruction of the railroad leading north, burning blockhouses and capturing the small garrisons along the line. Sherman's army was put in rapid motion, following Hood, to save the supplies and larger posts, the principal of which was located at Altoona Pass, a defile in the Altoona range of mountains, through which ran the railroad. General Corse, of Illinois, was stationed here with a brigade of troops, composed of Minnesota and Illinois regiments, in all about 1,500 men, Colonel Tourtelotte being second in command. A million and a half of rations were stored here, and it was highly important that the earthworks commanding the Pass and protecting the supplies should be held. Six thousand men, under command of General French, were detailed by Hood to take the position. The works were completely surrounded and summoned to surrender. Corse refused, and sharp fighting commenced. The defenders were slowly driven into a small fort upon the crest of the hill. Many had fallen, and the result seemed to render a prolongation of the fight hopeless. At this moment, an officer caught sight of a white signal flag, far away across the valley, twenty miles distant, upon the top of Kenesaw Mountain. The signal was answered, and soon the message was waved across from mountain to mountain:

"Hold the Fort; I am coming.
W. T. SHERMAN."

Cheers went up; every man was nerved to the full appreciation of the position; and under a murderous fire, which killed or wounded more than half the men in the fort, Corse himself being shot three times through the head, Colonel Tourtelotte taking command, though himself badly wounded—they held the fort for three hours, until the advance guard of Sherman's army came up. French was obliged to retreat.

No incident of the war illustrates more thrillingly the inspiration imparted by the knowledge of the presence of the commander, and that he is cognizant of our position and that doing our utmost, he will supplant our weakness by speedy reinforcements. So, the message of Sherman to the soldiers of Altoona becomes the message of the Great Commander, who signals even to all who fight life's battle, "Hold the Fort."

In May, 1870, Mr. Bliss accompanied me to Rockford, Illinois, to sing at a Sunday School Convention. He there heard me relate the above incident as an illustration of the inspiration derived by the Christian from the thought of Christ as our Commander and of His coming to our relief. The song was born at once in his mind, and on his return to Chicago, while at my house, he wrote it out and published it in sheet music form.

HOLD THE FORT.

Ho! my comrades, see the signal
Waving in the sky!
Reinforcements now appearing
Victory is nigh!

CHORUS—"Hold the fort, for I am coming,"
Jesus signals still;
Wave the answer back to heaven,
"By thy grace, we will."

I Will Tell It.

Many a physician has gained his practice by one patient telling others of his cure. "Tell your neighbors that you have been to the hospital of Jesus, and been restored, though you hated all manner of meat, and drew near to the gates of death; and may be a poor soul in the same condition as yourself will say, 'This is a message from God to me.' Above all, publish abroad the Lord's good news for Jesus' sake. He deserves your honor. Will you receive this blessing, and then, like the nine lepers, give him no praise? Will you be like the woman in the crowd who was healed by touching the hem of his garment, and then would have slipped away? If so, I pray that the Master may say, "Somebody hath touched me;" and may you be compelled to tell the truth, and say, "I was sore sick in soul, but I touched thee, O my blessed Lord, and I am saved, and to the praise of the glory of thy grace I will tell it, though devils should hear it; I will tell it, and make the world ring with it, according to my ability, to the praise and glory of thy saving grace."

General News Items.

The United States now furnishes one-fourth of the gold, and one-half of the silver produced in the world.

A Belgian Court has set aside a lady's will because she was under the influence of a belief in spiritualism.

The Government favors the removal of the Northern Cheyennes to the Indian Territory, as recommended by Gen. Sheridan.

The Attorney General decides that it will be lawful for the Secretary of War to instruct paymasters to certify as to the correctness of army officers' vouchers for pay.

The rarest of rare occasions is a diamond wedding—the celebration of the 75th marriage anniversary. But Hiram Gulick (of Pennsylvania,) aged 97, and his wife, aged 94, had that felicity the other day.

J. B. Cornell of New York City has lately given $10,000, and Hon. Clarkson N. Potter $5,000 for free scholarship at Union College, New York.

The highest bridge in the world is on the Southern Kentucky railroad, just finished. It is 275 feet high and 1,125 feet long. The longest span is 375 feet.

The three highest pieces of architecture in the world are—The Pyramid of Gizeh, in Egypt, 543 feet; the steeple of the Cathedral of Cologne, 511 feet; and St. Peter's at Rome, 518.

A claim 97 years old was recently paid by the Treasury Department. It was based on supplies furnished the Revolutionary army in 1779, and has been in the various courts since that time. The claim was originally $8,000 but the [illegible] interest which had to be added increased it to between $51,000 and $52,000, which was paid to the grandsons of the original claimant.

The Paris Patrie gives some particulars about "the treasures of Islam." It says that all the pilgrims who visit Mecca cast an offering into the three sepulchres for the defense of Islam. The writer calculates that not less than $1,000,000 a year are thus contributed, and adds that from one of the sepulchres, which was opened in [illegible], immense sums were drawn. Another sepulchre was opened during the Crimean war, and now the Sheik ul Islam has gone to Mecca to draw funds from the third, which has not been opened since 1815. Taking the three sepulchres together it is computed that they must contain about $120,000,000.

By a late steamer from Japan there were received by the California State Fish Commissioners, from the Japanese Government, a present of a lot of young carp of that country. Of the number shipped eighty-eight passed the voyage in fine condition, and were placed in the tank with the gold fish at Woodward's gardens in San Francisco, to be nursed until old enough to spawn. An attempt will be made to introduce them into all the lagoons of fresh water in the southern and middle portions of the State. A number of the Kiger carp from the Danube are now hatching finely in the ponds at Druid Hill, Baltimore.

Though not formally elected, the British cabinet is virtually appointed by parliament, and more especially by the House of Commons, its existence being dependent upon the possession of a majority by either party in the latter assembly. As the acts of the Cabinet are liable to be questioned in Parliament, and require prompt explanation, it is essential that the members of the Cabinet should have seats either in one house or the other where they become identified with the general policy and acts of the government. The following constitute the British Cabinet: First Lord of the Treasury, Earl of Beaconsfield; Lord High Chancellor, Lord Cairns; Lord President of the Council, Duke of Richmond; Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Stafford Henry Northcote; Secretary of State for the Home Department, Richard A. Cross; Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, Earl of Derby; Secretary of State for the Colonies; Earl of Carnarvon; Secretary of State for India, Marquis of Salisbury; Secretary of State for War, Gathorne Hardy; First Lord of the Admiralty, George Ward Hunt; Postmaster General, Lord Manners; Chief Secretary for Ireland, Sir Michael Edwards Hicks-Beach.

It is told of the President's son, Mr. Webb Hayes, that when he returned from college it occurred to him that he might be a more muscular Christian than was his distinguished father. Accordingly he gave a good-humored challenge to a wrestling match to that kindly person, and it was instantly accepted. There was a picturesque struggle for a few minutes, and somebody emphatically measured his length on the floor. The young gentleman has never challenged his venerable father since.

SOUTHWESTERN
Christian Advocate.
30 Natchez St., New Orleans.
J. C. HARTZELL, D. D., EDITOR
THURSDAY, MAY 31, 1877.

[illegible] of this city, delivers the annual address before the Buchtel College in Akron Ohio, June 27.

The Southern Sportsman is the name of a new and beautifully printed paper in this city, published and edited by Messrs. Goodwin & Babbitt.

The Sacramento Union of May 7, contains a very interesting account [illegible] of the silver [illegible] of Rev. Dr. M. C. Briggs [illegible]. From the far-off South we send greeting and God bless [illegible].

The Reformed Episcopal Church [illegible] its Episcopal [illegible] copies from [illegible] Methodism, and re[illegible] the plan of the old [illegible]

The [illegible] says: Much as [illegible] neither Cham[illegible] able, to [illegible] any longer [illegible] how the Govern[illegible] the contin[illegible] which [illegible] of re[illegible] to [illegible] we believe, he was lawfully [illegible]

[illegible]

The Southern Baptist Convention and the Colored People.

The late Southern Baptist Convention in this city was an influential body of ministers representing the Baptist Church in all the Southern States. About three hundred delegates were present, and among them men of national reputation.

Among the subjects discussed at length was the question of educational and mission work, among the colored people. We learned from a prominent member of the Convention, that this is the first time these subjects have been discussed in the annual assemblies of this body, without causing unpleasant feelings and words. But at this meeting the ground was canvassed with a good degree of thoroughness, and in an excellent spirit. Rev. A. M. Newman, pastor of the leading Colored Baptist Church in this city, was invited to address the Convention and did so with great acceptability.

We record then with pleasure, the fact that the white Baptists of the South, representing more than half a million of as intelligent and well-to-do Christians as are in the South, have in their highest Convention proclaimed their duty and consequent obligation, to take an active part in the education and elevation of the colored people.

Up to this time they have done nothing. We have heard of no school which Southern Baptists have established for the colored people in the South. Some will say that the twelve years since the war, is a long time for a body of Christian people to come to recognize their duty to the sons of Ham. That is true, and it is to be regretted that so many valuable years should have been lost.

The white Southern Baptists of the South have themselves lost a great deal in spiritual growth, in failing to enter years ago upon the work of giving churches and schools to their colored co-religionists. They have also lost the golden opportunity of having the largest influence over their colored people. While they have failed to recognize their responsibility, the colored Baptists of the South have not failed during these years to fall into loose habits in their church government and discipline. It is a sad fact, well known to all intelligent Baptist ministers, both colored and white, that the majority the of so-called colored Baptist churches throughout the South—after we except one or two in each of the larger cities and towns—are a disgrace to Christianity. They are usually small, sometimes three or four within a mile. Their standard of discipline is no higher than the average morals of their leaders. There is no outside check or controlling influence, either to inspire or direct them. We have seen many of these churches and talked with their leaders, and learned enough to speak authoratively of the terrible state of morals which [illegible]. All this will make the work proposed, at this late day, by the Southern Baptist Convention [illegible] these colored people so much the harder. Advice will, in many cases, at first be spurned, when, if it had been given ten years ago would have been followed gladly.

One thing in connection with the late Baptist Convention we exceedingly regret. The work and workers of Leland University in this city received no recognition. Leland University is the Baptist School for colored people in New Orleans and is the work of Northern Christians and their money.

Deacon Chamberlain and his saintly wife, eight years ago, left their circle of aristocratic and [illegible] friends in Brooklyn, N. Y., [illegible] to New Orleans to do [illegible] for the colored people. [illegible] have expended [illegible] of their own money, [illegible] their time and strength [illegible] Assistance has also [illegible] from the Northern Bap[illegible] The result is a [illegible]

[illegible] singularly sweet Christian characters, and with faces wrinkled with age and yet beaming with benevolence, worshipped for years in the aristocratic Baptist Church of this city with scarcely a dozen who would speak to them. Their wealth and acknowledged personal worth were no offset to the fact that they were laboring among the colored people. So it has been with the professors of Leland.

What a splendid opportunity did the Convention have of rebuking this unchristian spirit. But alas, that was not done. The Convention itself followed the same path. No mention whatever was made of Leland University. Deacon Chamberlin with Dr. Stone, the President of the University attended the Convention. The latter was present during all the discussions of the work to be done among the colored people. He did not so much as receive a friendly grasp of the hand from a member of the Convention. No mention was made of him or his work, when ten minutes talk from him on the work he was doing, would have been worth more to the Convention than days of talk, limited to theory and rhetorical flourishes about the "Ignorant sons of Ham." Not a single member of the Convention visited Leland University!

Presbyterian Fraternity.

The Presbyterian General Assemblies of the Northern and Southern Churches are now (May 26) in session in Chicago and New Orleans. The subject of formal fraternity between these bodies has been a matter of correspondence since the war. It was generally supposed that last year—1876—a satisfactory relation had been established. But the following action of the Southern body puts the matter of fraternity as far off as in the beginning. We give the entire report.

Whereas, the general assembly of this church, in session at St. Louis, in 1875, adopted a paper extending special thanks, in the name of the whole church, to our committee of conference at Baltimore, for their diligence, fidelity and Christian prudence, and in particular approving and indorsing, "as satisfactory to the Southern church, the condition precedent to fraternal relations suggested by our committee, viz: 'If your assembly could see its way clear to say, in a few plain words, to this effect, that these obnoxious things were said and done in times of great excitement and are to be regretted, and that now, in a calm review, the imputations cast upon the Southern church (of schism, heresy and blasphemy) are disapproved, that would end the difficulty at once.'" And

Whereas, our General Assembly in session at Savannah in 1876, in response to a paper from the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, which met in Brooklyn, adopted the following paper, viz:

"We are ready most cordially to enter on fraternal relations with your body on any terms honorable to both parties. The assembly has already in answer to an overture from the Presbytery of St. Louis, spontaneously taken the following action:

Resolved, That the action of the Baltimore conference, approved by the assembly at St. Louis, explains with sufficient clearness the position of our church. But inasmuch as it is represented by the overture that misapprehension exists in the minds of some of our people as to the spirit of this action, in order to show our disposition to remove, on our part, all real or seeming hindrance to friendly feeling, the assembly explicitly declares that while condemning certain acts and deliverances of the Northern General Assembly, no acts or deliverances of the Northern General Assemblies are to be construed as admitted as impugning in any way the Christian character of the Northern General Assembly, or of the historical body to which it is the successor."

And whereas, the said General Assembly at Brooklyn, in response to the foregoing paper, adopted the following, which has been communicated to us at our present meeting viz:

"The overture of this assembly having been received by the general assembly in the South with such a cordial expression of gratification, the committee recommend [illegible] same resolution, declarative of the spirit in which this action is taken be adopted by this Assembly, viz: 'In order to show our disposition to remove on our part all real or seeming hindrance to friendly feeling, the assembly explicitly declares that, while condemning certain acts and deliverances of the Southern General Assembly, no acts or deliverances of the Northern Assembly, or of the historic bodies of which present assembly is the successor, are to be construed or admitted as impugning in any way the Christian character of the Southern General Assembly, or of the historic body or bodies of which it is the successor.'

Therefore, be it resolved by this assembly, That we cannot regard this communication as satisfactory, because we can discover in it no reference whatever to the first and main part of the paper adopted by our Assembly in Savannah, and communicated to the Brooklyn assembly. This assembly can add nothing on this subject to the action of the assembly at St. Louis, adopting the basis proposed by our committee of conference at Baltimore, and reaffirmed by the assembly at Savannah.

If our brethren of the Northern church can meet us on these terms, which truth and righteousness seem to us to require, then we are ready to establish such relations with them during the present sessions of the assemblies.

The answer from the Northern Assembly is not at this writing received.

The "obnoxious things" referred to in this report were what the Northern Assembly said during the war, in condemnation of rebellion and slavery. The Southern Assembly demands that these be taken back, and "be regretted," that is, apologized for. The reply of the Northern Assembly thus far has been, that no assembly is to be held responsible for what a previous one had said, and even if it could be so held, it would not feel called upon to condemn its own brethren, when no doubt they acted in the fear of God in all they had done during the war. At the same time the Northern Assembly offered and urged the fraternity on the basis that neither church should be asked to retract anything of its past record, and both shake hands on a common Ecclesiastical and Christian platform.

The above reply from the Southern Assembly indicates to us very plainly that Southern Presbyterians want no fraternity with Northern Presbyterians. The Southern brethren said last year: "In order to show our disposition to remove on our part all real or seeming hindrance to friendly feeling, the assembly explicitly declares that while condemning certain acts and deliverances of the Northern General Assembly, no acts or deliverances of the Southern General Assemblies are to be construed as impugning in any way the Christian character of the Northern General Assembly, or of the historical body to which it is the successor."

The reply of the Northern Assembly was in exactly the same words. The Southern Church now answers: "We cannot regard this communication as satisfactory." A very strange reply of fraternity is really desired. It is the old story over again, respecting fraternity between Northern and Southern Christians. The North is generous and wants to forget the past, while the South retracting nothing itself, still demands formal apologies for criticisms on its past acts. We predict that the Northern Assembly will never apologize, for what its predecessors said and did during the war.

New Orleans University.

The New Orleans University is just closing a good year's work. Ninety-two students are in attendance, divided into the following departments. Preparatory, Literary, Normal, Theological and Collegiate. A class of three, who will then have completed a classical course in the Collegiate department, with graduate next year. Of the ninety-two students more than two-thirds are above grammar school rank. Among the advance scholars twelve are studying for the ministry, two for medicine, one for missionary work in Africa, and seven are preparing themselves to teach. Of last year students several are teaching in public schools and others are in the ministry. During the year the building and grounds have been thoroughly renovated. The walls of all the rooms have been painted, the chapel seated with the best of furniture, and furnished with speakers stand and a cabinet organ, the library has been increased to a thousand volumes, the buildings kept insured, and the fences and banquetts repaired and relaid. $500 will not more than cover the improvements on the property.

The faculty consists of Rev. Dr. W. D. Godman, president. Mrs. Dr. Godman, Miss DeWolf, of Chicago, and Mrs. Dupre of New Orleans, professors. Prof. A. B. Collins did efficient work in teaching until compelled a few weeks since on account of broken health to go north. Three assistant teachers are also employed. There are twenty-six daily recitations.

The educational work of our Church in Louisiana was never in better hands. The large experience of President Godman in other fields, his superior culture, and profound convictions as to the importance of the work he has in hand, qualify him in an eminent degree for his present labor. We are especially pleased to note a marked improvement in his physical strength.

The Freedmen's Aid Society bears the expense of supporting this institution, and Dr. Rust may well congratulate himself and his society in the work done, during the past years in the New Orleans University, and for the board and sure foundations laid for a great school in the future.

The closing examinations occur to-day and to-morrow, (Thursday and Friday) and to-morrow night, an exhibition will be given by the Hesperian Literary Society in Union Chapel. Of these we will speak next week.

Poor New Orleans.

The defeat of the subscription to the New Orleans & Pacific Rail Road tax, by a decided vote last Friday, was a complete surprise to to the best thinking people of New Orleans. It shows how utterly impracticable the average New Orleans men are. Here in a great city, dying for want of business, with an empire of trade in Texas lying at its door. A few enterprising gentlemen backed by the best business firms of the city, propose to build a Rail Road to Shreveport to connect with the Texas Pacific. The work is well begun, and assurances given of a speedy completion of the road. The City is asked to contribute a small proportion and take pay in stock. The matter is voted upon and refused by a large majority. Cincinnati gave $16,000,000 for one road alone, running directly South. St. Louis, Memphis, and Louisville all spend vast sums to control the Southwestern trade, and are doing it, much of it being taken from our very doors. Still the average New Orleans man sits and sucks his thumb and growls about his poverty, and spend half his time in street parades and torch-light processions, and go to bed hungry at night, cursing somebody else because he has no work or money. After the vote of Friday let no man say that politics have ruined New Orleans. New Orleans is being ruined, because the average man is dead to all enterprise, but while dead, unfortunately is not buried, and can yet out vote the few who have enterprise.

The New Orleans Centennial Singers.

This new troupe of singers, organized and drilled under the direction of Dr. and Mrs. Goodman of our New Orleans University left for Philadelphia via Cincinnati on the steamboat Charles Morgan, last Saturday evening. They, give their first concert in Arch street Church, Philadelphia, June 8; and it is expected will sing in all our principal churches of that city before going elsewhere.

The troupe is made up entirely from our New Orleans churches, and is organized as follows: Soprano, Misses Tillie Jones and Lizzie Parker: Alto, Misses Cora Smith and Sarah Merritt; Bass, Alexander Brown and Joseph Dupre: Tenor, Charles Dardis and George Dardis. Dr. and Mrs. Godman will have entire charge of the troupe, and have employed Mr. John H. Dale as assistant business manager.

The evening before the troupe left a few friends were invited to the University Chapel to hear their last rehearsal under their special instructor Prof Cordova of this city. Miss Tillie Jones has a very superior soprano voice, and will be a favorite with all who hear her. Miss Parker's voice is as not developed fully but is pleasant. The alto and tenor are fair. The bass, especially Mr. Brown is first class. On the whole we think our Philadelphia Methodist friend will be greatly blessed with the Centenniale.

The Drs. Godman takes this troupe to aid them in the great work of saving and building up our Orphans Home, an institution which has become embarrassed by the hard times, and which is sadly needed in our work. We commend these Christian workers to the good people of Philadelphia and trust, that with God's blessing, they may find many who will, to the extent of their ability, share with them and [illegible] fellow-workers here, the blessedness of caring for God's poor.

The Northern Presbyterian General Assembly met this year in Chicago at the same time the Southern Assembly met in this city. Presbyterianism began in this country the latter part of the seventeenth century. The first General Assembly met in Philadelphia in 1789 In 1837 it divided into two churches known as the Old and New School. In 1870 these bodies reunited. Since that year the church has been very prosperous. The statistics, at the meeting of the assembly of 1876, showed 36 synods, 172 presbyteries, 705 candidates for the ministry, 4,744 ministers, 5,077 churches, 535,210 communicants and 555,347 Sunday-school members. The contributions for all purposes were $9,810,223. Of this large aggregate $6,633,577 was paid for congregational expenses, $314,693 for home missions, $399,767 for foreign missions, and $2,100,150 for miscellaneous objects. These figures show an increase, since the reunion in 1870, of 506 ministers, 551 churches, and 98,649 members. As compared with 1871 the aggregate contributions show an increase of $712,517.

Governor Stone and the Kemper County Massacre.

We publish on our front page and endorse the direct appeal, of the Jackson, Miss. Pilot, to Governor Stone asking him whether he intends or is able to bring the murderers of the Chisolm family to justice. Weeks have passed and nothing is done. Gov. Stone cannot shirk the responsibility. It is his duty to see that the laws of his State are enforced. The horrible details of the massacre of six white Republicans cannot be forgotten, and if Gov. Stone and his advisers in Mississippi fail to do their duty in this matter, they will themselve become party to the crime.

How much there is to encourage the hope that Gov. Stone will bring his Democratic brethern to justice may be informed from the following, from the Meridian Mercury a leading Democratic paper of Mississippi:

What Governor Stone has requested Judge Hamm to do about holding a special term for an early investigation we don't know. Judge Hamm has ordered no special term, and we think it is safe to predict that he will not. If we ever had a strong conviction about anything, we never had a stronger one than that it is best not to do it. April 29, DeKalb, never ought to be investigated, and if wisdom and statesmanship prevail never will be. On that day, the higher law which ante-dates common law and all other law ousted them all and their ministers of jurisdiction, and for a brief period of time, sufficient to its purposes, held sway. Its judgments were final. No court is competent to disturb them. Every attempt to review them will be both futile and mischievous. Special instructions to grand jurors are likely to go unheeded, and to save an exhibition of their impotency had better not be given. The best thing the law and the ministers can do about the tragedy is to save their strength for the future as wiser than wasting it foolishly and vainly on the past.

Some weak-minded men, mere drivelers and snivelers, make the occasion of the unfortunate death of a boy and a young lady exposed to the fire in the DeKalb Jail on Sunday, the 29th of April, to become excited and to wag their tongues, and try to get up a public sentiment against the actors on account of it.

The catalogue of Central Tennessee College for 1876—1877, indicates a very prosperous condition of that institution. The total number of students enrolled including a preparatory school at Nassau Tipton Co., Tenn. is 303. Of these three are in the Collegiate department, twenty-four in the preparatory; thirty-two in the Theological; eleven in the Medical; seventy-two in the Normal, and one hundred and nine in the Academic. This institution is under the patronage of the Freedmen's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and was established in 1866 by the wise counsels of Bishop D. W. Clark. Its object is the training of teachers and preachers for the Freedmen. During the past eleven years twenty-five hundred students have been enrolled. Several hundred of them are teaching.

President Braden continues year by year to grow in strength and influence in his great work.

A ministerial crisis has occurred in France. President McMahon and his prime minister Jules Simon, had a rupture, because the latter did not resist vigorously the repeal of the arbitrary press laws by the Chamber of Deputies. President McMahon wrote a sharp letter which caused his cabinet to resign. Gambetta in the Chamber of Deputies made a strong speech, declaring what the Republicans demanded, and spoke of the possible consequences if those demands were not met. President McMahon prorogued the Chambers for one month, which caused great excitement. A new and decidedly imperialistic cabinet has been formed with Duc de Broglie at their head. All this indicates that President McMahon is a Monarchist at heart, and probably wants to make himself Emperor of France. A French Revolution may be in the near future.

The wars of this century have been the most bloody and costly since the palmy days of Rome and Greece. For its ten great bloody periods, viz., the Napoleonic, Grecian, Crimean, Italian, Danish, Australian (1866), Brazilian, American, Abyssinian, and Franco-German wars, leaving out minor expeditions and skirmishes—the figures foot up $38,967,600,000 expended, and 11,708,300 men destroyed from 1800 to 1871. Two-thirds of this aggregate outlay of men and money are to be charged on the ledger to Napoleon I., up to his closing battle fought at Waterloo.

The following sad note is from Mrs. Jane Smith, the bereaved widow of the deceased. May the Blessed Master comfort the afflicted one.

Please announce in your paper, the death of my dear husband, Rev. Isaac Smith, he died of pneumonia, on March 10th, at Livingston, in Polk Co., in full hope of a resurrection with the just, and to spend a happy eternity in heaven. When dying he bade us all good-by, and told us to meet him in heaven.

We have received from the publishers, S. Brainard's Sons, Cleveland, O., a copy of "Heavenward," a collection of new Sunday Shool songs by J. R. Murray, P. P. Bliss, and others. This new book has been eagerly looked for by our Sunday School workers, and they will not be disappointed in "Heavenward." It contains a large variety of choice Sunday School music by the leading writers in America, and is the only book in which will be found the best and most popular hymns and music of the late P. P. Bliss. We also notice a number of standard Sunday School favorites have been inserted, such as "Hold the Fort," "What shall the Harvest be?" Sweet By and By," "Evermore Remembered," Your Mission," &c., which will always be welcomed with pleasure by Sunday Schools. The responsive service is also a valuable new feature in this book. Sunday Schools desiring a new music book, cannot do better than to secure a supply of "Heavenward." It can be obtained from most booksellers, or by sending 25 cents to S. Brainard's Sons, Cleveland, O., you will receive a sample copy (in paper covers) by return mail. Price in boards, 35 cents by mail, $30 per hundred.

A NATIONAL WORK.—Webster's Dictionary, Unabridged, Illustrated, is a national work, in which every American scholar has an interest, and in the completeness and accuracy of which he should have a pride.—a national pride, if you please,—the same kind of pride we have in the superior intelligence, enterprise, resources, and capacity for adaptability to occasion, of the masses of the United States. We have always been proud of Webster's Dictionary. It should be remembered that the publishers have had large experience and the command of large resources in the preparation and perfection of this great work, and have aimed to make—as we are confident they have succeeded in doing,—the best Dictionary of the English language.—Moore's Rural New-Yorker.

Our Southern Methodism.

Some one at Luling, Texas, sends a letter intended for this department, but the writer forgot to sign his name.

Rev. J. P. Lewis, Ripley, Miss., writes: "At our quarterly services just closed, our church-membership was greatly blessed. We are continuing religious services, attended by good congregations. Pray for us, that we receive the baptism of the Spirit."

Rev. R. Anderson, Jackson, Miss., says: "We have a most interesting meeting in progress at our new church, called Mt. Zion, in this county. So far there have been four conversions and twenty-eight accessions to the church. We have also a good Sunday School numbering seventy-five scholars. We expect to send for a supply of books soon"

Rev. D. W. Maddox, Shuqualak, Miss., says: "All goes well with us on this work. There have been five recent conversions and seventeen accessions to the church. Our house of worship at Scooba has been rebuilt, and is now better than ever. Here at Shuqualak, we have a new church-bell, which gives general satisfaction. Our white friends aided us by their contributions in purchasing it."

Rev. Smith Pratt, Jefferson, Texas, says: "At our meeting just closed there were twenty-two conversions. Eighteen persons were baptised during the progress of the meeting, and four are to be baptised on next Sunday. The work of completing our church building is now in progress. The society of "Daughters of Conference" is rendering us very efficient aid in raising funds for this purpose."

Rev. P. Blue, Oxford, Miss., says: "Our church and sunday-school have been steadily increasing during this year. Our quarterly services, just closed, proved a very gracious season. At the close of the Elder's sermon, on Sunday night, six per[illegible] joined the church. We much need a parsonage, and the subject of securing a suitable one is now being canvassed by our people."

Rev. A. Moore, La., Harp, St. church of this city saye: "we have had a meeting in progress for past two weeks. So far there have been eight conversions send twelve accessions to the church. The interest in the meeting is unbated. All officers and members of the church are at their posts, and a spirit of love and unity pervades. We pray that the Lord may direct [illegible] for the salvation of [illegible]."

Rev. H. C. Lewis, Abbeville, Miss., says: "Our quarterly services just closed were attended with deep spiritual interest. Sixty persons partook of the sacrament of the Lord's supper. Presiding Elder Johnson, who travels in his own conveyance, also visited and preached for some of our churches back from the railroad, much to the satisfaction and edification of the people, who have seldom received such visits heretofore. He is doing good for our district."

Rev. P. E. Bardwell, Fayette, Miss., says: "We are at work improving our church building, which was sadly out of repair. We hope to have it finished by our next quarterly meeting. We are greatly aided, in [illegible] society of the cit[illegible] To this [illegible] for many [illegible] made to [illegible] visit last week. L. [illegible] of Ohio, teacher. She is an [illegible] worker, and has [illegible] to patients. We are just commencing a protracted meeting."

Our Second German Church in this city, under the pastorate of Rev. J. [illegible], is enjoying a successful [illegible] attendance is [illegible] not is one hundred. During a protracted [illegible] two weeks in February, [illegible] eight [illegible] to full membership, [illegible] two on probation. [illegible] is not large, and [illegible] 55 have been [illegible]

[illegible] Sunday School organ has arrived. [illegible] have not space [illegible] of the interesting [illegible] sent us. In one [illegible], Tenn., [illegible] Word, on [illegible] of Evil [illegible] little [illegible] old; are spe[illegible] another at [illegible] had an interest [illegible] An aspect [illegible] day and [illegible]

[illegible] Kiesle has done a good share [illegible] painting and graining with [illegible] Both pastor and [illegible] in each other's [illegible] and rejoice in the manifest [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] far to prove its steadily growing popularity.

The net increase in members in the New York Conference during the past year is three thousand three hundred and fifty-nine, and the increase in collections for missions was eight thousand seven hundred and eighty seven dollars.

To May 14th, the Southern Methodist Publishing house, at Nashville, Tenn., had received donations amounting to $24,024.12. An earnest appeal has been issued by the Bishops and Book Committee for the remainder of the $60,000 originally called for.

After twenty years of incessant labor, the translation of the Bible into the Russian vernacular has just been completed, and the Emperor thanks the Holy Synod in a special manifesto. This is the first translation of the Bible into Russian, approved by the Church and the Czar, the British Bible Society's translation being prohibited in Russia.

The Methodist Episcopal Church has had a regular mission in Montevideo, South America, since 1870, in charge of the Rev. John F. Thompson. A church capable of seating 500 or 600 people was fitted up out of an old building, at a cost of $12,000, and in it services are held in English and Spanish. Of the former class there are about eighty who attend. The Spanish service is always well attended, the house being crowded, and people often forced to go away unable to gain admission. There is a Sunday School of between 200 and 300 scholars. The mission has been so successful that Mr. Thompson desires to have a larger, more suitable, and better situated church.

The Missionary Record of the Free Church of Scotland finds much that is hopeful in the work of Christianizing the Jews, though it is generally regarded as presenting few encouraging features. The Record says: There are at present over 20,000 converted and baptised Jews living in the communion of Christian churches. There is also a large and increasing number of persons who are Christians in their hearts, but who, 'fearing the Jews,' have not made any public confession of their change of belief. Of the 20,000 who have received baptism, no less than 320 are at this moment occupying high and influential positions as ministers, theological Professors and teachers in the Christian Church. In England alone 110 of these are ministers of the Established Church.

General News Items.

A million dollars of the Centennial fund have been repaid to the treasury, and the remaining half million will be paid this month.

The whisky ring has abandoned its efforts to secure release from civil prosecution, and will fight to the bitter end in the courts.

Dr. Ayer, the pill man, is insane. Cause, business application and disappointment in not being elected to Congress. He is worth $15,600,000.

The Great Eastern, the enormous vessel that hath thus far proved [illegible] unprofitable curiosity, is to be [illegible] into a huge floating [illegible], and used in the conveyance of American meat to England.

The world does not seem to have been sufficiently drowned at the time of the flood. Kars is not far from Ararat, the mountain upon which the ark rested, and to-day the descendants of Noah are murdering each other at Kars.

The recent "Carnival" in New Orleans was, in all respects, a miserable affair. It was not even respectable as an advertising dodge, and as a show it was sufficiently disgusting. It will not probably be repeated.

Recently a rich discovery of gold was made in the lower level of the mine of the Finding gold mine in Dahlonega, Ga. It is a well-defined vein shows an assay of gold, and it is said will assay $3,000 per ton.

Gov. Hubbard, of Texas, offers a reward of $500 for each and every person arrested and convicted upon arrest and indictment, who has murdered, or participated in any of the outrages in this State, or in the jails for the purpose of murdering prisoners.

The State of Georgia has sold the labor of the convicts in its State prison for $25 000 a year, which is at the rate of about $11 a year for each convict. The State appears to have been badly swindled, as the contractors are now successfully "sub-letting" the convicts at $60 a year a piece.

A New York taxidermist is stuffing a lion for P. T. Barnum, inside of which he is placing machinery that will cause the beast to roar loud enough to be heard two miles It will be mounted on a chariot, and a steam-engine will move the animal to utterance.

Sunday School.

June 10, 1877.—THE PROMISE OF REVIVAL.

SCRIPTURE.—Hosea 14: 1-9.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"O Israel thou hast destroyed thyself; but in me is thine help."—13: 9.

TOPIC.—Confession is made unto Salvation.

HOME READINGS.

Monday, Hosea Chaps. 1 & 2; Tuesday, Hosea Chaps. 3 & 4; Wednesday, Hosea 5: 1-15; Thursday, Hosea Chaps. 6 & 7; Friday, Hosea Chaps. 8 & 9; Saturday, Hosea Chaps. 10 & 11; Sunday, Hosea Chaps. 12 & 13.

(Condensed from Nat. S. S. Teacher.)

The Earnest Exhortation (1-3.)—Nearly the whole book of Hosea is taken up with an arraignment of Israel as the unfaithful spouse of Jehovah. It is full of upbraidings, of lamentations, and of threatenings. Through, all through the book, the love of God toward his people is eminently shown, yet the impeachment is so severe, the judgments predicted so destructive, that no one is prepared for so pleading, beautiful, and gracious a close as is presented in the last chapter. There the loud, startling notes of the trumpet of judgment suddenly change into soft, winning appeal, and close with a burst of triumph. On the very bosom of the coming clouds of Judgment is hung a bow of promise.

O Israel return unto the Lord, thy God. The previous threatenings had laid the foundation for this appeal. They had shown that destruction was imminent on account of the sins of the people, and that it was deserved. From it was no escape, except through Jehovah; and now, marvel of marvels! the Lord, through the lips of his prophet, pleads with them to return unto him, that they may escape the consequences of their wrong-doing. Who can fathom the unutterable love and yearning of God over the sons of men! Return. From following idols; from worshipping the calves; from oppressing the poor; from straying away from God, their helper. For thou hast fallen. The future fact put into the present tense. The words almost the same as those used by Amos in our last lesson. Then the end was a half century away, now, if we can rely on our chronology, it was only a few years distant. Impenitence delays, but judgment does not tarry. Hast fallen. Look at the strong, impressive figures by which this downfall was portrayed: "For they have sown the wind and they shall reap the whirlwind." 8: 7. Evil always returns a crop compounded in strength and numbers.

Fallen by thine iniquity. Not by the hand of God—but by her own hand. The destruction of the sinner is a suicide. "O Israel thou hast destroyed thyself, but in me is thine help." 13: 9. Take with your words. Nothing more is demanded of the penitent man. Worlds could not purchase his redemption—but words, contrite, humble, loving words, can do what treasures can not. Salvation is not of works lest any should boast. And turn to the Lord. That implies the renunciation of idolatry, the abjuration of injustice and of the abandonment of all evil, and the acceptance of God and of all his behests. These acts would attest the sincerity of the words.

So will we render the calves of our lips. Literally: "So will we render, as bullocks, our lips." Will render sacrifices of praise and thanksgiving instead of oxen. The same is presented in Ps. 69: 30, 31, though the metaphor is not there given: "I will praise the name of God with a song, and will magnify him with thanksgiving. This also shall please the Lord better than ox or bullock that hath horns and hoofs."

Neither will we say any more to the work of our hands, Ye are our gods. Last and best renunciation of all; for idolatry was the evil root from which sprang all their troubles. They were not longer to rely upon bribes on the one hand, nor corrupting alliances on the other, nor upon idols, the impotent work of their hands. That is to say, these were steps which the prophet recommends them to take. They had as yet expressed no such words of contrition, nor promised any such reformation. For in thee the fatherless findeth mercy. That fact is given as the grounds for their prayer. In renouncing God Israel had indeed become orphaned; for there is none so fatherless as those who do not have God for their father.

I will heal their backsliding. Heal the consequences of their apostasy. The crippled kingdom should be made whole again, the danger from foreign powers should be averted, and real and permanent prosperity should take the place of sham security. I will love them freely. So God ever loves—so had he loved them. In the midst of terrible denunciations and threats, as rifts of sunlight piercing through the darkest clouds, so had his love shone through.

For mine anger is turned away from him. Is always turned away from the penitent. "Thou art a God ready to pardon, gracious and merciful, slow to anger and of great kindness." Neh. 9: 17.

From me is thy fruit found. Mere shade and protection is found under the fir-tree, but God gives more than that. He is not only the tree that overshadows, but the vine from which we draw our spiritual life and to which we owe whatever of good fruitage we bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine, nor more can ye except ye abide in me. I am the vine, ye are the branches."

For the ways of the Lord are right. They are not hid so that they can not be found out. He issues no decree in secret, and then punishes men for not obeying it. They are so plain that the righteous shall walk in them without trouble—so strait that no wicked man shall ever walk in them to heaven.

The Turkish Question.

Mr. Thomoff, a native of Bulgaria, and at present a student in Drew Theological Seminary, gives an interesting article in the New York Advocate of April 26th, on Turkey and Missions. We clip the following extract:

There are two self-evident truths with regard to the Eastern question. The one is that Turkey must fall sooner or later, and the other is that the final settlement of the question will be between her and Russia. Can such a settlement be made as to satisfy the Christian nations of Turkey, and allow their great sympathizer, Russia, to retire honorably from the contest? It seems to me that there are three possible ways of putting an end to this question. The first is to allow Russia to crush Turkey, and incorporate her provinces in her already vast empire; the second is to divide it between Austria and Russia; and the third is to constitute the Christian nations in Turkey into semi-independent principalities, under the joint protectorate of the European Powers, until those nations become strong enough to form a confederation, and take care of their own interests. Many people of this country, who view this question superficially, think that the first is the only possible mode of solving this question. There are many very weighty reasons against this. It would disturb the so-called Balance of Power, and make Russia too strong in Europe. It would stifle the noble aspirations of the Christian nations of Turkey for self-government. And, lastly, it would be disastrous to the missions.

It is a notorious fact, that of the Protestant missions attempted in Russia not one has succeeded, and at the present time the Baptists are the only denomination that are struggling, against fearful odds, to establish a mission in that intolerant empire. The opposite view, namely, that Turkey must be supported at all costs, in order that the missions may not suffer is unreasonable and absurd. What! Is Mohammedan tyranny to be allowed to grind the very life out of the Turkish Christians in order that these may have the pure Gospel preached to them? This is shocking, and is utterly repudiated by the missionaries in Turkey. The second plan—to divide the Turkish provinces between Russia and Austria—is impracticable, and would only be beneficial to Russia, as this Power would, of course take possession of Bulgaria, including Thrace and Macedonia and leave Bosnia and Herzegovina to Austria. It would be equally disastrous to the missions. The third plan—to have the provinces constituted into semi-independent principalities, under the joint protectorate of the European Powers—is the only reasonable and satisfactory plan that can be pursued.

It will satisfy most, if not all, the European Powers. It will give the Turkish Christians the privileges and rights that they have been fighting for. It will establish toleration, and give a great impulse to the missionary work. This is the plan that is warmly and ably advocated by Mr. Gladstone in his pamphlet, "On the Bulgarian Horrors." Under this plan a complete commercial, industrial, educational and religious revolution would follow, and Bulgaria would become the center of a great religious movement which would spread over all the provinces, including Bosnia, Herzegovinia, Albania, Servia, and Roumania, and reach even to Russia. Let us not say that the Slavonic people do not favor evangelical Christianity, for one of the very first reformers, John Huss, was a Slavonian. The missionary work is God's work, and whatever political changes may occur, God's work must be provided for.

Across the island of New York in 1685, a wall of stone and earth, cannon mounted, was erected to keep off the savages. A street was laid along by that wall, and as the street took the line of the wall it was properly called Wall Street. It is short, narrow, and unarchitectural, but unique in history, and, excepting Lombard Street, of London, the mightiest in the world. The history of Wall Street would be a large part of the history of this country—financially, agriculturally, religiously.

The key to the penitentiary—Whiskey.

Essential Hamony of Believers.

There are certain traits which are common to the best men of all sects. The definition of the Christian spirit and life given by one would be accepted by all. The same manuals of practical piety are in the hands of all. The same Christian lyrics are sung with equal fervor in sanctuaries that stand over against each other like Zion and Gerizim. To the prayers of each, all would add a hearty amen. Were they brought together, forbidden the use of technical phraseology, and induced to utter in simplest language their several modes of consciousness as to what Christ had done for them, their duty to God, to Christ, to man, their abnegation of self-dependence, their trust in a divine redemption, their hope full of immortality, there would be no Babel-like confusion of tongues, but a sweet consent and heavenly harmony. Now those who would thus with one heart and voice reveal a common consciousness are the foremost men in the esteem of their fellow-men, the leaders in all good works—those whose lives are confessedly pure, true, faithful, generous, holy. Is there not in the united testimony of such men, of all ages, nations, and sects, evidence of no mean worth to that which they all affirm, namely, that Jesus Christ is the Sent of God, the Savior of man the source of all excellence, the Inspirer of all virtue, the Way to the Father, the Incarnate Truth, the eternal Life made manifest?—Dr. Peabody.

Chist's Sympathy.

The Son of God appears to have felt an especial sympathy for the poor. Some of his most tender words of consolation were expressly intended for them. "Behold the fowls of the air: for they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into barns, yet your heavenly Father feedeth them. Are you not much better than they?" "Blessed are the poor in spirit, for their is the kingdom of Heaven." The rich were not shut out: Nicodemus, the ruler, was received; the offerings of the wise men of the East were accepted. But we must not forget that it was emphatically to the poor that the blessed gospel was preached. Poverty, suffered in fellowship with the Son of God, and solaced by his sympathy, has a luster greater than that which sparkles from the diadem of kings. The pious Lazarus is comforted not only when borne to Abraham's bosom, but when lying in rage at the gate, seeking crumbs from the rich man's table. His crust may be sweetened with reflections such as these: "Am I poor? so was my Lord. Am I homeless? the Son of man had not not where to lay his head. Shall not the disciple be as his Lord, and the servant as his great Master?"—Sunday School World.

A most marked improvement in lesson helps its exhibited in The National Sunday School Teacher for June. Instead of crowding all the information of whatever character into the "exposition" of the lessons, the different kinds are methodically arranged and treated, at length under the different departments of "Historical" Bibliographical" "Biographical" "Geographical" "Natural History" and "Science." This leaves the exposition of the lessons free to deal with their spiritual truths. There is no plan that will ensure such thoroughness in the treatment of all the phases of the lesson as this. It is a marvel how much help is given to the Sunday-school teacher in this magazine for June. It is a coetly theological library done up in paper covers, and costs only fifteen cents—or a little over a postage stamp for each Sunday in the month. No teacher, at that price, can afford to do without it. Chicago: Adams, Blanchard & Lyon, Pub. Co.

At the Episcopal Methodist Convention in session at Chattanooga, the Rev. John B. McConnell, colored, delivered a sermon. This is the first instance in the United States of a colored clergyman preaching to a white congregation in an Episcopal church. Bishop Quintard, who presides over the convention, was a chaplain in the Confederate army.

DIED.

At Meridian, Miss., May 17, Mrs. Catherine Fisher, aged 39 years.

Sister Fisher was an earnest Christian, and had for eleven years been a faithful member of the M. E. Church. "I am in the hands of the Lord," she said to those about her dying bed, "let His will be done" and full of faith and trust she passed away. She leaves three children, besides a large circle of relations and friends to mourn her loss.

N. CANNON, Pastor.

In Wood county, Texas, May 15, Mrs. Sophy Walker. Sister Sophy was a faithful member of the M. E. Church. She died in the triumphs of a living faith. She left three little children, which she committed to the care of the church for guardianship and pastoral instruction. We bow in humble submission to the Lord.

E. E. WILLIAMS, Pastor.

QUITMAN, TEXAS.

Quarterly Meetings.

Holly Springs (Miss.) District.

SECOND ROUND.

Mt. Pleasant, July 7-8; Kosciusko, July 14-15; French Camp, July 16-17; Greensboro, July 17-19, Winona and Vaiden 21-22; Duck Hill, July 26-27; Grenada, July 28-29; Geenada Circuit, July 29-29; Oxford, Aug. 4-5; New Albany, Aug. 8-9; Ripley, Aug. Hickory Flat, Aug. 15; Holly Springs Aug. 18-19; Byhalia, Aug. 21-22; Chulahoma, Aug. 24; Abbeville, Aug. 26-29; Eliza, Aug. 30 and Sept 1st. First District Conference for Holly Springs District will meet on the 14th day of June, at Grenada; all the brethren are requested to be present.

J. G. JOHNSON, P. E.

Greenswood (Miss.) District.

(Second Round.)

Wesley Chapel, 9 and 10th of June; Silver Creek, 16th and 17th of June; Yazoo City, 23rd and 24th of June; Piney Grove, 30th of June and 1st of July; Deasonville, 7th and 8th of July; Pickens, 14 and 15 of July; Lexington, 21st and 22d of July; Goodman, 28th and 29th of July; Jones Chapel, 4th and 5th of August; McNutt, 11th and 12th of August; Caney Creek, 18th and 19th of August; New Midway, 25th and 26th of August; Hernando, 1st and 2d of September; Panola, 8th and 9th of September; Cold Water, 15th and 16th of September; Walnut City, 22nd and 23d of Sept; Shiloh 29th and 30th Sept.

J. W. DUNN, P. E.

Waco (Texas) District.

Seguin, May 26th to 27th; Waco Circuit, June 2d and 3rd; Waco, 9th and 10th; La Grange 14 and 15; Calvert Dist. Conference, June 16th and 17th; —— June 30th and July 1st; Battle Creek 7th and 8th; Bias 14th and 15th; Belton, 21 and 22; Shiloh, 28th and 29th.

S. GATES, P. E.

Meridian (Miss.) District.

Paulding and Claiborne, May 12-13; Garlandville, May 14-15; Newton, May 16-17; Crawford, May 19-20; Starkville, May 26-27; Brooksville, May 26-27; Carthage, June 2-3; Mishiharville, June 2-3; Trenton, June 2-3; Whitefield, June 16-17; Louisville, June 19-20; Rome, June 23-24; Ex-Prairie, June 30 and July 1; Macon, July 7-8; Shuqualak, July 11-12; DeKalb, July 14-15; Lauderdale July 21-22; Daleville, July 24-25; Meridian 28-29; Meridian Circuit August 4-5; Quitman August 11-12; Shubuta Circuit, August 15-16; State Line, Aug. 18-19; Shubuta, August 21-22; Enterprise Circuit, Aug. 25-26; Enterprise, Aug. 28-29.

M. ADAMS, P. E.

Okolona District.

(Second round.)

Okolona May 5-6; Corinth and Corinth Circuit, May 12-13; Tupelo, May 14-15; Spring valley and Shady Grove, May 19-20; Big Black, May 26-27; Calhoun, June 2-3; Houston, June 6-7; Pontotoc, 9-10; Union Grove, June 16-17; West Point, June 23-25; Columbus and Columbus Circuit, June 30 and July 1; Tibbe, July 7-8; Tampico, July 14-15; Athens, July 21-22.

The Okolona District Conference will meet at Pontotoc June 10. I hope all the member of the Conference will be present. All the ministers of the Okolona District who are in charge of a work will please send on their post-office address at once.

D. MCLACHLAN, P. E.

Gulf District.

(Second round.)

Pascagoula, May 17-18; Ocean Springs and Biloxi May 19-20; Handsboro, May 21-22; Bay St. Louis, May 23-24; Pass Christian, May 26-27; Crystal Springs, May 31 and June 1; Simpson Circuit, June 5-6; Hazlehurst, June 7-8; New Hope Circuit, June 9-10; Union Church Circuit, June 11-12; Brookhaven, June 13-14; Hamburg Circuit, June 21-22; Meadville Circuit June 23-24; Liberty, June 26-27; Summit and Magnolia, June 28-29; China Grove, June 30 and July 1; Columbia, July 2-3; Augusta, July 4-5.

L. BRADFORD, P. E.

Houston, Texas, District.

First Church, Houston, April 1; East Church and Wesley Chapel, Galveston, April 7 and 8; Spring Creek, April 14 and 15; Oyster Creek, April 21 and 22; Richmond and Frost Chapel, April 28 and 29; Houston, Second Church and Edwards Chapel, May 5 and 6; Harrisburg and West Point, May 12 and 13; Columbia and Brazoria, May 19 and 20; Stafford's, May 26 and 27; Houston Circuit, June 2 and 3; Cypress, June 9 and 10.

W. L. MOLLOY, P. E.

San Antonio (Tex.) District.

Mission Valley April 21 and 22; Cuero April 28 and 29; Indianola and Lavacca, May 5 and 6; Columbus and Alleyton, May 12 and 13; Peach Creek and Columbus Circuit, May 19 and 20; San Antonio, May 26 and 27; Boerne, June 2 and 3; Houdo, June 9 and 10; Floresville June 16 and 17; Sutherland Springs, June 23 and 24; Nockernut, July 1; Cibolo, July 4 and 5; Riddleville, July 4 and 5; Lavernia, 7 and 8; Goliad Circuit, July 11 and 12; Belmont, July 14 and 15; Refugio, July 18 and 19; Wrightsboro, July 21 and 22; Goliad, July 28 and 29.

D. GREGORY, P. E.

Holly Springs, Miss., District.

Mt. Pleasant, April 7-8; Kosciusko, April 14-15; French Camp, April 16-17; Greensboro, April 18-19; Winona and Vaiden, April 21-22; Duck Hill, April 26-27; Grenada, April 28-29; Grenada Circuit, April 30 and May 1; Oxford, May 5-6; Elijah, May 8-9; Abbeville, May 12-13; New Albany, May 19-20; Hickory Flat, May 26-27; Ripley, May 26-27; Holly Springs, June 2-3, May 26-27; Holly Springe Circuit, June 6-7; Chulahoma, June 9-10; Byhalia, June 11-12.

As the greater part of the work lies at a considerable distance from the Railroad, and as it is important to visit every part of it, I shall go by private conveyance.

J. G. JOHNSON, P. E.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from active practice, having had placed his hands by an East India missionary, the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of consumption, bronchitis, catarrh, asthma, and all throat and lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for nervous debility and all nervous complaints, after having thoroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, feels it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive, and a conscientious desire to relieve human suffering, he will send, free of charge, to all who desire it, this receipe, with full directions for preparing and successfully using. Sent by return mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, Dr. W. C. Stevens, 126 Power's Block, RochesteN. Y. [may10-77-4t

Agents Wanted.

For new edition of History of great temperance Reforms, and "Belshazzar's Feast," by a London artist, in chromatic colors, 19x26. Bothave sold for $6; are now sent free on receipt of $3 25. Address Rev. James Shaw, Rossville, Ill. may17,4t.

$1 50 FOR 85 CENTS.

Pilgrim's Progress,

BY JOHN BUNYAN,

And a history of his Remarkable Life.

A Handsomely Bound Cloth (Cils) volume, containing 315 pages and 13 full-page illustrations. Every family should have one. Until sold out we will mail, postpaid, to any address on receipt of 85 cents. We have on hand also a few copies containing BUNYAN'S HOLY WAR in addition to the Pilgrim's Progress, with gilt edges, and extra gilt finish on sides and back, 590 pages, which we will mail, until disposed of, for $1. Address, ROBT. J. HARP, Agent. Nos. 110 and 112 Cam St., New Orleans. Headquarters for Methodist and Sunday School Union Jubilications. May 31, 2 t.

NOW READY.

"HEAVENWARD."

A new collection of Sunday-school Songs

BY JAMES R. MURRAY,

containing, besides new contributions from most of the leading writers of Sunday-school music in America, the BEST and most Popular HYMNS and MUSIC of the late

—P—P—B—L—E—S—

most of which will be found in NO OTHER book.

"Heavenward" is now ready, and for sale by booksellers and music dealers throughout the country.

"Heavenward" is unequaled by any other book, both in words and music.

"Heavenward" is the ONLY new book in which you will find P. P. BLISS's most famous songs.

"Heavenward" is our usual Sunday-school style, printed on fine tinted paper, and containing 160 pages. Price, 35 cents, by mail. $30 per hundred. Specimen pages free. Single sample copy, in paper covers, mailed for 25 cents. Order from your book-seller, or of the publishers.

S. BRAINARD'S SONS, Publishers, Cleveland, Ohio.

apr26-77;1y

Webster's Unabridged.

3000 Engravings; 1840 pages Quarto.

FOUR PAGES COLORED PLATES.

A Whole Library in itself.

Invaluable in a Family.

Now contains twenty-five per cent. more matter than any other one volume English Dictionary published in this country or Great Britain.

A NATIONAL STANDARD.

The sale is 20 times as great as the sale of any other large Dictionary.

More than 30,000 copies have been placed in the public schools of the United States.

Recommended by 28 State Superintendents of schools.

Warmly recommended by Bancroft, Prescott, Motley, Geo. P. Marsh, Hallock, Whittier, Willis, Saxe, Elihu Burritt, Daniel Webster, Rufus Choate, H. Coleridge, Stuart, Horace Mann, President Woolsey, Wayland, Hopkins, Noah Webster, and a host more than fifty College Presidents in all and the best American and European scholars.

"Indispensible to every student of the English language."—M. R. Waite, Chief Justice United States.

The Highest Authority in Great Britain as well as in the United States.

"The best practical English Dictionary extant. —London Quarterly Review, Oct. 1873.

ALSO

Webster's National Pictorial Dictionary.

500 Engravings; 1040 Pages Octavo

Published by G. & C. MERRIAM, Springfield, Mass

Webster's Abridgements,

Published by IVISON, BLAKEMAN, TAYLOR & Co. N. Y.

Webster's Primary School Dictionary,	224 Engravings
" Common "	" 574	"
" High "	" 597	"
" Academic "	" 344	"
" Counting House "	with numerous illustrations and many valuable tables not to be found elsewhere.

Jewel BY for all. The EUREKA JEWELRY CASKET, contains one pair gold plated engraved sleeve buttons, one set (3) spiral shirt studs, one Genta Im. coral pin, one improved shape collar stud, one Genta fine link watch chain, and one Ladies Heavy wedding ring; price of one casket, complete, 50 cents; three for $1.25; six for $2, and 12 for $3.50, all sent postpaid by mail. Sixteen and a solid silver watch for $20. Agents can make money selling these caskets. Send 50 cents for sample and catalogues. We have all kinds of jewelry at low prices.

COLES & CO., 785 Broadway, N. Y. City.

We are the originals in this business, and have no "Milton Gold" or "brass" jewelry.

This Jewelry casket is remarkably attractive, and COLE & Co. are reliable dealers.—Boston Globe. [may10-4t

SOUTHWESTERN AGENCY FOR

School and College Text Books.

Office No. 40 CAMP STREET (up stairs).

Below we submit the MODEL SERIES of books (as executed by the leading educators of this country) for use in PRIMARY, INTERMEDIATE and GRAMMAR schools. We have these adopted by the respective teachers; we have only to ask a careful comparison, with books of a like grade, a critical examination and a thorough, practical test in the class-room.

	Prices.
Harper's Introductory Geography	60
Harper's School Geography	$1 25
" United States First Reader	15
" " " Second "	25
" " " Third "	37
" " " Fourth "	56
" " " Fifth "	75
" " " Sixth "	90
Wilson's Primary Speller	15
" Larger "	30
" New "	34
Lemson's Penmanship, per dozen	1 50
French's First Lessons in Numbers	25
" Elementary Arithmetic	37
" Mental Arithmetic	35
" Common School Arithmetic	70
Swinton's Language Primer	30
" Language Lessons	37
" School Composition	37
" Progressive Grammar	55

Catalogues, circulars, and testimonials sent on applications. Correspondence solicited and will receive prompt attention, when addressed to

W. P. ROGERS & W. L. JARVIS, Agents for the introduction of Harper & Brothers' Educational Works, New Orleans, La. Lock Box 247.

B. J. WEST,

115 & 117 Magazine Street

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Wholesale Dealer and Manufacturer's Agent.

PLANTATION HARDWARE,

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS,

STEAM ENGINES, COTTON GINS

SAW MILLS, GRIST MILLS

PUMPS, &c., &c.

AT LOW PRICES.

Send for Circulars and Price List.

Medical Students

Thoroughly qualified for successful practice by THE HOSPITAL

COLLEGE OF MEDICINE,

LOUISVILLE, KY.

[The clinical school of the West.]

No student leaves the College who cannot show that he can intelligently examine and prescribe for the cases presented. For catalogue and information concerning special advantages address

W. H. BOLAING, M. D. DEAN,

apr26-4m Louisville, Ky.

GOD'S SCHOOL.

[illegible]
To learn our lessons we bravely try;
For every [illegible]—
Difficult, easy, short or long—
And whether we come to it weak or strong,
Somehow or other it must be met.

Graded well in this school of ours,
Each one's duties within his powers,
And his task the thing that he needs to know,
And many a time does the page grow dim,
And before tired eyes the hard words swim,
And the hours go by so slow, so slow.

Varied ages are gathered there,
Flaxen ringlets and thin, gray hair
Alike fall over the lesson-books.
And oft at the little ones laugh in glee
At the beautiful words their bright eyes see,
[illegible]

Skillful teachers assembled here,
Patiently labor year by year;
Never [illegible] in their work was known;
Only the scholars, weary or vexed,
Idle, impatient, tired, perplexed,
Suffer from errors all their own.

[illegible]

—[illegible] Journal of Education.

What Mary Gave.

[illegible]

Active Men and Idlers.

If in the church you want anything done cheerfully, promptly, and thoroughly, go to men who are already crowded with work. They are the men who can work and will work, and that is the very reason they are so crowded. They are men of heart and feeling and interest in the affairs of the church; they are men of will, and therefore undertake and accomplish so much. If any enterprise requires courage, sacrifice, and resolute purpose, they are the men to undertake it and push it to success.

The men in the church who have least to do are the very men from whom you can expect least. Why have they so little to do? Surely not because there is no work. They do not stand all the day idle because no one has said unto them, Go work in my vineyard. They are idle because they are lazy. They have no heart for work, and all appeals to them are vain.

The minister who can look on the local and the general needs of the church and yet is not crowded with work is not the man from whom anything hearty and efficient can be expected. Others may weep and pray and toil and agonize for Zion's welfare: they languidly say, "Yet a little sleep, a little slumber, a little folding of the hands to sleep." —Lutheran Evangelist.

Lost in the Church.

It is a fearful thing to be lost amid the darkness of heathenism, far away from Sabbath and sanctuaries and Bibles, and the sound of the church going bell; so far beyond the farthest outskirts of Christendom that rumor hath not carried there even the name of Jesus or the work of salvation. But a deeper, darker woe is his who is lost in the church, and dead before minister and altar, on the seat hallowed by the late presence of the glorified pious; the Bible beside him marked with texts and tears. There are such in all churches—dead souls at the Redeemer's feast and table. It was an Egyptian custom at festal banquets to introduce a corpse and seat it at the table, to remind the guests of their immortality. Its fleshless, skinny hand rested on the board, but moved not the viands; the glassy eyeballs fixed their dead stare upon the guests, but the light of life in which those orbs once swam, was extinguished for ever. In such a presence proceed often the festivities of Zion. I have seen the corpse at the sacramental supper, stone dead amid the guests of Jesus. Not a tear on the cheek, nor a quiver of the lip when Jesus showed His wounds. The dull, dead, unlighted eye never sparkled, the bosom heaved not, the entombed tongue clave to the roof of its mouth, amid all the outbreak of a Savior's love and tenderness. Do we speak in figures? We only give a Bible application; and also figures are inadequate to set forth the entire melancholy of the case.

LOST FRIENDS.

[illegible]

I wish to find my people. My father was called Dick, and my mother Jenny. I had five sisters. We belonged to Mr. Holmes, in South Carolina. He sold me to [illegible] Wyrick at the same time that he sold mother to a Mr. Davis. I have since had no word from any member of the family. Address Sarah Wyrick, Magnolia, Columbia county, Arkansas.

Our family name was Corbin, my father was named Henry, my mother Louisa, and I had two sisters, [illegible] and Hannah, and one [illegible]. We lived in West [illegible] county, Virginia. [illegible] to Henry Cox. The others [illegible] to James J. Lamb [illegible] my mother and the two younger children, Rutler and Hannah, two years before the war. I shall be thankful for information concerning any of them. Address [illegible] Corbin, Allain, West Baton Rouge Parish, La.

I desire information concerning two brothers, Edward and [illegible] Williams. We were formerly [illegible] to a widow lady named [illegible], in Madison county, Miss. But when I was brought from there in 1858, Mr. [illegible] [illegible] to Dr. Balfour. Address [illegible] Williams, [illegible] Calvert, Robertson county, Texas, care Rev. [illegible]

[illegible]

5,000 BOOKS GIVEN AWAY For the Asking.

WHILE Dr. H. James was attached to the British Medical Staff in the East Indies, his high position enabled him to call about him the best chemists, physicians and scientists of the day, and while experimenting with and among the natives, he accidentally made the discovery that CONSUMPTION can be positively and permanently CURED. During the many years of his sojourn there he devoted his time to the treatment of Lung Diseases, and upon his retirement he left with us books and papers containing full particulars, showing that every one can be his own physician and prepare his own medicine, and such information as we have received we now offer to the public without price, only asking that each remit a three cent stamp for return postage. Address CRADDOCK & CO., 1032 Race st., Phila., Pa., giving name of this paper. [mar15-77-8m

E. HEATH. W. F. PIPPEY. M. LARA.

HEATH, PIPPEY & LARA,

90 CAMP STREET 90

NEW ORLEANS.

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

UPHOLSTERERS MATERIALS,

Wall Paper,

Window Shades, Cornices, and

CURTAIN GOODS.

PICTURES, FRAMES,

MOULDINGS, MIRRORS,

LOCKS, WIRE-CLOTH,

WINDOW & DOOR SCREENS

FRAMING DONE TO ORDER. 14-1y

"The principle of combining English and American writers in a common literary enterprise, merits all encouragement."—J. Anthony Froude.

THE

INTERNATIONAL REVIEW,

A NEW YORK AND LONDON REVIEW.

EMINENT CONTRIBUTORS ON BOTH SIDES OF THE ATLANTIC. (No articles at second hand. All articles original.)

CONTENTS—MAY-JUNE—NOW READY.

The New Administration.
The Life Insurance Question. Carlton T. Lewis.
Disestablishment of the Church of England. Dr. James H. Rigg, London.
The Philadelphia Exhibition.—Part I. Mechanism and Administration. Francis A. Chief of the Bureau of Awards.
Tennyson—A Criticism. Bayard Taylor.
Our Foreign Service. Hon. John Jay.
American and European Literature. Phillip Gilbert Hamerton.
Contemporary Events.

Price, Single Number, $1. For six months $3. Annual subscription (6 numbers) $5.
New York: A. S. BARNES & CO., Publishers.
apr27-10t]

Texas Lands.

Best Investment in the Nation!

640 acres rich prairie loam, producing cotton, grains, fruit and vegetables, and adapted to stock, lying in the high and healthful latitude of Northwestern Texas, for the nominal sum of $266.

Title Patent, direct and perfect. Taxes low. Worth several times the cost. Now is your time to place a small sum fruitfully. No fraud. All work personally supervised. Handled in the interest of education in Texas. Full particulars furnished on application, (with stamps).

References: Rev. Wm. Brush, D.D., P. E. Austin District, Austin, Texas; First National Bank, Dallas, Texas; State Savings Bank, Dallas, Texas, or editor of this paper. Address

REV. L. H. CARHART, West Texas Conference.
Box 377, Dallas, Texas. [ja19-tf

A. P. HARRINGTON,

No. 118 Canal Street,

New Orleans, La.

Dealer in

LAW, MEDICAL, SCHOOL, RELIGIOUS, AGRICULTURAL AND MISCELLANEOUS

BOOKS

Stationery, Gold Pens and Pencils, Pocket Books, Card Cases, Pocket Knives, Scrap Books, Chromos, Photograph Albums, Stereoscopes, Maps, Globes, Writing Desks, Etc.

PRINTING, RULING and BINDING.

Subscriptions taken for Newspapers and Magazines, Payable in advance.

Country Orders Solicited. feb10-77-1y

THE

Houston and Texas Central Railroad,

Operating over 500 miles of superior road, runs North and South through the

FINEST AGRICULTURAL and GRAZING DISTRICTS in TEXAS

And offers the most desirable sites for location to parties immigrating to that great State. The

NORTHWESTERN BRANCH

Of this road, which is now being pushed forward beyond Waco, will pierce the Great Mineral region of

NORTHWESTERN TEXAS.

For further information, address
F. B. COFFIN, S. P. A., Chattanooga, Tenn.
C. R. WHITNEY & CO., New Orleans, La.
A. WALDO, G. P. A., or J. DURAND, Gen'l Superintendent, Houston, Texas. [mar22-77-1y

Virginia Roofing Slate.—The Best and strongest in the world, not excepting the well-known Welsh Slate.

The undersigned having accepted the agency for the sale of the celebrated ORY BANK and IMPERIAL QUARRIES, is now prepared to fill orders at prices much below those of Welsh and but little in excess of those of ordinary American Slates. Builders, contractors, and slaters generally are invited to submit them to the severest tests.

ALEXANDER HILL,
may1-76 1y] 110 Carondelet st., N. O.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine. [Dec 21 76 1y

Lungs and Throat.

Inhalation of common air in Incipient Consumption will cure. Dr. J. M. Howe, of Passaic, N. J., sends his Tube, with full directions, post free for $3 50. Send for circulars. may24.

TEXT BOOKS

FOR THE

NEW COURSE OF STUDY,

As authorized to be pursued by candidates for the ministry in the Methodist Episcopal Church, by the Bishops, for the ensuing four years, to commence with Spring Conferences, 1877.

[Books are bound in cloth, where not specified.]

For Admission on Trial in the Traveling Connection.

Books to be Studied:

RAWLINSON'S Ancient History. A Manual of Ancient History from the earliest times to the fall of the Western Empire. By George Rawlinson, M.A. Large 12mo..... 2 50
STUDENT'S Old Testament History. From the Creation to the Return of the Jews from Captivity. With an Appendix, containing an Introduction to the Books of the Old Testament. Edited by Wm. Smith, LL.D. With maps and woodcuts. Large 12mo..... 2 00
STUDENT'S New Testament History. With an Introduction, connecting the History of the Old and New Testaments. Edited by Wm. Smith, LL.D. With maps and woodcuts. Large 12mo..... 2 00
HISTORY of the United States, from the Aboriginal Times to the present day. By John Clark Ridpath, A.M. 8vo..... 3 00
Half morocco, 8vo..... 3 50
AMERICAN Methodism. Abridged from the author's History of the Methodist Episcopal Church. By Abel Stevens, D.D., LL.D. Ten engravings. 8vo..... 3 00
RHETORIC: A Text-book, designed for use in schools and colleges, and for private study. By E. O. Haven, D.D., LL.D. 12mo..... 1 50
ELEMENTS of Logic. By [illegible] D.D. 16mo..... 80
DISCIPLINE of the Methodist Episcopal Church, 1876:
24mo; cloth..... 40
24mo; morocco tuck..... 1 00

Books to be Read:

CHRISTIAN THEOLOGY; or, a concise, comprehensive, and systematic view of the evidences, doctrines, morals and institutions of Christianity. By Samuel Wakefield, D.D. 8vo; sheep..... 3 00
LIFE of Rev. John Wesley. By Rev. Richard Watson. 12mo..... 1 25
HAND-BOOK of Bible Geography, containing the names, pronunciation, and meaning of every place, nation, and tribe mentioned in both the Canonical and Apocryphal Scriptures. By Rev. George H. Whitney, A.M. Illustrated by nearly one hundred engravings and forty maps and plans. Large 12mo..... 2 50
CHRISTIAN PURITY, Nature and Blessedness of. By R. S. Foster, D.D. Revised. 12mo..... 1 75

[illegible]

A. R. NELSON,

Commercial Stationer, Printer, Blank BOOK MANUFACTURER and LITHOGRAPHER.

THE best assortment of Blank Books in the city.

The Finest Specimens of Lithographic work to be found in New Orleans.

No. 57 CAMP STREET,

Sign of the Mammoth Letter Press.

Call and Prove My Statements. [oct12-76 1y

Patents obtained for mechanical devices, medical, or other compounds, ornamental designs, trademarks, and labels.

Caveats, Assignments, Interferences, relating to Patent, Infringements, and all matters promptly attended to.

Inventions that have been rejected by the Patent Office may still, in most cases, be secured by us. Being opposite the Patent Office, we are able to make closer examinations, and secure Patents more promptly and with broader and better claims, than those who are remote from Washington.

Inventors send us a model or rough sketch and description of your device; we will make an examination, free of charge, and advise you as to its patentability. All correspondence strictly confidential. Prices as low as those of any reliable agency.

We refer to Officials in the Patent Office, and to inventors in every State of the Union.

Address, LOUIS BAGGER & Co., Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

DURANG'S RHEUMATIC REMEDY.

Will most positively cure any case of rheumatism or rheumatic gout, no matter how long standing, on the face of the earth. Being an inward application it does the work quickly, thoroughly and permanently, leaving the system strong and healthy. Write to any prominent person in Washington city, and you will learn that the above statement is true in every particular.

Washington, July 13, 1874.

Messrs. Helpenstine & Bentley:

I suffered for more than thirty years from chronic rheumatism, at times in a helpless condition; during which time I employed the best medical skill, but finding no relief, bought a bottle of Durang's Rheumatic Remedy, and when I had taken it all (sixteen doses) was a well man, and as I write this certificate am perfectly free from pain, all owing to taking the above medicine. I regard it as the only preparation ever gotten up that will effectually cure rheumatism.

JNO. P. BENTLY,
Chief of Public Debt Division, 1st Auditor's office, Treasury Dep't Washington, D. C.

National Hotel, Washington, Dec 2, '74.

Messrs. Helpenstine & Bentley:

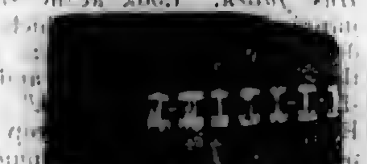
GENTS.—I very cheerfully state that I have used Durang's Rheumatic Remedy, prepared by you, with decided benefit, and although yet somewhat troubled with rheumatism, I am in much better condition than I was some months ago, which improvement I alone attribute to this remedy.

Yours, truly, ALEX. H. STEPHENS, Member of Congress of Georgia.

Price, $1 a bottle, or six bottles for $5. Ask your druggist for Durang's Rheumatic Remedy, manufactured by

HELPENSTINE & BENTLEY,
Druggists and Chemists, Washington, D. C.
Sold by dealers all over the United States.
[dec7-6m-eow

OFFICE AMERICAN COTTON TIE CO. LIMITED
47 Carondelet St. New Orleans, La.



To Dealers in Iron Cotton Ties, Planters, and Country Merchants Generally,

WE beg to inform you that we are prepared, through our regularly established agent, to supply the trade in any quantity with the following celebrated Ties:

BRANCH CROOKE & CO'S. LOCK TIE.

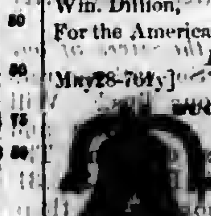
THE ARROW AND SIDE SLOT.

BEARD & BRO'S. LOCK TIE.

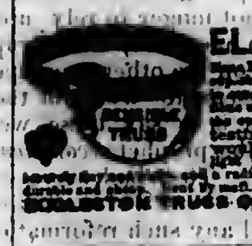
We also beg to inform the public that the interests of Messrs. Beard & Bro., and Branch Crooke & Co., are now merged into and with the American Cotton Tie Company, Limited. The following are the New Orleans Agents:
Stone & Tutt, Ogden & Bell
Chism & Boyd, Archer & Borland,
Wm. Dillion, D. L. Ranlett & Co.

For the American Cotton Tie Co., Limited.

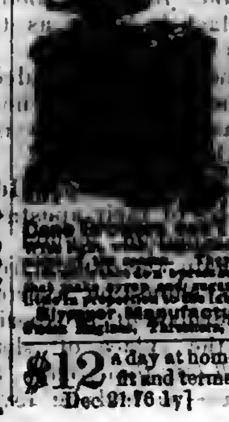
R. W. RAYNE, General Agents.
May28-76 1y]



BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY. Established in 1837. Superior Bells of Copper and Tin, mounted with the best Rotary Hangings, for Churches, Schools, Farms, Factories, Court Houses, Fire Alarms, Tower Clocks, Chimes, etc. Fully Warranted. Illustrated Catalogue sent Free. VANDUZEN & TIFT, 102 and 104 East Second St., Cincinnati. Jan 30 76 tf



THIS NEW ELASTIC TRUSS [illegible] EGGLESTON TRUSS CO., Marshall, Mich. Mar28-76-eow



Victor Cane Mill and COOK EVAPORATOR

The only standard machines. FIRST PREMIUM AT 127 STATE FAIRS. Grand Medal at Centennial Exhibition. Over 44,000 sold. [illegible] Blymyer Manufacturing Co., Cincinnati, O. [illegible]

NELSON & PHILLIPS

Lock Box 2. New Orleans.

$12 a day at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. True & Co., Augusta, Maine. Dec 21 76 1y]

THE

SINGER AGAIN TO THE FRONT!

GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICES

—OF THE—

WORLD-RENOWNED

Singer Family Sewing Machine!

THE SINGER MANUFACTURING COMPANY, ever awake to the interests of the public, have determined to PUT THE PRICE OF THEIR MACHINES within the reach of every man, woman and child in the land.

THE GENUINE SINGER SEWING MACHINE IS NOW OFFERED AT PRICES BELOW THE BOGUS ONES, OR ANY OTHER.

The fact that the only Sewing Machine which unscrupulous men have ever attempted to imitate, is the Singer, is sufficient evidence of its superiority over all others. There is no longer any excuse for buying any of the cheap machines hawked about the country, with no claim for patronage but their cheapness.

THE SINGER MANUFACTURING COMPANY,
S. E. RUNDLE, Agent.
may24-6m] No. 91 Canal Street, New Orleans, La.

PHILIP WERLEIN,

Nos. 78–90 Baronne Street,

NEW ORLEANS, - - - LA.

LARGEST Piano House in This Country,

—OFFERS—

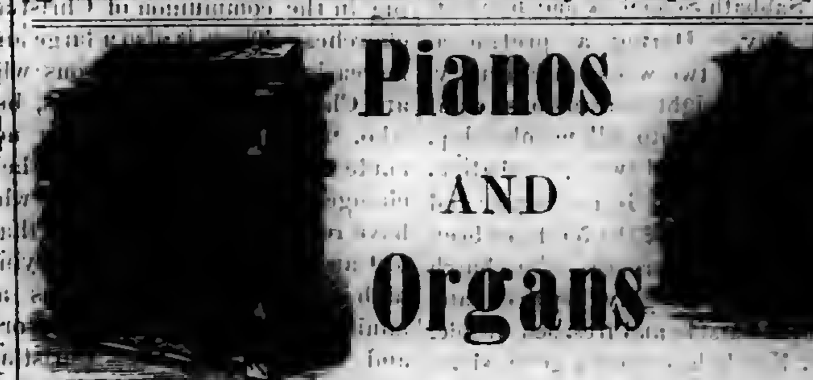
Chickering's New Scale PIANOS,

HALE'S PIANOS, HARDMAN'S PIANOS,

ESTEY & CO. ORGANS, MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS,

As low as any house North. Monthly Payments. Discounts for cash.

Music and Musical Instruments of Every Description. [feb22-1y



Pianos AND Organs

ESTEY ORGANS,

This beautiful Instrument is too well known to need description.

OVER 75,000

are now singing their praises. Why buy any other Organ when you can get the

ESTEY,

As Cheap as the Cheapest!

Bradbury Pianos

known all over the world as strictly first-class, and used in preference to all others by Grand Central, St. Nicholas and Metropolitan Hotels, New York; Rev. Simpson and Janes, Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church; Rev. Dan'l Curry, Chaplain McCabe, Philip Phillips, Wm. Morely, Punshon and thousands of our leading men throughout the country.

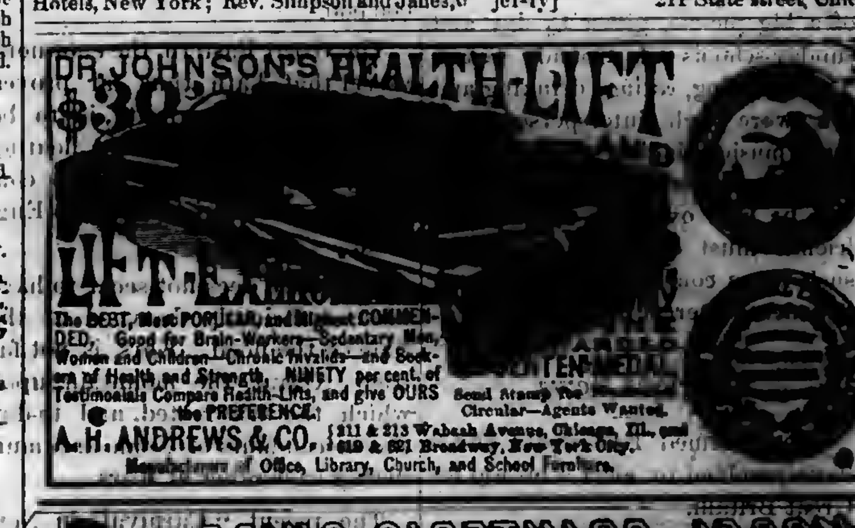
CHICKERING Pianos.

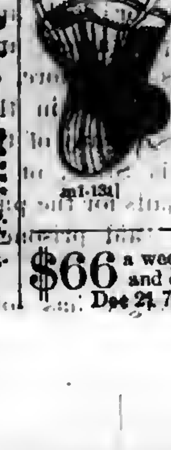
The BEST PIANO made! Received more Gold medals, Higher Awards, and more solid recommendations than any other Piano made.

STORY & CAMP PIANOS.

THESE ELEGANT Instruments are unsurpassed, and are sold at exceedingly low prices. Every Instrument Fully Warranted, and sold to responsible parties on easy time. Full description and illustrated catalogues sent to any address with any information desired.

STORY & CAMP,
914 Olive street, St. Louis.
jel-1y] 211 State street, Chicago.





Madame FOY'S Corset Skirt Supporter

Increases in popularity every year.

And for HEALTH, COMFORT and STYLE is acknowledged the BEST ARTICLE of the kind ever made. For sale by all leading jobbers and retailers. Beware of imitations and infringements.

MANUFACTURED SOLELY BY FOY & HARMON, New Haven, Conn.
ap1-13t]

[illegible]
sept28-76-1y

[illegible] BELL FOUNDRY. [illegible] VANDUZEN & TIFT. [illegible]
[mar22-1y]

$66 a week in your own town. Terms and outfit free. H. Hallet & Co., Portland, Maine. Dec 21 76 1y]

Southwestern Christian Advocate.

NEW SERIES—VOL. 1—NO. 23. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, JUNE 7, 1877. WHOLE NUMBER 353.

SOUTHWESTERN
Christian Advocate.
PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT [illegible] Natchez St., New Orleans.
BY
NELSON & PHILLIPS,
FOR THE
Methodist Episcopal Church.

Terms: $2 a year, Cash in Advance.

All the [illegible] preachers of the Methodist Episcopal Church are authorized Agents.

Subscriptions may begin at any time and the paper will be sent as long as paid for.

Remittances should be made by Registered Letter, P. O. Money Order, or by Express.

Advertising Rates.
(Per [illegible] line, each insertion.)
[illegible] 8 cents
[illegible] 7 "
[illegible] 6 "
[illegible] 5 "
[illegible] 4 "
[illegible] 25 "
[illegible] 8 cents, net cash.

ALL THE LIFE LONG.

[illegible]

[illegible]

dawn of a better day. Some of you that are here stood in that day and felt a new impulse and aspiration thrill your souls. Others were not then born or else too young to comprehend and appreciate the changes which were being wrought. Be this as it may, we all share alike in the benefits secured, and, I trust, are equally concerned as to the use we shall make of them.

It has been remarked that we are a peculiar people, laboring under peculiar circumstances. How far this is true I am not prepared to define. But if we do possess any idiosyncracies which are foreign to other races that have been subject to the same oppression, persecution and proscription as ourselves, I am not aware of it. Like causes produce like effects, and the same combination of circumstances which have reduced us so low in the scale of humanity will also reduce to the same extent any other people of whatever race, extraction or color they may be. I allude to this because it has been frequently asserted that our past and present condition is due to a natural inferiority. Well, then, I would inquire when and by whom was it fixed? To this inquiry no satisfactory answer has yet been given, and while time endures there never will be. It is an unmitigated falsehood, and presents such upon its very face. Our inferiority springs from conditions and circumstances, and not because we were created such. This is referred to from the fact that I sometimes fear that many of us are disposed to entertain the thought that we really do possess a natural inferiority, while not a few manifest a servile cringing feeling, a disposition to cower in a manner wholly at variance with manly instincts and noble aspirations. This should not be, and I would have you understand and appreciate the force of the truism advanced by Paul on Mars Hill: "That out of one blood God hath made all nations of men to dwell on the face of the earth." I would have you to recognize that you contain within you all the native elements of a vigorous and exalted manhood, and that color is no barrier to their development. We have spoken of this age as being a remarkable one, to which we will now add that it calls for remarkable men. And this remarkability may be defined as not pertaining to color, stature or physical make up, but to stability of character, firmness of purpose, depth of culture, power of thought, keenness of apprehension, liberality of sentiment, and the just regard for the rights, interests and welfare of mankind. To men of noble minds and aspirations the future presents all the possibilities of enlarged success. The day is at hand when men must rise or fall on their personal merits and worth. In the mould of severe experience society is being so shaped that henceforth it will repel the presence of any one who may seek to secure protection through the influence and favor of friends in the absence of the requisite fitness and qualification, and this is one of the most hopeful signs that our institutions are to remain permanent and society enjoy a purer and healthier atmosphere.

The divine command, "Thou shalt eat thy bread by the sweat of thy brow," applies not only to one department of life, but to all, and yet how vast is the multitude that fails to recognize its force! To live on others, to have position and influence without effort or toil seems to be the growing desire of a large portion of mankind. What a fatal mistake! Success may be reached, but it will be transient, and the end will be one of keen remorse and sad recollection—the recollection of despised opportunities and squandered resources. Probably no people have fallen greater victims to this delusion than ourselves. Upon this point I propose to enlarge, and will proceed with the assertion that we have rested on false hopes. Freedom implies responsibility. This, however, many of us have not as yet recognized. When emancipation came the only idea that most of us possessed—and it was a very broad one, too—was that bodily freedom carried with it the idea of absolute freedom of action, without regard to its character or influence. But this is a mistake. No man is free to do wrong or to abuse the prerogatives of citizenship. We being uninstructed in these things, however, exerted the franchise of freemen to secure the election to places of distinction and trust of men without any regard to their ability or qualification. Men undertook to [illegible] without an hour's experience in public affairs or the least knowledge of the fundamental principles and science of government. Others, unable either to read or write, but because they were free, aspired to and secured seats in the hall of legislation, where the sacred rights and interests of a free people are to be guarded and maintained. Bills were passed without scrutiny, and appropriations made under the sanction of law to fill the pockets of unprincipled adventurers and wily tricksters. The broad shield of the State constitution was turned and made to protect evil-doers, while the most grievous wrongs were perpetrated, and the intelligence of the land challenged to [illegible]. In all these proceedings we were either directly or indirectly active participants. With the ballot in our hands [illegible] ... But State after State [illegible] ... the control of the [illegible] ... In a word, we have been [illegible] the wall, and the negro no longer [illegible] problem in political [illegible] of nations dates from the moment that they cease to foster and practice the cardinal principles of morality and virtue. The moral standard of our people is lacking in firmness and devotion to principle. Our society is morally diseased, and it will require the application of the most stringent remedies to effect its recovery. As morality forms the basis of all true greatness we shall find ourselves charged with the duty of elevating its standard and improving its tone. In the support of educational institutions we have almost, if not entirely, failed. In this particular we have relied too much on what others have been willing to do for us instead of concentrating and utilizing our own energies and resources, and coming up manfully to the work of laying the foundation of institutions for the education of ourselves and children. I know the opinion is generally held that having suffered from extreme poverty and hardship, we could hardly be expected to be anything in this description. But there is more of benevolence in that opinion than truth. I doubt whether there has been any time during the whole period of our emancipation when we have been entirely without means or the opportunity of gaining a livelihood. At the close of the war, when cotton ranged from fifty cents to a dollar per pound and labor commanded almost fabulous prices and plenty filled the land, we were not without our share of the abundance which then existed and if we only had economized and proved judicious in the management of our affairs, every one of the four millions of colored people in the South might be the happy possessor of forty acres of land and a mule. Our present poverty is not due so much to circumstances as to extravagance and injudicious management. What is life but a school of experience, but of what value is experience unless we profit by it? Life is pregnant with stern realities. It presents to us all the vigorous elements of fortune, or fate. It grades both on the incline and decline, and we are free to choose which course we will pursue. Again life is full of great and intricate problems, and it requires heroic courage, faith, patience and fidelity to principle to successfully grapple with them. It is no child's play to master self, to do and dare, in defence of the right, to conquer our prejudices, to regulate our appetites and tastes, to resolve on achieving victory, and then to labor patiently until the goal is reached.

I fear that many of us fail to comprehend the purposes of life. Life has been compared to a stage upon which all mankind are actors. It is the great theatre of human action where thrilling dramas and startling scenes are being continually enacted. The spirit of daring enterprise, brilliant genius, developed intellect, progressive thought, laudable ambition, and the more important force, I will, have all entered the race bent on winning the prize. While life has its toils it also has its rewards, and to every energetic, persevering soul it says, "I will bless thee and satisfy thy longings, and of the fatness of the land I will increase thy store." I have made this an adjunct of my subject because I want to impress upon those who are here storing their minds with useful information, and who as yet have hardly entered upon the threshold of life's busy activities that life is real and earnest, and that only the truly brave can hope to secure success. You are to be the architects of your own fortune, and when you leave these classic halls and launch forth upon life's broad sea you will need to guard well your doings lest the waves of sensuality and corrupt practices sweep you from the stage of action, unwept, unhonored and unsung. Live to make life what God intended it should be—a source of blessing and happiness to yourselves and of good to others. Remember that "Life is before ye, and as now ye stand

Eager to spring upon the promised land,
Fair smiles the way where yet your feet have trod,
But few light steps upon a flowery sod.
Round ye are youth's green bowers, and to your eyes,
Tho' the horizon's line but joins the earth and skies,
Daring and triumph, pleasure, fame and joy,
Friendship unwavering, love without alloy,
Brave thoughts, noble deeds, and glory won,
Like angels, beckon ye to venture on."

But I would now attend to the main stem of my discourse. Politically wrecked, intellectually deficient, morally diseased, socially disorded, and without any apparent hold upon commerce, the trades, science and art, may we not profitably inquire and consider what our duty is? And this we will notice first in respect to our duty to God, for a man's prime allegiance is due to his Creator.

"The hand of God
Hath written intelligibly that man might know
The glory of his Maker."

Startling announcements are being made. Men, wise in their own conceit, are disputing with God as to the time He occupied in creating the world. Science is exalting itself above the wisdom of Deity, and stamping as false His word. Popery, chagrined at its loss of power among foreign States, with gigantic efforts is seeking to establish its authority in this Western world. Noting its actions, we discover that we are to be the special subjects of its efforts, and its heart kindles with an interest for our conversion as great as that of the priest who exclaimed, "Give me India or I die." And what shall be our response to its appeals? Surely, if we know and think aright, it can be nothing else than "get thee hence." Guard well your sacred shrines against this insidious foe. Death lurks in its trail, and the touch of its breath is as fatal as the upas tree. Hell has garnered its richest store from the fields where it has sown. Liberty of conscience, freedom of speech and thought, toleration of sentiment, and honest investigation of truth, withers where it touches. With the daring and vague assertions of the scientist we have nothing to do, and disputation thereon will not profit us. Our duty is to praise God for his works, to trust him for His grace, to rely on His ability to redeem every promise given, and with the open Bible in our hands, to plant ourselves firmly upon the Rock of Eternal Ages, and [illegible] say to atheism, popery, error and infidelity, "here we stand, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against us." Second, let us notice our duty with reference to ourselves. What are the great interests which hinge upon our action? These, for the sake of convenience, may be enumerated as follows: material, moral and [illegible]. The first includes agriculture, [illegible] and commercial. The success of [illegible] interests of a people is that [illegible] and stimulus to every other [illegible]. Our people are mainly [illegible] in this avocation, but unfortunately [illegible] or method. [illegible] sows at random. We might extend the branches of this thought in various directions, but withhold, but not without deeming it of sufficient importance to remark that some of you gentlemen who are now wrestling with theology, medicine and law, will find it of far more profit to gather such ideas as will fit you for successful farming. The world is full of failures and covers many a man who, if he had but put his hand to the plow instead of the pulpit, lance or bar, might have more success. All men cannot achieve distinction in the professions. Study to know your proper sphere, and then strike for victory. Society is burdened with the wrecks of disappointment, and the popular error into which all college-bred youths fall is that they are the to be professionals. As our agricultural interests, systematized and regulated, must underlie our success in every other department of life, let us see to it that we shrink from no duty in that particular.

The stalworth form that breasts the sun
And turns the furrow deep,
Plucks from the stalk, the golden corn;
And gives us bread to eat.

The enterprise and progressive character of a people is displayed in the amount of interest which they manifest in acquiring knowledge of the trades. The grand exemplifications of the present industrial development and growth, are the offsprings of a close application to the study of the relation of things. The ancients could only boast of their war chariots, spear and bow, massive walls, heavy gates beasts of burden and ill-rigged ships cruising along the shore. But the genius of the present age, has gathered the fire of the firmament, and made it transmit thought with the rapidity of lightning, has harnessed steam and made it an agent to traverse land and sea; has moulded metal into living words and made the press send forth its white-winged messengers laden with the richest lore and the doings of the world, each day has relieved the dainty fingers of their former toil in making the frequent stitch, through the invention of the telephone has confined the harmony of sound, so that we can hear from afar the sweet notes of melody and song, and in the field, and shop, and mine its wonderful results contribute to lessen the burdens of toil and reduce the expenses and dangers of life. To keep pace with the onward march of these achievements, we must enter the contest, our boys must learn trades and not only imitate, but originate. We must have representatives in all branches of the trades from the chief engineer, down to the forge attendant. It is true that all these avenues are not as yet opened to us, but then there are some; all over the country there are colored blacksmiths, tinners, carpenters, painters, shoe-makers, wheelwrights and some few engineers. If you find that the upper story of your brains is not sufficiently large to contain Euclid, Cæsar, Homer, etc., seek an apprenticeship and probably you will find it more easy to secure a certificate of fitness in some trade than a college diploma. But go through college if you can. Never cease to learn, as you will need every particle of information you may be able to gain. The better scholar you are, the more skillful and useful a mechanic you will be. Moreover, a good trade is a jewel which no misfortune can deprive you of. When you have forgotten Greek idioms and verbal endings, your kit of tools will be at hand to bear you safely through. Mark well these words, that the cunning hand of the skillful mechanic is far more sure of steady success, than the man of rhetorical phrases without practical sense. It is a sad reflection, that hardly any of our boys are learning trades. We must foster our interests in this connection, or else the next generation will march into line without a single hand to erect a dwelling or make a plow. In mechanism and the trades, we should labor to prove ourselves the inferiors of none, and the superiors of many. This is a lever of self-elevation and the sure index of true civilization and greatness. Our advantages we know are meagre, but with a sufficient of will-power we can succeed.

Our commercial interests follow next. We have but few engaged in mercantile business and extensive traffic. The only glimpse of our tendency to this department of life is seen in a few huckster stands situated in dingy tenements in our principal cities. We have no ware houses in which the burdened truck is heard to roll. No stores with well-filled shelves of calicoes, muslins, silks and laces or grocers goods. No ships bear to us the rich products of foreign lands, and why? Because we have not the capital to conduct such enterprises? I judge not. A Jew will take his rust-coated needles and pins, broken-eyed shirt-buttons, and spools of damaged thread and tie them up in a piece of his great-grand-mother's skirt, throw them across his shoulder, and trudge from house to house to make a sale, and in a few years you will find him, opening up a New York dry-goods palace, or a grand bazar. This is amazing, but it is true; and would you know the secret of his success? grit, a determination to hold on and persevere. An Irishman will take a few salt herrings, or a German a barrel of krout, rent a small stall somewhere, edge themselves in and wait with patience for a better day. And that better day comes and they move into more commodious apartments with stock increased and business established. And would you know the secret of their success? It is this, they do not wait for capital but they make it. In the same manner could we succeed if we had the mind. Give me the means which the colored people spend in this city in a single year, and I would open up business as extensive as any firm in it. The fact to be lamented, is, that we are always helping others, instead of trying to help ourselves. We are at war with ourselves, and jealous lest some of us should prosper. We have neither patience nor perseverance and we despise the day of small things. Not long ago, when I returned home to dinner, my wife showed me quite a handsome fruit dish which a Jew peddler had gave her in exchange for an old pair of shoes, and some cast-off clothing. Now I will venture the assertion that in time, that Jew will become a prince among merchants. But how many colored men do you suppose, could be found willing to traffic in old shoes and cast-off clothing? I fear but few.

Some time ago a colored man in this city having lost his situation engaged in trading. A few weeks afterwards I met him, and inquired as to how he prospered. His response was, that he had continued for five days, but finding that his profits were not sufficiently large he had discontinued. Five days, hardly time enough to introduce himself. A Jew, or an Irishman, or a German would have continued longer than that even though they had lost money. Here is the key-note of all our failure, a want of grit—whatever we turn our hands too we are ready to yield up in despair, unless success comes in a day.

You who are preparing to lead and instruct the people, tell them to stick, and [illegible] themselves! Tell them that we need merchants to give our young men employment behind the counter and desk, that we may be represented in commercial affairs. Bid them to combine their resources, start the work, hold on, and that they shall reap if they faint not. You have learned that true morality is the basis of all human greatness. The heathens recognized this principle, though they were far from being patrons of it. Among the five cardinal virtues, Confucius enumerated rectitude of heart and mind, and pure sincerity. So lofty were his moral sentiments, that Pope ascribed to him these lines

"Superior and alone Confucius stood
Who taught that noble science to be good."

Socrates awoke the minds of the Athenians to the sophistries of the Atomists by insisting on the reality of truth, virtue and justice. In the writings of Plato, we find sentiments of a very high moral tone, Zeno made the supreme good of human existence to consist in the strict and constant practice of virtue. To be moral implies to be virtuous, truthful and honest. When I say that our people are deficient in these traits, I am not unmindful of the cause. Slavery wrought it all. But you who are to be their future guides, must tell them that light and knowledge now gilds their pathway, and that they must throw off the coil of vicious and immoral habits contracted during the dark days of their servitude. Tell them that between them and the past the benevolent heart of mankind has fixed a mantle of charity; but that henceforth every action will be weighed, and approved or condemned according to their deeds. The work of correcting present existing abuses will prove slow and difficult of accomplishment, and its advancement depends largely upon the character of the work performed in these institutions. Here the mind is to be educated so that it will instinctively perceive the folly of all error and falsehood, to surround it with the terrible power of light—light, which of all things error most dreads.

Upon the intelligence of a people rests the stability of free institutions, and the importance of education is so evident and universally conceded, that a labored discussion of it at this time, might be deemed an effort of supererogation. Moreover, I presume we are all agreed, that education is essential. It may be a question of interest to some, though as to how we are to secure it. Students very frequently suffer from perplexity after repeated attempts to master a certain course and so often fail. Have you ever surmised that the secret of success in study lies not so much in the help which you receive from your instructors, as a determination to help yourselves. Self-education is necessary. You must not depend solely on the efforts of others to develop your mind, but strive to develop it yourself. Use the faculty of your speech so as to make yourself intelligible and if you are given one angle of a square put yourself to work to discover the measure of the other three. Another important thought is that you cannot obtain an education in a day, it is a life effort. A great many persons enter school or matriculate in some college and remain for a brief session and then flatter themselves that they are accomplished scholars. How preposterous! Why they have not mastered their alphabet, and don't know the elements of an education. Young ladies and gentlemen, in your purpose to secure an education let this thought impress you, that you must toil patiently and long. As the miner with stout hand and heart must day after day deal blow after blow against the flinty rock ere he can seize the gold beyond, so must you, being firm in effort and confident of success, day after day, month after month, and year after year deal blow after blow against the rocks of difficulties which everyone encounters in the path to fame and distinction before you can exult in the possession of the treasures of a well-stored mind. Hold the fort though single-handed and alone and undying glory will crown your energies and faith. Let us now attend to a survey of our facilities for education and our duty thereto. Great have been the things performed in our behalf in this sunny-land. About forty institutions of a high grade have been established for our benefit through the generosity and benevolence of Christian friends and sympathizers, and in the blessings and privileges of one we rejoice to-night. This ground and these magnificent buildings stand as monuments to the disinterested charity of philanthropic hearts. Year after year their liberality has abounded toward us, and the members of the faculty have been supported thereby. This is indeed excellent and noble, but what have we done. Have we discharged our duty in the premises? Have we laid hold of this work as we should? I fear not. We have been inert and too much disposed to rely on outside help, instead of helping ourselves. These institutions connect two eras, the past and the future. Of the past they indicate what God and humanity hath wrought in our behalf—in the future they will furnish the index of our own accomplishments. Other hands have laid the foundations and reared the walls but upon us devolves the task of raising the cap-stone. And shall we do it is the thought which presses itself upon our consideration. Shall we prove worthy of these grand benefactions or shall we suffer them to wither for want of succor and care. As the mother watches over her child with the deepest solicitude and is prompt to administer to all of its wants, so should we with a jealous regard for our future success, exercise a ceaseless vigilance and fostering care for the welfare of these institutions. We have heard how that knowledge is power, the parent of innumerable blessings and that which distinguishes the civilized from the savage state. The source of every well-directed and successful effort and enterprise is to be traced to knowledge. It is one of the most potent elements of civilization, and in fact, there can be no true civilization without it. In its absence every species of vice springs spontaneously, social disorder arises, and the moral faculties become blighted and perish. In all ages and among all civilized nations the character of their educational institutions has formed a matter of deep concern. Large grants have been made for their endowment and support, and in importance they have been held next to national greatness itself. Look at the mighty stream of wholesome influences which they are continually sending forth, without them society would almost become as barren and desolate as the desert of Sahara.

They are to mankind what the beacon-light is to the trembling mariner, when wrapt by the wild storm in the darkness of the night. We cannot over estimate the value and they have claims upon our sympathy and support, which we cannot afford to ignore. With us their permanency should be of double importance, inasmuch as they are destined to be essential auxiliaries in shaping our future. In fact, whatever distinction or prominence we achieve, must take its rise in their influence. This discovery leads to another, and that is, necessity of our effort to strengthen them. But to this there have been some objections presented, one of which I will notice, and that is, that we hold no guarantee of their possession. The truth of this we disclaim. The benefits of these institutions are guaranteed to us and our children forever and that guarantee is based upon the purposes for which they were founded and the conditions upon which the funds for their erection were contributed. Behind this lies the power of a moral sentiment which would righteously condemn any effort to dispossess us of their privileges. But this is not without conditions. There are always two parties to a contract, and the friends upon whose liberality these institutions have arisen confidently expect our co-operation in sustaining them. It would be a deception for us to promise that we are to share in their benefits, and yet not help bear the burden of their support. And I may frankly admit that it is my honest opinion that the moment we cease to labor for their support that we thereby forfeit all claims to their privileges. The justness of this no one can rightfully question. These institutions may be likened to talents, and they have not been given to us to bury but to use for the production of other talents. Invested with their advantages, we are to prove faithful and just in the use which we make of them. The day of reckoning will come, and the lord of an expectation almost world wide in its extent will demand of us an account of our stewardship. And, be assured, that if we prove negligent and derelict, that an abused and disappointed philanthropy will take away from us that which we have. And to others more worthy these priceless possessions will pass.

We have a duty to perform with relation to them which, if faithfully executed, will seal their benefits and privileges to our use and the use of our children through all generations—and that duty consists in giving them, and that in an unstinted manner, our material and moral support. The failure of educational movements has never been due to their rejection by the people, but to the lack of substantial aid. The people want education, but are not always willing to pay for it. They expatiate a great deal upon its blessings and mourn its absence, while at the same time they betray a lamentable spirit of unwillingness to produce the means necessary to secure it. They are loud and liberal in their praises of those who make bequests for the founding of public institutions. Let a man make a grant of a sufficient sum to purchase a piece of ground in some given locality as a site for a seminary or university, and how promptly the people will assemble in public meeting and pass high-sounding resolutions of thanks. The meeting hardly adjourns, however, before some one inquires as to who next will receive a garland of praise and devote a few thousand dollars to erect the buildings. And then some one must be sought out to provide for its equipment and endowment, and all these proceedings are had while the great masses of the people who are to be directly benefited stalk about with open mouths, but shut pockets content with rejoicing over the charitable deeds of Mr. A. or B. I believe in the display of charity, and applaud the efforts of the strong to help bear the infirmities of the weak; but I denounce as wholly destructive of the beneficial principle of self-dependence and self-effort many of the gifts of the present day, and hold them to be the outgrowth of a pharisaical feeling, a thirst after the applause of men. Another thought: our gifts, to be truly charitable, should be applied where they are the most needed and will be productive of the greatest good. Knowledge is valuable to us only so far as it enables us to discover the path of duty, and help is beneficial in so far as it inspires us to help ourselves. God never created us to be a race of mere dependents, but to carve out our own road to fortune and success, and He has amply endowed us with every facility essential thereto. He has clothed us with an armor both strong and secure, and given us the broad domains of the universe laden with the riches of his own creative power for our inheritance. Enjoying the invigorating sunshine of these grand opportunities, are we to supinely sit down with folded hands and continually rely on the help of others to bear our burdens? God forbid. Let us be men and women with a mind to work. Let us with our own efforts strive to roll off the scorn and reproach of ages. Let us economize our means, and for every dollar that our friends have put in these institutions let us labor to put two, so that our interest will be in proportion as two is to one. God hath laid upon us a mighty task—not one above our strength, however. We have only to trust in Him to do our duty, and He will carry us through. He hath given us these institutions that we might encour and strengthen their influence and efficiency so that their blessings might be perpetuated to our children from age to age, and our relation to them is of a peculiar character. Under ordinary circumstances such remarks as these would rightfully be deemed ill-timed and out of place. Generally institutions are not considered as sustaining a particular relation to a particular people. But such cannot be said of this or its sister ones in the South. These institutions are for us, and in view of the inseparable gulf of prejudice which exists between Judah and Ephraim, we are not warranted in making the assertion that in any time soon white students will cross their threshold.

What mighty interests are associated with these institutions? Black men of the South turn your eyes toward them and behold the providence of God who wills that you should be free, indeed. Turn your ears, and from amid their walls, as out of the womb of the future, hear the voice of coming generations bidding us to effort in their behalf. What shall we do? say you. In response to which I would urge: First, crowd them with our young men and women. Second, let us see to it that they are furnished and equipped with a good library and all needful apparatus. Third, from the ashes of our poverty let us gather and concentrate sufficient means to form the nucleus of their endowment. Fourth, and last, but not least, let us wait before the God of battles, and invoke His blessings upon them. And all this we can do if we have a mind to work. Let the students upon their return home discuss these matters among the people, and in public and private, urge upon them the necessity of united action. Let the preachers urge upon their circuits and stations the importance of contributing to the support of some worthy young man in school. Let them select such a one, and say to him, go thou to the fountain of knowledge and quench thy thirst, that thou may bless thy people in coming days. Let them organize societies, and at appropriate seasons assemble the people together and tell them how God hath freed them, that they might elevate themselves and become a happy, prosperous, intelligent and progressive people, and that in order to reach this state they must be educated, and in order to be educated must strengthen the means which he hath given them, and appeal to them with an earnestness of soul which shall strike their souls, and through their souls to their pockets, and lead them to respond, here are our mites, take them, and when you ask again we will give you more, for we have heard how it hath been said, "Ethiopia shall stretch forth her hands unto God." It is not natural to suppose that this will be the success at first, or in every instance. But as the great ocean is formed of little drops, and its mighty boundaries of little grains, so these results, however small in their beginning, in course of time will form a vast and potent force. We need engage in no lengthy discussion of our duty to our children. One generation builds for another. Environed as we are with such adverse circumstances, we can only hope to do the work of pioneers and circumscribe the bounds, fix the stakes, remove the rubbish and prepare the soil for seed. It will not be ours to reap. That will be the work of our children, and let us see to it that nothing remains undone on our part to remove, if possible, every hinderance and obstacle that their path to success may be smooth and clear. Let us quarry the stones and lay the foundation, and leave to them the work of erecting the superstructure of their greatness and glory. This is all that we can hope to accomplish, and if we prove faithful to perform it, future generations will rise up and call our names blessed.

General News Items.

Silver is a legal tender for all debts in Illinois.

Mr. Jesse R. Grant, who accompanies his father to Europe as his private Secretary, has engaged to write letters for the Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Mrs. Thompson, widow of a lately deceased Union soldier, and daughter of the late Elder Alex. Campbell, has been appointed post-mistress at Louisville, Kentucky.

There remain about $21,500,000 of fractional currency outstanding, and of this it is estimated that $16,000,000 will never be presented for redemption.

Postmaster-General Key thinks that the revenue of his department for the present fiscal year will show a falling off of $250,000, owing to to the use of postal cards in the place of letters.

The Dismal Swamp canal is to be sold by auction to the highest bidder in Norfolk, Va. next August. The work cost over $1,500,000 but it is not expected to bring more than one fifth part of that sum.

A Polish exile now in Washington writes to a friend in Augusta, Ga., that 293 families in Russian Poland, with an average of $1,000 to the family are desirous of emigrating to the United States to engage in agricultural labor.

The sea holds 60,000,000,000,000 tons of salt. Should the sea be dried up there would be a deposit of salt over the entire bottom of the ocean 450 feet deep and if the salt were taken and spread on the land it would cover it to a depth of 900 feet.

A sheep grower has a Leicester buck on his great sheep ranche in Menard county, Texas, that weighs more than 400 pounds, and from which a clip weighing 22 pounds has been taken. This ranche embraces 30,000 acres.

From July 1 to December 31, 1876, eighty-nine millions of postal cards were sold in the post-offices of the United States, or fifteen millions more than for the same period of 1875. Postal cards were introduced in this country only four years ago.

The vessels which have heretofore been engaged in the Baltic and Mediterranean grain trade in bringing from ports rye and wheat will hereafter be used for trading with the United States, and the Baltic Mediterranean markets being closed by the Russo-Turkish war.

Hood's Texas Brigade Association at its last annual meeting invited all honorable soldiers, whether they served the Federal or Confederate armies, to join with them in making the next annual meeting a general soldier's reunion. The meeting is fixed for the 27th inst., at Waco, Texas.

Among the wonders of nature in Algeria there is a river of genuine ink. It is formed by the junction of two streams, one flowing from a region of ferruginous soil, and other draining a peat swamp. The waters of the former are, of course, strongly impregnated with iron; those of the latter with a gallic acid. On meeting the acid of the one stream is united with the iron of the other, and a true ink is the result.

The rulers of the different countries of Europe are:

Austria, Franz Joseph I.; Belgium, Leopold II.; Denmark, Christian IX.; France, McMahon; Germany, Wilhelm I.; Great Britian, Victoria I.; Greece, Georgies I.; Italy, Vittorio Emanuele II.; Montenegro, Nicholas I.; Netherlands, William III.; Portugal, Luis I.; Russia, Alexander II.; Spain, Alfonso XII.; Sweden and Norway, Oscar II.; Turkey, Abdul-Hamid II.

The Ottoman Empire, inclusive of the tributary States, comprises, according to Baron de Worms, 13,000,000 Turks, 1,500,000 Arabs, 600,000 Tartars, Turkomans and Zingarees, 5,123,000 Roumanians, 2,000,000 Greeks, 4,800,000 Bulgarians, 500,000 Servians and 800,000 Bulgarians, professing the Mohammedan faith. In Servia there are 450,000 Roman Catholics, and 100,000 in Albania. Altogether, the total population reaches 52,[illegible], but this is inclusive of nearly 11,000,000 Nubians, 5,000,000 Egyptians, and 8,000,000 Roumanians, Greeks and Servians.

SOUTHWESTERN
Christian Advocate.
39 Natchez St., New Orleans.
J. C. HARTZELL, B. D., EDITOR.
THURSDAY, JUNE 7, 1877.

The fruit and vegetable trade between New Orleans and the Northern cities of the West, is already assuming large proportions.

Rev. G. M. Pierce of the Rocky Mountain Christian Advocate is East, lecturing on "Seven years among the Mormons."

Protestants in the Holy land are growing in numbers and influence. They report 520 congregations and 700 children attending their schools.

Rev. [illegible] Gillins, of Holly Springs, Miss., has been appointed agent of Hitchcock and Walden, of Cincinnati and will be in Granada County, early in June.

Rev. Dr. Godman left for the North by the Jackson route, Monday Evening. He goes directly to Philadelphia, where, with Mrs. Godman he spends the summer raising money by solicitation and Troupe Concerts for the Orphans Home.

A brother asks: "Can a man [illegible] under charges be admitted [illegible] the Quarterly Conference and [illegible] to vote on questions?" [illegible] A man under charge is suspended from all church privileges [illegible] his case is disposed of.

The [illegible] University, of South [illegible], has been closed for two [illegible] Professors dismissed and [illegible] home. A majority [illegible] were colored, which [illegible] accounts for its being [illegible]

[illegible] return shows [illegible] September, [illegible] 277 persons [illegible] England and [illegible]. Of these, [illegible] 46,083 were [illegible]

[illegible] to receive a call [illegible] Raymond [illegible] Secretary and [illegible] association [illegible] to guard [illegible] purchase and [illegible]

[illegible] people were [illegible] Wilmington, [illegible] temperance [illegible] a [illegible] of straw [illegible] it on fire [illegible] to do it [illegible]

[illegible] of Chicago, [illegible] in this New [illegible] for her [illegible]

[illegible]

"God Is Love."

This is the hardest truth in the Bible to believe. To prove this, we have but to consider what man would be if everybody accepted in their hearts the fact that God is love. The human heart naturally flies from God; but if men everywhere admitted the fact of God's earnest and yearning love, all hearts would tend toward Him. The christian, instead of limping and halting by the way, would each moment hasten by faith to dwell in the very presence of God, where there is fullness of joy. The backslider, when smitten by conscience, instead of rushing yet farther away from his Father's House, would hasten to return, to be clothed in the robes of reconciliation, and to have placed on his finger the ring of confidence and power. Sinners, who had never known the power of Christ's blood, would not rush heedlessly from bad to worse, still finding no relief, goaded on by an ever-present sense of deserved wrath, but would retrace their steps, and with willing feet follow the Master.

Men submit to be ruled by sin, because they are blind to the fact of God's love. Hence it is, that in proportion as men are sinful, is God far away from them. Sin misinterprets the character of God, and men learn to look upon Him as unfeeling and tyrannical. The devil is a liar from the beginning, and sin, which is his child, is but a monstrous lie, deceiving man, and misinterpreting God.

Two things make it hard for the sinful heart to believe that God is love—ignorance and the conscience. The existence of God is a fact which we cannot doubt, if we would; but the natural heart is ignorant of God's real character; and hence, arises forebodings and fears. If we stand in the presence of a strange beast, no matter how docile it may be, we fear it until we know its real character. Precisely so with a sinner standing in the presence of God. His soul is blinded by sin, and he knows not the real character of God, but does know that He exists, and that in His presence he must stand; hence, he fears. Coupled with this ignorance of God in the sinner's heart, are the smitings of conscience. Conscious of being a sinner, and of the just displeasure of God because of his sin—the conclusion is easily reached, that God cannot love him, and must hate and disown him.

Outside of the Bible, there is nothing to correct these impressions. Nature teaches that there is a God, and that some great calamity has befallen the race, but points no way out of it. If we say that the radiant sunlight dispelling the darkness, or the descending rain watering the earth with its refreshing showers, or the distilling dew blessing the sun-parched plant, or if we say any of the thousands of good providences about us, are evidences of God's love and goodness, then we may as truly say that the hurricane, the earthquake, the deadly simoom and all kindred calamities are just as good evidences that he hates man. Some other stand-point must be found from which to look at God. That stand-point is the Bible. In the first place, we have it stated directly that "God is love." He is never called Justice, Omnipotence, or Mercy, but he is called "love." The very essence of his nature is love. The illustration and proof follow. "In this was manifested the love of God toward us, because God sent his only begotten Son into the world that we might live through him"—"Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that He loved us and sent His Son to be the propitiation for our sins." Had God not been a God of love, there could not have been redemption from sin. No one could have compassed it, and no power unless it be above law could solve the problem. Love did the work, and thus salvation with [illegible] is the expression of [illegible]. The fact of salvation [illegible] positive of God's [illegible] could alone be per[illegible] hence, its author, [illegible]

In Memoriam.

The 30th of May is a sacred day to all lovers of the American Union, as having been set apart as the time when the graves of the men who fell in defense of the nation shall be visited, and be strewn with flowers emblematic of a nations love.

In the national cemetery below the city 13,000 boys in blue, lie buried, and on no former year did a larger and more respectable company assembly to engage in the solemn and yet pleasing service. At least two thousand were present. The ceremonies were arranged and directed by the Joseph A. Mower Post No. 1 of Louisiana. The President, Col. Wm. Wright called the assembly to order and made an fervent opening address. Rev. L. H. Pease offered an appropriate prayer. Gen. Angur and a large number of the army and navy were present.

The orator of the day was Rev. Dr. McCarty, pastor of Ames M. E. Church of this city. His oration occupied an hour in its delivery and was well received. We quote the concluding part which indicates its excellent spirit and polished diction. The Republican publishes the ortion in full and the Times, Picayune and Democrat all publish extensive extracts and commends it in very high terms. The concluding original poem is gem, and will not soon die.

That the men who fought against the Union believed their cause to be just I can believe, but if they were as honest as they were brave, desperate and earnest, not less so surely were the men on the other side. And so we let the matter stand. The blue was victoirous over gray in the end, not because they were led by braver or more skillful generals, not because men of the blue were superior in the metal that makes the soldier to their brothers of the gray, no! but because the angel of right guarded the banner of the republic, and though at times she suffered it to it to be trailed in the dust for our humiliation, as at Bull Run, Fredericksburg and Murfreesboro; yet anon she came and lifted it out of the mire where it was trampled, shook the dust from its folds, cleansed it from the smut and smoke of battle, and threw its bright bands and silver stars to the breeze again. And to-day it waves out benignly, grandly from the mountain peak and fortress by the sea, from the ship-mast and State capitol, on wide ocean and gulf, emblem of a mighty nation, symbol of its growing power.

It is, according to our Christian faith, that there will come a resurrection time to all these sleepers. So mote it be! But may we not hope that to our nation the resurrection time has come. Out of these graves should come the inspiration of a new national life. The new age of the republic should be better than the old age, good as that may have been. We have started on a new century in our nation's life, with the gates of Janus closed. May they never more open to the chariot wheel of war! Let education become universal among all classes. Let pure religion bind our hearts about the altars of God. Let the motto ever be, "The Union, it must and shall be preserved." But let us have a Union worth preserving. Do you ask why? I answer because it makes of us a nation on whose glory stands our self-respect. The great sections have no natural divisions. The East needs the West, the West the East, the North needs the South, and the South the North. For a hundred years the Union has weathered the storm. In war and peace she has gone forward, and that completed cycle is prophetic of a hundred cycles more. If as a people we are true to humanity and true to God's great laws, the Union of States, the Union of compacted and cemented people may stand for ages to come. We cannot afford to dash this hope of the world to the ground and then turn and weep over the ruins of an empire we might have saved. We have one of the oldest of governments. France, Germany and Italy have made recent changes, and in their present form are younger than we. With us it is no longer an experiment. We know that a republic can endure. While the Mississippi pours its waters to the Gulf, the South and the North have a bond in common. You may throw across that mighty stream barriers of iron and granite and dam up the waters, but their power would accumulate and burst their barriers away sooner or later. Symbol, O ye proud waters of a mighty stream, our nation's power, so like a belt of steel thou bindest fast the two great sections of North and South into one peaceful and loving brotherhood!

The united nation means prosperity—development of mine and forest and field. It means culture, wealth and religion, it means all that makes us great as people. [illegible] these persons gave [illegible] and all. And we are [illegible] bonds about their [illegible] the union of States [illegible] to express our [illegible] offer the tribute of [illegible] the same [illegible] wreath of [illegible] grave of a son; we [illegible] fond sister's name to decorate the grave of a dear brother; we come in the name of the wife and the maiden to place our floral offerings over the loved and the lost.

"They sleep their last sleep,
They have fought their last battle,
No sound can awake them to glory again."

Every soldier who gave his life in his war for the Union has a monument indeed, and see what a monument! That monument is our country and its institutions. The land we call our own is what it is to-day because men died to save it from the hands of the spoiler.

Sleep on, then, ye brave men! The evergreen symbols your immortality; the bright flowers speak our love; the solemn strains of the band and the beat of the muffled drum declare our sorrowful reverence. We inscribe anew your names on the scroll of fame, and seek to impress upon the hearts of the young thoughts of your valorour deeds.

Standing by our dead to-day, let us vow to be true to all the virtues that make a nation great. Let us bow to the behest of Providence, have sympathy and respect for each other as a people, and let us build a better temple to liberty and guard it with a dearer love.

Cover them over, the brave and the true:
Cover them over, the boys of the blue:
Husband and brother, father and lover,
Cover them over—cover them over:
Cover them over, the brave and the true;
Cover them over, our men of the blue.

Cover them over with silence and weeping;
Cover the dust that lies here in our keeping;
Graves of the youthful and graves of the old,
Cover with flowers of crimson and gold:
Cover them over, the brave and the true;
Cover them over, our boys of the blue.

Cover them over with fragrance and beauty;
Cover the hushed hearts that shrank not from duty—
Men of the battle-field ghastly and gory—
Cover them over these men in their glory;
Cover them over, the brave and the true;
Cover them over, our army of blue.

O men of a nation in darkness and danger,
Sick, bleeding, and dying in the land of the stranger!
Our fond hearts shall cherish a love that is true.
For all who gave life for the red, white and blue;
And as long as the banner shall symbol our pride,
We'll garland the graves of our heroes that died.

O men of the nation! O men of the blue!
Out from our hearts comes a requiem for you;
From hill-top and valley, from prairie and sea,
The shout of the millions, One nation are we.
No more may war's reveille open the day,
But Peace wreathe her chaplet forever and aye!

Peace! Peace to your ashes, O men of the blue!
Over each mound falls our love, like the dew:
Round you we gather to-day in our pride,
With the honor to all who for country have died!
Sleep! Sleep! till the waking-time calls to arise,
And join with our army of blue in the skies.

Presbyterian Fraternity.

Last week we gave the action of the Southern Presbyterian Assembly, just held in New Orleans, on the subject of Fraternal Relations with the Northern Presbyterian Church. The sum of the action was, that the Southern Assembly could not enter into fraternal relations with the Northern Assembly until the latter made suitable apologies for things said during the war. The reply is as we anticipated. The Northern Assembly will make no apologies, and does not ask the Southern Assembly to make any; but without impugning the christian character or orthodoxy or ecclesiastical standing of any, is willing and anxious for fraternal relations upon the broad grounds of christian charity. This is the action:

Resolved, 1. That while we are sincerely desirous to be reunited in closer relations with the brethren from whom we have been separated, we do not deem it expedient at present to take any further action upon the subject, except to repeat the declaration of the assembly, that we are ready, cordially, to receive a representative from the Southern church and to send a delegate to their assembly whenever they may intimate a willingness to enter into fraternal relations upon such terms.

The vote stood 230 to 97. This leaves the question of Presbyterian fraternity just where it was at the close of the war, with the responsibility of making the next overture resting upon the South. The following extract from the report of Dr. Van Dyke's speech, indicates the position of the Northern Assembly:

In the speaker's intercourse with men he had found it was a very easy thing to be sorry for other people's sins, and very easy to be liberal with other people's money. He did not want to stir up any bitter enmity, but he wanted to say that after the war was over and the provocation was taken away their apology for such words was also taken away. The Southern General Assembly, however, have put on its records, and they stand there to this day unrevoked, harder words than were uttered by the assembly on the other side. Dr. Van Dyke then read from the records of the assembly of Louisville, of 1870, an extract in support of this statement. The part of the record of the proceedings of the Southern General Assembly that he read was about that meeting held in the city of Louisville in the year 1870. That year Dr. Van Dyke was the fraternal delegate from the Northern church. He felt, therefore, that the Southern church had not acted as it should have done. He had been loyal in the General Assembly in 1866, and he would be loyal now. Another reason why he took the ground he did was because he could not approve of the demand made by the Southern church. It smacked too much of "honor," and that "honor" was not the honor which came from love. If fraternity could not be effected amicably without presenting the alternative that one was right and the other wrong, then it could not be at all.

Sold.

Of late the Methodist Advocate of Atlanta, has had much to say of the growth of Fraternity between the M. E. Church, and the M. E. Church, South, in Georgia. The Editor has especially rejoiced in the fraternal spirit and actions of the Rev. Dr. Harrison, of the Southern Church, a pastor in that city. We have noted and rejoiced in the indications of good feelings in that section.

It seems, however, that the Methodist Advocate has been very badly sold by Dr. Harrison. That eloquent and polished southern gentleman, is North raising money for his Atlanta Church building. He is well received and our people listen to him, and some give him money. But in Pittsburgh he seems to have spoken his real sentiments about our church in the South. He there, in substance, states that it was utterly impossible for us to build up a church in the South; that the attempt thus far, has been a failure, &c. &c. All of which means that no matter what Dr. Harrison's fraternal acts or words are in Atlanta, when in Pittsburgh he plainly intimates that in his judgment the Methodist Advocate, its editor and the Church, which they so ably represent, have no business in the South. Editor Fuller in a five Column editorial, completely annihilates Dr Harrison's statements, as to the failure of our Church in the South. This is the appropriate thing for Dr. Fuller to do under the circumstances, but we suggest that before he permits Dr. Harrison to further use his name and endorsement in raising money in the North, that some sort of an understanding be had in the matter of fraternity, so it shall be made to mean the same thing in Pittsburgh that it does in Atlanta.

Governor Stone in a letter dated May, 18, sent to Washington says, "that he has twice visited Kemper County, since the Chisolm tragedy; that the utmost quiet prevailed, and he had assurance, an extra term of Court would be held so that the affair might have an early judicial investigation, and he shows that there is no necessity for troops to protect anybody after the unfortunate occurence, that there was no danger of any mob, and that it is folly to mix up military with civil law, under the circumstances."

Of course everything is quiet because the murdering is all done. Of course there is no danger now of a mob, because the vengeance of the mob is appeased. It is now a half month since that letter was written, and it is openly declared that Judge Hamm of Kemper County, will not call a special term of Court. What is Governor Stone a going to about it? Up to this time his course has disgraced him in the eyes of the civilized world, as imbecile and cowardly.

The St. Joseph's Foreign Missionary Society of the Sacred Heart, Mill Hill, London, which has for its chief object the conversion of the freedmen of the United States to the Roman Catholic faith, has just issued its seventh annual report. The college now numbers three directors, thirty-three students, and six lay brothers. Of the mission in South Carolina there is the following account: Five years ago, when it was established in Charleston, there were no more than twenty colored Catholics who could be induced to attend church. During 1875, there were forty-seven infant and forty three adult baptisms; in 1876 forty-five infants and sixty-two adults were baptized; at the beginning of 1875 there were ten persons under instruction for baptism. "During the same period about one hundred, until then indifferent," says the report, "were gatheerd in, instructed, and are now practical Catholics." This is the only mission established in the State. No statistics appear from Baltimore, Upper Marlborough, and Louisville; nor were any new missions opened in the Southern States during the past year. These facts would indicate that the conversion of the negroes of the South to the Roman Catholic faith is not progressing so rapidly as Cardinal Manning expected it would.

The Chautauqua Assembly Daily Herald, is at hand under date of May 10, announcing that the Chautauqua meetings for 1877, will begin Aug. 4. The editor Rev. T. L. Flood, made an excellent paper last year and with better facilities, will make a better one this year. The Herald will be issued daily, (Sundays excepted) during the meetings Aug. 4, 23. The Herald will contain the speeches and addresses delivered at meetings, and will be worth much more than the Subucription price $1 00. Address, M. Baily, Agent, Jamestown, N. Y. This specimen number has a very fine picture of Dr. J. H. Vincent.

A southern correspondent of the Northern Advocate, of Syracuse, New York, writing from Nashville, May 9th, says:

Last week our board of Bishops and Missions received an invitation from President Braden to visit the Central Tennesee College during the stay of the members in the city. If any of the Bishops or Missionary Board failed to visit the College I would be pleased to know that it was not because it is a colored school, or on account of President's connection with the institution, or the work of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the South.

Will Dr. Braden tell us about the visit.

The steamship Nevada, which left New York May 15, took out some twenty-seven Mormon missionaries. Among them is Joseph F. Smith, who is to take charge of the Liverpool Mormon agency, and who is accompanied by one of his wives and a son. The others are proceeding to different countries in Europe.

There are no war news of importance this week. The Russians are along the Danube in Europe waiting a favorable time to attempt to cross in force. In Asia the armies are simply watching each others movements. Great battles must occur soon.

Memorials of the Wesley Family.

We have received from Messrs. Nelson and Phillips of New York, a rare and valuable book entitled "The Memorials of the Wesley Family." It is edited by George J. Stevenson of England, and is the result of great labor and pains taking. It has a complete geneological table of the Wesleys for more than nine hundred years, and biographical and historical sketches of the family, for two hundred and fifty years.

The following are the Epworth Wesleys and their descendants to the present time:

	Born.	Died.
Samuel Wesley, M. A.	Dec. 17, 1662.	April 25, 1735
Susanna Wesley....	Jan 20, 1669.	July 23, 1742

THEIR NINETEEN CHILDREN.

	Born.	Died.
1. Sam'l Wesley, M. A.	Feb. 10. 1690	Nov. 6, 1739
2. Susanna Wesley....	1691	April, 1693
3. Emelia Wesley.... Jan.,	1692	1771
4. Annesley Wesley } Twins	1694	Jan., 1695
5. Jedediah Wesley }		Jan. 31, 1695
6. Susanna Wesley....	1695	Dec. 7, 1764
7. Mary Wesley.....	1696	Nov., 1734
8. Mehetabel Wesley.	1697	Mar 21, 1750
9. [Child still-born]..	1698	1698
10. Benjamin Wesley..May 18,	1699	1699
11. John Wesley....	1700	17[illegible]
12. Boy } Twins.......May 17,	1701	1701
13. Girl }		1701
14. Anne Wesley....	1702	Not known
15. John Benj. Wesley, June, 17,	1703	Mar. 2, 1791
16. Son, smothered....May 8,	1705	May 30, 1705
17. Martha Wesley....	1706	July, 19, 1791
18. Chas. Wesley, M. A. Dec. 18,	1707	Mar. 29, 1788
19. Kezia Wesley... March,	1709	Mar. 9, 1741

FAMILY OF REV. CHARLES WESLEY.

	Born.	Died.
1. John Wesley........Jan.,	1754	May 1755
2. Marthy Maria Wesley June,	1755	July, 1755
3. Charles Wesley.......Dec.	1757	May, 1834
4. Sarah Wesley........April,	1759	Sept, 1828
5. Susanna Wesley......May,	1760	April, 1761
6. Selina Wesley.......Sept.,	1764	Oct., 1764
7. Samuel Wesley.......Feb.,	1776	Oct., 1837
8. John James Wesley..Dec.,	1767	July, 1768

Five of their children died in infancy: and of the three who survived to mature years only one was, married and that was the youngest but one, Samuel.

FAMILY OF SAMUEL WESLEY, MUSICIAN.

	Born	Died
1. Charles Wesley, D.D. Sept,	1793	Sept, 1859
2. John W. Wesley...	1799	1863
3. Emma Francis Wesley Feb.,	1805	Nov., 1865
4. Samuel Sebastian Wesley...........	1810	April. 1876
5. Rosalind Wesley...	1814	Living.
6. Eliza Wesley......	1819	Living.
7. Matthias Erasmus Wesley	1822	Living.
8. John Wesley......	1826	Living.
9. Thomasine Wesley............	1828	Living.
10. Rob't Glenn Wesley............	1830	Living.

Several of the above named have children married, who are themselves parents. The book contains 562 pages.

Mr. Henry Varley, the English evangelist, has started on a tour through Australia. He will return home by the way of California. In parting with his people he stated that he had never received, nor did he intend to receive, one shilling for his ministry in the West London ministry.

Our Southern Methodism,

Rev. J. H. Parker, Pickens, Miss., in sending subscriptions for SOUTHWESTERNS adds: "We have had twenty-three accessions so far this year, and the work is all in good condition. Our Sunday-schools are well attended, have good officers and doing excellent service.

Rev. Jackson Johnson, Goliad, Texas, says: "We have had a meeting in progress for past two weeks. So far there have been eight coversions and the indications encourage us to hope for an abundant harvest of souls. Ministers of the Baptist and Congregational Churches have kindly aided us in conducting the services."

D. McLachlin, Okona, Miss., says: "Our quarterly sevices at Mt. Pisgah, on Calhoun Circuit, were of more than ordinary interest. The church has been organized but nine months, and includes in its membership some earnest workers in the Master's cause. After the sermon on Sunday night there were ten accessions, all adults but one."

Rev. E. M. Williams, Quitman, Texas, says: "We have just closed a very interesting meeting, at which there were forty-nine accessions to the Church; twenty-one of them being on probation. The services were quite largely attended by our white friends of this place, who rendered us much assistance, one of them, Mr. Ortry, bearing the expense of lighting the church at night, during the continuance of the meeting."

"Rev. S. Gates, presiding Elder of Waco District, in Texas, writes:

"My second quarterly Conference at Austin Texas, where Rev. C. L. Madison is pastor, was held May 14 and 15. The pastor reported that during a gracious revival, 32 had been gathered with the church. Two members died. The Sunday School numbers nearly 200. The large church building is getting too small for the audiences.

The work of my District generally is in a good condition. The work of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in Texas, planted three years ago by men of God, grows stronger year by year. At the first Conference in Galveston, only four or five preachers were present. Now in every part of the State our church advances in number and strength."

Rev. E. Nesbit, Austin Circuit, Texas, says: "We have had a meeting in progress for past two weeks at Pettesville. So far there have been sixteen conversions and forty-two accessions to the church. The Circuit generally is in a good condition."

Rev. P. C. Powell, Grenada Circuit, Miss., says: "I was appointed to this work one month ago. I find three churches, with good congregations at each. I find that the people are poor, but that they are striving to serve the Lord. On yesterday I received six persons into the church on probation, besides three in full connection."

Rev. Paul Douglas, East Church, Galveston, Texas, writes: "In a recent protracted meeting there were twenty-two conversions and thirty accessions to our Church: also thirteen adult and one infant baptism. Our quarterly services just closed, held by presiding Elder Molloy, proved a season of great spiritual blessing to our church."

Religious News.

The total revenue of the Church of England is said to be £7,000,000.

At the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Chicago, the board of Home Missions reported: Number of missionaries 997; additions on the profession of faith, 7,545: on certificate, 3,484; total membership 59,316: total in congregations 93,762; baptisms, 6,057; Sunday-schools organized, 209, making a total of 1,295: with a membership of 98,813; church edifices, 956, worth $2,913,252; Churches organized during the year, 89. The work of the women occupies a considerable portion of the report. As to finances during the year closing March, 1876, the board paid off a debt of $25,000, and a balance remains, at the close of this year, of $27,794, for which, however, there will be ready use. The total receipts were $274,052, of which $216,441 is from the women's societies.

The report of the Board of Foreign Missions shows: Total receipts from all sources, $478,371, expenditures, $480,216, including $453,698 for missions. The debt at the first of the year was $36,187; at the end of the year, $43,032; Three new missionaries were sent to Japan; three to China; four to India; two to Persia; two to Brazil; one to Chili; two to Mexico; besides a considerable number among the North American Indians. The report closes expressing gratitude to God for encouragement in every direction, but says that the hard times, the famine in some countries, and the Eastern war, have militated against the work and the contributions. The work of women is mentioned with greatest praise. Mrs. John C. Green, of New York, has canceled the debt by giving $50,000.

General News Items.

Dallas papers report a car load of new wheat shipped from that city for St. Louis on the 24th.

All illicit distillers heretofore operating in Virginia have been either captured or driven from the State.

The Mississippi Mills at Wesson are running upon extra time, and have more orders ahead that they can fill.

The Old Catholic census in Germany shows that the number of adherents is 53,640, against 49,808 last year.

Crop prospects were never better in Texas. The wheat crop is ready and much of it harvested. The grasshoppers did but little damage.

The old U. S. Marine Hospital at Natchez, Miss., is undergoing repairs, and will henceforth be used as a Baptist Theological Seminary for colored students.

M. Hotchkiss, an American, the inventor of the gun revolving cannon, has offered to the French government, but has been deterred from the invention as an engine of war.

[illegible] ties of Texas produced 7,500,000 bushels of [illegible] $2,000,000. It is [illegible] wheat could be [illegible] and that the wheat crop [illegible] to $575,000,000.

[illegible] Meeting in New York.

[illegible] Board met in the [illegible], Vice President [illegible] the chair. The [illegible] 082, [illegible] 1877, to $108,[illegible] within the [illegible] be of interest [illegible] as to those [illegible] it. [illegible] efforts, systematic, prayerful as either to [illegible] we have attained [illegible] the subject [illegible] Society [illegible] nature [illegible] Law [illegible] conference [illegible] reduce [illegible] Law [illegible] urged [illegible] The [illegible] the [illegible] and [illegible] society [illegible] constitutional [illegible] 117; [illegible] 110; Blossburg [illegible] back home he would be safe.

As yet, the published evidence is not enough to form a rational judgment. Here is a chance for Gov. Nicholls to redeem his pledge to go in person, if necessary, and see that all classes in the State are protected in every parish.

A Silver Wedding.

There has rarely been a more attractive and brilliant gathering than that which took place at No. 144 Carondelet street last evening. The friends of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. McCarty were there in great numbers to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage. Many having other engagements called to tender their congratulations, and retired, while others sent their cards of regret.

The elegant parlors of the pastor had been delicately and artistically decorated by the young ladies of the church with rosettes of ivy, numerous bouquets of the most choice flowers of this flowery land, while from mirrors and chandeliers gracefully hung festoons of Spanish moss. The choir of the church rendered during the evening some excellent music. The solos of Miss Sacotel, with piano accompaniment, were especially fine.

In the course of the evening silence was called when congratulatory remarks full of wit and tender ness, were made by Rev. Mr. Hartzell, Gen. Cyrus Bussey and Judge Rufus Waples. The doctor and his estimable wife were assured in the strongest terms of the very high esteem in which they were held by the people of New Orleans, of all classes and parties. Miss Cora Bussey read with charming effect an original poem addressed by the pastor to his wife, in which were tenderly recounted the varied scenes of their married life. This was followed by a recitation of Gerald Massey's "Husband and Wife," by Miss Emma Beach. Congratulations and gifts followed, among them was a silver tray from Colonel C. B. Fisher, inscribed, "Repetitio in aurum, New Orleans, Louisiana, June 2, 1877," freighted with a basket of coin of the same metal was presented by Miss Helen Aceman, a fair little maiden from the Sunday School.

Dr. McCarty returned his thanks for gifts and congratulations, assured his friends of the great interest in them all, inviting them to his golden wedding.

Refreshments followed, and the hours of the happy evening sped joyously away, while the warm hearts of the pastor and his wife twined gracefully with those of the people they serve.—N. O. Republican.

The Customhouse.

Collector King begins his work with the evident determination of running the Customhouse in a manner that shall satisfy the most critical. He is slow to make appointments, and this does not suit the impatient, but he wants to be just, and so takes his time to look over and sift out from the two or three thousand applicants, in addition to the four hundred already in, and who want to stay, enough to do the work well.

General A. M. Barney, special agent of the Treasury Department, is here, and General L. A. Sheldon and Col. F. H. Hatch, the latter an ante-bellum Collector, have been appointed by Collector King to act with General Barney in making a thorough investigation of the present condition of the Customhouse, and report whether or no there have been any irregularities, and whether, in any respect, the work can be done better or cheaper in any of the departments.

Meridian District Conference.

The Meridian District Conference was held at the city of Enterprise, Mississippi, May 3d, 4th and 5th, Rev. M. Adams, Presiding Elder in the Chair.

Conference opened by reading the Scriptures, and singing and prayer by Rev. H. Davenport.

C. P. Clemens was elected Secretary, and D. D. Goodwin, assistant. The roll of travelling preachers was called, and twenty answered to their names.

The Conference was one of unusual interest to all; the preachers were in good spirits, and harmony prevailed. The work on the District is in good order; many revivals of religion were reported; strong resolutions were passed on the temperance question, Sunday schools and education; the preachers were urged to be more diligent in the study of the Law [illegible]

Rev. G. W. Barney preached at three o'clock, Rev. J. W. Johnson followed with exhortation, and at night the Secretary preached. The preachers all went home full of the Holy Ghost.

Next District Conference is to be held at Starkville, Mississippi.

C. P. Clemens, Secretary.

The Eclectic Magazine for June completes the twenty-fifth volume of this very readable and welcome periodical. The number is a thoroughly good one, with the following judiciously selected table of contents: On the "Habits of Ants," by Sir John Lubbock; "Lieut. Cameron's Journey Across Africa;" "The French Army in 1877;" "Charles Young, the Actor;" "Loved and Lost;" "The Radiometer and Its Lessons," by Dr. W. B. Carpenter; "Life of a Scotch Naturalist;" three chapters of Mrs. Oliphant's novel, "Young Musgrave;" "Mussulman Homes;" "Carnival Song of Lorenzo de Medicis;" "Harriet Martineau" "The Coming Papal Conclave;" "Deronda's Mother;" "Mr. Ruskin's Will;" "Uncommon Pets;" and "The Beggar." The number also contains a handsome steel portrait of Adelaide Proctor, the poetess, which is accompanied with a brief sketch of her life. The usual departments are well filled. [Published by E. R. Pelton, New York.]

The Old Reliable Jackson Route.

TO THE FRONT AGAIN.

This old favorite passenger route has been greatly improved with steel rails, new iron bridges and new cars, and is now run with great regularity, making sure connections and quick time, and is the shortest and best route to the East via Louisville and Cincinnati.

Pleasure seekers by this route can go via Chicago and through Canada, or via Buffalo and Niagara Falls, to New York and the Northern watering places, at the same fare as via Louisville or the lines through Georgia and Virginia.

A full line of tourist and excursion tickets now on sale at the Jackson Railroad ticket office, No. 22 Camp street, under City Hotel, to all important summer resorts in the East, North and Northwest, by all desired routes.

Only one change of cars between New Orleans and New York and other Eastern cities. No change between Chicago, Cincinnati, Louisville and New Orleans, or from St. Louis to New Orleans.

Palace sleeping cars on all through trains.

Try the old Jackson route.

Bull-Dozing in Texas.

The Comanche Chief, a Democratic journal in Texas, has the following: It is now, as it has been for ten years past. The entire people of Texas have to bear all the slander and abuse for the crimes of the desperadoes and villains who have cursed the State by making her soil the scene of their crimes. Just at a time when the National Administration is offering us peace and liberty, and protection in the exercise of self-government by the States, comes the news of the destruction of a Negro colony in Lee county, by a band of drunken villians. The negroes had purchased the property upon which they were living, and were, as the letter detailing the outrage informs us, honest and industrious citizens. They had constructed their rude cabins, far from the neighborhood of the white people, and were laboring to make themselves comfortable homes, that they need not become theiving vagrants, and thus receive as such characters deserve, death or confinement. But their prospects were too fair. They were too fortunate. A bloodthirsty mob came and undertook to lynch one of their number, but the friends of the victim interfered to rescue and save him from the horrible doom. But not to be baffled thus, the brutes waited but a few nights before returning to consummate what they had undertaken.

This time they were more successfull; and after burning the house of a prominent member of the colony, notified the balance to leave the country, which command was promptly obeyed. When asked why they did not appeal to the civil authorities, one of the negroes replied, that it would do no good, because it would be dangerous for any of their number to appear as witnesses against men who did it.

There is sufficient power in the Government of Texas to protect every citizen of the State. If such be not true, let the people call upon the National Government for such protection as it can afford."

An exchange sums up some of the results of the temperance revival in Southern New York, by reporting the following number of pledges signed in the various cities and villages: Binghamton, 7,000; Lindley, 500; Addison, 600; nearly all of Cameron, Savona, 200; Wellsboro, 1,100; Corning, 900; Wellsboro, 1,100, and 400 of its 500 voters; Penn Yan, 550; Wellsville, 1,600; Alfred, 410; Attica, 1,000; Geneva [illegible]

Sunday School.

June 17, 1877.—THE CAPTIVITY OF ISRAEL.

SCRIPTURE.—2 K. 17: 6-18.

Golden Text.—"Because they obeyed not the voice of the Lord."—2 K. 18:12.

Topic.—"Into Sin—into Bondage.

(Condensed from Nat. S. S. Teacher.)

Captive (6).—The event presaged in all the previous lessons of the year is at last reached in this. We study, now, the wreck and ruin of a nation with the causes which led to its destruction.

The fall of the city was the fall of the kingdom. The captive king in his misfortune had companions in plenty. Adhering to the custom of the times to remove the inhabitants of a conquiered country to their own, and re-people it with colonies of their own subjects, thus making their new territory safely loyal, the Israelites were carried into Assyria and into Media—the latter of which must then have formed a portion of the Assyrian kingdom.

The children of Israel had sinned against the Lord their God. That, properly, is the first clause in the accusation, for it was a sin that comprehended all the others within it. The others are but items under this general charge. 2.—Feared other gods. Not only ceased to love him, but actually worshiped other gods, creatures of immagination or of wood or stone. 3.—walked in the statuses of the heathen. Statutes that had relation, especially, to idolatrous worship. It was all the worse that they should do this for the reason that the Israelites were knowing to the fact that the Lord, on account of the idolatrous practices of the heathen, had taken their land, driven them out of it, and given it to themselves. They had in this an object lesson on the detestation in which the Lord held such worship, and the danger there was in conforming to it, such as, it would seem, should have lasted the nation forever. 4.—Did secretly those things that were not right against the Lord.

5.—Built them high places. Lofty and conspicuous spots were chosen for places of worship by all nations. Abraham built an altar to Lord on a mountain near Bethel—a fact that shows that in that early time the practice was innocent and natural. Later in became corrupted with idolatrous abominations, and, hence was forbidden, in order that the pure worship of God might not be contaminated or utterly given over. There they burnt incense—and wrought wicked things. The rites they observed were impure and disgusting. For they served idols. That is the summing up, and the sufficient reason why they were led into abominations.

Stubborn (13-18).—Yet the Lord testified against Israel and against Judah. He did not give either of them up. Though they were wicked, he was constant. By all prophets. There were few of them that did not have to speak in sharp reproof, while many faithfully foretold that were the sure consequences of persistence in disobedience.

8.—They rejected his statutes. The law of God, delivered to them from Mt. Sinai by the hands and angels, amid impressive thunderings and earthquakes, became a nullity to them. They ceased to regard its precepts or to fear its warnings. And his covenant. They did not reject his statutes without rejecting his covenant, for the one was inwritten in the other and conditioned upon it. No one can claim the blessings who rejects the service.

12.—Made them molten images, even two calves. With them was the first wide departure from God. The Lord had strictly forbidden the making of any image for worship, either as representative of himself or of anything else. Made a grove (Asherah), and worshipped all the host of heaven, and served Baal. Jer. 8: 2. To those absurd and abominable worships did their single defection lead them. The heart that drives God out of it is sure to have strange tenants.

13.—Caused their sons and their daughters to pass through the fire. Molech, or Moloch, the deity to whom these innocents were sacrificed, is thought to have represented the sun, or the destructive element of fire. 14.—Used divination and enchantments. Methods of ascertaining the future, by the reading of stars, or by signs from an inspection of the entrails of beasts offered in sacrifice, or soothsaying by means of serpents, etc. All of which was strictly forbidden. Deut. 18: 10-12. 15.—Sold themselves to do evil. Came into bondage to evil. What they accepted first of free will became in the end a mastering habit. The devil, in the end, never fails to put the yoke upon his captives.

Therefore the Lord was very angry with Israel. Is there not reason enough for this "therefore?" Is there not complete vindication, here, for his acts towards them? Is there any excuse that could be placed in their behalf? Is there any reason to suppose that a longer probation, after two and a half centuries of trial, would have advantaged them any in the way of reform? The Lord was very angry because they had "sold themselves to do evil"—had become [illegible] ibly perverse and wicked. [illegible] them out of his sight. That is out of his land. He found them in Egypt in a state of bondage, and when he they would not repent nor obey him, he remanded them back to their former condition of servitude. The Israelites never returned.

Ripe peaches have appeared in market in this city.

Regular Secretion Essential to Health.

The regular secretion and flow of the gastric juices, and of the bile which the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters promotes, are effects which conduce materially to the restoration of health, when the system is disordered. Food is not digested in the dyspeptic stomach because the gastric fluid is deficient, superabundant or vitiated;—the liver becomes congested and the bowels constipated because the supply of bile is inadequate or misdirected. The Bitters rectifies all this, and removes every ill in consequence of not assimilation and billious irregularity. Furthermore, it stimulates the action of the kidneys, by which impurities are, so to speak, strained from the blood, and any tendency in the urinary organs to grow sluggish and disordered counteracted. Whether it be used as a means of regulating gastric or billious secretion, and relieving the overloaded bowels, or to promote complete, and therefore healthful assimilation, Hostetter's Bitters may be relied upon with confidence to accomplish the end in view.

BOOKS GIVN AWAY
5,000 For the Asking.

WHILE Dr. H. James was attached to the British Medical Staff in the East Indies, his high position enabled him to call about him the best chemists, physicians and scientists of the day, and while experimenting with and among the natives, he accidentally made the discovery that CONSUMPTION can be positively and permanently CURED. During the many years of his sojourn there he devoted his time to the treatment of Lung Diseases, and upon his retirement he left with us books and papers containing full particulars, showing that every one can be his own physician and prepare his own medicine, and such information as we have received we now offer to the public without price, only asking that each remit a three cent stamp for return postage. Address CRADDOCK & CO., 1062 Race st., Phila., Pa., giving name of this paper. [mar15-77-3m

Quarterly Meetings.

Holly Springs (Miss.) District.

SECOND ROUND.

Mt. Pleasant, July 7-8; Kosciusko, July 14-15; French Camp, July 16-17; Greensboro, July 17-19, Winona and Vaiden 21-22; Duck Hill, July 26-27; Granada, July 28-29; Geenada Circuit, July 28-29; Oxford, Aug. 4-5; New Albany, Aug. 8-9; Ripley, Aug. Hickory Flat, Aug. 15; Holly Springs Aug. 18-19; Byhalia, Aug. 21-22; Chulahoma, Aug. 24; Abbeville, Aug. 25-26; Eliza, Aug. 30 and Sept 1st. First District Conference for Holly Springs District will meet on the 14th day of June, at Grenada; all the brethren are requested to be present.

J. G. Johnson, P. E.

Greenswood (Miss.) District.

(Second Round.)

Wesley Chapel, 9 and 10th of June; Silver Creek, 16th and 17th of June; Yazoo City, 23rd and 24th of June; Piney Grove, 30th of June and 1st of July; Deasonville, 7th and 8th of July; Pickens, 14 and 15 of July; Lexington, 21st and 22d of July; Goodman, 28th and 29th of July; Jones Chapel, 4th and 5th of August; McNutt, 11th and 12th of August; Caney Creek, 18th and 19th of August; New Midway, 25th and 26th of August; Hernando, 1st and 2d of September; Panola, 8th and 9th of September; Cold Water, 15th and 16th of September; Walnut City, 22nd and 23d of Sept; Shiloh 26th and 30th Sept. J. W. Dunn, P. E.

Waco (Texas) District.

Seguin, May 26th to 27th; Waco Circuit, June 2d and 3rd; Waco, 9th and 10th; La Grange 14 and 15; Calvert Dist. Conference, June 16th and 17th; ——; June 30th and July 1st; Battle Creek 7th and 8th; Bias 14th and 15th; Belton, 21 and 22; Shiloh, 28th and 29th. S. Gates, P. E.

Meridian (Miss.) District.

Paulding and Claiborne, May 12-13; Garlandville, May 14-15; Newton, May 16-17; Crawford, May 19-20; Starkville, May 26-27; Brooksville, May 26-27; Carthage, June 2-3; Mishularville, June 2-3; Trenton, June 2-3; Whitefield, June 16-17; Louisville, June 19-20; Rome, June 23-24; Ex-Prairie, June 30 and July 1; Macon, July 7-8; Shuqualak, July 11-12; DeKalb, July 14-15; Lauderdale July 21-22; Daleville, July 24-25; Meridian 28-29; Meridian Circuit August 4-5; Quitman August 11-12; Shubuta Circuit, August 15-16; State Line, Aug. 18-19; Shubuta, August 21-22; Enterprise Circuit, Aug. 25-26; Enterprise, Aug. 28-29. M. Adams, P. E.

Okolona District.

(Second round.)

Okolona May 5-6; Corinth and Corinth Circuit, May 12-13; Tupelo, May 14-15; Spring valley and Shady Grove, May 19-20; Big Black, May 26-27; Calhoun, June 2-3; Houston, June 6-7; Pontotoc, 9-10; Union Grove, June 16-17; West Point, June 23-25; Columbus and Columbus Circuit, June 30 and July 1; Tibbe, July 7-8; Tampico, July 14-15; Athens, July 21-22.

The Okolona District Conference will meet at Pontotoc June 10. I hope all the member of the Conference will be present. All the ministers of the Okolona District who are in charge of a work will please send on their post-office address at once.

D. McLachlan, P. E.

Gulf District.

(Second round.)

Pascagoula, May 17:18; Ocean Springs and Biloxi May 19-20; Handsboro, May 21-22; Bay St. Louis, May 23-24; Pass Christian, May 26-27; Crystal Springs, May 31 and June 1; Simpson Circuit, June 5-6; Hazlehurst, June 7-8; New Hope Circuit, June 9-10; Union Church Circuit, June 11-12; Brookhaven, June 13-14; Hamburg Circuit, June 21-22; Meadville Circuit June 23-24; Liberty, June 26-27; Summit and Magnolia, June 28-29; China Grove, June 30 and July 1; Coldmbia, July 2-3; Augusta, July 4-5. L. Bradford, P. E.

Houston, Texas, District.

First Church, Houston, April 1; East Church and Wesley Chapel, Galveston, April 7 and 8; Spring Creek, April 14 and 15; Oyster Creek, April 21 and 22; Richmond and Frost Chapel, April 28 and 29; Houston, Second Church and Edwards Chapel, May 5 and 6; Harrisburg and West Point, May 12 and 13; Columbia and Brazoria, May 19 and 20; Stafford's, May 26 and 27; Houston Circuit, June 2 and 3; Cypress, June 9 and 10.

W. L. Molloy, P. E.

San Antonio (Tex.) District.

Mission Valley April 21 and 22; Cuero April 28 and 29; Indianola and Lavacca, May 5 and 6; Columbus and Clayton, May 12 and 13; Peach Creek and Columbus Circuit, May 19 and 20; San Antonio, May 26 and 27; Boerne, June 2 and 3; Hondo, June 9 and 10; Floresville June 16 and 17; Sutherland Springs, June 23 and 24; Seguin, July 1; Gibola, July 4 and 5; Riddleville, July 4 and 5; Lavernia, 7 and 8; Goliad Circuit, July 11 and 12; Bellevue, July 14 and 15; Refugio, July 18 and 19; Wrightsboro, July 21 and 22; Goliad, July 28 and 29.

D. Gangery, P. E.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from active practice, having had placed his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of consumption, bronchite, catarrh, asthma, and all throat and lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for nervous debility and all nervous complaints, after having thoroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, feels it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive, and a conscientious desire to relieve human suffering, he will send, free of charge, to all who desire it, this receipe, with full directions for preparing and successfully using. Sent by return mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, Dr. W. C. Stevens, 126 Power's Block, Rochester N. Y. [may10-77-4t

SOUTHWESTERN AGENCY
FOR
School and College Text Books.

Office No. 80 CAMP STREET (up stairs).

Below we submit the MODEL SERIES of books (so conceded by the leading educators of this country) for use in PRIMARY, INTERMEDIATE and GRAMMAR schools. To insure their adoption by the progressive teacher we have only to ask a careful comparison with books of a like grade, a critical examination and a thorough, practical test in the class-room:

	Prices.
Harper's Introductory Geography	60
Harper's School Geography	$1 25
" United States First Reader	15
" " " Second "	26
" " " Third "	37
" " " Fourth "	56
" " " Fifth "	75
" " " Sixth "	90
Wilson's Primary Speller	15
" Larger "	30
" New "	34
Lamson's Penmanship, per dozen	1 80
French's First Lessons in Numbers	25
" Elementary Arithmetic	37
" Mental Arithmetic	36
" Common School Arithmetic	70
Swinton's Language Primer	34
" Language Lessons	37
" School Composition	37
" Progressive Grammar	55

Catalogues, circulars, and testimonials sent on applications. Correspondence solicited and will receive prompt attention, when addressed

W. P. ROGERS & W. L. JARVIS, Agents for the introduction of Harper & Brothers' Educational Works; New Orleans, La.; Lock Box 134.

Agents Wanted.

For new edition of History of great temporance Reforms, and "Belshazzar's Feast," by a London artist, in chromatic colors, 19x26. Bothawe sold for $6; are now sent free on receipt of $3 25. Address Rev. James Shaw, Rossville, Ill. may17,4t.

B. J. WEST,
115 & 117 Magazine Street

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Wholesale Dealer and Manufacturer's Agent.

PLANTATION HARDWARE,
AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS,
STEAM ENGINES, COTTON GINS
SAW MILLS, GRIST MILLS,
PUMPS, &c., &c.

AT LOW PRICES.

Send for Circulars and Price Lists.

Medical Students

Thoroughly qualified for successful practice by THE HOSPITAL

COLLEGE OF MEDICINE.
LOUISVILLE, KY.

[The clinical school of the West.]

No student leaves the College who cannot show that he can intelligently examine and prescribe for the cases presented. For catalogue and information concerning special advantages, address

W. H. BOLLING, M. D. DEAN, Louisville, Ky.

Webster's Unabridged.

3000 Engravings; 1540 pages Quarto.
FOUR PAGES COLORED PLATES.
A Whole Library in itself.
Invaluable in a Family.

New contains twenty-five per cent. more matter than any other one volume English Dictionary published in this country or Great Britain

A NATIONAL STANDARD.

The sale is 20 times as great as the sale of any other large Dictionary.

More than 30,000 copies have been placed in the public schools of the United States.

Recommended by 20 State Superintendents of schools.

Warmly recommended by Bancroft, Prescott, Motley, Geo. P. Marsh, Halleck, Whittier, Willis, Saxe, Elihu Burritt, Daniel Webster, Rufus Choate, H. Coleridge, Sumner, Horace Mann, President Woolsey, Wayland, Hopkins, Dick, Walker, Anderson, (more than fifty College Presidents in all) and the best American and European scholars.

"Indispensible to every student of the English language."—M. R. Waite, Chief Justice United States.

The Highest Authority in Great Britain as well as in the United States.

"The best practical English Dictionary extant. —London Quarterly Review, Oct. 1873.

ALSO

Webster's National Pictorial Dictionary.

600 Engravings; 1040 Pages Octavo.

Published by G. & C. MERRIAM, Springfield, Mass

Webster's Abridgments,

Published by Ivison, Blakeman, Taylor & Co. N. Y.

Webster's Primary School Dictionary,	204	Engr'gs.
" Common "	274	"
" High "	297	"
" Academic "	344	"
" Counting House "	with numerous illustrations and many valuable tables not to be found elsewhere

NOW READY.

"HEAVENWARD."

A new collection of Sunday-school Songs
By James R. Murray,

containing, besides new contributions from most of the leading writers of Sunday-school music in America, the best and most Popular Hymns and Music of the late

—P. P. BLISS.—

most of which will be found in no other book.

"Heavenward" is now ready, and for sale by booksellers and music dealers throughout the country

"Heavenward" is unequaled by any other book, both in words and music.

"Heavenward" is the only new book in which you will find P. P. Bliss's most famous songs

"Heavenward" is our usual Sunday school style, printed on fine tinted paper, and containing 160 pages. Price, 35 cents, by mail; $30 per hundred. Specimen pages free. Single sample copy, in paper covers, mailed for 25 cents. Order from your bookseller, or of the publishers

S. BRAINARD'S SONS, Publishers, Cleveland, Ohio

apr28-77-1y]

$1 50 FOR 25 CENTS.

Pilgrim's Progress,

BY JOHN BUNYAN,

And a history of his Remarkable Life.

A Handsomely Bound Cloth (Cils) volume, containing 315 pages and 13 full-page illustrations. Every family should have one. Until sold out we will mail, postpaid, to any address on receipt of 25 cents. We have on hand also a few copies containing Bunyan's Holy War in addition to the Pilgrim's Progress, with gilt edges, and extra gilt finish on sides and back, 500 pages, which we will mail, until disposed of, for $1. Address, ROBT. J. HARP, Agent. Nos. 110 and 112 Cam St., New Orleans. Headquarters for Methodist and Sunday School Union publications. May 31, 2 t.

Jewelry for all.

The EUREKA JEWELRY CASKET contains one pair gold-plated engraved sleeve buttons, one set (3) spiral shirt studs, one Gents im. coral pin, one improved shape collar stud, one Gents fine link watch chain, and one Ladies Heavy wedding ring; price of one casket, complete, 50 cents; three for $1.25; six for $2, and 12 for $3.50, all sent postpaid by mail. Sixteen and a solid silver watch for $20. Agents can make money selling these caskets. Send 50 cents for sample and catalogues. We have all kinds of jewelry at low prices.

COLES & CO., 785 Broadway, N. Y. City.

We are the originals in this business, and have no "Milton Gold" or "brass" jewelry.

This Jewelry casket is remarkably attractive, and Cole & Co. are reliable dealers.—Boston Globe. [may10-4t

"The principle of combining English and American writers in a common literary enterprise, merits all encouragement."—J. Anthony Froude.

THE
INTERNATIONAL REVIEW,
A NEW YORK AND LONDON REVIEW.

Eminent Contributors on both sides of the Atlantic. (No articles at second hand. All articles original.)

Contents.—May-June—Now Ready.

The New Administration.
The Life Insurance Question. Carlton T. Lewis.
Disestablishment of the Church of England. Dr. James H. Rigg, London.
The Philadelphia Exhibition.—Part I. Mechanism and Administration. Francis A. Chief of the Bureau of Awards.
Tennyson.—A Criticism. Bayard Taylor.
Our Foreign Service. Hon. John Jay.
American and European Literature. Philip Gilbert Hamerton.
Contemporary Events.

Price, Single Number, $1. For six months $3. Annual subscription (6 numbers) $5.

New York: A. S. BARNES & CO., Publishers.

apr27-10t]

Texas Lands.

Best Investment in the Nation!

640 acres rich prairie loam, producing cotton, grains, fruit and vegetables, and adapted to stock, lying in the high and healthful latitude of Northwestern Texas for the nominal sum of $300.

Title Patent, direct and perfect. Taxes low. Worth several times the cost. Now is your time to plant a small sum fruitfully. No fraud. All work personally supervised. Handled in the interest of colonization in Texas. Full particulars furnished on application, (with stamps).

References: Rev. Wm. Brush, D.D., P. E. Austin District, Austin, Texas; First National Bank, Dallas, Texas; State Savings Bank, Dallas, Texas, or editor of this paper. Address

REV. L. H. CARHART,
West Texas Conference,
Box 377, Dallas, Texas. [a19-4t

A. P. HARRINGTON,

No. 118 Canal Street,

New Orleans, - - - - - La.

Dealer in

LAW, MEDICAL, SCHOOL, RELIGIOUS, AGRICULTURAL AND MISCELLANEOUS

BOOKS

Stationery, Gold Pens and Pencils.

Pocket Books, Card Cases, Pocket Knives, Scrap Books, Chromos, Photograph Albums, Stereoscopes, Maps, Globes, Writing Desks, &c.

PRINTING, RULING and BINDING.

Subscriptions taken for Newspapers and Magazines, Payable in advance.

Country Orders Solicited. feb16-76-1y

THE
Houston and Texas Central Railroad,

Operating over 500 miles of superior road, runs North and South through the

FINEST AGRICULTURAL and GRAZING DISTRICTS in TEXAS

And offers the most desirable sites for location to parties immigrating to that great State. The

NORTHWESTERN BRANCH

Of this road, which is now being pushed forward beyond Waco, will pierce the Great Mineral region of

NORTHWESTERN TEXAS.

For further information, address

J. R. COFFIN, G. P. A., Chattanooga, Tenn.
C. R. WHITNEY & CO., New Orleans, La.
J. WALDO, G. P. A., or J. DURAND, Gen'l Superintendent, Houston, Texas. [mar29-77-1y

R. HEATH. W. F. PIPPEY, M. LARA.

HEATH, PIPPEY & LARA,

99.....CAMP STREET..... 99

NEW ORLEANS.

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

UPHOLSTERERS MATERIALS,

Wall Paper,

Window Shades, Cornices, and

CURTAIN GOODS.

PICTURES, FRAMES,
MOULDINGS, MIRRORS,
LOCKS, WIRE-CLOTH,
WINDOW & DOOR SCREENS

FRAMING DONE TO ORDER. 14-1y

Virginia Roofing Slate.—The Best and strongest in the world, not excepting the well-known Welsh Slate.

The undersigned, having accepted the agency for the sale of the celebrated ORE BANK and IMPERIAL QUARRIES, is now prepared to fill orders at prices much below those of Welsh and but little in excess of those of ordinary American Slates. Builders, contractors, and slaters generally are invited to submit them to the severest tests.

ALEXANDER HILL,
may1-76 1y] 110 Carondelet st., N. O.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples free. Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine. [Dec 21 76 1y

Lungs and Throat.

Inhalation of common air is known to cure Consumption will cure. Dr. T. H. [illegible] of Passaic, N. J., sends his Treatise, with full directions, post free for 20 cts. Send for circulars. may31

TRY HIM ONCE MORE.

[illegible] books bad, I was, sir, very bad;
But let me try and serve, for cash the lad;
He feels his guilt, e'en to his heart's deep core,
Try him once more!

Deal with him, sir, this tender, erring one,
As you would have another serve your son;
Youth is impatient—'tis the first offense—
Send him not hence!

If you forgive him now, and hide his shame,
'Twill fire his heart, perhaps, to earn a name,
And show his gratitude as ne'er before,
Try him once more!

He seems a likaly lad—his eye is bright,
His limbs are pleasant to the sight;
Let him go on, sir, still, in your employ;
Pardon the boy.

Give him good counsel, in a gentle way;
Tell him the story of your boyhood's day,
Relate your victories and temptations o'er,
Try him once more!

A gloomy cell would never better things,
Hate supplant and hope might then take wings;
You say yourself it is his first offense;
Send him not hence!

[illegible] be and he becomes a man,
[illegible] he, by years own wisoplan,
[illegible] may greet you at life's com-
[illegible] "I've saved a soul."

"But how will it do to wait?"

[illegible] had come home from [illegible] service in a country [illegible] lady of the house, [illegible] to provide her [illegible], said, before her [illegible] "Dr. [illegible] you to talk to [illegible] nothing [illegible], nor about [illegible] Minister to [illegible] to do her any [illegible] talk to her, [illegible] which, she [illegible] quietly [illegible] he turned [illegible] said: [illegible] Caroline, [illegible] you amazingly [illegible] surprise, at an ad- [illegible] pected, answered at [illegible] do; they keep [illegible] at the time, till I am [illegible] Mr. N. "Let's [illegible]?"

[illegible] N., "religion [illegible] the idea [illegible] young [illegible] think [illegible] do [illegible] my [illegible] we [illegible] a lady [illegible] that. [illegible] to wait [illegible] either; [illegible] now, [illegible] we [illegible]

[illegible] & PHILLIPS [illegible] yielded benefits to the world at large. The steam-engine itself was brought into practical use by James Watt, who had to earn his daily bread by making mathematical instruments and repairing fiddles, and indeed seems to have been glad to get almost any employment.—Cassell's Family Magazine.

Intemperance in North Carolina.

The Raleigh (N. C.) Observer makes the following statement in regard to intemperance in North Carolina:

"Now, if the population of the state be 1,070,120 souls, our people pay $8,500,960 for liquor, about $1,000,000 for education, and for their religion $269,830. That is, they think eight times as much of whisky as they do of education and thirty-two times as much of whisky as they do of Christian faith. This is a most humiliating confession for us to make; and yet we are compelled to admit its truth, for what people give their money for they certainly appreciate. Let us now compare the cost of spirituous liquors with some of the great farming interests of the State. There are 200,000 bales of cotton grown in North Carolina annually. These bales will average 400 pounds. At 19 cents per pound this cotton will bring $8,000,000. All the cotton grown in the State won't pay her liquor bill by $560,960. The wheat crop of the State amounts to 2,254,641 bushels. At $2 a bushel all the wheat of the State won't pay for but about half of our liquor bill. The corn crop, which is 18,454,041 bushels, at 60 cents a bushel, will bring but one-third more than is expended each year for that which impoverishes the State, increases her taxes, and degrades her people."

Surely temperance people have a great field for operation in North Carolina. Its cotton crop will not pay its liquor bill!

How Mr. Moody joined the Church.

The records of the Mount Vernon Congregational Church in Boston show the following record of how Mr. Moody joined the Church when but a boy.

"No. 1079. Dwight L. Moody.—Boards 45 Court Street. Has been baptised. First examined on the 16th May. Became anxious about himself. Saw himself a sinner, and sin now seems hateful and holiness desirable. Thinks he has repented. Has purposed to give up sin. Feels dependent upon Christ for forgiveness. Loves the Scriptures. Prays. Desires to be useful. Religiously educated. Been in the city a year. From Northfield, this State. Is not ashamed to be known as a Christian. Eighteen years old.

"No. 1131. March 12th, 1856.—Thinks he has made some progress since [illegible] last, in [illegible] his habit [illegible] the Bible. [illegible] will [illegible] his people [illegible] to adhere to the cause of Christ always. Feels that it would be very bad if he should join the Church and then turn. Must repent of sin and ask forgiveness for Christ's sake. Will give up his hope or love Christ less, if admitted to the church [illegible] railing intention is to give up his will to God. [illegible] 1856."

[illegible] then, the counsel to the [illegible]: Maintain [illegible] distinction [illegible] of all. Sustain [illegible] which [illegible] such sacrifices. We may expect [illegible] celebration of [illegible]; the most un- [illegible] over Republican [illegible] that is should not [illegible] your political [illegible] State or [illegible] be administered [illegible] the basis of Re- [illegible] Whatever may [illegible] the people [illegible] accept the national [illegible] principles. You should [illegible] the agitation and you will [illegible] the calm. Stand like the [illegible] of Waterloo under the [illegible] the [illegible] to move forward [illegible] duties of the last [illegible] can make [illegible]

TEXT BOOKS

FOR THE

NEW COURSE OF STUDY.

As authorized to be pursued by candidates for the ministry in the Methodist Episcopal Church, by the Bishops, for the ensuing four years, to commence with Spring Conferences, 1877.

[Books are bound in CLOTH, where not specified.]

For Admission on Trial in the Traveling Connection.

Books to be Studied:

RAWLINSON'S Ancient History. A Manual of Ancient History from the earliest times to the fall of the Western Empire. By George Rawlinson, M.A. Large 12mo $2 50

STUDENT'S Old Testament History. From the Creation to the Return of the Jews from Captivity. With an Appendix, containing an Introduction to the books of the Old Testament. Edited by Wm. Smith, LL.D. With maps and woodcuts. Large 12mo. 2 00

STUDENT'S New Testament History. With an Introduction, connecting the History of the Old and New Testaments. Edited by P. Schaff, LL.D. With maps and woodcuts. Large 12mo 2 00

HISTORY of the United States, from the Abolition of Slavery to the present day. By John Clark Ridpath, A.M. 8vo 2 00

[illegible] 2 50

AMERICAN Methodism: Abridged from the author's History of the Methodist Episcopal Church. By Abel Stevens, D.D., LL.D. Paper covers 1 50

ERNESTO: A Tale-book, designed for use in schools and colleges, and for private study. By E. S. Ferry, D.D., LL.D. 12mo 1 50

ELEMENTS of Logic. By C. K. Free, D.D. 12mo 50

DISCIPLINE of the Methodist Episcopal Church, 1876:

Paper, cloth 40

Sheep, morocco back 1 00

Books to be Read:

CHRISTIAN THEOLOGY; or, a concise, comprehensive, and systematic view of the evidences, doctrines, morals and institutions of Christianity. By Daniel Wakefield, D.D. 8vo 3 00

LIFE of Rev. John Wesley. By Rev. Richard Watson. 12mo 1 25

HANDBOOK of Bible Geography, containing the name, pronunciation, and meaning of every proper name, and other identities in both the Canonical and Apocryphal Scriptures. By Rev. George R. Whitney, A.M. Illustrated by twenty-one hundred engravings, and forty maps and plans. Large 12mo 2 00

CHRISTIAN PURITY, Nature and Necessity of. By R. S. Foster, D.D. Revised. 12mo 1 75

STUDENT'S Gibbon. The History of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire. By Edward Gibbon. Abridged, incorporating the results of recent investigations. By Wm. Smith, LL.D. 100 engravings on wood. 12mo 2 00

First Year's Course.

Books to be Studied:

WARREN'S Theological Institutes.

1 vol.; cloth, new 1 00

2 vols.; cloth 1 50

1 vol.; calf, gilt 3 00

CHRISTIAN SELF-EDUCATION, Plain Account of. By Rev. John Wesley. 24mo 45

HISTORY of the Church from the earliest ages to the Reformation. By Rev. George Waddington, M.A. 8vo 2 00

A TREATISE on Sanctification. By D. P. Kidder, D.D. 12mo 1 25

MENTAL Philosophy. By J. D. Upham. 16mo 75

Books to be Read:

[illegible] 1 vol. 8vo 4 00

HISTORY of Rome. Vols. 1, 2 and 3. By Dean Liddell, LL.D. 12mo; cloth, each 1 75

[illegible] 1 50

THEOLOGY of the New Testament. By Rev. [illegible] 12mo 1 75

SAINT PAUL'S Conversion. By R. De [illegible] 12mo; cloth 1 75

Second Year's Course.

Books to be Studied:

WARREN'S Theological Institutes (Part II.)

[illegible] 1 00

[illegible] 1 00

[illegible] 1 00

[illegible] the subjects made [illegible] and relative order. By [illegible] 12mo 1 50

[illegible] of Moral Science. By Francis Wayland, D.D. 12mo 1 75

THE [illegible] of the Will. By D. D. Whedon, D.D. 12mo 1 75

[illegible] Religion. By Bishop Butler [illegible] 1 00

[illegible] 1 75

[illegible] 1 50

[illegible] 1 50

[illegible] 1 75

[illegible] 2 00

[illegible] 1 50

[illegible] 1 75

[illegible] 2 00

[illegible] 2 00

[illegible] 2 00

Southwestern Christian Advocate.

NEW SERIES—VOL. 1—NO. 24. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, JUNE 14, 1877. WHOLE NUMBER 254

SOUTHWESTERN

Christian Advocate,

PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT

80 Natchez St., New Orleans.

BY

NELSON & PHILLIPS,

FOR THE

Methodist Episcopal Church.

Terms: $2 a year, Cash in Advance.

All Travelling Preachers of the Methodist Episcopal Church are authorized Agents.

Subscriptions may begin at any time and the paper will be sent as long as paid for.

Remittances must be made by Registered Letter, P. O. Money Order, or by Express.

Advertising Rates.

(For Nonpareil line, each insertion.)

[illegible]

Special Notices ... 8 cents, net cash.

LEONA.

Leona, the hour draws nigh,
The hour we've awaited so long,
For an angel to open a door through the sky,
That my spirit may break from its prison and try
Its voice in an infinite song.

Just now as the slumbers of night
Come [illegible] with peace-giving breath,
The [illegible] revealed to my [illegible] look on the kingdom
[illegible] the river of death.

[illegible] solemn and sweet.
[illegible] of a morning-lit land;
[illegible] shores which the pale
[illegible] as they broke at [illegible] the beautiful strand.

[illegible] why spirits should cling
[illegible] a struggle and sigh,
[illegible] is better than [illegible] away like a sparrow to sing
In a climate where leaves never die.

[illegible] my bed,
[illegible] hand on my brow,
[illegible] thrilled me in days
[illegible] of youth from the [illegible] moments now.

[illegible]

Central Tennessee College.

The commencement exercises of this institution closed Friday evening May, 18th. The writer was present the Sunday before, and at 3 o'clock p.m. preached the annual sermon to a large, attentive audience, gathered in Thompson Chapel. The examinations began Tuesday and classes were subjected to written and oral tasks. The students, with but few exceptions, gave evidence of having made commendable progress in the several branches pursued during the session. We were most favorably impressed with the analysis given, the directness in the answers drawn out, and the well-sustained dignity in the personal demeanor of the school. We observed no parade. Every performance was plain and business like and evidently there have been no set questions given out in advance to preclude the possibility of a failure on the part of the student. We listened to some delightful music, vocal and intrumental, and if we were in the possession of an abundant store of adjectives, we could, perhaps, employ them all in describing its fine quality, and the pleasant emotions it aroused. A goodly number of visitors were present each day and were heard to speak in terms highly commendatory of the marked advance witnessed in the various departments.

Tuesday evening Dr. D. C. Kelly, of the M. E. Church, South, delivered an able address before the students and others present. The speaker was in deep sympathy with the work of uplifting the hitherto oppressed, and confessed his willingness to exert the measure of his influence in helping them toward a higher plane of christian civilization. He saw a glorious future awaiting this people, and made an eloquent appeal to the young men and women, urging them to closer diligence in seeking the preparation necessary in order to a successful prosecution of their sublime mission. He made a touching allusion to his early life among the formerly enslaved. He cherished now even the fond remembrance of their kindness toward him from his earliest infancy and thought he should ever regard them as his brethren, friends and fellow-citizens. He desired to see them have a fair chance in the race of life, to grow up in all that pertains to substantial character to the end that they might reach a point of enviable distinction and render themselves a blessing to the world. His remarks were heard with profound attention, and riveted a strong conviction.

An educational meeting, at which the writer presided, was held Wednesday evening. Rev. C. S. Smith was the speaker for the occasion. He announced as his theme, "Our Duty," and then held the rapt attention of the audience for more than hour. He treated the subject in a manner that fully demonstrated the presence of no little oratorical power united with much literary ability. His utterances doubtless produced a lasting impression. Thursday afternoon, the annual meeting of the Board of Trustees took place, and at night the anniversary exercises of the Central Tennessee College Endowment Association were held. Revs. H. W. Key, W. B. Rippetoe and J. G. Thompson appeared as the principal speakers. They represented different shades and constituted a small mixed conference. It is due to remark, that notwithstanding this fact, the most perfect harmony prevailed and no one has been heard to intimate that he had sustained the least hurt by the arrangement. Mark the type, and pardon the digression! The necessity for taking immediate steps to raise the sum of five thousand dollars as an endowment fund, to be placed at the disposal of the Trustees by our people, was the main thread running through the masterly speeches delivered.

A great deal of interest was manifested in the exercises by the large, enthusiastic audience in attendance. This Association starts out upon its benevolent mission with fresh inspiration, and we sadly err in our [illegible], if a year hence does not [illegible] to notice some grand achievement wrought out through its [illegible]. The Commencement proper, [illegible] Friday evening. The graduates [illegible] the Academic and Normal [illegible] delivered addresses. The [illegible] were strikingly ap[illegible] and handled in such a [illegible] as to convince the [illegible] they had reaped the [illegible] thorough mental drill [illegible] for some time to come. It has its hinderances and its foes, which have prevented its making such a near approach to a self-supporting basis as many have devoutly wished. The church does not need to be reminded that every stride made in our school work multiplies the chances for the success of our church work. The former must precede the latter. Especially is this true with reference to this section. The donation of a few thousand dollars to the Central Tennessee College would not only place the institution on a more permanent footing, but prove an incalculable blessing to our church throughout the State, yea throughout the South. Thank God for what He hath already brought to pass.

D. H. HAYS,

Murfreesboro Tenn.

Letter from Mexico.

Some months have passed since my last communication to the SOUTHWESTERN, during which time it has passed from the rank of a local paper to that of a General Church Organ. Allow me to congratulate you, Mr. Editor, on this deserved promotion and to express a hearty wish that in its new relation the SOUTHWESTERN may become one of God's chosen instruments for the extension of Christian intelligence and vital piety throughout the wide domain of its patronage.

Since my last, Mexico as well as the United States has had a change of government, although in a manner somewhat less satisfactory than that which resulted in the election of Mr. Hayes. On the 5th of May, Gen. Diaz was formally declared the constitutionally elected President of Mexico, and in form laid aside the character of a revolutionary leader to become Chief executive of the nation. According to latest intelligence it appears that he is not to have undisputed occupancy of the chair of State, but that the clouds of war and revolution are again darkening the northern sky. We lament profoundly the prospects of another revolution, since it is evident that the country can gain nothing but lose much in these devastating civil conflicts. Almost the entire country had high hopes of a decided change and great advancement under the administration of Gen. Diaz. But already many of his warmest supporters are dissatisfied, and are ready to plunge into another revolution in favor of Iglesias or even of Lerdo. It seems to me that this dissatisfaction is premature, and that Diaz should at least be given a fair chance to develop his plans for the prosperity of the country. At all events what can be gained by again paralyzing every interest of society and business in the uncertain chances of another civil war.

Under the new administration our cause enjoys equal protection and security as under the old, and is constantly making new conquests. It is true, that we are much hindered by the lack of funds this year, but still the work advances in the points already occupied by the church. In this city our congregations continue good, and the work is constantly deepening in the hearts and showing itself in the lives of the attendants. Beside the congregation itself, the influence of the Gospel in destroying external forms of superstition in the population at large has been wonderful, and sufficient to excite and alarm the clergy of the city not a little. Tracts and scriptures have gone out into all parts of the country for fifty miles, and are silently preparing the way for the living preacher when the church at home shall say "Forward!"

In other parts of the field the work is not less active and vigorous than here. In Cordova, Orizaba, Puebla, Pachuca and Mexico, all report growth in congregations and a deepening interest in spiritual Christianity. In some places class-meetings and love-feasts have been established and are very successful. But the most marked progress this year is at Miraflores and in the valley of Amecameca, at the south of the City of Mexico. In a little over a year four new congregations have been formed, and all are flourishing finely. The region is one of the loveliest in Mexico and one

"Where every prospect pleases
And only man is vile."

And there, thank God, the Gospel is reforming vile man, and restoring him to the likeness of his Maker. Recently, Dr. Butler, visited Miraflores to receive a bequest of $500 left by the good Mrs. Robertson at her death, toward the erection of a church at that place. Her husband kindly donated the land, and when Dr. B. went to receive possession, [illegible] friends gave him about [illegible] more on the condition that the church should be erected at [illegible]. Our good superintendent's faith took this $1700 as a sufficient [illegible], and before returning home [illegible] laid out the [illegible]. He [illegible] at this [illegible] the [illegible] of the church and minister to the one English and five Spanish congregations in that neighborhood. He and his family left us last week for that field and he is doubtless ere this engaged in his new work, aided by two native preachers. The church is to be built on a plan drawn for Dr. B., by a Boston architect, and will doubtless be one of the handsomest little churches in Mexico, and will accomodate between 200 and 300 persons. By the withdrawal of Bro. S., we are left weaker here, but as God is our strength and our fortress we hope that the cause will not suffer loss.

Our new paper, El Abogado Cristiano Ilustrado, is meeting with very good success, being as it is very superior in style, paper and engravings. Thus far between 600 and 700 subscribers have been secured in Mexico with many points yet to be heard from. In this city we have nearly one hundred subscribers, and only the second number has been published yet.

We are selling a great many books of various kinds, thus showing that the work is taking an intelligent form, and awaking a desire for knowledge and advancement.

Altogether the cause of Christ is gaining a good foothold in Mexico, and the seed is being sown which is yet to result in a bounteous harvest of souls for the Master's kingdom. May the church at home plan large things for the spiritual conquest of this entire people.

SAMUEL P. CRAVER.

Guanajuato, May 23d, 1877.

Shaw University.

The annual examination of classes in Shaw University began on Friday, May 25, and continued till Wednesday, May 30. Among the more advanced classes were Latin, Greek, Algebra, Geometry, Ancient History, and Rhetoric, whose examination I have never seen excelled. These students are certainly proving that they are fully able to attain the highest ranks in education. The propositions in Geometry were demonstrated with great ease and facility. There was one young lady in the class who exhibited a remarkable mathematical talent. The Ancient History was undoubtedly the banner class of the school.

All the classes proved by the manner in which they had acquitted themselves that their individual efforts had been earnest, and that the great aim of their instructors had been to teach principles, and quicken thought, rather than cultivate memory without judgment. The general deportment of the students indicated a mild, though strict discipline, and a development of virtue and morality with all the traits of true manhood and womanhood.

The Annual Sermon was preached by the President, Rev. W. W. Hooper. He delivered an interesting address from St. John xix: 30, "It is finished," which was well suited to the occasion. He admonished the students, that to accomplish great results they must be pious and holy, virtuous and persevering; that they should have a definite purpose in life, and should put forth every effort to complete that which they undertake.

The literary exercises of Monday and Wednesday evenings were a success, excelling those of any previous year. The audiences were large, and crowded, and all speak in the highest terms of what they saw and heard.

Shaw University is doing great good in the cause of education in the South, and much more is expected of her. During the past year forty-five of her students have taught six months each in the public schools of Mississippi and Tennessee, with an average attendance of a little above thirty-five, making upwards of fifteen hundred pupils that have been under their instruction for six months.

But there is great need of a new building and increased educational facilities. We earnestly pray that those who have been helping in the past will still remember us.

It is generally known by the friends of the institution that we have been trying for some time to erect another building, but have failed thus far to get the necessary funds. The Freedman Aid Society has already paid for the brick, and we are now to raise means to further on the "good begun work." The question arises, Shall we do it? Yes! There are thirty thousand members and friends of the M. E. Church in the State, and will that great host of God's children let such a great work fail? Will they let the great wheel of education be clogged by their hesitating to contribute a small sum to this object? If each one would give fifty cents to this, it would soon be done. Will you do it? Answer the question by each and every one paying from fifty cents to one dollar. If there would be a concentration of effort all over the State, the money could be raised in three months.

B. Q. A.

Printing was invented in 1450.

Raffling for Freedom.

From Appleton's Journal for June.

We translate from a German sketch of American travel the subjoined account of an incident alleged to have occured on a Mississippi steamboat a short time before the wer.

I ascended the Mississippi, says the writer, on a steamer on board of which were Judge J—— and Gen. K——, of Pennsylvania, with both of whom I was slightly acquainted.

"A hard set, these Natchez men," said the captain, who met us on the cabin stairs. "There's some of them down in the saloon playing a high game. How men can be such fools I could never see!"

"Let's go down and look on a while," suggested the Judge.

In the saloon we found four men seated at a table, around which a crowd of spectators was gathered. The four were the "heavy players." The game was poker and the money changed hands rapidly. We had not been looking on long when one of the players, a middle aged man, who I learned was a cotton planter bet his last dollar against the hand of one of his antagonists. The latter showed four kings, while he had only four queens. He was "cleaned out," and rose as though he were going to leave the table.

"Are you broke, Colonel?" asked one of the men.

"Dead!" was the laconic reply.

Never mind; I'll lend you."

"No; I can make a raise, I reckon—here, Pomp?"

"Here, massa!" responded an old negro, as he emerged from one corner of the saloon.

"Bring that girl and her youngster here, that I bought in Natchez. Wait a few minutes, gentlemen, I'll raise some money."

The old negro went on his errand and soon returned with the girl and her youngster. The "girl" proved to be a stately mulatto woman about thirty-five years old. Her "youngster" was a fine, intelligent looking boy eleven or twelve years old whose complexion showed him to be much more nearly allied to the white race than to the black.

"Here, gentlemen," said the planter as they entered, "you see this girl and her boy—two as fine niggers as you can find anywhere. I paid $800 for them yesterday in Natchez. Who will give me $600 for them?"

"Will you sell them seperate?" asked some one.

"No, I can't do it; I promised not to. The girl swears she'll take her life if she's separated from her boy, and the old master said that he was sure she'd keep her word. But don't you see that the girl is worth more money than I ask for both of them? Come, who'll give me six hundred for both?"

The planter waited a moment for a reply, and then said:

"Well, I must have some money. Come, what say you to a raffle—thirty chances at $20 a chance? Out with your cash gentlemen. The first on the list has the first throw!"

This proposition created a decided stir among all present. The three players led off by taking three chances each. Their example was followed by the spectators, and twenty chances were taken as rapidly as the planter could write down the names and take the money. Then there was a slight pause. The planter himself now took two chances, was followed by his three fellow players, who each took one chance more. Finally, three more chances were taken by the spectators, when the planter cried out:

"Two chances still, gentlemen; who will have them?"

Gen. K——whispered something in Judge J——'s ear, and then went to the table and laid two ten dollar gold pieces on it.

"Name, sir, please?"

"Never mind the name. Put it down for the woman—"

"Eh—what! for the girl herself?"

"Yes, certainly; let's give her a chance."

"All right! One for Ninette. And now—"

"That's for the boy," said Judge J——, quietly, as he laid $20 on the table.

"Good! bravo! bravo!" cried the planter and several of the bystanders. "One for Tommy, which makes the thirty. Now, gentlemen, let's see whom luck favors."

The dice were brought and the throwing began. Each chance entitled the holder to three throws.

Thirty-six was the highest thrown until the holder of the eleventh chance threw. He scored forty-two.

Then a less number number was thrown, until number twenty-one scored forty-nine.

The excitement now became intense. Forty-nine was hard to beat: the highest throw possible being nine sixes—fifty-four.

"Come, Ninette—its your turn now!"

As the poor woman came forward, her hands crossed and pressed convulsively against her breast, it was truly painful to witness her agitation.

"Won't the gentleman that took the chance for me please throw?" she asked in a low, tremulous tone.

"No; let your boy throw; replied the General, "perhaps he would have more luck than I."

"Come Tom," said the planter.

Tom came forward and picked up the box. The woman pressed her lips firmly together and clasped her hands as if in prayer. The boy trembled like an aspen leaf, but shook the dice and threw—three!

For a moment he stared at the dice as though he could not believe his eyes; then he put down the dice box and stepped back, pale and dejected.

"Come, Tommy, throw again," urged his master.

"It's no use, master; I couldn't throw forty-nine now.

True, true! But you have your own chance. Throw that."

"Certainly," said Judge J——, "that one was your mother's. Now throw for yourself, on the chance I gave you. Have a stout heart, my boy, and may Heaven smile on you."

Again the boy returned to the table and took up the box. He pressed his lips together and did his best to control his trembling limbs. Not a sound was heard in the saloon but the rattling of the dice. For a moment every man seem to hold his breath.

He threw.

"Two fives and a six—sixteen!" said the planter, putting down the number, while a murmur of satisfaction ran through the crowd.

One of the bystanders gathered up the dice and put them in the box, and the boy threw again.

"Two sixes and a five—seventeen! The excitement now knew no bounds, and the "bravos" resounded on every hand. The boy, as he took up the box to throw for the third and last time, was as nearly colorless as it was possible for him to be with his yellow skin.

Out rolled the dice, and up came three sixes, which made fifty-one.

"Tommy, my boy, I congratulate you!" cried the planter. You are your own and your mother's master! Fill up the papers, Captain, and I will sign them. These gentlemen will be the witnesses.

I will not attempt to describe the scene that followed. In the general satisfaction, one of the roughest looking men in the crowd proposed a subscription for the freed negroes. The proposition was received with such favor that in less than five minutes $50 were collected.

The Future of the Colored Race in Louisiana.

In a recent visit to the Congregational Churches of the South-Western Conference, in the parishes of St. Mary, Terrebonne and Iberia, we were rejoiced to observe the prosperity of the colored people. Very many of them own their homes, with sufficient land to give a comfortable support for their families. In the churches visited, a majority of the families own their homesteads, so that while not rich they are in a measure independent—at least raised above the possibility of destitution. As good land as any one would wish to cultivate may be purchased in Iberia parish for seven dollars an acre. It ranges from 7 to 10 and 15 dollars, according to the nearness of railroad or bayou. Of course, this does not include fencing and improvements. But at this price it brings a good home within the reach of every industrious and economical laborer. The best word of counsel which in our judgment can be given to our colored friend is: 1st; To provide for themselves at the earliest possible day good homes. Become land-holders. Let your ambition not be satisfied till you hold in your hand the title deed of your own homestead. Begin small, if necessary; that is, with a small house and two or three acres, and then as rapidly as your means allow, enlarge your landed possessions. Then you will always, in adverse as well as prosperous times, have a shelter for your family and bread for your children. Aside from this your influence as a citizen will be universally greater if you are even a moderate capitalist. Infinately better that others should ask a loan of you than that you should forever be the seekers for pecuniary favors. Again and again we say, Own your homes. Then if you are sick no landlord will aggravate your fever by threats of expulsion. Then if labor is scarce and the price of skilled labor low, you have your own fruitful acres to fall back upon. Toil on bravely and patiently. Be economical. Exercise self denial. Do anything, and pay any cost, but own your homes. 2d. Educate your children. Remember, dear friends, you are building for the future. Citizens are not made in a day. Influence is of slow growth. Property and Education will tell in the long run. The victory is sure with these weapons to fight with. Deny your child anything else first before you deny him the rich, priceless blessing of education. This is one step of the ladder by which the race are to rise to prosperity and greatness. Demand for your children at least forty weeks of schooling during every year, and go in if necessary for a compulsory law so that no child can be cheated out of a sound education. This is a prime requisite. Insist upon it, and the future will be glorious. 3rd. Be good citizens. This is the royal road to favor. The good citizen is the honored citizen. What you are after now is a permanent and honorable footing in the State and Nation. Show to the men that you are law-abiding citizens moved by the instincts and principles of patriotism.

With these three requirements answered, Character, Education, and Prosperity, you can face the world, and not only demand but receive honorable recognition. The future then is what you elect to make it.—Louisianian.

General News Items.

The constitution of Missouri forbids State officers accepting railroad passes under penalty of removal.

About 800 tons, or 16,000 bunches of bananas are now shipped monthly from Aspinwall to New York.

Thursday, June 14, will be the 100th anniversary of the adoption of the Stars and Stripes as a National ensign, Within a radius of ten miles of Leesburg, Fla., there are now 150,000 bearing orange trees.

Hughes and Mullins, the robbers of Lincoln's tomb, were sentenced at Springfield, Ill., to a year each in the penitentiary.

Governor Cullom of Illinois has vetoed the bill to make silver coin the legal tender of that State, giving as a reason that he does not believe it a wise measure in its financial aspect, or constitutional.

West point will graduate its first colored officer this year, in the person of Cadet Flipper, of Georgia. He stands sixty-three in a class of seventy-seven, and is spoken of as a hightoned, honorable gentlemen.

War helps a great many trades. A paper concern in Ohio has an order for 250 tons of paper for cartridges for Turkey, and a Pennsylvania town is shipping about 600 tons of spelter to Europe as fast as it can be made, also for cartridges.

Twelve States will hold elections before Congress meets, viz: Oregon in June; North Carolina and Alabama, in August; California, Vermont and Maine in September; West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Iowa and Connecticut, in October.

A soldier connected with the Federal garrison at Columbia, S. C., has gone into the silk worm business. He has now about 50,000 worms, and is seeking his discharge to embark more extensively in the enterprise.

Japan is rich in mines. The following are at present operated: 82 gold mines, 118 silver, 800 copper, 22 iron, 6 tin, 52 lead, 2 plumbago, 412 coal, 182 kerosene oil, 12 sulphur, and 6 alum.

Thousands are dying of cholera on the coast of India, and on the adjacent Islands, supposed to be caused by the infection of the air and water by the decomposition of flocks and herds and human beings which were overwhelmed by the great storm wave of last October.

The Washington Bureau of Engraving and Printing is now working very smoothly under the new organization with a reduction in its force, which causes the saving of about $1,000 a day, or $300,000 a year. The bureau is now turning out as much work as it formerly did with the large force.

Baron Anselm de Rothschild, who died recently at his country seat, near Vienna, possessed wealth estimated at more than $200,000,000. By his express desire, his funeral was celebrated without any pomp. The hearse was drawn by two horses, and followed only by a few servants.

Mrs. H. B. Stowe says that no one person is described in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" as in biography. Traits and incidents of various people are combined. "The life of the Rev. J. Henson furnished many of these, but not all. He was not Uncle Tom; neither was any other one person that I know of."

General Loring-Pasha, formerly Lieutenant General in the confederate army, but now in the service of the Khedive, has been decorated with the Orders of the Medjidie and Osmanlie; the latter is only conferred on commanders of an army in the field. The decorations of the Medjidie are a star of brilliants surrounded by crescents for the neck and a similar one for the breast.

The coroner's jury in the case of the Rockford, Court House disaster, report that the cause of said falling was the neglect of Henry L. Gay, the architect, to provide for the great amount of weight called for to complete the construction of said building according to the plans as designed by him.

SOUTHWESTERN
Christian Advocate.
39 Natchez St., New Orleans.
J. C. HARTZELL, D.D., EDITOR
THURSDAY, JUNE 14, 1877.

SIX MONTH SUBSCRIBERS.

We appeal to all our agents to canvass at once for six month subscribers. One dollar pays for the SOUTHWESTERN for six months. The SOUTHWESTERN its friends say grows better and better. The people like it and want it. Let there be a strong appeal from every pulpit in the Southwest before July first for six months, one dollar subscribers. Where the preacher will be responsible, we will give a short time to collect the money. But have something paid when the names are taken. Now brethren "let every man do his duty."

Address,
NELSON & PHILLIP,
Lock Box "B," New Orleans.

Russia has made a draft for 218,000 more men.

Rev. B. L. Crump of Batesville, did right in defending his church and the SOUTHWESTERN. He has our thanks.

[illegible] Wiley and wife have been called to mourn the loss of a beautiful daughter six years of age.

The article on "The Future of the Colored Race in Louisiana" is from the pen of Prof. Alexander of Straight University in this city.

The District Conference of Waco District in Texas, will meet at Calvert, June 14th. So says the Presiding Elder, Rev. S. Gates.

[illegible] J. A. Adams, late President of [illegible] University, left for Texas [illegible] of this week on an [illegible] tour. He will settle in [illegible] if he finds a location that [illegible]

Rev. Dr. Rust, Corresponding Secretary of the Freedmans' Aid Society, [illegible] wife, have gone to England [illegible] the people in that [illegible] work of our Church [illegible] of the South.

[illegible] Eastern Agent [illegible] Orleans and Mobile [illegible] York, favored us [illegible] week. He is one of the best railroad men in the country.

We publish elsewhere the advertisement of P. F. Hansell, with [illegible] manager. This [illegible] Job work house, is [illegible] Camp Street, and is [illegible] of patronage. [illegible] of cheap fami[illegible] of your readers [illegible] their line will [illegible] them.

[illegible] Mexico, by Bro. [illegible] read with interest. [illegible] Bro. C. speaks of [illegible]

Summer Religion.

We not deny that we are influenced in our religious life to some extent, by the conditions which surround us. We should rise above them more than we do, but then that we do not, is a simply a fact of life. The prayer meetings have come, and it is too wet or too cold or warm, or we do not feel just right, and so we sit down and take our comfort while the prayer meeting goes on without our presence, and we lose the blessing which always follow the discharge of duty. We are prompted to these remarks just now by the advent of hot weather. But please do not forget that when it was cold, you said wait until warm weather comes then I'll go every week. Now you find yourself saying, wait until it gets cold then I will not miss a meeting. Thus we see how weak human nature is. Now the Church member should not forget that every one has a sphere of influence in which to act. Every one has a duty to do, a burden to carry, a mission to fill. Some soul may wander in the dark because you have not done your duty. Some word you can speak may save a soul from death and hide a multitude of lives. Do not slack up your efforts even though the days are hot. Do not throw upon a few of your brothers and sisters, the whole responsibility of carrying on the Church. Do not by your own act deprive yourself of the needed blessing. Do not give your religion a summer vacation but be as true in July as in December.

Childhood and the Church.

It is a fault of the times that we do not lay stress enough upon the matter of taking our children to hearing the preaching. We send them to the Sunday School and from that they go home to play or do what suits them best.

Thus they grow up without a habit which every child should form, that of Church attendance. We are creatures of habit and the habit of going to Church is one, that should be formed in very early life and kept up.

That children can be trained to go to Church regularly and systematically we know, for we have seen it tried with marked success. While the Sunday School is a great and good institution, it is not all. God ordained that the "preaching of the cross" should ever be the "power of God unto salvation."

Fathers and mothers you owe it to your children that they go to church, that they behave properly in church and listen to the sermon. Then when you have returned to your homes, talk about it in their hearing and with them. Thus you prepare them to take your places when you are gone. By all means take the children, we mean the growing boys and girls to church, and aid in creating a church-going generation in the great and near future.

Aid the Pastor.

Every church member can preach the Gospel by rendering effective aid to the pastor. Help him and you help the cause. Help him by your wide-awake presence when he preaches. Let him see you in your lot and place. Help him by your presence in the prayer-meeting and at the Sunday-school. Help him by letting him know of any that are sick or who need his counsel; be on the look-out for something to do for yourself as well as for him, and if the pastor cannot always respond to every call, you can go in his place. This is what we mean by the priesthood of the people. Be priests unto God. "Bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfil the law of Christ."

Then again, in place of going about criticizing the minister, because he don't do this, or because he don't do that, speak of him with respect, [illegible] love, for the sake of the cause. Even if he is not your [illegible] in every particular, he is [illegible] your minister under [illegible] good. If you cannot say [illegible] good, then be si[lent] [illegible] and hear your [illegible] him you [illegible] Mrs. B., and [illegible] work for [illegible] and [illegible] help [illegible] the [illegible] in the church. Take these few thoughts to heart brother, sister; act on them and you will soon see the good results.

Ames Methodist Episcopal Church, New Orleans.

We held the Quarterly Conference of Ames Church on the sixth instant. This church is giving substantial evidences of prosperity. Dr. McCarty, the pastor, is greatly beloved, and is devoting his entire strength to his work. His sermons are listened to with great interest, and in pastoral work, he is wining the hearts of his people, and making many new friends for the church. His congregations are increasing in numbers. Several families which were members af the First Congregational Church—that Church having been disbanded—have become permanently identified with Ames Church, and have become active workers. One of these brethren, Mr. Shute, a very successful Sunday School worker, has been elected Superintendent of the Sunday School, and with the presence and influence of those who came with him, has added greatly to its numbers and success. The ladies of the church have, for several weeks, given a series of Church Sociables, which have been held in different parts of the city. These have been well attended, and have done much to bring the people together in sympathy and interest. The one last Friday night at the residence of Captain C. W. Boothby, 287, Esplanade, was a delightful affair.

In finances, the Church has felt very much the effects of the general business depression. The expenses of the year have not as yet been provided for, but six of the strongest men in the church have formed themselves into a committee, and have gone to work with a will, determined not to stop canvassing until the amount is fully provided for. We hope our friends in this city will respond as liberally as they may be able, to the calls of this committee. A portion of the old debt still hangs on the property. By the way, what is longer-lived than a church debt? The Quarterly Conference granted Dr. McCarty a leave of absence from August first, and he proposes to make a tour among his old pastorates in the North, and if possible, provide for the remainder of the debt. We believe he will succeed.

Ames Chuch is a very important factor in our work in this city and State. It is the open door through which we are to reach the white English-speaking people of this city. May the Lord bless its pastor and people abundantly—increase their influence and multiply their friends; and especially grant to them a gracious out-pouring of His spirit, in the conviction and conversion of sinners.

Presbyterian Fraternity.

The Southwestern Presbyterian of this city says of the action of the Northern Assembly:

It would seem that our Northren brethren have at last settled the question of Fraternal Relations to suit themselves. We are not sorry for it. The question in itself was respectable enough; but—not to put a very fine point on it—it was becoming tiresome. Everything had been said about it which anybody could think of, and every one felt that it ought to be disposed of. It has been settled, by each body realizing its own position, and frankly stating it. This cannot fail to be a great benefit. Among other things, it will conduce to self-respect, and enable each party to do homage to a conscientious conviction, and stand on principle.

It will be remembered that the late Southern Assembly in this city almost unanimously said in substance—we want no fraternity with our Northern brethren until they apoligize for what they have said about us during the war." The Northren Assembly by a vote of 230 to 97 replied in substance: we said no more about you than you said about us during the war; we do not ask you to apoligize, neither will we; we are willing to say that the action of both bodies during the war were in accordance with what each deemed right; we say let the past bury the past, and from this forth let us be friends; but as you refuse this we have no more to say, and the next overture for fraternity must come from you."

We like this frank way of putting things and commend our Presbyterian brethren for their frankness. They say what they mean and by decided votes tell us they mean just what they say.

By Lamplight.

Why do men carry pistols? This exclamation was heard from hundreds on last Thursday, May 31, as the news spread through the city, that Capt. Hooper, one of our most estimable citizens and prominent business-men, had been shot and almost instantly killed by an old acquaintance and neighbor, Mr. Nance. The cause, a little matter of business that the law could have settled in a few days, was in dispute and hot words led to murderous results. This affair creates profound interest, from the social standing of the parties, and people wonder and exclaim, "Why do men carry pistols?" The interest will last for a few days, the trial of the murderer will be postponed as long as possible, the murdered man will be forgotten, sympathy for the prisoner will be aroused by his friends and—the jury may fail to agree, or by the law's vexatious delays, the prisoner may at last be released on bail, and somehow the case never be called, or if tried and convicted, a nominal penalty afflicted and the public mind be quieted till another man is killed. Thus the same question will be asked about carrying pistols, but scarce one of the hundreds who violate the law against carrying concealed weapons, will be punished, unless it happens that some poor fellow, without friends or money, should fall into the hands of the executors of justice, and they make an awful example of him by inflicting a fine, which they are most sure he cannot pay, and the offender has the privilege of working a few weeks in the retirement of the city work-house, where he can meditate on the question why it is so much worse for a poor man, or a colored man, to carry pistols than for some more favored ones. We need a higher estimate of human life in this country.

The closing exercises of the Central Tennessee College were perhaps of more than usual interest. The address of Rev. D. C. Kelly, of the M. E. Church South, an active friend of the Confederacy during its existence, was more than usually important, as expressive of the views of the more intelligent class of Southerners on the education of the colored people. "Brethren, friends, fellow-citizens," were the opening words of his address, and he dwelt on these, noticing their significance and claiming for himself and the colored people this feeling of personal regard and the relations embraced in these names. It is among the first of these utterances in this part of the country which encourages us to hope that the educational work among the colored people will receive the cordial and open endorsement of our brethren of all the Southern churches. Of course there are points on which we shall differ with our brethren of the M. E. Church South, but on the education of the colored people in the South, all—East, West, North and South—have a common interest. In the future we hope to hear other words of cheer from the same source. The address of Rev. C. S. Smith, Pastor of Clark Chapel, is, I understand, to speak for itself in your columns. It is worthy of a careful reading. The possibility of the colored people to do more for themselves is well worth their earnest consideration. Rev. D. W. Hays, of the Tennessee Conference preached the annual sermon from the words, "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do with thy might." It was a thoroughly prepared discourse, and commanded the closest attention of the congregation and made an excellent impression. Of the examinations and closing exercises of the graduating classes in the Normal and Academic departments others will write. It is said that they were all better than usual. The school year has been prosperous, and the outlook for the next year is favorable for an increased attendance.

J. BRADEN.

Mexican Border Troubles.

The Secretary of War, Hon. G. W. McCray, has given specific instructions to Gen. Sherman, Commander of the Army, to take positive steps toward suppressing lawlessness on the Mexican border along the Rio Grande. The order closes thus:

Gen. Ord will at once notify the Mexican authorities along the Texas border of the great desire of the President to unite with them in efforts to suppress this long-continued lawlessness; at the same time he will inform those authorities that while the government of Mexico shall continue to neglect the duty of suppressing these outrages, that duty will devolve upon this government, and will be performed, even if its performance should necessitate the occasional crossing of the border by our troops.

You will, therefore, direct General Ord that in case lawless incursions continue, he will be at liberty in the use of his own discretion, when in pursuit of a band of marauders, and when his troops are either in sight of them or upon a fresh trail, to follow them across the Rio Grande, and to overtake and punish them, as well as retake stolen property taken from our citizens, and found in their hands on the Mexican side of the river.

The War.

The chief battle fought this far has been fought at Kristach, Krisi and Hivs, in Asia. Turks lost 3000 men. It seems to have been a drawn battle.

The insurrection among the Circassians in Asia seems to be quite formidable, so much so that a good-sized Russian army is necessary to hold the rebels in check. This weakens the Russian force in Asia.

There are different reports as to the efficiency of the Turkish armies. Some say they have poor officers and others that they are poorly fed etc. But thus far they have fought well. As the war is proclaimed a holy war by Turkey, that is a war for the Mohommedan faith, the Christians at their request have been exempted from service, but must pay exemption money.

There have been rumors of peace; one is that Germany at the suggestion of England would ask Turkey to accept peace on the basis of the late protocol, and another is that Russia will make peace and take territory in Asia as an indemnity. But we put no faith in these. The matter has gone too far to stop until some decisive battle is fought. We do not believe Russia will lay down her arms until guarantees corresponding to the sacrifices already made, have been obtained from Turkey. There is no danger of Russia concluding a cheap bargain. The demonstration must be complete. The result decisive. It is necessary for the security of the future, that Turkey should be perfectly convinced of her isolation and inferiority, and the absolute necessity of submitting to conditions she herself has rendered necessary. So says Russia.

The Christian Observer, of Louisville, Kentucky, is one of the freshest and best edited papers in America. It is thoroughly Presbyterian in church polity and doctrine. It represents progressive Presbyterianism in the South. It is, of course, warred upon by other Presbyterian papers in the South, which have not one-third its circulation, or one-hundredth part its editorial ability. We are sorry we did not meet one of its editors when in this city attending the General Assembly. His letters from New Orleans are interesting.

The Methodist Advocate, of Atlanta, Georgia, makes a strong appeal for six months cash subscribers. We hope its patronizing territory will rally to its support. The publishers have adopted the cash system. They have now on their books $22,000, which they cannot collect, as the result of the credit system in the past. Our agents will understand from this why the publishers of the SOUTHWESTERN insist on cash payments. It is the only safe way for all concerned.

Three of our schools in South are well represented in this number of the SOUTHWESTERN. New Orleans and Shaw Universities and Central Tennessee College. Let none fail to read all that is said about them, and remember that they represent about one-fifth of the work being carried forward by our Freedmen's Aid Society.

Fletcher Harper, the last survivor of the original firm of Harper Brothers, publishers, New York City, died on the 30th ult. The reading public for the last generation have owed a debt of gratitude to this firm, and to no one of them perhaps more than to Fletcher.

The great honors paid to Gen. Grant in Europe are well and properly bestowed on one of America's greatest characters, and evidently form a true estimate of the respect felt for the American people abroad.

There will hereafter be a mail six times a week between New Orleans and Port Eads. Capt. Wm. Bassett, of the steamer Martha, has the contract at $10,000 a year.

At England's Request.

A Washington dispatch, June 8th, says:

The district attorney for the district of Mississippi, has been instructed by the department of justice, to investigate the facts attending the death of McClelland, in the Kemper county massacre, in compliance with a request made by the English authority, who claim that McClelland was a British subject.

No matter how it comes, the whole nation will rejoice if the clear light of an impartial investigation can be poured in upon that Kemper County horror. But we feel humiliated that the investigation should be gone into at the request of a foreign government.

It is said the Attorney General is looking up the law in the case to see whether there is any law by which the United States Government can interfere directly and examine into the question. This is a most important matter. Governor Stone has acknowledged his inability to do anything, and seems too cowardly to do aught but write a milk and water apology to Washington. "The people" of Kemper County declare no investigation shall be had. The question then is—can the United States Government interfere and protect its citizens when the states either cannot or will not? If the General Government cannot, then all the glory of American citizenship on American soil, is gone. Americans hereafter must not boast "I am an American Citizen," but must instead use the name of his State and say "I am a Mississippian," or "I am a Louisianian," etc.

Wind, Fire and Wave.

A terrible wind storm visited Southern Illinois, June 5. The greatest destruction of life and property occurred at Mr. Carmel. Nearly the whole town was destroyed, and a score of people killed and many wounded. The details of the disaster are horrifying.

The blow was in the form of a cyclone, and gathering up whole buildings hurled them in every direction. A lady was sitting in a wagon in the street when the cyclone struck her. She was hurled into the middle of the street and badly injured. The horse was lifted bodily from the earth and dashed to the ground and killed, while the seat from the wagon was thrown eighty yards in an opposite direction. The court-house bell was thrown sixty feet. These are specimens of the wind's power Hundreds of families are homeless.

A large fire occurred in this city near First and St. Charles street in which several houses now burned.

Galveston has been visited with a great calamity. On Thursday morning, June 8, at 3.30, a fire broke out in the business part of the city and before it could be stopped twenty-six building were burned among them many of the largest and finest buildings and business houses in the city. The Grand Southern Hotel was burned. Odd Fellow's Hall, two banks. Shaw & Braylock, who print and in whose building was the office of the Galveston Christian Advocate was burned out. The loss it is said will reach $3,000,000. There seems to have been as a rule good insurances. If this proves true the calamity upon the Gulf City will be greatly lessened especially as there are reported to be but few risks in home offices.

A tidal wave of many feet depth broke along the western coast of South America a few days since. destroying towns, and spreading devastation and death far and wide. How many people were destroyed will probably never be known.

A committee of colored men from this city, consisting of Hon. T. B. Stamps, Louis M. Kenner, Senator Dumont, J. D. Kennedy and Rev. A. M. Newman, had an interview with President Hayes June 8th. They were introduced by Gen. Comly, of Ohio. The President assured them that colored men should have a fair representation in all his appointment in the South.

The following sad note tells its own sad story. To the dear bereaved parents we extend our most heartfelt sympathy.

Dear Brother Hartzell,

At 1:20 this (Sunday) morning our darling first-born passed away to the better land. Aged 2 years, 2 months and 12 days, after a sickness of only 8 hours, of congestion of the lungs.

We are not mourners as those who have no hope, but our home is desolate, our hearts are sad and no little one will come to greet us. We look to Jesus, as our consoler.

T. E. MADDEN,

The New Orleans University.

This Institution has just closed a successful year's work under the Presidency of Rev. Dr. Godman. We have already spoken of the improvements made in the buildings during this year.

The Institution is supported by the Freedman's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, which Society through its secretary Rev. Dr. Rust has established institutions of learning in nearly every State in the South.

MEETING OF BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

The New Orleans University being regularly incorporated, has a local Board of Trustees. This Board met May 18th, 1877, General Cyrus Bussey President, and Rev. M. C. Cole Secretary.

DR. GODMAN'S REPORT.

With the close of another year of duty in the University, comes the pleasing duty of reviewing the work done, inspecting the present situation, and providing as occasion requires for the future.

The last annual session was peculiar, and the President of the University had resigned on account of ill-health. Providence kindly restoring his health and the F. A. Society, per Dr. Rust, urging the propriety of the steps, I recalled my resignation through Dr. Rust.

Being after that employed to take collections for the Freedman's Aid Society in Philadelphia Conference, the proceeds to be divided equally between the University and the Orphans' Home, I commenced labor in Philadelphia the first Sabbath in October, 1876. Prof. Collins was here by appointment to take the oversight of the school during my temporary absence, with the assistance of Mr. Wm. Morrow and Miss Anna S. DeWolf, as teachers.

My wife, who was engaged as agent of the Orphans' Home Society, joined me most efficiently in the taking of collections. Our stay was somewhat protracted, my arrival here on the return being January 27th, 1877, my wife being three weeks later. The result of our financial labors is herewith presented. See paper A.

Returning, I found the University in a sad condition in many respects, with a roll of thirty-two scholars only, a discouraged corps of teachers, and the buildings and grounds in a forlorn condition. This state of things was doubtless owing in a degree to the political situation. We are happy to report now a better condition.

Our roll contains ninety-two names. Eighty-six have been in regular attendance the last term. Good progress in study and marked improvement in deportment furnish as a delightful reward for our labors. The large majority of our students are young men and women. A certain maturity of purpose and character distinguishes them, and the general cultivation of religious feeling and life makes their school duties an earnest work, not mere play.

Our theological class numbers twenty-one. They have not this year been as regular in attendance as last, on account of some being pastors with large families and burdensome pastorates. As many as fifteen or sixteen of our students are [illegible] teach. One designs to become a missionary in Africa, one intends to pursue the study of medicine. Three are ready to take rank as seniors, and we hope will be ready to be graduated next year in the classical course.

You will observe how much our buildings and grounds are improved. There have been some heavy expenditures—i. e., heavy for us, upon necessary and indispensable improvements.

Repairs of buildings	$216 70
Rebuilding banquette	61 15
Organ for chapel	125 00
Seating for chapel	87 50
Insurance	95 63
Total	$585 98

The relations between myself and the teachers have been delightfully harmonious. It is painful to record that because of failing health Prof. Collins resigned and went North. We hear often from him and learn most gratefully that he is better than when he left. Miss Anna S. DeWolf has been faithfully at her post and has ably discharged her duty. After Prof. Collins' failure of health Mrs. Dupre was employed to instruct some classes until the close of the year, and she has since April 13th done us good service.

Mrs. Godman, not employed as a teacher, yet interested always in our work, voluteed to teach three classes that were in want of an instructor, and has done her part well.

We, the instructors, have had a year of hard work. The President has taught six and seven classes daily beside all his other work. Every teacher has had full employ.

We had the assistance of Mr. J. E. Mullen, Miss Sarah A. Merritt and Mr. G. A Wells and Miss Fannie Hembeuk, whom we have employed for moderate compensation.

We all rejoice in our work and thank God that He has counted us worthy to enter upon it. We think we have many evidences of His smile upon it.

Miss Anna S. DeWolf is hereby recommended for re-election as teacher.

By reference to the catalogue, I observe that our term of service of the third class of trustees expires with this session. It would seem, therefore, to be our duty to fill the vacancies.

I would recommend that the Trustees fix the day of commencement week whereon they will hold their annual session.

I recommend also that they appoint a committee of examiners whose duty it shall be to be present at all the term examination.

I recommend also that we publish a catalogue at once, if we can find the means.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we hereby express our high appreciation of the services of Rev. W. D. Godman, D.D., as President of the New Orleans University during the year that is past, and that we hereby re-elect him President for the ensuing year.

Miss DeWolf was re-elected as instructor for ensuing year.

The remainder of the Faculty will be selected by Rev. Dr. Rust.

Rev. Dr. J. H. McCarty, Rev. E. Williams, and Dr. R. S. Rust, of Cincinnati, were elected to fill vacancies on Board.

The Secretary was instructed to prepare a suitable minute respecting the death of Rev. Dr. Daily, a member of the Board, and to forward a copy to his bereaved widow.

Tuesday of commencement week was fixed as the time of holding the annual meetings of the Board.

The following resolutions, offered by Dr. Godman, were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we learn with much pain of the serious illness and the unexpected departure from her midst of Prof. A. B. Collins.

2. That Prof. Collins has, during his entire connection with us, discharged his duties as teacher with ability, has illustrated the qualities of the Christian and the gentleman, and has endeared himself to us in a more than ordinary degree.

3. That should Prof. Collins' health be restored in the future, we should welcome his return at any time.

4. That this resolution be published in the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and that the Secretary furnish a copy to Prof. Collins.

The following were appointed a committee of examiners, viz.: Rev. J. H. McCarty, D.D., Rev. J. C. Hartzell, Hon. T. G. Tracy; Prof. P. M. Williams, M. D., and Rev. John Mathews, D.D.

The President was authorized to publish a catalogue at the earliest moment practicable.

Resolved. That the trustees of the New Orleans University, learning from Rev. W. D. Godman, D.D., that Mr. H. M. Ingham, of Cleveland, Ohio, has sent to the University during the year, 316 valuable books for the library, which are making a very great demand, not before supplied, therefore, be it [illegible], 1. That our sincere thanks be tendered to Mr. Ingham, for his liberal and valuable donation, and that we shall ever pray that blessing may rest upon him.

2. That a copy of this be forwarded to Mr. Ingham by the Secretary and that it be published in the SOUTHWESTERN.

[illegible] services of that distinguished and venerable [illegible] for the freedom [illegible] D.D., Secretary of the [illegible] Society, to whom [illegible] tendered for an [illegible] following [illegible] adopted:

[illegible] sake of the University hereby tender[illegible] R. G. Boat, and [illegible] Aid [illegible] of the last year, [illegible] faithful care of [illegible] interest in our [illegible] May God over[illegible] Aid Society.

Dr. Hartzell, of [illegible] closing year were [illegible] Binney, President, [illegible] Pierce Lindy, Vice [illegible] M. G. Cole, Secretary [illegible] W. D. Godman, [illegible] Hon. E. Heath, Au[illegible]

[illegible] for the past year [illegible] the President [illegible]

[illegible] account was [illegible] statement [illegible] Minutes [illegible]

[illegible] memorialize [illegible] Conference for [illegible] Committee [illegible] It is [illegible] collected, [illegible] the most superb drawing-room, parlor and sleeping coaches, and the eating-houses are noted for the good supply of seasonable delicacies, while the employees are selected for their urbanity and skill as railroad men. The region, especially the mountain districts of Ohio and Pennsylvania the route passes over, may be considered the Switzerland of America. Pure mountain air—health invigorating caloric—making the invalid feel like rejuvenated life. These and many other recommendations are such as should induce all who desire to travel comfortably with speed and safety, to take advantage of the highly popular Pan Handle Route.

Mount Zion Church New Orleans.

This enterprising church under the pastorate of Rev. C. Hunt in making a desperate and successful effort to raise money to pay the debts on their church property. The Mount Zion Lagniappe a neat little monthly paper reports a proposed "Grand Excelsior Banquet," to be given by the Working Band of the Church, to be begin June 12th and to last five days. Every sort of good thing in the festival and musical lines is promised. Mrs. M. Hall is president, Mrs. B. Mortou is vice president, Mrs. S. Chapman treasurer, and Mr. J. W. Bowens Secretary. Success to Mt. Zion!

New Publications.

Heredity, or Responsibility in Parentage. By Rev. S. H. Platt, A.M. 12 mo, paper, 10 cents. S. R. Welle & Company, Publishers, 737 Broadway, New York.

This interesting essay on the duties of husbands and fathers, prepared from a series of sermons by an eminent clergyman of Brooklyn, meets one of the wants of day. Our people generally need sound instruction with reference to the conditions upon which mental and physical health depend; and from what better source may it be obtained than from the lips of a learned and earnest minister.

The Wonders of Prayer, Henry F. William publisher, 46 Beekman street, New York, 400 pages. Price $150.

To a greater extent than any other book, and in an extraordinary recital of facts, with over five hundred interesting incidents, it fully answers that all-important question, "DOES GOD ANSWER PRAYER?"

It also shows that the promises of the Bible are absolutely true, and faithful in the daily lives of those who are constantly trusting in the Lord, and ask Him help in their daily anxieties and experiences. It is a book of great comfort and encouragement to Christians, in their doubt, fear, sorrow, or trouble, to trust Him more fully in faith, and shows how He who delivered others in time of distress, peril, or solicitude, can hear and deliver them also.

To those who are not Christians, it is a record of undoubted facts from the experience of individuals now living, proving the real existence and power of God, in controlling circumstances, directing human wills, and all things of earth, showing His nearness and power in daily events of life, and demonstrating that He is not a distant Creator, but ever near at hand.

This volume contains several hundred instances where Prayer has been heard and answered in the following circumstances of life: Healing; Recovery from severe sickness; Delivery from Death; Delivery in Perilous Situations; Miraculous Cures of Diseases and Deformed Persons; Help in Poverty; Relief from Starving; Insanity Cured; All Appetite for Sensuality Removed; Evil Habits Overcome; Drunkenness Cured; Appetite for Tobacco and Liquors taken wholly away; Souls Converted and Saved; Bad Men Confounded; Oppressors and Wrongdoers Punished; Wonderful Revivals; Proofs of the Existence of the Holy Spirit; Timely Help in Financial Danger and Need; How Liberal Gifts to the Lord and Poor have been blessed; How the Poor, Afflicted, and Helpless, have been cared for constantly; How Work and Employment have been Obtained; How Lives have been saved from Accidents and Deaths; How Plans in Life have been wholly Frustrated and Changed for the Better; How the Schemes of Bad Men have been Spoiled; How the Lord has controlled the Natural Element of Earth, the Winds, the Lightning, the Rain, Tempes's, Snow and Hail, stopped their work of destruction, to Aid, Benefit, Relieve, Help, or Deliver some poor Christian who has cried to Him in Prayer.

A multitude of such instance are given, all from experiences of individuals of the present day, still living, which fully satisfy any one that the same God who did wonders in the days of Abraham, Joseph, Jacob, Joshua, David, Elijah, and Hezekiah; the same Lord who walked in Palestine, healing the sick, curing the blind, lame, and halt, raising the dead, performing miracles, is still, though unseen, with us this very day, performing as many wonders and miracles as in the days of old. By strong faith, Christians who have laid hold of the promises, and trusted in their unseen Lord, pleading to Him in their extremities of life, here give their testimonies that they have found their God faithful.

Dancing as an Amusement, considered in the light of Scriptures, of Christian Experience and of Good Taste, by Bostwick Hawley D. D. New York, N. Fibhals & Sons: 79 pages, Cloth 50 cents: paper 25 cents.

A very timely, and well written book. The book is dedicated "to Christian parents, and to young people of all churches." One of the saddest facts in the modern church is the ease with which Christians permit themselves to be lead into the follies of fashionable life, such as dancing, theater-going, card playing and the like. The whole church needs a thorough awakening on this subject. Dr. Hawley has given a concise but conclusive argument against the modern dance for amusement. He believes and as we think, clearly shows that neither the Scriptures a proper Christian experience, or good taste approve of dancing. The scriptural argument is very complete. All or nearly all texts in the Old and New Testament which speak of the dance, are quoted and it is shown that in no case is the modern idea of dancing countenanced. We shall [illegible] this excellent volume [illegible] could be in the hands of [illegible] in our church members.

The estimates of the total number of churches vary from 16,000 to 20,000.

Mr. Moody's Theology.

June 24th being Sunday School Quarterly Review, we give in this place the following interesting article from the Christian Union.

The religious opinions of any one individual are of small consequence. But Mr. Moody's theology is representive. He has been "backed up by the orthodoxy of London, Edinboro', New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, and Boston." His theology may fairly be regarded, therefore, in its main features, as that of at least a very large proportion of the orthodox church.

Moreover, it has been a remarkably successful theology. We do not now consider the permanence or the reality of its success; though we believe that it is both real and permanent. After Christ's ministry in Galilee was ended the crowds dispersed, and probably the Pharisees thought the revival had come to an end when the preacher was silenced. But the spiritual impulse that Christ imparted then is more powerful in the nineteen century than it was in the first. Mr. Moody's work, whether permanent or not, has been transiently powerful. It is well for all men who desire to move on the hearts and consciences of others to know what are the doctrines which Mr. Moody has found so effective. A great deal has been said about his methods. We here epitomize, as far as possible in his own words, his doctrines. We gather this epitome from the published volume of his New York sermons.

"Man is a stupendous failure." His whole history is a history of successive failures. He accepted the commandments, yet worshiped the golden calf at the foot of Sinai. He "was a failure under the judges, failure under the prophets, and now for two thousand years under grace he has been a most stupendous failure." "Man in his best day, under the most favorable circumstances, is nothing but a failure."

How he came to be a failure is a matter of no moment. "If I see a man tumble into the river and going to drown, it would do no good for me to sit down and bow my head and indulge in deep thought and reasoning how he came to get in there. The great question would then be as to how he was to be got out." One thing, however, is very certain; though "the first Adam introduces sin into the world," "it will not be on account of Adam's sin that you will be lost if you are lost."

God's love for man is absolute and universal. "God is not angry with us." "God hates the sin, but he loves the sinner." Christ loved Judas "in the very hour that he betrayed Him." "God is love; his love is unchangeable; his love is everlasting; his love is unfailing." This is the doctrine on which Mr. Moody's whole work is based; on which its whole system is built. "I have often thought I wouldn't have but one text; if I only thought I could make the world believe that God is love, I would only take that text, and go up and down the earth, trying to counteract what Satan has been telling men—that God is not love."

The offer of this love is free grace. "You can not get it by working." Salvation is a gift from God. If a man worked it out he would boast of what he had done. 'O I did it.'" "It is offered to all that have sinned and are not worthy." How then as to election? "You need not be stumbling over election. The proclamation is, "Whosoever will, let him come and drink of the water of life freely.'" "Everybody can get out of prison that wants to. The trouble is, they don't want to go."

This grace is to be accepted by faith; and "the best difinition of faith I can find is the dependence upon the veracity of another." "Faith says amen to everything that God says. It takes God without any ifs."

Therefore, "salvation is instantaneous. It is just as sudden as a man walking through a doorway. One minute he is on this side, the next he is on that side." Many are the illustrations used by Mr. Moody to enforce this doctrine: Noah one minute exposed to the flood, the next within the ark safe; the Hebrew child this moment in danger from the death angel, the next safe because the blood has been put on the door-post; the refugee this moment fleeing with the avenger of blood behind him, the next secure because in the city of refuge.

The salvation is something present, not future. "He that heareth my words, and believeth on Him that sent me, hath—h-a-t-h, hath; it don't say you shall have when you die—'hath everlasting life.'" But it is only given and accepted instantaneously; it is not perfected instantaneously. Conversion does not change the whole nature. "We very often talk about a change of heart. I do not think that is a good way to put it. You cannot find these words in Scripture. All through scripture it is a 'new birth;' it is a 'new creature;' it is a new life given; 'born from above of the Spirit;' 'born again.'" "Every child of God has two natures" "as distinct as day and night." "With that old Adam in us, if we do not keep him down in the place of death, he brings us unto captivity." "Judiciously we are dead, but in reality we are down here fighting the world, the flesh, and the devil."

In this new life, in which we are to work out the salvation which we have accepted, the master motive of the Christian must be love. We are not under the law, but under grace. "It is not any more, thou shalt not do that." That was under the law. Under that dispensation it was do and live—now it is live and do." "Infidelity don't know anything about love. The religion of Jesus Christ is a religion of love." "If the love of God beats in warm pulsations in our hearts, and we show them we are full of love and sympathy for them, how easy it will be to win souls to Christ."

Finally, "You will never see the kingdom of God unless you are born again." "Christ will come by and by. You can cry for mercy then, but the door will be shut." Does Mr. Moody believe in the irreparable loss of those who deliberately reject Christ in this life? Evidently. Does he believe in the loss of those who have never known Christ? Apparently not; this question indeed he never discusses, but the one fatal sin according to his system is rejection of Christ. Does he believe in inquisitional torments? Evidently not. "I believe that the worm that dieth not is our memory." "We won't need any one to condemn us at the bar of God. We will condemn ourselves." "Memory is God's officer; and when God touches the secret springs of our memory, saying, Son, remember, we can not help but remember." "Tramp, tramp, tramp will come before us a long procession—all the sins we have ever committed."

It is no part of our purpose in this article to defend Mr. Moody's theology; we simply describe it. But when the hour of unjust aspersion and absurd eulogy has passed away, and the results of Mr. Moody's work in Great Britain and the United States are seen by a candid and a clear-eyed criticism, it will be seen that not the least service which he has rendered the church of Christ has been that rendered to theological science. For there have been few men in this country who have done more than he to break in pieces Dagon in the temple of Jehovah, to destroy the pagan and despotic God whom a false theology had established for the God of the New Testament, to snap the withes with which Delilah had bound the doctrine of free grace, and to emancipate the people of God from the bondage of a Pharisaic legalism; few who have done more than he to quicken in pulpit and in pews faith in the infinite, unchanging, everlasting love of God, and in the free gift of grace as an inspiration to human endeavor.

The Old Reliable Jackson Route.

TO THE FRONT AGAIN.

This old favorite passenger route has been greatly improved with steel rails, new iron bridges and new cars, and is now run with great regularity, making sure connections and quick time, and is the shortest and best route to the East via Louisville and Cincinnati.

Pleasure seekers by this route can go via Chicago and through Canada, or via Buffalo and Niagara Falls, to New York and the Northern watering places, at the same fare as via Louisville or the lines through Georgia and Virginia.

A full line of tourist and excursion tickets now on sale at the Jackson Railroad ticket office, No. 22 Camp street, under City Hotel, to all important summer resorts in the East, North and Northwest, by all desired routes.

Only one change of cars between New Orleans and New York and other Eastern cities. No change between Chicago, Cincinnati, Louisville and New Orleans, or from St. Louis to New Orleans.

Palace sleeping cars on all through trains.

Try the old Jackson route.

Regular Secretion Essential to Health.

The regular secretion and flow of the gastric juices, and of the bile which the use of Hostetters Stomach Bitters promotes, are effects which conduce materially to the restoration of health, when the system is disordered. Food is not digested in the dyspeptic stomach because the gastric fluid is deficient, superabundant or vitiated:—the liver becomes congested and the bowels constipated because the supply of bile is inadequate or misdirected. The Bitters rectifies all this, and removes every ill in consequence of non-asimilation and billious irregularity. Furthermore, it stimulates the action of the kidneys, by which impurities are, so to speak, strained from the blood, and any tendency in the urinary organs to grow sluggish and disordered counteracted. Whether it be used as a means of regulating gastric, or billious secretion, and relieving the overloaded bowels, or to promote complete, and therefore healthful urination, Hostetter's Bitters may be relied upon with confidence to accomplish the end in view.

Wonderful, Most Wonderful.

A neighbor of ours has been for several years afflicted with consumption, and for months was so low that we looked daily for her death, but strange as it seems to us, three bottles of Cannabis Indica has so far restored her, that she is now able to do her housework. I have always been prejudiced against patent medicines, but seeing the remarkable effect your remedies have had upon Mrs. Fielder, and having a similar case in my own family, I have inclosed $18.00 for 6 syrup, 4 ointment and a box of pills hoping to obtain the same benefits, I am, respectfully

D. B. BAILEY,

GARDNER, Grundy Co., Ill., May 20, 1877.

N. B.—This remedy speaks for itself. A single bottle will satisfy the most skeptical. We know that it positively cures Consumption, and will break up a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. $2-50 per bottle, or three for $650. Pills and Ointment, $125 each. Address CRADDOCK & CO., 1032 Race Street, Philadelphia, Penn. June 14

Quarterly Meetings.

Holly Springs (Miss.) District.

SECOND ROUND.

Mt. Pleasant, July 7-8; Kosciusko, July 14-15; French Camp, July 16-17; Greensboro, July 17-19, Winona and Vaiden 21-22; Duck Hill, July 26-27; Granada, July 28-29; Grenada Circuit, July 28-29; Oxford, Aug. 4-5; New Albany, Aug. 8-9; Ripley, Aug. Hickory Flat, Aug. 15; Holly Springs Aug. 18-19; Byhalia, Aug. 21-22; Chulahoma, Aug. 24; Abbeville, Aug. 25-26; Eliza, Aug. 30 and Sept 1st. First District Conference for Holly Springs District will meet on the 14th day of June, at Grenada; all the brethren are requested to be present.

J. G. JOHNSON, P. E.

Greenswood (Miss.) District.

(Second Round.)

Wesley Chapel, 9 and 10th of June; Silver Creek, 16th and 17th of June; Yazoo City, 23rd and 24th of June; Piney Grove, 30th of June and 1st of July; Deasonville, 7th and 8th of July; Pickens, 14 and 15 of July; Lexington, 21st and 22d of July; Goodman, 28th and 29th of July; Jones Chapel, 4th and 5th of August; McNutt, 11th and 12th of August; Cuney Creek, 18th and 19th of August; New Midway, 25th and 26th of August; Hernando, 1st and 2d of September; Panola, 8th and 9th of September; Cold Water, 15th and 16th of September; Walnut City, 22nd and 23d of Sept; Shiloh 26th and 30th Sept.

J. W. DUNN, P. E.

Meridian (Miss.) District.

Whitefield, June 16-17; Louisville, June 19-20; Rome, June 23-24; Ex-Prairie, June 30 and July 1; Macon, July 7-8; Shuqualak, July 11-12; DeKalb, July 14-15; Lauderdale July 21-22; Daleville, July 24-25; Meridian 28-29; Meridian Circuit August 4-5; Quitman August 11-12; Shubuta Circuit, August 15-16; State Line, Aug. 18-19; Shubuta, August 21-22; Enterprise Circuit, Aug. 25-26; Enterprise, Aug. 28-29.

M. ADAMS, P. E.

Okolona District.

(Second round.)

Okolona May 5-6; Corinth and Corinth Circuit, May 12-13; Tupelo, May 14-15; Spring valley and Shady Grove, May 19-20; Big Black, May 26-27; Calhoun, June 2-3; Houston, June 6-7; Pontotoc, 9-10; Union Grove, June 16-17; West Point, June 23-25; Columbus and Columbus Circuit, June 30 and July 1; Tibbe, July 7-8; Tampico, July 9-15; Athens, July 21-22.

The Okolona District Conference well meet at Pontotoc June 10. I hope all the member of the Conference will be present: All the ministers of the Okolona District who are in charge of a work will please send on their post-office address at once.

D. MCLACHLAN, P. E.

Gulf District.

(Second round.)

Pascagoula, May 17-18; Ocean Springs and Biloxi May 19-20; Handsboro, May 21-22; Bay St. Louis, May 23-24; Pass Christian, May 26-27; Crystal Springs, May 31 and June 1; Simpson Circuit, June 5-6; Hazlehurst, June 7-8; New Hope Circuit, June 9-10; Union Church Circuit, June 11-12; Brookhaven, June 13-14; Hamburg Circuit, June 21-22; Meadville Circuit June 23-24; Liberty, June 26-27; Summit and Magnolia, June 28-29; China Grove, June 30 and July 1; Coldmbia, July 2-3; Augusta, July 4-5.

L. BRADFORD, P. E.

Houston, Texas, District.

First Church, Houston, April 1; East Church and Wesley Chapel, Galveston, April 7 and 8; Spring Creek, April 14 and 15; Oyster Creek, April 21 and 22; Richmond and Frost Chapel, April 28 and 29; Houston, Second Church and Edwards Chapel, May 5 and 6; Harrisburg and West Point, May 12 and 13; Columbia and Brazoria, May 19 and 20; Stafford's, May 26 and 27; Houston Circuit, June 2 and 3; Cypress, June 9 and 10.

W. L. MOLLOY, P. E.

San Antonio (Tex.) District.

Mission Valley, April 21 and 22; Cuero April 28 and 29; Indianola and Lavacca, May 5 and 6; Columbus and Alleyton, May 12 and 13; Peach Creek and Colmubus Circuit, May 19 and 20; San Antonio, May 26 and 27; Boerne, June 2 and 3; Houdo, June 9 and 10; Floresville June 16 and 17; Sutherland Springs, June 23 and 24; Nockernut, July 1; Cibola, July 4 and 5; Riddleville, July 4 and 5; Lavernia, 7 and 8; Gnliad Circuit, July 11 and 12; Belmont, July 14 and 15; Refugio, July 18 and 19; Wrightsboro, July 21 and 22; Goliad, July 28 and 29.

D. GREGORY, P. E.

PAN-HANDLE

AND

PENNSYLVANIA

Railroad Route.

The Favorite Trunk Line.

Only one change of cars to New York, and that at 7:30 in the morning, at Cincinnati.

No omnibus transfers on any part of the line.

Best equipped and shortest route to all the eastern cities.

Best Route to Long Branch, Cape May, Atlantic City, New Port, and all the Atlantic sea-coast watering places.

Best route to Cresson, Altoona, the celebrated Bedford Springs, and all the noted mountain retreats of the Alleghany range; and also the best route to Bethlehem on the Lehigh river, and all the noted resorts in the Anthracite coal regions of Pennsylvania.

This route is supplied with all the modern improvements for speed, safety, and comfort; and continuous trains run without stoppages for fuel or water, as the water is supplied while the trains are in motion.

Palace and Drawing Room coaches on all trains.

Double tracked, stone balasted, free from dust, and steel rails laid according to scientific principles, to avoid jarring which is the cause of nausea to many.

All travelers who have availed themselves of the solid comforts to be found on the old reliable Pan Handle and Pensylvania, unhesitatingly say that for families and tourists, it is unequalled; while for business men who desire reliability and promptness it is far ahead of all opposition.

The refreshment saloons and eating houses are all first-class and all have an enviable reputation for their cuisine—the tables being supplied with the best that the markets of Ohio and Pennsylvania afford.

Be sure and ask for tickets via Louisville Cincinnati and the Pan Handle Route.

W. L. O'BRIEN,
Gen. Pas'r and Ticket Agent, Columbus, Ohio.

SIDNEY B JONES,
General S. W. Agent, Cincinnati, Ohio.

W. M. WALLINGTON,
Gen. Southern Agent, New Orleans, La.

[june14-77-tf

F. F. HANSELL,

JAS. A. GRESHAM, Manager.

BOOK-SELLERS, PRINTERS,

AND STATIONERS.

No. 30 CAMP STREET.

Would respectfully announce to the readers of the ADVOCATE their facilities for doing all kinds of Printing and Job Work for

PARTIES,

BALLS,

and BUSINESS PURPOSES.

Methodist Hymn Books, Disciplines and Bibles

Will be furnished at Northern Prices.

FAMILY BIBLES,

from $2 50 to $10 00. Orders from the country will receive prompt attention, and all orders filled as low as if brought in person.

Address, as above,

F. F. HANSELL,
30 Camp street, New Orleans, La.
Lock Box 84. [je14-77-3m.]

Hospital College of Medicine.

(The clinical School of the West.)

Med. Dept. of Central Univ., Louisville, Ky.

Distinctive features: A thorough didactic course, unsurpassed clinical facilities, eighteen clinics per week, the student being daily required to examine and prescribe, a high standard of graduation, both a didactic and a practical clinical examination being required.

For catalogues and information concerning special advantages address

DR. W. H. BOLLING, DEAN,
Cor. Third and Jefferson Sts., Louisville, Ky.

SOUTHWESTERN AGENCY

FOR

School and College Text Books.

Office No. 30 CAMP STREET (up stairs).

Below we submit the MODEL SERIES of books (so conceded by the leading educators of this country) for use in PRIMARY, INTERMEDIATE and GRAMMAR schools. To insure their adoption by the progressive teacher we have only to ask a careful comparison with books of a like grade, a critical examination and a thorough, practical test in the class-room:

	Prices.
Harper's Introductory Geography	60
Harper's School Geography	$1 25
" Uelled States First Reader	13
" " " Second "	36
" " " Third "	37
" " " Fourth "	56
" " " Fifth "	75
" " " Sixth "	90
Wilson's Primary Speller	15
" Larger "	30
" New "	34
Lamson's Penmanship, per dozen	1 80
French's First Lessons in Numbers	25
" Elementary Arithmetic	37
" Mental Arithmetic	36
" Common School Arithmetic	70
Swinton's Language Primer	30
" Language Lessons	37
" School Composition	37
" Progressive Grammar	55

Catalogues, circulars, and testimonials sent on applications. Correspondence solicited and will receive prompt attention, when addressed

W. P. ROGERS & W. L. JARVIS, Agents for the introduction of Harper & Brothers' Educational Works; New Orleans, La.; Lock Box 134.

Agents Wanted.

For new edition of History of great temperance Reforms, and "Belshazzar's Feast," by a London artist, in chromatic colors, 19x26. Bothaxe sold for $6; are now sent free on receipt of $3 25. Address Rev. James Shaw, Rossville, Ill. may17,4t.

Webster's Unabridged.

3000 Engravings; 1840 pages Quarto.

FOUR PAGES COLORED PLATES.

A Whole Library in itself.

Invaluable in a Family.

☞ Now contains twenty-five per cent. more matter than any other one volume English Dictionary published in this country or Great Britain

A NATIONAL STANDARD.

The sale is 20 times as great as the sale of any other large Dictionary

More than 30,000 copies have been placed in the public schools of the United States

Recommended by 28 State Superintendents of schools

☞ Warmly recommended by Bancroft, Prescott, Motley, Geo. P. Marsh, Halleck, Whittier, Willis, Saxe, Elihu Burritt, Daniel Webster, Rufus Choate, H. Coleridge, Smart, Horace Mann, President Woolsey, Wayland, Hopkins, Nott, Walker, Anderson, (more than fifty College Presidents in all) and the best American and European scholars.

"Indispensible to every student of the English language."—M. R. Waite, Chief Justice United States

The Highest Authority in Great Britain as well as in the United States.

"The best practical English Dictionary extant. —London Quarterly Review, Oct. 1873.

ALSO

Webster's National Pictorial Dictionary.

600 Engravings; 1040 Pages Octavo.

Published by G. & C. MERRIAM, Springfield, Mass

Webster's Abridgments,

Published by IVISON, BLAKEMAN, TAYLOR & Co. N. Y

Webster's Primary School Dictionary, 204 Engr'gs

" Common " " 274 "

" High " " 297 "

" Academic " " 344 "

" Counting House " with numerous illustrations and many valuable tables not to be found elsewhere

NOW READY.

"HEAVENWARD."

A new collection of Sunday-school Songs

BY JAMES R. MURRAY,

containing, besides new contributions from most of the leading writers of Sunday-school music in America, the BEST and most Popular HYMNS and MUSIC of the late

P. P. BLISS.

most of which will be found in NO OTHER book.

"Heavenward" is now ready, and for sale by booksellers and music dealers throughout the country

"Heavenward" is unequaled by any other book, both in words and music.

"Heavenward" is the ONLY new book in which you will find P. P. BLISS's most famous songs

"Heavenward" is our usual Sunday-school style, printed on fine tinted paper, and containing 160 pages. Price, 35 cents, by mail $30 per hundred. Specimen pages free. Single sample copy, in paper covers, mailed for 25 cents. Order from your bookseller, or of the publishers

S. BRAINARD'S SONS, Publishers,
apr26-77-1y] Cleveland, Ohio

A. H. NELSON,

Commercial Stationer, Printer, Blank

BOOK MANUFACTTRER and LITHOGRAPHER.

THE best assortment of Blank Books in the city.

The Finest Specimens of Lithographic work to be found in New Orleans.

No. 57 CAMP STREET,

Sign of the Mammoth Letter Press.

☞ Call and Prove My Statements.

[oct12-76 1y

$66 a week in your own town. Term and outfit free. H. Hallet & Co. Dec 21 76 1y] Portland, Maine.

tees fix the day of commencement week whereon they will hold their annual session.

I recommend also that they appoint a committee of examiners whose duty it shall be to be present at all the term examination.

I recommend also that we publish a catalogue at once, if we can find the means.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we hereby express our high appreciation of the services of Rev. W. D. Godman, D.D., as President of the New Orleans University during the year that is past, and that we hereby re-elect him President for the ensuing year.

Miss DeWolf was re-elected as instructor for ensuing year.

The remainder of the Faculty will be selected by Rev. Dr. Rust.

Rev. Dr. J. H. McCarty, Rev. E. Williams, and Dr. R. S. Rust, of Cincinnati, were elected to fill vacancies on Board.

The Secretary was instructed to prepare a suitable minute respecting the death of Rev. Dr. Daily, a member of the Board, and to forward a copy to his bereaved widow.

Tuesday of commencement week was fixed as the time of holding the annual meetings of the Board.

The following resolutions, offered by Dr. Godman, were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we learn with much pain of the serious illness and the unexpected departure from our midst of Prof. A. B. Collins.

2. That Prof. Collins has, during his entire connection with us, discharged his duties as teacher with ability, has illustrated the qualities of the Christian and the gentleman, and has endeared himself to us in a more than ordinary degree.

3. That should Prof. Collins' health be restored in the future, we should welcome his return at any time.

4. That this resolution be published in the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and that the Secretary furnish a copy to Prof. Collins.

The following were appointed a committee of examiners, viz.: Rev. J. H. McCarty, D.D.; Rev. J. C. Hartzell, Hon. T. G. Tracy; Prof. P. M. Williams, M. D., and Rev. John Mathews, D.D.

The President was authorized to publish a catalogue at the earliest moment practicable.

Resolved, That the trustees of the New Orleans University, learning from Rev. W. D. Godman, D.D., [illegible] H. M. Ingham, of Cleveland, [illegible] has sent to the University [illegible] the year, $16 valuable [illegible] the library, which are [illegible] great demand, not [illegible] therefore, be it

1. That our sincere [illegible] be tendered to Mr. Ingham, [illegible] and valuable donation, [illegible] shall, ever pray [illegible] may rest upon him.

That a copy of this [illegible] be forwarded to Mr. Ingham, Secretary and that it [illegible] in the SOUTHWESTERN [illegible]

[illegible] services of that distinguished [illegible] pilot and vetteran [illegible] the free[illegible] D.D., Secretary of the [illegible] Society, to whom [illegible] be addressed for so [illegible] following [illegible] of the [illegible] Silver [illegible] hereby tender[illegible] R. G. [illegible] and [illegible] Aid [illegible] donation of [illegible] the last year, [illegible] watchful care of [illegible] interest in our [illegible] May God ever [illegible] Aid Society.

[illegible] of Dr. Hartzell, of [illegible] meeting year were President, [illegible] Lindy, [illegible] Cole, Beers[illegible] D. Godman, [illegible] R. Heath, Au[illegible]

[illegible] the past year [illegible] the President's [illegible]

[illegible] account was [illegible] statement [illegible] letter [illegible] and [illegible] memb[illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] the School, the troupe, the family and the church will be hard to fill.

J. A. BRADEN.

Nashville, June 4th, 1877.

Pan Handle Route.

Many families who intend visiting the noted watering places of the Middle States are now debating among them[illegible] Pan Handle Route to [illegible] various destinations of [illegible] and reference [illegible] old reliable Pan [illegible] Route has [illegible] most superb drawing-room, parlor and sleeping coaches, and the eating-houses are noted for the good supply of seasonable delicacies, while the employees are selected for their urbanity and skill as railroad men. The region, especially the mountain districts of Ohio and Pennsylvania the route passes over, may be considered the Switzerland of America. Pure mountain air—health invigorating caloric—making the invalid feel like rejuvenated life. These and many other recommendations are such as should induce all who desire to travel comfortably with speed and safety, to take advantage of the highly popular Pan Handle Route.

Mount Zion Church New Orleans.

This enterprising church under the pastorate of Rev. C. Hunt in making a desperate and successful effort to raise money to pay the debts on their church property. The Mount Zion Lagniappe a neat little monthly paper reports a proposed "Grand Excelsior Banquet," to be given by the Working Band of the Church, to be begin June 12th and to last five days. Every sort of good thing in the festival and musical lines is promised. Mrs. M. Hall is president, Mrs. B. Mortou is vice president, Mrs. S. Chapman treasurer, and Mr. J. W. Bowens Secretary. Success to Mt. Zion!

New Publications.

Heredity, or Responsibility in Parentage. By Rev. S. H. Platt, A.M. 12 mo, paper, 10 cents. S. R. Wells & Company, Publishers, 737 Broadway, New York.

This interesting essay on the duties of husbands and fathers, prepared from a series of sermons by an eminent clergyman of Brooklyn, meets one of the wants of day. Our people generally need sound instruction with reference to the conditions upon which mental and physical health depend; and from what better source may it be obtained than from the lips of a learned and earnest minister.

The Wonders of Prayer, Henry F. William publisher, 46 Beekman street, New York, 400 pages. Price $150.

To a greater extent than any other book, and in an extraordinary recital of facts, with over five hundred interesting incidents, it fully answers that all-important question, "DOES GOD ANSWER PRAYER?"

It also shows that the promises of the Bible are absolutely true, and faithful in the daily lives of those who are constantly trusting in the Lord, and ask His help in their daily anxieties and experiences. It is a book of great comfort and encouragement to Christians, in their doubt, fear, sorrow, or trouble, to trust Him more fully in faith, and shows how He who delivered others in time of distress, peril, or solicitude, can hear and deliver them also.

To those who are not Christians, it is a record of undoubted facts from the experience of individuals now living, proving the real existence and power of God, in controlling circumstances, directing human wills, and all things of earth, showing His nearness and power in daily events of life, and demonstrating that He is not a distant Creator, but ever near at hand.

This volume contains several hundred instances where Prayer has been heard and answered in the following circumstances of life: Healing; Recovery from severe sickness; Delivery from Death; Delivery in Perilous Situations; Miraculous Cures of Diseases and Deformed Persons; Help in Poverty; Relief from Starving; Insanity Cured; All Appetite for Sensuality Removed; Evil Habits Overcome; Drunkenness Cured; Appetite for Tobacco and Liquors taken wholly away; Souls Converted and Saved; Bad Men Confounded; Oppressors and Wrongdoers Punished; Wonderful Revivals; Proofs of the Existence of the Holy Spirit; Timely Help in Financial Danger and Need; How Liberal Gifts to the Lord and Poor have been blessed; How the Poor, Afflicted, and Helpless, have been cared for constantly; How Work and Employment have been Obtained; How Lives have been saved from Accidents and Deaths; How Plans in Life have been wholly Frustrated and Changed for the Better; How the Schemes of Bad Men have been Spoiled; How the Lord has controlled the Natural Element of Earth, the Winds, the Lightning, the Rain, Tempests, Snow and Hail, stopped their work of destruction, to Aid, Benefit, Relieve, Help, or Deliver some poor Christian who has cried to Him in Prayer.

A multitude of such instances are given, all from experiences of individuals of the present day, still living, which fully satisfy any one that the same God who did wonders in the days of Abraham, Joseph, Jacob, Joshua, David, Elijah, and Hezekiah, the same Lord who walked in Palestine, healing the sick, curing the blind, lame, and halt, raising the dead, performing miracles, is still, though unseen, with us this very day, performing as many wonders and miracles as in the days of old. By strong faith, Christians who have laid hold of the promises, and trusted in their unseen Lord, pleading to Him in their extremities of life, here give their testimonies that they have found their God faithful.

Dancing as an Amusement, considered in the light of Scriptures, of Christian Experience and of Good Taste, by Bostwick Hawley D. D. New York, N. Fibbais & Sons: 79 pages, Cloth 50 cents: paper 25 cents.

A very timely, and well written book. The book is dedicated "to Christian parents, and to young people of all churches." One of the saddest facts in the modern church is the ease with which Christians permit themselves to be lead into the follies of fashionable life, such as dancing, theater-going, card playing and the like. The whole church needs a thorough awakening on this subject. Dr. Hawley has given a concise but conclusive argument against the modern dance for amusement. He believes and so we think, clearly shows that neither the Scriptures a proper Christian experience, or good taste approve of dancing. The scriptural argument is very complete. All or nearly all texts in the Old and New Testament which speak of the dance, are quoted and it is shown that in no case is the modern idea of dancing countenanced. We shall hope that a work of this excellent volume, we think, could be in the hands of [illegible] church members.

The estimates of the total number of churches vary from 16,000 to 20,000.

Mr. Moody's Theology.

June 24th being Sunday School Quarterly Review, we give in this place the following interesting article from the Christian Union.

The religious opinions of any one individual are of small consequence. But Mr. Moody's theology is representive. He has been "hacked up by the orthodoxy of London, Edinboro', New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, and Boston." His theology may fairly be regarded, therefore, in its main features, as that of at least a very large proportion of the orthodox church.

Moreover, it has been a remarkably successful theology. We do not now consider the permanence or the reality of its success; though we believe that it is both real and permanent. After Christ's ministry in Galilee was ended the crowds dispersed, and probably the Pharisees thought the revival had come to an end when the preacher was silenced. But the spiritual impulse that Christ imparted then is more powerful in the nineteen century than it was in the first. Mr. Moody's work, whether permanent or not, has been transiently powerful. It is well for all men who desire to move on the hearts and consciences of others to know what are the doctrines which Mr. Moody has found so effective. A great deal has been said about his methods. We here epitomize, as far as possible in his own words, his doctrines. We gather this epitome from the published volume of his New York sermons.

"Man is a stupendous failure." His whole history is a history of successive failures. He accepted the commandments, yet worshiped the golden calf at the foot of Sinai. He "was a failure under the judges, failure under the prophets, and now for two thousand years under grace he has been a most stupendous failure." "Man in his best day, under the most favorable circumstances, is nothing but a failure."

How he came to be a failure is a matter of no moment. "If I see a man tumble into the river and going to drown, it would do no good for me to sit down and bow my head and indulge in deep thought and reasoning how he came to get in there. The great question would then be as to how he was to be got out." One thing, however, is very certain; though "the first Adam introduces sin into the world," "it will not be on account of Adam's sin that you will be lost if you are lost."

God's love for man is absolute and universal. "God is not angry with us." "God hates the sin, but he loves the sinner." Christ loved Judas "in the very hour that he betrayed Him." "God is love; his love is unchangeable; his love is everlasting; his love is unfailing." This is the doctrine on which Mr. Moody's whole work is based; on which its whole system is built. "I have often thought I wouldn't have but one text; if I only thought I could make the world believe that God is love, I would only take that text, and go up and down the earth, trying to counteract what Satan has been telling men—that God is not love."

The offer of this love is free grace. "You can not get it by working." Salvation is a gift from God. If a man worked it out he would boast of what he had done, 'O I did it.'" "It is offered to all that have sinned and are not worthy." How then as to election? "You need not be stumbling over election. The proclamation is, "Whosoever will, let him come and drink of the water of life freely." "Everybody can get out of prison that wants to. The trouble is, they don't want to go."

This grace is to be accepted by faith; and "the best definition of faith I can find is the dependence upon the veracity of another." "Faith says amen to everything that God says. It takes God without any ifs."

Therefore, "salvation is instantaneous. It is just as sudden as a man walking through a doorway. One minute he is on this side, the next he is on that side." Many are the illustrations used by Mr. Moody to enforce this doctrine; Noah one minute exposed to the flood, the next within the ark safe; the Hebrew child this moment in danger from the death angel, the next safe because the blood has been put on the door-post; the refugee this moment fleeing with the avenger of blood behind him, the next secure because in the city of refuge.

The salvation is something present, not future. "He that heareth my words, and believeth on Him that sent me, hath—h-a-t-h, hath; it don't say you shall have when you die—'hath everlasting life.'" But it is only given and accepted instantaneously; it is not perfected instantaneously. Conversion does not change the whole nature. "We very often talk about a change of heart. I do not think that is a good way to put it. You cannot find these words in Scripture. All through scripture it is a 'new birth,' it is a 'new creature;' it is a new life given; 'born from above of the Spirit;' 'born again.'" "Every child of God has two natures" "as distinct as day and night." "With that old Adam in us, if we do not keep him down in the place of death, he brings us unto captivity." "Judiciously we are dead, but in reality we are down here fighting the world, the flesh, and the devil."

In this new life, in which we are to work out the salvation which we have accepted, the master motive of the Christian must be love. We are not under the law, but under grace. "It is not any more, thou shalt not do that." That was under the law. Under that dispensation it was do and live—now it is live and do." "Infidelity don't know anything about love. The religion of Jesus Christ is a religion of love." "If the love of God beats in warm pulsations in our hearts, and we show them we are full of love and sympathy for them, how easy it will be to win souls to Christ."

Finally, "You will never see the kingdom of God unless you are born again." "Christ will come by and by. You can cry for mercy then, but the door will be shut." Does Mr. Moody believe in the irreparable loss of those who deliberately reject Christ in this life? Evidently. Does he believe in the loss of those who have never known Christ? Apparently not; this question indeed he never discusses, but the one fatal sin according to his system is rejection of Christ. Does he believe in inquisitional torments? Evidently not. "I believe that the worm that dieth not is our memory." "We won't need any one to condemn us at the bar of God. We will condemn ourselves." "Memory is God's officer; and when God touches the secret springs of our memory, saying, 'Son, remember,' we can not help but remember." "Tramp, tramp, tramp will come before us a long procession—all the sins we have ever committed."

It is no part of our purpose in this article to defend Mr. Moody's theology; we simply describe it. But when the hour of unjust aspersion and absurd eulogy has passed away, and the results of Mr. Moody's work in Great Britain and the United States are seen by a candid and a clear-eyed criticism, it will be seen that not the least service which he has rendered the church of Christ has been that rendered to theological science. For there have been few men in this country who have done more than he to break in pieces Dagon in the temple of Jehovah, to destroy the pagan and despotic God whom a false theology had established for the God of the New Testament, to snap the withes with which Delilah had bound the doctrine of free grace, and to emancipate the people of God from the bondage of a Pharisaic legalism; few who have done more than he to quicken in pulpit and in pews faith in the infinite, unchanging, overlasting love of God, and in the free gift of grace as an inspiration to human endeavor.

The Old Reliable Jackson Route.

TO THE FRONT AGAIN.

This old favorite passenger route has been greatly improved with steel rails, new iron bridges and new cars, and is now run with great regularity, making sure connections and quick time, and is the shortest and best route to the East via Louisville and Cincinnati.

Pleasure seekers by this route can go via Chicago and through Canada, or via Buffalo and Niagara Falls, to New York and the Northern watering places, at the same fare as via Louisville or the lines through Georgia and Virginia.

A full line of tourist and excursion tickets now on sale at the Jackson Railroad ticket office, No. 22 Camp street, under City Hotel, to all important summer resorts in the East, North and Northwest, by all desired routes.

Only one change of cars between New Orleans and New York and other Eastern cities. No change between Chicago, Cincinnati, Louisville and New Orleans, or from St. Louis to New Orleans.

Palace sleeping cars on all through trains.

Try the old Jackson route.

Regular Secretion Essential to Health.

The regular secretion and flow of the gastric juices, and of the bile which the use of Hostetters Stomach Bitters promotes, are effects which conduce materially to the restoration of health, when the system is disordered. Food is not digested in the dyspeptic stomach because the gastric fluid is deficient, superabundant or vitiated:—the liver becomes congested and the bowels constipated because the supply of bile is inadequate or misdirected. The Bitters rectifies all this, and removes every ill in consequence of non-assimilation and billious irregularity. Furthermore, it stimulates the action of the kidneys, by which impurities are, so to speak, strained from the blood, and any tendency in the urinary organs to grow sluggish and disordered counteracted. Whether it be used as a means of regulating gastric or billious secretion, and relieving the overloaded bowels, or to promote complete, and therefore healthful assimilation, Hostetter's Bitters may be relied upon with confidence to accomplish the end in view.

Wonderful, Most Wonderful.

A neighbor of ours has been for several years afflicted with consumption, and for months was so low that we looked daily for her death, but strange as it seems to us, three bottles of Cannabis Indica has so far restored her, that she is now able to do her housework. I have always been prejudiced against patent medicines, but seeing the remarkable effect your remedies have had upon Mrs. Fielder, and having a similar case in my own family, I have inclosed $18.00 for 6 syrup, 4 ointment and a box of pills hoping to obtain the same benefits, I am, respectfully

D. B. BAILEY,

GARDNER, Grundy Co., Ill., May 20, 1877

N. B.—This remedy speaks for itself. A single bottle will satisfy the most skeptical. We know that it positively cures Consumption, and will break up a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. $2-50 per bottle, or three for $650. Pills and Ointment, $125 each. Address CRADDOCK & CO., 1032 Race Street, Philadelphia, Penn. June 14·

Quarterly Meetings.

Holly Springs (Miss.) District.

SECOND ROUND.

Mt. Pleasant, July 7-8; Kosciusko, July 14-15; French Camp, July 16-17; Greensboro, July 17-19, Winona and Vaiden 21-22; Duck Hill, July 26-27; Granada, July 28-29; Grenada Circuit, July 28-29; Oxford, Aug. 4-5; New Albany, Aug. 8-9; Ripley, Aug. Hickory Flat, Aug. 15; Holly Springs Aug. 18-19; Bylalia, Aug. 21-22; Chulahoma, Aug. 24; Abbeville, Aug. 25-26; Eliza, Aug. 30 and Sept 1st. First District Conference for Holly Springs District will meet on the 14th day of June, at Grenada; all the brethren are requested to be present.

J. G. JOHNSON, P. E.

Greenswood (Miss.) District.

(Second Round.)

Wesley Chapel, 9 and 10th of June; Silver Creek, 16th and 17th of June; Yazoo City, 23rd and 24th of June; Piney Grove, 30th of June and 1st of July; Deasonville, 7th and 8th of July; Pickens, 14 and 15 of July; Lexington, 21st and 22d of July; Goodman, 28th and 29th of July; Jones Chapel, 4th and 5th of August; McNutt, 11th and 12th of August; Caney Creek, 18th and 19th of August; New Midway, 25th and 26th of August; Hernando, 1st and 2d of September; Panola, 8th and 9th of September; Cold Water, 15th and 16th of September; Walnut City, 22nd and 23d of Sept; Shiloh 26th and 30th Sept.

J. W. DUNN, P. E.

Meridian (Miss.) District.

Whitefield, June 16-17; Louisville, June 19-20; Rome, June 23-24; Ex-Prairie, June 30 and July 1; Macon, July 7-8; Shuqualak, July 11-12; DeKalb, July 14-15; Lauderdale July 21-22; Daleville, July 24-25; Meridian 28-29; Meridian Circuit August 4-5; Quitman August 11-12; Shuhuta Circuit, August 15-16; State Line, Aug. 18-19; Shuhuta, August 21-22; Enterprise Circuit, Aug. 25-26; Enterprise, Aug. 28-29.

M. ADAMS, P. E.

Okolona District.

(Second round,)

Okolona May 5-6; Corinth and Corinth Circuit, May 12-13; Tupelo, May 14-15; Spring valley and Shady Grove, May 19-20; Big Black, May 26-27; Calhoun, June 2-3; Houston, June 6-7; Pontotoc, 9-10; Union Grove, June 16-17; West Point, June 23-25; Columbus and Columbus Circuit, June 30 and July 1; Tibbe, July 7-8; Tampico, July 14-15; Athens, July 21-22.

The Okolona District Conference well meet at Pontotoc June 10. I hope all the member of the Conference will be present: All the ministers of the Okolona District who are in charge of a work will please send on their post office address at once.

D. MCLACHLAN, P. E.

Gulf District.

(Second round.)

Pascagoula, May 17:18; Ocean Springs and Biloxi May 19-20; Handsboro, May 21-22; Bay St. Louis, May 23-24; Pass Christian, May 26-27; Crystal Springs, May 31 and June 1; Simpson Circuit, June 5-6; Hazlehurst, June 7-8; New Hope Circuit, June 9-10; Union Church Circuit, June 11-12; Brookhaven, June 13-14; Hamburg Circuit, June 21-22; Mendville Circuit June 23-24; Liberty, June 26-27; Summit and Magnolia, June 28-29; China Grove, June 30 and July 1; Coldmbia, July 2-3; Augusta, July 4-5.

L. BRADFORD, P. E.

Houston, Texas, District.

First Church, Houston, April 1; East Church and Wesley Chapel, Galveston, April 7 and 8; Spring Creek, April 14 and 15; Oyster Creek, April 21 and 22; Richmond and Frost Chapel, April 28 and 29; Houston, Second Church and Edwards Chapel, May 5 and 6; Harrisburg and West Point, May 12 and 13; Columbia and Brazoria, May 19 and 20; Stafford's, May 26 and 27; Houston Circuit, June 2 and 3; Cypress, June 9 and 10.

W. L. MOLLOY, P. E.

San Antonio (Tex.) District.

Mission Valley, April 21 and 22; Cuero April 28 and 29; Indianola and Lavacca, May 5 and 6; Columbus and Alleyton, May 12 and 13; Peach Creek and Columbus Circuit, May 19 and 20; San Antonio, May 26 and 27; Boerne, June 2 and 3; Houdo, June 9 and 10; Floresville June 16 and 17; Sutherland Springs, June 23 and 24; Nockernut, July 1; Cibola, July 4 and 5; Riddleville, July 4 and 5; Lavernia, 7 and 8; Goliad Circuit, July 11 and 12; Belmont, July 14 and 15; Refugio, July 18 and 19; Wrightsboro, July 21 and 22; Goliad, July 28 and 29.

D. GREGORY, P. E.

PAN-HANDLE

AND

PENNSYLVANIA

Railroad Route.

The Favorite Trunk Line.

Only one change of cars to New York, and that at 7:30 in the morning, at Cincinnati.

No omnibus transfers on any part of the line.

Best equipped and shortest route to all the eastern cities.

Best Route to Long Branch, Cape May, Atlantic City, New Port, and all the Atlantic sea-coast watering places.

Best route to Cresson, Altoona, the celebrated Bedford Springs, and all the noted mountain retreats of the Allegheny range; and also the best route to Bethlehem on the Lehigh river, and all the noted resorts in the Anthracite coal regions of Pennsylvania.

This route is supplied with all the modern improvements for speed, safety, and comfort; and continuous trains run without stoppages for fuel or water, as the water is supplied while the trains are in motion.

Palace and Drawing Room coaches on all trains.

Double tracked, stone balasted, free from dust, and steel rails laid according to scientific principles, to avoid jarring which is the cause of nausea to many.

All travelers who have availed themselves of the solid comforts to be found on the old relishio Pan Handle and Pensylvania, unhesitatingly say that for families and tourists, it is unequalled; while for business men who desire relishility and promptness it is far ahead of all opposition.

The refreshment saloons and eating houses are all first-class and all have an enviable reputation for their cuisine—the tables being supplied with the best that the markets of Ohio and Pennsylvania afford.

Be sure and ask for tickets via Louisville Cincinnati and the Pan Handle Route.

W L. O'BRIEN,
Gen. Pas'r and Ticket Agent, Columbus, Ohio.

SIDNEY B JONES,
General S. W. Agent, Cincinnati, Ohio.

W M. WALLINGTON,
Gen. Southern Agent, New Orleans, La.

[june14-77-tf

F. F. HANSELL,

JAS. A. GRESHAM, Manager.

BOOK-SELLERS, PRINTERS,

AND STATIONERS.

No. 30 CAMP STREET.

Would respectfully announce to the readers of the ADVOCATE their facilities for doing all kinds of Printing and Job Work for

PARTIES,

BALLS,

and BUSINESS PURPOSES.

Methodist Hymn Books, Disciplines and Bibles

Will be furnished at Northern Prices.

FAMILY BIBLES,

from $2 50 to $10 00. Orders from the country will receive prompt attention, and all orders filled as low as if brought in person.

Address, as above,

F. F. HANSELL,
30 Camp street, New Orleans, La.
Lock Box 84. [je14-77-3m.]

Hospital College of Medicine.

(The clinical School of the West.)

Med. Dept. of Central Univ., Louisville, Ky.

Distinctive features: A thorough didactic course, unsurpassed clinical facilities, eighteen clinics per week, the student being daily required to examine and prescribe, a high standard of graduation, both a didactic and a practical clinical examination being required.

For catalogues and information concerning especial advantages address

DR. W. H. BOLLING, DEAN,
Cor. Third and Jefferson Sts., Louisville, Ky.

SOUTHWESTERN AGENCY

FOR

School and College Text Books.

Office No. 30 CAMP STREET (up stairs).

Below we submit the MODEL SERIES of books (as conceded by the leading educators of this country) for use in PRIMARY, INTERMEDIATE and GRAMMAR schools. To insure their adoption by the progressive teacher we have only to ask a careful comparison with books of a like grade, a critical examination and a thorough, practical test in the class-room:

	Prices.
Harper's Introductory Geography	60
Harper's School Geography	$1 25
" United States First Reader	15
" " " Second "	26
" " " Third "	37
" " " Fourth "	56
" " " Fifth "	75
" " " Sixth "	90
Wilson's Primary Speller	15
" Larger "	30
" New "	34
Lamson's Penmanship, per dozen	1 80
French's First Lessons in Numbers	25
" Elementary Arithmetic	37
" Mental Arithmetic	38
" Common School Arithmetic	70
Swinton's Language Primer	30
" Language Lessons	37
" School Composition	37
" Progressive Grammar	55

Catalogues, circulars, and testimonials sent on applications. Correspondence solicited and will receive prompt attention, when addressed

W. P. ROGERS & W. L. JARVIS, Agents for the introduction of Harper & Brothers' Educational Works; New Orleans, La.; Lock Box 134.

Agents Wanted.

For new edition of History of great temperance Reforms, and "Belshazzar's Feast," by a London artist, in chromatic colors, 19x26. Bothsave sold for $6; are now sent free on receipt of $3 25. Address Rev. James Shaw, Rossville, Ill. may17,4t.

Webster's Unabridged.

3000 Engravings; 1840 pages Quarto.

FOUR PAGES COLORED PLATES.

A Whole Library in itself.

Invaluable in a Family.

Now contains twenty-five per cent. more matter than any other one volume English Dictionary published in this country or Great Britain

A NATIONAL STANDARD.

The sale is 20 times as great as the sale of any other large Dictionary

More than 30,000 copies have been placed in the public schools of the United States

Recommended by 28 State Superintendents of schools

Warmly recommended by Bancroft, Prescott, Motley, Geo. P. Marsh, Halleck, Whittier, Willis, Saxe, Elihu Burritt, Daniel Webster, Rufus Choate, H. Coleridge, Smart, Horace Mann, President Woolsey, Wayland, Hopkins, Nott, Walker, Anderson, (more than fifty College Presidents in all) and the best American and European scholars.

"Indispensible to every student of the English language."—M. R. Waite, Chief Justice United States

The Highest Authority in Great Britain as well as in the United States.

"The best practical English Dictionary extant. —London Quarterly Review, Oct. 1873.

ALSO

Webster's National Pictorial Dictionary.

600 Engravings; 1040 Pages Octavo.

Published by G. & C. MERRIAM, Springfield, Mass

Webster's Abridgments,

Published by IVISON, BLAKEMAN, TAYLOR & Co. N. Y

Webster's Primary School Dictionary,	224 Engr'gs	1.
" Common " "	274	"
" High " "	297	"
" Academic " "	344	"
" Counting House "	with numerous illustrations and many valuable tables not to be found elsewhere

NOW READY.

"HEAVENWARD."

A new collection of Sunday-school Songs

BY JAMES R. MURRAY,

containing, besides new contributions from most of the leading writers of Sunday-school music in America, the BEST and most Popular HYMNS and Music of the late

P. P. BLISS,

most of which will be found in NO OTHER book.

"Heavenward" is now ready, and for sale by booksellers and music dealers throughout the country

"Heavenward" is unequaled by any other book, both in words and music.

"Heavenward" is the ONLY new book in which you will find P. P. BLISS's most famous songs

"Heavenward" is our usual Sunday-school style, printed on fine tinted paper, and containing 160 pages. Price, 35 cents, by mail $30 per hundred Specimen pages free. Single sample copy, in paper covers, mailed for 20 cents Order from your bookseller, or of the publishers

S. BRAINARD'S SONS, Publishers,
apr26-77-1y] Cleveland, Ohio

A. H. NELSON,

Commercial Stationer, Printer, Blank

BOOK MANUFACTTRER and LITHOGRAPHER.

THE best assortment of Blank Books in the city.

The Finest Specimens of Lithographic work to be found in New Orleans.

No. 57 CAMP STREET,

Sign of the Mammoth Letter Press.

Call and Prove My Statements.

[oct12-76 1y

$66 a week in your own town. Term and outfit free. H. Hallet & Co. Dec 21 76 1y] Portland, Maine.

A CATASTROPHE.

No human being who saw the sight
But felt a shudder of pale affright.
He sat in a window three stories high,
A little baby, with no one nigh.
A stranger saw him and stopped to stare;
A crowd soon gathered to watch him
there.

A gleam—a flutter in airy flight,
Came past the window a butterfly bright,
From fields of clover and perfumed air,
Wayfaring insect, what brought you
there?
The baby saw it and eagarly
Reached to catch it, crowing with glee.

With fat, pink fingers, reached out—and fell!
The awful horror no tongue can tell.
Poor little baby, so sweet and bright!
Pale faces quivered, and lips grew white.
Weak women fainted, and strong man grew weak,
Up rose one woman's heart-piercing shriek.

Hurrah for the awning; upon the fly
It caught the youngster and tossed him
high,
The bounce prodigious made baby scowl;
He caught his breath, air, and set up a howl.
All bless the awning that had no flaw;
But a madder baby you never saw!

Display of Dress.

It is bad taste to make the church the place for the show of fine clothes. There may be occasions when it is suitable to put on the costliest and richest dress which the means and conscience will allow; but to make the house of prayer a scene for exhibition of the latest fashions, and thus to appear before God, is out of all character. The plainest raiment which is in keeping with the usual habit of a person is most consistent with the gravity of religious worship. Thoroughly refined people are always averse to making a display of themselves. True worth craves neutral tints. Least of all do well-cultured persons wish to draw the gaze of a congregation to themselves when they and others are met for the serious matter of religious instructions and devotion. They desire, also, that as far as possible all distinctions between rich and poor, great and little, shall disappear in the sanctuary.—Christian Index.

Immensity of Space.

In a recent lecture, delivered in Edinburgh, on "The Stars," Professor Grant gave a graphic idea of the immensity of space. He said a railway train, traveling night and day at the rate of fifty miles an hour, would reach the moon in six months, the sun in two hundred years, and Alpha Centauri, the nearest of the fixed stars, in forty-three thousand millions of years. A ball from a gun, traveling at the rate of nine miles an hour, would reach the sun in 2,700,000 years, and Alpha Centauri in 6,000,000 years, as it did at the rate of a second in less than three years. The telescope has shown stars 760 years distant. Some of these stars may have ceased to exist, though their light has not as they were a half million years ago. These stars may be extinct, though their light has not yet reached us. And yet their light itself to us is not as they were when the stars he computed that were a hundred billion miles from the earth, and if the telescope were provided with our eyes it would be less than one of the stars.

[illegible] made up of [illegible] fall in their [illegible] from the [illegible] hour; to [illegible] future. [illegible] the [illegible] degrada- [illegible] most [illegible] failure. [illegible] when they [illegible] to [illegible] for [illegible] when [illegible] in [illegible] con-

[illegible] we parade our misfortunes more sympathy we com- [illegible] Dewey.

[illegible] a Cable. We weave a [illegible] every day, and at last [illegible] it.—Horace Mann.

[illegible] the Dead Sea dead? [illegible] the time receiving, [illegible] anything. This [illegible]

Austin Humphrey, who was hung at the Canadian village of Sandwich opposite Detroit, on the 22d ult., for murder, was led to the front of the scaffold, and spoke in part as follows: "It was all owing to that terrible curse of liquor, and oh! I beg of you, as you value your own souls, stop drinking right where you are. Whisky has caused more trouble, more death in this world than all other evils put together. It has been my ruin and the ruin of thousands of others. Don't touch it! God help you to let it alone!"

LOST FRIENDS.

NOTE—We receive many letters asking for information about lost friends. All such letters will be published in this column. We make no charge for publishing these letters, your SUBSCRIBERS TO THE SOUTHWESTERN. All others will please enclose fifty cents to pay for publishing the notices. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any cases where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.

Five sisters of us belonged to Mrs. Clark, a widow woman, living six miles from Liberty, Bradford Co., Virginia. Three of us, Martha, Isabella, and Elizabeth, were sold to her brother, Mr. Ironton, who brought us to Mississippi, where we now live. We desire information concerning the two younger sisters, Julia and Catharine, whom we have not since heard from. Address Elizabeth Wells, Holly Springs Miss.

I desire information concerning my father and brother, Charley and Wiley Bryant, who belonged to Joseph Bryantin, Smith Co., Texas. The last word I had from them was during the war. I formerly lived in Louisiana and was called Ephraim Applewhite. Address Ephraim Jones, care of Rev. E. E. Cooper, Biegel, Fayette Co., Texas.

My wife was Anna Sample, and our son was named George Washington. We lived at Cameron, Milam Co., Texas. I was then Ben. Buckbolt, as I belonged to a lawyer of that name. I was separated from my wife and child during the war, and will be thankful for information concerning them. Address Benjamin McCullough, care Rev. C. L. Madison, Austin, Texas.

A Skeptics' Conversion.

A minister had among his congregation an eminent lawyer who was an infidel. He had long desired the salvation of the skeptic, and one day, knowing that he was to be present in the meeting, he prepared a sermon especially for him, hoping and praying that through it he would be converted.

The infidel came. It was an icy winter's day; he listened to the sermon, and went his way, and not long after confessed his faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. The minister rejoiced, and in conversing with him inquired of him what portion of the sermon it was which especially affected his mind, and led to such a desirable result.

He answered: "It was not your sermon at all; I did not hear it; I was making a brief all the while you were preaching. But after meeting closed, as I came out I saw old black Aunt Chloe trying to get down the slippery steps. I stepped forward and helped her down over the ice to the crossing, and as I left her, she looked up into my face, and said: 'Oh, massa, I wish you loved my dear Jesus!' Those words rung in my ears and I could not get rid of them, until I went to my office and bowed myself on my knees, and gave myself to Christ. It was not your sermon, but it was old Aunt Chloe's words which led me to the Savior."

"Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord of hosts," is the constantly recurring lesson which God teaches us by circumstances like this. Shall we ever appreciate the divine instruction, and learn to make the Lord our confidence and trust, believing that in him alone is victory and strength?

It is said by the friends of General Grant that it is his purpose during his stay in Europe upon all occasions of ceremony to wear his uniform as a General of the Army, which is a very elaborate and handsome dress. The two magnificent swords belonging to General Grant, and which he withdrew from safekeeping in the Treasury Department to take to Europe with him, will also be brought into service on ceremonial occasions. As General Grant will receive a great deal of official attention in Europe, where so much stress is laid upon form in dress, his selection of his army dress seems quite proper. General Schenck, while Minister to England, always wore his Major General's uniform on State occasions, but as Minister Pierrepont has nothing of that kind to fall back upon he has to go the regulation court dress.

TEXT BOOKS

FOR THE

NEW COURSE OF STUDY,

As authorized to be pursued by candidates for the ministry in the Methodist Episcopal Church, by the Bishops, for the ensuing four years, to commence with Spring Conferences, 1877.

[Books are bound in CLOTH, where not specified.]

For Admission on Trial in the Traveling Connection.

Books to be Studied:

RAWLINSON'S Ancient History. A Manual of Ancient History from the earliest times to the fall of the Western Empire. By George Rawlinson, M.A. Large 12mo.... $2 50

STUDENT'S Old Testament History. From the Creation to the Return of the Jews from Captivity. With an Appendix, containing an Introduction to the books of the Old Testament. Edited by Wm. Smith, LL.D. With maps and wood-cuts. Large 12mo.. 2 00

STUDENT'S New Testament History. With an Introduction, connecting the History of the Old and New Testaments. Edited by Wm. Smith, LL.D. With maps and wood-cuts. Large 12mo..... 2 00

HISTORY of the United States, from the Aboriginal Times to the present day. By John Clark Ridpath, A.M. 8vo..... 3 00
Half morocco, 8vo..... 3 50

AMERICAN Methodism: Abridged from the author's History of the Methodist Episcopal Church. By Abel Stevens, D.D., LL.D. Ten engravings. 8vo..... 3 50

RHETORIC: A Text-book, designed for use in schools and colleges, and for private study. By E. O. Haven, D.D., LL.D. 12mo..... 1 50

ELEMENTS of Logic. By J. R. Tress, D.D. 12mo..... 80

DISCIPLINE of the Methodist Episcopal Church, 1876:
Sime; cloth..... 40
Sime; morocco tuck..... 1 00

Books to be Read:

CHRISTIAN THEOLOGY; or, a concise, comprehensive, and systematic view of the evidences, doctrines, morals and institutions of theology. By Samuel Wakefield, D.D. 8vo; sheep..... 3 50

LIFE of Rev. John Wesley. By Rev. Richard Watson; 12mo..... 1 25

HAND-BOOK of Bible Geography, containing the name, pronunciation, and meaning of every place, nation, and tribe mentioned in both the Canonical and Apocryphal Scriptures. By Rev. George E. Whitney, A.M. Illustrated by nearly one hundred engravings, and forty maps and plans. Large 12mo..... 2 50

CHRISTIAN PURITY, Nature and Blessedness of. By R. S. Foster, D.D. Revised. 12mo..... 1 75

STUDENT'S Gibbon. The History of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire. By Edward Gibbon. Abridged. Incorporating the researches of recent commentators. By Wm. Smith, LL.D. 100 engravings on wood; 12mo..... 2 00

First Year's Course.

Books to be Studied:

WATSON'S Theological Institutes.
2 vols; 8vo; sheep..... 7 00
2 vols; calf..... 8 00
2 vols; half calf..... 8 00

CHRISTIAN PERFECTION. Plain Account of. By Rev. John Wesley; 24mo..... 45

HISTORY of the Church from the earliest apost to the Reformation. By Rev. George Waddington, M.A.; 8vo..... 2 00

A TREATISE on Homiletics. By D. P. Kidder, D.D; 12mo..... 1 75

MENTAL Philosophy. By T. C. Upham; 12mo 75

Books to be Read:

WESLEY'S Sermons; 2 vols; 8vo..... 5 00

HISTORY of Methodism. Vols. 1, 2 and 3. By Abel Stevens, LL.D.; 12 mo; cloth, each 1 75
Half morocco..... 2 50
Illuminated, morocco; 8vo; each..... 5 00

THEOLOGY of the New Testament. By Rev. J. J. Van Oosterzee; 12mo..... 1 75

EARLY YEARS of Christianity. By E. De Pressensé; 6 vols; 12mo; each..... 1 75

Second Year's Course.

Books to be Studied:

WATSON'S Theological Institutes (Part II.)
3 vols; 8vo; sheep..... 7 00
3 vols; calf..... 8 00
3 vols; half calf..... 8 00

HIBBARD on Baptism. Its subjects, mode, scriptural import, and relative order. By F. G. Hibbard, D.D.; 12mo..... 1 75

THE ELEMENTS of Moral Science. By Francis Wayland, D.D.; 12mo..... 1 75

Books to be Read:

THE FREEDOM of the Will. By D. D. Whedon, D.D.; 12mo..... 1 75

DEFENCE of our Fathers. By Bishop Emory; 8vo..... 1 00

CODE, Penal and Discipline. By James Porter, D.D. Revised edition; 12mo..... 1 75

THE BIBLE: Its divine origin and inspiration, defended from internal evidence and the testimonies of nature, history and tradition. By L. Gaussen, D.D. 12mo.. 1 75

THE HISTORICAL evidences of the truth of the Scripture Records. By George Rawlinson, M.A.; 12mo..... 1 00

HOMILETICS and Pastoral Theology. By William S. Tyler, D.D., Professor in Union Theological Seminary, N. Y.; 8vo.. 2 50

Third Year's Course.

Books to be Studied:

WATSON'S Theological Institutes (Part III. and IV.). Two volumes; 8vo; Sheep..... 7 00
2 volumes; calf..... 8 00
2 volumes; half calf..... 8 00

AN INTRODUCTION to the Gospel Records. By Wilson Paul, D.D. 12mo..... 1 75

ANALOGY of Natural and Revealed Religion. By Bishop Butler. Edited by Joseph Cummings, D.D.; 12mo..... 1 50

THE BIBLE Handbook: An introduction to the study of Sacred Scriptures. By Joseph Angus; 8vo..... 3 50

ELEMENTS of Logic; containing the substance of the articles in the Encyclopedia Metropolitana. With additions, etc. By Richard Whately, D.D.; 12mo..... 75

Books to be Read:

A TEXT-BOOK of the History of Doctrines. By Dr. K. R. Hagenbach, Professor of Theology in the University of Basle; 2 vols; 8vo..... 5 00

SERMONS of Substance. By J. P. Hurst, D.D.; 12mo..... 2 00

HISTORY of the Reformation of the sixteenth century. By J. H. Merle D'Aubigné, D.D; 5 vols; 12mo..... 5 00
2 vols; 8vo..... 5 00

THE AGREEMENT of Science and Revelation. By Rev. J. E. Wythe, M.D.; 12mo.. 1 75

Fourth Year's Course.

Books to be Read:

LECTURES on the Evidences of Revelation. By Bishop Edward Thompson; 12mo..... 1 50

THEOLOGICAL Encyclopedia and Methodology. By John M'Clintock, D.D. Edited by Rev. John T. Short, D.D.; 12mo..... 1 50

THE CHRISTIAN PASTORATE; its character, responsibilities and duties. By D. S. Kidder, D.D.; 12mo..... 1 75

CHRISTIAN ESTHETICS: A System of. By G. W. Harvey, M.A.; 8vo..... 3 00

THE LIFE AND EPISTLES of St. Paul. By Rev. W. J. Conybeare, M.A., and Rev. J. S. Howson, M.A. Unabridged edition. 2 volumes in one; 8vo..... 3 00

Books of Reference.

THE VOCABULARY OF PHILOSOPHY, Mental, Moral and Metaphysical; with Quotations and References for the use of students. By William Fleming, D.D.; 12mo. 2 00

SMITH'S Classical Dictionary. A new Classical Dictionary of Greek and Roman Biography, Mythology, and Geography. By Wm. Smith, LL.D. Revised by Chas. Anthon, LL.D. Royal 8vo; cloth, extra.... 5 00

M'CLINTOCK AND STRONG'S Cyclopedia of Biblical, Theological, and Ecclesiastical Literature. By John M'Clintock, D.D., and James Strong, S.T.D. With maps and numerous illustrations. Four volumes, comprising the letters A to X are now ready. Price per vol.:
Cloth..... 3 00
Sheep..... 3 50
Half morocco..... 3 50

HAYDN'S Dictionary of Dates. Edited by Benjamin Vincent. Revised for the use of American readers. 8vo; cloth..... 5 00
Sheep..... 6 00

New Local Preachers, Candidates for Deacon's and Elder's Orders.

Books to be Studied:

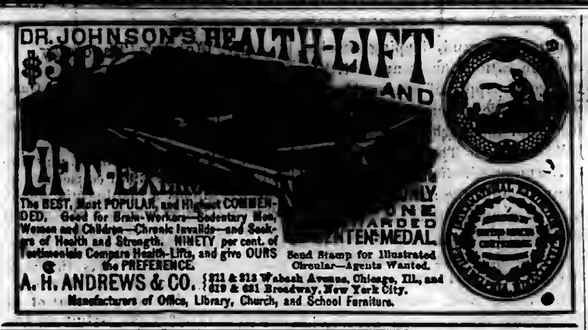
WATSON'S Institutes. 2 volumes..... 7 00
WHEDON'S Treatise Concerning of Christian Perfection..... 41
[illegible] of Fact and Common [illegible] John Fletcher; 12mo.... 50
[illegible] 40
[illegible] 1 25
[illegible] the Bible; [illegible] 1 00
[illegible] 1 75
[illegible] 1 25
[illegible] Revised and Improved [illegible] 3 00
[illegible] 90
[illegible] Methodism. 8vo..... 2 00

Any of the above books will be sent on receipt of price. Address,

NELSON & PHILLIPS

[illegible] New Orleans.

DR. JOHNSON'S HEALTH-LIFT



The BEST, Most POPULAR, and Highest COMMENDED. Good for Brain-Workers—Sedentary Men, Women and Children—Chronic Invalids—and Seekers of Health and Strength. NINETY per cent. of Testimonials Compare Health-Lifts, and give OURS the PREFERENCE. Send Stamp for Illustrated Circular—Agents Wanted.

A. H. ANDREWS & CO. {212 & 214 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and {819 & 821 Broadway, New York City.

Manufacturers of Office, Library, Church, and School Furniture.

E. HEATH. W. F. PIPPEY, M. LARA.

HEATH, PIPPEY & LARA,

99.....CAMP STREET.....99

NEW ORLEANS.

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

UPHOLSTERERS MATERIALS,

Wall Paper,

Window Shades, Cornices, and

CURTAIN GOODS.

PICTURES, FRAMES,
MOULDINGS, MIRRORS,
LOCKS, WIRE-CLOTH,
WINDOW & DOOR SCREENS

FRAMING DONE TO ORDER.

14-1y

THE

Houston and Texas Central Railroad,

Operating over 500 miles of superior road, runs North and South through the

FINEST AGRICULTURAL and GRAZING DISTRICTS in TEXAS

And offers the most desirable sites for location to parties immigrating to that great State. The

NORTHWESTERN BRANCH

Of this road, which is now being pushed forward beyond Waco, will pierce the Great Mineral region of

NORTHWESTERN TEXAS.

For further information, address

J. R. COFFIN, S. P. A., Chattanooga, Tenn.
C. R. WHITNEY & CO., New Orleans, La.
J. WALDO, G. P. A., or J. DURAND, Gen'l Superintendent, Houston, Texas. [mar22-77-1y

A. P. HARRINGTON,

No. 118 Canal Street,

New Orleans, - - - - - - La.

Dealer in

LAW, MEDICAL, SCHOOL, RELIGIOUS, AGRICULTURAL AND MISCELLANEOUS

BOOKS

Stationery, Gold Pens and Pencils.

Pocket Books, Card Cases, Pocket Knives, Scrap Books, Chromos, Photograph Albums, Stereoscopes, Maps, Globes, Writing Desks, Etc.

PRINTING, RULING and BINDING.

Subscriptions taken for Newspapers and Magazines, Payable in advance.

Country Orders Solicited.

feb16-77-1y

Texas Lands.

Best Investment in the Nation!

640 acres rich prairie loam, producing cotton, grains, fruit and vegetables, and adapted to stock, lying in the high and healthful latitude of Northwestern Texas for the nominal sum of $266.

Title Patent, direct and perfect. Taxes low. Worth several times the cost. Now is your time to plant a small sum fruitfully. No fraud. All work personally supervised. Handled in the interest of education in Texas. Full particulars furnished on application, (with stamps).

References: Rev. Wm. Brush, D.D., P. E. Austin District, Austin, Texas; First National Bank, Dallas, Texas; State Savings Bank, Dallas, Texas, or editor of this paper. Address

REV. L. H. CARHART,
West Texas Conference.
Box 377, Dallas, Texas. [a19-tf

"The principle of combining English and American writers in a common literary enterprise, merits all encouragement."—J. Anthony Froude.

THE

INTERNATIONAL REVIEW,

A NEW YORK AND LONDON REVIEW.

EMINENT CONTRIBUTORS ON BOTH SIDES OF THE ATLANTIC. (No articles at second hand. All articles original.)

CONTENTS—MAY-JUNE—NOW READY.

The New Administration.
The Life Insurance Question. Carlton T. Lewis.
Disestablishment of the Church of England. Dr. James H. Rigg, London.
The Philadelphia Exhibition.—Part I. Mechanism and Administration. Francis A. Chief of the Bureau of Awards.
Tennyson.—A Criticism.....Bayard Taylor.
Our Foreign Service.....Hon. John Jay.
American and European Literature. Phillip Gilbert Hamerton.
Contemporary Events.

Price, Single Number, $1. For six months $3. Annual subscription (6 numbers) $5.
New York: A. S. BARNES & CO., Publishers.
apr27-10t]

Medical Students

Thoroughly qualified for successful practice by THE HOSPITAL

COLLEGE OF MEDICINE.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

[The clinical school of the West.]

No student leaves the College who cannot show that he can intelligently examine and prescribe for the cases presented. For catalogue and information concerning special advantages, address

W. H. BOLLING, M. D. DEAN,
Louisville, Ky.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine. [Dec 21-76 1y

Lungs and Throat.

Inhalation of common air in Incipient Consumption will cure. Dr. J. M. Howe, of Passaic, N. J., sends his Tube, with full directions, post free for $3 50. Send for circulars. may2tf

$55 to $77 a week to Agents. $10 Outfit Free. P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Me.

Patents obtained for mechanical devices, medical, or other compounds, ornamental designs, trademarks, and labels.

Caveats, Assignments, Interferences, relating to Patent, Infringements, and all matters promptly attended to.

Inventions that have been rejected by the Patent Office may still, in most cases, be secured by us. Being opposite the Patent Office, we are able to make closer examinations, and secure Patents more promptly and with broader and better claims, than those who are remote from Washington.

Inventors send us a model or rough sketch and description of your device; we will make an examination, free of charge, and advise you as to its patentability. All correspondance strictly confidential. Prices as low as those of any reliable agency.

We refer to Officials in the Patent Office, and to inventors in every State of the Union.

Address, Louis BAGGER & Co.
Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

OFFICE AMERICAN COTTON TIE CO. LIMITED
47 Carondelet St. New Orleans, La.

To Dealers in Iron Cotton Ties, Planiers, and Country Merchants Generally,

We beg to inform you that we are prepared, through our regularly established agents, to supply the trade in any quantity with the following celebrated Ties:

BRANCH, CROOKE & CO'S. LOCK TIE.
THE ARROW AND SIDE SLOT.
BEARD & BRO'S. LOCK TIE.

We also beg to inform the public that the interests of Messrs. Beard & Bro., and Branch Crookes & Co., are now merged into and with the American Cotton Tie Company, Limited. The following are the New Orleans Agents:

Stone & Tutt — Ogden & Bell
Chism & Boyd, — Archer & Borland,
Wm. Dillion, — D. L. Ranlett & Co.

For the American Cotton Tie Co., Limited.

R. W. RAYNE,
May28-76ty] General Agents.

Virginia Roofing Slate.—The Best and strongest in the world, not excepting the well-known Welsh Slate.

The undersigned having accepted the agency for the sale of the celebrated ORE BANK and IMPERIAL QUARRIES, is now prepared to fill orders at prices much below those of Walsh and but little in excess of those of ordinary American Slates. Builders, contractors, and slaters generally are invited to submit them to the severest tests.

ALEXANDER HILL,
may1-76 1y] 110 Carondelet st., N. O.

FOUR QUARTER FOR TEN QUARTERS.

MASON & HAMLIN CABINET ORGANS.

HIGHEST AWARDS AT

FOUR GREAT WORLD'S EXPOSITIONS

Paris, 1867 Vienna, 1873 Santiago, 1875

PHILADELPHIA, 1876.

ONLY ORGANS ASSIGNED FIRST RANK AT CENTENNIAL.

Great variety of styles at prices which would be impossible for work of such excellence to obtain, except for the facilities for manufacture.

EXAMPLES OF NET CASH PRICES:

Five octave double reed organ, with tremulants, $100

Five octave organ, nine stops, with voix celeste, $114

Sold also for monthly or quarterly payments, or rented until paid. A superior organ may now be purchased by the payment of $7.20 per quarter for ten quarters. Catalogue free.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN CO.
154 Tremont St. BOSTON. 25 Union Sq. NEW YORK. 250 Wabash Av. CHICAGO
june14-77-1y

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY.

Established in 1837.

Superior Bells of Copper and Tin, mounted with the best Rotary Hangings, for Church, School, Farm, Factories, Court Houses, Fire Alarms, Town Clocks, Chimes, etc. Fully Warranted.

Illustrated Catalogue sent Free.

VANDUZEN & TIFT,
102 and 104 East Second St., Cincinnati.
[mar22-1y]

$12 a day at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. True & Co., Dec 21 76 1y] Augusta, Maine.

FOR 10 CENTS, and 3 cent stamp for postage, we will send by one year, the handsome 16-page paper, The Printer, containing a Specimen Book, and list of our superbly illustrated 132 page Illustrated and Descriptive Book, and list of our Printing Materials, the best. Plain styles, from $4.00 up.

MODEL PRINTER'S GUIDE

How to Print

Worth ten times the cost to every Business Man and Printer. Address, J. F. Wolcott, Bay & Co., 706 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Publishers, and Manufr's of the Celebrated

MODEL PRINTING PRESS.

For Cards, Envelopes, the best. Plain styles, from $4.00 up.

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY.

Established in 1837.

Superior Bells of Copper and Tin, mounted with the best Rotary Hangings, for Church, School, Farm, Factories, Court Houses, Fire Alarms, Town Clocks, Chimes, etc. Fully Warranted.

Illustrated Catalogue sent Free.

VANDUZEN & TIFT,
102 and 104 East Second St. Cincinnati.
Jan 30 76 tf

ADVERTISING AGENTS

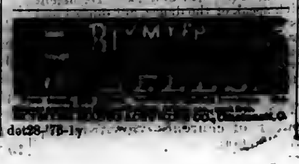
186 W. FOURTH ST. CINCINNATI, O.

ESTIMATES FURNISHED FREE. SEND FOR OUR MANUAL.

THIS NEW ELASTIC TRUSS

Made Pad combination of medicine, is unequaled, with Rubber Spring Pad, is easier, simpler, lighter to all parts of the body, retains the hold in the most violent exertion, holds the intestinal hernia as a surgeon would with the finger, and light pressure the hernia is held securely day and night, and a radical cure results. It is easy, durable and cheap. Sent by mail. Circulars free.

SCOLLESTER TRUSS CO., Marshall, Mich.
Mar28-77-eow13t



dec28-75-1y

THE

SINGER AGAIN TO THE FRONT!

GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICES

—OF THE—

WORLD-RENOWNED

Singer Family Sewing Machine!

THE SINGER MANUFACTURING COMPANY, ever awake to the interests of the public, have determined to PUT THE PRICE OF THEIR MACHINES within the reach of every man, woman and child in the land.

THE GENUINE SINGER SEWING MACHINE IS NOW OFFERED AT PRICES BELOW THE BOGUS ONES, OR ANY OTHER.

The fact that the only Sewing Machine which unscrupulous men have ever attempted to imitate, is the Singer, is sufficient evidence of its superiority over all others. There is no longer any excuse for buying any of the cheap machines hawked about the country, with no claim for patronage but their cheapness.

THE SINGER MANUFACTURING COMPANY,
S. E. RUNDLE, Agent.
may24-6m] No. 91 Canal Street, New Orleans, La.

WHEELER & WILSON

STILL AHEAD!

PRICES GREATLY REDUCED.

The Acknowledged Family Favorite.

NO NOISY COGS, AND NO RATTLING SHUTTLES.

Ease of manipulation, simplicity of construction, and rapidity of motion, have always placed the

Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine

Above all its competitors. The WHEELER & WILSON Manufacturing Company have determined not to be outdone by the manufacturers of inferior sewing machines.

Get a First-Class Machine at astonishingly low prices.

$40 to $75 will buy a New Improved Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine, at Liberal Discount for Cash.

Send for Circulars and Price List.

2,000,000 in Daily Use,

AND STILL THE FAMILY FAVORITE.

WHEELER & WILSON MAN'F CO.,

M. A. PECK, GEN'L AGENT,

june 14-76. 4m.] 149 Canal Street, New Orleans, La.

PHILIP WERLEIN,

Nos. 78-90 Baronne Street,

NEW ORLEANS, - - - LA.

LARGEST Piano House in This Country,

—OFFERS—

Chickering's New Scale PIANOS.

HALE'S PIANOS, HARDMAN'S PIANOS.

ESTEY & CO. ORGANS, MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS,

As low as any house North. Monthly Payments. Discounts for cash.

Music and Musical Instruments of Every Description. [feb22-1y

Pianos AND Organs

ESTEY ORGANS,

This beautiful Instrument is too well known to need description.

OVER 75,000

are now singing their praises. Why buy any other Organ when you can get the

ESTEY,

As Cheap as the Cheapest!

Bradbury Pianos

known all over the world as strictly first-class, and used in preference to all others by Grand Central, St. Nicholas and Metropolitan Hotels, New York; Rev. Simpson and Janes, Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church; Rev. Dan'l Curry, Chaplain McCabe, Phillip Phillips, Wm. Morely, Punshon and thousands of our leading men throughout the country.

CHICKERING Pianos.

The BEST PIANO made! Received more Gold medals, Higher Awards, and more solid recommendations than any other Piano made.

STORY & CAMP PIANOS.

THESE ELEGANT Instruments are unsurpassed, and are sold at exceedingly low prices. Every instrument Fully Warranted, and sold to responsible parties on easy time. Full description and illustrated catalogues sent to any address with any information desired.

STORY & CAMP,
914 Olive street, St. Louis.
jel-1y] 211 State street, Chicago.

Southwestern Christian Advocate.

NEW SERIES—VOL. 1—NO. 25. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, JUNE 21, 1877. WHOLE NUMBER 255

SOUTHWESTERN
Christian Advocate.
PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT
26 Natchez St., New Orleans.
BY
NELSON & PHILLIPS,
FOR THE
Methodist Episcopal Church.

Terms: $2 a year, Cash in Advance.

All Travelling Preachers of the Methodist Episcopal Church are authorized Agents.

Subscriptions may begin at any time and the paper will be sent as long as paid for.

Remittances must be made by Registered Letter, P. O. Money Order, or by Express.

Advertising Rates.
(Per Nonpareil line, each insertion.)

One time or three times	8 cents
One month (4 times)	7 "
Two months (8 times)	6 "
Three months (13 times)	5 "
Six months (26 times)	4 "
One year (52 times)	3 "
Marriages, Funerals, Obituaries	5 cents, net cash.

Years—Five and Twenty.

We give below, the original poem of Rev. Dr. McCarty, which was read at his Silver Wedding, June 2, by Miss Cora Bussey. The author objected to its publication at the time, on the ground of delicacy, claiming he well not to be a poet. On this others must be the judge. So many of the friends who were present, and heard it, desire a copy as a memento of the occasion, that we assume the responsibility of giving it to the public. For it is true that there is nothing which the world admires more than tender love between a man and his wife. A poet said—

"Domestic happiness the only bliss
Which has survived the fall."

EDITOR.

Star of My Life.

LINES TO MY WIFE, ON THE TWENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY OF OUR MARRIAGE, JUNE 2, 1877.

A star broke on my path one day,
From out the vaulted deep above,
It chased the shadows from my heart,
And it will hang late love—
Star of my Life.

I opened wide my receiving heart,
To allow the mild of this new light,
It entered that chamber of the pure,
And dwelt with me in business sweet night,
O Star of my Life.

And then where the skies I dwelt,
In regions of a better kind;
Not gems of gold) but had of power,
Could every the progress of the mind—
O Star of my Life.

That star [illegible] higher still,
[illegible] as its child,
A glad-some [illegible] joys into song,
[illegible] Joys woke up and
Star of my Life.

As [illegible] on the troubling sea,
Wave [illegible] and bring them full
Upon the [illegible] Day dear light
And [illegible] the net, of my soul—
Star of my Life.

[illegible] years of holiest light,
[illegible] ly to fadelly given,
And [illegible] Twenty Years,
[illegible] ships over sweet
Star of my Life.

[illegible] Like these,
[illegible] years,
[illegible] twilight's shadows,
[illegible] slipping to the
[illegible]

A fragrant
[illegible]

And we abode our stricken fate
With hearts depressed and riven.

On three sad days we wound along,
In mournful slow procession;
Our hearts their plaintive numbers sang,
But felt the Father's blessing.

That trio sleep in other land
And nought disturbs their slumber,
In Heaven they live, a shining band,
'Mid hosts no man can number.

Though gone from sight they still are ours,
Redeemed and robed in glory,
While these poor hearts in life's sad hours
Find comfort in the story.

Blest trio! from our low estate,
We raise our heart's desire;
And in our patience ever wait,
Till we are bidden higher.

And one sweet child, how dear her name,
God sent for our protection;
Not ours in blood, but still the same,
Our own in sweet affection.

She too has joined our trio band,
And soon will give us greeting,
When we ascend to that sweet land,
In one eternal meeting.

God owns the sun but sends the light
To cheer the earth and flood the sky,
God sees our hearts from his own hight,
And stoops to listen when we cry.

Like bursting blossoms of the spring,
Our Nellie came with gentle love;
To twine about our hearts and cling,
Like nestling to the mother dove.

* * * *

From out the deepest dark of night,
Is often born the brightest morrow,
So oft the richness of the heart
Springs from its deepest sorrow.

* * * *

The past is past with us dear wife,
With buried hopes and buried woes,
But to the future we will look,
And wait life's sweet triumphant close.

* * * *

The years rush by like the birds on their wings,
Where the brown locks grew, the silver now springs,
But true love changeth, never!
Then out of my heart in fondest measure
I bring to your own the one bright treasure,
The love of the long ago.

Nashville, Tenn. Letter.

At the close of the evening service, Sunday, May 27th, the Sunday School, through one of its members, Mrs. Matilda Bright, presented the church with a handsome Bible, valued at eighteen dollars, and forty-five dollars and twenty cents, in cash, the proceeds of a concert and festival which was given recently. That occasion was highly enjoyable, and all the participants acquitted themselves with great credit. The decorations were tastefully arranged and the room was filled with the fragrance of evergreens and flowers. In the basement the tables were loaded with the delicacies of the season, and the ladies in charge had their energies well taxed to satisfy the keen appetites of their numerous patrons. Under the efficient management of its prompt and attentive superintendent, Bro. Irwin C. Brown—the Sunday School is rapidly gaining in numbers and influence. It is on the advance, and a flame of enthusiasm has been kindled all along the line. It is well supplied with all the modern conveniences: Berean lesson papers, map, black-board, leaf chart, reward cards, etc. The school is well officered, and we believe that we have a secretary who cannot be excelled for efficiency and general usefulness. He is a genius and he makes the black-board glow with drawings illustrative of each week's lesson, and his work is not that of a novice, but of a skilled artist. His name is Summerfield Brown, and he makes it a point to see that everything he does is "done up brown." The infant class numbers forty-seven and is taught by the pastor. Cupid robbed us of one of our lady teachers recently; Miss Georgia A. Brown, who was united in holy wedlock to Mr. George A. Henderson, of Chicago. This interesting event took place Thursday, May 24th, at 5 P. M. The church was tastefully decorated, darkened, and gas brilliantly burning. The assemblage was one of the most fashionable ever gathered on a similar occasion in this city. Dr. Braden, President of Central Tennessee College, with his charming daughter and a large number of the white friends of the bride were present. After the happy couple had been made one, they returned to the house of the bride's mother for refreshment and congratulation, and at 8:45 P. M. of the same evening took the train for Chicago. May God's blessing rest upon them. We shall have something to say hereafter concerning our church work—until the adieu.

G. S. SMITH,
Pastor of Clark Chapel.

Texas Letter.

Houston, June 6th, 1877.

Rev. J. C. Hartzell:

DEAR BROTHER—I am closing up my second round on the Houston District. The Lord has been with us at all appointments, and we feel satisfied that much good has been accomplished during the year in the District. Methodism never was so prosperous as at present in Galveston. Our two churches in that city reported at the Quarterly Conference, money raised during the last quarter, between eleven and twelve hundred dollars. Bro. Shackleford has raised money and completed the best church we have in the State, except at Dallas this year. Bro. Douglas at the East Church, through God helping him, is very popular with his people. The best of all is, brotherly love continues—no discord. To much could hardly be said of our people in Galveston.

Rev. P. Noble, at Columbia, is doing a good work. They say he is making the Cross honorable at that place.

The church at Harrisburg is doing well; indications of a revival; it is under the watch care of Rev. J. Smith. He is a good man and a faithful worker. Bro. Pullman, at Spring Creek, is having a revival. We were there last Sunday, left about twenty-five mourners, the church seemed to be much revived. Bro. Pullman is a faithful pastor, and the people love him very much. Our cause in Houston is not moving forward, as its friends wish to see, but we are looking and praying for better times.

The SOUTH-WESTERN is very popular among our people, and it is a great helper in the work.

Your Brother,
W. L. MOLLOY.

Methodism in India.

Bishop Marvin, in his letter about Lucknow and Cawnpore, says:

At Lucknow we were very cordially received by the Rev. J. H. Messmore and the Rev. J. Mudge, of the India Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The former is the pastor of the church, and the latter editor of the Lucknow Witness, the official organ of the church in India. Here we spent a Sunday, and preached for English service, to a full and attentive congregation.

At Cawnpore Dr. Waugh had got wind of our approach, and met us at the station at eleven o'clock at night. What delightful hospitality we had under his roof! He could not tire of talking about the kindness he had received in Shanghai at the hands of Bro. and Sister Lambuth.

Both at Cawnpore and Lucknow the Methodist Episcopal Church has a considerable society among the English-speaking people. The missionaries of this church did not get to work until after the Mutiny, less than twenty years ago. The blessing of God has been upon their labors in a remarkable degree. They have prospered, for the time they have been at work, beyond what is usual in other missions. So far as we have had the opportunity of judging, the missionaries are men full of energy, and greatly devoted to their work. There is an Annual Conference organized, with four presiding elders' districts. There are numerous schools, and a theological seminary. A number of native preachers have been raised up, some of whom would be a credit to the church anywhere. Two thousand members, and more, counting probationers, have been gathered, and brought to a good state of discipline, while the increase goes on at a very encouraging rate.

I am inclined to think that the success of this work is largely due to the power of preaching. One difficulty in the work of missions—so it has struck me—is found in the fact that the missionary, beginning to preach in a new language which he does not use with facility, finds it difficult to get into the spirit of his theme, and, by the time he has got to feel at home in the language he has fallen into a humdrum habit that has little of real portatory power in it. From several circumstances I am led to believe the American Methodists have risen to a better standard of extemporaneous freedom and fervor than is common here. This is no less essential in preaching to the heathen than to the unconverted at home. The heathen are not converted by arguments, but by "the testimony of Jesus." The power of the witness is the condition of success with the missionary.—See Ante p. 8. It is not logic that conquers hearts; it is Christ. The voice of the earnest witness of Christ is more potent with the common run of men than all the dialectics of the world, from Aristotle to Bledsoe.

The work of the Rev. William Taylor, in India, is a striking illustration of this. At the beginning of this decade he began a series of special labors among the English speaking people of the cities, especially in the central and southern part of the country. Religion was confessedly at a low ebb. The churches were eminently formal and lifeless. But few of the Europeans were religious even in a formal way. Many of them were shamelessly wicked. The Eurasians, sometimes called Indo-Europeans, were as a class, dissolute even to recklessness. Like the mulattoes of America, they had their origin in sin, most of them, though the great majority now have their existence through one or two or more generations of lawful marriage. They are despised and hated by Hindoos, and have been in former times, and, into a considerable extent still are, by the English. Both among the English and the Eurasians the preaching of Taylor produced a wonderful effect. Widespread revivals prevailed in Bombay, Calcutta and many other places. The converts were not willing to go into the formal churches accessible to them. In Bombay they petioned Mr. Taylor, in a formal way, to organize a church. Many derided the work as mere excitement, which would soon die out. But, after five years, it has borne the test. Backslidings have been remarkably few, while the churches show an unusual per cent. of men and women actively engaged in the work of Christ. The spiritual aroma of their public assemblies is like odors wafted from the garden of God. It is the richest perfume we have inhaled anywhere in the Orient, except in the Conference and love feast at Shanghai.

Out of this work a separate Annual Conference has been organized, the South India Conference. It is a self sustaining Conference, receiving no aid from the Missionary Board. Every circuit supports its own preachers, and undertakes to go into the regions accessible, in missionary labors among the heathen, besides. So far the experiment is wonderfully satisfactory. The churches are remarkably liberal in supporting their pastors, and are beginning to build good churches and parsonages, thus anchoring themselves in the country by real estate titles. This will be found to constitute an epoch in the history of the church in India.

Jenny Lind in the Ball-room.

Dr. B. Hawley, in his "Dancing as an Amusement," gives the following as an authentic account:

During the brilliant sojourn of Miss Jenny Lind, "the Sweedish Nightingale," in this country, she was heard and admired by thousands, not only for her power of song but for her beautiful, even noble, character, her unaffected simplicity, and her generous acts of beneficence. Feted and courted by amateurs of song, she received the attentions of the elite of all circles and was admired by the masses. Among the many complimentary entertainments extended to her was one by a clergyman, at whose house at that time the following thrilling incident is reported to have occurred:

At the residence of the respected host in New York she and her suite were, among many others, invited guests. The company was made in honor of Miss Lind and her admirers. As the evening passed on, the members of the party—consisting of persons of different ages and tastes, of intelligence and culture, embracing some in middle life and others in young manhood and womanhood—separated according to their several tastes and as is natural, into groups for conversation. Miss Lind very naturally fell into the center of a large and interesting group of intelligent and cultured persons who became deeply absorbed in conversation, as was becoming. In an adjoining room were gathered many of the younger class who were planning a different style of entertainment and, of course one suited to their tastes. Dancing was their means of enjoyment. The voices of repartee and mirth had given place to the bewitching sounds of the viol and the jar of the dance. At a late hour the chief and honored guest was formally and politely invited to join the tripping throng. Modestly but firmly she declined. Unrebuked and untaught even by the dignified declinature they continued their chosen pastime. Wishing a change of programme they sent a second delegation repeating the invitation, which they urged by the assurances that some of her admirers and patrons would feel afflicted unless she complied with their wishes.

Thus pressed Miss Lind unwillingly yielded so far as to accompany them and to take her assigned position on the floor. And there she stood, thoughtful, sad, motionless, while others entered on their assignment in the figure. This want of movement on her part soon brought the whole company to a stand. Sing she could, and like an angel; but dance she could not, would not. It was an exercise unsuited to her tastes and genius. Her thinking, training, skill, and power were of a higher order. Happily at home among men and women of intelligence and culture, she was quite out of place in the midst of a dancing circle. Standing there she felt an irrepressible sense of the utter incongruity of her position and character. For a moment there was a mental struggle. A gush of tears brought relief. Her sense of noble womanhood gained the mastery. Making for herself and her attendants the requisite explanations, she called for her carriage, and despite all entreaty, she and they withdrew from the place, glad to be free again.

Because of the notoriety of the person chiefly concerned, this was a signal case. But in almost any Christian community are to be found those who, actuated by sterling religious principle and a high sense of personal character and reputation, would do a similar thing. And yet there are more who, notwithstanding their profession, would be drawn into the trap and become occasions of reproach to the church. The writer has known such cases. The temptation is strong, but resisted, the triumph is great, the consciousness of personal strength and of victory, and the smiles of the Savior are precious.

Missionary Ground in the South.

Rev. A. M. Jones, a Bible society agent, writing from Andalusia, Ala., to the N. O. Christian Advocate, gives the following sad picture of the deplorable condition of a whole district of white people:

MR. EDITOR:—I am now in Covington county, Ala., in the interest of the Bible cause. There are thousands of people in this county, but, with the exception of a few communities, the great mass of the inhabitants are almost entirely destitute of any religious advantages. The fathers grow up without the Bible, without churches and without the influence of religion, and the sons are growing up in the same way. My heart is frequently pained when I drive up to a little cabin on the side of the road, and ask the good woman, who has three or four little children around her, if she has a Bible, and she says: "I an't got any, an' if I had they wodent do mo any good, becase I can't read um." "Can't your husband read?" "No, he can't read neither." I find many such cases all over this county. There are two or three pretty good Methodist churches, a few Missionary Baptists, and numbers of Primitive Baptists; but the great multitude of people are in heathenish darkness as far as churches and preaching are concerned. The boys roam from place to place on Sunday, and contract bad and vicious habits, while the young men and older men heard together and talk and laugh and swear. The Chinese are only a little worse off than these people.

There is no church at Andalusia, and not more than half dozen sermons have been preached here during the past twelve months. Here is the courthouse, here are the lawyers, here are the county officials, but the name of God is not honored—the religion of God is discarded. Amidst this destitution and wickedness there are some who appreciate the sad state of the community, and are begging for help. Will the church send that help? But whose duty is it? It is the duty of all Christians, and especially that of the Alabama Conference. Let the Bishops send preachers to this destitute field—men of ability and experience, men who are devoted to the cause and consecrated to Christ, men who are willing to sacrifice ease and comfort for the cause of the Savior. Let the Missionary Board make an appropriation sufficient for their support. Let the people raise this money in their churches, as a duty they owe to God and humanity. Then let these men cultivate these fields for Christ. Money and time and labor spent in this will ultimately yield fruit an hundred-fold. If the College of Bishops would send one of their number to this missionary field, no doubt it would be productive of great good. He might not see as great things as he would in China, but he would see strange things. It will take a great deal of money to supply these with the sacred Scriptures. I hope the preachers of the Alabama Conference will not forget the resolutions they passed at their last session. The American Bible Society is doing much for the poor of our State. Brethren, let us do our duty. The people will give the money cheerful for this benevolent cause if you will only explain and ask them for it.

Hours have wings and fly up to the Author of time, and carry news of our usage. All our prayers cannot entreat one of them either to return or slaken his pace. The misspents of every minute are now a record against us in heaven. Sure, if we thought thus, we would dismiss them with better reports, and not suffer them to fly away empty, or laden with dangerous intelligence. How happy is it when they carry up not only the message but fruits of good, and stay with the Ancient of Days to speak for us before his glorious throne.

Course of Study for Local Preachers.

In pursuance of the provision found in ¶89, §5 of the Discipline of 1876, the following has been prescribed as a

COURSE OF STUDY FOR LOCAL PREACHERS

I.—Let candidates for license to preach be examined in the common branches of an English education, and on their general acquaintance with the Bible and the doctrines and usages of the M. E. Church.

II.—FIRST YEAR.—The Bible—History. Binney's Theological Compend.—Steele's. Discipline of the M. E. Church.

TO BE READ.—Scripture History—Old Testament.—Smith's. Watson's Life of Wesley. A Hundred years of Methodism.—Simpson.

III.—SECOND YEAR.—The Bible—Doctrines. Wakefield's Theology—First Three Books. Christian Baptism.—Merrill.

TO BE READ.—Scripture History—New Testament.—Smith's. History of the United States.—Ridpath. Ruter's Church History—1 vol., 8vo.

IV.—THIRD YEAR.—The Bible—Sacraments. Wakefield's Theology—Last Four Books. Christian Perfection—Wesley's Plain Account.

TO BE READ.—Wesley's Sermons, Vol. 1. Introduction to the Gospel Records—Nast. D'Aubigne's History of the Reformation—In one vol., 8vo.

V.—FOURTH YEAR.—Review of the whole course. Written sermon.

TO BE READ.—Wesley's Sermons, Vol. II. Porter's Compendium of Methodism.

The Bishops have received many letters of inquiry relating to the foregoing course of study; and at their late meeting in Cleveland, adopted the following minute expressing their views on the questions which had been proposed, viz:

The action of the General Conference of 1876, providing for a course of study for Local Preachers, is found only in connection with the organization of the district conference, and therefore, according to the letter of the law, the course of study applies only to the district conferences; but in our judgment the General Conference intended to initiate a course study for all the local preachers, under the following principles:

1. The course of study does not apply to Local Preachers who were in orders at the time of the action of the general conference of 1876.

2. The course of study does not apply to all Local Preachers whose licenses are to be renewed by the district or quarterly conference, commencing with the first year, and continuing successively through the four years.

3. This course of study is not intended in any case to take the place of the examination for orders by the annual conferences.

By order and in behalf of the Board of Bishops.

WILLIAM L. HARRIS, Secretary.

The Jews in Palistine.

Mr. William Knighton writes to the N. Y. Times.

"During the early part of this year I was in the Holy Land. Everywhere, from Dan to Beersheba, I saw evidence of renewed energy and activity of the Jewish race. As a people the Jews are flocking back to the land of their forefathers in great numbers from all the counties in Europe. In Jerusalem and its neighborhood particularly every plot of ground for sale is eagerly bought up by them. The Jews are a wealthy race. The Turks who nominally govern their promised land, are greatly in want of money. Would it not be possible for the Jews to issue among themselves a new Turkish loan on condition that they should obtain the right of governing their own land under the guardianship of the great powers of Europe? Would not many wealthy Christians be ready to assist them in this matter if the leaders of the Jewish community undertook it with some degree of vigor? A Republic or sacerdotal Government might be established in Jerusalem, nominally under the Turks still, but really under the guarantee of the great Christian Powers of Europe—a Government which might be of incalculable benefit to Palistine, in which scarcely a farthing of public money is now spent for its improvement or development of its magnificent natural resources."

At each step of the Christian life self-denial is needed. It is true that many temptations lose their power as the old nature is subdued and crucified, and the heart made pure. But Satan still follows and adapts temptations to the state whatever it may be, and even the holiest may have to resist unto blood striving against sin. It is a truly blessed thing to be able at each moment of temptation to say, "Lord, I choose thy pure will," and to meet every evil suggestion, even the least and commonest, with "Get thee behind me, Satan."

General News Items.

There is not "a bigger man than ole Grant" in England, just at this present time.

A Texas paper says that grass 30 feet in hight grows in the San Marcos River.

Grayson county, Texas, expects to be able to spare 500,000 or 600,000 bushels of wheat this year.

There is enough coal in Young county, Texas, to supply the entire State when the mines are developed.

The Paine Memorial hall, Boston, is advertised for sale upon a mortage foreclosure, and non-payment of taxes.

Thirteen of the New York city hotels are arranging rope ladders for guests to escape by when the fire fiend rages.

Postal cards are not returned to the Dead Letter Office if they are not called for. They are held 60 days and are then burned.

Subscriptions have been started for a monument to Cornelia Chisholm, the young Mississippian who lost her life in defending her father.

The highest point yet attained by any railroad has been reached in the summit of Laveta Pass in the Sangre de Christo Mountains by the south-western extension of the Denver and Rio Grande Railway. Altitude of summit, 9,340 feet.

The Mexican government has notified President Hayes that it will co-operate with the United States in endeavoring to prevent cattle stealing along the Rio Grande; and at the same time it protests against the proposed sending of American troops into Mexico to punish the raids of Mexican greasers.

Honorable John Lothorp Motley, United States minister to England, died in London, May 29th, in his sixty-fourth year. He was United States minister to Austria from 1861 to 1867. Under President Grant he was appointed minister to England. He was more a man of letters than of diplomacy, yet he was a creditable representative of the nation in foreign courts.

Workmen have been engaged for some time in excavating the monolith, Cleopatra's needle, from the Egyptian sands, and this immense mass of stone will be on its way to England shortly. The monument is sixty-nine feet long and eight feet squareat the base, and weighs about two hundred and twenty tons.

Mr. Larkin G. Meade, the sculptor, has a design for completing the Washington monument in Washington, D. C., without expending more than the $200,000 already appropriated. A statue of General Washington standing in military costume, seventy-five feet in height, is to surmount the shaft now partly completed, and make the entire structure 254 feet.

The 56 ton breech-loader, which was shown by Herr Krupp at the Centennial exhibition a year ago, has been purchased by the Russian government and delived at Cronstadt. It fires a charged steel shell of 1,122 pounds, with an initial velocity of 1,050 feet a second. The Sultan has ordered a companion piece for the defence of Constantinople.

Fletcher Harper, the last of the well-known book firm of Harper & Brothers, New York, died recently at the age of seventy-two years. The brothers who died before him were John, James, and Joseph. James and John were the founders of the publishing house, and the other brothers were received into the firm. The business will be carried on by the younger Harpers.

Quinine is exorbitantly high, and for the reason that the manufacturers at Philadelphia, through the high tariff on this drug, have a practical monopoly of the business. The American Medical Association at its recent meeting in Chicago, did a very commendable thing in adopting a vigorous memorial to Congress, urging the repeal of the present tax on this universally-used medicine.

It is well-known that great opposition has existed in New York for a long time against the construction of the elevated railroads, and it has appeared as if the opponents (including, of course, the property-owners along the line, and the horse-car companies) of this improved method of transit were about to be triumphant; but a large meeting of influential citizens was held June 5, at which strong resolutions were adopted in favor of the rapid transit. One of the speakers, Hon. A. H. Purdy, stated that a gentleman who has given the subject much attention, expresses the belief that "the want of rapid transit had already cost our city the loss of a million inhabitants, $1,000,000,000 of substantial wealth, and a tax revenue, at present rates, of over $30,000,000 annually."

SOUTHWESTERN
Christian Advocate.
30 Natchez St., New Orleans.

J. C. HARTZELL, B. D., EDITOR.

THURSDAY, JUNE 21, 1877.

SIX MONTHS SUBSCRIBERS.

We appeal to all our agents to canvass at once for six month subscribers. One dollar pays for the SOUTHWESTERN for six months. The SOUTHWESTERN, its friends say, grows better and better. The people like it and want it. Let there be a strong appeal from every pulpit in the Southwest before July 1st for six months, one dollar subscribers. Where the preacher will be responsible, we will give a short time to collect the money. But have something paid when the names are taken. Now brethren "let every man do his duty."

Address,
NELSON & PHILLIPS,
Lock Box "B," New Orleans

We copy on first page a letter from Bishop Marvin, of the M. E. Church South, giving an interesting account of our mission work in India.

Shall silver be remonetized? This appears to be the political question which is to have most prominence in the fall campaigns.

Dr. Newman is preaching a series of sermons in Metropolitan Church, Washington, "Upon the prophecies relating to the rise, progress and downfall of the Turkish Empire."

Fisk University is crowded with [illegible] students. To relieve its crowded state, the "David Livingstone [illegible] Hall," opposite to [illegible] has been built, at a [illegible] and accommodates [illegible] regular students.

[illegible] Rev. Prince King, whose [illegible] and Rev. T. [illegible] both in [illegible] to us the [illegible] Post-offices? For [illegible] information we are [illegible] papers to them.

[illegible] reached as [illegible] war. The [illegible] failing. So soon [illegible] shall succeed in [illegible] the probability is that [illegible] battle of the war will be [illegible]

[illegible] last week that [illegible] publisher and [illegible] Christian [illegible] the honory degree [illegible] of Divinity, from [illegible] University at its [illegible] In a letter to [illegible] University of the [illegible] he accepts the [illegible] to be en[illegible] friends of New [illegible]

[illegible] of this city, [illegible] Presbyterian [illegible] the Pro[illegible] He was con[illegible] Church, June 3, [illegible] the Right Rev. [illegible] Dio[illegible] special [illegible]

The Methodist Stand Point.

Methodism is true liberal Christianity. When the penitent comes with weeping to her altars—the questions are not so much what do you believe about this or that doctrine? Are you a Calvinist or an Arminian? Do you believe in this or that? We ask rather, do you confess your sins against God? Do you repent? Will you flee the wrath to come?

We act upon the principle that the twelve or fourteen hundred millions of people who inhabit the globe, and who are all the heirs of salvation through Christ, can no more all be made to believe alike than they can be made to learn the same language, or look alike in the face. "Unity in diversity," is the great law of the universe. We no more care to have all the world believe as we believe, than we care to have every man measure just six feet in hight and weigh so many pounds.

We do not care much what men believe when you come down to non-essential forms, creeds, ceremonies. Away with such mere childishness! it insults good sense and displeases God.

We say on this broad platform Methodism stand. She is Arminian in her general doctrines. She is organized rather for work than show. She cares not so much about fine rituals as she does about heart purity, and while she aims at being cosmopolitan; she does not monopolize the whole field. She is willing that others should work by her side, if they will only be charitable. While her Baptist brethern are leading their converts down into the stream and putting them under the water, which is their right, she will stand on the banks and sing lustily,

"Plunged in a gulf of dark dispair,
We wretched sinners lay—
Without one cheering beam of hope
Or spark of glimmering day."

While her little Episcopal sister is reading her splendid ritual and bowing with deepest reverence at the mention of the name of Jesus, she will gather the crowds on the corners of the streets, or in the woods beneath the over arching boughs, and thunder in the ears of unbelieving men, the great truths of Christianity until they cry aloud for mercy, saying "men and brethren what shall we do to be saved?"

While her Universalist brethren are tearing down all moral distinctions in the universe, and fitting with nice adjustment crowns of equal splendor on the brows of Judas and John, Nero and Justin Martyr, Borgia and Hanna Moore, we stand at the passage way that leads out of this world into the next, looking at the passing crowd, for a crowd it is, to tell them "The Soul that sinneth it shall surely die," and we sing it to them—

"There is a death whose pang
Outlasts the fleeting breath—
O what eternal horrors hang Around the second death."

While our good Presbyterian friends are telling the world that Christ died to save only the "elect," that a few only "inherit eternal life," and all the rest are "passed by in the covenant of grace," we look on reverently and say "brethern, save a few if you can, save as many as you can"—the plan of salvation like every thing else of which God is the author is quite extensive, and then we just turn around and say to the great waiting and expectant multitude "whosoever will let him come and take the water of life freely." We sing in their ears, we are always singing,

"Come, sinners to the gospel feast,
Let every soul be Jesus' guest—
Ye need not one be left behind,
For God hath bidden all mankind."

And so satisfied are we, that we do not complain at the fact that nearly one third of all who have become church members in the United States within the last fifty years have been converted in Methodist churches, and have gone to other [illegible] on account of their [illegible] connections, and other con[illegible]. But it is all right. We [illegible] that the last born of [illegible] is the [illegible] in this country [illegible]. We have grown [illegible] while we have [illegible] converts into all [illegible] to help them [illegible] of those who go [illegible] true to the [illegible] may be.

[illegible] praised as [illegible]

Pastoral Visiting.

There are some persons who have much to say about pastoral visiting. They say, "O give us a man who will visit the people regularly and systematically, he is the man for our church—for this community."

Now we have always found these same people to be the most inveterate complainers if the preaching is not first-class. The truth is the church wants a minister that knows everything, who can do everything, who can be the laborious student, "bringing forth things new and old," excepting old sermons, these they don't want and in this they are right. They want a man who can be everywhere at the same time, who never gets sick, whose wants are few, and who can know by a sort of intuition just who is sick or in trouble, one who can wield some sort of magic wand over the prayer-meetings and give them life, in short a little God, possessed of miraculous powers, one who can raise dead, prayerless, faithless Christians to life by some word or touch.

Well, the minister must do all he can in that department of his work, but he must not do it at the expense of his pulpit. He must be student and preacher first, pastor second.

He who would keep abreast of this fast age must think, and he must read much, for the whole world is moving out along the lines of thought, and it will not do for a public teacher to be asleep, while all other men are wide awake; else the world will go off and leave him. We have some dozy dignitaries in our churches and in our professorial chairs, who wake up every once in a while and rub their eyes and ask if all things remain as they were from the beginning of the creation, and hearing an answer in the affirmative they swoon away again, while the world moves on its way with swift-footed progress.

If he is a student-preacher he must have time to devote himself to brain work, the hardest kind of work.

Then the pastoral work he must reduce to system. First he must do what there is no excuse for leaving undone ever, that is look after the sick, the aged and infirm, those who by virtue of their various disabilities are kept from the house of the Lord. Every minister has a solemn duty here. Then he can set apart one half day in each week to receive calls from any who may wish to converse with him on religious subjects.

He can call on the members of his church as soon as it is convenient, or consistent with his other duties, not before.

Besides the time specifically set apart for religious conversation, his house is open at all times, where he will be glad to see any, excepting during the morning study hours, unless the case is imperative. We once had our study in the church, and the interruptions by callers were so unseasonable that we hung a large cord on the outside of the door, with this inscription:

"Pastor's study hours from 9 to 1 o'clock. Please enter, make known your wants in as few words and as short time as possible, and go on your way rejoicing and may peace go with you." You may depend upon it loafers kept their distance after that, during study hours.

If any wish the services of the pastor how easy it is to let him know it, and you must never blame him for not coming to see you until you have at least asked him, and acquainted him with your name and place of residence.

Children's Day at Ames M. E. Church.

The exercises at Ames' Church in this city, on last Sabbath, if one may judge by the large audience which assembled at the morning service, were of an unusually interesting and attractive character.

The ladies of the school, headed by the superintendent, C. H. Shute, Esq., had taken great pains to decorate the pulpit, and chancel with quite a profusion of elegant flowers of every hue. Among the most attractive of these was a large shield placed directly in front of the pulpit covered with evergreens, as a back ground on which was wrought out with white blossoms of the sweet scented jessamine, the appropriate text, "Feed my Lambs." It was indeed a model of beauty and appropriateness. The singing was conducted by the choir of the church and the school conjointly, and was entered into heartily and with spirit.

The pastor, Rev. Dr. McCarty, delivered a sermon to the children which was full of practical thought on moral subjects, and enforced by many illustrations. Notwithstanding the weather was very warm and the audience large, the interest did not abate for a moment. A good many were heard to say as the audience dispersed, "I wish our pastor would often preach to the children." The Sunday School at Ames' Church was never more prosperous than it is at the present time; its growth is steady and healthy.

Rev. J. L. G. Barth has charge of the Bible class in a special room. Mrs. L. C. Gallup and Miss Emma Beach have the infant room in charge. The pastor does not teach, but is in the school some where at almost every session, passing quietly around among all the classes with a kind word here, and a word of encouragement or instruction there. He is interested in each teacher and scholar and all are interested in the pastor. This is the very way to win the hearts of all and do them good.

The Sunday-school room with its new reversable seats, beautifully frescoed walls and with all the other appliances for Sunday-school work, together with the leadership of such a practical Sunday-school man as Mr. Shute should render the Ames' school second in interest to no other in the city.

Rev. J. Braden, President Tennessee College, Nashville, in a letter to us, gives the following:

"The teachers of Fisk University, Congregational; Nashville Institute, Baptist; and the Central Tennessee College, Methodist Episcopal, have united in organizing a State Teacher's Institute for the colored teachers of Tennessee and adjoing States. Since the close of these schools for the summer vacation, five institutes have been held. In Franklin, Gallatin, Shelbyville, Chattanooga and Huntsville, Alabama. Others are to be held in the leading towns of Tennessee. The object is to raise the standard of qualification among the colored teachers of the State. The Institutes have been well attended by teachers and friends of education, and the cordial co-operation of white citizens has been given in every instance. The interest manifested in these meetings exceeds the expectations of the teachers engaged in the work.

Mr. Edwards, who is a member of the Hymn Book Committee, says, in last week's Northwestern: "It will require some months to give the book to the public. The committee has determined to preserve the same order of the hymns in the text-book and in the tune-book. It will be necessary therefore to retain the text from the printer until the requirements of the hymns are satisfied, and the order of the tune thereby determined. In other words, the tunes thereby must dictate the order of the hymns within the limits of classification by topics. The hymns are already distributed by subjects, and each of the latter will be treated as a unit in determining the order of the hymns. The tune committee is hard at work, and soon after its meeting in July will set the printers at work. The book will be nearly as large as the present one, but since cheap editions are provided for, and the work will be produced in times of cheaper labor and material, the matter of price will be modified."

The relative value of silver to gold, in the days of the patriarch Abraham, was eight to one; at the period B. C. 1000, it was twelve to one; B. C. 500, it was eighteen to one; at the commencement of the Christian era, it was nine to one; A. D. 500, it was eighteen to one; A. D. 1100, it was eight to one; A. D. 1500, it was eleven to one; A. D. 1551, it was two to one; A. D. 1600, it was eleven to one; A. D. 1716, it was thirteen to one. A. D. 1700, it was fifteen and a half to one; A. D. 1816, it was fourteen to one; A. D. 1847, it was again fifteen and a half to one; in July, 1876 it was twenty to one; and at the present time it is seventeen to one.

Queen Victoria has completed her 58th year; only 12 other of the 38 reigning sovereigns of Christendom have attained to this age. The oldest of all is the Pope, who is 85, Emperor William is 80, the Czar is 59, Victor Emanuel is 57, Emperor Francis Joseph is nearly 47. The youngest of the sovereigns is Alphonso of Spain.

When we know our Bible, then it is that God can use us.

Our Southern Methodism.

Rev. Plato Thompson, San Angustine, Texas, writes: "We have just closed a two days meeting at Lower Sabine. There were five conversions and seven accessions to the church. My work, generally, is in good condition."

Rev. Enoch Jefferson, Brazos Circuit, Texas, says: "We are blessed with a very gracious revival. So far there have been forty accessions to the church, and twenty-seven baptisms. Our sunday-schools share in the blessing."

Rev. T. Kennedy, Napoleonville, La., says: "Woodlawn Chapel on this work is in a gospel blaze. Our meeting has been in progress three weeks, our congregations are very large, and for some time past there have been conversions at every meeting. Our members are greatly revived and are zealously at work for the salvation of souls."

Rev. Chas. Gilbert, Lucy, Tenn., says: "We have just closed a two week's meeting at Friendship church. There were twenty-two conversions and twenty-four accessions to the church. On last sunday I baptized eighteen adults and two children. We have two sunday-schools on the work—both doing well."

Rev. R. W. Overton, pastor of Camp Parapet and Plum Street churches of this city says: "We have just closed a very gracious meeting of two weeks duration. There were twelve conversions and sixteen accessions to the Church. Our membership have been greatly blessed and encouraged. At the first of the year clouds seemed to overshadow us, but now the way seems bright and cheerful. Our Sunday-school has doubled in numbers, and is doing well."

Rev. A. M. Gregory, Waco, Texas, says: "At a protracted meeting we recently held there were ten conversions and a number of accessions to the church. At our quarterly services, just closed, so deep a spiritual interest has been manifested that we shall again commence our special services."

Rev. W. P. Forest, pastor of Clinton Street Church, New Orleans, reports that the second quarterly Conference was very interesting. One hundred and sixty partook of the communion. During the day twenty-five were received into full connection, and twenty-two were baptized by immersion. The Sabbath-school is in a good condition. During the quarter $211 20 had been raised and all the debts of the church are paid. Clinton Street Church was never in better condition."

Rev. Enoch Jefferson, Brazos Circuit, Texas, writes: "We have twenty recent accessions to the church on my work. Our quarterly services, held by our presiding elder, were very largely attended. Our church, which seats six hundred persons, would not hold the people. Many of our Baptist friends joined with us at the communion table, and the Lord blessed us all together; one hundred and seventy-five persons partook of the sacrament. My people are poor, but they are well up with the various collections."

Religious Items.

A Sunday-school Assembly to be held in the Yosemite Valley California, in 1879 is announced. Dr. J. H. Vincent assumes the responsibility of its organization.

Colonel Alfred Strother has given $20,000 to the Baptist Female College in Rome, Ga. About $15,000 is to be used for the erection of a College building.

The International Lessons for 1878 will have for the first six months "studies about the kingdom of Judea from II. Chronicles and Daniel;" for the last half year "studies in the Gospel according to Luke."

The First Reformed Presbyterian Church, Broad street below Spruce, Philadelphia, was organized in 1798, and has had but two pastors, the late Rev. Dr. S. B. Wylie, and his son, the Rev. T. W. J. Wylie, D.D., the present pastor.

The Southern Presbyterian Church has a Presbytery among the Indians which contains 22 churches, 10 ministers, 1 licentiate, 4 candidates, 54 elders, 686 church members, 114 baptized non-communicants, and 132 Sunday-school scholars.

The English Wesleyans have been increased by 8,000 new members during the past year. This is a larger increase than they have reported for some years past. Their Foreign Mission Society reports the addition of 3,000 new members at the mission station.

The Methodist Episcopal Church has, at this time, on what was slave territory at the beginning of the war, four bishops; viz.: Scott, Ames, Bowman and Haven; 26 annual Conferences; over 2000 traveling preachers; nearly 400,000 Church members; $9,250,000 invested in Church and school property; over 20 institutions of learning; 3 weekly papers; Sunday-school and Missionary work in active and vigorous operation.

The programme for the Presbyterian Alliance, to meet at Edinburgh, July 3d,-10th, provides for the discussion of the following topics: "Principles of Presbyterianism;" "Home Work of the Presbyterian Church;" Foreign Missions;" "The unbelief of the Present Day and how to meet it;" Spiritual Life, Helps and Hindrances—the Sabbath, the Christian Family, Religious Awakenings, Intemperance and other Social Evils;" "The Reformed Churches of the Continent of Europe;" Presbyterian Literature and the Use of the Press generally;" "The Christian Training of the Young." Dr. Duff and others invite the Presbyterian world to engage in special prayer for the success of the Alliance on June 24th and July 1st.

General News Items.

Charles O'Conor began life as a New York newsboy.

Oxford University has conferred upon Ex-President Grant the honorary degree of D. C. L.—Doctor of Civil Law.

John Tyler, Jr., son of the late President Tyler, has been appointed to the position of Inspector of Customs at Richmond, Va.

Some of the Spanish papers are advocating the suppression of the bull fights. There are one hundred bull-rings in Spain, and only twelve savings banks.

The famous "Ring" suits against Tweed and Sweeny are to be terminated by a compromise. Tweed is to give up property worth $2,000,000, and the executors of the estate of James M. Sweeney are to pay $400,000 to exonerate Peter B. Sweeney.

The French mining engineer, Sineolis, says that the silver mines of Colorado and of northwestern Texas give undoubted evidences of great wealth. The ores are true silver ones, and the mines are identical with those of Mexico, of which they are a continuation.

Turkish Titles.

Sultan—The sovereign of the Turkish Empire—the recognized organ of all executive power in the state. His headquarters are at Constantinope.

Porte—The government of the Turkish Empire.

Sublime Porte—The official name of the government, so called from the gate of Sultan's palace.

Grand Vizer—The chief minister of the Turkish Empire.

Divan—The Turkish council of state—the 'cabinet.'

Grand Mufti—Chief interpreter of the Mohammedan law and the head of the 'Wise Men'—jurists, theologians and literati—who assemble for consultation on his order. He is mostly styled the Chief of the Faithful. A writer says the fetwa or decree from him would summon around the standard of the Prophet all the fanatical hordes of Islam to fight to the death against the 'infidels, in the firm belief that death on the battle-field is a pass-port to paradise.'

Pasha—Governors, viceroys, commanders, civil and military rulers of provinces.

Deys—About the same as Pasha.

Shiek—The name given the heads of Arabian tribes or clans. It means elder, or eldest in dignity and authority.

Osmandi—Turkish official.

Islam—The religion of Mohammed.

Islams—Mohammedans themselves.

Mussulman—A follower Mohammed.

Ottoman Empire—Another name for the Turkish Empire, and derives its name from Osman, its founder.

Osmanli—The Turks proper.

When we find a man meditating on the words of God, my friends, that man is full of boldness and is successful.

A Survey of Our Mission Work

From the fifty-eighth annual report of the Missionary Society of the M. E. Church for 1876, which has just been received, we glean the following facts and figures concerning the progress and present condition of our work in foreign and domestic fields. The report contains much that is interesting and valuable to every member of the church, and deserves a more general and prayerful study than it will receive.

The year has been marked by encouraging success in our Missions, by great labor and anxiety in the management of the affairs of the Society, chiefly arising from the financial distress everywhere prevailing through the land, and by the death of the most eminent officers of the Society.

Our Missions in Africa which were commenced in 1833, now have about 2500 members and probationers, 43 churches, and 44 preachers. At the recent session of the Liberia Conference, the addresses were burdened with zeal to reach a more self-reliant and self-hopeful state in the churches themselves and to carry the gospel to the native tribes beyond the Americo-Liberian settlements. Bishop Haven has reserved a portion of the appropriation for sending a Missionary unto the Vey tribe, which is one of the most intelligent tribes on the coast, they having invented an alphabet of their own and displayed other hopeful signs of intellectual vigor. This interior work is the great work of the future.

The scope of our work in South America has been strangely and unfortunately underrated. The Mission was commenced in 1836, and now consists of three points, two (Montevideo and Rosaria) receiving the main part of their support from the Board, the third (Buenos Ayres, the oldest and most important) receiving nothing. In this vast field, which is larger than the whole of civilized Europe, our Methodist Missions are the only evangelizing agency. The only preaching of the Gospel in all this vast region, from Brazil to the Andes, is by the members of this Mission. The Superintendent in his report says:

"Our work is prosperous and promising. Congregations are maintained with unflagging interest in the three points occupied. Sunday Schools are growing and multiplying. Financial progress is being made in spite of the severest hard times known to these countries. Educational affairs from the primary schools to the highest institutions of learning, feel our direct influence. The press, the social circle, and other levers that move public opinion, are accessible to us. Prejudices are being uprooted, truths disseminated, souls saved, and these rising nations, in their formative stage, influenced and fashioned for the glory of God."

Our missions to China were commenced in 1847, and we now have in that field 25 missionaries; 81 native preachers; 14 local preachers; and a total of 2,300 members, probationers and baptized children. The last General Conference authorized the Fokien province to be organized into an annual conference to be called the Foochow Conference. Central and North China remain as they were, missions simply. This vast empire, in which probably reside one-third of all the people on the globe, is too large to be embraced in any one organization, either mission or conference, and the present missions are too remote from each other for any efficient co-operation. Doubtless three conferences will at no distant day be organized in China. The printing press as an auxiliary to mission work increases in importance each year. The mission press in China beside the regular monthly publication of the "Fokien Church Gazette," the "Good News," and Berean Lessons," printed during 1876, 90,731 volumes.

Of the Germany and Switzerland Conference the Report gives an extended account which closes as follows: "The Conference now has 10,224 members and probationers, and 64 traveling preachers. Of all the missionaries who went from this country, but two are now in Germany. Add to the above number the 39,799 German members and probationers in this country, and the 400 preachers, and we have a total of 50,023 members and probationers, and 464 preachers, as the noble results, under God, of those humble labors begun by Wm. Nast in Cincinnati, in 1835."

The visit of Bishop Andrews to our Scandinavian work, which was commenced in 1854, has inspired our brethren with new zeal and enthusiasm. God has greatly owned the annual visitation of our bishops to these interesting fields. To the church in Denmark, 1876 was a year of great trial. Their annual report, however, is full of encouragement. The collections show a small decrease, yet the mission is stronger, and the outlook was never better. Evangelical Christianity is laying its foundations in the north of Europe strong and deep. We have 18 preachers and teachers in this field; 561 members and 127 probationers.

In pursuance of the action of the General Conference, Bishop Andrews visited our mission in Sweden and organized it into an Annual Conference. Nearly all the interests of the mission advanced during the year. Ten elders; 19 deacons; 22 probationers, and 8 local preachers, acting as supplies, constitute the pastoral force. The charges are mostly circuits, there being 67 Societies, 125 Sunday schools, 249 preaching places. The membership including probationers, is 5663, an increase for the year of 640. Bishop Andrews says: "The work is well begun, is prospering nobly and is worthy our utmost care."

Our mission in Norway was by order of the General Conference organized into an Annual Conference. In this field we have 22 preaches, and 90 local preaches and teachers; 2185 members, 613 probationers; and 17 churches. Bishop Andrews who presided at the Conference sends a very encouraging letter in which he says:

I would speak cautiously of the religious condition of the people. A stranger unacquainted with the language, and passing rapidly through the country, is not a competent judge. Especially should he avoid broad undiscriminating censure. But I am compelled to believe that the Lutherans of this land urgently need the aid which Methodism can give and is giving. The coming of Methodism has been the signal for discussion and strife. It has encountered the most violent opposition, and has advanced with difficulty. But far beyond its organized and numercial success, of which I will soon speak, it has quickened religious thought, has made manifest the defects of the existing Church life, has stirred the pastors to greater activity, has introduced in many places better measures for the religious improvement of the people (the prayer-meeting societies are in evidence), and thus beyond its own proper limits has done great good. I believe that this result is of incalculable value and amply repays all our efforts.

Hindustan was at the last General Conference divided into two annual conferences. The North India Conference includes the provinces of Oudh, and the districts of Rohilcund, Cawnpore, Kumaon, and Gurwhal in the Northwest province. The residue of Hindustan was placed in the South India Conference, the missionaries in South India no longer being connected with the North India Conference. Of the sessions of these Conferences and the general state of the work our excellent correspondents, Revs. B. H. Badley and W. J. Gladwin, have recently given our readers accounts. In India we have 73 missionaries; 510 native preachers, teachers, etc.; 2,460 members; 1,204 probationers.

Our Bulgarian mission was commenced in 1857 and now consists of 5 missionaries; 14 local preachers; 77 members and probationers. Of our work in this province Bishop Andrews says:

The political condition of Bulgaria greatly increases the difficulty of our mission work. The people, divided by race and by creed, distrust, fear and hate one another. The Mohammedan, naturally violent and cruel, is now the more so that the love of power is threatened. The native Christian smarts intolerably under his wrongs, and yet is intimidated by his experiences. Many of our preachers find the people unwilling to attend a service which may possibly be interrupted as a conclave of insurgents. A state of apprehension exists in both classes of society. Men watch each other jealously. Many violent deeds are done. It is not safe to travel from the great highways, nor to congregate under circumstances capable of misapprehension. Our preachers, therefore, must restrict their movements, must be content with very small congregations, must do their work chiefly by private conversation, and wait for a better day.

The year 1876 was a very propitious one for our Italian mission. God has given general prosperity, with some achievements outstripping the ordinary laws of development. The Superintendent, Rev. Leroy M. Vernon, D.D., says: Our congregations are larger, our regular, reliable members more numerous, the ceremonial order and religious spirit of our services improved, our singing is better, and our preachers are more matured—[illegible] to add more confidence [illegible] in their work [illegible] Satan and the priest cry [illegible] Mephistopheles: [illegible] replenishing, renewing; [illegible] to see the work that's [illegible] cause has become more [illegible] elements increas[illegible] organiza[illegible] gently [illegible] appre[illegible]

[illegible] of [illegible] mission in [illegible] was prose[illegible] with highly [illegible] The statistics [illegible] progress in [illegible] of our opera[illegible] of adult [illegible] increased from 6 to 55; [illegible] connection from 7 [illegible] from 17 to 80; [illegible] from none to 7; [illegible] to 127; Sab[illegible] from 30 to 110; [illegible] property, from [illegible] and all this [illegible] the work [illegible] during the [illegible]

Mission Rooms.

Rev. J. H. Deputie, Secretary of our Liberia Conference, and his brother minister of the Presbyterian Church also of Liberia, reached New York June 4th, in the ship Libera. They bring most interesting intelligence from their homeland. A number of Swedes have recently gone to Liberia, and are leasing lands on the St. Paul river for coffee cultivation. The price of property on that river has risen in value in consequence of this new overture. The Swedes after leasing the lands hire the owners of it to cultivate coffee upon it.

The American Bible Society is the able colaborer of all the Missionary Societies. We doubt if the Methodist Episcopal Foreign Missions have ever been refused in all the applications they have made to the Bible Society. The Secretary informs our Missionary Secretaries of a grant recently made of two hundred dollars currency to Dr. Vernon and will add something for colporteur, a conditional appropriation, if needed is available for our Lucknow Press for completing the publication of the New Testament in Hindi. This is $500.

They have also sent to Dr. Butler a quantity of Spanish Bibles and Testaments for Mexico and also aided our German Mission.

Bishop Andrews writes of affairs in Italy and in our mission in particular. We are hearing encouraging things of Protestant work in general in that land, and hence are the more pleased to know of our own part in the same. A singular sort of interest, almost a poetic interest, attaches to the Waldensian Church. The "Church of the Reformation," says Dr. Wylie in his recent history, "was in the loins of the Waldensian church ages before the birth of Luther; her first cradle was placed amidst those terrors and sublimities, those ice-clad peaks and great bulwarks of rocks." "Its history is written in blood and tears," says another. It has now a fully equipped college at Florence for training ministers, and has forty congregations, and sixteen charges, and fifty places regularly visited by its evangelists.

One of the ablest men now aiding Dr. Vernon as a preacher is brother Gay, of Rome, of whom Bishop Andrews says: "He is a Waldensian by birth and training, of good scholarship, and vivacious to a degree, a fluent and attractive preacher." The Bishop also says: "The Waldensians in some cities have quite a large resident population, by which their congregations are made larger than those of other churches."

The Wesleyans have a good work in some thirty stations, conducted by converted Italians, many of them ex-priests, and not a few of them men of mark and of former high position. In the province of Padua the whole population has been influenced. The Wesleyans purchased property in Rome, in 1872, two men subscribing £1,000 each for the purpose. A few weeks since, they dedicated their pure Gothic church, opposite the palace of the Vicar of Rome, lately occupied by the Secretary of the Inquisition. In some stations, Mr. Panabon says they have had old-fashioned Methodist revivals, in which men and women by the scores have realized the converting grace of God. In one place the Government has been so well pleased with the Wesleyan School, that they have knighted the missionary, making him a 'Cavaliere.'

We, ourselves, have had a good work among the soldiers, but the diminished appropriations of the Missionary Society made it necessary to reduce expenses in some way. Dr. Vernon says: "(1) This military church was one of the most expensive of all. (2) The elements composing it are constantly changing, and away from Rome once, scarcely added more to our Church than they would if it were sustained by others. (3) With the means necessary for its support, two stations could be sustained in interesting cities and towns elsewhere, as permanent and stable parts of our general cause." It illustrates Protestant unity in a Romanist country, when Dr. Vernon adds as he does, the following: "As the Wesleyans could provide Rooms for Capellini, the preacher in charge of this work, and for his services too, in their large palace, and greatly lessen the cost of the work, they finally preferred and agreed to take all into their own hands, rather than see it pass to others, an arrangement that pleased all parties. This action was unanimously approved by the Annual Meeting, [illegible] Bishop Andrews' approval [illegible] "I count it myself a most [illegible] turn of affairs." We will [illegible] in a few weeks by a station [illegible] interesting town, by a man [illegible] already employed in a limited way." "Brescello [illegible] also ceded to the Wesleyans, being not far from one of their stations. We shall thus be able to di[illegible] one and institute very probably two new stations." [illegible] Vernon also says: "You will [illegible] in connection with [illegible] a young [illegible] converted, well-[illegible] on trial into [illegible] Switzerland Con[illegible] for [illegible] "The work [illegible] substantially in [illegible] condition as when I last [illegible] of the Missionary [illegible] very favorably from [illegible] for the cause. [illegible] substan[illegible] and Dr. [illegible] two weeks, [illegible]

Louisiana Institution for the Instruction of the Blind.

To the Secretaries of the Parish School Boards, and all other Parochial Officers —To all Pastors of Churches, and all Others Interested in Good Work:

The Louisiana Institution for the Education of the Blind is now reorganizing, and will be ready for full work on the first of September next.

The purpose of this institution is to train to self-support all the blind of the State who are capable of such training and are willing to receive it. This purpose is not the product of a groundless theory, nor is it sentimental moonshine. It is the outgrowth of a clear recognition of human possibilities, and sustained by a valid experience. In every country elevated by Christian civilization schools for training the blind are established. In many countries of Europe, and in every American State, trained blind persons are achieving subsistence by useful work.

Blindness is a great evil; but its hurtful effects are intensified by ignorance and inertness. The blind ought to desire and to seek all possible mitigations, and their friends ought to help them to find relief. To be an enforced drone is not a divinely appointed destiny. To be a voluntary drone is a crime against one's self, and against society. To assume that the victim of blindness can do nothing is to contradict fact and blaspheme humanity. It is wrong in the blind to believe that they are wholly incapable of usefulness; and that the seeing should persuade them to such belief, or permit them to rest in it, is monstrous. No cruelty is so remorseless as that which tortures by depreciation, and destroys by degradation. The seeing mean well, yet they often depreciate the blind man into helplessness, and doubt him into negation. Let this error die, this wrong perish. Let us about face, and follow the teachings of Christian morality and of common sense. Let it be believed that in the blind there is a latent force waiting to be translated into productive energy. Let it be accepted that "there is a spirit in man, and the inspiration of the Almighty giveth him understanding."

This institution will furnish its pupils thorough common school instruction; and whenever is manifested capability for fuller education, special provision will be made to meet the case. Instruction in music will be given; and all pupils of sufficient ability will be trained with direct reference to earning a living as musicians. Many blind persons now obtain remunerative incomes as organists, as teachers of music, and as tuners of pianos. Pupils will be instructed in several mechanical occupations—for the present, in cane-seating chairs, broom manufacture, mattress-making and sewing. As means increase, and as the institution develops, other lines of handicraft will be tried. A few of the former pupils of this institution are now earning a partial or whole support by the trades already mentioned.

All blind persons between eight and thirty-five, of sound mind and good moral character, are eligible as pupils. Instruction, board, lodging and medical attendance will be gratuitously afforded to all. Persons unable to clothe themselves must obtain from the mayor of the town, or from a police juror of the parish in which they reside, a certificate declaring their inability. When such persons become pupils the institution will clothe them. All others are required to bring a full supply of neat and comfortable clothing. This institution is not an asylum for the helpless, not a home for the destitute. It is a school to train the blind to self-support—a department of the system of public instruction specialized to meet the educational needs of a class. Pupils are received solely for this purpose, and only for a limited term. Every assurance which earnest kindness can offer, or reasonable solicitude demand, is given that inmates will be carefully and kindly treated.

You are respectfully and urgently requested to seek out the blind of your neighborhood, to send their addresses to this institution, and to communicate the substance of this circular to them and to their friends. Many of the relatives of the blind, and some of the blind themselves, doubt their capability of useful training. Persistence in this error will assure the incompetency which the doubt implies. Do not add uselessness to the woes of blindness. Let the blind boy become as full a man as his limitation will permit. In this work every one can be a missionary. Find out all young blind persons, and urge them to enter this institution. Do this, and thereby help them to the fullest redemption which Christian civilization can offer. Louisiana ought not to be the last and least in philanthropic work. All properly qualified blind persons are cordially invited to enter, and their friends earnestly solicited to place them in this institution. The personal character and high social position of the trustees amply guarantee the faithful fulfillment of the trust they have accepted.

All communications will be addressed to the principal. Any desirous to enter before September will be received.

P. LANE, Principal.

Trustees—W. H. Goodale, J. W. McMain, W. Carig, D. H. Waddell, R. Morris.

Baton Rouge, April 25, 1877.

Term of the Pastorate.

The difference between what is known as an itinerant ministry and a settled one is not in the fact of frequent removals, but rather, that in the former (1) the united body of ministers form a conjoint pastorate of all the Churches of the united body, and (2) that all are movable, at brief intervals, by a preordained umpire, and must be removed after a determinate term of service,—while in the latter the term of service is indefinite, and terminable at the pleasure of either party. Now it may naturally happen that under the former plan the average time of each minister in his particular pastorate may exceed that of those serving under the former,—since in the former case no minister remains at the same Church less than one year, and usually the whole time allowed, three years,—while in the latter changes may occur after a few weeks or months, and facts show that the average term of pastorates in Churches served by a settled ministry is less than three years. An itinerant ministry is changeable at given intervals and must change at the end of a defined term; but during incumbency it has a degree of permanency that cannot exist under the "tenant at will" arrangements of the opposite system, and since changes of pastoral arrangements are inevitable, it is better that they should occur normally, and according to a fixed law, than that they should be left to be brought about by dissensions and contests,—and by the triumph of one party over another, in the same Church.—[National Repository, for July.

How to be Miserable.

Think about yourself; about what you want, what you like, what respect people ought to pay you, what people think of you, and then to you nothing will be pure. You will spoil everything you touch; you will make sin and misery for yourself out of everything which God sends you; you will be as wretched as you choose on earth or in heaven either.

In heaven either, I say. For that proud, greedy, selfish, self-seeking spirit would turn heaven into hell. It did turn heaven into hell for the great devil himself. It was by pride, by seeking his own glory (so at least wise men say) that he fell from heaven to hell. He was not content to give up his own will and to do God's will like the other angels. He was not content to serve God and rejoice in God's glory. He would be master himself, and rejoice in his own glory; and so, when he wanted to make a private heaven of his own he found that he had made a hell. When he wanted to be a little god for himself, he lost the life of the true God, to lose which is eternal death. And why? Because his heart was not pure, clean, honest, simple, unselfish. There he saw God no more, and learned to hate Him whose name is Love.—Kingsley's Sermons.

The Lord's Corn.

The mission station in the Indian Territory was at one time my house. Tobaccowell, one of our neighbors, was a member of the little mission church, and like many a white professor, was spasmodically zealous for the glory of God. One sabbath he listened to a sermon from Gen. xxviii: 22, "And of that thou shalt give, I will surely give the tenth unto Thee."

At the close of the service, he said to the missionary:

"Me plant big corn-field next week. Me make it ten pieces; plant all, then one piece be the Lord's corn.

He did so; the part of the field to be devoted to the Lord was plowed and planted with great care. But when the time for hoeing had arrived, our neighbor hoed his own corn, but did not find it convenient to hoe the Lord's. As the season advanced, the Lord's corn, uncultivated and dwarfed and Tobaccowell's well hoed, tall and thrifty, produced a sad and striking contrast.

The sight of that corn-field has been a life-long lesson to me; and whenever I find myself more devoted to my own personal interests than to the glory of God, I say to myself, I am neglecting the Lord's corn.

Winning a Soul.

A Christian man deeply devoted, and wise to win souls, made it a rule to speak to some one unconverted person every day on the subject of his soul's salvation. One night as he was about retiring to rest, he bethought himself that he had not fulfilled his vow that day. He immediately put on his attire and prepared to go in quest of a soul. But where should he go? was the question. He concluded to make a visit to a grocer with whom he was in the habit of trading. He found him engaged in closing up his store. When the errand of his customer was made known he was surprised. He said all sorts of Christian people traded with him, Methodists, Episcopalians, Presbyterians, Baptists, etc., but no one had ever spoken to him about his soul. The night visit of his customer and his earnest pleadings made such an impression upon his mind that it led to his speedy conversion. Reader, go thou and do likewise. There are many souls that sit in darkness waiting for light from above. Can you not lead some of them to see the light of life?—Selected.

African Exploration.

Ujiji was not far off, and in a few hours they were there, and were hospitably received by the Arab traders. They found Livingstone's papers safely deposited in the care of the principal trader. But Cameron was told that it would be impossible to continue his journey west of the lake for at least three months, until the close of the rainy season. The name of the town is properly Kawele, Ujiji designating the country in which it is situated. This is under a mieme, or chief, who resides at a village among the mountains, some distance from the lake. The inhabitants come nearer to being a clothed people than any other natives of Central Africa. Their usual dress consists of a piece of cloth or bark cotton, with two of the corners tied in a knot over one shoulder, and passing under the opposite armpit, so that it leaves one side of the body uncovered. They wear a profusion of ornaments, made of ivory, beads, or wire, and clip and dress their hair in all manner of fancy devices.

Kawelo is a busy place for Africa, it being the entrepot for the ivory and slave trade of a vast region. The soko, or market, held on the shore of the lake in the morning and afternoon of every day, presents a lively scene. The people of the surrounding region bring vegetables, tobacco, salt, palm-wine, palm-oil, fish, meat, goats, poultry, hows, spears, fishing-nets, iron-work, and pottery; and hither come traders from a distance to dispose of their slaves and ivory in this central mart. There are a few booths, but most of the business is transacted in open air.—National Repository for July.

Worth Thinking of.

The kind of money a man puts into the contribution box is a test of his character. An honest, square-dealing, and sincere Christian man picks out the brightest coin, or the cleanest bank-note and scrip for his offerings to the Lord. He never gives any thing in that direction with a flaw in it. But a half-hearted, mean, and halting church member is almost sure to save his battered coin or his ragged and filthy paper money for the missionary collection—if indeed he gives any thing to the Lord's cause. A child should be taught from the beginning to select only the brightest, fairest, cleanest of his treasured money for gifts into the Lord's treasury. It is a shame to put anything else there.

The Atlanta Constitution lets "Old Si" get back to the white folks' church. Here is the old man's reply to the suggestion that he would be a stranger there.

"'Stop, rite dar, boy! Dar'll be sumefin dar dat I'll kno'! De same ole Bible'll be on the desk; de same trufe from de Great Marster'll be dar an' read out; de same songs'll be sung by de good people, an' de same sperret ob grace'll fill dis ole nigger's heart! Don't mek no diffrunce dat I ain't been dar fer 'leben years—don't make no diffrunce dat I'se black—I'se gwine to be at home in de white folks chu'ch. I ain't 'sputin' wid no man's 'ligion now—but I'se pinin' an' panten' to git back dar, whar I kno's de Lord comes, and whar he fust foun' me 'mong de mo'ners!'

And the old man kept his word Sunday morning."

G. P. Rowell & Co., deserve the best thanks of the advertising community for their efforts to prevent advertisers from being imposed on by unscrupulous publishers. Every honest publisher will also thank them for the aid they have afforded them in maintaining their competition for business by fair means, against the fraudulent practices of dishonest rivals. Messrs. Rowell & Co., alone of Newspaper Directory publishers, have had the courage to undertake the task of discriminating among the statements of newspapers, and to face the hostility, which such a course was sure to excite among those who profited by misrepresentation. Notwithstanding the "crushing" articles that from time to time have been hurled at them, sometimes by parties who ought to have known better, they have persevered in their course, and they have had their reward. Their publication has taken the first place as the standard authority among American Newspaper Directories, and a reference book for every large advertiser and advertising agency in this country.—Jersey City Journal, May 13, 1877.

One of the best of papers lying upon our table, is the Illustrated Christian Weekly, published by the American Tract Society, 150 Nassau street, New York. Every week it is superbly illustrated with the finest of wood engravings, and every week contains the most agreeable, interesting and instructive in literature; and withal printed upon finest book paper, in clear full face type, and all for $2.50 per year. Without hesitation we pronounce it the very best periodical for the general reader. We cannot spare space to enumerate its many excellences. Do you desire beautiful engravings and exquisite poetry—real poetry? Are you fond of first-class stories sketches, essays, biographical, geographical, historical tales? Do you relish able, witty, eloquent editorials on the leading questions of the day, both religious and secular? Do you want all this, and much more? Then let this Weekly find an entrance into your homes and your hearts will be warmed and gladdened by its very presence.

The Model Printer's Guide.—This handsome Journal, published by J. W. Daughaday & Co., No. 723 Chestnut St. Philadelphia, deserves the patronage of every one. It is not only a perfect gem in its typographic appearance, but is full to the brim of choice literary matter, while the information it imparts in reference to the art of printing is simply invaluable. No boy should sleep soundly, until he has ordered it, and its suggestions would be found to be of immense advantage to business men everywhere. Ten cents, and a three cent stamp for postage is the price for a year, and certainly such a sum could not be better spent. A handsome, 100-page Printer's Instruction and Specimen book is sent free to every subscriber.

Half Hour Studies of Life. By Edwin A. Johnson, D. D. Cincinnati: Hitchcock & Walden. New York: Nelson & Philips. Price, $1 50.

If the table of contents of this book was not so long, perhaps the best notice we could give of the book would be to copy the table. The title head of each of the fifty-three chapters is in itself suggestive of more than one-half hour's study to any thoughtful mind. At a first glance, the several chapters seem to be disconnected one with the other, as our own views of life frequently are. But on closer examination they will each be found to be links in a chain of thought, advancing from the less to the greater, and helping the reader to the best ordering of life and labor.—Pittsburg Advent.

Wonderful, Most Wonderful.

A neighbor of ours has been for several years afflicted with consumption, and for months was so low that we looked daily for her death, but strange as it seems to us, three bottles of Cannabis Indica has so far restored her, that she is now able to do her housework. I have always been prejudiced against patent medicines, but seeing the remarkable effect your remedies have had upon Mrs. Fielder, and having a similar case in my own family, I have inclosed $18.00 for 6 syrup, 4 ointment and a box of pills hoping to obtain the same benefits, I am, respectfully,

D. B. BAILEY,

GARDNER, Grundy Co., Ill., May 20, 1877,

N. B.—This remedy speaks for itself. A single bottle will satisfy the most skeptical. We know that it positively cures Consumption, and will break up a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. $2.50 per bottle, or three for $6.50. Pills and Ointment, $1.25 each. Address CRADDOCK & CO., 1032 Race Street, Philadelphia, Penn. June 14.

Died.

At Waco, Texas, May 27th, 1877. Mrs. Emeline Crane, aged, 60 years.

She had been from childhood a faithful and zealous member of the M. E. Church. On my last visit to her I found her awaiting death with the utmost composure. The manner in which she spoke of the promises of the New Testament showed how strongly her faith laid hold upon them. They were the promises of her Lord, and relying fully upon them she patiently awaited until He called her from her humble, little cabin to meet Him in the skies.

A. M. GREGORY, Pastor.

At Spring Hill, Tennessee, April 27, 1877, Louisa Stephenson, wife of Rev. Wm. Stephenson, aged 44 years.

In early life she had been a member of the M. E. Church South, but in 1866 she united with the M. E. Church. She and Bro. Stephenson were married in 1861. She died as she had lived, a devoted Christian. She left behind her a large family to mourn their loss.

W. A. McKISSACK.

In Chickasaw County, Mississippi, March 6th, 1877, Mrs. Mary L. Simons, aged 85 years.

Concerning this Mother in Israel, we condense the following statement from a long obituary, received from W. B. Kendrick, too late for insertion. She was a native of South Carolina, was married in 1812, was converted to God and united with the M. E. Church in her seventeenth year, and remained steadfast in faith and abundant in works, throughout her long, devoted life. Her death was peaceful, but triumphant. Her funeral discourse was preached by Rev. J. M. Dunn, of the M. E. Church, South, to a large congregation, composed of the relatives and friends of the deceased, and the congregations of both Methodist Churches.

"No man who is fit to live need fear to die. Poor, timorous, faithless souls that we are! How we shall smile at our vain alarms when the worst has happened! To us here death is the most terrible word we know. But when we have tasted its reality, it will mean to us birth, deliverance, a new creation of ourselves. It will be what health is to the sick man. It will be what the loved one given back is to the bereaved. As we draw near to it, a solemn gladness should fill our hearts. It is God's great morning lighting up the sky. Our fears are the terrors of children in the night. The night with its terrors, its darkness, its feverish dreams, is passing away; and when we awake it will be into the sunlight of God."

Quarterly Meetings.

Houston, (Texas) District.

THIRD ROUND.

Richmond and Forest Chapel, July 1-2; Church Houston, July 7-8; Edwards Chapel, July 9-10; Harrisburg and West Point, July 14-15; Columbia and Brazoria, July 21-22; 1st Church Houston, August 4-5; Spring Creek, 25-26; East Church Tabernacle, September 1-2; Galveston, Staffords, September 8-9; Cypress, September, 15-16; Oyster Creek, September 22-23.

W. L. MOLLOY, P. E.

Marshall (Tex.) District.

THIRD ROUND.

Coffeeville, June 30 July 1; Marion, July 7-8 Marshall, July 14-15; Jefferson, Circuit July 21-22; Jefferson, July 28-29; Hickory Grove, July 28-29; Clarksville, August 4-5th; Union, August 4-5; Paris July 11th-12; Quitman, Aug. 18-19; Vanzant, Aug. 25-26; Greenville, Sept. 1st. 2nd; Sulphur Springs, Sept. 8-9th; Mt. Pleasant, Sept. 15-16.

F. C. MOORE, P. E.

Holly Springs (Miss.) District.

SECOND ROUND.

Mt. Pleasant, July 7-8; Kosciusko, July 14-15; French Camp, July 16-17; Greensboro, July 17-19, Winona and Vaiden 21-22; Duck Hill, July 26-27; Granada, July 28-29; Grenada Circuit, July 23-29; Oxford, Aug. 4-5; New Albany, Aug. 8-9; Ripley, Aug. Hickory Flat, Aug. 15; Holly Springs Aug. 18-19; Byhalia, Aug. 21-22; Chulahoma, Aug. 24; Abbeville, Aug. 25-26; Eliza, Aug. 30 and Sept 1st. First District Conference for Holly Springs District will meet on the 14th day of June, at Grenada; all the brethren are requested to be present.

J. G. JOHNSON, P. E.

Greenwood (Miss.) District.

(Second Round.)

Wesley Chapel, 9 and 10th of June; Silver Creek, 16th and 17th of June; Yazoo City, 23rd and 24th of June; Piney Grove, 30th of June and 1st of July; Dossonville, 7th and 8th of July; Pickens, 14 and 15 of July; Lexington, 21st and 22d of July; Goodman, 28th and 29th of July; Jones Chapel, 4th and 5th of August; McNutt, 11th and 12th of August; Caney Creek, 18th and 19th of August; New Midway, 25th and 26th of August; Hernando, 1st and 2d of September; Panola, 8th and 9th of September; Cold Water, 15th and 16th of September; Walnut City, 22nd and 23d of Sept; Shiloh 29th and 30th Sept.

J. W. DUNN, P. E.

Meridian (Miss.) District.

Rome, June 23-24; Ex-Prairie, June 30 and July 1; Macon, July 7-8; Shuqualak, July 11-12; DeKalb, July 14-15; Lauderdale July 21-22; Daleville, July 24-25; Meridian 28-29; Meridian Circuit August 4-5; Quitman August 11-12; Shubuta Circuit, August 15-16; State Line, Aug. 18-19; Shubuta, August 21-22; Enterprise Circuit, Aug. 25-26; Enterprise, Aug. 28-29.

M. ADAMS, P. E.

Gulf District.

(Second round.)

Meadville Circuit June 23-24; Liberty, June 26-27; Summit and Magnolia, June 28-29; China Grove, June 30 and July 1; Columbia, July 2-3; Augusta, July 4-5.

L. BRADFORD, P. E.

San Antonio (Tex.) District.

Sutherland Springs, June 23-24; Nockernut, July 1; Cibola, July 4 and 5; Riddleville, July 4 and 5; Lavernia, 7 and 8; Goliad Circuit, July 11 and 12; Belmont, July 14 and 15; Refugio, July 18 and 19; Wrightsboro, July 21 and 22; Goliad, July 28 and 29.

D. GREGORY, P. E.

OFFICE AMERICAN COTTON TIE CO. LIMITED
47 Carondelet St. New Orleans, La.

In view of the constantly increasing popularity and demand for the Celebrated Arrow Tie, the universally recognized favorite Tie of Planters, Cotton Pressmen and Shippers of Cotton generally, the American Cotton Tie Co., Limited, sole proprietors and manufacturers of said Tie, commanding unequalled facilities, have, in addition to the large stock now on hand, contracted for increased quantities, sufficient to meet the largest demand for Cotton Ties, to cover the entire crop of the coming season, and now, through their Agents generally, offer the popular and irrepressible ARROW TIE at $2.50 per bundle, less 2½ per cent. discount for cash, in Bundles complete, being less than the market value of plain hoop iron; and it being the purpose of the Company to merit the continued patronage of the Planting community and to defy all competition that may arise; their Agents are instructed to contract with Dealers, Factors and country Merchants at the above named price and terms for future delivery up to the first of August in quantities as may be required from time to time, settlements being made on delivery.

R. W. RAYNE, & CO.,
GENERAL MANAGERS,
je-21-77-1y] New Orleans, La.

FOUR MONTHS OF

GOOD HEALTH

FOR 25 CENTS.

ANY PERSON WHO WILL BUY A BOX OF

Parson's Purgative PILLS

And will take one (1) each night for four (4) nights, and will do this every third (3d) week during the months of June, July, August and September, will not be troubled with Fever and Ague, nor Malarious Fever, nor Bilious Fever, nor any of the diseases resulting from miasmatic poison, common in Missouri, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas. If Parson's Purgative Pills cannot be obtained at your nearest store, send 25 cts. to the undersigned, and the pills shall be sent, post paid, by return mail. Physicians supplied by mail at $2.50 per thousand in bulk. As this is but little more than half price for standard pills by the thousand, cash must accompany the order. The Receipe will be cheerfully sent to any physician on application. We will send Parson's Pills by mail to responsible parties on commission at $2 per dozen, sample dozens at $1 85, cash with the order.

WHOLESALE AGENTS.

COLLINS BROS..............St. Louis, Mo.
G. W. JONES & CO..........Memphis Tenn.
E. J. HART & CO............New Orleans, La.
C. J. LINCOLN & CO........Little Rock, Ark.
T. C. THOMPSON & CO......Galveston, Tex.

ADDRESS ALL ORDERS TO

I. S. JOHNSON & CO.

je21-1y] Bangor, Maine, Proprietors.

Hospital College of Medicine.

(The clinical School of the West.)

Med. Dept. of Central Univ., Louisville, Ky.

Distinctive features: A thorough didactic course, unsurpassed clinical facilities, eighteen clinics per week, the student being daily required to examine and prescribe, a high standard of graduation, both a didactic and a practical clinical examination being required.

For catalogues and information concerning special advantages address

DR. W. H. BOLLING, DEAN,
Cor. Third and Jefferson Sts., Louisville, Ky.

SOUTHWESTERN AGENCY
FOR
School and College Text Books.

Office No. 80 CAMP STREET (up stairs).

Below we submit the MODEL SERIES of books (so conceded by the leading educators of this country) for use in PRIMARY, INTERMEDIATE and GRAMMAR schools. To insure their adoption by the progressive teacher we have only to ask a careful comparison with books of a like grade, a critical examination and a thorough, practical test in the class-room:

	Prices.
Harper's Introductory Geography	60
Harper's School Geography	$1 25
" United States First Reader	15
" " " Second "	26
" " " Third "	37
" " " Fourth "	56
" " " Fifth "	75
" " " Sixth "	90
Wilson's Primary Speller	15
" Larger "	30
" New "	34
Lamson's Penmanship, per dozen	1 80
French's First Lessons in Numbers	25
" Elementary Arithmetic	37
" Mental Arithmetic	30
" Common School Arithmetic	70
Swinton's Language Primer	30
" Language Lessons	37
" School Composition	37
" Progressive Grammar	55

Catalogues, circulars, and testimonials sent on application. Correspondence solicited and answers prompt attention, when addressed, W. P. ROGERS & W. L. JARVIS, Agents for the introduction of Harper & Brothers' Educational Works, New Orleans, La., Lock Box 134.

If We Would.

If we would but check the speaker,
When he sells his neighbor's fame,
If we would but help the erring,
Ere we utter words of blame;
If we would, how many might we Turn from paths of sin and shame!

Ah! the wrongs that might be righted
If we would but see the way!
Ah! the pains that might be lightened
Every hour and every day,
If we would but hear the pleadings
Of the hearts that go astray!

Let us step outside the stronghold
Of our selfishness and pride;
Let us lift our fainting brothers,
Let us strengthen ere we chide,
Let us, ere we blame the fallen,
Hold a light to cheer and guide.

Ah, how blessed! ah, how blessed
Earth would be if we but try
Thus to aid and right the weaker
Thus to check each brother's sigh;
Thus to walk in duty's pathway,
To our better life on high!

In each life, however lowly,
There are seeds of mighty good;
Still we shrink from souls appealing
With a timid "If we could;"
But our God, who judgeth all things
Knows the truth is—"If we would."

Baboushka.

The Russian peasants have a curious tradition about Christmas. It is that an old woman, the Baboushka, [illegible] house when[illegible] East [illegible] d the [illegible] they said, [illegible] in the [illegible] "I will com[illegible] but no[illegible] she answered, [illegible] have my house to set in order; when that is done I will follow and find Him." But when her work was done, the three kings had passed on their way across the desert, and the star shone no more in the darkened heavens. She never saw the Christ-child, but she is living still searching for Him still. It is she who, in Russian and Italian houses, is believed to fill the stockings and dress the trees on Christmas morning. The children are awakened by the cry of "behold the Baboushka!" and spring up, hoping to see her before she vanishes out of the window. She fancies, the tradition goes, that in each poor little child whom she warms and feeds she may find the Christ-child whom she neglected years ago, but is doomed to eternal disappointment.

A Touching Incident.

A nobleman, who died a few years since, had a casket all locked but marked, "To be removed in case of fire." When he died the casket was opened that the heir might see if there was some deed of [illegible], rich jewelry, or costly [illegible] be found in it. But [illegible] found? They found the child's [illegible] Beside to him [illegible] all the world's [illegible] his coronet, [illegible] all the jewels that [illegible] its crest. Not his [illegible] not his equipage [illegible] and great in the dearest objects [illegible] boys or little girls.

Thickest-Rolled.

The interest on any number of [illegible] in each case be[illegible] the two right-hand figures, to ex[illegible] by the [illegible] and divide by [illegible]

Multiply by the separate the right divide by six.

Multiply by the separate the right divide by four.

Multiply by the separate the right divide by four.

Multiply by the separate the right divide by six

Southwestern Christian Advocate.

NEW SERIES—VOL. 1—NO. 26. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, JUNE 28, 1877. WHOLE NUMBER 256

SOUTHWESTERN

Christian Advocate.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT

[illegible] Natchez St., New Orleans.

BY

NELSON & PHILLIPS,

FOR THE

Methodist Episcopal Church.

Terms: $2 a year, Cash in Advance.

All Travelling Preachers of the Methodist Episcopal Church are authorized Agents.

Subscriptions may begin at any time and the paper will be sent as long as paid for.

Remittances must be made by Registered Letter, P. O. Money Order, or by Express.

Advertising Rates.

(Per Nonpareil line, each insertion.)

One time [illegible]	8 cents
One month, (4 times)	7 "
Three months, (13 times)	6 "
Six months, (26 times)	5 "
One year, (52 times)	4 "
[illegible] notices	25 "
Special notices	8 cents, net cash.

UPS AND DOWNS.

Life is full of ups and downs—
Valleys, plains, and mountains.
Not forever are our tents
Pitched by pleasant fountains.
Sometimes in the burning sun,
Sometimes in the shadow;
Now we climb the rocky steep,
Now we tread the meadow.

Life is full of ups and downs—
Made of gains and losses;
Flowers that grow on prickly stems,
Crowns that hang on crosses.
Summer breezes fan our cheeks,
Wintry blasts affright us;
And when snow's white mantle rends,
Spring's fair sights delight us.

Murmur not at ups and downs,
They are needful changes;
He can ne'er [illegible] in aught
Who thy [illegible] arranges.
Seek [illegible] highest good
[illegible] pleasure;
[illegible] to fly thee still—
[illegible] treasure.

[illegible] make life's ups and
[illegible]
[illegible] and brighter,
[illegible] heavy load—
[illegible] the lighter,
[illegible] of the sick,
[illegible] they slumber;
[illegible] shall bring to thee
[illegible] number.

[illegible] these ups and downs,
[illegible] nearer
[illegible] life,
[illegible] clearer!
[illegible]
[illegible] ways.

[illegible] ups and downs
[illegible]
[illegible] double;
[illegible] love to man,
[illegible]
[illegible] downs of life
[illegible]

Foreign Letter.

[illegible] Church of Ireland [illegible] was disestablished has [illegible] its general synod [illegible] Prayer Book. It [illegible] parts of it and in[illegible] includes the [illegible] the error of [illegible] that Christ [illegible] his body and [illegible] to be re[illegible] carried about, or [illegible] of bread [illegible] the [illegible] and [illegible] on [illegible] it is suffi[illegible] note at the [illegible] office, (and [illegible]) that the [illegible] prescribed to [illegible] not appointed [illegible] adoration, [illegible] made in the [illegible] of priests, [illegible] for upon [illegible] formularies, we [illegible] declare that [illegible] ecclesiastical [illegible] authority is [illegible] Church or [illegible] in respect [illegible] baptism, [illegible] or pre[illegible] absolution [illegible] truly peni[illegible] con[illegible] of all [illegible] [illegible] son to be thankful with the result. In the first place the subject has been ventilated and discussed; secondly, the thunders of anathema which were expected to descend upon the devoted head of the instigators of the movement has been allowed to sleep in their clouds; thirdly, a committee have been appointed to pave the way for a revision of the Confession. The fact of such a step being taken is an admission that there is something wrong in the venerable document so that not merely private members of the Synod, but the Synod itself is now, horrible to relate, an enormous though an informed and shapeless heretic." During the discussion referred to by Mr. Gilfillan, a member of the able and learned court said: "The Westminster confession misrepresented most seriously their views of the truth, it deceived the world and deceived their churches if they took it to be a true representation of what they as a church believed and preached. Those who differed from the confession were more in harmony with the living faith of the United Presbyterian Church than those who really abided by it."

Professor Harper condemned the conduct of those persons who having solemnly professed to give their assent to the standards, do, notwithstanding, indulge in denouncing them as erroneous and unscriptural, and in impeaching their brethren with not believing and not preaching the doctrines. Theological unrest obtains largely and strongly throughout the various Presbyterian denominations, and it will probably culminate in a thorough reversion of the venerable formularies to which unreserved and unqualified subscription has been given for centuries by the members of those bodies at their ordination.

A comparatively young Wesleyan minister has risen to eminence in the scientific world, the Rev. W. H. Dallinger. He is a fellow and vice-President of the Royal Microscopical Society. The Government have placed at the disposal of the Society £1,000 sterling a year to aid him in his investigation into the origin and development of minute forms of life.

It is not always the case that men who become distinguished are especially devoted, con amore, in one department or branch of knowledge excel in others, but Mr. Dallinger is a superior preacher, as well [illegible] successful student of science.

The University of Cambridge has just honored the literary attainments of another Wesleyan Minister, the Rev. Dr. Moulton, Principal of the Wesleyan High School of that city, by conferring upon him the honorary degree of M. A. He is the first Wesleyan minister who has been so honored by that University, and the first who was honored by the degree of D. D., by the University of Edinburg.

The mortuary list of the coming Wesleyan Conference will be larger than it has been for many years, and it will no doubt be increased in the interval between this and the meeting of the body. The Rev. John Nelson, a member of the Irish Conference has just died at the age of 94. At his death he was the oldest Wesleyan minister, save one, in the United Kingdom. He was sixty-eight years in the ministry, and spent fifty of these in active service.

War is going on, Russia is advancing upon Turkish territory. Its torpedoes do powerful havoc. The other powers are looking on with interest. Turkey is doomed, and must go down. The present war may execute the sentence of the Highest or it may not. No one can forecast the issue. If Russian arms are successful in thoroughly defeating Turkey what then? Will the other Powers permit the Czar to do as he pleases? I trow not.

VIDETTE.

Letter from Bishop Andrews.

Bishop Andrews writes to the Missionary Secretaries, as follows: "In addition to the time occupied in Rome, by our mission meeting and other conferences with our brethren there, I was able to spend some time at Naples and at Milan, where our missionary pastors, brothers Ravi and Mill, both speak English fluently. I have not hastened to report to you the impressions made by this intercourse with our laborers in the Italian field, as I [illegible] nothing in the mission requiring instant attention, or to elicit [illegible] in its operations.

[illegible] the strong impression [illegible] who have previously vis[illegible] the Mission work in Italy, is [illegible] in the [illegible] of Doctor [illegible] the Superintendency, [illegible] career. I judge [illegible] of the Italian [illegible] good that his [illegible] [illegible] work. Some are plain, who seem by diligence to be moderately successful. Some are men of marked culture and of special adaptation to the ministry. ——, of —, is learned and thoughtful, the philosophic theologian par excellence of the Mission; exceedingly devout, yet not proven to have wide popular power. ——, of —, is also a scholar and litterateur of marked ability, and during the last year, has shown an aptitude for Evangelic work, the lack of which, previously, had caused no little question as to the probable usefulness of his ministry. These are probably the ablest men in the mission. Some others may have a success equal to the average of them.

Doctor Vernon speaks of the difficulty of finding men whose views and experience of Spiritual Religion are such as are desirable. Even the honest inquirers among the Italians are inclined to think of Christianity as merely a system of doctrines to be held, and of duties to be performed, without distinctly recognizing the transforming work of the Holy Spirit. Even those who enter the ministry need to be trained to a distinct recognition and experience of the 'life of God in the soul of man.' In all the Evangelic churches, some preach who have learned only the alphabet of Christianity, and the result of their labor is proportionately small. Doctor Vernon thinks, that in spiritual life, the members of the mission are improving; hopes, therefore, for increased success.

The results thus far obtained in the Italy Mission are, perhaps, all that could be reasonably expected. Doctor Vernon has drawn around him a company of intelligent and faithful laborers. In this he has been signally favored. These brethren are at work, and in some cases have good congregations, and a considerable church membership, as the returns show. Probably, in these respects, they equal any other foreign mission in Italy. The Waldensians, in some cities, have quite a large resident population by which their congregations are made larger than those of other churches.

As in most like cases, the congregations and membership are of those in lowly life. Some few of the higher classes have been drawn to the Gospel, but as of old, 'not many mighty nor many noble are [illegible].' There is no reason to doubt that the opinions of the higher classes, even more than those of the lower, are adverse to the Romish church. But it is quite another thing to secure their personal adherence to the law and gospel of Christ.

In connection with the poverty of our churches, and, indeed, of the whole Italian population, is to be noted the fact, that the Italians have not been trained to giving, even in the Romish church. That systematic exaction of supplies from its voturies, which we so often note in America, has no place in Italy. The churches are endowed, some of them largely; and little demand is made for the current support of the ministry and church services. Small fees for weddings, funerals and masses compose about the whole of the gifts of the living for church purposes. The dying often give largely under the manipulations of the priests.

I suppose it may be truthfully added, that no nation is more suspected of habitual dishonesty and untruthfulness in financial affairs than the Italians. Mutual distrust is wide-spread and constant, and religionists are as little credited with unselfishness as others. Now, out of all this grows serious difficulty in the way of supporting the ministry, building churches, and providing for all demands of a growing church. At the best, resources are small; a new habit has to be created, and they who must, under God, create it, are sensitive to the suspicion of selfishness, which even ordinary urgency would engender. A miracle of grace only can raise up self-supporting and aggressive churches in this population, which, for two thousand years, has been accustomed to draw tithes from all the world."

It is a fact that both iron and wooden ships can now be built as cheaply and thoroughly in this country as in England or elsewhere. The great trouble with our shipping interests, says a leading merchant, is the extravagant manner in which American vessels are run. Foreigners can take American vessels and run them at a good profit. So far as ship-building is concerned the ship-yards on the coast of New England, at least, are busy, and Boston ship-builders are prepared to-day to contract for first-class steamers or sailing vessels at prices as low as those of foreign builders.

In a chamber of the Turkish Parliament there are Mohammedans, Greek Unitarians, Bulgarian Sectarians, Roman Catholics, Armenian Unitarians, Chaldean and Syrac Sectarians, Jews, Protestants, Maronites and Druses. Among the deputies three days per week are sacred as Sabbath,—Friday by the Mohammedans, Saturday by the Jews, and Sunday by the others.

Tennessee Letter.

NASHVILLE, June 19.

By request of the Presiding Elder, we went to Gallatin, Tennessee, to hold the Third Quarterly Conference of that station, which had been fixed for the 16th and 17th of this month. On our arrival we found that all things were ready. The first service was held Saturday, at 3 p. m., by Bro. Johnson, a local preacher, and who is also engaged in teaching. At 8 p. m., the Conference session was held. The reports on the whole, were encouraging, and evidenced prosperity. No delay was experienced in the transaction of business, and the utmost harmony prevailed. Sunday morning opened with a thick mist overspreading the sky, which continued until mid-day, when the bright face of the sun became visible; the atmosphere was very heavy and the heat intense. At 9 a. m., we met the Sunday School, one hundred and forty-six in number. Bro. Rodie is Superintendent, and is aided by an efficient corps of officers and teachers. They are well supplied with Sunday-school requisites. The recitations proved satisfactory, and the singing, under the direction of Bro. Davis, was excellent. At 11 a. m., we enjoyed sweet communion in Love Feast. At 3 p. m., the Sacrament was administered to a large number of communicants, and at night, the usual services were held. Collection during the day, $25 70. The condition of the members at this place is far above that of any other in the Conference. The active membership is about two hundred, fully one-half of whom own homes. This is gratifying, but our appreciation of their industry was lessened, when we beheld the miserable building in which they worship. It is an eye-sore and a disgrace. This we very earnestly told them, and urged them to build; can do so if they will. A gentleman with whom we dined, Mr. Randolph, informed us that he had offered to contribute $250 for that purpose, and he is abundantly able to do so as he is worth at least $10,000. The pastor, Rev. E. Provine, is held in high esteem among them, and has done a good work thus far. There is one thing, however, which many of our brethren fail to recognize. The importance of enforcing the Discipline. Our societies stand greatly in need of regulation. Brethren, the calm, but firm administration of all the provisions of the Discipline, is essential to the health and growth of our work. Learn to govern as well as preach. The people are very hospitable, and know how to entertain strangers. Only a new building, and the society at Gallatin will take the field. Build, brethren, build! Quite a number read the SOUTHWESTERN, and regard it as an excellent paper.

C. S. SMITH.

Murfreesboro, Tennessee, District Conference.

The next session will be held at Lebanon, Tenn., commencing Wednesday, August 22d 1877. Rev. S. J. Harris will preach the introductory sermon, the evening before at 8 o'clock p. m.

PROGRAMME.

C. Pickett, Four years of itinerant work on the Marlreesboro District.

J. Bradon, D. D., Relation of education to the success of the pulpit.

T. Ward, Scriptural ground of justification.

H. Robinson, Doctrine of election,—I. Tim. 2: 4.

W. Lillard, the Gospel invitation,—Matt. 11: 28—30.

J. Pickett, Christian perfection,—Heb. 6: 1.

H. Bowers, Origin and design of sacrifices,—Watson's Institutes.

O. Green, Exposition of the 1st Psalm.

A. Martin, Exegesis of Heb. 4: 6.

B. Turner, Local Preachers, and their course of study.

B. James, Pastoral work,—Acts. 20: 19, 20.

H. Stevonson, Relation of repentance to salvation,—Watson's Institutes.

P. Martin, Origin and history of infant baptism,—Hibbard.

J. G. Thompson, Duty of pastors to the benevolent enterprises of the Church.

J. Seay, Christian Benevolence.

W. Leowood, Ministerial Deportment.

E. Provine, What is the design of the Sunday-school?

W. Bryant, Mode of Baptism,—Hibbard.

L. Chapman, Ministry of John the Baptist.

G. Blair, Necessity for a more thorough Bible study.

P. Gregg, Ministerial preparation,—Discipline of the M. E. Church.

C. S. Smith, Progress of our work toward a basis of self-support.

M. Williams, Reasons for a wider circulation of our Church literature.

W. Patterson, Does the bible enjoin total abstinence from intoxicating liquors?

M. C. Young, The mental faculties and method of discipline,—Upham's Mental Philosophy.

D. W. Hays, What is Methodism?—Steven's History of Methodism.

A. H. Phillips, How to conduct religious worship.

Local preachers and exhorters are requested to select their own subjects. No member of the Conference should absent himself or herself from the session unless unavoidably detained at home. Those required to make reports should have them carefully written out in advance. A cordial invitation is extended to our resident Bishops, editors and Sunday-school agents.

D. W. HAYS, Sec.

Withdrawal of the Spirit.

BY REV. C. HUNT.

In the days of the ante-diluvian world when man had corrupted his way, and had abandoned all goodness—when he had cast off all restraint and had grieved, insulted, despised and rejected the Holy Spirit, when he had thus ripened for destruction, it was then that the Lord said, "My Spirit shall not always strive with man." Then the ark was built, the Spirit was withdrawn—the world was drowned.

It was so with the Israelities in the wilderness. They rebelled against God and grieved His Holy Spirit. He strove with them for forty long years, till at last he swore in his wrath that they should not enter into His rest. As the physician who called to visit a patient, sinking under an inveterate disease, prescribes and administers, and waits, and strives, and continues his visitations until, finding him indifferent to his own health, refusing both medicine and advice and choosing death rather than life, gives him over a candidate for death, so it is not until the sinner has hardened his heart, resisted grace, trampled mercy, and made his case hopeless, that God, gives him up and says, "My Spirit shall no more strive."

Brother, sister, friend! have you ever felt the strivings of the good Spirit? Have you never felt the inward monitor pointing out your wrongs and warning you of the consequences? By day, by night, at home, abroad, everywhere, and all through your life, He follows you with the cry, "My son, give me thine heart. Turn ye from your evil ways, for why will ye die." But He "shall not always strive," therefore yield to Him to-day.

The most fearful thing that can happen to man is the withdrawal of the Holy Spirit, for then his course toward ruin is rapid and irretrievable, and the things which tend to his destruction make haste. It was dread of this that extorted from David the prayer: "Take not thy Holy Spirit from me." Does he strive with you to-day? If you hear His voice harden not your heart. Grieve him not, for (Celestial Dove!) He may wing His flight, and God may say concerning you: "My Spirit shall no more strive. He is joined to his idols, let Him alone." Open your heart to Him. Do it now. Fall down on your knees and cry,—

"Stay, Thou insulted Spirit stay.
Though I have done thee such despite;
Nor cast a sinner quite away,
Nor take thine everlasting flight!"

Distinguished Drunkards.

The Hartford Times publishes a suggestive letter, headed "Distinguished Drunkards," from its Washington correspondent "Mac," who obtained the material for it during a ramble through the Washington poor-house. One of the first men he met there had been at one time Attorney General of Virginia. In his office a number of now distinguished lawyers were students and they owe much to his advice. His father had been Attorney General of the United States and left his son wealth. But he drank, and sacrificed distinction, fortune, and everything to his love for drink. Another distinguished pauper was an ex-judge of the Supreme Court of California, and had been esteemed one of the most eloquent men of his time. He came to Washington expecting to get an office, was disappointed, took to drink and drank himself out of pocket, mind and friends, and into the poor-house. In his company the correspondent found a once wealthy newspaper editor and proprietor of New York, a man of great ability and political influence. This man also sunk all he possessed in whisky, and has been for three years in the almshouse. Sometimes his friends take him out, but, says the correspondent, "he drinks so much that he lies about the streets and is returned by the police." A fourth pauper had been only a few years ago a political power, special agent of the Post Office Department, and owner of much property in Washington and Arkansas. At one time he was a United States detective, but while drunk he "gave away" the details of a case that would have resulted in the capture of two or three hundred thousand dollars in counterfeit money, presses, plates, etc. For this he was retired. When sober he was capable of doing remarkable work. In fact, fortune and fame were his if he had not allowed the taste for liquor to grow on him. In another branch of the institution the correspondent found an ex-Attorney General of North Carolina. He made many friends, drank much whisky, neglected his business and everything else, and drifted to the poor-house. Says the correspondent: "The principal reason for his being put where he now is, is that he stole a friend's vest and sold it for whisky." To such depths of degradation will whisky bring the strongest and ablest of us. A man who was Stephen A. Douglas' intimate friend, and who used to speak from the same platforms with him, is also a Washington pauper. When fortune smiled on him he used liquor as a relish, and when her smiles turned to frowns, he took it as an antidote for sorrow. It brought him temporary relief and permanent ruin. Coming into the almshouse in the "Black Marin," as the correspondent left it, was an old, white-haired man, "who was at one time one of the leading men of the Michigan bar. He is the man who backed Zach Chandler, and made him, politically speaking, what he is to-day." And this man of great legal ability, political influence sufficient to make and unmake men, and much wealth, is now a pauper. Why? Because he allowed whisky to obtain the mastery over him, as did all the others herein referred to. Do not you, young man, find this record very suggestive?

The Two Bills—A Fable.

Two bills were waiting in the bank for their turn to go out into the world. One was a little bill, only one dollar; the other was a big bill, a thousand dollar bill.

While lying there side by side, they fell a-talking about their usefulness. The dollar bill murmured out—

"Ah, if I were as big as you, what good I would do! I could move in such high places, and people would be so careful of me wherever I should go! Everybody would admire me, and want to take me home with them; but, small as I am, what good can I do? Nobody cares much for me. I am too little to be of any use."

"Ah, yes! that is so," said the thousand dollar bill; and it haughtily gathered up its well-trimmed edges that were lying next the little bill, in conscious superiority. "That is so," it repeated. "If you were as great as I am, a thousand times bigger than you are, then you might hope to do some good in the world." And its face smiled a wrinkle of contempt for the little dollar bill.

Just then the cashier comes, takes the little, murmuring bill, and kindly gives it to a poor widow.

"God bless you!" she cries, as with a smiling face she receives it. "My dear hungry children can now have some bread."

A thrill of joy ran through the little bill as it was folded up in the widow's hand; and it whispered, "I may do some good, if I am small." And when it saw the bright faces of her fatherless children, it was very glad that it could do a little good.

Then the little dollar bill began its journey of usefulness. It went first to the baker's for bread, then to the miller's, then to the farmer's, then to the laborer's, then to the doctor's, then to the minister's; and wherever it went, it gave pleasure, adding something to their comfort and joy.

At last, after a long, long pilgrimage of usefulness among every sort of people, it came back to the bank again, crumpled, defaced, ragged, softened, by its daily use. Seeing the thousand dollar bill lying there, with scarcely a wrinkle or finger-mark upon it, it exclaims:

"Pray, sir, and what has been your mission of usefulness?"

The big bill sadly replies: "I have been from safe to safe among the rich where few could see me, and they were afraid to let me go out far, lest I should be lost. Few indeed are they whom I have made happy by my mission." The little dollar bill said: "It is better to be small, and go among the multitudes doing good, than to be so great as to be imprisoned in the safes of the few."

MORAL.—The doing well of little every-day duties makes one the most useful and happy.—Well Spring.

In the Bank of England there is a curious machine, into which sovereigns are poured, like grain in a mill. As they pass on one by one, all that are light weight are thrown to one side, those of full weight to another. So that the distinction is made with unerring certainty. So will it be on the last day. No sin will pass the great judge undetected. He knows the secrets of all hearts. Whatever has lain undiscovered by men will stand forth in naked reality then.

Hill county, Texas, will make an average of over twenty bushels of wheat to the acre.

General News Items.

The State Grange of Texas has $13,000 in its treasury.

Mason county, Texas, has received this season, upon cattle and wool alone, over $100,000.

A recent census of Nashville gives that city a population of 17,503 whites, and 9,582 colored.

Gov. Cullom, of Illinois, proposes to publish all petitions and the names of petitioners for the pardon of criminals.

A set of thieves in Mexico have dogs trained to steal handkerchiefs in the cathedral and other churches from the kneeling worshipers.

The highest price yet reached for wool in the Texas market was paid in San Antonio. The clip weighed 15,000 pounds and brought 27c.

Only fifteen years ago China held the monopoly of tea production; now India is proving a formidable rival. From 1,300,000 pounds in 1861 the export from Calcutta advanced to 25,000,000 pounds in 1876.

The gross yield of mining in the States and Territories west of the Missouri River, during the year 1876 is constituted as follows: Gold, $44,328,501; silver, $41,506,672; lead and copper, $5,040,000. Total, $90,875,183.

The London customs officers seized twenty-seven gills of a peculiar fluid recently, and on examination found it to be nicotine, the product of 2,500 pounds of tobacco sweepings, mixed with alcohol, to be used in transforming cabbage leaves into the finest Havana cigars.

The British House of Lords has adopted, despite the oppposition of the government, the amendment to the Burial bill proposed by the Archbishop of Canterbury permitting the reading of other services than that of the Church of England in the church-yard.

A car load of looms from Lewiston, Me., for the Mississippi Mills at Wesson just reached them over the Jackson Railroad. The shipment was in a car belonging to the Grand Trunk Railroad, and came through by way of Canada to Wesson without transfer of freight.

Mr. Murphy invited the wholesale liquor dealers in Philadelphia to meet him and "reason together" concerning their destructive traffic. About 300 with their families were present. The first who signed the pledge that night was one of the dealers. Over 50,000 persons have signed the pledge in Philadelphia since Mr. Murphy began his work there.

Our Public Men.

President.—Rutheford B. Hayes, of Ohio.

Vice-President—William A. Wheeler, of New York.

The Cabinet.—Secretary of State, William M. Evarts, of New York; Secretary of the Treasury, John Sherman, of Ohio; Secretary of War, George W. McCrary, of Iowa; Secretary of the Navy, Richard Thompson, of Indiana; Secretary of the Interior, Carl Schurz, of Missouri; Post-Master General, D. M. Key, of Tennessee; Attorney-General, Charles Devens, of Massachusetts.

Principal Foreign Ministers.—Austria: (Vacant; Representative Kasson appointed but not confirmed.) Brazil: James R. Partridge. Chili: Cornelius A. Logan. China: George F. Seward. France: Elihu B. Washburne. Germany: J. C. Bancroft Davis. Great Britian: Edwards Pierrepont. Italy: George P. Marsh. Japan: John A. Bingham. Mexico: John W. Foster. Peru: Richard Gibbs. Russia: George H. Boker. Spain: (Vacant: James Russell Lowell appointed but not confirmed.) Turkey: Horace Maynard.

Governors of States.—Alabama: George S. Housten. Arkansas: William R. Miller. California: William Irwin. Colorado: John L. Routt. Connecticut: Richard D. Hubbard. Delaware: John P. Cochran. Florida: George F. Drew. Georgia: Alfred L. Colquitt. Illinois: Shelby M. Cullom. Indiana: James D. Williams. Iowa: Samuel J. Kirwood. Kansas: George T. Anthony. Kentucky: James B. McCreary. Louisiana: Francis T. Nicholls. Maine: Selden Conner. Maryland: John Lee Carroll. Massachusetts: Alexander H. Rice. Michigan: Charles M. Crosswell. Minnesota: John N. Pillsbury. Mississippi: John M. Stone. Missouri: John S. Phelps. Nebraska: Silas Garber. Nevada: L. R. Bradley. New Hampshire: Person C. Cheney. New Jersey: Joseph D. Bedle. New York: Lucius Robinson. North Carolina: Zebulon B. Vance. Ohio: —Young. Oregon: Lafayette F. Grover. Pennsylvania: John F. Hartranft. Rhode Island: Henry Lippitt. South Carolina: Wade Hampton. Tennessee: James D. Porter. Texas: Richard Coke. Vermont: Horace Fairbanks. Virginia: James L. Kemper. West Virginia: Henry M. Matthews. Wisconsin: Harrison Ludington.

SOUTHWESTERN
Christian Advocate.
39 Natchez St., New Orleans.
J. C. HARTZELL, B. D., EDITOR.

THURSDAY, JUNE 28, 1877.

[illegible] SUBSCRIBERS.

We appeal to all our agents to [illegible] for six month subscribers. One dollar pays for the [illegible] for six months. The Southwestern, its friends say, grows better and better. The people [illegible] it and want it. Let there [illegible] appeal from every pulpit in the Southwest before July [illegible] But [illegible] Now brethren [illegible] do his duty."

NELSON & PHILLIPS,
Lock Box "B," New Orleans.

In the July August number of the North American Review Bishop Haven will commence a [illegible] articles entitled "America [illegible]" based upon observations [illegible] him during his recent [illegible] to Liberia in connection with [illegible] of the Methodist Episcopal [illegible]

[illegible] oration delivered at Chal[illegible] Cemetery by Rev. [illegible] is being printed in [illegible] form by the Grand Army [illegible] view to giving it a [illegible] circulation and permanency. [illegible] read it, as the sen[illegible] are on the win[illegible]

[illegible] Godman is in Philadel[illegible] Orleans troupe of [illegible] has opened well [illegible] to accomplish [illegible] to do. If the [illegible] as we sincerely [illegible] it will, the [illegible] in the South [illegible] a very large [illegible]

[illegible]

Where Are We Drifting?

It must be apparent to even the most casual observer, that we are much given to materialism; this is preeminently an age of dollars and cents. There is every where a strong current setting in toward the almost exclusive study of the sciences. In our higher institutions of learning the languages have scarcely the hold upon the average student which they once had. The scientific course in our colleges is becoming the popular course. Many fathers would rather have their sons learn how to analyze chemical compounds, than to be able to conjugate Greek and Latin verbs, for chemistry can be utilized in a way that Greek and Latin can not. Crucibles and retorts are in some sense the equivalent of coin, while most young men learn declensions and conjugations only to forget them again. People care very little for theories if by practice they can make fortunes. The fortune is the thing to seek after. Many a physician doses his patent out of his materia medica even against the dictates of his better judgment, but then the patent will have medicine while of course the doctor desires the fee, and consequently both are pleased even if the patient would be better off without the doctoring.

Mankind are gaining the mastery over these world-forces. It is indeed but a few years since steam began to propel the machine, and since the galvanic battery began to send its electrical throbs along the dull wire, thus binding all the world into a brotherhood by a bond of intelligence. Mining has developed riches which have lain concealed in the earth's deep strata since Creation's morning. Mechanism has made it possible for men to gather crops of which that much-praised class, the "fathers," never even dreamed.

To become rich is with most people a perfect passion. "How can I soonest and in the easiest way make a fortune?" is the one great question which nearly all men are asking at the present time. The reader will perceive our meaning when we state that this is a material, a scientific age, with most of us an age of facts rather than philosophies. In our eager chase after principles which can be utilized in our industries and thus help on our fortunes, we care little for mere theories; and yet back of all these practical results there are theories and theorists. Away yonder in an obscure corner of the earth some brain is throbbing over a problem which when solved will set the world astir. It is brain power after all which keeps the world in motion just as the spring in the watch away out of sight moves the hands upon the dial plate. Let the spring break and the hands will stop. So let these Franklins, Fultons, Morses and Bacons cease their brain striving and soon the world would stagnate.

We need facts of science, principles which we can utilize in our shops and on our farms, but we must have theories and philosophy. The danger to our civilization is that this devotion to physical industry will end in universal grossness, that we shall come to despise every pursuit that does not yield us a real money profit. The old catechism of our childhood contained the solemn question. "What is the chief end of man?" and the answer was "To glorify God and enjoy him forever!" Ask that question now and the answer is: To get ten per cent for his money. Money is good, but there is something far better.

Bay View.

This is a new religious watering place in the extreme northern portion of Lower Michigan. It was [illegible] about two years ago, and [illegible] fair to rival the older camp [illegible] of the East in time. The [illegible] is said to be very healthy; [illegible] by boat or rail easy, and [illegible] comparatively cheap. [illegible] Congress will be [illegible] the annual [illegible] the 1st of Au[illegible] direction of [illegible] Michigan [illegible] York [illegible]

Ex-President Grant.

The English people have often had the opportunity of expressing their appreciation of the American character as our great statesmen have visited them, but never before has there been such a perfect burst of applause and such profuse displays in honor of any American. President Grant is the one on whose head all this honor appropriately falls. In the first place, he is a renowned military chieftain—he won on the field a world-wide fame. He came up from comparative obscurity to a position in the front rank of the world's army of great men. Let men say what they will of him, these are now simple facts of history, and facts, like figures, are stubborn things. These facts cannot be rubbed out with a damp sponge. In war he proved himself to be the equal of Marlborough or the great Iron Duke, whom England almost worships, and that alone would make the English people admire him if he had no other record. Then, again, he has filled the highest place in the gift of forty millions of people for eight years. He came to the political platform from the camp of the soldier, but he came without the sword or the plume, and though he has made some mistakes, being human, he has guided the Ship of State through perilous times with the steady hand of a master, and now lays off the insignia of official dignity and steps into private life with the good will of nearly all the people in his favor. He seemed to be the child of destiny. And now it can be safely said that few men could have done so well in his place, either as a military commander or President of the great Republic. So, we say, let the English people do their best. Let them shout, and orate—he is the hero of the hour, and the man of the centuries as well, whose fame will never die. It will not be "wasting sweetness on the desert air" by any means to do just what our British cousins are doing. Besides, in all this the English people are paying a compliment to the whole American nation. In General Grant every American boy is represented. Every American mother may feel a just pride in all this. Other sons in the future are to come to the front, and whose son it may be time only can tell. But there is a boy somewhere, to-day, who will be President after a while. From this day the great American Republic and the great English Monarchy will be knit together in closer bonds. We turned out in holiday dress a few years ago and gave the youthful Prince of Wales a right royal reception, and England can now return the compliment, and right well is she doing it. We take off our hat and send our acknowledging bow over the wide Atlantic as we think all this means as Americans through our representative, as our ovations to the young Prince meant as well our love of Queen Victoria and the English people. Treat our President well, dear friends, he will appreciate it and will show you what kind of stuff American royalty is composed of. We will send over some more by and by.

Efficiency.

We must ever bear in mind that the Methodist Episcopal Church is organized for aggressive work. Each minister is a soldier armed for war. He must not seek for personal ease and comfort, but for hard duty. He has nothing to do but to obey marching orders. When Christ says go, he must move out at once to battle.

The mission of Methodism is to cover the earth with its organization—to build its forts at all points, to station its veteran warriors wherever the enemy lifts his face. There can be no restriction; "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature" is the command.

It is no disgrace for the soldier to be changed about here and there as the Commander-in-chief shall direct; this is an "army regulation" and a necessity. The soldier must go where he is most needed, not where it is most pleasant for him to be. Our itineracy is an "arm of the service" one in which we sacrifice enjoyment to efficiency. A minister moves his family about because he loves to move? Methodist preachers are men and their wives are women. They love their homes as much as other people love theirs. They do not move about from personal choice. They are not gypsey bands who go prowling through the country as a matter of taste. They submit to this one feature of the system as a man submits to any other mere inconvenience or hardship. How can I be most efficient? is the question he asks himself. Where is there a more sublime heroism than in the Church where every year ten thousand men say to the Bishops, send us out into the field, we will work wherever we are placed. These men whom we call bishops or superintendents, do more than merely say where ten thousand men shall preach, they say also where ten thousand wives shall live, and where thirty thousand or more children shall attend school, where all these shall find their daily companions, and where they shall often find their graves; all this because it adds to the efficiency of the preacher. To the itineraicy more than to any other one thing does our Church owe its great success in winning souls to Christ.

Above The Surface.

The world makes a great mistake when it judges of any person, or class of persons, by the outside. Man looks on the exterior, God looks at the heart. One person judges of you by the clothes you wear. If you are genteelly dressed, no matter whether the tailor and seamstress are paid or not, you are considered respectable, and your smiles and society are courted. Another will judge of you according to your bank book. If a man or family has abundance of money, all blemishes of intellect or character sink out of sight at once in the estimation of these superficial judges. Others look to official positions and titles, as if these alone made the man or woman. The curse of the world is in this outside glitter and show which attract the eye, just as if diamonds, and laces, and fine carriages made or could make the man.

Prodigality, licentiousness, intemperance, in a word, vice in all its forms, goes robed in costliest fabrics, often rolls in splendid carriages with liveried drivers not unfrequently, while virtue is poor and obscure and despised. But in God's eye the scene is changed. He looks at the inside, not at the outside; at the heart and soul, not at the garments. Many a poor lowly saint is "Little and unknown, Loved and prized of God alone."

They shall shine in the kingdom as stars of the first magnitude forever and ever, while the others shall rot in obscurity and sink into darkness eternal.

In this we do not wish to be misunderstood as uttering one word against decency and propriety in dress and in all that makes up life, nor do we say ought against riches, properly acquired, only that these are not the proper standards of manhood and womanhood. Look not at the outer appearance, but at the man.

Under the Surface.

There are wonderful processes going on all the time around us, above us, beneath us and within us, which we do not see. In the soil at our feet there are life giving powers, the roots of plant and tree are at work there creating out of the elements trunk, branch and fruit, but the process is out of sight, under the surface. Look where we will, we see the things which come from God's workshop. So in life, the articles which we prize because of their beauty and their utility, have a history away back in the shops out of our sight where might have been seen the rough iron or the unplaned and unpainted wood. Take then a beautiful life, beautiful for scholarship, and away back of this polish and finish which we see and feel, there have been the humdrum of school life, the drill, the hard study of the years, the puzzled brain, the mid-night lamp. We see the man or the woman thus beautifully finished, but the work under the surface we did not see. Not less is this idea apparent in the christian life. There are many lovely christians in the world; we see them, admire them and love them, because of their moral beauty and perfection, and we often wish we were like them. Well they too have undergone hard processes under the surface; they have had hard blows, they have put forth great struggles, they have been subdued with sorrows and made strong by temptations which they have overcome through the grace of God.

There is such a process going on in every one's life; it is the way God developes and ripens the soul. "No chastisement for the present seemeth to be joyous, but grievous; nevertheless afterward it yieldeth the peaceable fruits of righteousness." "Before I was afflicted I went astray," wrote David. It seems an easy thing to do, as one looks at the artistic performer on the organ or piano, but then it took years of hard drill to be able to produce that result. "Labor enriches, work pays, patient toil wins. Even in the future glory of the redeemed souls of mankind, the work done here under the surface in this world of preparation will have great influence. As the plow share grows bright under the sod, so we shall grow bright in the battles and frictions of life. "To him that overcometh will I give to sit with me on my throne."

Senator Ferry.

Senator Ferry of Michigan recently acting Vice-President of the United States has been very ill from congestion of the brain. At last accounts he was improving rapidly and his friends were sanguine of his speedy recovery. Mr. Ferry is a man of the most sterling christian virtues, a warm advocate of the temperance reform, and a statesman much needed in these times of political corruption.

Zion's Herald, in noticing the address of Rev. C. S. Smith, delivered at Central Tenn. College, and which was published in our issue of June 7th, says:

It is a very able and thoughtful discourse, marked both by its vigor and its eloquence. It is the address of a cultivated and intelligent colored minister to his brethren, setting forth, as only one in personal sympathy with them, and having a familiar knowledge of their condition and wants could, the present opportunities before his brethren, and the demands upon them in order to adequately meet their responsibilities and obligations. He inculcates diligence, careful self-education, the necessity of a solemn purpose in life, unyielding perseverance, a broad charity, and a self-sacrificing support of the educational institutions which promise so much for themselves and their children. It ought to be delivered before all the Conferences of our brethren of color, and wherever a goodly company can be gathered together. From these audiences no white man should be excluded, for its lessons are equally as valuable, impressive and practical for the man of English blood as for his African brother. Like a national almanac it is "calculated" for every latitude and each meridian.

Our Southern Methodism.

Rev. Plasker Davis, Magnolia, La., reports seven recent accessions, and that at the recent quarterly services a deep spiritual interest was manifest in his congregation.

Rev. D. Moore, Brooksville, Miss. says: "We have had a meeting in progress for past two weeks. So far there have been sixteen accessions to the church. A deep spiritual interest pervades both congregation and Sunday-school."

Rev. Jackson Johnson, Goliad, Texas, writes: "We had twelve recent accessions to our church, and in spiritual matters my people appear to be making encouraging progress. Some needed repairs have been made too upon our church building, which adds much to its appearance and attractiveness."

Rev. J. B. Smith, Edwards Circuit, Miss., says: "At a recent protracted meeting, at Clinton, there were twenty-six conversions and forty-seven accessions to the church. We have on the work three Sunday-schools, with two hundred and five scholars, all doing well."

Rev. C. Young, Laling, Texas, sends a list of subscribers and adds: "We have held special services during the past week, and the result has been three conversions. We are praying that we may be blessed with a general revival."

Rev. Thomas Ward, Murfreesboro Circuit, Tenn., writes: "We have just closed a protracted meeting in which seven persons professed faith in Christ, and thirteen united with the church; six adults and eleven children were baptized. A great religious awakening manifests itself among the people here."

Rev. W. B. Pullman, Rose Hill, Texas, says: "We feel that the Lord is blessing us in our work. At a meeting just closed there were ten accessions to the church. A deep interest is taken in our Sunday-school. Recently one of our scholars, Alice Lee, recited at one time two hundred and thirty-six verses of Scripture which she had memorized."

Rev. Wm. Wesley, Cold Springs, Texas, writes: "Our quarterly services were held by Presiding Elder Kingston; his age does not seem to affect him, and he is doing vigorously and successfully the work of the Lord entrusted to his hands. We received during past quarter eight persons into full connection and forty-eight on probation. There were twelve baptisms. We have one new church near completion, and we would not have been able to build it had we not been aided by the Church Extension Society. How important is that society in the establishment of Methodism in new localities! We hope that none of our preachers will fail to take the Church Extension collection."

Religous News.

The annual income of the Church of England is $36,000,000. The church has 17,000 religious edifices, including 30 cathedrals, 10,000 glebe houses, 31 Episcopal palaces, and 1,000,000 acres of land, much of it in good condition for tillage.

M. Lanelaye, the eminent Belgian, has announced his withdrawal from the Roman Catholic church. He says that many Belgians have become disaffected toward Romanism, and are ready to follow him into the Protestant fold.

Rev. Dr. Gregg, Vicar of East Harborne, has withdrawn from the Church of England, on account of dissatisfaction with the ritualistic developments. He has been elected Bishop of England by the General Council of the Reformed Episcopal Church.

At the anniversary of the Turkish Missions and Society, in London, it was stated that twenty years ago there was not one Protestant who dared avow himself as such in the Ottoman Empire. Now there are 150 missionaries in the field, 50 native pastors, 70 native churches, 60 stations, with about 20,000 enrolled Protestants. There are also 17 theological boarding-schools and 234 common schools. The Society had raised $37,000, of which $30,000 had been disposed of in sending out and supporting mission.

Rev. John Nelson, of Drogheda, Ireland, died on the 28th ult., in his ninety-fourth year. He was baptized by the Rev. John Wesley, when on his last visit to Ireland, and has been sixty-eight years in the ministry of the Methodist Church. He was the oldest Wesleyan minister in Ireland, having entered the ministry in the year 1809. In his earlier years he was associated with such men as Gideon Ouseley, William Reilly, Matthew Lanktree and others. He afterward filled some of the highest and most responsible positions in the Church, and was greatly beloved.

General News Items.

Dom Pedro has reached London, enroute for home.

Rev. John S. C. Abbott, the historian, died at Fairhaven, aged 71 years.

Senator Conkling is off for Europe, where he expects to remain two months.

The new Constitution of Georgia has been adopted by a majority of ten thousand.

Cincinnati is making arrangements for a grand celebration on the Fourth of July.

The Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce has voted to send at once $2,000 to the sufferers at Mt. Carmel, Ill.

Turkey has paid this country $3,000,000 in cash for arms during the past year.

A society has been formed in Cuba to promote Chinese immigration on a large scale.

Private information from Paris is to the effect that the great exposition will necessarily be postponed, owing to the Eastern war and the political crisis at home.

There are now published in the United States 8,129 newspapers, in England and Ireland 2,500, in France 1,000, and in Germany 800.

The tide of Chinese immigration has set in again. Over 3000 Chinamen landed at San Francisco during May, and more are coming.

A Russian loan of fifteen million dollars offered and refused in London, has been taken by a syndicate in Paris and Berlin at very favorable rates.

A society has been formed in Portland, for the purpose of starting a colony in Texas. The State offers 150 acres to each emigrant, and it is proposed to take up a large tract in this way and build a village.

The common council of Chicago has prohibited the sale of fireworks within the city, imposing a penalty of not less than $25 nor more than $100 for every violation.

The captain of the bark Benjamin Dickerman, recently arrived at Boston from the West Indies had arranged a false hold under his cabin, and there the Custom-house officers found $4,000 worth of bay rum and bay oil secreted.

Official reports show that the area planted in cotton has increased four per centum, or twelve million acres, this year over 1876. The crop is in good average condition.

St. Louis has abolished annual school exhibitions altogether, substituting written examinations. It is a good precedent; public examinations are not thorough tests of proficiency, and are the occasions of much useless expense and worry.

It is reported that President Hayes and his cabinet are considering the necessity of a new treaty with Great Britain, which shall place the two countries upon a better understanding than now prevails respecting the extradition of criminals.

Sitting Bull is now between Wood Mountains and Fort Walsh, in the British possessions, with three hundred and fifty lodges. He says that he intends to settle quietly on Canadian territory. He shows many trophies, including arms wagons and the complete outfit of the Custer party. He justifies his warfare on the ground of the violation of the treaty respecting the Black Hills.

The Supreme Court of Mississippi has decided that Jefferson Davis, by a residence of thirty years, and other acts of ownership, acquired the title to the plantation known as "Brierfield," notwithstanding Jos. E. Davis, his brother, never conveyed to him the title thereof; that when the latter sold his plantation he became indebted to the former in the amount of $70,000, the price thereof.

Washington Cemetery, at Hagerstown, Maryland, where the Confederate dead, killed in the battles of Antietam and South Mountain, are interred, was formally dedicated June 12th, with appropriate memorial ceremonies, and the graves strewn with flowers. An oration was delivered by Gen. Fitzhugh Lee. About 4,000 persons were present. A handsome marble monument adorns the grounds, in which about 2,500 Confederate dead are buried.

President MacMahon has dissolved the French Chamber of Deputies, which means that he will not consent to the rule of the majority in law-making power of the nation, and that he has given himself to the Jesuit minority, and will ask the people of France to sustain him by electing to the Chamber a new set of Deputies who will aid him in arresting the spread of republicanism and in establishing the government upon a monarchial basis. Gambetta made the closing speech in the Assembly. He declared that the decision of the people would give the Republican party four hundred Deputies instead of the three hundred they now have. He referred to Marshal MacMahon as already fallen from power, and spoke of M. Thiers, "an illustrious old man," as his successor.

Bishop Wiley's Episcopal Tour.

Bishop Wiley will leave Cincinnati for his visitation to China and Japan about the twentieth of July, taking in his course westward the Colorado Conference at Denver, August 1st; the Utah Conference at Salt Lake City, August 10th, and the Southern California Conference at Santa Barbara, August 17th. He will leave San Francisco by the first of September steamer, and will proceed direct to Shanghia, China. He hopes to reach Peking by the 10th of October, and return to Kiukiang by the 6th of November, and will probably reach Foochow about the 21st of November, where he will organize the Foochow Annual Conference. The Bishop desires to spend as much time as possible in this important and growing mission, and possibly may not reach Japan till in January. The trip will probably occupy eight months, and the dates given above may have to be varied considerably in the actual working out.—West. Ad.

A great fire occurred in the city of St. John, New Brunswick, on the 21st inst. Fully one half of the city was destroyed. The loss is reported at $20,000,000.

Schools of Nashville, Tenn.

That Nashville is the Athens of the South is conceded. On its outskirts to the North-west is the Fisk University, with fine building and convenient and beautiful arrangements. It is under the religious control of the Congregationalists, and is doing a good work, educating the representatives of all denominations, although its name is in honor of that active, energetic Methodist, Gen. C. B. Fisk, who is now in England in the interest of this school. About a mile and a half South-east of Fisk University is the substantial building of the Nashville Institute. It is admirably situated, with beautiful grounds, and of easy access from the city. This institution is under the care of the Baptist Church of the North. The Southern Baptists are favorable to the educational work among the colored people, but the means for its support, its teachers and the management of its work is from the North. The work of this school is mainly theological, and the Church which supports it is already reaping the benefits of its labors in an elevated standard of pulpit ability. Rev. D. W. Phillips, D.D., its President, is an earnest Christian educator of fine ability and Catholic spirit.

In the South-eastern part of the city are the four substantial brick buildings of the Central Tennessee College, beautifully situated in a quiet part of Nashville, two squares from the street railroad, and easy of access from any part of the city. This school is supported by the Freedmen's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and of course is a matter of special interest, as well as the other schools of the Society, to the large membership of our Church throughout the whole South. It has a full college course with preparatory, theological, normal, medical and law schools fully organized. The work of this institution is speaking for itself in hundreds of school-houses, pulpits and other fields of labor widely scattered in nearly every Southern State, and also in several Northern States. To these institutions add [illegible] public city schools, with an [illegible] of a dozen or more teachers [illegible] the reader will get an idea of what Nashville is doing for the [illegible] of the colored people.

[illegible] the whites, there is a first-class system of public free schools, which would be an honor to any city. The Ward Seminary for young [illegible] the Nashville University, [illegible] its Montgomery Bell [illegible] and State N[illegible] and lastly, over[illegible] all with its magnificent buildings, so beautifully adorned [illegible] endowments for [illegible] splendid endowment [illegible] but the largest [illegible] as the result of the [illegible] munificence of [illegible] New York sailor, [illegible] Vanderbilt, [illegible] honor of his [illegible] one million [illegible] Vanderbilt University. [illegible] is fully equipped [illegible]. Its college, [illegible] medical and [illegible] their place [illegible] land. This [illegible] sending out its graduates [illegible] all its departments in [illegible] from year to [illegible] religions [illegible] may send [illegible] shall be [illegible] a wholesome [illegible] culture [illegible] of the entire [illegible] prayer of every [illegible] philanthropist, as well

J. BRADEN.

June 20.

[illegible] Picture Gallery.

[illegible] galleries, [illegible] and [illegible] at the [illegible] But [illegible] no matter how elaborate the picture, it is quickly and perfectly copied.

Now, if material forces can work such wonders, what may not the stronger spiritual power accomplish.

It has been suggested by a friend that at conversion all the past is swept from the canvas, and the negative lines of a Christ-life traced, and that these lines are deepened till the glass through which we see darkly is removed, and we see Jesus face to face, and are like Him.

Any way, it is easy to believe that the Creator of all these natural wonders about us, can and will give a panorama of the earth life.

Reader, what will be the treasures of your picture gallery? Will the heavenly canvas reveal your garments bedraggled in the mire of sin, or washed and made white in the blood of the Lamb? Will you be represented as bowing at the shrine of fashion, or at the altar of prayer? Will your hands appear filled with the vanities that minister to pride and selfishness, or busy with ministrations that bring comforts and blessings to others?

Your picture gallery is being filled with pictures that will never grow old, and that will give you sorrow or joy forever.

How careful we are when we sit in the presence of an earthly photographer, that he may represent us to the very best advantage. Shall we not be even more careful as we sit in the King's gallery, where the pictures that are taken are to be as enduring as eternity, that we shall appear true and pure? Careful that our deformities shall be covered with the righteousness of Christ, and that His precious image shall appear in every line?

And then, as the angel of death passed by the blood-besprinkled door-posts of the Israelites, so will the angel of the second death pass by our blood-besprinkled souls.—Christian Woman.

The New Fire Escape.

With the increase of destructive fires throughout the country, destructive to life as well as property, and especially since the terrible scenes of the burning of the Southern Hotel in St. Louis, the subject of convenient and reliable means of escape from burning buildings has attained an importance in the minds of the people second only to that of prevention and protection; so much so that legislative action has been called into requisition to compel hotel keepers, theater and hall lessees and the managers of other public buildings to provide safe means of egress for all who may be in occupation of their buildings on the occasion of fire at all times. It is easier to lay down the law, however, than it is to devise the means of doing the work. A firm in Jackson, Michigan, have invented an apparatus and applied for a patent which is the best, and in fact the only complete mode of quick and safe egress from high buildings that exists. It consists of a cable cord ladder, made of three-eights cable, which has stood a test of two tons tension, with occasional rungs of iron to keep the ladder from sagging together. This ladder is wound up on a twelve-inch drum placed inside the building under the cornice, and is let down either between or in front of the [illegible] through a [illegible] does not [illegible] by [illegible] of a [illegible] the control of the [illegible] room, or of the employ[illegible] of the house, [illegible] time. The lower end is provided with hooks to which a safety basket may be hung, which [illegible] curbing to keep it away from the burning front; to which pipe upon hose can be attached to be raised to any window; and which closes the trap after it when coiled up. An appliance is also attached which rings alarm gongs on the several floors as it descends, and it will no doubt be found to be adequate to all emergencies and safe and reliable in every contingency.

The South American Earthquake.

Full particulars of this disaster have appeared during the past week, and they exhibit it as one of the most frightful convulsions of nature which has appeared in modern [illegible] Peru, [illegible] terminus [illegible] for several [illegible] throw [illegible] building [illegible] accompanied by a recession of the sea, followed by repeated waves, which [illegible] universal [illegible] dollars, loss, [illegible] the [illegible] consummate [illegible] The [illegible] over the waves [illegible] saving [illegible] city. [illegible] far from shore escaped destruction. At Iquique, the earthquake was succeeded by a fire, and this by the advance of the sea. A correspondent of the New York Herald describing the event says: "In order to procure water the two best fire engines were stationed on the beach, and work began. Just then arose the cry, 'the sea! the sea!' and the waves came rushing in in majesty. The engines were carried out with the reflux and the fire continued unopposed—three elements of destruction busy at one moment—fire, water and the earthquake. The affrighted people gave up all attempt at resistance, and left the city to its fate, flying to the neighboring eminences. The fire destroyed a large portion of the town; the earthquake leveled nearly all the rest and the water covered the ruins which it took out in its reflux. The buildings, which occupied four entire squares, were swamped and taken back by the waves. All the wharves are destroyed; the custom house is gone; the nitrate stores have disappeared; the water condensers along the shore ruined, a most irreparable loss for Iquique, as no potable water is found there. Nearly four hundred thousand quintals of nitrate then in the stores at Iquique, and the adjacent ports of Molle and Pisagua were destroyed."

It is estimated that the damage done to Iquique alone will amount to several million dollars. A large number of ships were lost along the coast. How many it is impossible to tell with exactness, as the shocks and the violent disturbance of the sea extended along a section of the South American coast fully eight hundred miles.—Northwestern.

Sunday School.

July 3.—PAUL AT ANTIOCH.
Acts. 13. 26-41.

GOLDEN TEXT.—And we declare unto you glad tidings. Acts 13, 32.

HOME READINGS.

Monday, Acts 13, 26-41; Tuesday, Acts 2. 14-36; Wednesday, Acts 3. 11-26; Thursday, Acts 7. 35-53; Friday, Acts 10. 34-48; Saturday, Acts 17. 19-34; Sunday, Luke 4, 16-32.

(Condensed from Sunday-school Journal)

The chapter before us is one of those that gain much in interest from a knowledge of the external surroundings of the narrative. We watch Paul and Barnabas mounting up the steep defiles of the great Tarus chain that bounds Pamphylia on the north side. We see them breasting the foaming mountain torrents, and climbing the craggy heights. We remember the marauding hordes that lie in wait for the traveler in those regions; and we are not surprised that Mark shrank back, while we appreciate the "journeyings often," the "perils of robbers," the "perils of waters," the "perils in the wilderness," which Paul recalls in writing to the Corinthians years after. (2 Cor. 11. 26.)

Again, we enter the synagogue at Antioch in Pisidia. (Note.—The teacher must carefully distinguish this place from the much greater Antioch in Syria, whence Paul started.) We see how a colony of the Jews of the Dispersion in a remote city worship the God of their fathers. We notice that the synagogue is so built that one end points toward far distant Jerusalem. We see at the end the secret chest containing the Books of the Law, and the much prized "chief seats," (see Matt. 23. 6; Jas. 2. 2, 3;) and the pulpit in the center. We listen to the prayers, read by the "ruler," (such as Jairus,) the people standing, (see Mark 11. 25;) and the Psalms, "the Lord's song sung in a strange land;" and the reading of the appointed "lessons" from the great rules of the Scriptures; and we know the derash, or "word of exhortation," (sermon,) is to follow. Then we observe two men sitting at the lower end as strangers; yet they are Jews, for they wear the tallith, (a vail every jew wore in the synagogue;) and the "rulers" hearing they are from the dear land of their fathers, ask them to take the derash. One of them, a little man, ascends the pulpit and delivers the sermon preserved to us in this chapter.

In the Greek of vers. 17, 18, there are one or two uncommon words, which words are also found in the Septuagint Greek version of Deut. 1. and Isa. 1. Now these two chapters are read as the two "lessons" from "the Law and the Prophets" (see ver. 15) on the same day in the Jewish calendar, which has come down from very early times. Hence it is conjectured that they had actually been read that day in the synagogue, and that the words were used by Paul at the opening of his address in allusion to the "lessons." If so, his introductory remarks would have the effect of "Yes, God has indeed cared for our nation, as you have heard to-day; now I will tell of his greatest gift to us."

The argument of the sermon is in brief as follows. First, he reminds them of God's mercies to the nation down to David's time, vers. 16-22; then of the promised successor to King David, for whom they were all looking, and assures them that this promised king and Savior has come. Vers. 23-26. Do they doubt the Messiahship of Jesus because the rulers of Jerusalem put him to death? He shows that this is the very reason for believing in him, for the rejection was predicted. Vers. 27-29. But if dead, how could he reign? Why, he rose again, and that, too, was predicted of old. Vers. 30-37. Then come the glad tidings. The old question of Job (chap. 9. 2,) "How should man be just with God?" is answered at last. Many of them had tried hard to be "justified" by keeping the law; but had they not failed? Ah, there were "things from which they could not be justified by the law of Moses." But now even from all these things they may be justified; for "through this Man is preached the forgiveness of sins." (Vers. 38. 39.)

The Old Testament.

The Old Testament Scriptures out of date? Not till the nature of things is. I rode once from a noon on the Dead Sea through moonlight on the Mar Saba gorges to Bethlehem in the morning light. I passed through the scenes in which many of David's psalms had their origin, so far as human causes brought them into existence. On horseback I climbed slowly and painfully out of that scorched, ghastly hollow in which the salt lake lies. I found myself, as I ascended passing through a gnarled, smitten volcanic region, and often at the edge or in the depths of ravines deeper than that eloquent shafts yonder on Bunker Hill is high. At a place where, no doubt, David had often searched for his flocks, I found the famous Convent of Mar Saba, clinging to the side of its stupendous ravine; and I lay down there and slept until the same sun rose which David saw. I looked northward from above Mar Saba, and saw Jerusalem above me yet to the north, for I had been ascending from a spot greatly below the level of the Mediterranean. As I drew near Bethlehem, through brown wheat fields, in which a woman called Ruth once gleaned, I opened and read the book which will bear her name yet to thousands of years to come. Johnson, you remember, once read that book in London, and moved a parlorful of people to tears by it, and to curiosity enough to ask who was the author of that beautiful pastoral. In my saddle there in Syria I was moved as Johnson's hearers were in London; but when I opened the psalms, one by one, and looked back over the ravines toward the Dead Sea, and northward toward Jerusalem and upon the hill of Bethlehem, to which all nations, after a gaze of nineteen hundred years in duration, were looking yet and at that season sending pilgrims; when I remembered how that terraced hill of olive gardens had influenced human history as no other spot on the globe has done, and that in God's government of this planet there are no accidents; when I took up the astounding harp of Isaiah and turned through the list of the prophets to find mysterious passage after passage predicting what would come and what has come; and when I thought of those critics under the western sky who would saw asunder the Old Testament and the New, and put into the shade those Scriptures which Goethe calls a unit in themselves, and which are doubly a unit when united with the New Testament, I remembered Him who, on the way to Emmaus, opened the Old Testament Scriptures and with them made men's hearts burn.—Rev. Joseph Cook.

Christianity Triumphant.

I do not respect any proposition merely because it is ancient, or in the mouths of majorities. But I do respect propositions that have seen honest and protracted battle, but not defeat. The test of the soundness of scholarship is that it should contend with scholarship, not once or twice, but century after century, and come out crowned. But the intellectual supremacy of Christianity in the nineteenth century is not a novelty. There are other battle-fields worth visiting by those who walk and meditate, on which Christian trophies stand, more important as marks of the world's agonies and advances, than any that ever Greek erected for victory at Salamis or Marathon. I lean on church history. I go to its battle-fields and lie down on them. They are places of spiritual rest. Gazing on their horizon, I see no narrow prospect, but a breadth of nineteen hundred victorious years. Looking into the sky as I lie there, I hear sometimes the anthem;—"As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, world without end. I obtain glimpses of a heaven opened; and behold a white horse, and he that sits on him is called the Word of God, King of kings and Lord of lords. He is clothed in a vesture dipped in blood; but his eyes are as a flame of fire, and on his head are many crowns."—Rev. Joseph Cook.

Regular Secretion Essential to Health.

The regular secretion and flow of the gastric juices, and of the bile which the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters promotes, are effects which conduce materially to the restoration of health, when the system is disordered. Food is not digested in the dyspeptic stomach because the gastric fluid is deficient, superabundant or vitiated;—the liver becomes congested and the bowels constipated because the supply of bile is inadequate or misdirected. The Bitters rectifies all this, and removes every ill in consequence of non-assimilation and billious irregularity. Furthermore, it stimulates the action of the kidneys, by which impurities are, so to speak, strained from the blood, and any tendency in the urinary organs to grow sluggish and disordered counteracted. Whether it be used as a means of regulating gastric or billious secretion, and relieving the overloaded bowels, or to promote complete, and therefore healthful assimilation, Hostetter's Bitters may be relied upon with confidence to accomplish the end in view.

Preachers' Debts—Suggestive to Church Stewards.

One of the unpleasant occurrences of this world is the occasional failure of a preacher of the Gospel to pay his debts. By the powers that be he is sent to his charge sometimes against his wishes, sometimes against the wishes of the Church. However that may be, as an obedient son in the Gospel he goes to his appointed field of labor. He has been obliged, perhaps, as is often the case, to move a long distance, and so he at no little expense. He has paid out his last dollar, and perhaps this was borrowed for his railroad fare. Sometimes his charge pays it back to him, and sometimes it does not. He calls the official members of his Church together, and they agree upon what they will give him for the year. That allowance is afterwards indorsed by the Quarterly Conference.

The preacher's family and goods come on, and he is in need of the very necessaries of life. He asks the stewards for some money, not because it is due, but as a favor. Sometimes he gets five dollars or more and sometimes he gets nothing. He is among entire strangers, and does not want to run in debt the the first thing; but his family must have something to eat, for, as the writer has witnessed, the little ones cry, "Ma, give me a piece of bread, I'm so hungry."

The preacher goes to the grocer, an entire stranger, and introduces himself as pastor of such a Church, and wants to get something on credit till the quarterly conference. He has reason to expect some money by that time, for men claiming to be Christians have agreed upon his salary for the year, and have intimated that he should have his pay quarterly. Two or three months have passed. Up to this time the pastor has been to the grocery several times, and to the drygoods store once or twice.

The first quarterly conference is held. The preacher gets about one half of his quarterly allowance. He divides his receipts between the grocer and the other man, but has not enough to pay them both in full; so he is a little in debt.

The good man runs his credit to the second quarterly conference; but the Church is a little further back in paying up than before, and so is her pastor. But they are going to bring it all up at the end of the year. He is preaching to a Christian people, and, of course, they will do as they agree, for they are able.

The minister goes to the grocery and to the dry-goods store, and gets a few articles that he must have, and feeling about as blue as though he had been dyed in indigo, says, "Soon as I get some money I will hand it in to you."

The end of the year comes at last. There has been a revival, and souls have been converted and added to the Church. But the preacher has run in debt, and can't pay—because the Church don't pay him.

Which is the dishonest party—the preacher who would pay his debts if he could, or the Church who can pay the preacher and will not?—N. Y. Advocate.

Mr. Moody usually speaks very plainly and right to the point. At a meeting in Chicago, speaking of spurious conversions, he said: "There are not a few round here, who think they have become Christians, but in whose conversion I have very little faith. There is that man who claims to have repented, and he hasn't yet paid his board-bill, when he could have done it. He is defrauding some poor widow, and yet talks of being a disciple of Christ!"

Let us have one day exclusively to study and read the Word of God. If we can't take time during the week we should have Sunday uninterrupted.

DIED.

On the 13th day of May, near Shady Grove Church, Summer county, Miss., David Nowlen, in the 63d year of his age.

He was gifted in an extraordinary degree with those amiable qualities of the heart, and winning manners, which mark the gentleman and the Christian, and won the affection of all who knew him. We shall no more feel his cordial grasp or meet his genial smile, but rejoice to take an humble part in a tribute of respect which we owe to the memory of such a man. He joined the M. E. Church in 1842, After the division of the Church, he remained a faithful member of the M. E. Church South until 1868, when he (and a few others) invited Rev. A. C. McDonald to that neighborhood to organize an M. E. Church. He was the first who joined in that county and he remained a devout and faithful class leader, until the great head of the Church called him home to rest; his last words were "I am on the Rock," and he joyfully passed over to the blissfully regions of immortality.

D. McLachlan.

At Bolton, Miss., June 3d, 1877, Rev. Thos. [illegible], a local preacher of the M. E. Church, aged 51 years.

Death found him prepared and ready to depart. While breath remained to him he continued to preach to all about him, and exhort them to meet him in a better world.

J. B. Smith, Pastor.

The authorities of the Catholic church at Oku, Canada, got into a trouble with the Oka Indians in regard to the fence of pasture lands of the latter. The church authorities obtained warrants of arrest for forty-five of the Indians. Five were arrested, but the Indians armed themselves, and entered the village and defied the priests. The priests' stable caught on fire shortly after and the church, the priest's residence and several other buildings were burned. The fire is supposed to have been incendiary.

Wonderful, Most Wonderful.

A neighbor of ours has been for several years afflicted with consumption, and for months was so low that we looked daily for her death, but strange as it seems to us, three bottles of Cannabis Indica has so far restored her, that she is now able to do her housework. I have always been prejudiced against patent medicines, but seeing the remarkable effect your remedies have had upon Mrs. Fielder, and having a similar case in my own family, I have inclosed $18.00 for 6 syrup, 4 ointment and a box of pills hoping to obtain the same benefits, I am, respectfully

D. B. BAILEY,
GARDNER, Grundy Co., Ill., May 20, 1877,

N. B.—This remedy speaks for itself. A single bottle will satisfy the most skeptical. We know that it positively cures Consumption, and will break up a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. $2-50 per bottle, or three for $650. Pills and Ointment, $125 each. Address CRADDOCK & CO., 1032 Race Street, Philadelphia, Penn. June 14.

Quarterly Meetings.

Murfreesboro (Tenn.,) Dist.

FOURTH ROUND.

McMinnville, July 5 and 6; McMinnville, Circuit, July 7 and 8; Shelbyville, July 14 and 15; Lewisburg, 21 and 22; Springhill 21 and 22; Franklin, 25 and 26; Mill Creek, 28 and 29; Woodbury, August 2 and 3; Stone River, 4 and 5; Murfreesboro Circuit, August 9 and 10; Murfreesboro, August 11 and 12; Alexandria, August 15 and 16; Carthage, August 18 and 19; Lebanon, August 25 and 26; North Lebanon, August 29 and 30; Hartsville, September 1 and 2; Gallatin, September 1 and 2; Mitchellsville, September 8 and 9; Springfield, September 15 and 16; Dickson, September 22 and 23; Nashville Circuit, September 26 and 27; Clark Chapel 29 and 30.

Memphis (Tenn.,) Dist.

FOURTH ROUND.

Memphis, July 7; Adamsville, July 14; Shiloh, July 16; White Sulphur, July 18; Saltillo July 21; Lexington July 25; Decaturville, July 28; Camden, August, 1; Clarksburg, August 4; Benton, August 8; Weakley, August 11; Alamo, August 15; Lake, August 18; Carroll and Huntingdon, August 25; Dickson, September 1; Dickson circuit, September 5; Buffalo, September 8; Wayne, September 12; Indian Creek, September 15; Lawrenceburg, September 22.

The Memphis district Sunday-school Extension Society, composed of the members of the district conference, will hold its second session at White Sulphur, Hardin county, July 17th to 20th. Opening service, 17th, at 8 o'clock p. m.

The district conference will meet at Shoet's Creek, Giles county, September 26th. Opening sermon at 7 o'clock p. m., by Rev. E. N. Williams.

J. L. CHANDLER, P. E.

Houston, (Texas) District.

THIRD ROUND.

Richmond and Forest Chapel, July 1-2; Church Houston, July 7-8; Edwards Chapel, July 9-10; Harrisburg and West Point, July 14-15; Columbia and Brazoria, July 21-22; 1st Church Houston, August 4-5; Spring Creek, 25-26; East Church Tabernacle, September 1-2; Galveston, Staffords, September 8-9; Cypress, September, 15-16; Oyster Creek, September 22-23.

W. L. MOLLOY, P. E.

Marshall (Tex.) District.

THIRD ROUND.

Coffeeville, June 30 July 1; Merion, July 7-8 Marshall, July 14-15; Jefferson, Circuit July 21-22; Jefferson, July 28-29; Hickory Grove, July 28-29; Clarksville, August 4-5th; Union, August 4-5; Paris July 11th-12; Quitman, Aug. 18-19; Vanzant, Aug. 25-26; Greenville, Sept. 1st. 2nd; Sulphur Springs, Sept. 8-9th; Mt. Pleasant, Sept. 15-16.

F. C. MOORE, P. E.

Holly Springs (Miss.) District.

SECOND ROUND.

Mt. Pleasant, July 7-8; Kosciusko, July 14-15; French Camp, July 16-17; Greensboro, July 17-19, Winona and Voiden 21-22; Duck Hill, July 26-27; Granada, July 28-29; Geenada Circuit, July 28-29; Oxford, Aug. 4-5; New Albany, Aug. 8-9; Ripley, Aug. Hickory Flat, Aug. 15; Holly Springs Aug. 18-19; Byhalia, Aug. 21-22; Chulahoma, Aug. 24; Abbeville, Aug. 25-26; Eliza, Aug. 30 and Sept 1st. First District Conference for Holly Springs District will meet on the 14th day of June, at Grenada; all the brethren are requested to be present.

J. G. JOHNSON, P. E.

Greenswood (Miss.) District.

(Second Round.)

Wesley Chopel, 9 and 10th of June; Silver Creek, 16th and 17th of June; Yazoo City, 23rd and 24th of June; Piney Grove, 30th of June and 1st of July; Deasonville, 7th and 8th of July; Pickens, 14 and 15 of July; Lexington, 21st and 22d of July; Goodman, 28th and 29th of July; Jones Chapel, 4th and 5th of August; McNutt, 11th and 12th of August; Caney Creek, 18th and 19th of August; New Midway, 25th and 26th of August; Hernando, 1st and 2d of September; Panola, 8th and 9th of September; Cold Water, 15th and 16th of September; Walnut City, 22nd and 23d of Sept; Shiloh 29th and 30th Sept.

J. W. DUNN, P. E.

Meridian (Miss.) District.

Rome, June 23-24; Ex-Prairie, June 30 and July 1; Macon, July 7-8; Shuqualak, July 11-12; DeKalb, July 14-15; Lauderdale July 21-22; Daleville, July 24-25; Meridian 28-29; Meridian Circuit August 4-5; Quitman August 11-12; Shuhuta Circuit, August 15-16; State Line, Aug. 18-19; Shubuta, August 21-22; Enterprise Circuit, Aug. 25-26; Enterprise, Aug. 28-29.

M. ADAMS, P. E.

Gulf District.

(Second round.)

Meadville Circuit June 23-24; Liberty, June 26-27; Summit and Magnolia, June 28-29; China Grove, June 30. and July 1; Columbia, July 2-3; Augusta, July 4-5.

L. BRADFORD, P. E.

San Antonio (Tex.) District.

Sutherland Springs, June 23-24; Nockernut, July 1; Cibolo, July 4 and 5; Riddleville, July 4 and 5; Lavernia, 7 and 8; Goliad Circuit, July 11 and 12; Belmont, July 14 and 15; Refugio, July 18 and 19; Wrightsboro, July 21 and 22; Goliad, July 28 and 29.

D. GREGORY, P. E.

"HEAVENWARD."

The new book of Sunday-school songs, by James R. Murray, P. P. Bliss, and other favorite writers, including the best Hymns and Music of the late

P. P. BLISS.

This is the only New Song Book containing Mr. Bliss' best Songs—the ones that have made his name famous throughout Europe and America.

The verdict of all who examine "HEAVENWARD" is, "it is unequaled by any other Sunday-school Music Book." A single sample copy, in paper covers, mailed for 25 cents. Price—in boards, 35 cents. $30 per hundred. Order from your bookseller.

SONGS OF FAITH

For REVIVAL, PRAISE or CAMP MEETINGS.

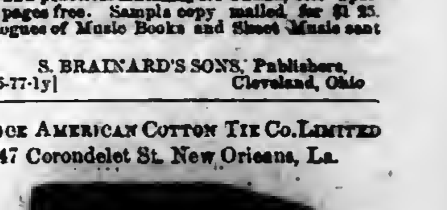
A collection of new Gospel Hymns and Sacred Songs by the best writers, including Moody and Sankey's favorite songs. Words and Music, 35 cents; $30 per hundred. Words only, 6 cents; $5 hundred. Send for sample.

New Anthem Book—Ready July 1st.

CHAPEL ANTHEMS By Dr. J. B. Herbert, assisted by the best writers of the day. Will supply a long-felt need for a collection of new, short, easy, and practical Anthems for Choirs, etc. Specimen pages free. Sample copy mailed, for $1 25. Catalogues of Music Books and Sheet Music sent free.

S. BRAINARD'S SONS, Publishers,
apr26-77-1y] Cleveland, Ohio

OFFICE AMERICAN COTTON TIE CO. LIMITED
47 Corondelet St. New Orleans, La.



In view of the constantly increasing popularity and demand for the Celebrated Arrow Tie, the universally recognized favorite Tie of Planters, Cotton Pressman and Shippers of Cotton generally, the American Cotton Tie Co., Limited, sole proprietors and manufacturers of said Tie, commanding unequalled facilities, have, in addition to the large stock now on hand, contracted for increased quantities, sufficient to meet the largest demand for Cotton Ties, to cover the entire crop of the coming season, and now, through their Agents generally, offer the popular and irrepressible ARROW TIE at $2.50 per bundle, less 2½ per cent. discount for cash, in Bundles complete, being less than the market value of plain hoop iron; and it being the purpose of the Company to merit the continued patronage of the Planting community and to defy all competition that may arise; their Agents are instructed to contract with Dealers, Factors and country Merchants at the above named price and terms for future delivery up to the first of August in quantities as may be required from time to time, settlements being made on delivery.

R. W. RAYNE, & CO.,
GENERAL MANAGERS,
je-21-77-1y] New Orleans, La.

SOUTHWESTERN AGENCY
FOR
School and College Text Books.

Office No. 80 CAMP STREET (up stairs).

Below we submit the MODEL SERIES of books (so conceded by the leading educators of this country) for use in PRIMARY, INTERMEDIATE and GRAMMAR schools. To insure their adoption by the progressive teacher we have only to ask a careful comparison with books of a like grade, a critical examination and a thorough, practical test in the class-room:

	Prices.
Harper's Introductory Geography	80
Harper's School Geography	$1 25
United States First Reader	15
" " " Second "	26
" " " Third "	37
" " " Fourth "	54
" " " Fifth "	75
" " " Sixth "	90
Wilson's Primary Speller	15
" Larger "	30
" New "	34
Lamson's Penmanship, per dozen	1 80
French's First Lessons in Numbers	25
" Elementary Arithmetic	37
" Mental Arithmetic	36
" Common School Arithmetic	70
Swinton's Language Primer	30
" Language Lessons	37
" School Composition	37
" Progressive Grammar	55

Catalogues, circulars, and testimonials sent on applications. Correspondence solicited and will receive prompt attention, when addressed

W. P. ROGERS & W. L. JARVIS, Agents for the introduction of Harper & Brother's Educational Works, New Orleans, La. Lock Box 134.

Hospital College of Medicine.

(The clinical School of the West.)

Med. Dept. of Central Univ., Louisville, Ky.

Distinctive features: A thorough didactic course, unsurpassed clinical facilities, eighteen clinics per week, the student being daily required to examine and prescribe, a high standard of graduation, both a didactic and a practical clinical examination being required.

For catalogues and information concerning special advantages address

DR. W. H. BOLLING, DEAN,
Cor. Third and Jefferson Sts., Louisville, Ky.

Texas Lands.

Best Investment in the Nation!

640 acres rich prairie loam, producing cotton, grains, fruit and vegetables, and adapted to stock, lying in the high and healthful latitude of Northwestern Texas, for the nominal sum of $266.

Title Patent, direct and perfect. Taxes low. Worth several times the cost. Now is your time to plant a small sum fruitfully. No fraud. All work personally supervised. Handled in the interest of education in Texas. Full particulars furnished on application, (with stamps).

References; Rev. Wm. Brush, D.D., P. E. Austin District, Austin, Texas; First National Bank, Dallas, Texas; State Savings Bank, Dallas, Texas, or editor of this paper.

Address

REV. L. H. CARHART,
West Texas Conference.
Box 377, Dallas, Texas. [a19-tf

"The principle of combining English and American writers in a common literary enterprise, merits all encouragement."—J. Anthony Froude.

THE
INTERNATIONAL REVIEW,
A NEW YORK AND LONDON REVIEW.

EMINENT CONTRIBUTORS ON BOTH SIDES OF THE ATLANTIC. (No articles at second hand. All articles original.)

CONTENTS.—MAY-JUNE—NOW READY.

The New Administration.
The Life Insurance Question. Carlton T. Lewis.
Disestablishment of the Church of England. Dr. James H. Rigg, London.
The Philadelphia Exhibition.—Part I. Mechanism and Administration. Francis A. Chief of the Bureau of Awards.
Tennyson.—A Criticism. Bayard Taylor.
Our Foreign Service. Hon. John Jay.
American and European Literature. Phillip Gilbert Hamerton.
Contemporary Events.

Price, Single Number, $1. For six months $3. Annual subscription (6 numbers) $5.

New York: A. S. BARNES & CO., Publishers.
apr27-10t]

$66 a week in your own town. Terms and outfit free. H. Hallett & Co. Dec 21 76 1y] Portland, Maine.

E. D. ELLIOTT,
PRINTER,
39 Natchez st., New Orleans.

WORTH LIVING FOR.

We are living, we are dwelling
In a grand and awful time,
In an age on ages telling,
To be living is sublime.
Hark! the waking up of nations,
Gog and Magog to the fray—
Hark! what soundeth? 'Tis creation
Groaning for its latter day.

Will ye play, then, will ye dally
With your music and your wine?
Put to MIDNIGHT's rally!
Your Master hath need of thine;
Hark! the onset! will ye fold your Hands and arms in lazy lock?
Up, up, thou drowsy soldier,
Worlds are charging to the shock!

Worlds are charging—heaven beholding
Thou hast been hour to sight,
Now the blazoned mess unfolding.
On, right onward, for the right;
On! let all the soul within you
For the truth's sake go abroad!
Strike! let every nerve and sinew
Tell on ages—tell for God!

THE TREE OF DISSIPATION.

The crime of drunkenness expels reason, drowns memory, destroys strength, [illegible] the [illegible] into [illegible] [illegible] sorrow; makes [illegible] worse than beast; a [illegible] who drinks to [illegible] good health, and [illegible] himself of his own. The root of all evil is DRUNKENNESS.

The Six Story Tellers.

Six little children each told a story, and to begin with, this is

ANNIE'S STORY.

"This is a true story," said Annie, the youngest of the group, "about a little girl eight years old, whose house was on fire. She was alone in the house with the servant, who did not know what to do, except to run out and scream, which she did. The little girl called out, 'Throw the carpet,' as soon as she was done, and the fire extinguished. Mamma remarked; 'I read that if your clothes should catch fire, you must roll yourself in a quilt,' as for that will put out the fire. Mamma knew that; but it was the quick mind that made her think of it at the right moment."

[illegible]'S STORY.

"That's a story, too," said [illegible] a good deal better than [illegible] a boy I know who [illegible] beating a poor [illegible] and was brave [illegible] and bear [illegible] out of [illegible], and I [illegible] courage to [illegible] ask you a [illegible] question. Who [illegible] like a [illegible] brought all the [illegible] Willie. "I [illegible] just you all [illegible] Scott [illegible] thought, but, [illegible] and in [illegible] a little [illegible] point of [illegible] And [illegible] him the [illegible] throne."

"Yes, it is, little one. Katie has chosen the best story, for Jesus unites all the good qualities you can think of. He had presence of mind enough to know what to do at the right time. He had obedience enough to do and suffer all God's will. He had courage enough to face all enemies and meet death. He persevered to the end in working out our salvation. He believed that God would do all he had promised to do, and he loved his own—though they did not yet love him—enough to die for them. He loves them still with an everlasting love, and has promised to love them forever and ever."—Christian Age.

Judge Blatchford of the United States District Court in New York, has sustained the constitutionality of the act of Congress excluding from the United States mails letters or circulars concerning lotteries, gift concerts and similar enterprises. He decides that as Congress had the power to establish post-offices and post-roads, it had also the right to determine what it will or what it will not carry.

LOST FRIENDS.

NOTE—We receive many letters asking for information about lost friends. All such letters will be published in this column. We make no charge for publishing these letters FROM SUBSCRIBERS TO THE SOUTHWESTERN. All others will please enclose fifty cents to pay for publishing the notices. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any cases where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.

My mother's name was Millio; I had three sisters; Amanda, Martha, and Ann, and one brother, Benjamin. We belonged to James Johnson, at Spring Creek, Madison Co., Tennessee. Johnson sold me to a cousin of his by the same name, who brought me to Mississippi, and so separted me from my family. I once heard that mother had been at Harrison, Georgia. Address Susan Smith, Pontotoc, Mississippi.

I was raised by Jesse Yates, at Mount Sterling, Kentucky. I had five brothers, John, Richard, Larkin, Taylor and Martin, and three sisters, Martha, Lelah and Ellen. Our father was called Tom and our mother Phillis. Most of the family belonged to Mr. Thomas, and had that name. Three of us were carried to Missouri by Jesse Yates, where I was sold to a speculator named Clark. Address, Henry Thomas, Austin, Texas, Care Rev. C. L. Madison.

My people lived near Franklin, St. Mary's Parish, Lousiana, and belonged mostly to Silas Rawls. Father was named Alfred and mother Rosetta. My sister Celia had three children named Henry, Ben and Rose, and sister Phillis had one child named Lucretia. Address Mrs. P. M. Carmichael, West Point, Fayette Co., Texas.

My sister was named Jenny, and my brothers James, Shade, Steven and Jordan. We belonged to Murdoch McQueen, in Alabama, and were separated three years before the war. Address Mrs. Candace Campbell, Nevasota, Grimes Co., Texas.

The Old Reliable Jackson Route.

TO THE FRONT AGAIN.

This old favorite passenger route has been greatly improved with steel rails, new iron bridges and new cars, and is now run with great regularity, making sure connections and quick time, and is the shortest and best route to the East via Louisville and Cincinnati.

Pleasure seekers by this route can go via Chicago and through Canada, or via Buffalo and Niagara Falls, to New York and the Northern watering places, at the same fare as via Louisville or the lines through Georgia and Virginia.

A full line of tourist and excursion tickets now on sale at the Jackson Railroad ticket office, No. 22 Camp street, under City Hotel, to all important summer resorts in the East, North and Northwest, by all desired routes.

Only one change of cars between New Orleans and New York and other Eastern cities. No change between Chicago, Cincinnati, Louisville and New Orleans, or from St. Louis to New Orleans.

Palace sleeping cars on all through trains.

Try the old Jackson route.

"Survival of the Fittest."

The ingenious doctrine propounded by Mr. Darwin, the broken investigator of nature but her laws, is as applicable in determining the fate of worthless as in that of the animal species. Every year sees thousands sink before the pall, [illegible] discarded as [illegible]. Only those [illegible] to the [illegible] of [illegible] and [illegible] of [illegible] point of [illegible] And [illegible] him the [illegible] throne."

PAN-HANDLE

AND

PENNSYLVANIA

Railroad Route.

The Favorite Trunk Line.

Only one change of cars to New York, and that at 7:30 in the morning, at Cincinnati.

No omnibus transfers on any part of the line.

Best equipped and shortest route to all the eastern cities.

Best Route to Long Branch, Cape May, Atlantic City, New Port, and all the Atlantic sea-coast watering places.

Best route to Cresson, Altoona, the celebrated Bedford Springs, and all the noted mountain retreats of the Alleghany range; and also the best route to Bethlehem on the Lehigh river, and all the noted resorts in the Anthracite coal regions of Pennsylvania.

This route is applied with all the modern improvements for speed, safety, and comfort; and continuous trains run without stoppages for fuel or water, as the water is supplied while the trains are in motion.

Palace and Drawing Room coaches on all trains.

Double tracked, stone balasted, free from dust, and steel rails laid according to scientific principles, to avoid jarring which is the cause of nausea to many.

All travelers who have availed themselves of the solid comforts to be found on the old reliable Pan Handle and Pensylvania, unhesitatingly say that for families and tourists, it is unequalled; while for business men who desire reliability and promptness it is far ahead of all opposition.

The refreshment saloons and eating houses are all first-class and all have an enviable reputation for their cusine—the tables being supplied with the best that the markets of Ohio and Pennsylvania afford.

Be sure and ask for tickets via Louisville Cincinnati and the Pan Handle Route.

W. L. O'BRIEN,
Gen. Pass'r and Ticket Agent, Columbus, Ohio.
SIDNEY B JONES,
General S. W. Agent, Cincinnati, Ohio.
W. M. WALLINGTON,
Gen. Southern Agent, New Orleans, La.
[june14-77-tf

F. F. HANSELL,

JAS. A. GRESHAM, Manager.

BOOK-SELLERS, PRINTERS,

AND STATIONERS.

No. 30 CAMP STREET,

Would respectfully announce to the readers of the ADVOCATE their facilities for doing all kinds of Printing and Job Work for PARTIES, BALLS, and BUSINESS PURPOSES.

Methodist Hymn Books, Disciplines and Bibles

Will be furnished at Northern Prices.

FAMILY BIBLES,

from $2 50 to $10 00. Orders from the country will receive prompt attention, and all orders filled as low as if brought in person.

Address, as above,

F. F. HANSELL,
30 Camp street, New Orleans, La.
Lock Box 84. [je14-77-3m.]

FOUR MONTHS OF

GOOD HEALTH

FOR 25 CENTS.

ANY PESSON WHO WILL BUY A BOX OF

Parson's Purgative PILLS

And will take one (1) each night for four (4) nights, and will do this every third (3d) week during the months of June, July, August and September, will not be trouble with Fever and Ague, nor Malarious Fever, nor Bilious Fever, nor any of the diseases resulting from miasmatic poison, common in Missouri, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas. If Parson's Purgative Pills cannot be obtained at your nearest store, send 25 cts. to the undersigned, and the pills shall be sent, post paid, by return mail. Physicians supplied by mail at $2.50 per thousand in bulk. As this is but little more than half price for standard pills by the thousand, cash must accompany the order. The Receipe will be cheerfully sent to any physician on application. We will send Parson's Pills by mail to responsible parties on commission at $2 per dozen, sample dozens at $1 35, cash with the order.

WHOLESALE AGENTS.

COLLINS BROS ..... St. Louis, Mo.
G. W. JONES & Co ..... Memphis Tenn.
E. J. HART & Co ..... New Orleans, La.
C. J. LINCOLN & Co ..... Little Rock, Ark.
T. C. THOMPSON & Co ..... Galveston, Tex.

ADDRESS ALL ORDERS TO

I. S. JOHNSON & CO.
je21-1y] Bangor, Maine, Proprietors.

A. H. NELSON,

Commercial Stationer, Printer, Blank

BOOK MANUFACTTRER and LITHOGRAPHER.

THE best assortment of Blank Books in the city.
The Finest Specimens of Lithographic work to be found in New Orleans.

No. 57 CAMP STREET,

Sign of the Mammoth Letter Press.

Call and Prove My Statements.
[oct12-76 1y

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine. [Dec 21 76 1y

Lungs and Throat.

Inhalation of common air in incipient [illegible] will cure. Dr. J. M. Howe, [illegible] N. J., sends his Tube, with full [illegible] post free for $3 50. Send for [illegible] may21.

[illegible] week to Agents. $10 Outfit Free. [illegible] P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Me.

Patents obtained for mechanical devices, medical, or other compounds, ornamental designs, trademarks, and labels.

Caveats, Assignments, Interferences, relating to Patent, Infringements, and all matters promptly attended to.

Inventions that have been rejected by the Patent Office may still, in most cases, be secured by us. Being opposite the Patent Office, we are able to make closer examinations, and secure Patents more promptly and with broader and better claims, than those who are remote from Washington.

Inventors send us a model or rough sketch and description of your device; we will make an examination, free of charge, and advise you as to its patentability. All correspondence strictly confidential. Prices as low as those of any reliable agency.

We refer to Officials in the Patent Office, and to inventors in every State of the Union.

Address, LOUIS BAGGER & Co.
Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

Virginia Roofing Slate.—The Best and strongest in the world, not excepting the well-known Welsh Slate.

The undersigned having accepted the agency for the sale of the celebrated ORE BANK and IMPERIAL QUARRIES, is now prepared to fill orders at prices much below those of Welsh and but little in excess of those of ordinary American Slates. Builders, contractors, and slaters generally are invited to submit them to the severest tests.

ALEXANDER HILL,
may1-76 1y] 110 Carondelet st., N. O.

E. HEATH. W. F. PIPPEY, M. LARA.

HEATH, PIPPEY & LARA,

99 .....CAMP STREET.....99

NEW ORLEANS.

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

UPHOLSTERERS MATERIALS,

Wall Paper,

Window Shades, Cornices, and

CURTAIN GOODS.

PICTURES, FRAMES,

MOULDINGS, MIRRORS,

LOCKS, WIRE-CLOTH,

WINDOW & DOOR SCREENS

FRAMING DONE TO ORDER.
14-1y

THE

Houston and Texas Central Railroad,

Operating over 500 miles of superior road, runs North and South through the

FINEST AGRICULTURAL and GRAZING DISTRICTS in TEXAS

And offers the most desirable sites for location to parties immigrating to that great State. The

NORTHWESTERN BRANCH

Of this road, which is now being pushed forward beyond Waco, will pierce the Great Mineral region of

NORTHWESTERN TEXAS.

For further information, address

J. R. COFFIN, S. P. A., Chattanooga, Tenn.
C. R. WHITNEY & CO., New Orleans, La.
J. WALDO, G. P. A., or J. DURAND, Gen'l Superintendent, Houston, Texas. [mar22-77-1y

A. P. HARRINGTON,

No. 118 Canal Street,

New Orleans, - - - - - - La.

Dealer in

LAW, MEDICAL, SCHOOL, RELIGIOUS, AGRICULTURAL AND MISCELLANEOUS

BOOKS

Stationery, Gold Pens and Pencils.

Pocket Books, Card Cases, Pocket Knives, Scrap Books, Chromos, Photograph Albums, Stereoscopes, Maps, Globes, Writing Desks, Etc.

PRINTING, RULING and BINDING.

Subscriptions taken for Newspapers and Magazines, Payable in advance.

Country Orders Solicited.
feb10-77-1y

WATERS' ORCHESTRION and ORGAN

is the most beautiful in style and perfect in tone ever made. It has the celebrated Concerto stop, which is the nearest imitation of the human voice, and two and a half Octaves of bells tuned in perfect harmony with the reeds, and their effect is magical and electrifying. WATERS' CLARIONA, ORCHESTRAL, CONCERTO, VESPER, [illegible] CHIMES, CHAPEL, and COTTAGE ORGANS; 11 Unique French Cases combine PURITY of VOICING with great volume of tone, suitable for Parlor or Church.

WATERS' PIANOS, Grand, Square and UPRIGHT ARE THE BEST MADE, of the Finest Tone, Touch, Workmanship, and Durability; Unsurpassed. Warranted for SIX YEARS. PRICES EXTREMELY LOW for cash. Monthly Installments received. Instruments let until paid for no per contract. A Liberal Discount to Teachers, Minister, Churches, Schools, etc. AGENTS WANTED. Special inducements to the trade. Illustrated Catalogues Mailed. Second-hand Instruments at GREAT BARGAINS. HORACE WATERS & SONS, Manufacturers and Dealers, 481 BROADWAY, TWO DOORS BELOW BRONDWAY.

A GREAT OFFER! We will during this month sell Pianos & Organs, new and second hand, of Brooklyn makers, including WATERS' at lower prices for cash or Installments, to let until paid for, than ever before offered. WATERS' GRAND, SQUARE and UPRIGHT PIANOS & ORGANS (INCLUDING THEIR NEW SOUVENIR AND BOUDOIR) are the BEST MADE. Octave Pianos $115, 7½ Octaves $125, 9 Stops $135, 10 Stops $145, 12 Stops $160 Warranted 6 years. To Teachers, Churches, Lodges, Societies, Seminaries, Institutes, Concerts, etc., we offer Special Inducements. LEGAL & TEACHERS AGTS WANTED. Illustrated Catalogues Mailed. A Discount to Teachers, Ministers, Churches, Societies, Institutes, Concerts, etc. Sheet music at half price. HORACE WATERS & SONS, Manufacturers and Dealers, 481 BROADWAY (Union Square), New York. P. O. Box 3567.

TESTIMONIALS

The N. Y. Times says: "Waters' Orchestrion Chime Organ is a beautiful little instrument, charmingly [illegible]. The Chime of two and one-half octaves is a very effective compliment of being produced [illegible] are singularly fine. [illegible] clear and resonant, and a very [illegible] is produced with the chime of [illegible]. [illegible] are well known among the [illegible] to speak of these instruments from personal knowledge.

[illegible] the merits of the Waters' Pianos [illegible] knowledge, as being of the very best quality.—Christian Intelligencer.

TEXT BOOKS

FOR THE

NEW COURSE OF STUDY,

As authorized to be pursued by candidates for the ministry in the Methodist Episcopal Church, by the Bishops, for the ensuing four years, to commence with Spring Conferences, 1877.

[Books are bound in CLOTH, where not specified.]

For Admission on Trial in the Traveling Connection.

Books to be Studied:

RAWLINSON'S Ancient History. A Manual of Ancient History from the earliest times to the fall of the Western Empire. By George Rawlinson, M.A. Large 12mo.... $3 50

STUDENT'S Old Testament History. From the Creation to the Return of the Jews from Captivity. With an Appendix, containing an Introduction to the books of the Old Testament. Edited by Wm. Smith, LL.D. With maps and wood-cuts. Large 12mo... 2 00

STUDENT'S New Testament History. With an Introduction, connecting the History of the Old and New Testaments. Edited by Wm. Smith, LL.D. With maps and wood-cuts. Large 12mo..... 2 00

HISTORY of the United States, from the Aboriginal Times to the present day. By John Clark Ridpath, A.M. 8vo..... 3 00
Half morocco, 8vo..... 3 50

AMERICAN Methodism: Abridged from the author's History of the Methodist Episcopal Church. by Abel Stevens, D.D., LL.D. Ten engravings. 8vo..... 3 50

RHETORIC: A Text-book, designed for use in schools and colleges, and for private study. By E. O. Haven, D.D., LL.D. 12mo..... 1 50

ELEMENTS of Logic. By O. E. True, D.D. 16mo..... 80

DISCIPLINE of the Methodist Episcopal Church, 1876:
24mo; cloth..... 40
24mo; morocco tuck..... 1 00

Books to be Read:

CHRISTIAN THEOLOGY; or, a concise, comprehensive, and systematic view of the evidences, doctrines, morals and institutions of theology. By Samuel Wakefield, D.D. 8vo; sheep..... 3 50

LIFE of Rev. John Wesley. By Rev. Richard Watson; 12mo..... 1 25

HAND-BOOK of Bible Geography, containing the name, pronunciation, and meaning of every place, nation, and tribe mentioned in both the Canonical and Apocryphal Scriptures. By Rev. George H. Whitney, A.M. Illustrated by nearly one hundred engravings, and forty maps and plans. Large 12mo..... 2 50

CHRISTIAN PURITY, Nature and Blessedness of. By R. S. Foster, D.D. Revised. 12mo..... 1 75

STUDENT'S Gibbon. The History of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire. By Edward Gibbon. Abridged. Incorporating the researches of recent commentators. By Wm. Smith, LL.D. 100 engravings on wood; 12mo..... 2 00

First Year's Course.

Books to be Studied:

WATSON'S Theological Institutes.
2 vols; 8vo; sheep..... 7 00
2 vols; calf..... 8 00
2 vols; half calf..... 8 00

CHRISTIAN PERFECTION, Plain Account of. By Rev. John Wesley; 24mo..... 45

HISTORY of the Church from the earliest ages to the Reformation. By Rev. George Waddington, M.A; 8vo..... 2 00

A TREATISE on Homiletics. By D. P. Kidder, D.D; 12mo..... 1 75

MENTAL Philosophy. By T. C. Upham; 16mo..... 75

Books to be Read:

WESLEY'S Sermons; 2 vols; 8vo..... 6 00

HISTORY of Methodism. Vols. 1, 2 and 3. By Abel Stevens, LL.D; 12mo; cloth, each 1 75
Half morocco..... 2 50
Illustrated, morocco; 8vo; each..... 3 50

THEOLOGY of the New Testament. By Rev. J. J. Van Oosterzee; 12mo..... 1 75

EARLY YEARS of Christianity. By E. De Pressensé; 4 vols; 12mo; each..... 1 75

Second Year's Course.

Books to be Studied:

WATSON'S Theological Institutes (Part II.)
2 vols; 8vo; sheep..... 7 00
2 vols; calf..... 8 00
2 vols; half calf..... 8 00

SERMON on Revision. Its subjects, mode, obligation, support, and relative order. By R. S. Rinvestor, D.D; 12mo..... 1 75

THE ELEMENTS of Moral Science. By Francis Wayland, D.D; 12mo..... 1 75

Books to be Read:

THE FREEDOM of the Will. By D. D. Whedon, D.D; 12mo..... 1 75

DEFENSE of our Fathers. By Bishop Emory; 8vo..... 1 00

COMPENDIUM of Methodism. By James Porter, D.D. Revised edition; 12mo..... 1 75

THE BIBLE: Its divine origin and inspiration, deduced from internal evidence and the testimonies of nature, history and science. By L. Gaussen, D.D. 12mo..... 1 75

THE HISTORICAL evidences of the truth of the Scripture Records. By George Rawlinson, M.A.; 12mo..... 1 00

HOMILETICS and Pastoral Theology. By William G. T. Shedd, D.D., Professor in Union Theological Seminary, N. Y.; 8vo.. 2 50

Third Year's Course.

Books to be Studied:

WATSON'S Theological Institutes (Part III. and IV.) Two volumes; 8vo; sheep..... 7 00
2 volumes; calf..... 8 00
2 volumes; half calf..... 8 00

AN INTRODUCTION to the Gospel Records. By William Nast, D.D; 12mo..... 1 75

ANALOGY of Natural and Revealed Religion. By Bishop Butler. Edited by Joseph Cummings, D.D.; 12mo..... 1 50

THE BIBLE Hand-book; An introduction to the study of Sacred Scriptures. By Joseph Angus, D.D.; 8vo.....

ELEMENTS of Logic; comprising the substance of the article in the Encyclopedia Metropolitana. With additions, etc. By Richard Whately, D.D.; 18mo..... 75

Books to be Read:

A TEXT-BOOK of the History of Doctrines. By Dr. E. R. Hagenbach, Professor of Theology in the University of Basle; 2 vols; 8vo..... 5 00

HISTORY of Rationalism. By J. F. Hurst, D.D.; 8vo..... 3 00

HISTORY of the Reformation of the sixteenth century. By J. H. Merle D'Aubigne, D.D; 8 vols; 12mo..... 8 00
1 vol; 8vo; illustrated..... 3 00

THE AGREEMENT of Science and Revelation. By Rev. J. H. Wythe, M.D. 12mo.. 1 75

Fourth Year's Course.

Books to be Read:

LECTURES on the Evidences of Revelation. By Bishop Edward Thomson. 12mo..... 1 50

THEOLOGICAL Encyclopedia and Methodology. By John M'Clintock, D.D. Edited by Rev. John T. Short, M.D; 12mo..... 1 50

THE CHRISTIAN PASTORATE; its character, responsibilities and duties. By D. P. Kidder, D.D.; 12mo..... 1 75

CHRISTIAN REMORSE; a System of. By G. W. Harvey, M.A; 8vo..... 3 00

THE LIFE AND EPISTLES of St. Paul. By Rev. W. J. Conybeare, M.A., and Rev. J. S. Howson, M.A. Unabridged edition. 2 volumes in one; 8vo..... 3 50

Books of Reference:

THE VOCABULARY of PHILOSOPHY, Mental, Moral and Metaphysical; with Quotations and References for the use of students. By William Fleming, D.D.; 12mo.. 5 00

SMITH'S Classical Dictionary. A new Classical Dictionary of Greek and Roman Biography, Mythology, and Geography. By Wm. Smith, LL.D. Revised by Chas. Anthon, LL.D. Royal 8vo; sheep, extra..... 5 00

M'CLINTOCK AND STRONG'S Cyclopedia of Biblical, Theological, and Ecclesiastical Literature. By John M'Clintock, D.D., and James Strong, S.T.D. With maps and numerous illustrations. Four volumes, comprising the letters A to K are now ready. Price per vol:
Cloth..... 5 00
Sheep..... 6 00
Half morocco..... 8 00

HAYDN'S Dictionary of Dates. Edited by Benjamin Vincent. Revised for the use of American readers. 8vo; cloth..... 3 00
Sheep..... 3 50

For Local Preachers, Candidates for Deacon's and Elder's Orders.

Books to be Studied:

WATSON'S Institutes. 2 volumes..... 7 00

WESLEY'S Plain Account of Christian Perfection..... 41

APPEAL, to Matter of Fact and Common Sense. By Rev. John Fletcher; 18mo..... 35

Books to be Read:

METHODIST Discipline..... 40

WATSON'S Life of Wesley..... 1 25

BINNEY'S Defense of the Fathers..... 1 00

PORTER'S Compendium of Methodism..... 1 75

BAPTISM, Christian. Its subjects and mode. By Bishop B. M. Merrill; 18mo..... 1 25

RUTER'S Church History. Revised and Improved; 8vo..... 2 00

THEOLOGICAL Compend. By Rev. Amos Binney; 18mo..... 60

SEVENEY History of Methodism. 8vo..... 2 50

Any of the above books will be sent on receipt of price. Address,

NELSON & PHILLIPS

Lock Box B. New Orleans.

THE

SINGER AGAIN TO THE FRONT!

GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICES

—OF THE—

WORLD-RENOWNED

Singer Family Sewing Machine!

THE SINGER MANUFACTURING COMPAMY, ever awake to the interests of the public, have determined to PUT THE PRICE OF THEIR MACHINES within the reach of every man, woman and child in the land.

THE GENUINE SINGER SEWING MACHINE IS NOW OFFERED AT PRICES BELOW THE BOGUS ONES, OR ANY OTHER.

The fact that the only Sewing Machine which unscrupulous men have ever attempted to imitate, is the Singer is sufficient evidence of its superiority over all others. There is no longer any excuse for buying any of the cheap machines hawked about the country, with no claim for patronage but their cheapness.

THE SINGER MANUFACTURING COMPANY,
S. E. RUNDLE, Agent.
may24-6m] No. 91 Canal Street, New Orleans, La.

WHEELER & WILSON

STILL AHEAD!

PRICES GREATLY REDUCED.

The Acknowledged Family Favorite.

NO NOISY COGS, AND NO RATTLING SHUTTLES.
Ease of manipulation, simplicity of construction, and rapidity of motion, have always placed the

Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine

Above all its competitors. The WHEELER & WILSON Manufacturing Company have determined not to be outdone by the manufacturers of inferior sewing machines.

Get a First-Class Machine at astonishingly low prices.

$40 to $75 will buy a New Improved Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine, at Liberal Discount for Cash.

Send for Circulars and Price List.

2,000,000 in Daily Use,

AND STILL THE FAMILY FAVORITE.

WHEELER & WILSON MAN'F CO.,
M. A. PECK, GEN'L AGENT,
june 14-76, 4m.] 149 Canal Street, New Orleans, La.

PHILIP WERLEIN,

Nos. 78–90 Baonne Street,

NEW ORLEANS. - - - - LA.

LARGEST Piano House in This Country,

—OFFERS—

Chickering's New Scale PIANOS.

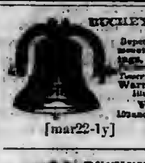
HALE'S PIANOS, HARDMAN'S PIANOS.
ESTEY & CO. ORGANS. MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

As low as any house North. Monthly Payments. Discounts for cash.

Music and Musical Instruments of Every Description. [feb22-1y

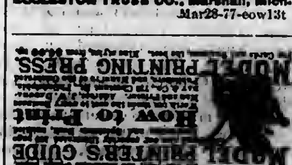
THIS NEW ELASTIC TRUSS

[illegible] TRUSS CO., Marshall, Mich.
Mar25-77-eow13t



BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY.
Established in 1837.
Superior Bells of Copper and Tin, mounted with the best Rotary Hangings, for Churches, Schools, Farms, Factories, Court Houses, Fire Alarms, Tower Clocks, Chimes, etc. Fully Warranted.
Illustrated Catalogue sent Free.
VANDUZEN & TIFT,
102 and 104 East Second St., Cincinnati.
[mar22-1y]

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY.
Established in 1837.
Superior Bells of Copper and Tin, mounted with the best Rotary Hangings, for Churches, Schools, Farms, Factories, Court Houses, Fire Alarms, Tower Clocks, Chimes, etc. Fully Warranted.
Illustrated Catalogue sent Free.
VANDUZEN & TIFT,
102 and 104 East Second St., Cincinnati.
Jan 30 76 tf



MODEL PRINTER'S GUIDE

HOW TO PRINT.

[illegible] CO., Cincinnati, O.
sept28-'76-1y

ADVERTISING AGENTS MANUAL

$12 a day at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. True & Co., Augusta, Maine. Dec 21 76 1y]

ONE QUARTER FOR TEN QUARTERS.

MASON & HAMLIN CABINET ORGANS.

HIGHEST AWARDS AT

FOUR GREAT WORLD'S EXPOSITIONS

Paris, 1867; Vienna, 1873; Santiago, 1875; PHILADELPHIA, 1876.

ONLY ORGANS AWARDED FIRST RANK AT CENTENNIAL.

Great variety of styles at prices which could be impossible for work of such excellence without unequaled facilities for manufacture.

EXAMPLES OF NET CASH PRICES:

Five octave double reed organ with tremulants, $100
Five octave organ, nine stops, with Dulcetta, $114

Sold also for monthly or quarterly payments, or rented until rent pays. A superior organ may thus be purchased by the easy payment of $1.25 per quarter for ten quarters. Catalogues free.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN CO.
154 Tremont St., BOSTON. 30 Union Sq., NEW YORK. 250 Wabash Ave., CHICAGO.
June14-77-1y

Southwestern Christian Advocate.

NEW SERIES—VOL. 1—NO. 27. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, JULY 5, 1877. WHOLE NUMBER 257.

SOUTHWESTERN
Christian Advocate,
PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT 56 Baronne St., New Orleans,
BY
NELSON & PHILLIPS,
FOR THE
Methodist Episcopal Church.

Terms: $2 a year, Cash in Advance.

All Ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church are authorized Agents.

Subscribers can begin at any time and the paper will be sent as long as paid for.

Remittances may be made by Registered Letter, P. O. Money Order, or by Express.

Advertising Rates.
(For Ecclesiastical use, each insertion.)
One square ..... 8 cents
Two squares ..... 7 "
Three squares ..... 6 "
Four squares ..... 5 "
Five squares ..... 4 "
Six squares ..... 3 "
Seven squares and upwards ..... 2 "
Business notices, per line ..... 8 cents, net cash

TO THY FEET.

BY ..., D.D.

along its winding course through the ages.

In touching upon the theme of the "Divine Inspiration," or any similar topic, there should be a wholesome conservatism; or, in other words, a recognition of the long established principles of the Christian church, tried, as they have been, by millions who have "fed and feasted here," who did the will of God as revealed in this book, and thereby proved the doctrine true.

It is not a violation of any rule of propriety. It is not casting any disrespect upon the past. It is not in any sense or degree, sacrilegious for us to take up this or any similar subject, and examine it ab origine, providing it be done in the right spirit, to settle the faith rather than to unsettle it—to add to the stream of wholesome free thought and inquiry, rather than by loose rambling thought to confuse the mind, and undermine and destroy the "faith once delivered to the saints."

The question then which interests us at this time, is this: Is the Bible an inspired book? If so, what is the nature of that inspiration, and what is its degree?

Is the Bible an inspired record? Is it an embodiment of truth given by God to man? To this question there is but one answer which a Christian can give, and that is an unqualified affirmative.

That inspiration has been amply vindicated in its history. It has come down to us through the ages, meeting opposition at every step in its course, but no opposition could arrest its march. Its histories, for it contains many historical sketches of men and nations, have not been disproved by those who have made the attempt; yet, amongst them have been many master spirits. Its poetry has ever been regarded as the grandest in the world, and its moral teachings are the purest and best which the mind has ever contemplated. Its authors (in a human sense), preface their statements with a "Thus saith the Lord." While other writers have been proud of their productions, these humble men claim to have [illegible] as they were moved to [illegible] by the Holy Ghost. The [illegible] of its own records, [illegible] is given by in[illegible] court the sneers of the worldly, and the attack of the skeptic, it bids us "search" its pages. "Search the Scriptures, for in them ye think ye have eternal life, and they are they which testify of me." We are to "prove all things; but to hold fast that which is good."

But again: Inspiration has a vindication in Christian experience. These records have been submitted to a test which renders its testimony in a way that cannot be overthrown. The mind and heart have alike taken hold of these great truths. The first has demonstrated their beauty; the second has felt their power resting on them as on an everlasting rock; the heart has [illegible] and the life has been changed from sin to holiness. Here, then, is our base line; here is some principle which gives value of the past, either in the one or the other. We accept them as true, and either our faith in this whole matter is an inspired fact. Man was its author only in a subordinate way. God, then, is its author. Man could write these truths, but God is the [illegible] head of all truth, just as in [illegible] in science. And, such has been the opinion in all the past of the church. Clement, Martyr, Irenæus, Theophilus, and others, all these testify to the fact that the Bible, as a whole, is the law and will of God; that it is Divine, and, consequently, binding on the conscience of men.

But what is the degree of that inspiration? [illegible]

The word inspire comes from two words in Greek, which signifies [illegible] or spirit into any [illegible] or breathe into the writers of the Scriptures, in such a way that they were the instruments of the Spirit of God. Inspiration, then, is the influence of the Spirit of God upon the minds of men, so that they were the instruments of God in the work which it was intended, or needed, must be applied to all men who rely on the Spirit is the difference of degree.

The prophet who foretold certain things that should come to pass, was moved, impelled to utter certain words, phrases, or put on record certain statements which had a definite and specific meaning.

This was inspiration of the highest degree—it was extraordinary. The minister of Christ in the pulpit to-day, may be moved by a divine impulse to preach the gospel with unwonted power, his words have a wonderous effect on the hearts of his hearers, they lead them to Christ. This is the inspiration in its lowest sense. The first was essential to Christ's kingdom, to establish it in the world; the other is necessary to its perpetuation and triumph. The Scriptures then were written by men under this extraordinary influence and are hence of the nature of a miracle.

This inspiration according to the books on theology is either superintending, elevating, or suggestive. One portion of the Scriptures is simply historical. The only thing which the sacred penman had to do, was to copy and preserve records consisting of names, dates, historical events—to state facts in their several departments as they were furnished by previous writers, as Mathew's and Luke's genealogies of Christ. No inspiration of any kind was really needed here any more than inspiration is needed by a printer in order properly to set type, from well written manuscript. And no one pretends that all the general records of the twelve tribes of Israel were kept within books or on their tablets by plenary inspiration. They were as true as human records ordinarily could be kept without any inspiration. Now when Moses wrote the Pentateuch his inspiration was simply adequate to the task. When records were copied it was not needed; he was left to use his own judgment, for God does not ignore the reason in man, he always uses it and as far as possible. Where the subject was beyond the reach of mere human powers God gave him the necessary endorsement of spiritual influence. For instance Moses was inspired to write "The Lord thy God will raise up unto thee a prophet from the midst of them of thy brethren like unto me unto Him ye shall hearken" Deut 18: 15. Inspiration was here requisite. But when he wrote the 10th chapter of Numbers where he gives an account of all the tribes of Israel by name inspiration was not necessary, it was simply matter of public record. The inspiration here was only that of superintending. The only inspiration in these portions of the Bible is the general inspiration of truth. Logic can not be inspired, for that which is true cannot be any more true. There is no such thing as "perfect, more perfect, most perfect." Hence all copies of records have only this inspiration that they are correctly copied.

Take the case of St. Paul, who wrote to Timothy: "I charge thee, therefore, before God and the Lord Jesus Christ who shall judge the quick and the dead at His appearing and His kingdom, preach the word, etc." This he was inspired to say. It contains statements not coming within the range of human reason, but when he writes "Demas hath forsaken me, having loved this present world, and is departed unto Thessalonica, Crescens to Galatia, Titus to Dalmatia. The cloak that I left at Troas with Carpus when thou comest bring with thee, and the books, but especially the parchments." 2 Tim. 4: 1-13. Was it necessary for the Holy Ghost to come on Paul in a miraculous, extraordinary manner, to tell him that Titus had gone to Dalmatia? Was inspiration essential to settle the matter that Paul was cold and needed his cloak? Now, this was all true as truth could be, and was in no way contrary to this theory of inspiration. It may have been written when Paul was under this influence, but we hold not necessarily so.

Sometimes the writers were simply elevated; common powers were made uncommon, as when the disciples who were illiterate men confounded the wise men of Jerusalem. They spoke and wrote under this spiritual elevation, and that spirit which thus elevated their thoughts preserved them from error, and made their words mighty. Then there was what the books call suggestive inspiration, which was of a higher kind than either of the others. Under this influence they foretold future and past events. This, it was, which enabled Moses to give us the history of the creation, and the fall.

It was not necessary that the [illegible] should always understand [illegible] their own language. For example, Peter tells us of the passing away of the Heavens and the earth with a great noise. He used words of science in those [illegible] yet, we do not think [illegible] know anything about the relations of oxygen and [illegible] But were these sacred [illegible] inspired? or were [illegible]? This [illegible] on particular occasions, [illegible] was

SOUTHWESTERN
Christian Advocate.
30 Natchez St., New Orleans.
J. C. HARTZELL, B. D., Editor.
THURSDAY, July 5, 1877.

[illegible]

Address,
NELSON & PHILLIPS,
Lock Box "B," New Orleans.

Rev. Dr. R. S. Rust has given $1000 to the projected Cincinnati Conference professorship, in the Ohio Wesleyan University.

At the decoration of the Union soldiers' graves, at Arlington, on the 30th of May, the wife of the [illegible] went quietly about among the "unknown" graves and laid on [illegible] beautiful flowers. That [illegible] a most beautiful sight [illegible] a heart.

[illegible] temperance revival [illegible] It is reported that in Michigan [illegible] have taken the pledge [illegible] and the South [illegible] a good thing.

[illegible] President of Al[illegible]

[illegible]

Church Life.

WORK AND GIVING.

It is not the whole of our duty to belong to the church, receive all its benefits and do nothing for it.

The church has a mission in this world and that mission cannot be fulfilled, without the contributions of money from the membership as well as their prayers and other labors.

The institutions of Christianity are to be supported by our voluntary contributions. Religion always becomes heartless when it is compulsory. A state church can have form but not much fervor. Men pay their tithes as they do their taxes, with curses upon the tithe man. In the days of Christ, Sinners and Publicans were classed together, the words were synonimous. The Jews hated the Publicans, they were the public tax gatherers, and that was the reason of this hatred.

Religion may have its forms, but they are secondary. Christianity is a life—a spirit, and cannot be compelled into existence by the stern demands of law. Its support hence must be voluntary, men must crowd around their altars as the soldiers of Alexander crowded, thirty men deep around his person to protect him from danger. We must support the cause of religion because of the intense love our hearts feel for it and in it.

Now as God could feed the poor miraculously without our aid, and would, if it were necessary, so he could maintain in the world his own cause, vindicate his law and illustrate his love; but his cause is the cause of human nature, and hence our own benevolent acts are designed to develop us and make us more God-like. "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

The public collections we lift in our churches take this direction. When you give to the tract cause, you aid one department of Christian labor. Many will not read the Bible, nor hear sermons who yet may pick up a single tract, read it and by it be led into a higher life. The religious history of the world contains innumerable examples of this kind of result. When you contribute to the Bible cause you place a Bible in the hands of some one of the twelve hundred millions of the world's population. When you give to the Sunday-school cause, you are reaching out a hand to help some poor child up into a more glorious life. When you give to the Church Extension Society, you aid some small and feeble congregation to secure a house of worship. Now these and all other contributions go to lift up and bless humanity when the collection box is passed and you make your contribution whether to pay your own pastor, build your own church or send the messenger of glad tidings to the heathen, you are a co-worker with God. You are glorifying God in the true sense; there is in your act a reflection of infinite love—you are blessing others and receiving in turn a blessing. We have no faith in a Christianity which shuts itself up in a corner and hugs itself to death. We have no confidence in those Christians who turn pale whenever they see a collection box coming down the aisle. Collection boxes are a means of grace. We have no faith in a Christian who shouts but does not give. When we hear a man forever preaching up the doctrine that "Charity should begin at home" we conclude that such a man's charity is infinitesimal—it is microscopic. The charity that begins at home too often stays there and dies out instead of becoming world-wide in its influence.

All true beneficence implies system and system generally means [illegible] There is a meaning in the expression "organized victory." [illegible] church work is that we [illegible] a charge which [illegible] If we give with [illegible] of giving and habit [illegible] in every thing [illegible] much larger [illegible] The good Christian [illegible] principle. If [illegible] a tenth of our income for religion and general benevolence we, must be systematic. A tenth implies calculation, understanding of ourselves and our means.

If the Jew was expected to give a tenth, what ought a Christian to give? Ought a Christian to be more or less generous than a Jew? But a Jew gave a tenth as the least, his contributions were more than this as we shall see.

The law of the tenth we hold to be binding upon us now for several reasons.

It was instituted in the beginning and exemplified in the lives of God's most eminent servants. It runs through the Mosaic dispensation and was common in the times of the Savior; it never was repealed. The first instance on record was the case of Abraham, who rescued Lot from the captivity into which he had fallen, and then devoted a tenth of this recaptured property to Melchizedek, who was Priest of the Most High God. These spoils of war did not belong to Abraham, he was only a general who had been victorious in war. Yet as was right he devoted such a proportion to the true God whose blessing had given him victory over his foes.

So Jacob after the vision of Luz devoted a tenth of all his property to God in case he should return home in safety. Gen 28 : 22. The same law of tithes prevailed in the religious economy of the Greeks, Romans, Arabians and other nations.

Among the Israelites one tenth of the whole produce of the soil was assigned for the maintenance of the Levites. Out of this the Levites were to dedicate one-tenth to God for the use of the High Priest.

Then a second tithe was also required for festal purposes. And then every third year a tithe was taken to be eaten in company with the Levites and the poor. Thus two yearly tithes and one every third year in addition.

Out of every dollar a Jew earned he gave for benevolence twenty cents by rule—and then a tenth every third year, which would be 3⅓ per cent each. This would make 23⅓ per cent of all his income each year. But besides these there were the "free will offerings" and these had no law but love or generosity. These offerings were so great that more was given at times than could be used. And with all this giving they were a people proverbially rich. Their land was coveted by eastern kings and they became the prey of the enemies of the God of Israel. There was no repeal of the law. The Christian should give as much as the Jew at least. But who of us gives a tenth? There are some who do, and all who do it are the gainers in every point of view. We could give the names of some who thus give and who are getting richer each year by the giving. We do not say in spite of the giving but by the giving. The promise is that God loves the cheerful giver. "There is that scattereth and yet increaseth and there is that withholdeth more than is meet and it tendeth to poverty."

Love Thy Neighbor.

When a certain young lawyer once asked the Savior "What shall I do to inherit eternal life?" the reply was, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself."

This passage of Scripture enjoins upon us all a duty which seems the most impossible to obey of any in the whole volume of inspiration.

The man who contemplates becoming a Christian takes it up and looks at it, analyzes it, sees that it enjoins upon him the solemn duty of loving God and man.

This of itself is not so hard a task, but he reads, "with all thine heart," and shuts up the book exclaiming surely this is impossible. How can any man love an invisible God with all the heart?

He reads on, "and thy neighbor as thyself." Now that he loves himself is a matter of his consciousness. The degree of love which he feels for himself is measured by his selfishness, what he will do or seek for himself. But how can he love his neighbor as he loves himself? here seems to him to lie a moral impossibility. And we must not forget this truth that the Scriptures do enjoin upon us impossible duties from a human stand point. No mere unaided man can love God with all his heart. No mere man can "love his neighbor as he loves himself." This is impossible.

This command implies grace in the heart. To attempt to keep this law without the aid of God's spirit, is to attempt to see without the light of the Sun.

It is only when we have reached an experience like unto that of St. Paul that we can exclaim "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me;" only then that we can realize that "with God all things are possible."

The love of God, is placed in that text before the love of man.

Not that he needs that love as much as man needs it. God is happy without our worship and love. Man needs it and is unhappy without it.

Nothing is so much craved by humanity as sympathy and love. It is the one great object ever sought. O, who so wretched as he who walks the earth without one heart to offer its affection!

But there is logic in this Scripture. The argument is complete. It means that where the love of God exists in the heart, there will follow the love of man with invariable certainty.

And who is my neighbor? Every man, every woman, every child is my neighbor. This injunction of the Savior bore heavily on the Jew, for he did not love his Gentile brother, nor his Samaritan neighbor. He looked at the one and said "keep aloof from me! am holier than thou." He wrapped himself up in his robe of selfishness and laid down to pleasant dreams of his own superiority, of his own favored lot.

Just then Jesus spoke, and His words had a peculiar significance. As the Messiah, he came to set up a kingdom on earth which should be universal, one in which all men should be under the same spiritual law, all should have a common spiritual head, all should have a common society and be alike, heirs of God!

To fit men for eternal life is the great aim of the gospel, but we must not lose sight of this, that it has a mission in this world—in the society of men here. This wilderness must bloom, this desert must bud and blossom as the rose.

We have long since made up our mind that one of the results of our holy Christianity is the production of a higher and better form of society. Hence, there are social aspects of Christianity. To make a man better is not alone to make him better in his heart by giving him a clean heart, a right spirit, but to make him a better husband, father, friend, neighbor, and citizen. These grow out of the former.

If this be true, and no one will call it in question, then the very best society in the world must be found within the pale of the Church, and under the influence of christian teachings, where the principles of the gospel are set forth in their fulness.

Christianity has its spiritual aspects, — but it has more — Jesus in his teachings touched upon all questions which concerned humanity rising from the elements of good citizenship to the production of angelic nature.

Get Acquainted.

When a new family move into your neighborhood, who are entitled to respect, you feel it to be an obligation laid upon you by the ordinary forms of society to call upon them, and thus not only make their acquaintance, but welcome them to your home. So it should be in the church. Somebody has moved into your neighborhood—on to your street. They are going to live there right by your side for a year or more; now what is your duty in the case? It evidently is to get acquainted. If you are already acquainted, it is to make it more sacred, intimate, sweet and enduring.

The ceremony of introducing must be waived in this case. Indeed, some people carry that form to such an extent that if they were to see a mad drowning they would scarcely reach out a hand to help him out of the water without first being formally introduced. That is politeness run mad, of which there is a good deal in our churches. Would it be any violation of the courtesies of life for two families happening to be thrown into the same locality, or into the same part of a church to recognize each other in a friendly way? Surely not. The church aisle is the street where you and your church neighbors live. But who shall make the advance? We answer, the one that has the warmest heart will do it always, no matter who should.

For two or more persons to sit near each other in church through a whole year and not be well acquainted is an argument against the good hearts and good sense of both. The gospel they hear preached every day, utters their condemnation. It teaches brotherly love, kindness, good will to all men in church and out of church.

But then this question of caste comes in. You say you do not take to your fellowship every one who happens to be thrown in your way; very true, but even if you do not, there is yet a propriety in endeavoring to exert a good influence on others, so that if they are no particular benefit to you, you may be to them.

In the church where we all stand equal before God, there should be no distinction. Those whom you regard as your inferiors may, in the sight of the Lord, be your superiors. If you are possessed of the true spirit, you hope and expect to meet each other in Heaven by-and-by, where you will spend eternity together. The church is the gate of Heaven; if you separate from each other here, can you expect to unite there?

The design of Christ was, that the church should grow. He willed that there should be unity in the church—that the wise should instruct the unwise; that the strong should uphold the weak; that the rich should be willing to aid the poor; that we should "condescend to men of low estate." And this growth must involve the question of sociability.

If people pass one another by in the same church aisle, never taking each other by the hand, therein is an element of weakness to the church. In unity, is strength; in division, weakness. "United we stand, divided we fall," says the old adage.

That which made the early Christians so influential, was the bond which held them together. They sympathized with each other in their afflictions, and esteemed one another for their work's sake.

The Methodists have always been remarkable for their hearty good will; their hand-shaking is proverbial the world over. They have seen in it a power for good, and have used for the glory of God the hand as well as the heart.

A church should not lose sight of that element of power—sociability. We all like to be noticed by those around us, and no where do we expect more surely the sign of friendship than in the house of God, and among Christian people.

To promote this, a church should have an evening, occasionally, for social entertainment. All the members should endeavor to be there, if not at every social, yet occasionally. This should be made a suitable place for greeting each other, and for becoming acquainted with those who have cast their lot with us in church fellowship.

There is one mistake which many often make, and that is in not trying themselves to become acquainted. You must make some effort; put yourself in the way to be spoken to; manifest your desire of friendship by being friendly, and only complain when you have tried all means and have failed. Remember the old adage, "He that would have friends must show himself friendly."

Money--Art.

Let us not forget that there are some things worth more than money. We cannot afford to apply the ten per cent. rule to every thing in this world. Art has a proper claim upon us. Beautiful things are often expensive. Statues and playing fountains, ornamented parks and handsomely graded door yards, elegant paintings and music, do not pay us dividends every month in cash, and hence by some utilitarians they are pronounced a most useless extravagance. But these things do pay, not their owner alone, but all who see them, dividends in genuine pleasure and uplifting of soul. We have to learn that money is not the only thing we should live for in this world.

There is such a thing as art-life. We cannot all be artists, nor can we all surround ourselves with the products of the artist's brush and chisel in any very high sense—for art is expensive, but still we can in our simple way cultivate a love for the beautiful, for the refinements of life in every department.

It is a mistake to suppose that christianity rules out all good taste, either in our personal adornments, in our homes or in our places of worship. Every thing which is good and beautiful belongs to the christian world. The church where people meet to worship should be the embodiment of neatness and good taste. We do not believe there is any absolute necessity for special ornamentations, frescoes and elaborate carvings are not essential to vital piety or true worship. Some people do go to church because it is an attractive place, thus they may be led to a religious life. If good music will draw people there, then let us have good music. If frescoes and other ornamentations will attract, use them; if eloquence and rhetoric have a power over men, let us have it in the pulpit. It is only carrying out the apostolical injunction to be "all things to all men" so as to win them.

In this matter of beautiful churches, we must not lose sight of one or two points. The more wealthy and refined among us have a natural right that their tastes should be gratified even in the house of worship. They cannot feel much inspiration in going from their own homes where floors are carpeted, and pictures adorn the walls to a church where the floor is not only naked but filthy, where the uncushioned seats are stiff and hard, and all the surroundings are the very reverse of the homes from which they have come; such a place repels rather than attracts. And furthermore, refinement and good taste are the logical results of our whole system of education. As people become cultivated the demand for comforts and luxuries increases. The moment you begin to dig about a man's brain his wants begin to increase. Nor is the world injured by this educating process, for the power to supply these increased wants keeps pace with that increase. The invention of the sewing machine did not turn the needle women out into the streets to die of starvation as some short-sighted philosophers predicted it would. No, it only gave the world additional power by which to open up new channels of industry, and so the sewing girls have more to do with the machines than they had without them. So with this refining of the race, it brings with it greater expense of living, but at the same time it gives mankind greater power to produce.

The tongue can sing as rapturously and the heart pray as devoutly in the midst of refined and tasteful surroundings as in the rustic simplicity of frontier life.

But at the same time we would say that we must avoid the extremes of grandeur, we must not make these elegances essential, we must not over do, the spirit must not be lost sight of in this outward form.

Rev. Dr. McCarty, pastor of Ames M. E. Church, in this city, is quietly at work trying to pay off the dregs of an old church debt amounting to some five or six thousand dollars, and he is making headway. His plan is to find, say, one hundred men, who will each give $50. This will almost do it. He wrote, recently, to Frank Queen, Esq., editor and proprietor of the New York Clipper, an entire stranger to the Doctor, though reputed to be a very generous man. Mr. Queen's response was, "Your plan will succeed, I will be one of the hundred, and my wife will be another." Other responses are being received of like character, and we, too, think it will be a success. Ames church entirely out of debt, will be much more of a success than it can be under its burdens.

The Reformed Episcopal Church, which held a General Council in Chicago, gave a brief summary of the points of difference between them and the Protestant Episcopal Church, consisting of seven specifications; 1. What constitutes a church. 2. The Christian ministry. 3. The nature and efficiency of sacraments. 4. The erection of altars and confessionals, and prayers for the dead. 5. Deposition of clergymen who unite with other churches. 6. The enforcement of confirmation as a condition of membership. 7. The use of extempore prayers. On these various points the Reformed Episcopal Church is in harmony with the other evangelical churches of this country.

The great summer resort, Martha's Vineyard, has now we are informed about 3000 cottages and with its horse railroad, post-office and what not is quite a city. Ocean Grove is looming up rapidly and will be in the Middle States what the Vineyard is in the Eastern.

President Hayes is ruminating in New England, where Harvard College makes him an L.L. D., and Boston is opening its pantry in right good style, even tempting him with wine. The President learned to read when he was a very little boy, in the old spelling book, "My son, go not in the way of sin." Our President does not drink anything that intoxicates. By-the-way, Harvard always dubbs the President with its highest honor, the title of Doctor of Laws. All you have to do is to get to be President of the United States, and the degree is certain. We say this to encourage literary aspirants. Persevere, you may win.

Our English Wesleyan brethren are mourning over the death of Rev. Geo. T. Perks. Truly a prince of Israel has fallen, but such men, when they go, leave the world better and live after they have passed from sight. They belong to the christian world and not to any one nation; we mourn with our friends across the water.

Boston University has risen up within a few years to great proportions. It is munificently endowed—has a most complete corps of instruction, is located at the "hub," and ought to out Harvard, Harvard. Boston University, that sounds well, but it is more than sound.

Religious News.

John Wesley's sermons, in the course of his ministry, amounted to 40,560; Mr. Whitfield's to 18,000, and Roland Hill's to 23,000.

The Methodist Episcopal Church is $57,000 ahead of one year ago in the condition of her missionary treasury.

Forty Roman Catholics at Waterville, Maine, have recently, under the preaching of Father Chiniquy, renounced that church, and professed Protestantism.

The Reformed (Dutch) Church of this country has had great prosperity during the past three years. In 1874, there were reported 4423 conversions; in 1876, 5993; in 1877, 6250. This denomination has now 506 churches, 549 ministers, 78,631 communicants, and 77,230 Sunday-school scholars. There was raised last year for benevolent purposes, $200,398; for Congregational uses, $800,048.

The Bible Christians are a Methodist body found in the Dominion of Canada and Great Britain, but not in the United States. The Canadian Conference, recently in session, reported the following statistics; 81 itinerant ministers, 197 lay preachers, 183 churches, 43 other preaching-places, 7793 church members, 1334 Sabbath-school teachers, and 9340 scholars. Increase in church membership over last years, 850.

The Reverend Dr. Galusha Anderson, in his sermon before the Illinois Baptist Education Society, at Alton, June 10, made this remarkable statement: "We have over 9000 more churches than ordained ministers, and a moment's reflection shows us that we must make large deductions from our reported clerical force. Making these deductions, we find that the number of our churches is nearly if not fully double the number of our ministers who are able to do successfully the work of an ordinary Christian pastorate."

Mrs. A. T. Stewart has notified the Episcopal Bishop Littlejohn, of New York, that she will erect a cathedral for his diocese at Garden City, and give twenty-five acres of land and such appurtenances as may be necessary for the full completion of the work, and for the endowment of its charitable, religious and ecclesiastical objects. The structure will cost a million and a half, and a million more will be given for an endowment. It will be both a shrine and a place of worship, and will be to America what Westminster Abbey and Canterbury Cathedral have been and are to England.

Mr. John B. Farwell, of Chicago, was elected President of the recent National Convention of Confederated Young Men's Christian Association meetings, recently held in Louisville. The Executive Committee reported over 1000 organizations bound together under International, State and Provincial Committees, with over 100,000 members. There are forty-eight association buildings, valued at $2,000,000, and, with other property owned by the associations, aggregate almost $3,000,000. The expenditure of the Committee for the year was $16,000, and add to this the State and Association expenses paid, amount to almost $500,000. Eighty-three hundred men were provided with employment. The average weekly attendance on the Association Bible-classes is 8138; 123 general secretaries and agents are employed.

General News.

Robert Dale Owen, the spiritualist, is dead.

G. Wiley Wells, of Mississippi, has been appointed Consul-general to China.

About eight hundred tons of bananas are shipped monthly from Aspinwall to New York.

Eight thousand libraries have been sent out by the American Seamen's Friend Society.

Four schools, modeled directly after Mount Holyoke Seminary, have been established in South Africa.

Albion, New York, gave 7000 votes last year in favor of license, but this year gave 215 majority against it.

Ex-Governor Tilden has taken passage on the Cunard steamer [illegible], to sail for Europe on July [illegible]

The king of Gaboon, Africa, lately died at the age of nearly one hundred. His eldest son and successor, Adande, at once dismissed the hundred women of his father's harem, liberated fifty slaves, and abolished the sacrifice of human beings at religious rites.

European capitalists having purchased [illegible] worth of orange lands in Florida, intend to bring into that State two or three thousand hardy farmers from England, Germany, France, and Italy.

[illegible] the Ducal Ar[illegible] has discovered the second part of Luther's Old Testament translation, in the [illegible] own handwriting, dating as far back as 1523.

[illegible] there were but sixty-five [illegible] Now there are over [illegible] organizations, bound [illegible] under International, State and [illegible] committees, with over one hundred thousand members.

The Henrietta (Texas) Journal [illegible] specimens of [illegible] from the [illegible] of Red [illegible] from the town of [illegible] fertilizer it is pro[illegible] to all others. [illegible] of this valuable [illegible] in the deposits [illegible]

[illegible] in the Boston Pilot, [illegible] received jubilee gifts [illegible] $230,000; [illegible] Ire[illegible] $[illegible]; [illegible] $100, [illegible] South America, $70,000; [illegible] $42, [illegible] $20,000. To-[illegible]

[illegible] Schools.

[illegible] of public schools [illegible] week. Several [illegible] the present [illegible] with [illegible] attend-[illegible] connection with the public schools, is mistaken in its opinion when it says, "we have reason to believe that the greater part of the High Schools were not the children of the poor;" from official sources giving the occupation of the parents of every High School pupil we ascertain that over three-fourths of these pupils are the children of poor parents, or those of limited pecuniary means, but who have an ambitious desire that their children shall have an education qualifying them for any position in life—a privilege afforded with many a deprivation on the part of the parent. The children of the wealthy class generally attend private schools, or are educated in other cities. There is not a city in the country with ten thousand inhabitants, that has not one or more High Schools. Ten years ago the average school-roll numbered about 13,000 pupils instructed at an expense of about $300,000; now the average roll is 19,000, and it is proposed to educate this number of pupils at an expense of $250,000; inevitably the result will be that a large number of pupils will be deprived of an education at the public schools.

The late school administration deserves commendation for the faithfulness with which it labored in behalf of the educational interests of the city and State. The opposition and attacks of a political party which finally by force of arms gained control of the State Government failed to obstruct the progress of the school work of the past eight years. Compare the school-roll, the school buildings, the number annually passing examination for admission to the High Schools, and the general character of the teachers with the same of eight years ago, and the comparison will prove highly complimentary to the recent school administration. Seven elegant school buildings have been added to the school accommodations; for this we are indebted to the energy and interest of Sup't. Boothby, who unearthed the McDonough Fund and induced the Commissioners to carry out the provisions of the bequest. Here it is due to Mr. Boothby, to state that he has labored faithfully and successfully during his seven years of official connection with the schools. Assuming the supervision when all the forces of prejudice and political intolerance were gathering to battle against constitutional rights, and in behalf of caste and political supremacy, he was met with by difficulties, and compelled to settle many disagreeably and vexing questions. We can safely say that his course has met with general approval.

We are deeply interested in the future welfare of our system of public education; we deeply realize the social benefits to be derived by a system which shall embrace in its provisions all classes and conditions of society. An interested people will closely observe the course of the present administration of the schools in this connection.

H. C. L.

Holly Springs District Conference.

The Holly Springs District Conference was held at the M. E. Church in the town of Grenada, Mississippi, June 14th, 15th and 16th, 1877. Rev. J. G. Johnson, Presiding Elder, in the Chair.

The Conference was opened by reading the Scriptures and singing, and prayer by Rev. Elzy Button. J. M. Shumpert was elected Sec'y, and I. B. Griffin, Assistant Secretary. Prof. Chase of the Tugaloo University, Miss., and Rev. Ellis of the A. M. E. Church were introduced. The former delivered a fine address.

The Conference was one of much interest to those present. The ministers were all in good spirit—peace and harmony prevailed.

The characters of the local preachers were closely scrutinized.

The spiritual condition of the church was found to be good. Several conversions and accessions to the church was reported.

A strong resolution on Temperance was adopted:

The benevolent enterprises of the church received attention, and steps were taken to raise funds for erecting a new building at Shaw University; it was directed that all monies collected be forwarded to the President, Rev. W. W. Hooper, Holly Springs, Miss.

Conference also recommended that a Sunday-school Institute at Holly Springs [illegible] commencing [illegible] be held [illegible] with [illegible] District, including Dr. J. H. Vincent, Corresponding Secretary of the Sunday-school Union of the M. E. Church, and the editor of SOUTH-WESTERN ADVOCATE, to attend.

[illegible] University, [illegible] late [illegible] of the [illegible] and recommending the [illegible] Conference to [illegible]

Cowan, Rising Star; Paul Taylor, Hernando Road; Henry Crayon, Salem; Peter Kirklin, Mt. Zion; Ned Peques, Wesley Chapel; Beverly Tolbot, College Hill; Simon Hill, Falkner Farm; Charley McLymore, Soule Chapel; Aaron Adams, Buffalo; John Thomas, White Chapel; P. C. Powel, Free Springs; M. M. McKenny, Hickory Grove; Wm. Murony, Columbiana; John Fitzhugh, Koscusko Circuit; A. M. Trotter, at his school; Wm. Collins, agent for Hickock & Wulden.

J. MORRIS SHUMPERT, Secretary.

Personal Immortality.

In itself, and merely for itself, death need not be terrible, and often is not. But it is the light of the higher life in Christ, which alone glorifies it. And unless this light has shone into our hearts, I know not whence hope can reach us. We may be resigned or peaceful. We may accept the inevitable with a calm front. We may be even glad to be done with the struggles of existence, and leave our names to be forgotten and our work to be done by others. We may be able to say to ourselves if not in the sense of St. Paul, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course," I am ready to lie down and die, and cease to be, if this is my fate. But in such a mood of mind there is no cheerfulness, no spring of hope. With such a thought St. Paul could neither comfort himself nor the Thessalonians. Nay, for himself he felt that he would be intensely miserable if had only such a thought "If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable."

Hope in death can only spring from the principle of personal immortality and this principle has no root save Christ. It is enough that we shall live in the memory of our friends, or that humanity shall live and flourish when we are gone. I do not say that there is no dignity in such thoughts, or ever any consolation in them to some minds. It is better to be remembered than forgotten, and have the immortality of a good name if no other. But men cannot find strength or comfort in such generalizations. They crave for personal life—for communion with other lives—and with Him who is life, and whose life is the light of men. This, and this alone, is the faith which makes men patient in trouble and hopeful in death, which sanctifies bereavement and illumes thought. Nature tells us nothing of the future. Science knows, and can know, nothing of it. On this side no voice from behind the veil ever reaches man. No sparks of immortal presage rise from the ashes of scientific analysis. All its suggestions leaves us where we are, or mockingly sift the sources of life only to hint our mortality. If we quit the living Christ, we quit all hold of the higher life. "If Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain." Heaven becomes a dumb picture; and death (euphemize it as we may) merely blank annihilation. We may say of our dear ones, as we lay them in the dust, that they have fallen asleep; but the gentle words have no meaning. The night becomes a perpetual slumber on which no morning shall ever arise. It is only in the light of the resurrection that the phrase represents a reality, and the idea of death is transfigured into a nobler life. Let us believe that behind the veil of physical change there is a spiritual Power from which we come—one who is the resurrection and the Life—and we may wait our chage, not only with resignation, but with hope, and carry our personal affections and aspirations forward to another and better being, in which they may be satisfied and made perfect.—Tulloch's Religion and Life.

In the Name of Christ.

An illiterate countryman sold a lot of fire-wood to a gentleman in the city. When the wood was delivered, the gentleman gave him a check upon a certain bank. The countryman looked at for a while, then said:" This is not money." "But if you take it to the bank," replied the gentleman, "it will get you the money." "I have no money in the bank," remarked the countryman. "Very true," answered the gentleman, but go with that piece of paper to the bank, hand it to the man behind the counter, and when he sees my name upon it, he will instantly give you the money."

When countryman went to the bank, authorized to use the name of of the gentleman, it was the same as if the gentleman himself had gone, for the name stood for the person, and the two were for the time and the purpose to be accomplished, but one. If it had not been for the name, the countryman might have begged, and entreated, and prayed for the money, until handed over to the police; but the name, the name alone, secured him audience and acceptance.

When we pray in the name of Jesus, we go to God, conscious of the fact that we deserve nothing on our own account, that we have no personal worthiness to plead, that our applications for the sake of anything in us, or anything done by us, would be utterly unavailing; but equally conscious of the blessed fact that through infinite riches of grace we are one with Christ.

The Graduating class of Indiana Asbury University contained six, [illegible] young ladies and thirty-five [illegible] gentlemen.

Sunday School.

July 15, 1877.—TURNING TO THE GENTILES.—SCRIPTURE Acts 13: 42-53.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"And in his name shall the Gentiles trust."—Matt. 12: 21.

TOPIC.—Salvation for all.

HOME READINGS.

Monday, Gen. 22: 1-18; Tuesday, Is. 45: 1-25; Wednesday, Is. 49: 1-26; Thursday, Is. 52: 1-15; Friday, Luke 2: 1-32; Saturday, Rom. 11: 1-36; Sunday, John 8: 1-20.

[Condensed from National Sunday-School Teacher.]

Persuaded them to continue in the grace of God. This was the first enquiry meeting. The enquirers were the Jews and religious proselytes who had followed Paul and Barnabas, desiring to know further of the matters he had preached. He persuaded them to hold on to the word of life that had been given them. A little persuasion, just at that critical time when one is balancing the question in his mind of deciding for Christ, may help him to settle it rightly and settle it forever. Too often, however, our ministers never know, and do not take pains to know, what effect their sermons have produced. Many have been wounded by the arrows of the gospel truth they have sent, but have kept their hurt to themselves until the pain has ceased, and they become more insensible to truth than before. In some way every pastor should try to make sure of the effect of his words. To continue. It is good to knock at the gate unless one enters the kingdom. It is not worth while to begin unless one is going to persevere. It is a life service—not a temporary experience. It is he that endureth to the end that shall be saved. To him that is faithful unto death God will give a crown of life. In the grace of God. They had been trying to continue in the law of God—how much easier to persevere under grace instead of law! It is a marvel of marvels that there are so many who still deliberately choose the bondage of the law when they might have the liberty there is under grace.

Came almost the whole city. It was the day of crisis. Great results depended on the issue of its events. All sorts of people, both Jews and Gentiles, came together. That shows there must have been some work done during the week. Paul and Barnabas and those whose faith they had confirmed, all must have been at work proclaiming the truth as it is in Christ. Public congregations are always increased where people are everywhere privately conversed with.

Resisting (45-47).—When the Jews saw the multitude, they were filled with envy. One would think that they ought to have been glad. But so inwrought had the idea become that they were God's chosen people and that all others were irremedinbly aliens to the commonwealth of God, or were to be admitted to it only as a great favor, superciliously given, their pride was roused to think that Paul and Barnabas had cast a net and had enclosed the Gentiles in it along with themselves, and were trying to bring them all into the kingdom as if they were alike sinners. To accept salvation as a personal and exclusive prerogative is an easy [illegible] flattery [illegible] right to it [illegible] uncircumcised, [illegible] unwashed Gentiles was a terrible hurt to Jewish self-esteem.

Then Paul and Barnabas waxed bold. They did not wax angry. How different the outcome would have been had they also become passionate. But the spirit of the new religion was in them. They became bold in their speech—not angrily reckless. The opposition did not terrify but only evoked the courage they had in Christ. The one who believes that he can do all things through Christ that strengtheneth him, in the hour of danger shows a heroism that dazzles and compels admiration. It was necessary that the word of God should first have been spoken to you. That was God's plan. For ages he had spoken in to Jewish ears only. It was meet that his chosen people should be the first to hear this gracious message. Christ therefore commanded his disciples that repentance and remission of sins should be preached to all nations, "beginning at Jerusalem." Luke 24: 47.

Lo, we turn to the Gentiles. This turning from the Jews to the Gentiles had been forshadowed centuries before. The very feeling of these reviling Jews was portrayed by Moses: "I will move them to jealousy with those which are not a people." Deut. 32: 21. Christ had told their countrymen: "The kingdom of God shall be taken from you and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof." Matt. 21: 43. Love and obedience are the only proofs in God's eyes of primogeniture. They gone—the inheritance is forfeited.

Regenerated (48-52).—The Gentiles were glad. It must have been a thrilling part of the discourse when Paul turned from the Jews and threw wide open the door of the kingdom to the Gentiles. If the Jews were enraged, the latter must be enraptured. They glorified the word of the Lord—for they recognized it to be his word and not merely that of Paul. They rejoiced, not because the Jews of Antioch were given over, but because they were counted worthy to receive such honor. And as many as were ordained to eternal life believed. The passage does not conflict with man's free will. It does not assert that it was by irresistible decree that these men believed. It is to be construed along with those other passages in the New Testament which represent faith as the result of divine grace working in the heart. 2: 47; I Cor. 3: 6; Phil. 2: 13; Rom. 8: 29-31. Two things are necessary to salvation: God's grace working in the heart and man's acceptance of it. Believed. The liberalism of that day tended toward a belief in the word, instead of toward a rejection of it. And the word of the Lord was published throughout all the region. The new Gentile converts were its joyful heralds. The enthusiasm of their natal hour was carried out into work. Having themselves heard the wonderful story, they wanted others to hear it; having believed, they desired to have others believe; being themselves saved, they were anxious to save others. Such sort of converts are everywhere wanted in the church.

No doubt the new converts were pained to see these beloved brethren expelled from the city. No doubt but what they sorrowed when they departed. But yet we are met with the declaration: "And the disciples were filled with joy and with the Holy Ghost." They were not discouraged by their being driven away. The Holy Spirit comforted them and more than filled their place. Their joy under the circumstances shows that they were converted, not to Paul and Barnabas, but to Christ. The closing thought is worth dwelling upon—"filled with joy and with the Holy Ghost." When one is filled with the Holy Spirit, there is no room, then, for sorrow. To be filled with His presence is to be filled with joy unutterable.

President Hayes has just issued the following important order, which will be read with interest by many people besides the office-holders to whom it refers: Executive Mansion, Washington, June 22d, 1877. Sir: I desire to call your attention to the following paragraph in a letter addressed by me to the Secretary of the Treasury on the conduct to be observed by officers of the General Government in relation to the elections: "No officer should be required or permitted to take part in the management of political organizations, caucuses, conventions, or election campaigns. Their right to vote and to express their views on public questions, either orally or through the press, is not denied, provided it does not interfere with the discharge of their official duties. No assessment for political purposes on officers or subordinates should be allowed." This rule is applicable to every department of the civil service. It should be understood by every officer of the General Government that he is expected to conform his conduct to its requirements.

Very respectfully,
R. B. HAYES.

The Atlantic Cable.

How long does it take to transmit a message through the Atlantic cable?—The New York Journal of Commerce has been investigating this question, and simple as it looks at first sight, there are many singular and interesting points in the answer. When the electricity is applied to the cable at one end, two-tenths of a second pass before any effect is felt at the other end, and three seconds are consumed before the full force of the current is in action. The first signal is felt in four-tenths of a second, but the following [illegible] more rapidly. As many as seventeen words have been sent over the cable in one minute, [illegible] can usually be sent under pressure, and twelve words a minute is a good working rate. Messages of twelve words have been sent all the way from New York to London in two minutes. A fact not yet explained by the scientists is that the electricity does not move as rapidly from New York to London as in the opposite direction.

It is said that since President Hayes was inaugurated one thousand clerks have been discharged from the departments at Washington, resulting in a saving to the government of more than four thousand dollars a day.

DIED

At Cotton Gin, Texas, (date not given) Rev. Henry McDonald.

Brother McD, was appointed only on the first of May last to the circuit. He was a good man—faithful and true. His death is a great loss to the Church, as well as to the community at large. He died at his post in full triumph of faith. He leaves a wife and three children.

V. M. COLE.

What the Billious Require.

Since torpidity of the liver is the chief cause of its disorder, it is evident that what the bilious require is an alternative stimulant which will arouse it to activity, an effect that is followed by the disappearance of the various symptoms as indicative of its derangement. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters invariably achieve the primary result mentioned, besides removing constipation, flatulence, heart-burn, yellowness of the skin and whites of the eyes, pain in the right side and under the right shoulder, nausea, vertigo and sick headache, to which bilious invalids are peculiarly subject. As a remedy for chronic indigestion, mental despondency and nervousness the Bitters are equally efficacious, and as a renovant of lost vigor, a [illegible] and a source of relief from the infirmities to which the gentler sex is peculiarly subject, they may be thoroughly relied upon.

Wonderful, Most Wonderful.

A neighbor of ours has been for several years afflicted with consumption, and for months was so low that we looked daily for her death, but strange as it seems to us, three bottles of Cannabis Indica has so far restored her, that she is now able to do her housework. I have always been prejudiced against patent medicines, but seeing the remarkable effect your remedies have had upon Mrs. Fielder, and having a similar case in my own family, I have inclosed $18.00 for 6 syrup, 4 ointment and a box of pills hoping to obtain the same benefits, I am, respectfully,

D. B. BAILEY,
GARDNER, Grundy Co., Ill., May 20, 1877.

N. B.—This remedy speaks for itself. A single bottle will satisfy the most skeptical. We know that it positively cures Consumption, and will break up a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. $2.50 per bottle, or three for $6.50. Pills and Ointment, $1.25 each. Address CRADDOCK & CO., 1032 Race Street, Philadelphia, Penn. June 14.

Quarterly Meetings.

Murfreesboro (Tenn.) Dist.

FOURTH ROUND.

McMinnville, July 5 and 6; McMinnville Circuit, July 7 and 8; Shelbyville, July 14 and 15; Lewisburg, 21 and 22; Springhill 21 and 22; Franklin, 25 and 26; Mill Creek, 28 and 29; Woodbury, August 2 and 3; Stone River, 4 and 5; Murfreesboro Circuit, August 9 and 10; Murfreesboro, August 11 and 12; Alexandria, August 15 and 16; Carthage, August 18 and 19; Lebanon, August 25 and 26; North Lebanon, August 29 and 30; Hartsville, September 1 and 2; Gallatin, September 1 and 2; Mitchellsville, September 8 and 9; Springfield, September 15 and 16; Dickson, September 22 and 23; Nashville Circuit, September 25 and 27; Clark Chapel 29 and 30.

C. PICKETT, P. E.

Memphis (Tenn.,) Dist.

FOURTH ROUND.

Memphis, July 7; Adamsville, July 14; Shiloh, July 16; White Sulphur, July 18; Saltillo July 21; Lexington July 25; Decaturville, July 28; Camden, August 1; Clarksburg, August 4; Benton, August 8; Weakley, August 11; Alamo, August 15; Lake, August 18; Carroll and Huntingdon, August 25; Dickson September 1; Dickson circuit, September 5; Buffalo, September 8; Wayne, September 12; Indian Creek, September 15; Lawrenceburg, September 22.

The Memphis district Sunday-school Extension Society, composed of the members of the district conference, will hold its second session at White Sulphur, Hardin county, July 17th to 20th. Opening service, 17th, at 8 o'clock p. m.

The district conference will meet at Shoat's Creek, Giles county, September 26th. Opening sermon at 7 o'clock p. m., by Rev. E. N. Williams.

J. L. CHANDLER, P. E.

Houston, (Texas) District.

THIRD ROUND.

Richmond and Forest Chapel, July 1-2; Church Houston, July 7-8; Edwards Chapel, July 9-10; Harrisburg and West Point, July 14-15; Columbia and Brazoria, July 21-22; 1st Church Houston, August 4-5; Spring Creek, 25-26; East Church Tabernacle, September 1-2; Galveston, Spaffords, September 8-9; Cypress, September, 15-16; Oyster Creek, September 22-23.

W. L. MOLLOY, P. E.

Marshall (Tex.) District.

THIRD ROUND.

Coffeeville, June 30-July 1; Marion, July 7-8; Marshall, July 14-15; Jefferson, Circuit July 21-22; Jefferson, July 28-29; Hickory Grove, July 28-29; Clarksville, August 4-5th; Union, August 4-5; Paris July 11th-12; Quitman, Aug. 18-19; Vannoy, Aug. [illegible], Sept 1st. 2nd; Sulphur Springs, Sept. 8-9th; Mt. Pleasant, Sept. 15-16.

F. C. MOORE, P. E.

Holly Springs (Miss.) District.

SECOND ROUND.

Mt. Pleasant, July 7-8; Kosciusko, July 14-15; French Camp, July 16-17; Greensboro, July 17-19, Winona and Vaiden 21-22; Duck Hill, July 26-27; Grenada, July 28-29; Grenada Circuit, July 28-29; Oxford, Aug. 4-5; New Albany, Aug. 8-9; Ripley, Aug. Hickory Flat, Aug. 15; Holly Springs Aug. 18-19; Byhalia, Aug. 21-22; Chulahoma, Aug. 24; Abbeville, Aug. 25-26; Eliza, Aug. 30 and Sept 1st. First District Conference for Holly Springs District will meet on the 14th day of June, at Grenada; all the brethren are requested to be present.

J. G. JOHNSON, P. E.

Greenswood (Miss.) District.

(Second Round.)

Wesley Chapel, 9 and 10th of June; Silver Creek, 16th and 17th of June; Yazoo City, 23rd and 24th of June; Piney Grove, 30th of June and 1st of July; Dessonville, 7th and 8th of July; Pickens, 14 and 15 of July; Lexington, 21st and 22d of July; Goodman, 28th and 29th of July; Jones Chapel, 4th and 5th of August; McNutt, 11th and 12th of August; Caney Creek, 18th and 19th of August; New Midway, 25th and 26th of August; Hernando, 1st and 2d of September; Panola, 8th and 9th of September; Cold Water, 15th and 16th of September; Walnut City, 22nd and 23d of Sept; Shiloh 26th and 30th Sept.

J. W. DUNN, P. E.

Meridian (Miss.) District.

Rome, June 23-24; Ex-Prairie, June 30 and July 1; Macon, July 7-8; Shuqualak, July 11-12; DeKalb, July 14-15; Lauderdale July 21-22; Daleville, July 24-25; Meridian 28-29; Meridian Circuit August 4-5; Quitman August 11-12; Shubuta Circuit, August 15-16; State Line, Aug. 18-19; Shubuta, August 21-22; Enterprise Circuit, Aug. 25-26; Enterprise, Aug. 28-29.

M. ADAMS, P. E.

San Antonio (Tex.) District.

Sutherland Springs, June 23-24; Nockernut, July 1; Cibolo, July 4 and 5; Riddleville, July 4 and 5; Lavernia, 7 and 8; Goliad Circuit, July 11 and 12; Belmont, July 14 and 15; Refugio, July 18 and 19; Wrightsboro, July 21 and 22; Goliad, July 28 and 29.

D. GREGORY, P. E.

"The principle of combining English and American writers in a common literary enterprise, merits all encouragement."—J. Anthony Froude.

THE INTERNATIONAL REVIEW,
A NEW YORK AND LONDON REVIEW.

EMINENT CONTRIBUTORS ON BOTH SIDES OF THE ATLANTIC. (No articles at second hand. All articles original.)

CONTENTS.—MAY-JUNE—NOW READY.

The New Administration.
The Life Insurance Question. Carlton T. Lewis.
The Establishment of the Church of England. Dr. James H. Rigg, London.
The Philadelphia Exhibition.—Part I. [illegible] and Administration. Francis A. [illegible], Chief of the Bureau of Awards.
Tennyson.—A Criticism. Bayard Taylor.
Our Foreign Service. Hon. John Jay.
American and European Literature. Phillip Gilbert Hamerton.
Contemporary Events.

Price, Single Number, $1. For six months, $3. Annual subscription (6 numbers) $5.
New York: A. S. BARNES & CO. Publishers.
apr[illegible]

"HEAVENWARD."

The new book of Sunday-school songs, by James R. Murray, P. P. Bliss, and other favorite writers, including the best Hymns and Music of the late P. P. BLISS.

This is the only New Song Book containing Mr. Bliss' best Songs—the ones that have made his name famous throughout Europe and America.

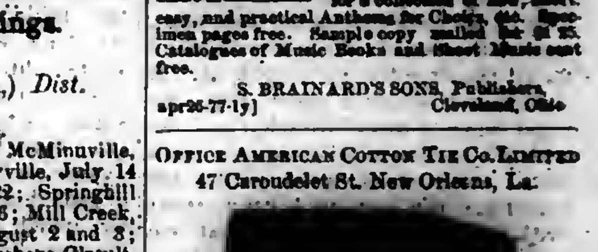
The verdict of all who examine "HEAVENWARD" is, "it is unequaled by any other Sunday-school Music Book." A single sample copy, in paper covers, mailed for 25 cents. Price—in boards, 35 cents. $30 per hundred. Order from your bookseller.

SONGS OF FAITH
For REVIVAL, PRAISE or CAMP MEETINGS.
A collection of new Gospel Hymns and Sacred Songs by the best writers, including Moody and Sankey's favorite songs. Words and Music, 35 cents; $30 per hundred. Words only, 6 cents; $5 hundred. Send for sample.

New Anthem Book—Ready July 1st.
CHAPEL ANTHEMS By Dr. J. B. Herbert, assisted by the best writers of the day. Will supply a long-felt need for a collection of new, short, easy, and practical Anthems for Choirs, etc. Specimen pages free. Sample copy mailed for $1.25. Catalogues of Music Books and Sheet Music sent free.

S. BRAINARD'S SONS, Publishers, Cleveland, Ohio.
apr26-77-1y]

OFFICE AMERICAN COTTON TIE CO. LIMITED
47 Carondelet St. New Orleans, La.



In view of the constantly increasing popularity and demand for the Celebrated Arrow Tie, the universally recognized favorite Tie of Planters, Cotton Pressmen and Shippers of Cotton generally, the American Cotton Tie Co., Limited, sole proprietors and manufacturers of said Tie, commanding unequalled facilities, have, in addition to the large stock now on hand, contracted for increased quantities, sufficient to meet the largest demand for Cotton Ties, to cover the entire crop of the coming season, and now, through their Agents generally, offer the popular and irrepressible ARROW TIE at $2.50 per bundle, less 2½ per cent. discount for cash, in Bundles complete, being less than the market value of plain hoop iron; and it being the purpose of the Company to merit the continued patronage of the Planting community and to defy all competition that may arise; their Agents are instructed to contract with Dealers, Factors and country Merchants at the above named price and terms for future delivery up to the first of August in quantities as may be required from time to time, settlements being made on delivery.

R. W. RAYNE, & CO., GENERAL MANAGERS, New Orleans, La.
je-21-77-1y]

SOUTHWESTERN AGENCY FOR School and College Text Books.

[illegible] CAMP STREET [illegible]

Below we submit the MODEL SERIES of books (so conceded by the leading educators of this country) for use in PRIMARY, INTERMEDIATE and GRAMMAR schools. To [illegible] their adoption by the progressive teacher we [illegible] to ask a careful comparison with books of a [illegible] grade, a critical examination and a thorough practical test in the class-room:

	Prices.
Harper's Introductory Geography	50
Harper's School Geography	$1 25
" United States First Reader	15
" " " Second "	25
" " " Third "	37
" " " Fourth "	56
" " " Fifth "	75
" " " Sixth "	90
Wilson's Primary Speller	15
" Larger "	20
" New "	34
Lamson's Penmanship, per dozen	1 00
French's First Lessons in Numbers	25
" Elementary Arithmetic	37
" Mental Arithmetic	35
" Common School Arithmetic	70
Swinton's Language Primer	30
" Language Lessons	[illegible]
" School Composition	37
" Progressive Grammar	55

Catalogues, circulars, and testimonials sent on applications. Correspondence solicited and will receive prompt attention, when addressed

W. P. ROGERS & W. L. JARVIS, Agents for the introduction of Harper & Brothers' Educational Works, New Orleans, La., Lock Box 134.

Hospital College of Medicine.
(The clinical School of the West.)
Med. Dept. of Central Univ., Louisville, Ky.

Distinctive features: A thorough didactic course, unsurpassed clinical facilities, eighteen clinics per week, the student being daily required to examine and prescribe, a high standard of graduation, both a didactic and a practical clinical examination being required.

For catalogues and information concerning special advantages address

DR. W. H. BOLLING, DEAN, Cor. Third and Jefferson Sts., Louisville, Ky.

Texas Lands.
Best Investment in the Nation!

640 acres rich prairie loam, producing cotton, grains, fruit and vegetables, and adapted to stock, lying in the high and healthful latitude of Northwestern Texas, for the nominal sum of $[illegible].

Title Patent, direct and perfect. Taxes low. Worth several times the cost. Now is your time to plant a small sum fruitfully. No fraud. All work personally supervised. Handled in the interest of education in Texas. Full particulars furnished on application, (with stamps).

References: Rev. Wm. Brush, D.D., P. E. Austin District, Austin, Texas; First National Bank, Dallas, Texas; State Savings Bank, Dallas, Texas, or editor of this paper. Address

REV. L. H. CARHART, West Texas Conference.
Box 377, Dallas, Texas. [al9-tf

F. F. HANSELL,
JAS. A. GRESHAM, Manager.
BOOK-SELLERS, PRINTERS, AND STATIONERS.
No. 30 CAMP STREET,

Would respectfully announce to the readers of the ADVOCATE their facilities for doing all kinds of Printing and Job Work for PARTIES, BALLS, and BUSINESS PURPOSES.

Methodist Hymn Books, Disciplines and Bibles
Will be furnished at Northern Prices.
FAMILY BIBLES,
from $2 50 to $10 00. Orders from the country will receive prompt attention, and all orders filled as low as if brought in person.

Address, as above, F. F. HANSELL, 30 Camp street, New Orleans, La.
Lock Box 84. [jal4-77-1m.]

$66 a week in your own town. Terms and outfit free. H. Hallett & Co. Portland, Maine.

E. D. ELLIOTT, PRINTER, 38 Natchez st., New Orleans.

THE WATCH.

[illegible]

His trusty hand on his side was pressed,
And he heard, for a moment, a listening ear;
"Mother," he cried, "I've got a watch!
I can feel it ticking right under here."

[illegible] God has made,
[illegible] away
[illegible] day.

[illegible] run-down,
[illegible] thing."

[illegible] wound,
[illegible] long it would.

Oysters, Give Attention.

[illegible] attention to what you hear. We are [illegible] given to see with, [illegible] things are around us all the time for us to look at. If we would know a good deal, we must learn to attend to what we see. Give attention to what you hear. Oysters were made for great [illegible] we attention. [illegible] you what [illegible] heard, therefore, [illegible] the world. We [illegible] be [illegible], or Asia, or [illegible] but we can take [illegible] them, and [illegible] books and read [illegible] come to [illegible] them. Our [illegible] and we close [illegible] become wise [illegible] a great deal, [illegible] attention to what they hear, and [illegible] ever so many [illegible] and it only [illegible] nothing [illegible] and [illegible] and re- [illegible] Not and [illegible] all their own. [illegible] he always fixes himself on his round shell, never on his flat shell; and being once fixed, he begins to grow, but he only grows in summer. Inspect an oyster closely, and it will be seen that it is marked with distinct lines. As the rings we observe in the section of the trunk of a tree denote years of growth, so does the marking of an oyster tells us how many years he has passed in his "bed" at the bottom of the sea. Suppose an oyster was born in June 16, 1870, he would go on growing up to the first line we see well marked, he would then stop for the winter. In the summer 1871 he would more than double his size, in 1872 he would add to this house. In 1873 and 1874 he would again go on building, till he was dredged up in the middle of his work in 1875, when he would be five and a half years old. The way in which an oyster builds his shell is a pretty sight. I have watched it frequently. The beard or fringe of an oyster is not only his breathing organ, but his feeding organ also, by which he conveys the food to his complicated mouth with his four lips. When the warm, calm days of June come, the oyster opens his shell, and, by means of his fringe, begins building an additional story to his house. This he does by depositing very fine particles of carbonate of lime, till they at last form a substance as thin as silver paper and exceedingly fragile; then he adds more and more, till at last the new shell is at least as hard as the old shell. When oysters are growing in their shells they must be handled very carefully, as the new growth of shell will cut like broken glass, and the wound on the finger from an oyster shell is often very troublesome.

[illegible] oyster looks [illegible] Bennet [illegible] Louisville Courier-Journal.

LOST FRIENDS.

Note—We receive many letters asking for information about lost friends. All such letters will be inserted in this column. We make no charge for such notices. All others will pay 10 cents a line for each insertion. Parties inquiring for persons who have friends in the Confederacy will be required to give the name of a person in the Confederacy.

My parents were George and Emily Smith, and formerly lived in Bath Co., Kentucky. My father belonged to Ben Smith, but was sold to Jim Stone. I had two brothers named Berry and Marion. I will be thankful for information [illegible] of them. Address [illegible] Smith, Hallettsville, Lavaca Co., Texas.

[illegible] sisters and myself were brought to Texas from Georgia by [illegible] in 1859. When he [illegible] next year we were separated. Sister Clara and her two children, Randall and Laura, were sold to Mr. Michael, who took them to Waco. Sister Lucy, and her three children, Vicey, Ellen, and Warren, were sold to Mr. Fleming at Rank, [illegible] Williams, Centerville, Leon Co., Texas.

[illegible] Jackson

Route.

TO THE FRONT AGAIN.

This old favorite passenger route has been greatly improved with [illegible] bridges and [illegible] run with [illegible] time. Connections are made in Louisville and Cincinnati with the [illegible] Pacific, Chicago and Illinois Central, Louisville and Nashville, Louisville and Cincinnati Short Line, Ohio and Mississippi, Louisville and Frankfort, Louisville and Lexington

Southwestern Christian Advocate.

NEW SERIES—VOL. 1—NO. 28. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, JULY 12, 1877. WHOLE NUMBER 258.

SOUTHWESTERN
Christian Advocate,
[illegible]
NELSON & PHILLIPS,
[illegible]

[illegible]

... personal rights, the good order of society, the very preservation of civilization itself have always inspired to replace the Empire. In such dreadful struggle brains, education and wealth have always at the last gone to the top. In such struggle they always will. For educated brain is always at last a mightier force than mere brain and muscle. But such alternative is terrible. It involves long steps backward from liberty towards absolutism. There is no inherent need that the many should be serfs in order that the few may be free. Better and higher is that ideal which finds expression in constitutional popular government, where the absolute and self-evident rights of each are recognized and implanted in the organic law, where every citizen may vote, where within the limits of the organic law the majority bear rule.

But the very statement of this problem seems to be full demonstration that the first, the essential, the absolute need of our Republic is the general, systematic and thorough education of our people. The school-house is the only corner-stone upon which popular government can be safely built. That State which would remain free must deserve to be free by being fit for freedom.

Students of the Mississippi University, this institution of yours was the gift of the Nation through liberal donation of public lands. The trust was accepted and is managed by your State. As you have freely received so let it be your duty and your joy to freely give. At this shrine where Nation and State have kindled the sacred fires of learning, you light your torches. As you take them, going forth to your life-labors, let it be your priceless privilege to pass to others the flame you bear. To you who have learned the strength which knowledge gives, who, by studying the great thoughts of others, have learned to think broadly and deeply for yourselves, to you with most hearty earnestness I give this charge to-day. As educated men hold yourselves, each in his place, personally responsible for the free common schools of your respective States and neighborhoods. Where they exist foster, develop and improve them. Where they are not, then plant them. Thus shall you pay the debt which as scholars and men you owe alike to Mississippi and to the Nation for the higher education you have here enjoyed.

This is the need, not of Mississippi alone, but of the Republic. Upon each [illegible] in all the land this [illegible] shall press with steadily increasing force so long as the Nation shall endure. It presses upon us, who dwell by the distant sea-board where come the immigrants by thousands from the old lands of Europe, and upon those who, in great cities and in factory towns and crowded mining districts, are compelled to [illegible] by peaceful and constitutional methods we can change the popular vote and repeal or amend laws that seem to us unwise or hurtful. Had our wish succeeded and our will been coined into law, we should have expected our fellows to submit. Else why go through the farce of voting and making law? If they succeed ought we not by logic to submit ourselves? Obedience to law means social order. Disobedience means anarchy. Social order means peaceful prosecution of business, the quiet enjoyment of home, the protection of all the interests of labor and the safe pursuit by each of his own happiness. Where laws are faithfully obeyed and impartially enforced the wisdom of each good law is self approved, and the folly of unwise laws and the evil of bad laws become clear to all. Enforce a bad law and the people will awaken to the need of its repeal. But dead laws are like dead wood, encumbrance on the statute book and invitation to worms and decay. The man who substitutes his own will for the will of the many, and as the phrase goes "takes the law into his own hands," is a bad citizen, and he who acquiesces in the violence of his neighbor is a weak citizen. (Applause.)

I can conceive conditions of border life where there is no regularly organized society, where there are no courts and no judges, where the instinct of self-preservation compels quick, certain measures to be promptly taken that violence may be repressed and crime punished. But such action, while not of the form is of the essence of law. It is only justified as it is the best administration of law of which the case is capable. But the disregard of law and its forceful, open, deliberate and unpunished violation is brutalizing to the community in which it occurs, and very demoralizing in its general effects. Thoughtful monarchists and disbelievers in popular government may well ask whether the aristocratic system that denies to a man the ballot, but protects his person and property, is not better than the popular system that gives him a ballot and then permits his neighbor to burn his home or take his life unhindered and unpunished?

This need of faithful obedience to law and impartial enforcement of law is not confined to any State or community. If I were asked to point out the greatest present danger to our popular institutions, I should say at once that it lies in our habitual disregard of our personal duty to obey and enforce law.

We are too frequently in the habit of asking: is this law wise or right? Instead of asking "what is the law?" If it be law, obey it as law while it remains on the statute book, and then, having vindicated the majesty of the law, change or repeal it as legal opportunity is given. But no thoughtful man can read the daily press without being painfully conscious of the lawless spirit that is abroad in the land. The record is full of crimes, of brutality, and deeds of violence that sicken our souls and disgrace our civilization. They are common to no one section. They are confined to no one State. They are alike in kind but vary as [illegible] according to the [illegible] and ignorance of the locality. In California it is an outbreak of the Christian mob against the heathen Chinese. In New England it is the physical effort of a mass of striking operatives to deny to each laborer his right to solve for himself the question of his own wages. In Pennsylvania it takes the terrible form of oath-bound societies among the poor ignorant miners. In the North these violent outbreaks mostly spring from questions of labor. In the South they seem mostly to have grown from questions of personal quarrel, or of race and politics. But underneath them all lies the one fact, disregard of the majesty and sanctions of law; the constant disposition to use force instead of reason, to substitute the passion of the few for the law, that embodies the will of the many, and in proportion as any community either approves or assents to the disregard of law is such disregard [illegible]. Where the law is violated, and no attempt is made to punish the violation or even ascertain the violator, great and permanent wrong is done, a wrong to the public conscience and to the public welfare.

Each deed of violence invites retaliation. "He that taketh the sword shall perish by the sword." It also pays its penalty in material loss. Society avenges itself, for capital and labor will not go where their fruit and wages are not secure.

Look for one moment at the cold logic of this matter. If I think that you have done me wrong and attempt to make your punishment into [illegible] then the question of whether you shall be punished or [illegible] question of my physical [illegible]. Justice becomes only [illegible]. Mercy only a [illegible] of weakness. If the right [illegible] or time or wind, and the [illegible] and able bodied [illegible] goes down and the [illegible] both [illegible] judge and [illegible] I know that this is not liberty. It is simply the grossest form of tyranny. If you live under forms of law then is their observance liberty, and he who overrides them to right his real or fancied wrong with his own strong arm, becomes thereby the enemy of society. Nay more, he becomes at the last his own worst enemy. For he has logically put himself and his own rights at the mercy of any of his fellows who may be stronger. Of such laws and under such rule Samson is indeed judge in Israel. And such rule shall end as ended his. With blinded eyes brute force shall toil in the prison house of its own passion. With vengeful fury seeking to overwhelm its foes, it shall perish in the ruins of its own making.

No. Let such rude logic be forever of the past. It was born of the night and is not for the day. Let reason have away and let the law be reverently obeyed. (Applause). Its faithful observance is the safety of society and the only sure protection of the many as of the few; of the highest as of the weakest. (Applause.)

It is the law that guarded your cradles and keeps safe your homes. It is the law that protects alike the earnings of your hands and the fruits of your highest culture and best thought. It is the law that watches beside your school houses and your churches; that makes your liberty possible and keeps our civilization from falling back into the rudeness of barbaric days. As educated men you, with your educated brothers all over the land, are the especial ministers of the law, the keepers of its sacred temple, the guardians of its majesty. If anywhere and at any time we shall fail, by teaching or example, to obey and to enforce the laws of our land, upon us shall rest the burden and the guilt of duty neglected and betrayed. (Applause.)

* * *

Young men of Mississippi, I thank you most heartily for this privilege of meeting you. In all the years before us, I pray that you may be truly wise in doing all that in you lies for the cause of popular education, for the welfare of your common schools. I pray that you may be truly just in giving sure and faithful obedience to the law, the highest form of popular authority. I pray that you may be truly free in being tolerant to all, in bravely securing to each man his own right of private judgment and his individual liberty of thought, word and deed. (Applause.)

And now the hour is come to part. Thanks for your greeting and still heartier thanks for your patient listening.

Reverently let me say, as thus we bid one other good-bye, may God bless Mississippi. May equal blessing be upon my own New York. May still fuller and richer blessing be upon our Union, which is once again the common mother, as it shall surely be again the common glory of us all. [Enthusiastic cheering and applause, repeated and prolonged.]

The Highest Bridge.

Successful tests of the highest railroad bridge in the world, on the line of the Southern Railroad and across the Kentucky River, were made April 20th.

There were seven of them. Six were weight tests in different parts of the bridge, made by running engines and loaded cars upon different portions of the structure. The first, for instance, consisted in putting four locomotives and four loaded cars on the north span, with a combined weight of 782,000 pounds. The next was the same weight on the south span, then on the middle span, and then at other points with the weight divided. As each test was completed the four engines waked the birds and squirrels as they were never waked before by a concert of whistles. One of the tests used a weight of 1,012,000 pounds. When a test was completed accurate measurements were taken to show the exact effect upon the structure. From these notes, taken by a half dozen assistants, a tabulated statement may in a few days be made up, which will tell a clear story to those who have studied bridge-building. To the ordinary mortal it is sufficient to know that the bridge withstood all these tests without breaking down. The last test was the most exciting. An engine and twenty-four loaded cars came upon the bridge at a rate equal to twenty miles an hour. A brakeman was placed on each car; when the train was all on the bridge a whistle was sounded, all the brakes were applied, the engine was reversed, and the train was stopped within the space of one hundred feet. This time the cheering was done by the crowds on the banks. The bridge had been tried in every conceivable way, and had been found to be safe! There is no railroad bridge in the world so high as this one. One in Switzerland is 254 feet, but has only 144 feet span. Another in Varrugas, South America, is 252 feet high, with 120 feet span, while this one is 275 feet high, with 375 feet span.

By Lamplight.

THE MINISTRY, No. 3.

To what is the minister called? To answer negatively; he is not called to discuss questions of science, in the pulpit, nor to preach the burning of a theatre, the wrecking of a ship, the terrors of an earthquake, nor the results of the war now raging between Russia and Turkey. He is not called to preach, only, in the best appointments, where the salary is ample and paid regularly, where the social standing of the charge is excellent, the people cultured, and appreciative of nicely formed sentences, and where the refined sensibilities of the humble follower of the Master, will not be shocked by coming in contact with the boorishness of common people. He is not called to the city only. There are the hills, the valleys, the forests, the plains, the mountains, where multitudes are waiting to hear more of the plan of salvation. He is not called to preach only to the rich. He is not called to preach only in the neighborhood of his home, or of his farm, or of the place where his business can yield him greatest profit. He is called to preach the Gospel, as found in the Bible and nowhere else. It is scattered from Genesis to Revelation, making a grand whole, so perfect that the Author has said that: "If any man shall add unto these things, God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book." The minister cannot afford to give importance to the various phases of infidelity, even if they take on them the garb of science, so called. How far it may be his duty to allude to the discussions that are going on in certain monthlies, must be determined by the circumstances, and the common sense of the preacher. The Bible is its own defender. Let it speak for itself. Let its scope be fully explained. Let its adaptation to the wants of the race be clearly set forth; its teachings concerning God and man, their relations, man's duty to God, results of his obedience or disobedience, with his destiny, as provided for through the Cross. It is ignorance of this Book that leads a preacher to go outside of the Bible for topics that will be of spiritual benefit to his flock.

Jesus, not the preacher, is to choose the field of labor. Christ said: "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel." The field is the world. To this field, the man called of God to preach must look, and see where laborers are most needed, where the Macedonian cry for help rises the strongest, where the multitudes are going down to death in the thickest darkness, and where there are fewest rays of Gospel truth piercing the gloom. It is not the privilege of the called to dictate as to his own field. It may be pleasant to remain near at home, but the Master says: "He that loveth father or mother more than me, is not worthy of me." It may be that the young man may find his health, or his family circumstances, or some other hindrance in the way, so that he cannot say to the Church: "I am ready to go wherever needed." Is it not best under such circumstances for him to labor as a layman, until the obstacle is removed, or if not removed, to conclude that he is released from the call to enter this work. It is said that there are more young men ready to enter the ministry, in some parts of the country, than there are places to be filled; that some conferences have more applicants than can be received. Has there been any mistake made in calling more than is needed for the work, or are these laborers choosing their own field? Does the Lord of the harvest know how many men are required? Then there is plenty of work for all whom he has called. Each one can find room in some part of the field. "Where wilt thou have me to work," becomes as important an inquiry as "What wilt thou have me to do?" If a man is called to preach the Gospel, there is a place for him, a place where he is needed; where he can do good, and where he will be adapted to the people. The places that are open may not be inviting, as fields to display literary acquisitions, or in which to acquire a reputation for profound thinking, or a high order of pulpit eloquence, but no better field will be found, in which to try the power of the Gospel, and earnest Christian labor to lead men to the Savior. It may be that the young man shrinks from the rough work suggested by a field which no one wants, which brings only a sigh of pity, from the friend who learns of his going to such a charge. But there are souls there for whom Christ died. Souls that may be filled with the Holy Ghost, and make the desert around them bloom like Eden. The field is not able to afford a comfortable support. True; but are there no more sacrifices to be made to carry the Word to the destitute? Are we to wait until every part of the field will afford each laborer a comfortable support, before entering it? Is there to be no more going out and laboring, trusting God for daily bread? Are the days past when men can live in the saddle, or from house to house while working for Jesus? If this promises hard work, small, unappreciative congregations, no cozy study, with gown and slippers, no fixed place of abode, no associations with the cultured, no opportunity to secure the latest magazines and most recent publications, no promise of a vacation, with money to take the European tour, nothing but labor and poverty before him. Let him remember that: "The disciple is not above his master, nor the servant above his lord." It is enough for the disciple that he be as his master, and the servant as his lord.

J. BRADEN.

Nashville, Tenn., July 2d, 1877.

West Tenn. Dist. Conference.

The following is the programme of literary exercises of the West Tennessee District Conference, which will convene for its tenth semi-annual session, on the 12th day of September 1877, at Gardner's Station:

Opening Sermon, H. Primm; Secrets of Ministerial Success, W. S. Butler; Church Literature and its adaptation to the people, H. W. Key; Glory of the Inner Man, M. Morrison; Methodist Doctrine of Falling from Grace, L. M. Moore; Benevolent Collections, Jesse F. Price; Sunday-school Work, J. B. Bradford; Sermon from Methodist History, James Walker; Dreams and Religion in Olden Times, Wm. Dwegans; Miracles of Christ, Charles Gilbert; Salvation by Faith, T. F. Towns; Central Tennessee College Educational Association, N. Thompson; Second Coming of Christ, H. Burnes; Walking by Faith, H. Moody; Home Religion, H. Carter; Prevailing Prayer, D. C. Cook; The Church for the education and improvement of the Colored Race, A. O. Williams; Prof. C. E. Alexander will present a report of the progress and success of the preparatory school.

Where no themes were assigned, the brethren will please select their own subjects and be prepared to respond when called upon. Pastors are requested to have their reports carefully written out in advance, and present them the first day of the session.

JESSE F. PRICE, Sec'y.

An Infidel Son Reclaimed.

I found a man who seemed to be in deep distress. I sat down beside him and asked him to tell me what was in his heart. He replied, I don't know how I happened to be here; this is the last place in all the world I wish to come to, but somehow or other it seemed as if I couldn't help it. I have been an infidel for years; have preached infidelity in public places; but I have a praying mother at home in Scotland. When you were over there she used to go to your meetings, and one day she wrote me a letter, saying how much good they had done her, and begging me to promise that I would come and hear you when you should return to this country.

I had been in the habit of burning up her letters and not answering them, because she was always in the habit of talking to me about religion; but this time I answered, I hardly knew why, and gave her the promise she asked. When you began the meetings in this city I was so troubled about the promise I had made that I could not attend to my business, so I closed my office—the man was a civil engineer—and wandered out, scarcely knowing where I went till I found myself at the door of your meeting.

I found he was greatly shaken in his infidel notions, and presently he broke clear down and said, my mother has been praying for me all these years, and I have been fighting against the answer to her prayers. Why not give up and come to Christ to-night? said I. Do you think Christ would save me so soon as that if I were to give myself to Him now? Yes, I replied, you can settle the question right here; and then I opened the Bible and read this text, "Him that cometh unto me I will in no wise cast out."

We knelt and prayed together, and then I asked him to promise me that he would write to his old mother in Scotland and tell her he had given himself to Christ. The next day I met him, his face shining with joy. Have you found the Lord? said I. Oh yes, he replied; I settled the question last night, and this is the happiest day of my life. And did you write to your mother? No, said he, I couldn't wait to write; I just telegraphed her by cable. The next day an answer from his mother came under the sea in these words, "Bless the Lord, O my soul!"

By direction of the Secretary of War, a Board of Engineers has been directed to meet at Vicksburg, Miss., July 17th, to examine and report upon the most advisible means of preserving the water front of Vicksburg, and of arresting the dangers apprehended from the cut-off, opposite that city.

General News Items.

Not one colored man has been elected to the Georgia Constitutional Convention.

Mr. Murphy, the temperance speaker, has, for the present at least, lost his voice completely.

General Grant will go to Belgium, Switzerland, Norway, Sweden and Russia, in the order named, and on his return from Russia will spend some time in Paris.

The number of miles of telegraph wire in use in the world is over 350,000, of which the United States have 79,000, England and Ireland 75,000; France, 2,385, and Russia 31,495.

An Indian mound was recently opened near Smith's Grove, Ky. It contained several ancient skeletons, evidently of Indians. A lump of gold weighing three ounces was also thrown out. Another Mound near Beech Fork, Nelson county, yielded a skeleton, some Indian implements, and a vessel containing $7,000 worth of gold.

The postmaster at Dover, Tenn., has been charged with tampering with registered letters, and it is said that he has confessed the crime, having taken from the mails, within the last year or two, between two and three thousand dollars. Special agent Minnis made the charge, and has placed him under arrest.

A contract has been signed by Jay Gould, Sidney Dillon and the Union Pacific railroad, for the extension of the Colorado Central from Long Monto to Cheyenne, and for the immediate building of a railroad from Cheyenne to the Black Hills. Laramie county, Wyoming, votes $350,000 bonds in consideration of the Colorado Central building a road to Cheyenne, and making Cheyenne the initial point of the Cheyenne and Black Hills line.

The effect of the policy of placing the American Indians upon reservations and putting them under the care of Christian teachers is thus summarized in the recent report of the Commissioners: In 1868, 7,476 houses were occupied by the Indians, in 1876, 54,717. In the same period the schools have increased from 4,718 to 11,828; acres of land cultivated from 54,207 to 312,364; and corn raised from 487,000 bushels to 2,220,653. The number of Indian church members is said to be 27,215.

The empress of Russia has provided, at her own expense, a railway car for the transportation of the sick and wounded, modeled after American sleeping-cars, having berths on each side of a passageway through the middle. The mattresses have been carefully made and rest upon springs. Rests for the arms and limbs are also abundantly supplied. Cordials, stimulants, the most nutrious food and a place to prepare it, and a well-stored dispensary and kicthen have been provided.

The Molly Maguire Society is one of the most modren of the several secret organizations that have sprung into existence in Ireland during the past century, and is decidedly the worst. Its origin is owing to the cruel murder of an old woman named Maguire at the hands of an agent, who in company with his followers, seized on the woman's property for rent. Her sons and their friends formed a society to which they gave her name. It spread through portions of Northern and Western Ireland, and confined its operations to landlords and their agents, whose property and whose lives often paid the penalty of any seeming cruelty on their part toward any member of the society.

The Celts, Scythians and the Slavi are three great divisions or tribes of people which at some unknown period of antiquity commenced a westward migration from Central Asia. They all belong to the Japhetian branch of Noah's family, though originally they were very distinguishable from each other, and are so still, where their peculiarities are not lost by intermixture with each other or with other peoples. Their languages are, however, in most respects very unlike, but all indicate a relationship to the languages of India. The Celts formed the southern or left wing of the great movement, and their descendants are found in the Gaineli and other tribes of Asia Minor; the Celtiberi, a large portion of the people of Spain; the Gauls, most of the people of France; the Welsh; the Irish; the Gauls of Scotland. Their present number is not far from 50,000,000. The Scythians or Caucasians constituted the center of the migratory tribes, and their descendants embrace the Cossacks of Southern Russia, all the Germans, the Dutch, English and the people of the United States. They number over 100,000,000. The Slavi were the northern or right wing of this moving multitude, and their descendants are found in Western Turkey, nearly all of European Russia, part of Austria, and all of old Poland. They number about 80,000,000.

SOUTHWESTERN
Christian Advocate.
30 Natchez St., New Orleans.
J. C. HARTZELL, D. D., EDITOR.
NEW ORLEANS, LA., JULY 12, 1877.

The centennial year, which gave the people fast trains and low rates from the West to New York, is over, and with peace comes slower traveling and higher prices.

In a recent obituary notice of one of our local preachers, who died at [illegible] name should [illegible] L. Coats, and not [illegible] L. Boats, as it appeared.

[illegible] Louisiana [illegible] purchase of [illegible] situated on the [illegible] College and Prytania [illegible] was $6,000. [illegible] pastor [illegible] this city, is to [illegible] rebuilding and build up an [illegible]

[illegible] Union [illegible] a regular [illegible] Camp street, [illegible] o'clock. [illegible] and the [illegible] they are in the [illegible] in the end, must [illegible] great temper[illegible] strike as, and [illegible] society will have [illegible] foundation.

[illegible] Morrow, formerly [illegible] M. E. Church, in [illegible] last Sabbath among [illegible] preaching [illegible] excellent sermon [illegible] sermon Dr. Mc [illegible] the congregation [illegible] pastor an old-time [illegible] entered [illegible] Mr. Morrow received [illegible] always will [illegible]

[illegible] New Orleans is in[illegible]

[illegible]

Church Debts.

One of the serious draw-backs to the cause of Christianity in very many places at the present time, is the difficulty in providing ways and means. The cry all over the country is, we are in debt. In not a few instances these debts were unavoidable. Debts may have been incurred when the Societies were poor, and in such cases, debts are not only no disgrace, but we question whether they are even a hindrance to the work. We adopt the logic, that whatever ought to be done, can be done, and if these churches ought to have been built even by creating a debt, the debt can and will be paid.

But many crushing church debts are not of this class. They have been created by an extravagance not warrantable, and therefore wrong. We believe in good churches, and good taste everywhere. But it is a mistake to suppose that mankind are much attracted to Christianity by these over-displays. More are repelled than are drawn by them. People do not go to these expensive churches in crowds. What draws the crowds to hear Talmadge, and Beecher and Spurgeon? The grandeur of the architecture? Nay, verily, but light, comfort and good air and wholesomeness, and gospel. We believe in neatness, in easy seats, in ventilation, in day light, in a reasonable degree of architectural propriety, but we have been in churches where there were tall steeples and poor furnaces—where there were big organs and slim congregations—where there were elegantly carved arches and no ventilation. What care we for arches and carvings, when at each inhalation we are filled with poisoned air.

What is needed especially in our growing cities, is more good churches, well located, with free seats—and free from debt. "The children of this world are wiser in their generation than the children of light." What would we say of merchants and manufacturers, were they to build their mills and stores as Christian men often build their churches, at enormous expense and with a capacity to store merchandise, or carry on labor in an inverse ratio to that outlay? From this bad policy, there must be a speedy reaction, if there is not, death will come to our cause in many places.

But let us see what we could do as a church by systematic giving. That means that we set apart a specified sum for benevolent and religious purposes, which each one must determine for himself. In some cases, it will be more, in others, less, according to the income of the individual. But in the church every one should give something—not one member should be overlooked, no matter how poor he may be, he or she can give a little. Every child should be taught to give. The habit should be formed in the earliest days of childhood. All should give with uniformity as to time—say once a week, or once a month. Now let almost any church adopt this method, and it would have ample means in its treasury with which to pay its current bills, and to liquidate its indebtedness in a short time.

Suppose a church has three hundred members, and say one hundred persons, not members, who attend regularly; then you have four hundred persons from whom to collect. Now, it would seem as if there ought to be at least two hundred and fifty of these who could pay an average of twenty-five cents each week; that would aggregate $62 50 per week, or $3,250 00 a year. This allows that one hundred and fifty pay nothing. The class who pay nothing is too large and there is where the trouble [illegible] We repeat the remark, [illegible] member should pay something, even if it be but a penny a [illegible] Who will be the first to present a church in which every member [illegible] something for its [illegible] The banner will be forth[illegible]

[illegible] the few have to carry [illegible]

[illegible]

this whole subject, and to pray over it until the heart grows warm, and you come up and ask at the altar where you took upon you the holiest vows of consecration of time, talent, money, all, Lord, what wilt thou have me do? Let all the members lay this subject to heart, the poor not less than the rich, remembering that the small gift from the hand of poverty is as acceptable as the munificent offering of the wealthy. Jesus said: "Give and it shall be given you, good measure, pressed down and shaken together and running over." Do you believe it?

The Church--a Descipline.

There is another phase of this subject. The church we all know is a moral force in the world, ordained of God, a veritable necessity in the world's regeneration. How many homes are poor and wretched and sometimes forbiddingly filthy. A great many people sit in their degradation, never dreaming even that there is a possibility of rising out of it, perhaps not caring to be improved. Now, it is a mission of the church to reach these people and elevate them mentally, morally and spiritually; to open their eyes that they may see, to unstop their ears that they may hear and to bring their torpid souls to life. This is indeed the first mission of the church. The hearts of mankind must be "sprinkled from an evil conscience," but the Apostle also says their "bodies should be washed with pure water;" the gospel means all this. It means that people shall be clean outside as well as inside, physically as well as spiritually. And just here the visible organized church comes in. Let these people be brought into our churches, let them see the beauty of the Lord's house, it will touch a chord away down in their hearts, for even in the most degraded condition the soul has not been robbed of its instincts wholly; let them walk upon the soft carpeted aisle and realize how it contrasts with their own humble home floor; at first it may be so unlike their every day experience that they will be uncomfortable, but let them sit for once upon a soft seat and listen to the music of the organ an choir and the voice of the pulpit; let them look upon well dressed and well behaved people all about them, and as a result, new ideas will be projected into their minds, and they will come to feel a stimulus toward a different kind of home living. It cannot be that all these educating forces are lost. Now let such a family be brought up to the point where they make such a neat and beautiful church their home one day in seven, with these tasteful and comfortable surroundings, and we can see how the church re-acts upon the home life of the family. It is according to the experience of most pastors, that whenever a family of the class we have referred to, can be induced to attend church regularly they begin to improve, not only in their own hearts but in their homes as well.

Much may be said against pewed churches and much in favor of the system. We do not wish here to discuss the subject only to say that most people spend every year for that which can do no possible good much more the amount required to pay for a pew in the average church. Many a man's cigars and tobacco would rent several pews, yet the tobacco he will have and with the quid in his mouth rolling beneath his tongue, he will rail out against the cost of going to church. Many a woman with a very costly bonnet on her head, and who spends large sums for dress, yet considers her church tax enormous. People in cities spend vastly more for riding on the street cars when they ought to walk for health's sake, than could pay all the bills of the church, who has not observed how well the theater is patronize, even by the poorer class, and yet these same people cannot attend church because it costs so much. We verily believe that the money earned and paid to the church constitutes a wholesome financial training; and while we are partial to free seats, it does not make very much difference whether people pay what they give as an assessment or as pew [illegible]

No money is so well invested. Let a poor family do this and the very [illegible] they will put forth to pay [illegible] rent or assessment is a [illegible] needed discipline. Nothing [illegible] more [illegible] than that christianity [illegible] poverty-stricken people. Its teachings are a benefit to mind and heart, for they stimulate the brain to think, the heart to feel and the hand to labor, and thus even in this lower sense the church pays; the well ordered, neat, comfortable and beautiful church pays best.

Christians are sometimes spoken of by their enemies as being "priest ridden." People as a rule who attend church with a view to improving their spiritual condition do give the church more or less of their money, but then they do not spend it for the follies and varieties of life. A man of the world throws his money away gratifying a vicious appetite, and he spends far more in that way than is usually demanded for the support of the church.

Under mandate from the sheriff has not in it much of the "milk of human kindness," but rather the wine of miserly wrath. But if we cannot give alms, give smiles and kind words, these are cheap and go a great way toward helping the poor in life bear their burdens.

"The alms most precious man to man can give,
Are kind and loving words;
Nor come amiss warm, sympathizing tears,
To eyes that scan the world aright,
The only error is we oft neglect to do,
The little good we can."

Give.

The Scriptures are very clear on the subject of giving. It is made therein the constant duty of every one. We remind the reader of this duty by a few simple quotations from the highest authority.

"Cast thy bread upon the waters; for thou shalt find it after many days."

"Give, and it shall be given unto you; good measure pressed down, and shaken together and running over, shall men give into your bosom; for with the same measure that ye mete withal it shall be measured to you again."

"Sell that ye have and give alms; provide yourselves bags which wax not old, a treasure in the heavens that faileth not, where no thief approacheth, neither moth corrupteth."

"It it more blessed to give than to receive."

"There is that scattereth and yet increaseth; and there is that withholdeth more than is meet and it tendeth to poverty."

Now such is the arrangement in this world that we are called upon to give outright of that which we have earned, and which we call our own.

The act of giving is a benevolent act generally. True we may give from selfish motives, to gain a name, to win favor from some class of persons, to be "seen of men." But such giving however, spontaneous it may be to an observer, where selfishness is at the bottom is a giving which is done "grudgingly" from a sort of "necessity" growing out of the fear of man, whereas the true giver referred to by Paul in 2 Cor. 9; 6, 7, is one who loves to give, and hence is a "cheerful giver."

There are some people in the world who are outwardly very scriptural in their gifts. They remember with much vividness the poor widow and the "two mites" which she cast into the treasury of the Lord. And for these centuries rich men who could count their thousands have been casting in their "two mites," Sunday after Sunday, year in and year out, waiting for a blessing which has never come and never will. And so there are these to whom if you go on almost any mission of benevolence you will be turned away with the apt quotation of Scripture that we are never to let the left hand know what the right hand doeth, and you may generally conclude that those hands never give. It is strange how very scriptual some people are on the matter of giving. As God gives good gifts to all men, as he has made all nature to contribute to man's comfort, as Jesus laid down his life for us, as salvation is a "free gift" to mortals, as mankind are so constituted that they must depend upon each other for heart sympathy and for substantial comforts, the law of giving can not be ignored with impunity. We must give not to have it given back to us again, not alone to our own chosen objects, not in our own selection of time or place or circumstance; we must see in ourselves stewards of God. The cattle upon a thousand hills belong to God. The earth is his, the heavens are his, we are his, "bought with a price," and hence when we hear him say "give," we must go forth to do his will and wherever we see an open door enter in. We must use our judgment, we must be prudent, economical, industrious, prayerful and loving, but we must give. And we must not forget that it is written: "He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully. Every man according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give; not grudgingly or of necessity; for God loveth a cheerful giver."

Preach the Word.

In the general lassitude of the season there is a temptation to a pulpit lull on the part of the ministers of the Gospel. But let us "work while the day lasts, for the night cometh when no man can work."

We must be about our Lord's business, day and night, in summer as well as in winter.

Especially when we remember that many will die before another winter comes, who may be reached now. It is now or never with hundreds. The calling of the minister of Jesus is one of the grandest committed to mortal man. Well may every one cry out "Who is sufficient for these things!" He who takes upon him the office and work of a Christian preacher, assumes responsibilities which are indeed great. To teach a wrong principle in science, or philosophy, may do much harm, in that it places man at a disadvantage, but then these mistakes may be corrected; but he who instructs mankind in spiritual things must be careful not to teach error in those doctrines which are the foundation of a religious life. "Errors of judgment lead to errors of practice," said Wesley. Our thoughts give a direction to our lives, and conduct is destiny. Here is a responsible place in which to stand. "Woe is me," said Paul, "if I preach not the Gospel." We may add blessed is the man who does preach it in the "demonstration of the Spirit, and with power."

The minister who is successful in moving men to seek the higher life, whose words send deep conviction to the soul, who causes men to smite their breasts and cry out, "God be merciful to me a sinner!" whose words comfort the sorrowing, give peace to the troubled, and courage to the despairing, is indeed useful to his fellows in a high and holy way.

To do all this his own heart must be warmed with the love of Christ. He must be a man of faith and prayer. He must have a deep and pure sympathy with all the conditions of human life. He must be as impartial in all his dealings with mankind as it is possible for man to be.

He may have his special friends, those to whom he can come more closely, just as Jesus had his special attachments, but as an "ambassador for Christ" he is sent, not to particular friends, but to all men. Jesus loved John with a peculiar love, and John did not deny or forsake the master, and yet when Christ arose from the dead and appeared to Mary he said, "go and tell my disciples and Peter;" him whose lips were stained with words of denial, "tell Peter that I have risen." As Jesus laid upon the world his great loving heart, so must the true minister; it must be so, else failure comes. There must be prayerful study and untiring devotion in order to win. The gospel has in it the element of severity. It is no "flattering unction" laid upon the soul of the world. It is not a soporific potion offered to men in the golden cup of rhetoric once a week to lull the senses, and give spiritual complacency, nay, rather is, or should be, first a lance hurled at the conscience, entering the quick of the soul, and waking up the sleeper. And then, too, men often become our enemies because we tell them the truth. The man of God thoroughly furnished unto every good word and work need not care. He must speak the truth in soberness whether men will hear it with rage or pleasure. It is the King's message which he is sent to declare, and not one word must he omit from the Alpha of the Gospel story to its Omega.

Daniel Drew, the great millionaire of New York, who, sometime ago, went into bankruptcy, has come through the financial wars badly scarred but not killed. While he may not be able to do for Drew Seminary what he intended fully, he nevertheless will continue to aid it. He recently paid $1,500 toward making up some deficiency. Should he give no more he has already done what secures the permanency of the institution beyond a peradventure.

Alms Giving.

Our contributions are sometimes said to be to the Lord. This is as a matter of course a figurative form of expression. God is the owner of all things and needs no gifts from man; but then giving to the Lord means, giving to the cause of God—to his human representative, man, who is created in his image. "In as much as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me," said the Savior of men.

Our contributions glorify God; for, when given with the right spirit, they are illustrations of the great law of beneficence which is every where apparent in the universe. Every dollar given by the rich or the poor expresses the idea of love, and as this principle gains the pre-eminence in the world God is glorified. Therefore we conclude that true religion, true benevolence can not be divorced from philanthropy. Indeed all the law is fulfilled in one word, love,—love to God the father—love to man the creature.

One of the first forms of our benevolence is alms giving; the bestowment of our gifts upon the poor. "The poor ye have always with you," Jesus said. There is enough wealth in the world now, in the hands of men, were it equalized to make every individual in the world rich in this world's wealth. The treasures of the earth are almost infinite; were they fully developed every man would be a millionaire. If the real and personal estate of the United States were equally divided among the inhabitants it, would give to each inhabitant, man, woman and child about fifty thousand dollars. The calculation is easily made, but the money not so easily obtained.

But Divine Providence did not intend this to be done. Wealth is a talent, and like all other talents, it varies. While the world stands, some men will be wiser than others; and some men will be richer than others. There will always be poor men in the world, and hence, the need of giving. The poor of the world have their mission. The support and care of the poor, the sickly, the weak, is a positive benefit to those more favored in life. Labor, sorrow, disappointment have their mission. O if it were not for these our sympathies would die out, and the heart of the world become hard as adamant. "Give a portion to seven and also to eight," that is, keep on giving, for thou knowest not what evil shall be upon the earth. Ecc. xi: 2. "He that hath two coats let him impart to him that hath none; and he that hath meat let him do likewise." Luke 3: 11. "Sell that ye have and give alms." Luke 12: 33. "Sell all that thou hast and distribute to the poor and thou shalt have treasure in Heaven." Luke 18: 22. "As we have therefore opportunity let us do good unto all men." Gal. 6: 10.

No one can pass through this world without meeting poverty at every turn, and no one whose heart has a trace of kindly sympathy can refrain from giving, if possessed of any means.

Our asylums and hospitals are supported by taxation, and all are made to contribute according to their means. This, of necessity, grows out of the present condition of society. But there is no individual benevolence in this, for most men pay their taxes under protest, and many pay even their honest debts in the same way. If society were perfect, all these ills of our brother man, would be amply provided for by the voluntary contributions of the individual—out of the fund of human charity which "suffereth long and is kind." Yet, it does argue well for the wisdom of the State, that it steps in and does by law what should be done by love.

A woman who was convicted of murder in the first degree in Ohio some years ago, and had death sentence afterwards commuted to imprisonment for life, has asked that the original sentence be carried into execution, and legal action is now being taken to grant her strange request.

By connecting the New Mexico and Arizona telegraph systems near Santa Fe, New Mexico, recently, the only continuous southern line across the continent was formed. The next step proposed is to connect the military line of Texas with that of Arizona and New Mexico by running 250 miles of wire down the Rio Grande from Mesilla to Fort Stockton.

God's Providence.

It is the undoubted mission of the human mind to fathom all mysteries, and understand and control all things. With the onmarching of the mind the universe expands through deeper depths and opens up through wider fields of space. Science is continually unfolding and presenting new sources of power, opening up new avenues of thought.

The laws which govern the world are daily being better understood. New principles are constantly entering into life's activities and the human race is marching on to a glorious destiny.

God reigns in the heavens and the earth. Men have prided them in their knowledge and power but they have always resigned, with becoming willingness, the affairs of nature to the managment of Diety. Divine laws may be above our comprehension, but they are not above our observation. They are the thoughts of God, his supreme will expressed on tables of stone, in cloud and sunshine. Gravitation and cohesion have a wide sweep, and everywhere tell of God. It is a consoling and precious thought that we live in a universe where there is law and order.

How dreadful it would be if we were in a world of mere chance or blind fate! what might happen any moment.

The doctrine of Divine Providence is one which lies very near the Christian's heart. Now Providence must be considered in a two fold sense; first, general Providence, which includes the steady operations of Nature.

How trustful men are of Providence. All the business and pleasure of the world are based upon the laws of God, or the known operations of the natural world. The merchant lays in his supply of goods for a market that is produced by the motion of the earth upon its axis. The farmer acts upon the same principle; he knows there is a time to sow and a time to reap. We arrange our visits to our friends by the laws of the seasons, so you see we all have some faith in God after all. He governs the world and governs it well; He will keep the stars in their places until their mission is fulfilled. Even the winds have their laws. Inspiration says "the wind goeth toward the South and turneth about unto the North; it whirleth about continually and returneth again according to the circuits," which is exactly true according to science. God's eye is over all, and with Him is no variableness neither shadow of turning. All his works are laid in righteousness. Shall not the God of all the earth do right? We have special Providences which take place through direct divine interference. The answer of prayer is of this nature and it is wonderful. In these contemplations there comes to the soul a sweet sense of security. He is over all and is all. He governs the planets, and hears the crying of an infant in the night.

From Our Mission Rooms.

A Liberia Correspondent of the Mission Rooms says: "You may remember that I wrote you in reference to the Bendoo (Val.) Mission. Bendoo is one of the prettiest spots on the Benson Lake. This lake is about twenty-five or thirty miles long by fifteen to eighteen wide. Eastward of White Plains there are thousands of natives only waiting like the ripe harvest for the sickle. We ought to do something within the next few months. This place I regard as a key to this part of the interior, as I do Bopora of another part. If we can get these two we are started right."

From the Mankato District, North-western German Conference, the Presiding Elder reports: "I feel rather down-hearted, because there is a loss of members to be reported instead of a gain. The main cause of this is, the continued grasshopper raid all over the District. In consequence of this, people are moving away, instead of coming into our bounds. The same is true of outsiders and church members. Our chance is not as good for gain as it has been. Yet, we have had protracted meetings and revivals through the winter all over the District, and some gain in probationers. I hope we can recruit from them to fill the loss of full members."

Coal mining is becoming quite an important interest in Alabama. From a yield of 4,000 tons in 1873 the product of her mines grew to 65,000 tons in 1876.

Our Southern Methodism.

Rev. J. F. Marshall, Cheneyville, La., writes: "We are now in the midst of a glorious revival at the Holmesville church. The meeting has been in progress one week, and there have been [illegible] conversions and thirty-six accessions to the Church. The altar is crowded with penitents at every meeting, three-fourths of them adults, and mostly men. [illegible] one hundred and [illegible] are punctual [illegible] "Children's Day" [illegible] school [illegible] recitations interspersed with songs were the order of the day, [illegible]

Rev. E. Johnson, Jefferson, Texas, writes: "During past six months [illegible] Cheneyville, we [illegible] church upon [illegible] of faith, fifty-three, and [illegible] in all, [illegible]

[illegible] Johnson, [illegible] says: "Our Quarterly [illegible] closed, were greatly [illegible] membership [illegible] does not stop at [illegible] among [illegible] We are building [illegible] houses of worship, one [illegible] and the other thirty [illegible] We [illegible] Sunday-schools, with four hundred scholars. The membership numbers five hundred, [illegible]

[illegible] Okolona, Miss., [illegible] to all be over- [illegible] we are blessed [illegible] I have had, so far, [illegible] accessions, and our [illegible] people [illegible] this country are [illegible] one to go preach [illegible] May the Lord [illegible]

[illegible]

Bishop Gregg has returned to England, and will have pastoral charge of a congregation of 300 members near London who recently seceded from the Established Church.

General News Items.

The President has offered John M. Langston the mission to Hayti.

A snow fell at Kennedy, New York State, eight inches deep, June [illegible].

Alexis has arrived at the front, in Roumania, and soon will take his baptism of fire.

President Hayes has been making a tour through New England, and everywhere has met with a most enthusiastic reception.

Internal revenue receipts for the year ending June 30th, amount to $119,000,000, an increase of 2,000,000 over last year's receipts.

The steamship Anchoria, which sailed from New York, June 30, took out 1,070 packages of butter, the largest shipment ever made to Great Britain from this country in one vessel.

A potato field at Mulheim, Baden, on which the Colorado beetle made its appearance recently, has been covered with petroleum and tan-bark and set on fire, the government indemnifying the proprietor.

[illegible] William B. [illegible] military attache of the American legation at Vienna for the purpose of observing the military operations between the Turks and Russians. General Hazen is now stationed at Fort Buford, Dakota Territory, but will soon come East preparatory to sailing for Europe.

Mrs. Gen. Sherman, who raised in America a purse of $250,000, which she presented to the Pope on the fiftieth anniversary of his bishopric, is to be presented by the Pontiff with the "Golden Rose." [illegible] honor, not a clerical one, that the Pope can confer on any person.

It is announced by authority that a proposition will be laid before the Cabinet to appoint a mixed commission, to have jurisdiction of predatory offenses committed within fifty miles of each side of the river Rio Grande. It is believed that by this means the Mexican border troubles can be suppressed. The matter has already been considered by the President, who regards it favorably.

President [illegible], Holly Springs, Miss., reports the following contributions to the McDonald monument fund: [illegible] one dollar each, Ben Ray, Ann Ray and Caroline Ray. Fifty cents each, Patsey Saddler and [illegible] Buckley. Twenty-five cents each, Noah Brothers and Jesse Steward.

GULF DISTRICT.—[illegible] Springs, [illegible] Mary [illegible] Rev. Uno. [illegible] McDonald. Union Church, twenty-five cents each, Anderson Whalen and [illegible]

Plan of Episcopal Visitation, 1877.

[illegible]

Sunday-School.

July 22, 1877.—PAUL AT LYSTRA.
SCRIPTURE.—Acts 14: 8-20.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"But the Lord he is the true God, he is the living God, and an everlasting King."—Jer. 10: 10.

TOPIC.—Not I, but Christ.

HOME READINGS.

Monday, 1 Cor. 3: 1-23; Tuesday, Gal. 2: 1-21; Wednesday, Eph. 3: 1-21; Thursday, Rom. 15: 1-19; Friday, 2 Cor. 12: 1-10; Saturday, Eph. 6: 1-19; Sunday, 2 Cor. 4: 1-18.

[Condensed from National Sunday-School Teacher.]

Restoring (8-10).—From Antioch the apostles went to Iconium. Persecution might change their place but not their purpose. Expulsion from Antioch meant work in Iconium. Persecution was God's plan of propagating the gospel.

And there sat a certain man at Lystra impotent in his feet. As no mention is made of a synagogue, it is likely that Paul was preaching on the street in some open market-place. The man, like the one healed by Peter, was probably a beggar, daily placed where his infirmity would appeal to the charity of numerous passers-by. The same heard Paul speak. The verb expresses the fact that he was giving earnest attention. Who steadfastly beholding him. This intense expression of reception of what he was saying arrested the attention of Paul. It caused him to probe the soul of the man to see what had been the effects of his words. Perceiving that he had faith to be healed. Not "to be healed," but "to be saved," is the meaning in the original. Faith to heal the body. It was a higher, better faith, and included the other. Paul, perceiving he had faith to be healed, Said with a loud voice: Stand upright on thy feet. It was a sudden and startling command. It must have thrilled the man through and through. To that clarion call all the energies of his being rallied. A new tide of life and strength went rushing through the impotent feet. The shrunken veins were filled, the withered muscles grew strong, the sense of weakness gave place to the sense of power. He leaped and walked. As we remarked in the lesson of the lame man healed by Peter, here was a second miracle. He had never used his limbs. With man walking is the result of education. He has to learn when an infant to balance himself. He purchases the ability to walk, run, and leap at the expense of many bruises, bumps, and falls. This man instantly walked and leaped. The miracle of walking and leaping was not less than the miracle of healing.

Reverenced (11-13).—The miracle set the minds of the superstitious and polytheistic people to reasoning. The argument that ran through their minds was that, inasmuch as it is impossible for men to perform such a miracle, these seeming men must be gods. The belief rapidly spread, until it included even the priest of Jupiter, whose temple or statue was just before the entrance into the city. He brought oxen and garlands before the gates of the house within which the apostles were. The oxen were for sacrifice, and the garlands were either to adorn them or, perhaps, the brows of Paul and Barnabas whom they came to worship.

Resisting (14-18).—Which when the apostles heard of. The fact that they were in the house, and that their [illegible] had been made in the speech of Lycaonia, with which they hardly were familiar, sufficiently accounts for their being taken by surprise by this public adoration. They rent their clothes. In horror at the idea that they should be exalted into the place of God. In times past suffered all nations to walk in their own ways. He would not compel their adoration. He left them to their own ways that they might find out that evil was harmful, idolatry nothing but vanity, and that the wages of sin was death. Now, however, is the thought, he is again turning unto you that you may be rescued from the peril of sin and of false worships. Left himself not without witness. Whether he will or no, every sinner is under daily obligation to God for his goodness and beneficence. The rain that falls from heaven, the sunshine that follows rain, the blossoms of spring and the fruits of autumn—all that fill our hearts with food and gladness—are constant witnesses for God of his care for all his creatures. It is his love and goodness that continually [illegible] repentance. Scarce restrained they the people. "The hearts of the sons of men is fully set in them to do evil." It is as hard to turn them, sometimes, as to turn the course of a river.

Came thither certain Jews from Antioch and Iconium. Apparently of set purpose: to complete the iniquity which there they had planned and failed to execute. Persuaded the people. That the apostles' claims were a humbug, and their miracles done by league with evil spirits instead of by the power of God. A people whose vanity has been hurt is easily persuaded. They were more than half persuaded already. Stoned Paul. The Jews did that. Stoning was their [illegible]—the work that did the deed. Mark that it is Paul that is stoned. He had been the [illegible] because he had [illegible] [illegible] We [illegible] the storm of stones was pelting him to [illegible] did come to him a [illegible] vision of the time when he exultingly saw the martyr Stephen falling beneath a like shower, and calling upon the name of his God and entreating that this sin might not be laid to the charge of his murderers! As the disciples stood round. Mourning, no doubt. Wondering, perhaps, what now was to be done. He rose up. Many think this a miraculous restoration. It reads, however, more as the coming to of one that had been stunned. We are not positively to suppose a miracle when none is declared. Next day he departed with Barnabas to Derbe. That was the eastern limit of their trip. Instead of going home by the shorter way, through Cilicia, embarking at Tarsus, these two undismayed missionaries retrace their steps to confirm the faith of their converts, preaching from their own experience that "we must through much tribulation enter into the kingdom of God."

An Engineer's Prayer.

Not long ago an engineer brought his train to a stand at a little Massachusetts village where the passengers had five minutes to lunch. A lady came along the platform and said, "The conductor tells me the train at the junction in P—— leaves fifteen minutes before our arrival. It is Saturday night, that is the last train. I have a very sick child in the car, and no money for a hotel, and none for a private conveyance for a long journey into the country. What shall I do?"

"Well," said the engineer, "I wish I could tell you."

"Would it be possible for you to hurry a little?" said the anxious, tearful mother.

"No, madam, I have the time-table, and the rules say I must run by it."

She turned sorrowfully away, leaving the bronzed face of the engineer wet with tears. Presently she returned and said, "Are you a Christian?"

"I trust I am," was the reply.

"Will you pray with me that the Lord may in some way delay the train at the junction?"

"Why, yes, I will pray with you; but I have not much faith."

Just then the conductor cried, "All aboard!" The poor woman hurried back to her deformed and sick child, and away went the train climbing the grade.

"Somehow," said the engineer, "everything worked to a charm. As I prayed I couldn't help letting my engine out just a little. We hardly stopped at the first station; people got on and off with wonderful alacrity; the conductor's lantern was in the air in a half minute, and then away again. Once over the summit, it was dreadful easy to give her a little more, and then a little more as I prayed, till she seemed to shoot through the air like an arrow. Somehow I couldn't hold her, knowing I had the road, and so we dashed up to the junction six minutes ahead of time."

There stood the other train, and the conductor with his lantern on his arm. "Well," said he, "will you tell me what I am waiting here for? Somehow I felt I must wait your coming to night, but I don't know why." "I guess," said the brother conductor, "it is for this woman with her sick and deformed child, dreadfully anxious to get home this Saturday night." But the man on the engine and the grateful mother think they can tell why the train waited.—Watchman.

Forgiveness.

A soldier was about to be brought before his commanding officer for some offence. He was an old offender, and had been often punished. "Here he is again," (said the officer, on his name being mentioned) flogging—disgrace—solitary confinement—everything—has been tried with him." Whereupon the sergeant stepped forward, and apologizing for the liberty he took, said: "There is one thing which has never been done with him yet, sir," "What is that?" said the officer. "Well, sir," said the sergeant, "he has never been forgiven." "Forgiven," exclaimed the colonel, surprised at the suggestion. He reflected for a few minutes, ordered the culprit to be brought in, and asked him what he had to say to the charge? "Nothing, sir," was his reply, "only I am sorry for what I have done." Turning a kind, pitiful look on the man, who expected nothing else than that his punishment would be increased with the repetition of his offence, the colonel addressed him saying;—"Well, we have tried everything with you, and now we are resolved—to forgive you!" The soldier was struck dumb with amazement! The tears started to his eyes, and he wept like a child. He was humbled to the dust; and thanking his officer, he retired—to be the old, refractory, incorrigible man? No! from that day forward, he was a new man. In him, kindness bent one whom harshness could not break. The man was conquered by mercy, and melted by love.

Among the members of this year's graduating class at the Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md., are Karako Katz and J. G. Karitomo, two Japanese youths, who have been educated at the academy under a law allowing certain Japanese youths to be placed at the Naval Academy at the expense of the Japanese government.

Feeding on God.

It is the grand endeavor of the gospel to communicate God to men, They have undertaken to live without him, and do not see that they are starving in the bitterness of their experiment. It is not, as with bodily hunger, where they have a sure instinct compelling them to seek their food, but they go after the husks, and would fain be filled with these, not even so much as conceiving what is their real want, or how it comes. For it is a remarkable fact that so few men, living in the flesh, have any conception that God is the necessary supply and nutriment of their spiritual nature, without which they would famish and die. It has an extravagant sound when they hear it. They do not believe it. How can it be that they have any such high relationship to the Eternal God, or he to them? It is as if the tree were to say—What can I, a mere trunk of wood, all dark and solid within, standing fast in my rood of ground, what can I have to do with the free moving air, and the boundless sea of light that fills the world? And yet it is a nature made to feed on these, taking them into its body to supply, and vitalize, and color every fibre of its substance. Just so it is that every finite spirit is inherently related to the infinite, in him to live, and move, and have its being. It wants the knowledge of God, the eternal manifestation of God, the approbation of God, a consciousness lighted up by his presence, to receive of his fullness, to be strong in his might, to rest in his love, and be centered everlastingly in his glory. Apart from him, it is an incomplete creature, a poor, blank fragment of existence, hungry, dry, and cold. And still, alas! it cannot think so. Therefore Christ comes into the world to incarnate the divine nature, otherwise unrecognized, before it; so to reveal God to its knowledge, enter him into its faith and feeling, make him its living bread, the food of its eternity. Therefore of his fullness we are called to feed, receiving of him freely grace for grace. When he is received he restores the consciousness of God, fills the soul with the divine light and sets it in that connection with God which is life, eternal life.

Simplicity in Preaching.

In one of his charges, Archbishop Usher says to his clergy, "How much learning and wisdom, my brethren, are necessary to make these things plain!" Could he have said anything more fine and judicious than this? Here is the proper direction and exertion of a ministers' talents, whether natural or acquired. They are not to unfit him for any part of his office, which they may easily do at the stimulation of vanity or pride, but to qualify and and aid him the better to perform it. It is to be feared that some do not employ their abilities to make things plain; if they do, we can but lament their deplorable want of success. But it would seem as if their aim was to dazzle rather than reform; to raise admiration at their difficult composition, rather than with the apostles to use great planness of speech. Even their claim to originality often regards only the mode of representation. The ideas they wish to pass off as new, when examined, are found only commonplace sentiments. The well is not really deep, but you can see to the bottom, because of their contrivance to make the water muddy. They are not really tall; and so strain on tiptoe. They have not a native beauty that always appears to most advantage without finery, and so they make up the deficiency by excess, and complicity, and cumbersomeness of ornament.—Wm Jay.

"What every body says must be true."

The incontrovertible testimony offered by those who have used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription induced the doctor to sell it under a positive guarantee. Many ladies have refrained from using it on account of a general feeling of prejudice against advertised medicines. Let me ask a question? Are you prejudiced against sewing machines because you have seen them advertised? or can you doubt the ingenuity and skill required in their invention? Again, would you refuse to insure your house because the company advertised that it paid millions in losses, and yet had a capital of several millions? Do such advertisements shake your confidence, and create prejudices? Then why refuse to credit the testimony of those who have found the Favorite Prescription to be all that is claimed for it in overcoming those ailments peculiar to your sex? Why submit to the harsh, and perhaps caustic treatment, thus aggravating your malady when relief is guaranteed, and a positive, perfect, and permanent cure has been effected in thousands of cases?

WABASH STATION, Ill., October 24th, 1876.
R. V. PIERCE, M. D., Buffalo, New York:

Dear Sir—Allow me to extend my most sincere thanks to you for the great benefit my wife has received from the use of your Favorite Prescription. She suffered almost intolerably before using your medicine, and I had tried the skill of several physicians but to no purpose. Finally, I thought I would give the Favorite Prescription a trial, and she is now sound and well

Very gratefully yours,
D. A. HUNTER.

What the Billious Require.

Since torpidity of the liver is the chief cause of its disorder, it is evident that what the billious require is an alternative stimulant which will arouse it to activity, an effect that is followed by the disappearance of the various symptoms as indicative of its derangement. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters invariably achieve the primary result mentioned, besides removing constipation, flatulence, heart-burn, yellowness of the skin and whites of the eyes, pain in the right side and under the right shoulder, nausea, vertigo and sick headache, to which billious invalids are peculiarly subject. As a remedy for chronic indigestion, mental despondency and nervousness the Bitters are equally efficacious, and as a renovant of lost vigor, a means of arresting premature decay, and a source of relief from the infirmities to which the gentler sex is peculiarly subject, they may be thoroughly relied upon.

Every Lady Her Own Physician.

Ladies' own Prescription. Information of great value to every lady sent free, by addressing Dr. W. C. Stevens, 911 Arch street, Philadelphia. [jy-12-4t

Quarterly Meetings.

San Antonio (Tex.,) District.

Columbus, August 4 and 5; Columbus circuit, August 4 and 5; Alleyton, August 10 and 12; Eagle Lake, August 14 and 15; San Antonio, August 18 and 19; Henry, August 25 and 26; Texana, September 1 and 2; Victoria circuit, September 8 and 9; Mission Valley, September 15 and 16; Indianola, September 29 and 30; Speaksville, September 29 and 30; Victoria, October 6 and 7; Peach Creek, October 6 and 7; Corpus Christi, October 6 and 7; Hondo, October 6 and 7; Floresville, October 6 and 7; Southerland Springs, October 6 and 7; Nockernut, October 6 and 7; Lavernia, October 6 and 7; Belmont, October 6 and 7; Riddleville, October 6 and 7; Oakland, October 6 and 7; Halletsville, October 6 and 7.
D. GREGORY, P. E.

Murfreesboro (Tenn.,) Dist.

FOURTH ROUND.

McMinnvile, July 5 and 6; McMinnville, Circuit, July 7 and 8; Shelbyville, July 14 and 15; Lewisburg, 21 and 22; Springhill 21 and 22; Franklin, 25 and 26; Mill Creek, 28 and 29; Woodbury, August 2 and 3; Stone River, 4 and 5; Murfreesboro Circuit, August 9 and 10; Murfreesboro, August 11 and 12; Alexandria, August 15 and 16; Carthage, August 18 and 19; Lebanon, August 25 and 26; North Lebanon, August 29 and 30; Hartsville, September 1 and 2; Gallatin, September 1 and 2; Mitchellsville, September 8 and 9; Springfield, September 15 and 16; Dickson, September 22 and 23; Nashville Circuit, September 26 and 27; Clark Chapel 29 and 30.
C. PICKETT, P. E.

Memphis (Tenn.,) Dist.

FOURTH ROUND.

Memphis, July 7; Adamsville, July 14; Shiloh, July 16; White Sulphur, July 18; Saltillo July 21; Lexington July 25; Decaturville, July 28; Camden, August 1; Clarksburg, August 4; Benton, August 8; Weakley, August 11; Alamo, August 15; Lake, August 18; Carroll and Huntingdon, August 25; Dickson, September 1; Dickson circuit, September 5; Buffalo, September 8; Wayne, September 12; Indian Creek, September 15; Lawrenceburg, September 22.

The Memphis district Sunday-school Extension Society, composed of the members of the district conference, will hold its second session at White Sulphur, Hardin county, July 17th to 20th. Opening service, 17th, at 8 o'clock p. m.

The district conference will meet at Shoat's Creek, Giles county, September 26th. Opening sermon at 7 o'clock p. m., by Rev. E. N. Williams.
J. L. CHANDLER, P. E.

Houston, (Texas) District.

THIRD ROUND.

Richmond and Forest Chapel, July 1-2; Church Houston, July 7-8; Edwards Chapel, July 9-10; Harrisburg and West Point, July 14-15; Columbia and Brazoria, July 21-22; 1st Church Houston, August 4-5; Spring Creek, 25-26; East Church Tabernacle, September 1-2; Galveston, Staffords, September 8-9; Cypress, September, 15-16; Oyster Creek, September 22-23.
W. L. MOLLOY, P. E.

Marshall (Tex.) District.

THIRD ROUND.

Coffeeville, June 30 July 1; Marion, July 7-8; Marshall, July 14-15; Jefferson, Circuit July 21-22; Jefferson, July 28-29; Hickory Grove, July 28-29; Clarksville, August 4-5th; Union, August 4-5; Paris July 11th-12; Quitman, Aug. 18-19; Vansant, Aug. 25-26; Greenville, Sept. 1st. 2nd; Sulphur Springs, Sept. 8-9th; Mt. Pleasant, Sept. 15-16.
F. C. MOORE, P. E.

Holly Springs (Miss.) District.

SECOND ROUND.

Mt. Pleasant, July 7-8; Kosciusko, July 14-15; French Camp, July 16-17; Greensboro, July 17-19, Winona and Vaiden 21-22; Duck Hill, July 26-27; Granada, July 28-29; Geenada Circuit, July 23-29; Oxford, Aug. 4-5; New Albany, Aug. 8-9; Ripley, Aug. Hickory Flat, Aug. 15; Holly Springs Aug. 18-19; Byhalia, Aug. 21-22; Chulahoma, Aug. 24; Abbeville, Aug. 25-26; Eliza, Aug. 30 and Sept 1st. First District Conference for Holly Springs District will meet on the 14th day of June, at Grenada; all the brethren are requested to be present.
J. G. JOHNSON, P. E.

Greenswood (Miss.) District.

(Second Round.)

Wesley Chapel, 9 and 10th of June; Silver Creek, 16th and 17th of June; Yazoo City, 23rd and 24th of June; Piney Grove, 30th of June and 1st of July; Deasonville, 7th and 8th of July; Pickens, 14 and 15 of July; Lexington, 21st and 22d of July; Goodman, 28th and 29th of July; Jones Chapel, 4th and 5th of August; McNutt, 11th and 12th of August; Caney Creek, 18th and 19th of August; New Midway, 25th and 26th of August; Hernando, 1st and 2d of September; Panola, 8th and 9th of September; Cold Water, 15th and 16th of September; Walnut City, 22nd and 23d of Sept; Shiloh 26th and 30th Sept.
J. W. DUNN, P. E.

Meridian (Miss.) District.

Rome, June 23-24; Ex-Prairie, June 30 and July 1; Macon, July 7-8; Shuqualak, July 11-12; DeKalb, July 14-15; Lauderdale July 21-22; Daleville, July 24-25; Meridian 28-29; Meridian Circuit August 4-5; Quitman August 11-12; Shubuta Circuit, August 15-16; State Line, Aug. 18-19; Shubuta, August 21-22; Enterprise Circuit, Aug. 25-26; Enterprise, Aug. 28-29.
M. ADAMS, P. E.

San Antonio (Tex.) District.

Sutherland Springs, June 23-24; Nockernut, July 1; Cibolo, July 4 and 5; Riddleville, July 4 and 5; Lavernia, 7 and 8; Goliad Circuit, July 11 and 12; Belmont, July 14 and 15; Refugio, July 18 and 19; Wrightsboro, July 21 and 22; Goliad, July 28 and 29.
D. GREGORY, P. E.

ROANOKE COLLEGE, SALEM, VA.

Next session begins September 5th, 1877. Collegiate, elective and preparatory, courses. Unsurpassed location. Mountain climate. Moral community. Five Churches in town. Expenses for 9 months, including tuition, board, etc., from $150 to $210. Students from fifteen States, Indian Territory, and Mexico. Patronage constantly increasing. For catalogues, etc., address
[jy12-4t] SECRETARY OF FACULTY.

E. D. ELLIOTT,
PRINTER
30 Natchez st., New Orleans.

"HEAVENWARD."

The new book of Sunday-school songs, by James R. Murray, P. P. Bliss, and other favorite writers, including the best Hymns and Music of the late

P. P. BLISS.

This is the only New Song Book containing Mr. Bliss' best Songs—the ones that have made his name famous throughout Europe and America.

The verdict of all who examine "HEAVENWARD" is, "it is unequaled by any other Sunday-school Music Book." A single sample copy, in paper covers, mailed for 25 cents. Price—In boards, 35 cents. $30 per hundred. Order from your book-seller.

SONGS OF FAITH

For REVIVAL, PRAISE & CAMP MEETINGS.

A collection of new Gospel Hymns and Sacred Songs by the best writers, including Moody and Sankey's favorite songs. Words and Music, 35 cents; $30 per hundred. Words only, 6 cents; $5 hundred. Send for sample.

New Anthem Book—Ready July 1st.

CHAPEL ANTHEMS By Dr. J. B. Herbert, assisted by the best writers of the day. Will supply a long-felt need for a collection of new, short, easy, and practical Anthems for Choirs, etc. Specimen pages free. Sample copy mailed for $1.25. Catalogues of Music Books and Sheet Music sent free.

S. BRAINARD'S SONS, Publishers,
apr26-77-1y] Cleveland, Ohio.

OFFICE AMERICAN COTTON TIE CO. LIMITED
47 Carondelet St. New Orleans, La.

[illegible]

In view of the constantly increasing popularity and demand for the Celebrated Arrow Tie, the universally recognized favorite Tie of Planters, Cotton Pressmen and Shippers of Cotton generally, the American Cotton Tie Co., Limited, sole proprietors and manufacturers of said Tie, commending unequalled facilities, have, in addition to the large stock now on hand, contracted for increased quantities, sufficient to meet the largest demand for Cotton Ties, to cover the entire crop of the coming season, and now, through their Agents generally, offer the popular and irrepressible ARROW TIE at $2.50 per bundle, less 2½ per cent. discount for cash, in Bundles complete, being less than the market value of plain hoop iron; and it being the purpose of the Company to merit the continued patronage of the Planting community and to defy all competition that may arise; their Agents are instructed to contract with Dealers, Factors and country Merchants at the above named price and terms for future delivery up to the first of August in quantities as may be required from time to time, settlements being made on delivery.

R. W. RAYNE, & CO.,
GENERAL MANAGERS,
je-21-77-1y] New Orleans, La.

SOUTHWESTERN AGENCY
FOR
School and College Text Books.

Office No. 30 CAMP STREET (up stairs).

Below we submit the MODEL SERIES of books (so conceded by the leading educators of this country) for use in PRIMARY, INTERMEDIATE and GRAMMAR schools. To insure their adoption by the progressive teacher we have only to ask a careful comparison with books of a like grade, a critical examination and a thorough, practical test in the class-room:

	Prices.
Harper's Introductory Geography	[illegible]
Harper's School Geography	[illegible]
" United States First Reader	15
" " " Second	25
" " " Third	37
" " " Fourth	56
" " " Fifth	75
" " " Sixth	90
Wilson's Primary Speller	15
" Larger	30
" New	34
Lamson's Penmanship, per dozen	[illegible]
French's First Lessons in Numbers	25
" Elementary Arithmetic	37
" Mental Arithmetic	[illegible]
" Common School Arithmetic	75
Swinton's Language Primer	30
" Language Lessons	37
" School Composition	37
" Progressive Grammar	55

Catalogues, circulars, and testimonials sent on applications. Correspondence solicited, and will receive prompt attention; when addressed

W. P. ROGERS & W. L. JARVIS, Agents for the introduction of Harper & Brothers' Educational Works, New Orleans, La., Lock Box 134.

Hospital College of Medicine.

(The clinical School of the West.)

Med. Dept. of Central Univ., Louisville, Ky. Distinctive features: A thorough didactic course, unsurpassed clinical facilities, eighteen clinics per week, the student being daily required to examine and prescribe, a high standard of graduation, both a didactic and a practical clinical examination being required.

For catalogues and information concerning special advantages address

DR. W. H. BOLLING, DEAN,
Cor. Third and Jefferson Sts., Louisville, Ky.

Texas Lands.

Best Investment in the Nation!

640 acres rich prairie loam, producing cotton, grains, fruit and vegetables, and adapted to stock, lying in the high and healthful latitude of Northwestern Texas, for the nominal sum of $200.

Title Patent, direct and perfect. Taxes low. Worth several times the cost. Now is your time to plant a small sum fruitfully. No fraud. All work personally supervised. Handled in the interest of education in Texas. Full particulars furnished on application, (with stamps).

References: Rev. Wm. Brush, D.D., P. E. Austin District, Austin, Texas; First National Bank, Dallas, Texas; State Savings Bank, Dallas, Texas, or editor of this paper. Address

REV. L. H. CARHART,
West Texas Conference,
Box 377, Dallas, Texas. [al2-tf

$66 a week in your own town. Term and outfit free. H. Hallet & Co.
Dec 21 76 1y] Portland, Maine.

Lungs and Throat.

Inhalation of common air in Incipient Consumption will cure. Dr. J. M. Howe, of Passaic, N. J., sends his Tube, with full directions, post free for $3.50. Send for circulars.
may24

"The principle of combining English and American writers in a common literary enterprise, merits all encouragement."—J. Anthony Froude.

THE
INTERNATIONAL REVIEW,
A NEW YORK AND LONDON REVIEW.

EMINENT CONTRIBUTORS ON BOTH SIDES OF THE ATLANTIC. (No articles at second hand. All articles original.)

CONTENTS—MAY-JUNE—NOW READY.

The New Administration.
The Life Insurance Question. Charles T. Lewis.
Disestablishment of the Church of England. Dr. James H. Rigg, London.
The Philadelphia Exhibition.—Part I. Mechanism and Administration. Francis A. Chief of the Bureau of Awards.
Tennyson.—A Criticism. Bayard Taylor.
Our Foreign Service. Hon. John Jay.
American and European Literature. Phillip Gilbert Hamerton.
Contemporary Events.

Price, Single Number, $1. For six months $3. Annual subscription (6 numbers) $5.
New York: A. S. BARNES & CO.,
apr26-30] Publishers.

$12 a day at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. True & Co.
Dec 1 76 1y] Augusta, Maine.

found in the human body, and of these seven are metallic. Iron is found in the blood, phosphorus in the brain, limestone in the bite, lime in the bones, dust and ashes in all! Not only these eighteen human elements, but the whole sixty-two, of which the universe is made, have their essential basis in the four substances, oxygen, hydrogen, nitrogen, and carbon, representing more familiar names of fire, water, saltpeter and charcoal; and such is man, the lord of earth! a spark of fire, a drop of water, a grain of gunpowder, an atom of charcoal.—Hall's Journal of Health.

We have received "an appeal to the benevolent public" on behalf of the suffering at Mt. Carmel, Illinois. Its own statements are better than any words of ours could be. Under date June 11th it says: "The devastation and suffering caused by the tornado of a week since, is past comprehension by any who did not see it, or have not since visited the scene of woe, which is so terrible a sorrow to so many. A hundred families homeless and penniless, over a hundred wounded, and about a score of dead, with a pecuniary loss of not less than four hundred thousand dollars, is too heavy a load for a population of only twenty-two hundred to carry alone. The experience of Chicago and other places of this and other lands in their days of adversity shows us that they they did not call in vain for help. If in all other cities and towns aid committees, under the direction of the board of trade or city or town officials, will do a little, this place may again be made to arise out of deep distress to bless the kindness of our people all over the land. Any aid sent to R. S. Gordon, Mayor, or T. J. Shannon, of the banking house of Shannon & Beall, Chairman of the Relief Committee, will be wisely and faithfully appropriated to the use of those who are needy and worthy."

LOST FRIENDS.

NOTE—We receive many letters asking for information about lost friends. All such letters will be published in this column. We ask no charge for publishing these letters (our subscribers to run Sixty words.) All others will please enclose fifty cents to pay for publishing the notice. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any cases where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.

I wish information concerning any of my relative, from whom I was sold in Northampton county, Virginia, in 1843, when I was twelve years old. I belonged to Mrs. Nancy Jones and my sister Edie belonged to Mrs. Wilson, our father, Hillery Wilson, was a sailor. We had an uncle Peter, who had a daughter named Caroline, and our grandmother was Nancy Williams. Address, Maria Caldwell, care of W. H. McCarver, Marshall, Texas.

I am searching for my mother, whose name is Mary Hall. In 1859 she belonged to Bill Lawson, in Wharton county; he sold her to a cousin of his, whose name I think was also Lawson, and that he lived near Powderhorn, Texas. My name was formerly Henry Hall. I had a sister named Caroline. Address, Henry Wharton, San Filipe, Texas.

I wish to find my children; their family name was Bryant, and their given names was Mary, George and Allen. They lived near the lead mines in Washington county, Missouri. Address, Mrs. Mary Herbert, care of Rev. N. Caswell, Lockhart, Texas.

Mrs. Partington wants to know why the captain of a vessel can't keep a memorandum of the weight of his anchor, instead of weighing it every time he leaves port.

A youth asked at a restaurant: "What have you got?" "Almost everything." "Well, give me a plate of that." "Certainly. One plate of hash!" shouted the waiter.

The Old Reliable Jackson Route.

TO THE FRONT AGAIN.

This old favorite passenger route has been greatly improved with steel rails, new iron bridges and stone culverts, and is now run with Swift regularity, making sure connections and quick time, and is the shortest and best route to the Louisville and Cincinnati [illegible] by this route and through [illegible] and Niagara [illegible] and the North-[illegible] of the lines [illegible] and Virginia [illegible] tourist and excursion [illegible] at the [illegible] Not [illegible] in Northwest, by [illegible] from [illegible]

[illegible] Co.

[illegible] Street, Boston; 25 Union Sq., N. Y. [illegible], and 232 Wabash Avenue, Chicago.

PAN-HANDLE

AND

PENNSYLVANIA

Railroad Route.

The Favorite Trunk Line.

Only one change of cars to New York, and that at 7:30 in the morning, at Cincinnati.

No omnibus transfers on any part of the line.

Best equipped and shortest route to all the eastern cities.

Best Route to Long Branch, Cape May, Atlantic City, New Port, and all the Atlantic sea-coast watering places.

Best route to Cresson, Altoona, the celebrated Bedford Springs, and all the noted mountain retreats of the Alleghany range; and also the best route to Bethlehem on the Lehigh river, and all the noted resorts in the Anthracite coal regions of Pennsylvania.

This route is supplied with all the modern improvements for speed, safety, and comfort; and continuous trains run without stoppages for fuel or water, as the water is supplied while the trains are in motion.

Palace and Drawing Room coaches on all trains.

Double tracked, stone ballasted, free from dust and steel rails laid according to scientific principles, to avoid jarring which is the cause of injuries to many.

All travelers who have availed themselves of the solid comforts to be found on the reliable Pan Handle and Pennsylvania, unhesitatingly say that for families and tourists, it is unequalled; while for business men who desire reliability and promptness it is far ahead of all opposition.

The refreshment saloons and eating houses are all first-class and all have an enviable reputation for their cuisine—the tables being supplied with the best that the markets of Ohio and Pennsylvania afford.

Be sure and ask for tickets via Louisville Cincinnati and the Pan Handle Route.

W. L. O'BRIEN,
Gen. Pass'r and Ticket Agent, Columbus, Ohio.
SIDNEY B. JONES,
General W. W. Agent, Cincinnati, Ohio.
W. M. WALLINGTON,
Gen. Southern Agent, New Orleans, La.
[June14-77-1f

FOUR MONTHS OF

GOOD HEALTH

FOR 25 CENTS.

ANY PERSON WHO WILL BUY A BOX OF

Parson's Purgative PILLS

And will take one (1) each night for four (4) nights, and will double every third (3d) week during the months of June, July, August and September, will not be troubled with Fever and Ague, nor Malignant Fever, nor Bilious Fever, nor any of the diseases resulting from miasmatic poison, common in Missouri, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas. If Parson's Purgative Pills cannot be obtained at your nearest store, send 25 cts. to the undersigned, and the pills shall be sent, post paid, by return mail. Physicians supplied by mail at $2.50 per thousand in bulk. As this is but little more than half price for standard pills by the thousand, cash must accompany the order. The Receipe will be cheerfully sent to any physician on application. We will send Parson's Pills by mail to responsible parties on commission at $3 per dozen, sample dozens at $1.25, cash with the order.

WHOLESALE AGENTS.

Gehlens Bros. ..... St. Louis, Mo.
G. W. Jones & Co. ..... Memphis, Tenn.
E. J. Hart & Co. ..... New Orleans, La.
C. J. Lincoln & Co. ..... Little Rock, Ark.
T. C. Thompson & Co. ..... Galveston, Tex.

ADDRESS ALL ORDERS TO

I. S. JOHNSON & CO.
Je21-1y] Bangor, Maine, Proprietors.

IMPROVED CABINET ORGAN.

EXCELLING WHAT HAS PREVIOUSLY BEEN ACCOMPLISHED IN

POWER, PURITY AND DELICACY OF TONES.

THE LIST CABINET ORGAN

(Style No. 501.—Five Octave; Seven Sets of Reeds (Two and a Half Octaves each, and One Set of the Octave); Fifteen Stops; New Scale of Reed Board; Reeds and Action, with Ventzille Chest and other Improvements, patented 1876-7. Bass—Contra Bass, 16 ft.; English Horn, 8 ft.; Cello, 8 ft.; Viola Dolce, 8 ft.; Sub-Bass, 16 ft. Treble—Corno, 16 ft.; Melodia, 8 ft.; Piccolo, 4 ft.; Harmonica, 2 ft.; Vox Celeste, 8 ft. Throughout—Full Organ, (knee stop.) Vox Humana, Octave Coupler, (coupling up,) Knee Swell. I. Forte [illegible]

The Mason & Hamlin Organ Co., have the pleasure of announcing that specimens of this fine Organ, the choicest in their musical part of our Centennial Dr. Wyman, Liszt,) are now ready, and may be seen at Chas. Trevernon's, and Principal Pianos. The origin of this improved Organ, [illegible] is as follows:

[illegible] to make an organ expressly for [illegible] The Print Liszt, in which full [illegible] was especially desired, as well as [illegible] and purity of tone as could afford satisfaction to an artist's judgment, as that of [illegible] we took the opportunity to [illegible] upon all that had before been accomplished. In the name of the Liszt for the [illegible] Organ in Hanover, Germany, it was also greatly admired. The Hanover Courier declared it to be "in the very height of developed excellence," evincing "extraordinary progress." After its receipt and trial, Dr. Franz Liszt wrote to the Agent: "The beautiful organ of Mason & Hamlin Organ Company of Boston, [illegible] Dr. Franz Liszt, [illegible] with remarkable, well-[illegible] and wide-spread renown of these superb instruments. It was immediately put in use in [illegible] Chapel, and [illegible] that the [illegible] have [illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] and

Southwestern Christian Advocate.

NEW SERIES—VOL. 1—NO. 29. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, JULY 19, 1877. WHOLE NUMBER 259.

SOUTHWESTERN

Christian Advocate.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT

[illegible] Natchez St., New Orleans,

BY

NELSON & PHILLIPS,

FOR THE

Methodist Episcopal Church.

Terms: $2 a year, Cash in Advance.

All Traveling Preachers of the Methodist Episcopal Church are authorized Agents.

Subscriptions may begin at any time and the paper will be sent as long as paid for.

Remittances must be made by Registered Letter, P. O. Money Order, or by Express.

Advertising Rates.

(Per Nonpareil line, each insertion.)

One time [illegible] 8 cents

[illegible]

Special Notices [illegible] 8 cents, net cash

NEW YORK OFFICE:

805 Broadway, New York,

WILLIAM BALDWIN, Special Agent.

If we Knew.

If we knew the cares and crosses
Crowding round our neighbor's way,
If we knew the little [illegible]
[illegible] day;
Would we then [illegible] him
For his lack of [illegible] gain—
Leaving on his heart a shadow,
Leaving on his life a stain?

If we knew the clouds above us
[illegible] but gentle blessings there,
Would we turn away all trembling,
[illegible] despair?
Would we shrink from little shadows,
Lying on the dewy grass,
While [illegible] of Eden,
Just in mercy flying past?

If we knew the silent story,
[illegible] the heart of pain,
Would [illegible] dare to doom them
[illegible] again?
[illegible]
[illegible] are whitest,
[illegible] angels know.

Let us reach into our bosoms,
[illegible]
[illegible] nature,
[illegible] still survive;
[illegible]

God's Ministry.

BY T. EDWARD MADDEN.

[illegible]

the man and the work get together, then, and not till then, has the man thus called success in the work of saving souls. God never calls a man for whom He has no work.

That man, who in God's providence cannot, by any reasonable amount of exertion, find a place to work, may very reasonably conclude that there is something wrong somewhere, and that somewhere is very probably in himself. God sometimes delays his providential interposition on the behalf of those He called by way of a test, but usually there is so much to be done, and so many required to be co-workers with Him, that He does not wait long, but speedily opens up the way to earnest effort and assiduous toil.

3rd. By the corroborative call of the Church. The influence of any christian is of the greatest importance, much more so then that of the Christian minister. The law of human influence may be briefly formulated thus; like produces like. Then a teacher of morals must himself be moral, and the church is the judge of the degree of that morality. If the church can discover no moral fitness in a man, who professes to be called to the holy work of the Christian Ministry, either the Holy Ghost made a great mistake, in thus calling a man with no moral fitness, or the man is not called. But the first supposition is not admissable, therefore the last must be true. That man in whom the church finds nothing that will warrant her in calling him to this work, is not called to the active work of the Christian Ministry. God lodges this same fact in the mind of the church. When He calls a man, He tells the church so; God sows all truth in world wide furrows, and this truth is just easily sown in half a dozen minds, as in one. God by so doing corroborates his own truth. It is God's truth; it is God's minister, sent to God's church to preach that truth, and God sets His seal to the whole work from beginning to end.

4th. By the conclusions of one's own judgment. It is very rarely that one enters upon any work, for a life work, against his better judgment. And that same exercise of judgment is not denied the one who feels called to the work of the ministry. If he have no taste for anything of a literary character; if he enters the work for the honor or dignity associated with it; if he enters it as he would any profession from mere choice, mature reflection, and his own better judgment will condemn him; that reasoning of conscience that will compel him to scrutinize his motives, will sooner or later convict him at the bar of his own judgment.

While no man should enter this work, feeling that he is able to perform it meritoriously, or that his natural or acquired abilities qualify him for it above all others; yet, if he has no ability to express his thoughts intelligibly; if his intellectual capacity is limited; if his moral character is questionable; or [illegible] to engage in this work are all absorbing; if his motives are not strictly pure; if he is not [illegible] anything or nothing, as God wills, then most certainly his judgment will tell him he ought to engage in some other work, more congenial to his taste and suitable to his character.

On the other hand, if he has a happy way of expressing himself, so that others are benefitted by that to which he gives expression; if his mind continually and intuitively turns to this one subject of saving souls to the absorption of all others; if his whole time is occupied in reflecting on how he may [illegible] this work for God and the good of souls; if he feels it a [illegible] privilege as well as a [illegible] duty to thus dedicate himself to this work, then his judgment [illegible] the conclusion that this [illegible] work. Listening to the voice of God as well as that of the church, his judgment will decide that he ought to engage in this one work to the [illegible] of all others.

5th. By the fruitage of his labor. [illegible] "Bringing [illegible]" will be the reward of [illegible] toiler in the Master's [illegible] field. Then, if he who professes to be called has no fruit, he [illegible] made a mistake. The best [illegible] is the winning souls. This is [illegible] stone to the divine arch. [illegible] Glorious reward [illegible] Christ need ask [illegible] than that of Paul [illegible] wrote to the Corinthian [illegible] my beloved sons I [illegible] in Christ Jesus I [illegible] begotten you through the [illegible]

"The Lost Atlantis."

According to a tradition, current in Egypt at the time of Plato, an island, larger than the then known worlds of Asia and Africa, had formerly existed in the Atlantic Ocean, stretching itself westward from the mouth of the Mediterranean perhaps as far as to the two Americas. Centuries before this date it had been the seat of a powerful empire whose sway extended as far as Egypt on the South, and to Italy on the North. Other traditionary tales represent this island as of remarkable fertility, and covered by wide-spread forests or luxuriant pasture lands. It produced wine, the grains, and the most exquisite fruits. The people directly descended from Neptune, inherited a love for commerce and naval warfare. The seas were covered by their fleets, and their onward conquests were only checked by the united forces of all Greece. At last a submarine earthquake, ordered by Jupiter on account of the sins of the people, caused the island to sink beneath the ocean's level. For centuries its site was marked by shallow seas and extensive banks and bars of sand.

This fabled "Atlantis" was allowed to sleep quietly in the bed of the sea until some twenty years since, when a German botanist suggested it as the bridge by which the flora of the early tertiary of America crossed the ocean, in order to reproduce itself in the middle tertiary of Europe.

America, during the early tertiary, was a world in itself, with a flora peculiar and unique. Maples, oaks, willows, hickories, poplars, dogwoods, and magnolias, had, to a large extent, driven out the palms and cycads of the preceding age and had clothed the land with a foliage similiar to the types of the present day. Europe, on the other hand, was a land of palms and tropical plants, with a vegetation on the whole closely resembling that of Australia. But in the middle tertiary these tropical species gave place to the oaks and other deciduous leaved trees which had first appeared in America. The problem was, and is still, to account for this strange migration. Was it eastward by means of the Atlantic currents and this fabled island, or westward by way of Behring Straits and Asia.

Interest in the first supposition has revived on account of the return of the British ship Challneger and the publication of the official records of travel and discovery. In a recent lecture at the South Kensington Museum, Mr. W. S. Mitchell presented a chart of soundings from the North Atlantic. From the published abstract we learn that an elevated ridge of land rises from the bottom of the sea, starting north of the Azores, including in its sweep besides that group of islands, St. Paul's Ascension, and Tristan d'Acunha. This ridge, less than one thousand fathoms beneath the ocean, rises at the four points just named to the sea level, or indeed some distance higher. The main ridge is connected with South America by a subordinate one, while it is separated from North America by a comparatively narrow channel. On either side of this ridge the water is from 2,000 to 3,450 fathoms in depth. A change of level in the earth's crust, no greater than has several times occurred with the continents might bring this elevated line to the condition of dry land. It would still be surrounded by water from two to three miles deep. The migrations of plant-life would then follow the ordinary method of dissemination of seed. The great agencies for scattering seeds over the world are the currents in the ocean and the movements in the atmosphere. Many seeds are furnished with winged appendages, or with a covering of soft downy hairs which enable them to float in the air and to be carried about by the lightest breeze. Species of plants known to be natives of Florida and the West Indies, have been discovered in Ireland and even in Norway. The seeds of these species have been carried across the ocean with the Gulf Stream. Birds flying from island to island have often taken with them seeds of many different kinds of plants, which in some way become entangled in their feathers, or which formed part of their daily food. Animals in swimming from shore to shore have, in the same way, been unconscious agents in the dissemination of plant life from one region to another. Hundreds of species of plants owe their present geographical distribution to these extraneous agencies. After the mingling of the flora of America and Europe, a subsidence of the island would again break off the connection between the two continents and allow each to determine the life of the future, according to [illegible]. Some species might not be able to endure the cooler climate of Europe, and hence would give way to others.

While it would not be safe to assert that the island the "Atlantis" has ever existed, we are authorized by the facts to claim that the interesting fable handed down to us from the time of Plato, and only revived by the modern naturalist, has at least a "ridge" for a foundation.—West. Chris. Adv.

The Embroidery of History.

One of the bits of history most familiar to Americans is Jackson's battle of New Orleans, where from behind their breast-work of cotton bales (a material which the enemy's cannon could not pierce), he repulsed with prodigious slaughter Packenham's veterans, fresh from their European victories. This story of the ramparts of cotton, as related in both English and American histories, is, however, purely apocryphal. Its origin seems to have been the fact that, many days before the battle of January 8 (for Jackson's troops had been working steadily at the entrenchments since Christmas), about fifty cotton bales were taken out of a neighboring flat-boat and thrown into a line of earthworks to increase it bulk. About a week before the assault, in a preliminary skirmish, as Walker tells us in his "Jackson and New Orleans," the enemy's balls striking one of these bales knocking it out of the mound, set fire to the cotton, and sent it flying about, to the great danger of the ammunition. All the bales were consequently removed. "After this," continues the account, "no cotton bales were used in the breastwork. The mound was composed entirely of earth dug from the canal and the field in the rear. The experiment of using cotton and other articles in raising the embankment had been discarded."

Again, for eighteen years after this battle it was gospel with us that the British officers at dawn "promised their troops a plentiful dinner in New Orleans, and gave them, 'Booty and beauty,' as the parole and countersign of the day." In 1833, General Lambert and four other British officers, who had been engaged in the luckless expedition, denied this story, which accordingly has measurably vanished out of history. The absurd fiction of the "Booty and beauty" watchword reappears, however, at intervals in our own civil war, ascribed to General Beauregard and other Confederate officers.

Our ancestors, also, used to enjoy the story of Putnam's exploit at Horseneck, where he escaped from a party of Tyron's troopers by forcing his horse down a flight of seventy stone steps (another account swells them to a hundred) that formed the stairway by which the villagers ascended to the church on the brow of the hill. This is the narrative in Petes's "History of Connecticut," a book which Dwight calls "a mass of folly and falsehood." The story of the stairway is sheer fabrication, founded on the fact that common stones here and there aided the villagors to ascend the hill; yet there exist pictures of Putnam charging down a long tier of steps as well defined and regular as those of the Capitol at Washington, while the discomfited dragoons at the top pour in a volley that does not harm him.

A partial parallel to this exaggeration may be found in the current descriptions of "Sheridan's ride," at Winchester, a solid exploit, brilliantly touched up in Buchanan Reid's verse, concerning which last the great cavalry general is said to have jocosely remarked that if the bard had seen the horse, he would never have written the poem.—Galaxy.

God is Love.

That which is indisponsably necessary to support the soul amid the afflictions and discouragements of life, is an unwavering faith in God, in his promises, in his goodness, in his fatherly love and care for us. If we allow ourselves to interpret God by the contradictions of evil which we see around us, or think of him as in any way responsible for them, we shall distrust him and doubt his goodness. We need to remember that men alone are responsible for the ills they suffer, and that in spite of sin and its consequences, in spite of pain and sorrow which sometimes make men doubt the goodness and love of God, he still loves us, and cares for us, and is continually at work doing all he can to eradicate the evils that afflict men and lessen the sum of misery in the world.

God does not cease to be good because men are low and sinful. Whatever we do, he is always the same—"the same yesterday, to-day, and forever." With him there is neither variableness nor shadow of turning. Nothing that men can do can alienate the love of God from them. He does not love only the good and lovely, but those also who are wicked and impenitent, and with a love that is as enduring and unchanging as his own eternal essence.

"Every human tie may perish,
Friend to friend unfaithful prove,
Mothers cease their own to cherish,
Heaven and earth at last remove;
But no changes
Can attend Jehovah's love."

If we do not experience his love, it is because we refuse to open our hearts to receive it, and withdraw ourselves from it by choosing evil courses which we know are contrary to his will, and must prevent the influx of his love into our souls. Yet his loving care never ceases for a single moment. Behind the veil which our sins have cast up between us and him, he is still working to bring us back, still yearning over us as a father yearns over his wayward children, and with a love greater, inconceivably greater, than that of the fondest mother's heart that ever beat.

God is love. To every believing, obedient soul, there is given evidence of this truth, which is as convincing as it is precious and full of comfort. It is the evidence of experience, in which the love of God is shed abroad in his heart by the Holy Ghost which is given unto him. There is nothing like this experience of the love of our Heavenly Father to support the soul in the hour of trial. No earthly affliction is unendurable to the soul sustained by an abiding consciousness of the love of God. Poverty, with its anxieties, may have overtaken him, friends may have forsaken him, sickness and bereavement may be upon him, and all his worldly prospects may seem most dreary and forbidding, but if in the midst of this darkness he is still able to look up and say, "God is my father and I am his child; I know that he loves me and will never leave nor forsake me," he will receive comfort and strength to bear his sorrows hopefully and even cheerfully.

Are you in sore trial? Do you feel that your troubles are greater than you can bear? "Have faith in God," in his promises, in his love. You need never despair so long as you can know and feel that "God is love." That single truth, firmly believed and experienced, will do all for you that you could wish. It will quiet your fears, and make your spirit glad and peaceful. It will bring hope and strength to your soul amid the severest vicissitudes of life; so that, whether you are tried with pain or bereavement, or beset with temptation, you will still be able to rest in the everlasting arms of Him who loves you and "careth for you."—Methodist.

Light in the Valley.

"Light breaks in! light breaks in! hallelujah!" exclaimed one when dying. Sargent, the biographer of Martyn, spoke of "glory, glory," and of that "bright light," and when asked, "What light?" answered, his face kindling into a holy fervor, "The light of the Sun of righteousness."

A blind Hindoo boy, when dying, said joyfully, "I see! now I have light. I see Him in His beauty. Tell the missionaries that the blind sees. I glory in Christ."

Thomas Jewett referring to the dying expression of the English infidel, "I am going to take a leap in the dark," said to those at his bedside, "I am going to take a leap in the light." While still another dying saint said, "I am not afraid to plunge into eternity."

A wounded soldier, when asked if he were prepared to depart, said, "Oh yes; my Savior, in whom I have long trusted, is with me now, and His smile lights up the dark valley for me."

"A dying minister said, "It is just as I said it would be, 'There is no valley,'" emphatically repeating, "oh, no valley. It is all clear and bright, a king's highway." The light of an everlasting life seemed to dawn upon his heart; and touched with his glory, he went, already crowned, into the New Jerusalem.

A Christian woman lay dying. Visions of heaven came to her. She was asked if she really saw heaven. Her answer was, "I saw heaven; but one thing I did not see, the valley of the shadow of death."

Another humble Christian said, "How thankful for death, as it is the passage to life eternal."

A young man, who had but lately found Jesus, was laid upon his dying bed. A friend, who stood over him, asked, "Is it dark?" "I shall never," said he, "forget his reply," "No, no," he exclaimed, "it is all light! light! light!" and thus triumphantly he passed away.—Amer. Messenger.

By Railway up Mount Washington.

The railway might have suggested Jules Verne's Journey to the Moon, and is such a miracle of engineering that it will be a pity if any visitor to the mountains misses a ride over it. The work of construction was begun in 1866, and was completed in three years. The route follows the Ammonoosuc Valley, and from the Fabyan House to the end of the friction rail is six and two-third miles. For two and a half miles the grade is two hundred and ninety feet to the mile, or one foot of perpendicular height to eighteen feet of horizontal distance. Besides the usual rails, there is a central rail of peculiar construction to receive the motive power, consisting of two bars of iron, with connecting cross-pieces placed four inches apart. A central cog-wheel on the locomotive plays into this rail, and secures a sure and steady mode of ascent and descent.

The locomotive as it first comes out of the engine-house, has the appearance of being ready to fall over. The driving-wheel is geared in a smaller wheel which connects directly with the crank, and four revolutions of the latter are required to make one of the driving-wheel. The locomotive is not connected with the car, but simply pushes it up in the ascent, and allows it to follow gently in the descent. A wrought-iron dog constantly plays into notches on the driving-wheel, so that should any part of the machinery give way, the train may be immediately stopped. The car is also supplied with friction and atmospheric brakes. The seats are placed at an angle that brings them almost on a level in the ascent, and all of them face down the mountain. The time occupied on the journey is about an hour and a half, the engine having to stop several times on the way to take in water. The fare is three dollars up the mountain, three dollars down, or four dollars up and down on the same train.—W. H. RIDEING, in Harper's Magazine for August.

Clouds.

Nothing in nature is so immaterial and delicately changing as the clouds. It is worth while to spend a day in observation, to note what exhaustless possibilities of change lie in a few hours' time. One of the commonest shows of cloud-evolution, and one which seems to follow a certain law, begins with a multitude of soft, globular figures that may cover the entire sky; these dissolve into a host of finely mottled images like fish-scales, then marshal themselves into ranks like waves of the sea, emerging at last into a thin, delicate fabric like crumpled muslin.

On a still Summer day, when great masses of soft vapor fill the heavens, the procession of figures is like a scene of enchantment. Stately animals stride past, the like of which are not seen again; broad winged birds sail into the west, never to return; grand chariots move by that are turned into mighty giants on the horizon; flocks of white sheep troop leisurely along into other pasture-fields; tall towers and castles rise out of shapelessness into strong symmetry, to dissolve like visions; nameless forms rise, glide past and vanish into space, until change seems the law of the world, and permanence only a myth.

When the sun has set and this dissolving view of vapors becomes a painted spectacle, the eye is feasted with color as the fancy has been with form. The slow dawn of color, which first tints the cloud-edges, then grown into a warm suffusion till the whole mass is irradiated, the rich deepening of hues, the endless shades, the subtle fading away of light, one cloud after another, gray and forsaken, until only a golden glow lingers in the horizon, is like a poem or a symphony of the old masters. The effect stays in the memory long after the details of the picture are forgotten.—National Repository.

The Mormon Question.

No one thirsts for the blood of Brigham Young; but there is an urgency for dealing with the question now, if it is ever to be met. He is now more than 76 years of age, and in the ordinary course of nature will, in a few years, go down to his grave, and once that his dust has mingled with mother earth he will be a greater idol to the ignorant and deluded masses in Utah than ever he was while living among them. Let him die now, and he would be embalmed in the memory of the faithful as a sorely persecuted and maligned saint; but let him be tried and let the evidence of his crimes be blazoned abroad, and the scales would fall from the eyes of the deluded, and Mormonism would crumble to dust and take its place with the multitude of issues that do but little evil to the world. It is imperative that we proceed at once, because the most important witnesses are fast passing away and leave behind no evidence that can be of legal value in any criminal trial. It is but a short time since we recorded the death of George A. Smith, Brigham's first counsellor, the very man who carried the order from Brigham to Dane, Haight, Highley and Lee for the murder of the emigrants at Mountain Meadows.—N. Y. Herald.

The volcano heralded as a new phenomenon in Colorado, now threatens to turn out merely a plain or swamp from which a stream of hot steam issues. Such phenomena are common in the volcanic regions of the West.

Novels vitiate the taste, as strong drink vitiates the stomach and injures the constitution.

General News.

The exhibitors in the permanent show at Philadelphia have declared by a vote of 835 to 509, in favor of keeping open the exhibition on Sunday.

A law is now in force in Illinois making it a punishable crime for any person to advertise that he will procure divorces.

The United States debt decreased $3,219,119 during June, and $39,281,121 during the year ending with that month, and is now $2,060,158,223.

The Rockport, Texas packeries are extensively engaged in canning turtle, which are abundant in the bay. The business promises to be profitable.

The Cane-Brake Lands in Alabama are coming into favor rapidly, and in a few years a plantation in that section will be as hard to buy as it was before the war.

The Court-house at Indianapolis, one of the finest in the West, was formally opened, July 3. It is 278 feet long, 137 wide, and 96 feet high, and fire-proof throughout. It cost $715,000.

A Roman Catholic Church in East St. Louis, Illinois, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. It schedules debts to the amount of $22,000 and assets at $15,000. So far as we know this is the first instance of the kind on record.

On July 1, three men were boating in Niagara river, above the falls, and the boat got into the rapids. Two of the men jumped out and attempted to swim ashore, and were carried over the falls and drowned. The third stayed in the boat and was rescued.

Portugal having consented to act with England in suppressing the slave trade on the Mozambique coast, a British cruiser has been ordered thither. She will carry a Portugese official, visit all the haunts of slavers, and be empowered to search suspicious vessels, even when carrying Portugese colors.

The College of Cardinals, at Rome, has directed the priests and other official beneficiaries of the Church in France, to support the MacMahon candidates in France at the coming election. The success of the MacMahon party would be, it is well known, the end of the French Republic and the restoration of a monarchy subservient to Rome.

The Savannah News believes that the lands of northern Georgia are based upon a gold-bearing strata quite fabulous in its richness. At Dahlonega the other day, directly after the falling of a heavy shower of rain, a little barefoot street urchin found fifteen or twenty large particles of gold in about half gallon of earth, scraped up in front of the Court-house door.

The fossil remains of a huge mastodon have been discovered at Tranberry, Hood county Texas. The animal measures fifteen feet from its skull to the knee joints, which is as long a measurement as could be taken, since below the knees the bones had crumbled into a shapeless mass. The smooth surface of the shoulder blade seemed to be about four feet in diameter.

That $300,000 diamond necklace that the Khedive of Egypt gave Minnie Sherman, now Mrs. Fitch, is in the vaults of the National Treasury Department, because Gen. Sherman says "he hasn't money to pay State and city taxes on it, and Fitch is only a lieutenant in the navy." Congress remitted the duty, but Mrs. Fitch has never able to enjoy the wearing of the jewels.

Sitting Bull has given his version of the Custer massacre. He states that the battle lasted only thirty minutes, and that Custer with a few men and officers had cut through the Indian line when he turned and charged back. The Indians were bewildered by this unlooked-for desperate charge, but closed in on the few men and killed them all. Custer, it is said, shot five Indians, and went down beating another with the butt of his revolver. This account corresponds with others coming from Indian sources.

Twelve years ago, Richmond, Va. with 45,000 inhabitants, lay half in ruins. Now she has rebuilt the whole of the burnt district, has established two hundred factories, and with a population of 75,000 people, is the handsomest city in the world. Norfolk ships near 1,000,000 bales of cotton this year, and has developed a trade in vegetables, fruit and fish, which has extended through our great Northern cities, across the Atlantic, and has increased the value of lands in the adjacent counties many hundred fold. Danville, has built fifty large factories and warehouses since the war. Her population has doubled. In Petersburg, scores of tobacco factories and nine cotton factories have been renovated or started since the war.

SOUTHWESTERN
Christian Advocate,
30 Natchez St., New Orleans.

J. C. HARTZELL, B. D., EDITOR.

THURSDAY, JULY 19, 1877.

Maj. Gen. Augur and family leave this week for Plymouth, Mass., to spend the hot season.

The monthly Preachers' Meeting held in Ames Chapel will be discontinued during the remainder of the hot season. It was so ordered by vote last week.

Constantinople, the Turkish capital, so far as external appearance is concerned, is said to be the most beautiful city in the world. It is situated at the confluence of the Bosphorous with the sea Marmora, and its inhabitants (including the suburbs) number about one million.

General Cyrus Bussey, in company with a number of other gentlemen, has gone to the White Sulphur Springs to attend a Cotton Convention. He also goes as a delegate to the Postal Convention at Old Point Comfort. The General's family expect soon to go to Red Creek, Iowa, to remain until fall.

The School Board of New Orleans are busily engaged in weeding out the list of teachers for the coming year. They say that neither [illegible] nor religion shall influence [illegible] in the selection for the schools, [illegible] they will be governed entirely by the qualifications of and [illegible] standing of the candidates. [illegible] they will adhere to this [illegible].

[illegible] proposition of the Committee [illegible] the city high schools [illegible] in good faith and is under [illegible] consideration. Of course [illegible] would be against it [illegible] the whole land, but then [illegible] accrue greatly to the in[illegible] Catholic population [illegible] private schools. Is it financial embarrassment, or is it [illegible] else that prompts this [illegible]?

[illegible] Dr. Newman is making an [illegible] lecturing, to remove a [illegible] from the Metropolitan [illegible], Washington City. [illegible] was removed [illegible] stand out un[illegible] be a power in the [illegible] capital. All who secure [illegible] Dr. N., will get their [illegible] worth in the way of an en[illegible], and he will be able to [illegible] for his cause.

[illegible] set in in real earnest. [illegible] weeks the ther[illegible] up in the nine[illegible] a lofty bear[illegible] people are keeping [illegible] during the day time [illegible] from their gal[illegible] the night. The [illegible] Sunday are thin[illegible] of the clergy [illegible] for a day or [illegible] have been [illegible] which have [illegible].

[illegible] community gen[illegible] the coming [illegible] will [illegible] of all [illegible] political [illegible] in the [illegible] had [illegible] [illegible] pro[illegible] best[illegible] are [illegible] "Al[illegible] doing [illegible] We all [illegible]

Games and Gambling.

We were asked the other day to give our opinion concerning games, and we will do so in as few words as possible. We must not forget that all games are not to be classed with those of the gambler. First, there are those games that are purely recreative, which give tone and vigor to the system. These games of mere sport are actually needful to the young, even the old might indulge in them with propriety. Such games have never been used for evil purposes and cannot be, only as too much time may be thus wasted; excess in anything wrong.

Games of mere sport have this prime advantage, they combine exercise of body with exhilaration of mind. Mere muscular exercise in itself does little good unless the mind is happy.

Second. There are intellectual games known to us all, which are in no sense harmful, unless it be as before stated in the excess. They are a mental recreation — they change the direction of the mental force. Besides, a game of pure intellect will never be made use of as a gambler will use cards. For where mind meets mind squarely, there can be no advantage save in the superiority of mind, and this is a condition not much sought for by a class who care only for gambling for money.

The great danger in all these is that they may create such a degree of enthusiasm as to render the victim unfit for anything else. He who plays an innocent game, until he thinks of nothing else, is guilty. Duty will be neglected. But further, simple games of recreation often become the stimulus to games of chance. Chess may run to cards quite naturally. And here is after all the danger and difficulty. Yet the discipline of guarding against a temptation is a benefit.

Games of chance are to be dreaded. They are bewitching, blinding. In them is no mental drill of any kind, all depends on the mere turn of a block, or the positions of a piece of paper. These have been used by the gambling world to work the ruin of men for ages.

All their associations are evil, and no argument can make them otherwise. We would positively banish them from our house by our authority, and teach our child to dread them as the poison of the adder.

But says the young man "There is no danger in my case." Did you ever know of any one who started out on life's journey determined on ruin? Not one. Your beginnings are silent, insignificant; you dream of security while danger is near you. Many a man only wakes up to see his fatal mistake when it is too late. As in nature the stream which wildly and darkly rushes onward toward the deep, tearing up and overwhelming everything in its way, spurning every barrier, and flooding the earth, at its mountain source was the puny rill through which a child could wade. So vice which to-day sweeps with the fatality of an epidemic, polluting our land and scattering everywhere the firebrands of destruction and death, may be traced to its origin, in some innocent laxity of thought or heedless indulgence of passion.

Not long since we read the melancholy statement of a father who said that he thought nothing would so promote the intellectual advancement of his son as playing chess. Every spare moment, every leisure hour was devoted to it. Then other and more solid branches of study were neglected or forgotten in the enthusiasm with which he followed the game. The board and [illegible] absorbed all his time while at school and while absent. He learned but little, and that little [illegible] forced upon him. He thought [illegible] thought powerfully, but only [illegible] one subject and that was one of [illegible] importance, and in its consequen[illegible] wholly destitute of any real [illegible]. His passion for games was [illegible] that when traveling on a [illegible] he cared nothing for the [illegible] the river, nor the [illegible] refined ladies and gen[illegible] watched the men at [illegible] dimensionally. He too [illegible] professional gamb[illegible] that father, he now [illegible] the Mississippi [illegible] gambler. [illegible] lecture in Ex[illegible] given us [illegible] The [illegible] a [illegible] is in [illegible] he lost his last acre and started for home, but thinking possibly he might win some of it back he retraced his steps to the card table. He insisted on one more game. It was played, in this he staked his horses, carriage, plate, loose money, furniture, all he had in the world. Even the gamblers besought him not to do so, but he would not yield. He threw the dice, and lost all. Then taking the winner to the street, introduced his coachman to his new master, and went out a penniless beggar on the dark streets of London. At a subsequent day a friend gave him ten guineas as a charity, one-half of this he spent in procuring some decent apparel, the other half he spent in gaming where he won £20,000. But plunged in again, lost all and died a beggar in the poor house.

How true are the words of God. "The triumph of the wicked is short." He hath swallowed down riches and shall vomit them again."

Our Dependence.

We have a few words to say now on a topic of which every good christian has thought more or less, namely, that which refers to our benevolence. For whom and for what do we live?

We must not suppose for a single moment that our sole mission in this world is to gratify self in getting gain, and in simply feeding our appetites.

Life bears upon its very face marks of a higher duty than merely self-seeking. All the analogies of nature are indicative of something more noble than that.

Let us see—nothing strikes us more forcibly than our dependence. We may feel quite independent, but if so it only proves that we have a poor conception of the relations we sustain. Let us see ourselves now in the true light, the light of facts.

God has placed us in the world only for a very brief period, so that it may well be said, "man wants but little here below, nor wants that little long." And while we do live here we have nothing, we can call in any very high sense our own.

The land of which we may have the title deed was owned by others before it came into our possession, and somebody will own it when we are gone. We may build a house and call it ours for a while, but by-and-by others will occupy it as theirs, we will not own it, we will not desire it. Our hold upon property must be broken; the strong arm will be paralyzed; the firm grip must at no distant day relax, and the coveted wealth we sought with such eagerness will glide away and other hands will seize it only in turn to see it vanish away as the dew vanishes before the warm sun ray of the morning.

We talk of our independence, but pause and consider a moment and see whether our vanity has not exercised the mastery over us. For instance, the sun is veiled from sight by the rising mist which has deepened into thick cloud, but all human effort could not unveil his face; or the clouds flee away and the heavens become as brass over our heads—the rain is withheld for weeks until it would seem as though famine must stare us in the face, but no human power can cause a drop of rain to fall upon the earth. Tempests gather and sweep, the earth may quake, or fires may rage, or disease may infest our communities, laying waste our fairest heritage—but in all these what can man do?

Ah! he is as weak a being as a bruised reed. Instead of independent he is dependent upon a power which he not only forgets, but which he often actually defies. Your heart beats not because you have any power to cause the action, but by virtue of a law of your being wisely ordained when in the beginning God made man.

We have alluded to the analogies of nature, we do not here use the term nature in any strictly material sense, but in the higher meaning—what we do mean is God's mode of action.

We see around us everywhere illustrations of a great principle which is all pervading. It is written "God is love;" love is a wonderful word, especially when it defines God. It may imply the common affection of the human heart for any thing. It may rise from mere kindness to crucifixion. The tear on the cheek of innocence, the dying Son of God on the cross may each be expressive of this great love principle in the universe.

How truly do we see in the world about us the footsteps of a loving Father! The early spring flower invites the honey bee and yields its treasured nectar. The sun not only "shines upon the evil and the good" of mankind, it warms the earth for the grovelling worm as well. The rain descends not only on the "just and the unjust" of human kind, but it fills the brook whose murmuring waters bring gladness to the beasts of the field. God cares for everything. Goodness is apparent in all his works. There may be hardness, severity and even death, and yet in these may come substantial good to all. "Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth." We are not independent but dependent upon One who is able to do all things.

The poorest in life are often the richest, the humblest are the most truly exalted—the dependent, the independent. "When I am weak then am I strong," said one of old. By-and-by we shall understand better the ways of God.

The Lottery.

One of the curses of this city is our lottery. The daily expenditure of great sums of money in this way by the poor hard working people is an evil of no small account—it is enormous. We say to all our readers avoid the lottery ticket.

But it is said, "where is the wrong? May a man not do as he pleases with his own. Even if it be to run the risk of a loss?" We answer no. You have no right to set fire to your own house, for thereby you may burn your neighbor's. Individual acts are controlled by the public good. The front of your pew in the church is the back of your neighbor's, and therefore the law says, you cannot tear it out nor paint it black. Now if lotteries are wrong, then no man has any right to put his property in that form.

And even if the act is in itself simple, yet if it injures any other one, the laws of God and man forbid it. On this principle most of the States have, within a few years, enacted laws against lotteries of all kinds. It is regarded as a species of gambling—that is, acquiring property without giving an equivalent.

In all countries gambling has been condemned as a crime against the "peace and purity of society," while the gambler has been classed with the counterfeiter and the burglar. Even Pagan Rome had a law which confiscated the gambling house and all in it, while a gambler if assaulted in his own house had no recourse to law—he was held as an enemy to his race.

We are not forgetful of the fact that lotteries have been resorted to for the purpose of raising money for institutions of learning, political or national purposes, and for other objects of charity. But this still does not make it right.

We hear the objector say—but did not the disciples cast lots for one to take the place of Judas in the apostleship? And did not the Israelites parcel out the law of Canaan by lot? To all of which we answer yes.

And if you are in any doubt as to some course of action which you ought to pursue, and will with prayer ask God to direct you in this way you will do no wrong. The lot in Scripture times was a very common thing, but it was used as an appeal to God—it was one way of asking of the Lord.

Therefore being sacred you have no right to put it to profane purposes. You can't pray much over a lottery ticket—asking God to give you an opera house or ten thousand dollars of somebody else's money—that would be blasphemy.

We are not unmindful furthermore of the fact, that Christian Churches resort to lotteries for raising money for their own support. It is a most burning shame that in the face of wise laws in many States, with the universal sentiment of Christianity in all ages against it as a species of gambling, with the voice of every jurist in the world condeming it—a people calling themselves Christians, will put law and religion at defiance, and invoke the mysterious wheel in the name of Christ.

Well the fact is our whole system of benevolence is wrong. We do not give outright as we should, we must have something back—we will not go to a church gathering and give a few dollars, and feel happy over it, but if our wives and sisters will slave themselves roundly we'll go and eat ourselves sick to help the church; then we get something in return.

So our fine churches are all very well, but people are so chary in their giving that it compels us often to resort to very questionable modes of money raising. Then we hold that it is no worse to have a farobank, and a dancing party for the churches' benefit, than to hold a lottery and sell tickets for a prize.

We say to all avoid the lottery ticket. It is a realization of the song

> "Will you walk into my parlor,
> Said the spider to the fly."

Besides you stand more chances to be struck by lightning every day of your life, than of drawing a prize in any lottery in the world. How much can you afford to throw away on lotteries at that rate?

The Young Woman and Her Danger.

A mother said to us once, "My daughter used to be quiet, studious, happy and inclined to a life of piety. But she found her way into a certain kind of company, which cultivates whatever pleases the senses, regardless of tendencies. But what is now the state of her heart? The thought of religion is not there. She has lost her taste for heeding anything but the most senseless and exciting novels. She never looks into the Bible. Dress and company is in her head day and night. She has no relish for any household duties. Cards and games and dancing are uppermost in her thoughts. The quiet, thoughtful studious girl is transformed into the giddy, vain and unhappy young woman."

But what must be the probable result? She will outstrip all parental restraint. Her mind will become impoverished, for games and their kindred vices do not enrich the mind. Her heart is exposed to the danger of selfishness, while benevolence, that chief ornament of life, will die out. She will have a wrong view of human life. She will see and know it only from the side of pleasure, where all is gilded and unreal. Then, see her in a home of her own. She will find that her education has been on a wrong basis. The positive duties of life will be irksome. She will become nervous, fretted, disappointed. The world will look dark. Family cares will be heavy; her home will be dull. Can such a woman make any home delightful? Impossible! She can dance, but not sweep a floor, and yet the sweeping time has come. She can play games, but knows not how to bake a loaf of good bread, but the bread must be prepared.

Do you say this is extreme, and that these are utterances of bigotry? Let us say to you that the times in which we live are ominous of evil. Our civilization is rotten at the core in many places. The masses are hunting after more amusements, and these are quite expensive. Young women by the thousands adopt a life of shame for the folly of dress. Young men gamble, and even steal, that they may be able to keep up with this fast age. Solid education is rapidly giving place to the most superficial. A book to be read now must skim over the mere surface in order to be saleable.

And then the world judges of a woman now more by her ability to shine in company, than by her intelligence or ability to make a home what a home should be, an evil which can only be uprooted by Christianity.

The Heathen Woman's Friend, mentioned elsewhere in our advertising columns, is an invaluable paper to all who are interested in the work being carried on by the women of America for the salvation of the women of heathendom. It is filled with interesting accounts of work being carried forward by women in foreign lands. Send for a specimen copy to Mrs. L. H. Daggett, 36 Bromfield street, Boston, Massachusetts.

A tremendous storm has recently swept over the Life Insurance world in which a number of what were supposed to be first class institutions have gone under, and as a consequence many people are doomed to lose what they have thus invested. But while all this is true, it is also a fact that other companies are left standing on a firm basis. Life insurance may be injured in public estimation, but not permanently—it will revive again and prosper.

The British army is being recruited in Canada.

Maj. Gen. Howard is in hot and successful pursuit of the marauding red man of the far west. The policy now seems to be to banish him from the borders of civilization and make of him an extinct species. Gen. Howard says the Indians fight as well as any other troops he ever saw.

The cars running to our New Lake End, are usually crowded during these pleasant evenings. The place is becoming more and more attractive, and as a resort for an evening it is indeed a delightful one. Refreshments can be procured on the grounds, and a bath if one feels like it.

What are "Incidental Expenses?"

The item "Incidental Expenses" in our Missionary Society is made up of numerous items that have been frequently published, and are now republished as reported at the last General Committee. The items are as follows:

Interest on Debt	$15,330 25
Annuities on sums donated	545 00
Traveling Expenses of Bishops to Missions	1,406 02
Expenses of General Missionary Committees	1,504 56
Taxes and other Expenses on Lands	699 21
Expenses on Wills	379 98
Printing Annual Report	1,727 51
Bookkeeping of Treasurer and Assistant Treasurer	1,650 00
Certificates, Cards, Collector's Books, Postage on Annual Report, Sea Insurance, Expressage, etc.	2,792 48
Total	$26,035 01

Our Southern Methodism.

Rev. H. May, Meadville, Miss., writes: "We have just closed a two weeks' meeting. There were thirteen conversions, and thirty-four accessions to the church. Our Sunday-school shared with the church in the spiritual blessing. We thank the Lord for his goodness."

Rev. Jesse P. Price, Brownsville, Tenn, says: "We have just closed protracted meeting in which there were five conversions and fifteen accessions to the church. A great religious awakening is manifesting itself among the people on this circuit. Our congregations and Sunday-schools show the increase of spiritual interest."

Rev. Paul Douglass, Galveston, Texas, says: "Rev. J. S. Shackleford, has had a week's protracted meeting. There have been four conversions and fourteen accessions. Both churches are in a good spiritual condition. Pray for us."

Rev. I. Hayward, Baton Rouge, La., says: We have had no general protracted meeting, but at about every service we have one or more accessions to the church. These persons join from their cool deliberate judgment, and it is to be hoped that they will prove faithful to the end.

Rev. Samuel Osborne, Monroe, Louisiana, says: "At a protracted meeting just closed, there were four conversions and thirty accessions to the church. The recent visit of Presiding Elder Gould, proved a great encouragement and blessing to us. Our Sunday-school is largely attended, and is doing well."

Rev. Edward Lee, Bryan, Texas, says: "We had our Quarterly Conference on the last of June and first of July, it was a grand and good time with us. There were many communed at the table of the Lord, we had six accessions to the church on that day, and on the following Monday night we had about three hundred and fifty with us, in the love feast, it seems that the fire is still burning in their hearts. Our Camp-meeting will take place on the first Thursday in August composed of Bryan city and Brazos circuits."

Religious Items.

The American Bible society distributed 60,348 copies of the Scriptures in June. Receipts for the month, $26,488.

The Y. M. C. A. of San Antonio, Texas, has a membership of 120. Through the liberality of the business men of the city the association has been enabled to open and comfortably furnish a hall and free reading room and to supply the latter with religious and secular reading matter.

The King of Siam has subscribed $1,000 toward the erection of a Siamese school for girls, which will be under the direction of the Woman's Presbyterian Mission Society. He also paid his subscription in cash, sending the money in bags of silver coin. The present King was, when a boy, the pupil of Mrs. Owens, whose book on Siam has been published in this country.

General News Items.

The large fountain erected by Catholic total abstinence societies in Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, was dedicated last week in the presence of about 25,000 people. It cost $58,000.

Ohio has a good prospect of being well supplied with political tickets this fall. It will have at least four—the Republican ticket, the Democratic ticket, the greenback ticket, and the temperance ticket.

During the last month there have arrived in San Francisco about four thousand Chinese, among whom are many full-blooded Tartars, and the other day a vessel arrived with eight hundred Chinese merchants.

The alphabets of different nations contain the following number of letters: English, 26; French, 23; Italian, 20; Spanish, 27; German, 26; Sclavonic, 27; Russian, 41; Latin, 25; Greek, 24; Hebrew, etc., 22; Arabic, 28; Persia, 32; Turkish, 33; Sanscrit, 50; Chinese, 240.

Independence day was celebrated by the Americans residing in Paris and London. At London some 10,000 called at Mr. Pierrepont's reception, among whom were Governor Hendricks and Senator Conkling. General and Mrs. Grant assisted the host and hostess.

The following list of offices in Texas have become money order offices, beginning Monday, July 2, 1877; Hallettsville, Lavacca county; Laredo, Webb county; Overton, Rusk county; Hempstead, Waller county; Courtney, Grimes county, Belton, Bell county; San Saba, San Saba county; Schulenburg, Fayette county; Gatesville, Coryell county; Plano, Collin county; and Cleburne, Johnson county.

The State department at Washington is officially advised that the French Government has reiterated its determination to open the Paris International Exposition on the 1st of May next, and that it has now published detailed regulations for the information of exhibitors. It is understood that our government will be unable to make any arrangements for American participation until Congress shall have reassembled, there being no sanction of law for the appointment of a Commissioner, and no appropriation out of which the necessary expenses could be defrayed.

During the Crimean campaign of one year and half 341,000 men were buried in the district of Taurida, which included the Crimea. The Russians lost 170,000 soldiers; the English, French and Turks 155,000; and there were 15,000 Tartar victims. Those killed in battle were but 30,000, and allowing an equal number for the losses from wounds, 281,000 must have succumbed from disease. The deaths of sick persons sent away from the seat of war were about 60,000 more, which makes the number of dead from the Crimean campaign alone over 410,000.

Vermont celebrates the centennial of her existence as a State August 15th. The main ceremonies will occur at Bennington, and among the guest will be the President and Vice-President, the Cabinet, Chief-Justice Waite, General Sherman, Admiral Porter, and several State governors. An oration is to be given by Daniel Roberts, of Burlington, and a poem by Mrs. Julia C. B. Dow, of Rutland. On the 15th will be celebrated the centennial anniversary of the battle of Bennington. President Bartlett, of Dartmouth College, will deliver the oration on that occasion and William Cullen Bryant the poem. The torch-light procession in the evening is to be participated in by 10,000 veteran soldiers.

Bishop Andrews in Sweden.

Rev. J. Kihestrom of the Swedish Mission, writes to the Mission Rooms under date of Orebro, June 22d, and of the last session of the Swedish Conference as follows: "It was the most blessed Conference we ever had in Sweden; it was held at Carlskrona. The chapel was crowded with people every evening, so that many must return, and the Holy Spirit poured out rich blessing," especially when on Sunday morning our beloved Bishop Andrews preached. On Monday evening we had our love feast and the power of God was among us.

Our work in Sweden is more hopeful than ever before. Many souls were converted during the last Conference year, and about seven hundred joined the society.

In New York City.

Trinity is the richest religious corporation in the country, and is the mother of Episcopalianism in America. The grounds around Trinity Church contain the moldering remains of many early New Yorkers, and of some of those who fell during the struggle for Independence. At the northeast corner of these grounds close to Broadway stands the Martyr's monument, erected in 1853, by the Trinity corporation, in memory of those patriots who died in the old Sugarhouse, and in other prisons during the Revolution. It is a chaste Gothic structure of brown stone erected on a granite foundation, rising about forty-five feet, appropriately inscribed, and is crowned by the American eagle. A walk a few minutes northward from Trinity between rows of towering structures brings us to the City Hall Park, a spot rich in historic memories. Here were the "Commons" of the Revolution. The ever-surging tide of travel that pours through Broadway, Center, and Chatham Streets rises highest at the southern extremity of City Hall Park. A modest countryman standing opposite this junction was asked by an officer for what he was waiting, and he replied, "For the procession to pass by." Just before reaching the Park we pass St. Paul's (Episcopal) Church, while on the opposite side of Broadway are the Park Bank and [illegible] Herald building. We are now [illegible] to what was the Park, and [illegible] ourselves confronted by the [illegible] of the New York Post-office. This is a triangular building with a front of two hundred and seventy-nine feet toward the Park, two equal lateral facades of two hundred and sixty-two feet on Broadway and Park Row, and another one hundred and forty-four feet at its apex or south-western extremity. It has nine stories besides a three-story basement and two attic stories. Here, every day, over one hundred tons of mail matter is handled. The building also contains the rooms of the United States Court. On the west side of Broadway, opposite the Post-office, stands the Astor House. It is a six-story granite building, erected in 183[illegible] by John Jacob Astor, on the spot [illegible] during most of his business life. Most of the up-town lines of horse cars have their southern terminus at this point. Grouped around the eastern border of the Park are many of the great newspaper establishments that "Herald" the events and fo[illegible] the status of the "Times," or speak words of warning from the nation's "Tribune," the free press. Overlooking the little triangle in front of these buildings stands a bronze statue of Benjamin Franklin, erected by the printers of New York in honor of the most distinguished representative of their craft. The City Hall, begun in [illegible], and completed in [illegible], and [illegible] years the seat of the National Congress, [illegible] Washington [illegible] Congress [illegible] Adams [illegible] Washington [illegible] Declaration of Independence was read to the Army in 177[illegible] Here [illegible] the "New Jail," the [illegible] at the Revolution, now [illegible].

conducts us to the Mall, a level, beautiful plat of several acres, shaded by large trees, at the head of which is the music stand, surrounded by seats for hundreds of visitors. Here music of a high order is given on appointed days during the warm weather season. North of the Mall is the terrace and esplanade, round which are grouped some of the rarest triumphs of carving seen anywhere about New York. Immediately north of the terrace is the large Bethesda fountain, situated in a depressed nook where nature and art have blended their charms. A few steps farther and we reach one of the lakes, the resort for skating parties in winter, and dotted with boats in summer. Along its southwestern banks runs a shaded pathway to the Bow Bridge, over which one may cross into the Ramble. The Park grounds contain reservoirs for the Croton water covering one hundred and forty-one acres, and the three lakes cover about forty-three acres more. The evaporation from these vast bodies of water in a sultry day, added to the humidity of the shaded districts, renders the atmosphere delightfully cool.—National Repos. for August.

Froebel's Gift and Occupations.

An examination of the methods and appliances of the kindergarten will best discover in how far they are calculated to meet the wants of the child as a rudimentary being who is to be developed into a civilized man.

In laying out a course of study and practice for the child, Froebel has carefully considered the order of evolution of the faculties of the mind. Not only is this species of evolution considered, but also to some extent the evolution of human inventions. The discovery by man of the arts of construction,—(a) for shelter, (b) for clothing, (c) for ornament,—is, to a certain extent, traversed by the child in the kindergarten. And just as it happened in human history that the invention of the alphabet is one of the latest achievements of man,—coming long after his invention of house-building, metallurgy, weaving, and the arts of decoration,—so in the kindergarten, the course of study and practice deals with the acquirement of these primordial arts of human culture, and omits all reference to the arts of reading and writing, until the child has completed what is peculiar to the kindergarten. Indeed, the kindergarten proper ends when the child is ready to begin to learn to read. That this should be so is reasonable. The representation of language is conventional. The alphabet has lost its original symbolic peculiarity. The letter A is no longer the picture of an ox; nor does its pronunciation suggest the important syllable of our word ox. B is no longer the picture of a house (or good shed), nor does its sound suggest to us the word for house. In the picture-writing of Egypt, each character was first a picture of the thing meant; afterwards, the characters began to be used to represent the important syllables of the original words, as used in the composition of other words; from syllabic writing to alphabetical, wherein the symbolic force became entirely obliterated, was the final step. The association between words and letters, and between the spoken word and the written word, is [illegible] entirely conventional. The [illegible] recognizing symbols is [illegible] developed in the human [illegible]; it is the root of intellectual [illegible] as well as of art and [illegible]. To go over from the symbol to the purely conventional, indicates an immense step in the growth of human consciousness. Hence, our primary education which begins with the alphabet, omits all of that portion of education which traverses the periods of prehistoric culture, to wit: the invention of arts and customs, and the development of the symbol as it appears in art and religion. It is clear that, if education in the school is to begin earlier, it must take just the direction Froebel has given it. It would serve no good purpose to begin to learn the alphabet at an earlier period; for such an attempt would suppress the necessary preliminary growth of the child through the prehistoric era of culture. But a school training in the arts and occupations which form the presuppositions of civilization, is or may be a very rational thing. These arts and occupations are half inclined toward theory and intellectual insight, and half inclined toward manual skill and dexterity.

The kindergarten gifts, twenty in number (as used in this country), are so arranged as to develop the [illegible] of solids, surfaces, and [illegible] and the practical ability to [illegible] to draw pictures, to entwine [illegible] to weave.

[illegible] an examination of the [illegible] it will be seen that the first [illegible] used to familiarize the pupil [illegible] various forms of solids, and [illegible] child plays with them at [illegible]. Theoretically he learns [illegible] adding, subtracting, [illegible] and dividing with [illegible].

[illegible] group of gifts includes [illegible] concerns sur[illegible] in drawing. [illegible] the triangles, [illegible] the basis of [illegible] eight [illegible] ting [illegible] sur[illegible] of circles; [illegible] ing on [illegible] from [illegible] to its ideal representation by means of marks, is thus gradual and complete.

The third group of gifts includes the eleventh and twelfth. The eleventh, or the perforation of paper, is introductory to embroidery, which is given in the twelfth. The group continues the general purpose of the second group, to wit; the representation of figures by lines.

The fourth group gives the important art of weaving or plaiting. The thirteenth teaches how to cut the paper; the fourteenth how to weave paper mats and baskets; the fifteenth uses thin slats of wood for plaiting, and the sixteenth uses the same jointed, with the view of reproducing shapes. The seventeenth and eighteenth gifts use paper for folding and intertwining, and thus complete the occupations which have for their object the construction of surfaces from lines or strips, and the construction of vessels of capacity from surfaces. The importance of the discovery of the art of weaving and plaiting by man, and its wonderful ingenuity, are rarely reflected upon, because its results are so familiar to us. By it the linear is converted into the surface, and what is fragile is made strong by combination into the form of mutual support. The maximum of lightness reaches the maximum of strength in the art of weaving and plaiting.

The fifth group returns to the construction of the solid; the nineteenth, with sticks and peas representing the section and outline; the twentieth, moulding the actual solid out of clay.

Thus there is a rational order of development in sequence of the gifts. This, if followed, will give the intellectual and physical training best adapted to the child at the tender age in which he is sent to the kindergarten.—New England Journal Ed.

Doing Good.

A few years since, a wealthy gentleman of Paris, who lived in idleness, at length became weary of life, and left his house one evening, with the intention of drowning himself in the river Seine; it being yet twilight when he arrived at its bank, he concluded to walk about a short time, till it was darker, so that he should not be discovered. While thus engaged, he put his hand in his pocket, and felt a purse, which was filled with gold; he concluded to go and find some poor family, and give it to them, as it would do no one any good, if he cast himself into the river with the money. He soon found a dwelling that bespoke poverty within; he entered it, and there he beheld the mother of the family stretched on a bed of sickness, and six children in rags, and crying for bread. He gave them his purse of gold, and immediately their tears of sorrow were transformed to tears of joy; and their gratitude was so ardent and simple to their benefactor, as to fill his heart with joy and peace; and he exclaimed, "I did not before know that there was so much happiness in doing good. I abandon the idea of killing myself, and will devote the remnant of my life to doing good." He did so, and was much distinguished for his deeds of benevolence.

A Woman 140 Years Old.

The oldest human being in the world, is Senora Peras Glen, a Mexican woman, who lives in San Gabriel Mission, California. She is 140 years old. Her age is declared to be a matter of undisputed record. She was born in Lower California, and removed to San Diego in 1758, and her name was then registered on the Old Mission. In 1770 she removed to San Gabriel Mission, where she has lived ever since in an adobe house, with only a ground floor. She eats only the plainest food, and has been a tobacco smoker all her life until fifteen years ago, when she turned over a new leaf, joined the anti-tobacco pledge, and quit drinking wine at the same time. She was married at thirteen, and has had eleven children. She is now living with her youngest—a baby of eighty-three. A photographer in Rochester, N. Y., has paid a visit to the ancient dame, and taken a series of photographic and stereoscopic views of her. It is a singular fact that her hair, once white as snow, is now turning black and silky. If she lives another half century or so, she will, at this rate, be restored to blooming girlhood again.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

The Russian "Farewell."

In the Russian language the verb "to forgive" is the same as "to bid farewell." The word prastchaite may be translated with equal correctness, "good by," or "pardon me." This idiom is very ancient and is said to have originated soon after the Russians embraced Christianity. The more religious used then to separate themselves during Lent, and retire to coves or huts. Before setting out they used to take formal leave of their friends and neighbors, and ask pardon of them for any offense they might have given. Thus one phrase came to express both ideas. Would it not be well for other Christians to act upon this pious suggestion, and before they take leave of those they may never meet again, to make sure of their forgiveness and God's also? The Russian reply to this adieu is never, "I forgive you," but always "God will forgive you."

Sunday School.

July 29, 1877.—THE YOKE BROKEN. SCRIPTURE.—Acts 15: 22-31

GOLDEN TEXT—"Stand fast, therefore, in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage."

TOPIC.—Liberty in Christ.

HOME READINGS.

Monday, Gal. 5: 1-26; Tuesday, Col. 2: 1-23; Wednesday, Rom. 6: 1-23; Thursday, Matt. 11: 1-30; Friday, John 8: 1-36; Saturday, 1 Cor. 7: 1-23; Sunday, 1 Cor. 8: 1-13.

[Condensed from National Sunday-School Teacher.]

The Motive (22-24.—In this lesson we study the Magna Charta of the Christian faith. The letter written by the church at Jerusalem to the churches at Antioch, Syria, and Cilicia contains the franchise which emancipated the Christian church of all ages from bondage to the law, and which gave it the liberty of the Gospel. The first part of the chapter gives the occasion of its writing. "Certain men" whom Paul calls "false brethren," who came privily down from Jerusalem, "to spy out our liberty" (Gal. 2: 4) "that they might bring us into bondage," asserted that unless the Gentiles should be circumcised after the manner of Moses they could not be saved. This doctrine unequivocally denied the sufficiency of salvation by Christ. They assumed to speak with an authority which they did not have. The only ones to withstand them were Paul and Barnabas. The members of the church at Antioch were new in the faith and cared in the law, and, of course, did not feel themselves competent to decide the question, still they must have felt a great repugnance to a rite so obnoxious that some of the Jews, even, tried to obliterate the evidences of its performance. 1 Cor. 7: 18. All the energy and eloquence of Paul must have been roused to their full intensity to meet and repel a doctrine so monstrous. In his Epistle to the Galatians, where he dwells especially upon this experience, he tells them, in opposition to the doctrine of circumcision and in favor of grace, "though we or an angel from heaven preach unto you any other doctrine—let him be accursed." Gal 1: 8, 8.

The Jews persisted; Paul and Barnabas would not yield, and it was finally decided to refer the matter to the church at Jerusalem. Paul and Barnabas, "and certain other of them"—among whom we find Titus (Gal. 2: 3)—were appointed an embassy to lay it before them. Paul went up, however, not so much by their request as by divine revelation. Gal. 2: 2. The fact that they were brought on their way by the church shows on which side lay the sympathy of its members. Their journey toward Jerusalem was a triumphal procession. As they passed through Phenice and Samaria, in every town where a church had been gathered they had to stop and rehearse the glorious doings of the Lord among the gentiles. There was joy all along the way. When they came to Jerusalem they were received by the church with similar impressive cordiality. To men of reputation, such as James, Cephas, and John, probably, Paul privately explained the nature of the doctrine that he had preached to the Gentiles, lest he should seem to have labored in vain. Gal. 2: 2. By this private explanation he steered clear of any misunderstanding when the time came for a public consideration of the mission.

In the assembly, after there had been much debate, Peter is the one whose words virtually decide the matter. He recites his wonderful visit to Cornelius. His argument is short, to the point, and conclusive. His positions are, 1st.—God chose that by his mouth the Gentiles should hear the Gospel. 2d.—God bore witness that it was proper that the Gospel should be preached unto them by giving them the Holy Ghost. 3d.—He put no difference between the Jews and the Gentiles because the latter were uncircumcised, but purified their hearts by faith without regard to this fact. Even by admission of the Jews, circumcision without purification of the heart amounted to nothing, and hence, that was the important thing and not the other. His was the unanswerable argument that all this was God's doings—who could find fault with Him? His exhortation is short, but it also is powerful. Why tempt ye God. Demanding more than he required. A yoke—which neither our fathers nor we were able to bear. The law required perfect obedience. It laid a heavy burden on the conscience—a burden too heavy to bear, for no one could keep all the requirements of the law. In Rom. 7: 7-24, Paul describes how this yoke had fretted the necks of all those who had worn it. And, lastly, Peter declares that inasmuch as no one could perfectly keep the law, even the Jews themselves must be saved, as the Gentiles were, wholly by grace.

This address of Peter's entirely silenced the multitude. A great hush showed how effective had been his words. Then Paul and Barnabas drove the argument still further home by narrating the wonders that God had wrought among the gentiles by them. Last of all spake James, "the brother of the Lord," a man whose austere sanctity of life had procured for him the title of "James the Just." No one's words could have had such weight with the Judaizing Christians as his, for he was not inclined to act on mere impulse, and, as implied by his honorable title of "Just," he was a strict observer of the law. Peter had shown how the acceptance of the Gentiles was first of God and not of men; Paul and Barnabas had shown that still he was continuing to receive them; James shows that all this was no new thought, but had been pre-indicated in the word. He cites Amos 9: 11, 12, where God in speaking of the tent of David (it had lost too much of its glory to be called a "house") had promised that he would return and build it on the broader foundation of the Jews and the Gentiles. This appeal to the prophets settled the controversy forever. The threatened schism in the church was avoided, and liberty in the faith became a perpetual birthright.

The Science of War.

The Turkish Government has organized a corps of divers, whose business it is to root up the torpedoes which the Russians plant in the Danube, and on the shores of the Black Sea. These divers are Mohammedans from Lazistan, and a certain number of them are attached to each of the Turkish squadrons. When the ship arrives near a spot where the existence of torpedoes is suspected, two divers row to the place in a very light boat, which draws so little water, that there is scarcely any danger of its striking against a torpedo. On arriving at the destination, one of the oarsmen dives into the sea; and if he finds the wire or rope by which the torpedo is attached, he cuts it with a sharp instrument, and returns quickly in the boat. The liberated torpedo floats to the surface of the water, the men pass a sort of lasso round it, take it in tow, and then row back to the ship as quickly as possible. For each one thus captured, the divers are paid about $50, in addition to half the value of the torpedo itself.

A Punctuation Puzzle.

The following article forcibly illustrates the necessity of punctuation. It can be read in two ways, making it a very bad or good man, the result depending upon the manner in which it is punctuated. It is well worthy the study of teacher and pupils:

"He is an old and experienced man in vice and wickedness he is never found in opposing the works of iniquity he takes delight in the downfall of his neighbors he never rejoices in the prosperity of any of his fellow creatures he is always ready to assist in destroying the peace of society he takes no pleasure in serving the Lord he is uncommonly diligent in sowing discord among his friends and acquaintances he takes no pride in laboring to promote the cause of Christianity he has not been negligent in endeavoring to stigmatize all public teachers he makes no effort to subdue his evil passions he strives hard to build up Satan's kingdom he lends no aid to the support of the Gospel among the heathen he contributes largely to the evil adversary he pays great heed to the devil he will never go to heaven he must go where he will receive the just recompense of reward."

Died.

At Galveston, Texas, July 3rd, J. S. Hunter, aged 24 years.

Bro. Hunter was one of our class-leaders in the East Church, and also superintendent of our Sunday-school. By an accident he got a finger so badly bruised as to require amputation. The operation was performed, but the weather being so warm mortification ensued and death was the result. He died in the full triumph of faith. He had been married but nine months.

P. DOUGLASS.

"Canker in the Bud."

You watch ite development with expectant solicitude—the choice, exquisitely moulded bud which promises to unfold with the perfect flower. You perhaps think how it will adorn the drawing-room vase and anticipate the pleasure of showing it to your flower-loving friends. But some morning you find its head drooping, its fragrance fled, and an ugly purple spot on one of the delicately-tinted petals. It is the work of the "canker in the bud." How often the loathsome canker blights the cherished "infant blossoms" in our household gardens—those human buds which give earnest hope of a brilliant future. The noisome canker, so long concealed—scrofula—at length reveals its dread presence and to our bright hopes succeeds the most agonized fear, for we know the fatal sequel it portends—pulmonary consumption. It is estimated by eminent medical authorities that at least one-fifth of mankind are afflicted with this insidious malady. But its ravages are so secret, that even its victims are unaware of its presence until it suddenly discloses itself in some of its myriad and oftimes fatal forms. A slight cutaneous eruption is often the only indicator of its presence. The only means of exterminating this disease from the system is a thorough course of constitutional treatment. This treatment must fulfill three indications, namely, promote nutrition, alter or purify the blood, and arrest disorganization of the tissues and the formation of tubercles. No more efficient alterative can be employed for these purposes than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. While imparting strength and tone to the digestive organs it cleanses the blood and heals the diseased tissues. Test its virtues ere the deadly canker has blighted the life yon prize.

NEW ENG. CONSERVATORY of MUSIC.
16,000 pupils since 1875, 75 eminent instructors. 145 hours instruction for $15. Musical, Literary and Art courses. 4 terms a year. Address E. TOURJEE, Music Hall, Boston Mass. [July 19-4tcow

Every Lady Her Own Physician.
Ladies' own Prescription. Information of great value to every lady sent free, by addressing Dr. W. C. Stevens, 911 Arch street, Philadelphia. [jy-12-4t

Quarterly Meetings.

San Antonio (Tex.,) District.

Columbus, August 4 and 5; Columbus circuit, August 4 and 5; Alleyton, August 10 and 12; Eagle Lake, August 14 and 15; San Antonio, August 18 and 19; Henry, August 25 and 26; Texana, September 1 and 2; Victoria circuit, September 8 and 9; Mission Valley, September 15 and 16; Indianola, September 29 and 30; Speaksville, September 29 and 30; Victoria, October 6 and 7; Beach Creek, October 6 and 7; Corpus Christi, October 6 and 7; Hondo, October 6 and 7; Floresville, October 6 and 7; Southerland Springs, October 6 and 7; Nockernut, October 6 and 7; Lavernia, October 6 and 7; Belmont, October 6 and 7; Riddleville, October 6 and 7; Oakland, October 6 and 7; Halletsville, October 6 and 7.

D. GREGORY, P. E.

Murfreesboro (Tenn.,) Dist.

FOURTH ROUND.

McMinnville, July 5 and 6; McMinnville, Circuit, July 7 and 8; Shelbyville, July 14 and 15; Lewisburg, 21 and 22; Springhill 21 and 22; Franklin, 25 and 26; Mill Creek, 28 and 29; Woodbury, August 2 and 3; Stone River, 4 and 5; Murfreesboro Circuit, August 9 and 10; Murfreesboro, August 11 and 12; Alexandria, August 15 and 16; Carthage, August 18 and 19; Lebanon, August 25 and 26; North Lebanon, August 29 and 30; Hartsville, September 1 and 2; Gallatin, September 1 and 2; Mitchellsville, September 8 and 9; Springfield, September 15 and 16; Dickson, September 22 and 23; Nashville Circuit, September 26 and 27; Clerk Chapel 29 and 30.

C. PICKETT, P. E.

Memphis (Tenn.,) Dist.

FOURTH ROUND.

Memphis, July 7; Adamsville, July 14; Shiloh, July 16; White Sulphur, July 18; Saltillo July 21; Lexington July 25; Decaturville, July 28; Camden, August 1; Clarksburg, August 4; Benton, August 8; Weakley, August 11; Alamo, August 15; Lake, August 18; Carroll and Huntingdon, August 25; Dickson, September 1; Dickson circuit, September 5; Buffalo, September 8; Wayne, September 12; Indian Creek, September 15; Lawrenceburg, September 22.

The Memphis district Sunday-school Extension Society, composed of the members of the district conference, will hold its second session at White Sulphur, Hardin county, July 17th to 20th. Opening service, 17th, at 8 o'clock p. m.

The district conference will meet at Shoat's Creek, Giles county, September 26th. Opening sermon at 7 o'clock p. m., by Rev. E. N. Williams.

J. L. CHANDLER, P. E

Houston, (Texas) District.

THIRD ROUND.

Richmond and Forest Chapel, July 1-2; Church Houston, July 7-8; Edwards Chapel, July 9-10; Harrisburg and West Point, July 14-15; Columbia and Brazoria, July 21-22; 1st Church Houston, August; 4-5; Spring Creek, 25-26; East Church Tabernacle, September 1-2; Galveston, Staffords, September 8-9; Cypress, September, 15-16; Oyster Creek, September 22-23.

W. L. MOLLOY, P. E.

Marshall (Tex.) District.

THIRD ROUND.

Coffeeville, June 30 July 1; Marion, July 7-8 Marshall, July 14-15; Jefferson, Circuit July 21-22; Jefferson, July 28-29; Hickory Grove, July 28-29; Clarksville, August 4-5th; Union, August 4-5; Paris July 11th-12; Quitman, Aug. 18-19; Vanzant, Aug. 25-26; Greenville, Sept. 1st. 2nd; Sulphur Springs, Sept. 8-9th; Mt. Pleasant, Sept. 15-16.

F. C. MOORE, P. E.

Holly Springs (Miss.) District.

SECOND ROUND.

Mt. Pleasant, July 7-8; Kosciusko, July 14-15; French Camp, July 16-17; Greensboro, July 17-18, Winona and Vaiden 21-22; Duck Hill, July 26-27; Granada, July 28-29; Geenada Circuit, July 28-29; Oxford, Aug. 4-5; New Albany, Aug. 8-9; Ripley, Aug. Hickory Flat, Aug. 15; Holly Springs Aug. 18-19; Byhalia, Aug. 21-22; Chulahoma, Aug. 24; Abbeville, Aug. 25-26; Eliza, Aug. 30 and Sept 1st. First District Conference for Holly Springs District will meet on the 14th day of June, at Grenada; all the brethren are requested to be present.

J. G. JOHNSON, P. E.

Greenswood (Miss.) District.

Second Round.

Wesley Chapel, 9 and 10th of June; Silver Creek, 16th and 17th of June; Yazoo City, 23rd and 24th of June; Pioey Grove, 30th of June and 1st of July; Deasonville, 7th and 8th of July; Pickens, 14 and 15 of July; Lexington, 21st and 22d of July; Goodman, 28th and 29th of July; Jones Chapel, 4th and 5th of August; McNutt, 11th and 12th of August; Caney Creek, 18th and 19th of August; New Midway, 25th and 26th of August; Hernando, 1st and 2d of September; Panola, 8th and 9th of September; Cold Water, 15th and 16th of September; Walnut City, 22nd and 23d of Sept; Shiloh 26th and 30th Sept.

J. W. DUNN, P. E.

Meridian (Miss.) District.

Rome, June 23-24; Ex-Prairie, June 30 and July 1; Macon, July 7-8; Shuqualak, July 11-12; DeKalb, July 14-15; Lauderdale July 21-22; Daleville, July 24-25; Meridian 28-29; Meridian Circuit August 4-5; Quitman August 11-12; Shubuta Circuit, August 15-16; State Line, Aug. 18-19; Shubuta, August 21-22; Enterprise Circuit, Aug. 25-26; Enterprise, Aug. 28-29.

M. ADAMS, P. E.

San Antonio (Tex.) District.

Sutherland Springs, June 23-24; Nockernut, July 1; Cibola, July 4 and 5; Riddleville, July 4 and 5; Lavernia, 7 and 8; Goliad Circuit, July 11 and 12; Belmont, July 14 and 15; Refugio, July 18 and 19; Wrightsboro, July 21 and 22; Goliad, July 28 and 29.

D. GREGORY, P. E.

Heathen Woman's Friend.
24 PAGES MONTHLY.
PRICE 50 CENTS.
Specimen Copies sent Gratuitously.
MRS. L. H. DAGGETT, Agent.
36 Bromfield street, Boston, Mass.
July19-1f

ROANOKE COLLEGE, SALEM, VA.
Next session begins September 5th, 1877. Collegiate, elective and preparatory, courses. Unsurpassed location. Mountain climate. Moral community. Five Churches in town. Expenses for 9½ months, including tuition, board, etc., from $160 to $240. Students from fifteen States, Indian Territory, and Mexico. Patronage constantly increasing. For catalogues, etc., address jy12-4t] SECRETARY OF FACULTY.

E. D. ELLIOTT,
PRINTER
39 Natchez st., New Orleans.

"HEAVENWARD."
The new book of Sunday-school songs, by James R. Murray, P. P. Bliss, and other favorite writers, including the best Hymns and Music of the late
P. P. BLISS.
This is the only New Song Book containing Mr. Bliss' best Songs—the ones that have made his name famous throughout Europe and America.
The verdict of all who examine "HEAVENWARD" is, "it is unequaled by any other Sunday-school Music Book." A single sample copy, in paper covers, mailed for 25 cents. Price—in boards, 35 cents. $30 per hundred. Order from your bookseller.
SONGS OF FAITH
For REVIVAL, PRAISE or CAMP MEETINGS.
A collection of new Gospel Hymns and Sacred Songs by the best writers, including Moody and Sankey's favorite songs. Words and Music, 35 cents; $30 per hundred. Words only, 6 cents; $5 hundred. Send for sample.
New Anthem Book—Ready July 1st.
CHAPEL ANTHEMS By Dr. J. B. Herbert, assisted by the best writers of the day. Will supply a long-felt need for a collection of new, short, easy, and practical Anthems for Choirs, etc. Specimen pages free. Sample copy mailed for $1 25. Catalogues of Music Books and Sheet Music sent free.
S. BRAINARD'S SONS, Publishers,
apr26-77-1y] Cleveland, Ohio

OFFICE AMERICAN COTTON TIE CO. LIMITED
47 Carondelet St. New Orleans, La.

In view of the constantly increasing popularity and demand for the Celebrated Arrow Tie, the universally recognized favorite Tie of Planters, Cotton Pressman and Shippers of Cotton generally, the American Cotton Tie Co., Limited, sole proprietors and manufacturers of said Tie, commanding unequalled facilities, have, in addition to the large stock now on hand, contracted for increased quantities, sufficient to meet the largest demand for Cotton Ties, to cover the entire crop of the coming season, and now, through their Agents generally, offer the popular and irrepressible ARROW TIE at $2.50 per bundle, less 2½ per cent. discount for cash, in Bundles complete, being less than the market value of plain hoop iron; and it being the purpose of the Company to merit the continued patronage of the Planting community and to defy all competition that may arise; their Agents are instructed to contract with Dealers, Factors and country Merchants at the above named price and terms for future delivery up to the first of August in quantities as may be required from time to time, settlements being made on delivery.
R. W. RAYNE, & CO.,
GENERAL MANAGERS,
je-21-77-1y] New Orleans, La.

SOUTHWESTERN AGENCY
FOR
School and College Text Books.
Office No. 80 CAMP STREET (up stairs).
Below we submit the MODEL SERIES of books (so conceded by the leading educators of this country) for use in PRIMARY, INTERMEDIATE and GRAMMAR schools. To insure their adoption by the progressive teacher we have only to ask a careful comparison with books of a like grade, a critical examination and a thorough, practical test in the class-room:

	Prices.
Harper's Introductory Geography	60
Harper's School Geography	$1 25
" United States First Reader	15
" " " Second "	26
" " " Third "	37
" " " Fourth "	56
" " " Fifth "	75
" " " Sixth "	90
Wilson's Primary Speller	15
" Larger "	30
" New "	34
Lamson's Penmanship, per dozen	1 60
French's First Lessons in Numbers	25
" Elementary Arithmetic	37
" Mental Arithmetic	36
" Common School Arithmetic	70
Swinton's Language Primer	30
" Language Lessons	37
" School Composition	37
" Progressive Grammar	55

Catalogues, circulars, and testimonials sent on applications. Correspondence solicited and will receive prompt attention, when addressed
W. P. ROGERS & W. L. JARVIS, Agents for the Introduction of Harper & Brothers' Educational Works; New Orleans, La.; Lock Box 134.

Hospital College of Medicine.
(The clinical School of the West.)
Med. Dept. of Central Univ., Louisville, Ky.
Distinctive features: A thorough didactic course, unsurpassed clinical facilities, eighteen clinics per week, the student being daily required to examine and prescribe, a high standard of graduation, both a didactic and a practical clinical examination being required.
For catalogues and information concerning special advantages address
DR. W. H. BOLLING, DEAN,
Cor. Third and Jefferson Sts., Louisville, Ky.

Texas Lands.
Best Investment in the Nation!
640 acres rich prairie loam, producing cotton, grains, fruit and vegetables, and adapted to stock, lying in the high and healthful latitude of Northwestern Texas, for the nominal sum of $256.
Title Patent, direct and perfect. Taxes low. Worth several times the cost. Now is your time to plant a small sum fruitfully. No fraud. All work personally supervised. Handled in the interest of education in Texas. Full particulars furnished on application, (with stamps).
References: Rev. Wm. Brush, D.D., P. E. Austin District, Austin, Texas; First National Bank, Dallas, Texas; State Savings Bank, Dallas, Texas, or editor of this paper. Address
REV. L. H. CARHART,
West Texas Conference.
☞ Box 377, Dallas, Texas. [a19-1f

$66 a week in your own town. Terms and outfit free. H. Hallet & Co.
Dec 21 76 1y] Portland, Maine.

Lungs and Throat.
Inhalation of common air in Incipient Consumption will cure. Dr. J. M. Howe, of Passaic, N. J., sends his Tube, with full directions, post free for $3 50. Send for circulars.
may2tf.

"The principle of combining English and American writers in a common literary enterprise, merits all encouragement."—J. Anthony Froude.
THE
INTERNATIONAL REVIEW,
A NEW YORK AND LONDON REVIEW.
EMINENT CONTRIBUTORS ON BOTH SIDES OF THE ATLANTIC. (No articles at second hand. All articles original.)
CONTENTS.—MAY-JUNE—NOW READY.
The New Administration.
The Life Insurance Question, Carlton T. Lewis.
Disestablishment of the Church of England, Dr. James H. Rigg, London.
The Philadelphia Exhibition.—Part I. Mechanism and Administration, Francis A. Chief of the Bureau of Awards.
Tennyson.—A Criticism, Bayard Taylor.
Our Foreign Service, Hon. John Jay.
American and European Literature, Phillip Gilbert Hamerton.
Contemporary Events.
Price, Single Number, $1. Per annum $3. Annual subscription (6 numbers) $5.
New York: A. S. BARNES & CO.,
apr27-1y] Publishers.

ON A NAUGHTY LITTLE BOY, SLEEPING.

BY BRETE HARTE.

Just now I missed from hall and stair
A joyful treble that had grown
As dear to me as that grave tone
That tells the world my older care.
And little footsteps on the floor
Were stayed. I laid aside my pen,
Forgot my theme, and listened—then
Stole softly to the library door.

No sight! no sound!—a moment's freak
Of fancy thrilled my pulses through!
"If—so?"—and yet, that fancy drew
A father's blood from heart and cheek.

And then—I found him! There he lay,
Surprised by sleep, caught in the act,
The very Vandal who had sacked
His little town, and thought it play:

The shattered vase; the broken jar;
A match still smouldering on the floor;
The inkstand's purple pool of gore;
The chessmen scattered near and far.

Strewn leaves of albums slightly pressed
This wicked "Baby of the Woods;"
In fact of half the household goods
This sire and heir was seized—possessed.

Yet all in vain, for sleep had caught
The hand that reached, the feet that strayed,
And even in that ambuscade
The victor was himself o'erwrought.

What though torn leaves and tattered
books
Still witnessed his deep disgrace!
I stooped and kissed the inky face,
With its dimpled limbs and calm outlook.

Then sat I down, and half beguiled
My guilt, in trust that when my sleep
Should come, there might be One who'd keep
An equal mercy for His child.

Temperance Puzzle.

B BER
BEDER
BEDRDER
BEDRURDER
BEDRUMURDER
BEDRUMAMURDER
BEDRUMURDER
BEDRURDER
BEDRDER
BEDER
BER
B

The secret is to discover how many different ways you can read the warning words—Red Rum and Murder. After you think you have the solution correctly, look it over carefully and see if you are one in a thousand out of the [illegible]

Good-night Words.

If there is one time more than another when children ought to hear only loving words from parents, to be helped to feel that theirs is a world of love and gladness, it is when they are going to bed at night. The waking thoughts of a child have a peculiar power over his mind and heart, and are influential in his impressions and shaping of his character all time. When he is at school and playmates, and [illegible] of his little life lives by himself to [illegible] A sense of loneliness which he does not feel in other times. Then he needs to be appreciated and loved by kindness. How glad he is to feel his mother's knee in place of his father kneel [illegible] How he enjoys a word of approval or encouragement from precede the [illegible] either parent. [illegible] and grateful affection [illegible] heart glows as he [illegible] the kiss of his mother upon his forehead [illegible] asleep. How sorry [illegible] word or act of unkindness [illegible] them recalls from [illegible] day. How ready [illegible] resolves and purposes for the future. [illegible] tightly use [illegible] children's bedside [illegible] scolding [illegible] at that time. [illegible] the top of [illegible] it is the golden [illegible] the children's [illegible] very most [illegible] by the [illegible] years [illegible] left [illegible] good-night [illegible] such you would [illegible]

Thought.

[illegible] the end of [illegible] never [illegible] it [illegible] eternal [illegible] good-night [illegible] such you would [illegible]

What the Billious Require.

Since torpidity of the liver is the chief cause of its disorder, it is evident that what the bilious require is an alternative stimulant which will arouse it to activity, an effect that is followed by the disappearance of the various symptoms as indicative of its derangement. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters invariably achieve the primary result mentioned, besides removing constipation, flatulence, heart-burn, yellowness of the skin and whites of the eyes pain in the right side and under the right shoulder, nausea, vertigo and sick headache, to which bilious invalids are peculiarly subject. As a remedy for chronic indigestion, mental despondency and nervousness the Bitters are equally efficacious, and as a renovant of lost vigor, a means of arresting premature decay, and a source of relief from the infirmities to which the gentler sex is peculiarly subject, they may be thoroughly relied upon.

Wonderful, Most Wonderful.

A neighbor of ours has been for several years afflicted with consumption, and for months was so low that we looked daily for her death, but strange as it seems to us, three bottles of Cannabis Indica has so far restored her, that she is now able to do her housework. I have always been prejudiced against patent medicines, but seeing the remarkable effect your remedies have had upon Mrs. Fielder, and having a similar case in my own family, I have inclosed $18.00 for 6 syrup, 4 ointment and a box of pills, hoping to obtain the same benefits, I am, respectfully

D. B. BAILEY,

GARDNER, Grundy Co., Ill., May 20, 1877,

N. B.—This remedy speaks for itself. A single bottle will satisfy the most skeptical. We know that it positively cures Consumption, and will break up a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. $2.50 per bottle, or three for $650. Pills and Ointment, $125 each. Address CRADDOCK & CO., 1032 Race Street, Philadelphia, Penn. June 14.

The Old Reliable Jackson Route.

TO THE FRONT AGAIN.

This old favorite passenger route has been greatly improved with steel rails, new iron bridges and new cars, and is now run with great regularity, making sure connections and quick time, and is the shortest and best route to the East via Louisville and Cincinnati.

Pleasure seekers by this route can go via Chicago and through Canada, or via Buffalo and Niagara Falls, to New York and the Northern watering places, at the same fare as via Louisville or the lines through Georgia and Virginia.

A full line of tourist and excursion tickets now on sale at the Jackson Railroad ticket office, No. 22 Camp street, under City Hotel, to all important summer resorts in the East, North and Northwest, by all desired routes.

Only one change of cars between New Orleans and New York and other Eastern cities. No change between Chicago, Cincinnati, Louisville and New Orleans, or from St. Louis to New Orleans.

Palace sleeping cars on all through trains.

Try the old Jackson route.

E. HEATH. W. F. PIPPEY, M. LARA.

HEATH, PIPPEY & LARA,

99.....CAMP STREET..... ...99

NEW ORLEANS.

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

UPHOLSTERERS MATERIALS,

Wall Paper,

Window Shades, Cornices, and

CURTAIN GOODS.

PICTURES, FRAMES,

MOULDINGS, MIRRORS,

LOCKS, WIRE-CLOTH,

WINDOW & DOOR SCREENS

FRAMING DONE TO ORDER. 14-1y

A. H. NELSON,

Commercial Stationer, Printer, Blank

BOOK MANUFACTTRER and LITHOGRAPHER.

THE best assortment of Blank Books in the city.
The Finest Specimens of Lithographic work to be found in New Orleans.

No. 57 CAMP STREET,

Sign of the Mammoth Letter Press.

☞ Call and Prove My Statements. [oct12-76 1y

Pringada Hooting Slate.—The best and strongest in the world, not excepting the well-known Welsh Slate.

The undersigned having accepted the agency for the sale of the celebrated ORE BANK and IMPERIAL QUARRIES, is now prepared to fill orders at prices much below those of Welsh and but little in excess of those of ordinary American Slates. Builders, contractors and others generally are invited to submit them to the severest tests.

ALEXANDER HILL,
may2-76 1y 110 Gravoiet st., N. O.

Madame FOY'S
Corset Skirt Supporter
Increases in popularity every [illegible]

[illegible] wanted. Out Trees & Co., Augusta, Maine.

$55 to $77 a week to Agents. $10 Outfit Free. P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Me.

A. P. HARRINGTON,

No: 118 Canal Street,

New Orleans, ... La.

Dealer in

LAW, MEDICAL, SCHOOL, RELIGIOUS, AGRICULTURAL AND MISCELLANEOUS

BOOKS

Stationery, Gold Pens and Pencils.

Pocket Books, Card Cases, Pocket Knives, Scrap Books, Chromos, Photograph Albums, Stereoscopes, Maps, Globes, Writing Desks, Etc.

☞ PRINTING, RULING and BINDING.

Subscriptions taken for Newspapers and Magazines, Payable in advance.

☞ Country Orders Solicited. ☜ feb10-77-1y

THE

Houston and Texas Central Railroad,

Operating over 500 miles of superior road, runs North and South through the

FINEST AGRICULTURAL and GRAZING DISTRICTS in TEXAS

And offers the most desirable sites for location to parties immigrating to that great State. The

NORTHWESTERN BRANCH

Of this road, which is now being pushed forward beyond Waco, will pierce the Great Mineral region of

NORTHWESTERN TEXAS.

For further information, address

J. R. COFFIN, S. P. A., Chattanooga, Tenn.
C. R. WHITNEY & CO., New Orleans, La.
J. WALDO, G. P. A., or J. DURAND, Gen'l Superintendent, Houston, Texas. [mar22-77-1y

PAN-HANDLE

AND

PENNSYLVANIA Railroad Route.

The Favorite Trunk Line.

Only one change of cars to New York, and that at 7:30 in the morning, at Cincinnati.

No omnibus transfers on any part of the line.

Best equipped and shortest route to all the eastern cities.

Best Route to Long Branch, Cape May, Atlantic City, New Port, and all the Atlantic sea-coast watering places.

Best route to Cresson, Altoona, the celebrated Bedford Springs, and all the noted mountain retreats of the Alleghany range; and also the best route to Bethlehem on the Lehigh river, and all the noted resorts in the Anthracite coal regions of Pennsylvania.

This route is supplied with all the modern improvements for speed, safety, and comfort; and continuous trains run without stoppages for fuel or water, as the water is supplied while the trains are in motion.

Palace and Drawing Room coaches on all trains.

Double tracked, stone balasted, free from dust, and steel rails laid according to scientific principles, to avoid jarring which is the cause of nausea to many.

All travelers who have availed themselves of the solid comforts to be found on the old reliable Pan Handle and Pensylvania, unhesitatingly say that for families and tourists, it is unequalled; while for business men who desire reliability and promptness it is far ahead of all opposition.

The refreshment saloons and eating houses are all first-class and all have an enviable reputation for their cusine—the tables being supplied with the best that the markets of Ohio and Pennsylvania afford.

Be sure and ask for tickets via Louisville Cincinnati and the Pan Handle Route.

W. L. O'BRIEN,
Gen. Pass'r and Ticket Agent, Columbus, Ohio.
SIDNEY B. JONES,
General S. W. Agent, Cincinnati, Ohio.
W. M. WALLENGTON,
Gen. Southern Agent, New Orleans, La. [June14-77-tf

FOUR MONTHS OF

GOOD HEALTH

FOR 25 CENTS.

ANY PERSON WHO WILL BUY A BOX OF

Parson's Purgative PILLS

And will take one (1) each night for four (4) nights, and will do this every third (3d) week during the months of June, July, August and September, will not be troubled with Fever and Ague, nor Malarious Fever, nor Bilious Fever, nor any of the diseases resulting from miasmatic poison, common in Missouri, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas. If Parson's Purgative Pills cannot be obtained at your nearest store, send 25 cts. to the undersigned, and the pills shall be sent, post paid, by return mail. Physicians supplied by mail at $2.50 per thousand in bulk. As this is but little more than half price for standard pills by the thousand, cash must accompany the order. The Receipe will be cheerfully sent to any physician on application. We will send Parson's Pills by mail to responsible parties on commission at $2 per dozen, sample dozens at $1 35, cash with the order.

WHOLESALE AGENTS.

COLLIER BROS.....St. Louis, Mo.
G. W. JONES & Co.....Memphis Tenn.
E. J. BURT & Co.....New Orleans, La.
C. F. LINCOLN & Co.....Little Rock, Ark.
T. C. THOMPSON & Co.....Galveston, Tex.
Druggists and Jobbers ed

L. S. JOHNSON & CO.

[jel-1y] Bangor, Maine, Proprietors.

10,000 COPIES SOLD IN EIGHT WEEKS.

THE LATEST, FRESHEST, and MOST COMPLETE OF ALL THE

MOODY LITERATURE.

FIVE BOOKS IN ONE.

MOODY: His Words, Work and Workers.

EDITED BY REV. W. H. DANIELS, M. A.

With an Introduction by Rev. Chas. H. Fowler, DD., LL.D.

Of the many volumes called out by the wonderful career of Messrs. MOODY AND SANKEY, all have hitherto been more or less fragmentary, and without systematic arrangement. In the above work the design has been to bring within the compass of a single volume of generous size

THE MAN HIMSELF: A full and Systematic Presentation of his Bible Doctrines: An account of his most prominent CO-WORKERS: and a chapter on that most marvelous movement in modern evangelism, THE GOSPEL TEMPERANCE REVIVAL.

In order to make the volume fresh and complete, Mr. Daniels, who edits this work, has made a visit to Boston, to learn, by personal observation, as he has done in the case of the Moody and Sankey revivals in other great cities on both sides of the Atlantic, the progress of the revival work there.

This volume cotains 552 pages, crown octavo, including twelve full-page illustrations; is elegantly printed on fine paper; is handsomely bound; and is not only a book of the widest and most permanent interest and value of any yet published in this line, but is also the

CHEAPEST FOR ITS PRICE.

Full Cloth, Gilt Stamp.....$2 00
Half Morocco, Marble Edge.....$2 75

AGENTS WANTED EVERYWHERE.

The publishers are appointing from fifteen to twenty agents daily, which is the very best evidence of the fact that the book meets the popular want. Many who are canvassing for other similar works are dropping them and taking this.

MINISTERS, STUDENTS, TEACHERS, LADIES,

And other intelligent persons, are wanted to canvass for this work. It will be

SOLD ONLY BY SUBSCRIPTION.

READ HOW IT SELLS.

Rev. J. S. Wickline, one of our Agents, writes, under date of June 12, as follows: "Messrs. Nelson & Phillips: I sold twenty-four books in two days; showed the book to twenty-five persons, and took twenty-four subscribers."

No other book in the market, now being sold by subscription, is selling so fast.
It is preeminently the best book on Mr. Moody and his Work that has yet appeared.
Send postal card for full description, circulars, and terms to

NELSON & PHILLIPS,
Lock Box B., New Orleans.

P. S.—Where we have no Agents, the book will be sent, postage prepaid, on receipt of retail price.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine. [Dec 21 76 1y

IMPROVED CABINET ORGAN.

EXCELLING WHAT HAS PREVIOUSLY BEEN ACCOMPLISHED IN

POWER, PURITY AND DELICACY OF TONES.

THE LIST CABINET ORGAN

(Style No. 504.)—Five Octave; Seven Sets of Reeds of Two and a Half Octaves each, and One Set of One Octave; Fifteen Stops; New Scale of Reed-Board, Reeds and Actions, with Ventrillo Chest and other Improvements, patented 1876-7.

Base.—Contra Bass, 16 ft.; English Horn, 8 ft.; Viola, 4 ft.; Viola Dolce, 4 ft.; Sub-Base, 16 ft. Treble.—Cornet, 16 ft.; Melodia, 8 ft.; Piccolo, 4 ft.; Sesquialtera, 2 ft.; Voix Celeste, 8 ft. Throughout.—Full Organ, (knee stop,) Vox Humana, Octave Coupler, (coupling up,) knee Swell, 1. Forte, II. Forte.

The Mason & Hamlin Organ Co., have the pleasure of announcing that specimens of this fine Organ, (the similes in their musical part of one furnished Dr. Franz Liszt,) are now ready, and may be seen at their Warerooms and Principal Agencies. The origin of this improved Organ, and of its name, is as follows:

Having occasion to make an organ expressly for the very celebrated Dr. Franz Liszt, in which full orchestral power was especially desired, as well as such delicacy and purity of tone as could afford satisfaction to so critical a judgment as that of the great musician, we took the opportunity to carry out and introduce improvements which had been first presented in our Organs, at the U. S. Centennial Exhibition, with others which had long been in progress. The result was more than satisfactory to ourselves; the improvement greater than we had ventured to expect. In our own warerooms in Boston and New York the new instrument was seen and tested by a number of the best musicians in the county, who pronounced it a material advance upon all that had before been accomplished. In the rooms of the Agent for the sale of our Organs in Hannover, Germany, it was also greatly admired. The Hannover Courier declared it to be "at the very height of development of instruments of the class," evincing "extraordinary progress." After its receipt and trial, Dr. Franz Liszt wrote to the Agent: "The beautiful organ of Mason & Hamlin Organ Company of Boston received no less praise here than in Hanover. It fully justifies the remarkable, well-founded, and widespread renown of these superb instruments." It was immediately put in use in his orchestra.

"We are confirmed in our judgment then, that the tones of this new Organ are the finest that have ever been produced from reeds, not because of mere oddity of effect, but from their true diapason-like quality and fulness, and from their excellent power and pervading and sustaining effect; and that, as a whole, it is, in proportion to its size and extent, much in advance of anything we have before been able to produce.

Circulars with full particulars, also Catalogues illustrating and describing all the styles of the celebrated MASON & HAMLIN CABINET ORGANS, which have taken highest honors at all the World's Exhibitions of recent years, are the only American Organs which have ever taken highest award at any such, sent free.

MASON & HAMLIN Organ Co.

154 Tremont St., Boston; 25 Union Sq., N. Y. 250, and 252 Wabash Avenue, Chicago.

F. F. HANSELL,

JAS. A. GRESHAM, Manager.

BOOK-SELLERS, PRINTERS,

AND STATIONERS.

No. 30 CAMP STREET,

Would respectfully announce to the readers of the ADVOCATE their facilities for doing all kinds of Printing and Job Work for

PARTIES,
BALLS,
and BUSINESS PURPOSES.

Methodist Hymn Books, Disciplines and Bibles

Will be furnished at Northern Prices.

FAMILY BIBLES.

from $2 50 to $10 00. Orders from the country will receive prompt attention, and all orders filled as low as if brought in person.

Address, as above,

F. F. HANSELL,
30 Camp street, New Orleans, La.
Lock Box 84. [je14-77-3m.]

AYER & SON'S MANUAL For Advertisers

A complete guide to advertisers. New Haven Journal. A necessity to all who advertise. Louisville Commercial. The most complete and reliable work of the kind. Pittsburg Gazette.—Sent free to all who advertise.

N. W. AYER & SON'S TIMES BUILDING, AGENTS, PHILADELPHIA.

Get our Estimates before making any advertising contracts. Our business is large. Facilities unsurpassed. Prices the lowest. Terms the best.

THIS NEW ELASTIC TRUSS

Has proved effective where all others failed. It is worn with less discomfort than any other. Adapts itself to all positions without chafing or pinching. It retains rupture in the most trying positions just as easily as a person would with the finger. With it in place the bowels is held firmly day and night, and a radical cure certain. It is easy, durable and cheap. Sent by mail. Circulars free.

ECCLESTON TRUSS CO., Marshall, Mich. Mar28-77-eow13t

BLYMYER MANUFACTURING CO., Cincinnati, O. ecpt28-'76-1y

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY. Established in 1837.

Superior Bells of Copper and Tin, mounted with the best Rotary Hangings, for Churches, Schools, Farms, Factories, Court Houses, Fire Alarms, Tower Clocks, Chimes, etc. Fully Warranted. Illustrated Catalogue sent Free.

VANDUZEN & TIFT, 102 and 104 East Second St., Cincinnati. [mar22-1y]

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY. Established in 1837.

Superior Bells of Copper and Tin, mounted with the best Rotary Hangings, for Churches, Schools, Farms, Factories, Court Houses, Fire Alarms, Tower Clocks, Chimes, etc. Fully Warranted. Illustrated Catalogue sent Free.

VANDUZEN & TIFT, 102 and 104 East Second St., Cincinnati. Jan 30 76 tf

.. PER QUARTER FOR TEN QUARTERS.

MASON & HAMLIN CABINET ORGANS.

HIGHEST AWARDS AT

FOUR GREAT WORLD'S EXPOSITIONS

Paris, 1867; Vienna, 1873; Santiago, 1875; PHILADELPHIA, 1876.

ONLY ORGANS ASSIGNED FIRST RANK AT CENTENNIAL.

Great variety of styles at prices which would be impossible for work of such excellence is about unequaled facilities for manufacture.

EXAMPLES OF NEW CASH PRICES:

Five octave double reed organ, with tremulant, $100
Five octave organ, nine stops, with voix celeste, $114

Sold also for monthly or quarterly payments, or rented until rent pays. A superior organ may now be purchased by the very payment of $1.00 per quarter for the quarters. Catalogues free.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN CO
154 Tremont St. BOSTON. 25 Union Sq. NEW YORK. 250 Wabash Av CHICAGO
June14-77-1y

Victor Cane Mill and COOK EVAPORATOR

The BEST, and only Standard Machines.
FIRST PREMIUM AT 125 STATE FAIRS.
Grand Medal at Centennial Exhibition.
Over 44,000 sold.
Best, Reliable, Economical.

Cane Growers can't afford to risk Crops With high, weak, unfinished mills. Liable to break in the midst of the season. They can't afford to waste crops with mills that do not press out all the juice, or evaporators that make syrup and sugar unfit for market, and too little attention to the labor and cost they require.

Blymyer Manufacturing Co., Cincinnati, O. Send Register, Testimonials, Price Circulars sent free.

LADIES' Elegant Imitation CORAL SET, Necklace and Pendant, Best Premium in any Reader. Sent Postpaid to any Reader of this Paper for 25 cents. Address in order plainly to C. A. THORSOS, Clinton Place, New York.

THE

SINGER AGAIN TO THE FRONT!

GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICES

—OF THE—

WORLD-RENOWNED

Singer Family Sewing Machine!

THE SINGER MANUFACTURING COMPANY, ever awake to the interests of the public, have determined to PUT THE PRICE OF THEIR MACHINES within the reach of every man, woman and child in the land.

THE GENUINE SINGER SEWING MACHINE IS NOW OFFERED AT PRICES BELOW THE BOGUS ONES, OR ANY OTHER.

The fact that the only Sewing Machine which unscrupulous men have ever attempted to imitate, is the Singer, is sufficient evidence of its superiority over all others. There is no longer any excuse for buying any of the cheap machines hawked about the country, with no claim for patronage but their cheapness.

THE SINGER MANUFACTURING COMPANY,
S. E. RUNDLE, Agent.
may24-6m] No. 91 Canal Street, New Orleans, La.

WHEELER & WILSON

STILL AHEAD!

PRICES GREATLY REDUCED.

The Acknowledged Family Favorite.

NO NOISY COGS, AND NO RATTLING SHUTTLES.

Ease of manipulation, simplicity of construction, and rapidity of motion, have always placed the

Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine

Above all its competitors. The WHEELER & WILSON Manufacturing Company have determined not to be outdone by the manufacturers of inferior sewing machines.

Get a First-Class Machine at astonishingly low prices.

$40 to $75 will buy a New, Improved Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine, at Liberal Discount for Cash.

☞ Send for Circulars and Price List. ☜

2,000,000 in Daily Use,

AND STILL THE FAMILY FAVORITE.

WHEELER & WILSON MAN'F CO.,

M. A. PECK, GEN'L AGENT,

June 14-76. 4m.] 149 Canal Street, New Orleans, La.

PHILIP WERLEIN,

Nos. 78–90 Baonne Street,

NEW ORLEANS, - - - LA.

LARGEST Piano House in This Country,

—OFFERS—

Chickering's New Scale PIANOS.

HALE'S PIANOS, HARDMAN'S PIANOS.
ESTEY & CO. ORGANS. MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

As low as any house North. Monthly Payments. Discounts for cash.

☞ Music and Musical Instruments of Every Description. [feb22-1y

Southwestern Christian Advocate.

NEW SERIES—VOL. 1—NO. 30. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, JULY 26, 1877. WHOLE NUMBER 260.

SOUTHWESTERN
Christian Advocate.
PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT [illegible] St., New Orleans,
BY
NELSON & PHILLIPS,
FOR THE
Methodist Episcopal Church.

Terms: $2 a year, Cash in Advance.

All Travelling Preachers of the Methodist Episcopal Church are authorized Agents.

Subscriptions may begin at any time and the paper will be sent as long as paid for.

Remittances must be made by Registered Letter, Post Money Order, or by Express.

Advertising Rates.
(Per Nonpareil line, each insertion.)

One time ...	8 cents
One month, (4 times) ...	7
Three months ...	6
Six months ...	5
One year ...	4
Marriage notices ...	25
Special Notices ...	8 cents, net cash.

NEW YORK OFFICE:
805 Broadway, New York,
WILLIAM BALDWIN, Special Agent.

FEAR NOT.

The pathway is dark that the Christian is treading,
His faith can discern but a glimmer of light;
Grim doubts cling around him, which cause him to waver
And wonder in weakness "if all will be right."
"If all will be right!" Ah, believer in Jesus,
That is not a question for thee, or for me.
All is right—is now—every step thou art treading
Is known and appointed beforehand for thee.
The way is the Lord's, for his wisdom hath planned it,
And though it is dark, there is glory in [illegible]
The [illegible] of thy Savior but casts a deep shadow
As far as the threshold of heaven's bright door.
It vanishes then in the joy and the beauty,
The sunshine and peace of the ransomed [illegible]
Walk now in its shade, it will lead thee to [illegible]
Who watcheth to welcome the child of his love.

Our President's Wife.

BY FRANCES E. WILLARD.

Probably there is no woman in the United States so earnestly [illegible] B. Hayes [illegible] plain, straightforward [illegible]

[illegible]

ingly genial and kind. It is indeed a blessed thing for our country that such a woman had the training of our President's wife."

Dear reader, perhaps that little girl of yours is yet to be the hostess of the nation. Will you not give her just as good advantages for the discipline of her mind as you afford her brothers, and for her heart a daily exhibition of the faith that works by love?

So shall she make the humblest station high,
So shall she 'mong the highest take her seat
And find herself at home.

Two years at the Ohio Wesleyan University were followed by several years of study in the Cincinnati Wesleyan Female College, of which Rev. Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Wilbur had the management. Many of the noblest women of the West, foremost in missionary, temperance and other Christian work, were graduated here. Under the influence of these gifted educators and their successors, the daughters of Ohio have matured characters full of the benignant strength which discipline of mind can only give when Christ in the heart tempers and mellows the clear light it has imparted. One of these students, a life long friend of Mrs. Hayes, and foremost among the women philanthropists of our day, writes as follows:

"Lucy Webb was a first-class student. I was a member of the same class in botany and other studies with her, and I have reason to recall my feeling of mingled annoyance and admiration, as our teacher, Miss DeForest, would turn from our older girls to Miss Webb, who sat at the head of the class, and get from her a clear analysis of the flower under discussion, or the correct transposition of some involved line of poetry. Somewhat of this accuracy was doubtless due to the fact that she had been trained in the severe drill of the O. W. University. She remained in the Ladies' College of Cincinnati until she completed its course of study.

While yet in her teens, she met Rutherford B. Hayes, who, after his graduation at Gambier, Ohio, had opened a law office in Cincinnati. He writes of her:

"My friend Jones has introduced me to many of the city belles, but I do not see any who make me forget the natural gaiety and attractiveness of Miss Lucy."

One of her friends gives these interesting items:

"It was my good fortune to be a guest at the small and unpretentious wedding of Lucy Webb in 1852. The only attendant of the young pair was a beautiful child of eight years, the daughter of the bridegroom's only sister. A few days ago this same child, now the wife of a distinguished citizen of Columbus, O., sat beside her aunt, Mrs. Hayes, acting once more as her attendant, and looking down from the gallery on the sublimely simple ceremonies of the inauguration of R. B. Hayes as President of the United States. It has been a marriage of almost ideal happiness, and to overstate the devotion of Mrs. Hayes to her home, her husband and her children, would be almost impossible. The heroism she displayed in sharing her husband's army life, has been the theme of many an admiring newspaper reporter. There are some incidents connected with this chapter in her history which would enhance its beauty and impressiveness, but they are too sacred for our pen.

Her characteristics are indicated in the foregoing statements, "bright liveliness and devotion to principle" are given as the chief. What might have been positive and almost [illegible] in another, is so tempered [illegible] sweetness and gaiety of [illegible] is the most influential of all persons with her husband. "His heart doth safely trust in her."

Mrs. Hayes has been from childhood an earnest Christian, a member of the Methodist Church. Her [illegible] of sympathy for the [illegible] and her constant benefactions to the poor, are not offered [illegible] the [illegible] public [illegible] so quietly that [illegible] question has [illegible] almost lost to [illegible] her unostentatious [illegible] well known to our [illegible] since the Republic [illegible] element [illegible] more sub[illegible] the [illegible] and [illegible] Lady [illegible] truth, and nothing but the truth. Although she never, so far as had been learned, participated in the crusade work, she sympathizes heartily with those that did so, and was at least a nominal member of the Executive Committee of the League in Fremont, Ohio. An officer of that society writes: "Occasionally her noble face brightened our meetings for prayer. Gen. Hayes gave us the use of his hall for our temperance mass meetings and daily prayer meetings. I have attended receptions at his residence, after his election as Governor, and never was a drop of anything stronger than coffee offered to his guests. The temperance women of America may congratulate themselves on having a Christian woman, true as steel, in the White House, and as such she is certainly entitled to our confidence, and I should deprecate any course on our part that savored of dictation or distrust."

[illegible] women [illegible]

We may be confident that General and Mrs. Hayes will both be the strongest kind of temperance lecturers to those about them by reason of their total abstinence from the products of the vineyard, the brewery and the still. Had the wishes of our President's wife been complied with, we may be certain that none of the beverages whose use causes so much sin and shame to our country, would ever have been offered to her guests. From our point of observation, there seem to be no insuperable barrier in the way of a quiet assertion of her principles. We believe this would result in an incalculable gain to the temperance sentiment of America. Wine is not a national drink, thank Heaven! in this republic. The use of it is against the genius, as it imperils the perpetuity of a government, whose foundation stone was the book which declares that all men's weal should be each man's care.

But we thoroughly believe in our President and his wife. Our love, confidence and prayers shall hedge them round. Somebody declares that when the President, taking the oath of office, kissed the sacred page, his lips chanced upon the 11th, 12th and 13th verses of the 118th Psalm. Be this as it may, these passages well describe the difficulties of a situation in which our President bears himself with a steadiness, which, as we think, can only be explained by their express declaration, "The Lord helped me." Let us thank God that the day of prayer, appointed by Mrs. McCabe in the name of the Ohio crusaders, and just preceeding the great political conventions of last year, was so faithfully observed.

We begin the new century with a pure and noble patriot, and temperance man, from the crusade State, as President, and an earnest, Christian, temperance woman for the hostess at the White House. In this we trace a "justice," both "poetic," and, what is vastly better, Providential.—Our Union.

A Bird's Funeral.

A novel funeral took place in Hartford recently. A pet canary died a few days ago, to the great sorrow of the family who owned it. Jenny was dressed in a handsome embroidered white dress, and laid daintily on her left side in a fancy box, which was covered and lined with white tarletan. The footboard of the box was taken out in order to allow the embroidery, several inches deep, to hang out; and one little yellow wing was made visible over the side of the box. On each side of the miniature coffin stood Jenny's little seed-cups, with their half-eaten contents. Around the cups were arranged some delicate blue forget-me-nots. All these—the coffin, with its precious contents, the seed-cups, and the forget-me-nots—were arranged inside the cage, which was tastefully trimmed with white tarletan, and stood on a table before an open window. Large numbers of children, and also adults, called to see the imposing paraphernalia. The funeral rights were performed and a procession formed in line, the mourners coming first, and all that was mortal of poor Jenny was deposited, with due honors, in her mistress' back-yard, where an appropriate tombstone will be raised to her memory.—Hartford Times.

How to Know a Goose.

"Mother! mother!" cried a young rook, returning hurriedly from its first flight, "I'm so frightened; I've seen such a sight."

"What sight, my son?" asked the old rook.

"O, white creatures, screaming and running and straining their necks and holding their heads ever so high. See, mother, there they go!"

"Geese, my son, merely geese," calmly replied the parent bird, looking over the common. "Through life, child, observe that [illegible] who makes [illegible] and tries [illegible] than the rest [illegible] may set him down at once as a goose."

Difficulties in the Way.

But here are difiulties in the way! or as the wise man has it, "There is a lion in the way—a lion in the streets." Thousands would gladly rejoice to be learned, were it not for the toil. They would gladly enjoy the gratification that intellectual wealth affords, but they are unwilling to labor for the prize. Think you that the great names in history rose to distinction without effort? Or rather did they not climb the ascent step by step? Burritt, to whom we have already alluded, was not merely a blacksmith by profession, but for years a daily laborer for twelve hours at the anvil. William Cobbett was once a common soldier, and afterwards a member of the British Parliament. He says of himself: "I learned grammar when I was a private soldier on the pay of sixpence a day. The edge of my berth, or my guard bed was my seat to study in, my knapsack was my bookcase, and a bit of board lying on my lap my writing table. I had no money to purchase candles or oil; in winter time it was rarely that I could get any light but that of the fire, and only my turn even of that. To buy a pen or a sheet of paper I was compelled to forego some portions of food, though in a state of starvation. I had no moment of time that I could call my own; and I had to read and write amid the talking, laughing, singing, whistling and bawling of at least half a score of the most thoughtless of men; and that, too, in the hours of freedom from all control. And I say, if I, under circumstances like these, could encounter and overcome the task, is there, can there be, in the whole world, a youth that can find an excuse for the non-performance?"

Pupils are apt to err in attributing too much to genius and favorable opportunities. There certainly are grades of intellect, and with similar opportunities all would not succeed equally; it is likewise true that wealth may buy advantages, but it often brings its disadvantages. It leads youth to rely too much on their opportunities, and the mind lacks the energy which adverse circumstances generally impart. The young man who relies on his genius and college facilities will not be apt to distinguish himself by his attainments.

If misfortune overtakes you, rally again. When the web of the spider is destroyed by the hand of the intruder, it does not waste its time in idle repinings, but forthwith commences the work anew. Shall man do less? So the student of mathematics will often find, after spending hours or even days in completing some solution, that his plan is wrong, or that some slight error has been committed, by which all his labor is rendered of no avail. Then it is that, with mind disciplined to the task, he must, if he would succeed, meekly sit down to the work of review. He that would succeed must learn to bear the toil of revision. He must try—and try again.

Tradition relates that when Bruce, King of Scotland, after a succession of defeats, took refuge in the winter of 1306 in the Isle of Rachrin, on the coast of Ireland, and there lay upon his bed, debating in his mind the question whether to continue further the unequal contest, or to leave his country forever, he saw a spider hanging to its thread, and endeavoring, as its fashion is, to swing from one beam to another, for the purpose of fastening its line. Six times did the insect essay with all its apparent power, to carry its point, and failed each time, but gathering all its strength for the seventh effort, it was successful. Encouraged, the king rose up and returned to his scenes of danger; and as he had never before gained a victory, he never afterwards sustained a defeat. Those examples show what can be done if we are willing to pay the price.—Journal of Education.

Two Extremes.

There is with some persons a chronic fear of what they call denominationalism. So sensitive are they that they can hardly endure the least reference to the distinguishing features of the churches of which they are members, unless it may be, perhaps, to condemn them and wish they were out of the way. There are others who find no joy equal to that of thrusting forward their ecclesiastical peculiarities, and of pushing offensively against their religious friends and associates. They are never at rest unless airing the distinctives. It is hard to tell which of the two is least to be admired. The one class will give up everything in the interest of a false gentility; the other will sacrifice all for the sake of a narrow zealotry. A well-balanced Christian can love his denomination, be true to its doctrines and tenets, assist in its work and edification, and at all times and in all places magnify its character and mission, while recognizing and honoring everything that is good, true and Christ-like in the world about him.—United Presbyterian.

The three sons of the Khedive are being educated in Europe.

Francis Murphy.

Of this great temperance revivalist some one writes:

The most wonderful and admired of men are orators. They are and must be the leaders of men. The world is not prolific of orators. God did not see fit to make the earth largely of gold and diamonds. He has sprinkled orators only sparingly through the masses. They come forth sometimes by their own inherent force and brightness and rush like a meteor in their own brilliant paths. Again, they are upheaved by the moral and political convulsions of society, and seem born at a fortunate junction to shine and bless the world.

Great reforms bring their leaders. Some heart wakes up with mighty magnetic forces. Some lips take a golden message and give it wings of unquenchable flame. Some soul takes the battle flag of God and goes shouting up the ramparts, "Come on, brave men, to victory and peace."

Such is Francis Murphy. Not an orator of the schools, but a classic of his own. There are orators whom we may compare to the eagles coming out of their eyries in the crags, they glide down the heights and swooping upon their prey they mount the air and drop their victims in the fastnesses of the rocks where they dwell.

Murphy is irresistable. He is master of his own body. His attitudes easy and graceful. His motions all chime with the music and marching of his soul. God found him. Christ rescued him. With his hands unshackled and his soul unfettered, he has been called to lead his brethren out the land of bondage. The grandest work of oratory is in saving men. Here is Murphy's success. He has taken the mountain march and goes singing up the hills of difficulty, and beckons on the captives of drink, and they rise and follow him—a happy soul as he mounts the broader and sweeter fields of Christian manhood. His tale of real life is touching. Other stories may be as romantic, but few can tell the story like him. He is a Gospel temperance preacher of rare gifts and marvelous success. Wit, pathos, power and climaxes strangely mingle his addresses. The new crusade marshals its host. A better chivalry than the old knights knew is ours. Sweeter songs than those of the troubadours are sung. Thank God for Francis Murphy. The grasp of his hand and the ring of his voice have given all new courage to march against the infidel. The Cross is winning.

Economizing Steps.

A large part of the weariness of housework comes from the number of steps required of the housekeeper while performing it. The going up and down stairs, the vibration between the kitchen, dining-room, cellar and other parts of the house, wear out the strength quite as much as all other tasks combined. Hence such concentration of resources as will give the housekeeper the advantage of position, and the easy command of every point to be covered, is of the utmost importance. If she can find in her laundry everything necessary for washing and ironing, the work is comparatively easy. If she can find in her pantry every requisite for compounding bread, pastry, cake, and have no occasion to run here and there to get things together and put them away again, her task will seem light.

If in her sewing-room she can put her hand on everthing required by the seamstress, without the perplexity and trouble of hunting up linings, thread, buttons, braid, that task will be robbed of half its weariness. But comparatively few houses have been planned with reference to this saving of steps. The majority of families have no special room fitted up as a laundry, no pantry capacious enough to contain everything a pantry should contain, no sewing-room set apart for that sole purpose and articles needed in these various industries are necessarily scattered, and kept where it is most convenient to keep them. The washing utensils are usually kept in the cellar and must be brought to the kitchen and carried back again. The sewing-machine stands not far from the cook-stove, as the woman who does her own work can have an oversight of the cooking while busy at the machine, but her materials for sewing cannot all be within reach. Yet by using her brains as much as she does her feet, she may save the latter many an unnecessary trip. If she must go down into the cellar for anything, let her pause a moment before starting and see if there is not something to be carried down, or if there is any errand that may be attended to other than the special one she goes on. If she has occasion to go up stairs let her consider how much that is to be done she can accomplish with once going there, and so of everything else. A great deal can be done by planning work to make it easy. She who has arranged in her mind a little programme of her work, and goes at it systematically, will accomplish with half the fatigue, what taken at random, might be entirely beyond her strength. Children can be trained so as to save their mother's steps, and setting and clearing away tables, putting their own toys and belongings in place, do very much to lighten the toils of their mothers.—N. Y. Tribune.

The Effects of Tobacco on Health.

The following is a part of a valuable tract on this subject which every pastor and every church member in the land ought to read It can be had by writing to O. M., 136 Chestnut street, Syracuse, N. Y., at fifty cents per hundred.

1. Dr. Willard Parker of New York city says: "It is now many years since my attention was called to the insidious but positively destructive effects of tobacco upon the human system. I have seen a great deal of its influence upon those who use it and work in it. Cigar and snuff manufacturers have come under my care in hospitals and private practice, and such persons can never recover, soon, and in a healthy manner, from cases of injury or fever. They are more apt to die in epidemics, and more prone to apoplexy and paralysis. The same is true also of those who smoke or chew much."

2. Dr. H. V. Miller, of Syracuse, furnishes the following: "A French physician investigated the effects of tobacco smoking upon thirty-eight boys between the ages of nine and fifteen, who were addicted to the habit. The result was that twenty-seven presented marked symptoms of nicotine poisoning; twenty-three manifested serious derangement of the intellectual faculties, and a strong appetite for alcholic drinks; three had heart disease; eight decided deterioration of the blood; twelve had frequent nose-bleed; ten disturbed sleep, and four ulceration of the mucous membrane of the mouth."

3. That very able work, "Diseases of Modern Life," by Dr. Richardson, sums up the effects of tobacco thus: "Smoking produces disturbances in the blood, causing undue fluidity and change in the red corpuscles; in the stomach, giving rise to debility, nausea, etc., in the mucous membrane of the mouth, causing enlargement and soreness of the tonsils; in the heart, producing debility of that organ and irregular action; in the organs of sense, causing in the extreme dilation of the pupils of the eyes, confusion of vision, with other analogous symptoms affecting the ear; in the brain, impairing the activity of that organ, and oppressing it, if it be duly nourished, but soothing it if it be exhausted. The effects of tobacco, often severe, even on those who have attained to manhood, are especially injurious to the young, who are still in the stage of adolescence. In these the habit of smoking causes impairment of growth, premature manhood, and physical prostration."

This is a terrible arraingment by medical science, of habits that find shelter in the Christian Church, and justification even, in the example of Christian pulpits! And yet,—

4. Perhaps the worst thing to be said of tobacco, is the medical testimony which follows. "The parent whose blood and secretions are saturated with tobacco, and whose brain and nervous system are semi-narcotized by it, must transmit to his child, elements of a distempered body and erratic mind; a deranged condition of organic atoms, which elevates the animalism of the future being, at the expense of the moral and intellectual nature." And here is the law of hereditary transmission or penalty. (Exodus xx: 4, 5, 6.) Few parents who indulge in strong drink, or tobacco, or opium, or other sensual habits, think of the terrible results to children of their own flesh and blood.

The Arab's Proof.

A Frenchman who had won a high rank among men of science, yet who denied the God who is the author of all science, was crossing the Great Sahara in company with an Arab guide. He noticed with a sneer that at times his guide, whatever obstacles might arise, put them all aside, and kneeling on the burning sands, called on his God. Day after day passed, and still the Arab never failed; till at last one evening the philosopher, when he rose from his knees, asked him, with a contemptuous smile, "How do you know there is a God?" The guide fixed his beaming eyes on the scoffer for a moment in wonder, and then said solemnly, "How do I know there is a God? How do I know that a man, and not a camel, passed my hut last night in the darkness? Was it not by the print of his feet in the sand? Even so," and he pointed to the sun, whose last rays were flashing over the lonely desert—"that foot-print is not of a man."

General News.

A professor of Chinese has recently been added to the faculty at Yale.

Gov. Hubbard will deliver the opening address at the Dallas, Texas, Fair, in October next.

The Savannah News says that a gentleman planting near Savannah sold, a short time since, his crop of cucumbers on the vine on three acres of land for $1,250 cash.

Paper flour-barrels are now manufactured by a firm in Syracuse. They are constructed entirely by machinery, and are said to be superior to wooden ones in lightness and cheapness.

Several Western farmers have recently bought land in Madison county, near Huntsville, Alabama. Large numbers of families in Indiana and Ohio will probably remove South before the close of the year.

On the 10th inst., the Bliss monument was dedicated at Rome, Pa., in the presence of 10,000 people. Messrs. Moody and Sankey took part in the exercises, and the dedicatory address was delivered by Dr. Pierson, of Detroit.

A meeting of white and black citizens, of the region known as the scene of the Ellenton riot last fall, was held recently with a view to restore peace and harmony. Resolutions were unanimously adopted, looking to a cessation of race troubles and to the dropping of the pending prosecutions in the courts.

The credit of the United States is constantly improving. The new four per cent. bonds were placed on the market in London, on the 10th of July. The price was £102 sterling for a $500 bond, which is about equivalent to par in gold in this country.

The President of France is elected by a majority of votes by the Senate and chamber of Deputies united in a National Assembly. He is nominated for seven years, and is eligible for re-election. The Senators are elected by electoral colleges in the various departments which they represent, and the Deputies are elected by universal suffrage.

A pattent has just been granted to Loring Pickering, one of the editors and proprietors of the Evening Bulletin and the Morning Call, newspapers of San Francisco, for a method of rapid telegraphing of fac-simile of stereotyped plates. It is claimed by this process an entire page of a newspaper can be transmitted by telegraph in from 15 to 30 minutes, delivering the copy directly from the instrument in such form that it can be handed immediately to the printers.

A single shipment of silver was made from San Francisco, recently, amounting to a million dollars. The silver was shipped to China for an English house. Some idea of the present dimensions of the silver trade of San Francisco may be formed from the official figures. On the 6th of May the total shipments were upward of $1,000,000. On the 17th, $4,000,000, in the following proportions; silver bullion, $2,966,000; trade-dollars, $760,000; Mexican, $274,000.

A young man name Ernest Morris, known as the boy naturalist, has been lecturing in Indiana. He is young—not yet twenty-five years of age, and has even thus early been a remarkable traveler and explorer. He has passed three years in Brazil; been up the Amazon, and in the face of great obstacles, he pushed his way up the [illegible] and into the very homes of a race of unknown savages, and, from whose country he brought many strange and peculiar relics. He is now lecturing to raise money to go to Africa.

The President of the Horticultural Society at Norfolk, Va., reports the exports of strawberries from Norfolk this year at over 2,930,000 quarts. This does not include any strawberries raised in Accomac and Northampton county, Va. The report says: "Mr. J. R. Young, Jr., is probably the largest strawberry grower in the world, he having picked this season 275,000 quarts from 135 acres of land. Seventeen hundred pickers were the greatest number employed any one day. His average is a fraction over 2,000 quarts to the acre. Fourteen hundred quarts was a fair average yield."

Have I, in a sincere penitence, renounced and forsaken the sins for which I ask God's forgiveness? Is the remembrance of them grievous to me? And is it my earnest prayer that I may be pardoned for them, for Christ's sake, and cleansed from them in His atoning blood? Trusting in Him, by faith, do I take to myself the comfort of pardon, and endeavor, by the aid of His Spirit, so to live as to find for myself, and give to others, the evidence that I am forgiven?

SOUTHWESTERN
Christian Advocate,
39 Natchez St., New Orleans.

J. C. HARTZELL, D.D., Editor.

THURSDAY, July 26, 1877.

In the Methodist Protestant Church the time of the pastoral service is limited to five years.

Rev. L. Bradford, Presiding Elder of Gulf District, Miss., and family are spending a few weeks in visiting relatives and friends, North. His post office address for the present, is Englewood, Coles Co., Illinois.

Wesley Chapel in this city is undergoing thorough repairs. The seating has all been made over, the walls are to be newly plastered and [illegible]. Rev. J. M. Vance, the pastor, is hard at work and proposes to have "Old Wesley" as good as new.

A social entertainment will be given at the [illegible] Hall, corner of [illegible] and Lapeyrouse streets, [illegible] evening next, commencing at eight o'clock, p. m., for the benefit of LaHarpe Street M. E. Church. Admission 10 cents.

Our Presbyterian friends have suspended the sabbath evening services in all of their churches in the city, excepting at one place. Those of that faith who are inclined to [illegible], will find preaching [illegible] Street Church every [illegible].

[illegible] used to be pe[culiar] [illegible] institution; [illegible] adopted pretty generally [illegible] denominations, [illegible] Bap[tists] [illegible] Universalists, and [illegible] the meetings [illegible] people, the [illegible] and others.

The [illegible] temperance movement [illegible] progress in Mis[sissippi] [illegible] Convention was [illegible] week. A thousand [illegible] have signed [illegible] them some con[illegible]. The temperance [illegible] on the char[illegible].

[illegible] Vincent, our well [illegible] worker, has [illegible] when [illegible]

[illegible]

The Old World and the New.

Any one can see that there is a strong tendency to establish in this country the customs of the old world. There is a widely spread determination on the part of a portion of the German population, for example, to throw overboard the Christian Sabbath. The question of the day, in all of our larger cities especially, is, Shall we have the Christian Sabbath with its sacredness, its culture and quiet, or shall we have a mere holiday? Shall our streets be thronged with men and women on their way to the sanctuary of God, or shall these same streets be filled with drunkards and noisy demonstrations? Shall our children be brought up as their grandfathers and grandmothers were reared to respect God's day? or shall they be attracted away to parades enlivened by the strains of the band as it passes right by the doors of our Christian churches?

We do not mean to say that all Germans are intent on this. Many of our German citizens are as true to the claims of the Sabbath as we are. We only refer to those who proclaim themselves the unyielding enemies of Christianity, and they are not a few. These people say, "We want our liberty." When we talk of Sunday laws they cry out oppression. We remind them that liberty is not license. The cry is, "We want here in America the customs of the fatherland." We reply: Why did you leave that land with its customs if they are so much better?

There is here a principle which must not be lost sight of, namely this: When a people have become weak there are always those who will usurp authority over them. Then what is the result? Aristocracy supplants democracy; the rights of the common people are wrested from them, and oppression follows.

Let the people of a nation be strong; let them be intelligent and virtuous and they will be strong, and then such a trampling upon rights becomes impossible. The people who are observant of the laws of God as they are revealed in the Bible; the people who observe the Sabbath and all its institutions, are the strongest people on the face of the earth. Destroy now the institutions of Christianity, abolish the Sabbath, and you have struck a blow at the very foundation of our liberties. You have undermined the nation's strength, you have made us weak, and prepared the way for some ambitious tyrant to lay his hand on us and hold us as vassals just as has been done in other lands. Our country owes its exalted condition to the Church and the Sabbath, and the course of these iconoclasts would only reduce us to the level of the populations on which they have turned their backs.

We would say to those who are such haters of our Sabbath and our peculiar civilization: If you prefer French infidelity and German rationalism, if you would rather live in a land where the beer garden is preferred to the Church, where the Sabbath is only a holiday, the way is open to return; but we of this country and this age must maintain the [illegible] and purity of the [illegible], for it is one of the chief [illegible] on which this great Christian republic rests.

Then we have the influence of [illegible] to contend with. The enemy of all free thought is Popery. The Pope claims special jurisdiction in this country, for he avers it was discovered by a Catholic. In all [illegible] he has his emissaries. In [illegible] of the devout Catholic the "Holy Father" is above presidents and kings. He claims a [illegible] equality with God. He [illegible] to be a "King of Kings," [illegible] of crowns. Do you [illegible] there is scarcely a priest [illegible] was not either born [illegible] received his education [illegible] power is increased just in the degree that mankind yield the right of self-assertion or allow others to do their thinking. The despotism of Popery is only limited because of the superior culture of the age, but its spirit is the same that it was in the days of Gregory and John, only the advanced sentiment of the age has made the Armada and the Inquisition impossible. There is no reform in Romanism. This goddess of night must be met, and her influence counteracted until the last trace of her power is gone, and the whole world rises from its burden as one rises from the stifling oppressions of a nightmare. As she of priestly might burned heretics in the Middle Ages, so she to-day would do if she could. She would light up every hill and valley in all this fair land with the glare of burning school houses, had she the power, for she hates them as much as ever she did.

[illegible]

Popular Education.

If we remember correctly it was the great Napoleon who once said, what every age and nation should remember, viz: "The true victories, the only one which we need never lament are those of the conquest of intelligence over the dominious of ignorance."

Such words have in them the ring of true philosophy. And they are the more significant because they fell from the lips of one whose life seemed to be one great battle.

By a law of human nature, the mind often swings to extremes—through an unrest which comes of too much of any one thing. Who should more certainly desire peace than a man of war? Who could better appreciate the depressing influences of popular ignorance than the warrior, at whose call a great nation was in the habit of springing to arms and to whom brute force seemed to be the only one belonging to human nature? Yes we think we may all say with Napoleon that these victories, where mind conquers, where intelligence supplants ignorance, where superstition gives place to rational thinking, are the only "true victories" for us to achieve.

It was a wise step which the founders of this great Republic took when they built the church and school-house in such close proximity to each other; let us their sons be equally wise.

In Europe, where our ancestors mostly were born, the fruits of popular ignorance had grown up to a bountiful harvest; through the past centuries ignorance was general, but not quite universal. Universities had been founded, as for instance that of Oxford by Alfred the Great, in the 9th century. Germany too at an early day laid the foundation for some great schools. In these universities a few men were educated who with their inherited fortunes held fast in their grip the reigns of government, and literally trod beneath their feet the ignorant and helpless masses of mankind.

Popular ignorance is always the mother of blinding superstitions. The enthralled millions of the old world viewed with a spirit akin to reverence the men lifted above them by fortune and education, or by the proud titles they bore. A baronial castle had about it something which made its occupant seem almost omnipotent in the estimation of the hordes of humble peasants who burrowed in the soil for a scanty living.

Kings revelled in their glory, and reigned in their might. Royal splendors were purchased with the sweat and tears and blood of the poor. The bugle that sounded out from knightly lips, told men that they had no duty but to rise from their lowly beds and follow their leaders, spurred and scarfed, to strife and death.

Priestly tyranny was not less severe in one sense. Jaded men wrought on in field and mine, and only lived to see their own wives and children gaunt and starved, while robed priests, cowled monks, hooded friars, mitred bishops and crowned Popes ate up with ever unsatisfied greediness the earnings of shop and farm.

Beneath these burdens humanity groaned, and yet the burdens were not removed. Revolutions came in which the weak and ignorant were [illegible] beneath the heavy wheels of war. Still onward rolls the sovereign relentless as fate. In no [illegible] was property valuable, [illegible] without [illegible]. What was the soil worth, [illegible] earnings of [illegible] went [illegible] to make their oppressors more oppressive? What was country when there was no peace, no prosperity, no contentment?

Across the great deep ocean in this western clime there lay this beautiful continent. He whose hand of power had reared the Alps, and sprinkled the sea with islands, and spread out the steppes of Asia and the plains of Germany—He had laid open to sunlight and refreshing showers and cooling breezes this continent, in itself a world.

One cannot read history without seeing the footsteps of Divine Providence in the settlement of this country. This land we call ours either by birth or adoption has its mission, and right grandly is it fulfilling that mission. It cannot be said with any truthfulness that we have failed, or that we are going to fail. Such a failure we know is possible, but we have passed through ordeals which have tried us, and we have found the measure of our power and the secret of our strength. The church and school house are great conservators of liberty; the great safeguard of the nation is popular education. Men of intelligence will not be slaves. Let the school-house and the church go together; they are like artillery and infantry in the time of battle, essential to each other. If we were an enemy to our country, we know of no way by which we could more easily work her destruction than by overthrowing her school system.

Education is the word.

Sing Praises.

When a traveler from some distant land stands within the massive walls of such a mighty temple as that of St. Peter's, at Rome, and casts his eyes up into its mighty dome, and then surveys the vast pillars which stretch away in colonades beneath it, his soul is awed into solemn silence; and though every stone and beam of timber from base to turret was laid by the hand of man, yet, all seems as if it were the work of God himself, and to the devout heart, the Divine Presence seems to be there. So when we go into a great congregation of worshippers, and hear a multitude of voices uniting in sacred song, coming up like the voice of many waters in grand and harmonious volume, though every voice is human, yet, the soul feels it—it is unearthly; it stirs the heart like the voice of God. It moves the soul to unwonted feelings; it creates a desire for purity. Many a poor sinner, under the influence of sacred song, has been born into a new life,—a life of faith and holiness. Music is truly Divine. The vibrations that produce what we call sound, are in accordance with the laws of God just as much as the elementary gases which constitute air or water, were created by the power of God. The moaning of the winds, the singing of birds, the chirping of insect life, or the deep-toned thunder of the heavens are produced on the same principles that regulate the tones of the lute or organ, or the still more touching notes of the human voice—the grandest instrument of all.

Music without words exerts on the soul of man a wonderful influence as with one sweep it rises in its liveliest strains, carrying the soul up with it, or soft as the whisper of love soothes the spirit to rest. But with added words, fraught with meaning, it overpowers the mind as the tempest moves and sways the forest.

God intended music and poetry to be the hand-maids of religion. The noblest thoughts man has ever uttered; the sweetest words he has ever spoken, have been given to the world in poetic form. The sweet flow of words in true poetry seems to be the native language of the soul—the language of Heaven. Love has no other expression, either human or Divine. The Psalmist's highest spiritual feelings are uttered in poetry. The joy of the Israelites on their deliverance from the bondage of Egypt, did not find utterance in long and formal speeches by set orators, but in the songs of Miriam, and the women with the accompaning timbrel. The victory of battle is often chanted in songs that mingle with the groans of the dying in mournful cadences. The simplest hymns and tunes do the most good. We have no very good national air. Those we sing are too difficult for the masses. Any hymn or tune to become general, must be simple, so that a child can sing it. And on the same principle, church music should be simple. It is a fact of history that during the dark ages the singing was of the most complex character, and the words used were in an unknown tongue. The people were not then allowed to praise God in His earthly temples, and the result was that religion very nearly died out in the world. Sometimes we have the same difficulty yet. Our choirs often select tunes we do not recollect ever to have heard before, and which we wish never to hear again, and they mumble out the words so as to give you only the tune. Let all choirs know that it adds to the sweetness and power of the song to utter the words distinctly—let capricious fashion say what she will.

Imagine yourself in a large congregation of intelligent Christians on a beautiful Sabbath morning. The hymn read, is that one beginning—

"O for a thousand tongues to sing
My Great Redeemer's praise, etc."

and four voices alone in a distant gallery do all the singing, while a whole congregation, three-fourths of whom are fair singers, are silent spectators to that sublime part in which all should engage.

In the early ages of Christianity, the custom was for all to sing, and so it should be yet. There may be select pieces when the effect of a few well-trained voices is better; duets and quartets come in beautifully, but a hymn read to be sung as a part of the devotion, should be engaged in by all who have voice to sing.

The hymns written by God's servants in moments of rapture, seem to us extravagant, when we are in a cooler mood, and we walk over them on the dainty foot-steps of taste. But let God's spirit come down upon our hearts in power, and they become sweet to our taste; our emotions may actually rise above them; feeling is often tropical, and seeks for intense expression. Hence, even dignified people will sing under high emotional feelings, the simplest ditties.

When we have a sort of December religion, we can sing—

"Before Jehovah's awful throne, Ye nations bow with sacred joy," only we don't feel very much of the "sacred joy," but when we are living in the sunshine of a sweet religious life springing up in the heart like a "well of water unto eternal life," our tongues break forth in the simple words—

"I am glad salvation's free."

Let us not give up the good old fashioned, hearty singing of our fathers. Thousands have been thus drawn to the house of God, where they have felt the power of the Word. Those who can sing, and do not, being a talent which God has given them, and in doing so, they wrong themselves and others. Teach the children to sing. We should be a nation of singers. O the power of sacred song! Music is heaven-born like light. Poetry is the wing on which she soars upward. When David, the shepherd boy, touched his harp, the evil spirit departed from Saul. When we lift up our voices in holy song; when we fill our temple with the sweet perfume of praise, Satan trembles. "Sing unto the Lord for he hath done excellent things." "Make melody in your hearts unto the Lord." Angels chanted a song on the plains of Bethlehem when the Savior was born; so the church brings forth her children with swelling notes of praise. When grief overtakes us, and the cloud of sorrow beglooms our way, we give vent to our feelings in plaintive songs—songs of the minor key. And in the dying hour the soul triumphant wings her way to Heaven in a chariot of praise.

Railroad Riots.

As we go to press the business world of the North is in a great state of excitement, caused by the strikes along the line of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, the Pennsylvania Central and some other roads. The strikers base their action on the reduction of wages and the increase of service.

From the beginning of time it has been the tendency of human nature to aggrandize to itself wealth and power. As in the sea the big fish eat up the little ones, so in human society the rich have trampled on the poor, the strong have controlled the weak in their own interest. And so we have had left us the adage "corporations have no souls." But then a corporation is only a larger man—men do often just what corporations do. The present strikes are the greatest this country of ours has ever known; so great are they in fact that the military power of the government itself is invoked to check the reign of terror, which at this time threatens the welfare of the whole country.

We do not justify these strikes; they are the acts of madmen; they cannot produce the results the strikers seek. They destroy the substance on which their own sustenance depends. They may be the sufferers they claim to be, but there is a more reasonable way of reaching the objective point. Conventions, discussions of disputed points between capitalists and laborers, an appeal to reason, facts and figures, would be far better than the fagot and sledge hammer.

The result will be simply that the strong arm of the law will be used—if necessary the whole army of the United States will be called out, the mob will be scattered like chaff before the wind, after some millions of dollars worth of property have been destroyed, and multitudes of innocent people have been made sufferers. The tide of sympathy which has flowed toward these men of toil will be swept away and lost in the universal condemnation of lawless proceedings. The railroads will continue with new fresh recruits, of whom there are multitudes, and the old strikers will find themselves "left out in the cold." We have no sympathy with the spirit which seeks to crush out the poor and weak, which exacts the hardest and most prolonged service for the smallest possible compensation, nor have we any more sympathy for the men who madly fly from reason to mere brute force. Times are hard and our railroads in common with all other business corporations have a hard time. With patience a better day will come and with it higher wages. But under the present reign of madness, that day will only be postponed and the ills increased a hundred fold.

A Good Work.

At the earnest solicitation of the trustees of Ames M. E. Church in the city of New Orleans, Rev. Dr. McCarty, the pastor, has consented to undertake the task of paying up the remnant of an old church indebtedness of about $6,000, which weighs heavily upon that struggling band of faithful disciples. He proposes to devote his vacation months to the work in the North. The members here will do all they can, for they are in earnest, but they have been greatly crippled, owing to the changes which have taken place recently in the political world, and the consequent removal from the city of many of its former supporters. Still, Ames Church lives and must live. It is one of the factors in the religious make-up of this great city and cannot be spared. As we stated in a previous issue, the doctor's plan is to find, say, one hundred men, who will each give $50. This will almost do it. He wrote, recently, to Frank Queen, Esq., editor and proprietor of the New York Clipper, an entire stranger to the doctor, though reputed to be a very generous man. Mr. Queen's response was, "Your plan will succeed. I will be one of the hundred and my wife will be another." Other responses are being received of like character from person at home and from the North.

Bishop Haven writes: "Put me down as one of the hundred. You are on the right track. Work and win."

The following editorial note, from the Louisiana State Register of this city, indicates Dr. McCarty's standing in this community and should be a sufficient endorsement:

We learn that Rev. Dr. McCarty shortly proposes to take a brief vacation, which, to a professional man, is always desirable at this season of the year. Dr. McCarty came to this city some time last year, and since his arrival has been the pastor of Ames M. E. Church, on St. Charles street. As a preacher and lecturer, he has few if any superiors in this city, bringing to his work the energies of a mature and vigorous manhood, and the cultivated and polished elegance of a scholar. His liberality of religious sentiment and tolerance of political opinion has not only made many personal friends, but largely increased his congregation. His address at Chalmette, on Decoration Day, was universally acknowledged as the work of an orator, Christian and patriot. Such men as Dr. McCarty can do a great work in this city.

We not only commend the enterprise but believe in its success.

A Camp Meeting will be held at Paulding, Miss., from August 30th to September 8th inclusive. The preacher in charge, Rev. H. L. Kennedy, is making extensive preparations for the accommodation of visiting brethren, and it is to be hoped that there will be a good attendance.

M. Adams, P. E.

Missionary Notes.

The Mission Rooms were surprised by a visit from Rev. Dr. Long, of Robert College, Constantinople, on Thursday, the 12th inst.

Bishop Wiley has appointed Rev. W. G. Benton, of Cincinnati, to Kiu Kiang, China. He will sail with the Bishop from San Francisco September 1st.

The Mission Room hears from the Mackinaw Indian Agency. "Rev. John R. Robinson, who is himself a half-breed," says the correspondent, "has been doing a good work and without pay, other than the trifling amount these poor people can give him from their scant stores. He travels some fifteen or twenty miles each Sabbath, and preaches three times at points five or six miles apart in Isabella County, Michigan.

From the Blackfeet Agency, the Agent, John Young, writes about week day and Sabbath schools and says: "In addition to the Sabbath instruction I have been giving practical lessons in cattle raising and stock keeping, also farming; have neatly fenced one hundred acres and put crops—potatoes, turnips, peas, carrots, etc.—in about twenty acres. The labor outside the employees was mainly done by Indians, often forty at once. I had both sexes, the greater part squaws, and it is only just to state that they prove the better men—all this from a tribe from whom a day's work was never got by any of my predecessors.

The war in Europe, is still in progress. The Czar is moving with a cautious but firm and steady step toward Constantinople, a point which he will reach sooner or later. He evidently takes as his moto festina lente. To say that when he reaches his objective point that he will dictate terms of peace to the Turk and then retire back into his snows is to say what the world knows is not true, unless he is forced to retire by the Great Powers. The ambition of some centuries of Russian history has been the possession of the Golden Horn, and hence the possession of an honor will not satisfy the dream of the centuries and quiet the ambition of a powerful nation like Russia.

Rumors through Turkish channels report a two days' serious fight at Plevna and a victory for the Turks under command of Osman Pasha. Three strong Russian corps attacked the Turkish lines but were routed with great loss of men, and the capture of three ammunition wagons, a train of artillery and an immense quantity of arms and ammunition. But whether true or not, we do not know. We cannot see any out-come ultimately, but the complete overthrow of the Turk, and yet Providence may have some other plans to unfold. All we can do is to watch the proceedings and report them to our readers.

But this we say, the signs are that European Turkey may have a future before it which will be greatly in the interest of Christianity, and for this let all Christians pray.

We give as a pretty good excuse for writing so little about the Russo-Turkey war the following verses and commend them to careful study; they illustrate the exceeding difficulty of preparing a succinct contemporaneous sketch of the Turkish war. We find them in an exchange:

On Monday morn the news arrived,
There had been bloody work,
But no one knew which lied the most,
The Russian or the Turk.

On Tuesday morning Russia claimed
A victory for her side,
On Wednesday, from a Turkish source,
The victory was denied.

On Thursday each side swore it had
The other put to rout,
And Friday's news the fight confirmed
Without the slightest doubt.

On Saturday 'twas whispered 'round
The whole affair was small,
And Sunday's cable news declared
There'd been no fight at all.

Sunday School Union.

Bro. Hartzell.—Please to give in the SOUTH WESTERN credit to the Sunday School Union of the Methodist Episcopal Church, for books sent through our Freedmen's Aid Society to Sunday Schools, to the University at New Orleans, and to several other of our schools in the South. Through the liberality of the Sunday School Union of our Church, we were greatly aided in planting Methodism in the South; and for liberal appropriations for books received and distributed among our schools, sunday schools and preachers in inaugurating our work, in behalf of our Society, and the most grateful recipients, I return the Sunday School Union of the M. E. Church sincere thanks, and in the grand work it is doing commend it most heartily to our people.

Yours Truly.
R. S. Rust.

Our Southern Methodism.

Rev. Frank Walker, Campte, La., says: "For some time past the Lord has greatly blessed our work. During the last two months there have been seventeen conversions in my congregation—we go forward with thankful hearts."

Rev. Reese Thompson, Natchitoches, La., writes: "We have had much religious interest manifested in our congregations of late. There have been [illegible] recent conversions, seven received into the church connection, and five back-sliders reclaimed. May the Lord direct our labors."

Rev. Felix Landor, Algiers, La., says: When we came to this work from conference we found but twenty-three members, and the prospects not very encouraging. But our people put their trust in the Lord and went forward in his service. And the blessing of the Master has rested upon us. We have had thirty accession so far to the Church, one half the number being received in full connection. Substantial improvements are now being made to our church building. And [illegible] the river below, opposite [illegible], we have organized an M. [illegible] Church of thirty members. This [illegible] independent [illegible] have a new church, nearly completed, which will be worth when finished one thousand dollars. The deed has been regularly transferred and this prosperous society received into the arms of the good old Mother Church.

Yazoo City, Miss., Camp Meeting.

Dear Brother:—Please announce to the public through your paper, that a Camp Meeting will be held at this point, beginning [illegible] to be conducted [illegible] by [illegible] for the glory of God, the salvation of souls, and the best interest of the country. For this purpose we cordially invite all ministers without regard to [illegible] denominational differences [illegible].

July [illegible], 1877. GILBERT BROOKS.

Religious Items.

The General Assembly of the [illegible]

[illegible]

fast in this country. They number in all 180,634 members, being an increase of 3,829 for the year; 1,120 itinerant preachers; 15,402 local preachers; 10,390 leaders; 4,126 connexional chapels; 2,242 unconnexional chapels; 3,855 schools; 347,961 scholars. During the year 141 chapels were built, at a cost of £129,374. There were in the connexion property valued at £4,979,220. Total accommodation, 787,969 hearers.

General News Items.

Western railroads earned $500,000 less in June than in the same month last year.

The boat building business which has languished so long at New Albany, Indiana, is being organized afresh.

Both the Republican and Greenback parties in Iowa have adopted platforms containing prohibition resolutions.

3,000 unemployed men applied for work at the Brooklyn Navy yard week before last. Some of them were said to be college graduates.

A good understanding is reported between Gen. Deven and Gen. Canales, on the Mexican frontier, the latter promising to cooperate to prevent raids.

Charles Taylor, a colored lawyer, from Boston, has been admitted to pratice in the United States Courts in Maryland—the first colored man admitted to the bar in that State.

Professor John M. Langston has decided to accept the mission to Hayti, tendered to him some days since by the President. Professor Langston is a representative colored man of fine abilities and will do honor to the position.

The village of Pensaukee, Wis., was destroyed on the 7th inst., by a tornado, which extended only 3,000 feet in breadth and continued but two minutes. Six persons were killed and upwards of twenty wounded.

U. S. Treat left Eastport, Me., a few days ago, on his way to Japan to teach natives the art of putting up canned fish and canned goods generally. He went by request of the Japanese minister, and will receive $5,000 per year and expense.

The remains of Gen. Custer, which have been brought to Bismarck, Dakota, from the Big Horn country, will be finally interred at West Point, New York, and those of his comrades in the National cemetery at Fort Leavenworth.

Since the burning of the Brooklyn theater a large black dog, whose master was probably lost in the dreadful disaster, makes the ruins the place of his nightly rest. He is fed by the policemen in the vicinity, and the managers of the theater have put a handsome collar around his neck.

The proposition to open the English National Museum and galleries of art on Sunday, was defeated in the House of Commons by 229 votes, against 78. Mr. Alexander McArthur, the Methodist member from Leicester, made an effective speech in favor of the Sabbath.

A bishop of the Mormon Church arrived in New York recently from Europe, bringing 723 recruits for Salt Lake City. These comprised 24 English families, numbering 84 persons, 112 German-Swiss, 61 Norwegians, and 150 Swedes, the remainder of the party being made up of Danes and Hollanders.

The Georgia Constitutional Convention met the 11th instant, and [illegible] Jenkins was unanimously elected chairman. In his [illegible] he said that no one need [illegible] the rights of the colored [illegible]. The [illegible], to be [illegible] present [illegible] in which [illegible] $2,500,- [illegible] been set- [illegible] after twelve [illegible] The adopted [illegible] Jumel is [illegible] the highest [illegible] lady's legal [illegible] title to the [illegible] of men [illegible] and in- [illegible] ery on a [illegible] counter- [illegible]

Sunday School.

SUPPLEMENT TO BEREAN LESSONS, 1877.

BY JOSEPH LONGKING

THIRD QUARTER. Lesson VI. Paul sent to Macedonia. Acts xvi. 1-15. August 5.

(Condensed.)

1. Then came he to Derbe and Lystra] His old battle fields for God. It was at the latter place that, some six or more years before, it may be, Paul had been stoned and left for dead. Chap. xiv, 19. A disciple named Timotheus] Usually spelled as Timothy. This was the after-distinguished friend and fellow-laborer of Paul so named. The son of....a Jewess] Her name was Eunice. We have elsewhere (2 Tim. i, 5) the testimony of Paul that she and her mother Lois, as well as Timothy, were persons of "unfeigned faith," a high commendation. His father was a Greek] We may suppose not only Gentile born, but such in religious opinion. Had he been even a convert to Judaism Timothy would have been circumcised.

Him would Paul have go forth with him] As an assistant in the ministry: not merely as a traveling companion. Circumcised him] The history presents Paul as acting here on the principle stated by him in 1 Cor. ix, 20: "Unto the Jews I became as a Jew, that I might gain the Jews;" that by this compliance he might remove all occasion of offense, and not as an act necessary to Timothy's salvation. They delivered them the decrees] The decisions of the Jerusalem Church before referred to, and recorded xv, 29. These, though of but temporary obligation, were of vast importance to the peace of the Church at large, and especially so to the Gentiles, as freeing from all obligation to Judaistic forms and grounds of salvation.

So were the Churches established in the faith] "established" is here used in opposition to the state of doubt which had formerly prevailed in Churches composed, as most of these were, of part Jews and part converts from heathenism. The agitating topics were put to rest. Increased in number daily] That is, there were, as we should say, frequent accessions to them. "Daily" we take to denote this and no more.

When they had gone throughout Phrygia, etc.] Adjacent provinces on the west and north-west of Lycaonia. Were forbidden of the Holy Ghost, etc.] From this it would seem that Paul's mind was not at all times under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit: as we can only gather from this "forbidding" that he had intended at this time to enter and preach in proconsular Asia. He readily yielded up, however, his own intention, and embraced the guidance of his unseen counselor.

They essayed to go into Bithynia] An important and popular territory lying north-east of Mysia. But the Spirit suffered them not] Why is not stated. Passing by Mysia] Leaving it aside, without remaining to preach there. Came down to Troas] Now descending from the high lands of the interior toward the Ægean Sea.

A vision appeared to Paul in the night] The apostle is now at Troas. A "vision" is usually distinguished from a dream, by its being defined to be a representation made to the man when awake, though the attention would seem to be so absorbed by the thing presented that the senses are oblivious, for the time, to other objects. Come over] Namely, by crossing the Ægean Sea, on the Asiatic side of which Troas was, into Macedonia, a province of Greece. By doing this he would pass into the south-eastern part of Europe. The "help" desired was, of course, the proclamation of the Gospel.

Immediately we endeavored to go into Macedonia] The path of duty is now made plain, and eagerly do Paul and his fellow-laborers desire and endeavor to follow it, by at once inquiring for a ship thither bound. The "we" includes Silas, Timothy, and Luke, who thus modestly introduces himself, for the first time, to the reader. Perhaps he had now only joined their company. Assuredly gathering, etc.] As they could not do otherwise.

Loosing from Troas] Sailing from Troas. To Samothracia] An island in the north-east part of the Ægean Sea, above the Hellespont. Here, under the shelter of its high shore, they anchored for the night. The next day to Neapolis] The site of this city is now occupied by the Turkish village of Kavalla. It has a population of some five or six thousand, nine tenths of whom are Musselmans and the rest chiefly Greeks. Neapolis was the seaport of Phillippi.

From thence to Phillippi] Making, for the present, no stay at Neapolis, but at once pushing on to the "chief city." The distance was about ten miles. Phillippi is [illegible] wholly in ruins and without [illegible]. It stood on the acclivity of [illegible] Hermes, looking toward [illegible] a small stream now called [illegible].

On the [illegible] day of the Jewish Sabbath, the Christian Sabbath, or Lord's day, was then unknown to the Phillippians. He went out of the city] Beyond its gates. It may be that the few Jews living at Phillippi were excluded [illegible] worship with- [illegible] waters [illegible] to the [illegible] to be [illegible] Jews; the [illegible] who reverenced and worshipped the true God. Spoke unto the women] These being only attendants, at the time, at the spot. How often, even in days not remote from our own time, have women been the means of keeping up assemblies for religious service, which would, but for them, have been entirely deserted.

A woman named Lydia] Let her name be preserved, for she was the first European convert to Christ. Which worshipped God] From this expression she is supposed to have been at this time a convert from heathenism to Judaism. A seller of purple] Of goods thus colored or dyed. Of Thyatira] A city on the northern border of Lydia, in Asia Minor, about twenty-seven miles from Sardis, and early famed for the excellence of its "purple" goods. She would seem to be now a resident of Phillippi. Whose heart the Lord opened, etc.] That is, so enlightened and impressed by the Spirit's influence that she attended to," or understood and received, the teachings of Paul respecting Jesus.

When she was baptized] Not, probably, immediately, but at no distant date. The baptisms could hardly take place at this time, for she was probably unaccompanied by her "household," be the import of that term what it may; and when she was baptized they were present and also received the rite. Come into my house] This, we take it, was after her baptism, and consequently not, we think, at this first interview.

"Only Trust Him."

There is one thing the future is always willing to lend, and in it as in other respects, the borrower is servant to the lender; and that is trouble. But of all borrowed trouble that is the foolishest which makes us anxious about the Lord's conduct of His kingdom—the times and seasons in which He is going to manage it. There are many good Christians, who are trustful regarding their own future—who are yet in constant trouble—as to what the Lord is going to do with His Church and kingdom at large. They are our religious theorists; people with more or less faith, who stand on watch-towers of philosophy—forecast to conflicts of the Church, calculated the probabilities by some earthly arithmetic and then make themselves and others restless over the fear that the kingdom is not going to be established in their way or time, or perhaps not at all.

They cannot be satisfied to take their share, do their work and leave the result with the Lord. They act as if they were assistant pilots on the great ship of the world. They really seem to think if they cannot find harmony between Genesis and geology then the religious case is hopeless. They are more concerned about God's times and seasons than about their own part in the moral reformation of the world. When the kingdom of nature was established and how, whether by gradual evolution or successive creative epochs, these are questions to which they give more foreboding thought, than how the kingdom of grace may be furthered.

To the Christian the world's present condition and the agencies for bettering it is the problem of problems. Christianity must hold all merely curious speculation severely subordinate to the duty, which it always brings to the front, the duty of saving men. There are some things better than knowledge. Loyalty to a risen Savior and enthusiasm for His kingdom tower far above any selfish pleasure even of knowledge. It is not necessary for every Christian to have a theory about the origin, progress and end of Christianity. It is necessary he should help the point in the line assigned to him. The soldiers one day remonstrated with the "Iron Duke," that obedience to a certain order would be to perish. "Perish then," was the soldierly reply. It is not ours to adjust the lines o' battle. "Ye are my witnesses,' saith God, He will take care of the plans and the outcome.

How admirable was the faith and loyalty of Faraday! Profound as a sage in his science, but ever simple as a child in his faith, following both his science and his religion with an unfaltering step. God would look out for the points of collision. It was his only chance to seek truth and duty. Some one sneeringly says of him: "When he entered his laboratory he shut the door of his oratory, and when he entered his oratory he shut the door of his laboratory." And yet the sneer had in it a fine compliment for the professor. Oh, for more of his faith—faithful alike too in the workshop and the Church, working our little plat of ground, as if heaven and earth depended on it, and yet with a surrender of quiet trust that sees all seasons, all storms and holy calms gathered up in the power of the Father! Let faith outstrip knowledge. The farmer does not wait the outcome of the season before he plants his grain. Neither should the Christian. We have no more responsibility about the kingdom than a deck-hand has about the destination or progress of a steamer. Our kindom is all within the clasp of our hands. The times that wheel in the stars above us, the seasons that whirl in the wind around us are for God. But in these mighty cycles we have a place and a work. There all the honor lies and all the responsibility.

The man who knows nothing about astronomy or chemistry can have a beautiful garden. The sun will help him just the same. A man who knows nothing about God's purposes and has no theory about His plans, may be a faithful and successful Christian. He may stand in his blooming garden while over it all heaven moves stately and pours its beauty. And the sweet hour at set of sun will come to him just the same when God shall walk with him in it and out of it to glory. "I will never be a Christian till I understand the doctrine of election," said an inquirer to her pastor. "Then farewell to your hope of heaven," was the solemn reply. We can never unbraid the fine lines of history, nor break up the shadows of Providence, but we can be fathful in our day and generation. God will take care of the universe.

"The Conflict of Ages."

Men differ on nearly every issue. There have always been opposite parties in politics and religion, though the measures fought over one day may be universally adopted at another, and those sacrificed regarded as heroes and martyrs. Medicine has also been subject to revolutionary disturbances. When Drs. Harvey and Jenner announced their discoveries, they were held in contempt and ridicule by an incredulous and ignorant public, yet to-day they are received and honored by all as benefactors. When Dr. Pierce announced his Discovery, many seemed to doubt, and were skeptical concerning all medicines and doctors, but proof of merit has dispelled all doubt, and to-day the Golden Medical Discovery is the standard remedy in curing the most obstinate diseases of the liver and blood, having almost entirely superseded the old-time sarsaparillas by reason of its superior merits.

NORWICH, Chenango Co., N. Y., Nov. 31, 1876.
R. V. PIERCE, M. D.:

I was afflicted with a scrofulous affection on one of my legs. It was very troublesome for over two years, so much so that I could not wear a boot, and I had to keep my leg bandaged. It resulted in a raw sore. It got so bad that it became a general talk that I would have to undergo amputation of the limb. One physician told me he never saw such a sore cured. I commenced taking your Golden Medical Discovery together with your Pellets as directed on the bottles, and when I had consumed six bottles of Discovery, my leg was entirely well, and has remained so ever since—a period of two years,—and I would not swap it for fifty wooded legs. Yours truly,

JOHN SHATTUCK.

Found Out.

On the top of a hill was an orchard, and on one of the trees was a boy stealing apples; another boy stood at the bottom of the tree, on the watch to see that nobody found them out.

Nobody was near that they could see; but that did not prove that no one saw them, for, seven miles off, Prof. Mitchell, the astronomer, was examining the setting sun with his great telescope, and the hill happening to come within its range, the actions of the boys, the very telltale looks on their faces, attracted his notice. He saw what they were up to. He found them out. There was no escaping the great eye of his telescope looking full upon them. They little thought of such a thing.

But there was another eye upon them. It was God's eye, and his eye is on us. It sees near, it sees afar off. It sees in the day, it sees in the night. It sees out of doors, it sees in doors. It sees our actions, it sees our hearts. It sees us too by name. Prof. Mitchell did not know the boys. God knows.

How to Pray Good Prayers.

Some people don't know how to pray, nor what to pray for. The best prayers may be picked out of God's Holy Word. Look over the Psalms and the words of Jesus and wherever you find a rich and precious promise, turn it into prayer. Plead God's own promise. He is faithful. He will always own his own word. All the promises of God are yea and amen, in Christ Jesus, to the glory of God.

DIED.

At Shreveport, July 16, 1877, Mrs. Mary Hilton, wife of Rev. J. W. Hilton, of Louisiana Conference.

Her illness was but brief; she was taken sick on Wednesday and died on the following Monday. Every assistance medical skill could suggest was rendered her, but the Master had come and called for her, and bidding weeping relatives and friends adieu, she fearlessly answered the call. For ten years past she had been a zealous, devoted Christian. The grace that had sustained her in life, she found sufficient for her in a dying hour. May that same grace sustain Bro. Hilton in his great affliction, and enable him to say, "The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord."

SAMUEL E. H. MORANT.

Quarterly Meetings.

San Antonio (Tex.,) District.

Columbus, August 4 and 5; Columbus circuit, August 4 and 5; Alleyton, August 10 and 12; Eagle Lake, August 14 and 15; San Antonio, August 18 and 19; Henry, August 25 and 26; Texana, September 1 and 2; Victoria circuit, September 8 and 9; Mission Valley, September 15 and 16; Indianola, September 29 and 30; Speaksville, September 29 and 30; Victoria, October 6 and 7; Peach Creek, October 6 and 7; Corpus Christi, October 6 and 7; Hondo, October 6 and 7; Floresville, October 6 and 7; Southerland Springs, October 6 and 7; Nockernut, October 6 and 7; Lavernia, October 6 and 7; Belmont, October 6 and 7; Riddleville, October 6 and 7; Oakland, October 6 and 7; Halletsville, October 6 and 7.

D. GREGORY, P. E.

Murfreesboro (Tenn.,) Dist.

FOURTH ROUND.

McMinnville, July 5 and 6; McMinnville, Circuit, July 7 and 8; Shelbyville, July 14 and 15; Lewisburg, 21 and 22; Springhill 21 and 22; Franklin, 25 and 26; Mill Creek, 28 and 29; Woodbury, August 2 and 3; Stone River, 4 and 5; Murfreesboro Circuit, August 9 and 10; Murfreesboro, August 11 and 12; Alexandria, August 15 and 16; Carthage, August 18 and 19; Lebanon, August 25 and 26; North Lebanon, August 29 and 30; Hartsville, September 1 and 2; Gallatin, September 1 and 2; Mitchellsville, September 8 and 9; Springfield, September 15 and 16; Dickson, September 22 and 23; Nashville Circuit, September 26 and 27; Clark Chapel 29 and 30.

C. PICKETT, P. E.

Memphis (Tenn.,) Dist.

FOURTH ROUND.

Memphis, July 7; Adamsville, July 14 Shiloh, July 16; White Sulphur, July 18; Saltillo July 21; Lexington July 25; Decaturville, July 28; Camden, August 1; Clarksburg, August 4; Benton, August 8; Weakley, August 11; Alamo, August 15; Lake, August 18; Carroll and Huntingdon, August 25; Dickson, September 1; Dickson circuit, September 5; Buffalo, September 8; Wayne, September 12; Indian Creek, September 15; Lawrenceburg, September 22.

The Memphis district Sunday-school Extension Society, composed of the members of the district conference, will hold its second session at White Sulphur, Hardin county, July 17th to 20th. Opening service, 17th, at 8 o'clock p. m.

The district conference will meet at Shoat's Creek, Giles county, September 26th. Opening sermon at 7 o'clock p. m., by Rev. E. N. Williams.

J. L. CHANDLER, P. E.

Houston, (Texas) District.

THIRD ROUND.

Richmond and Forest Chapel, July 1-2; Church Houston, July 7-8; Edwards Chapel, July 9-10; Harrisburg and West Point, July 14-15; Columbia and Brazoria, July 21-22; 1st Church Houston, August; 4-5; Spring Creek, 25-26; East Church Tabernacle, September 1-2; Galveston, Staffords, September 8-9; Cypress, September, 15-16; Oyster Creek, September 22-23.

W. L. MOLLOY, P. E.

Marshall (Tex.) District.

THIRD ROUND.

Coffeeville, June 30 July 1; Marion, July 7-8 Marshall, July 14-15; Jefferson, Circuit July 21-22; Jefferson, July 28-29; Hickory Grove, July 28-29; Clarksville, August 4-5th; Union, August 4-5; Paris July 11th-12; Quitman, Aug. 18-19; Vanzant, Aug. 25-26; Greenville, Sept. 1st. 2nd; Sulphur Springs, Sept. 8-9th; Mt. Pleasant, Sept. 15-16.

F. C. MOORE, P. E.

Holly Springs (Miss.) District.

SECOND ROUND.

Mt. Pleasant, July 7-8; Kosciusko, July 14-15; French Camp, July 16-17; Greensboro, July 17-19, Winona and Vaiden 21-22; Duck Hill, July 26-27; Granada, July 28-29; Grenada Circuit, July 28-29; Oxford, Aug. 4-5; New Albany, Aug. 8-9; Ripley, Aug. Hickory Flat, Aug. 15; Holly Springs Aug. 18-19; Byhalia, Aug. 21-22; Chulahoma, Aug. 24; Abbeville, Aug. 25-26; Eliza, Aug. 30 and Sept 1st. First District Conference for Holly Springs District will meet on the 14th day of June, at Grenada; all the brethren are requested to be present.

J. G. JOHNSON, P. E.

Greenswood (Miss.) District.

Second Round.

Wesley Chapel, 9 and 10th of June; Silver Creek, 16th and 17th of June; Yazoo City, 23rd and 24th of June; Piney Grove, 30th of June and 1st of July; Deasonville, 7th and 8th of July; Pickens, 14 and 15 of July; Lexington, 21st and 22d of July; Goodman, 28th and 29th of July; Jones Chapel, 4th and 5th of August; McNutt, 11th and 12th of August; Caney Creek, 18th and 19th of August; New Midway, 25th and 26th of August; Hernando, 1st and 2d of September; Panola, 8th and 9th of September; Cold Water, 15th and 16th of September; Walnut City, 22nd and 23d of Sept; Shiloh 26th and 30th Sept.

J. W. DUNN, P. E.

Meridian (Miss.) District.

Rome, June 23-24; Ex-Prairie, June 30 and July 1; Macon, July 7-8; Shuqualak, July 11-12; DeKalb, July 14-15; Lauderdale July 21-22; Daleville, July 24-25; Meridian 28-29; Meridian Circuit August 4-5; Quitman August 11-12; Shubuta Circuit, August 15-16; State Line, Aug. 18-19; Shubuta, August 21-22; Enterprise Circuit, Aug. 26-26; Enterprise, Aug. 28-29.

M. ADAMS, P. E.

San Antonio (Tex.) District.

Sutherland Springs, June 23-24; Nockernut, July 1; Cibola, July 4 and 5; Riddleville, July 4 and 5; Lavernia, 7 and 8; Goliad Circuit, July 11 and 12; Belmont, July 14 and 15; Refugio, July 18 and 19; Wrightsboro, July 21 and 22; Goliad, July 28 and 29.

D. GREGORY, P. E.

Staunton Female Seminary.

STAUNTON, VIRGINIA.

Rev. J. I. Miller, A. M., Principal, with a full corps of teachers, including Mrs. Gen. J. E. B. Stuart. School not sectarian. Four denominations represented in the faculty. Board and home comforts the best. Positively no extravagance in dress allowed. Terms liberal. Session opens Sept. 6th, 1877. Send for catalogue to the Principal. [jy26-4t.

Heathen Woman's Friend.

24 PAGES MONTHLY.

PRICE 50 CENTS.

Specimen Copies sent Gratuitously.

MRS. L. H. DAGGETT, Agent.

36 Bromfield street, Boston, Mass.

july19-tf

ROANOKE COLLEGE, SALEM, VA.

Next session begins September 5th, 1877. Collegiate, elective and preparatory, courses. Unsurpassed location. Mountain climate. Moral community. Five Churches in town. Expenses for 9½ months, including tuition, board, etc., from $160 to $240. Students from fifteen States, Indian Territory, and Mexico. Patronage constantly increasing. For catalogues, etc., address

jy12-4t] SECRETARY OF FACULTY.

Every Lady Her Own Physician.

Ladies' own Prescription. Information of great value to every lady sent free, by addressing Dr. W. C. Stevens, 911 Arch street, Philadelphia. [jy-12-4t

$66 a week in your own town. Terms and outfit free. H. Hallet & Co.

Dec 21 76 1y] Portland, Maine.

A. H. NELSON,

Commercial Stationer, Printer, Blank

BOOK MANUFACTURER and LITHOGRAPHER.

THE best assortment of Blank Books in the city.

The Finest Specimens of Lithographic work to be found in New Orleans.

No. 57 CAMP STREET,

Sign of the Mammoth Letter Press.

☞ Call and Prove My Statements.

[oct12-76 1y

SOUTHWESTERN AGENCY

FOR

School and College Text Books.

Office No. 80 CAMP STREET (up stairs).

Below we submit the MODEL SERIES of books (so conceded by the leading educators of this country) for use in PRIMARY, INTERMEDIATE and GRAMMAR schools. To insure their adoption by the progressive teacher we have only to ask a careful comparison with books of a like grade, a critical examination and a thorough, practical test in the class-room:

	Prices.
Harper's Introductory Geography	60
Harper's School Geography	$1 25
" United States First Reader	15
" " " Second "	25
" " " Third "	37
" " " Fourth "	50
" " " Fifth "	75
" " " Sixth "	90
Wilson's Primary Speller	15
" Larger "	30
" New "	34
Lamson's Penmanship, per dozen	1 80
French's First Lessons in Numbers	25
" Elementary Arithmetic	37
" Mental Arithmetic	36
" Common School Arithmetic	70
Swinton's Language Primer	30
" Language Lessons	37
" School Composition	37
" Progressive Grammar	55

Catalogues, circulars, and testimonials sent on applications. Correspondence solicited and will receive prompt attention, when addressed

W. P. ROGERS & W. L. JARVIS, Agents for the introduction of Harper & Brother' Educational Works; New Orleans, La.; Lock Box 134.

"HEAVENWARD."

The new book of Sunday-school songs, by James R. Murray, P. P. Bliss, and other favorite writers, including the best Hymns and Music of the late

P. P. BLISS.

This is the only New Song Book containing Mr. Bliss' best Songs—the ones that have made his name famous throughout Europe and America.

The verdict of all who examine "HEAVENWARD" is, "it is unequaled by any other Sunday-school Music Book." A single sample copy, in paper covers, mailed for 25 cents. Price—in boards, 35 cents. $30 per hundred. Order from your bookseller.

SONGS OF FAITH

For REVIVAL, PRAISE or CAMP MEETINGS.

A collection of new Gospel Hymns and Sacred Songs by the best writers, including Moody and Sankey's favorite songs. Words and Music, 35 cents; $30 per hundred. Words only, 6 cents; $5 hundred. Send for sample.

New Anthem Book—Ready July 1st.

CHAPEL ANTHEMS By Dr. J. B. Herbert, assisted by the best writers of the day. Will supply a long-felt need for a collection of new, short easy, and practical Anthems for Choirs, etc. Specimen pages free. Sample copy mailed for $1 25. Catalogues of Music Books and Sheet Music sent free.

S. BRAINARD'S SONS, Publishers,

apr26-77-1y] Cleveland, Ohio

OFFICE AMERICAN COTTON TIE CO. LIMITED

47 Carondelet St. New Orleans, La.

In view of the constantly increasing popularity and demand for the Celebrated Arrow Tie, the universally recognized favorite Tie of Planters, Cotton Pressman and Shippers of Cotton generally, the American Cotton Tie Co., Limited, sole proprietors and manufacturers of said Tie, commanding unequaled facilities, have, in addition to the large stock now on hand, contracted for increased quantities, sufficient to meet the largest demand for Cotton Ties, to cover the entire crop of the coming season, and now, through their Agents generally, offer the popular and irrepressible ARROW TIE at $2.50 per bundle, less 2½ per cent. discount for cash, in Bundles complete, being less than the market value of plain hoop iron; and it being the purpose of the Company to merit the continued patronage of the Planting community and to defy all competition that may arise; their Agents are instructed to contract with Dealers, Factors and country Merchants at the above named price and terms for future delivery up to the first of August in quantities as may be required from time to time, settlements being made on delivery.

R. W. RAYNE, & CO.,

GENERAL MANAGERS,

je-21-77-1y] New Orleans, La.

Hospital College of Medicine.

(The clinical School of the West.)

Med. Dept. of Central Univ., Louisville, Ky.

Distinctive features: A thorough didactic course, unsurpassed clinical facilities, eighteen clinics per week, the student being daily required to examine and prescribe, a high standard of graduation, both a didactic and a practical clinical examination being required.

For catalogues and information concerning special advantages address

DR. W. H. BOLLING, DEAN,

Cor. Third and Jefferson Sts., Louisville, Ky.

Texas Lands.

Best Investment in the Nation!

640 acres rich prairie loam, producing cotton, grains, fruit and vegetables, and adapted to stock, lying in the high and healthful latitude of Northwestern Texas, for the nominal sum of $266.

Title Patent, direct and perfect. Taxes low. Worth several times the cost. Now is your time to plant a small sum fruitfully. No fraud. All work personally supervised. Handled in the interest of education in Texas. Full particulars furnished on application, (with stamps).

References: Rev. Wm. Brush, D.D., P. E. Austin District, Austin, Texas; First National Bank, Dallas, Texas; State Savings Bank, Dallas, Texas, or editor of this paper. Address

REV. L. H. CARHART,

West Texas Conference.

☞ Box 377, Dallas, Texas. [al9-tf

"The principle of combining English and American writers in a common literary enterprise, merits all encouragement."—J. Anthony Froude.

THE

INTERNATIONAL REVIEW,

A NEW YORK AND LONDON REVIEW.

EMINENT CONTRIBUTORS ON BOTH SIDES OF THE ATLANTIC. (No articles at second hand. All articles original.)

CONTENTS.—MAY-JUNE—NOW READY.

The New Administration.
The Life Insurance Question. Carlton T. Lewis.
Disestablishment of the Church of England. Dr. James H. Rigg, London.
The Philadelphia Exhibition.—Part I. Mechanism and Administration. Francis A. Chief of the Bureau of Awards.
Tennyson.—A Criticism. Bayard Taylor.
Our Foreign Service. Hon. John Jay.
American and European Literature. Phillip Gilbert Hamerton.
Contemporary Events.

Price, Single Number, $1. For six months $3. Annual subscription (6 numbers) $5.

New York: A. S. BARNES & CO.,

apr27-10t] Publishers.

NEW ENG. CONSERVATORY of MUSIC.

16,000 pupils since 1875. 75 eminent instructors. 115 hours instruction for $15. Musical, Literary and Art courses. 4 terms a year. Address E. TOURJEE, Music Hall, Boston Mass. [july 19-6teow

Lungs and Throat.

Inhalation of common air in Incipient Consumption will cure. Dr. J. M. Howe, of Passaic, N. J., sends his Tube, with full directions, post free for $3 50. Send for circulars.

may24f.

A SPRING CHICKEN.

"COCK-A-DOODLE-DO-O-O!"

"What's the matter with you?"

"Can't you see the length of your bill? The sun's a coming up over the hill."

"Shut up your eyes and go to sleep, Or you'll have the chickens all a-peep."

"Cock-a-doodle-do-o-o! Such an old fogy as you Hasn't the power to put me down. I'm going to wake the henroop and hen.

Cock-a-doodle-do-o-o! Wake up all of you-o-o! The sun's coming up over the hill; I'm fretting it and shan't keep still. If I let chanticleer to crow, I guess I know enough to know It's time to crow when we see the sun. Wake up and get up now, every one. You're the stupidest set that ever grew, Cock-a-doodle-doodle-do-o-o!"

Bantam strutted proudly and flapped his [illegible] if there's any such thing." [illegible] eye to see; [illegible] could be. [illegible] 't my son!" [illegible] cackled: "Oh! isn't [illegible] new went round. It was only the moon, [illegible] Bantam was crowing three hours too soon.

—Independent.

Talk Double in Mother.

[illegible] a girl hides a secret [illegible] mother, or has received a [illegible] not let her mother [illegible] of which her [illegible] in data. [illegible] thing for [illegible] secrets of women at [illegible] is almost a [illegible] none [illegible] that, if [illegible] When you and [illegible] never, never con- [illegible] from your husband [illegible] to write a let- [illegible] all about, [illegible] are not [illegible] read. [illegible] Tell [illegible] here you [illegible] who [illegible] mean, of [illegible] has set [illegible] and much [illegible] who talk too [illegible] little [illegible] so [illegible] to her [illegible] I met [illegible] remarks [illegible] so [illegible] of [illegible] from [illegible] are on all through [illegible]

LOST FRIENDS.

NOTE—We receive many letters asking for information about lost friends. All such letters will be published in this column. We make no charge for publishing these letters FROM SUBSCRIBERS TO THE SOUTHWESTERN. All others will please enclose fifty cents to pay for publishing the notices. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any cases where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.

I will be thankful for information concerning my wife, named Matilda, and daughter named Sally. They belonged to Bob. McCallop, in Alabama. On the approach of the Federal forces he left with them saying he was going to Texas, and I have never been able to get any word from them since. Address, Squire Norman, care of St. Paul's Church, Shreveport, La.

My brother Charles belonged first to Mason French in Warren Co., Tenn., but was sold to John Darden, who took him to either Arkansas or Texas, since which we have had no word from him. Our mother also belonged to French, but our father, who was named Adam, belonged to Dr. Young, of Nashville. Any information concerning brother Charles will be most thankfully received. Address William Henderson Young, Lebanon, Tenn., care Rev. Jos. Smith.

I will be most thankful for information concerning my two sisters, Phillis and Letitia (called Tishia). Our mother is named Kitty, and formerly belonged to Billy Carter, at Big Springs, Wilson Co., Tenn. My sisters were sold to a slave trader named Pat. Anderson, and we afterwards heard that he sold Phillis fifteen miles below New Orleans; this was the last word we had concerning them. Address, Mrs. Martha Smith, care Rev. Jos. Smith, Lebanon, Tenn.

Our family belonged to Mr. Moody, of Mecklenburgh Co., Va. Father was named David Roater and mother was named Bettie; I had two sisters, Mary Ann and Margaret. We were all sold to a speculator called Capt. Williamson, who took us to Selma, Alabama, where, in 1846, we were separated, father, mother and sister Margaret being at that time carried with me to this State. I desire word from any and all of them; address Mary Washington, Hernando, Miss., care Rev. B. L. Crump.

The Missouri River recently commenced wearing a new channel at Omaha, and threatens to leave the town inland.

What the Bilious Require.

Since inactivity of the liver is the chief cause of the disorder, it is evident that what the bilious require is an alterative which will arouse the torpid organ without that it, followed by the disagreeable train of the various symptoms as indicated, calls for the administration of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which invariably achieves the desired result. Constipation, flatulence, heartburn, yellowness of the skin and white of the eyes, nausea, sick headache, nervous indigestion, jaundice, loss of appetite, low spirits, and a host of other ailments attendant on a disordered stomach, are speedily subdued by this salutary medicine. As a remedy for chronic indigestion, mental despondency and nervousness, the Bitters are equally efficacious. It is a powerful tonic, imparting vigor to the system, and is a mild but thorough regulator of the bowels. For sale by all druggists and dealers generally. [mar22-77-1y]

The Old Reliable Jackson Route.

TO THE FRONT AGAIN.

This old favorite passenger route has been greatly improved with good rails, new iron bridges and new cars, and is now run with [illegible] speed, making sure connections at Louisville with quick time, and is now the shortest route to the East via Louisville and Cincinnati.

Tickets by this route can be had at the principal ticket offices in New York and the Northwestern cities, at the Louisville and Virginia, Louisville and Nashville, and Louisville and Cincinnati ticket offices, and at the Central ticket office, No. [illegible] Canal street, under City Hotel, [illegible] summer resorts in North and Northwest, by [illegible] Pullman's palace cars on all through [illegible]

[illegible] PIPPEN & LARA, [illegible] ORLEANS. [illegible] DEALERS IN [illegible] MACHINERY, [illegible] Out [illegible] Tree & Co., Augusta, Maine.

A. P. HARRINGTON,

No. 118 Canal Street,

New Orleans, - - - - - - La.

Dealer in

LAW, MEDICAL, SCHOOL, RELIGIOUS, AGRICULTURAL AND MISCELLANEOUS

BOOKS

Stationery, Gold Pens and Pencils.

Pocket Books, Card Cases, Pocket Knives, Scrap Books, Chromos, Photograph Albums, Stereoscopes, Maps, Globes, Writing Desks, Etc.

PRINTING, RULING and BINDING.

Subscriptions taken for Newspapers and Magazines, Payable in advance.

Country Orders Solicited. [feb10-77-1y]

THE

Houston and Texas Central Railroad,

Operating over 500 miles of superior road, runs North and South through the

FINEST AGRICULTURAL and GRAZING DISTRICTS in TEXAS

And offers the most desirable sites for location to parties immigrating to that great State. The

NORTHWESTERN BRANCH

Of this road, which is now being pushed forward beyond Waco, will pierce the Great Mineral region of

NORTHWESTERN TEXAS.

For further information, address

J. R. COFFIN, S. P. A., Chattanooga, Tenn.
C. E. WHITNEY & CO., New Orleans, La.
J. WALDO, G. P. A., or J. DURAND, Gen'l Superintendent, Houston, Texas. [mar22-77-1y

PAN-HANDLE AND PENNSYLVANIA Railroad Route.

The Favorite Trunk Line.

Only one change of cars to New York, and that at 7:30 in the morning, at Cincinnati.

No omnibus transfers on any part of the line.

Best equipped and shortest route to all the eastern cities.

Best Route to Long Branch, Cape May, Atlantic City, New Port, and all the Atlantic sea-coast watering places.

Best route to Cresson, Altoona, the celebrated Bedford Springs, and all the noted mountain retreats of the Alleghany range; and also the best route to Bethlehem on the Lehigh river, and all the noted resorts in the Anthracite coal regions of Pennsylvania.

This route is supplied with all the modern improvements for speed, safety, and comfort, and continuous trains run without stoppages for fuel or water, as the water is supplied while the trains are in motion.

Palace and Drawing Room coaches on all trains.

Double varnished cars, heated by steam, free from dust, and steel rails laid according to scientific principles, to avoid jarring which is the cause of sickness to many.

All travelers who have availed themselves of the solid comforts to be found on the old reliable Pan Handle and Pennsylvania, unhesitatingly say that for families and tourists, it is unequalled; while for business men who desire reliability and promptness it is far ahead of all opposition.

The refreshment saloons and eating houses are all first-class and all have an enviable reputation for their cuisine—the tables being supplied with the best that the markets of Ohio and Pennsylvania afford.

Be sure and ask for tickets via Louisville Cincinnati and the Pan Handle Route.

W. L. O'BRIEN, Gen. Pass'r and Ticket Agent, Columbus, Ohio.
SIDNEY B. JONES, General S.-W. Agent, Cincinnati, Ohio.
W. M. WALLINGTON, Gen. Southern Agent, New Orleans, La. [June14-77-tf

FOUR MONTHS OF

GOOD HEALTH FOR 25 CENTS.

ANY PERSON WHO WILL BUY A BOX OF

Parson's Purgative PILL

And will take one (1) pill each night for four (4) nights, and will do the same every third (3d) week during the months of June, July, August and September, nor any of the diseases resulting from miasmatic poison, such as Fever and Ague, Bilious Fever, Dysentery, Diarrhœa, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Jaundice, Costiveness, Piles, and all diseases arising from a disordered liver or stomach, such as Dizziness, Loss of Sleep, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, Back, and Limbs, Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Nervous Headache, Fever, Inflammation and Jaundice, will be cured for the price of one box of pills. For sale by all druggists. Beware of counterfeits. The genuine Parson's Purgative Pills are manufactured only by the proprietors, JOHN F. PARSONS & CO., No. 1 Gerrish st., Lynn, Mass. Sent by mail to any address on receipt of price, 25 cents per box, or five boxes for $1. Agents wanted everywhere. Liberal discount to the trade. Sample dozen, $1 25, sent by mail. Address as above.

WHOLESALE AGENTS.

Cheseborough Manufacturing Co., St. Louis, Mo.
Lee, Mason & Co., Memphis, Tenn.
E. J. Moore & Co., New Orleans, La.
C. J. Lincoln & Co., Little Rock, Ark.
T. O. Thompson & Co., Galveston, Tex.

Agents Wanted. ROBINSON & CO.

10,000 COPIES SOLD IN EIGHT WEEKS.

THE LATEST, FRESHEST, and MOST COMPLETE OF ALL THE

MOODY LITERATURE.

FIVE BOOKS IN ONE.

MOODY: His Words, Work and Workers.

EDITED BY REV. W. H. DANIELS, M. A.

With an Introduction by Rev. Chas. H. Fowler, DD., LL.D.

Of the many volumes called out by the wonderful career of Messrs. MOODY AND SANKEY, all have hitherto been more or less fragmentary, and without systematic arrangement. In the above work the design has been to bring within the compass of a single volume of generous size

THE MAN HIMSELF: A full and Systematic Presentation of his Bible Doctrines: An account of his most prominent CO-WORKERS: and a chapter on that most marvelous movement in modern evangelism, THE GOSPEL TEMPERANCE REVIVAL.

In order to make the volume fresh and complete, Mr. Daniels, who edits this work, has made a visit to Boston, to learn, by personal observation, as he has done in the case of the Moody and Sankey revivals in other great cities on both sides of the Atlantic, the progress of the revival work there.

This volume contains 552 pages, crown octavo, including twelve full-page illustrations; is elegantly printed on fine paper; is handsomely bound; and is not only a book of the widest and most permanent interest and value of any yet published in this line, but is also the

CHEAPEST FOR ITS PRICE.

Full Cloth, Gilt Stamp $2 00
Half Morocco, Marble Edge $2 75

AGENTS WANTED EVERYWHERE.

The publishers are appointing from fifteen to twenty agents daily, which is the very best evidence of the fact that the book meets the popular want. Many who are canvassing for other similar works are dropping them and taking this.

MINISTERS, STUDENTS, TEACHERS, LADIES,

And other intelligent persons, are wanted to canvass for this work. It will be SOLD ONLY BY SUBSCRIPTION.

READ HOW IT SELLS.

Rev. J. S. Wickline, one of our Agents, writes, under date of June 12, as follows: "Messrs. Nelson & Phillips: I sold twenty-four books in two days; showed the book to twenty-five persons, and took twenty-four subscribers."

No other book in the market, now being sold by subscription, is selling so fast.

It is preeminently the best book on Mr. Moody and his Work that has yet appeared.

Send postal card for full description, circulars, and terms to NELSON & PHILLIPS, Lock Box B., New Orleans.

P. S.—Where we have no Agents, the book will be sent, postage prepaid, on receipt of retail price.

IMPROVED

CABINET ORGANS.

EXCELLING WHAT HAS PREVIOUSLY BEEN ACCOMPLISHED IN POWER, PURITY AND DELICACY OF TONES.

THE LIST CABINET ORGAN

(Style No. 50.—Five Octave; Seven Sets of Reeds of Two and a Half Octaves each, and One Set of One Octave; Fifteen Stops; New Scale of Reed-Board, Reeds and Action, with Ventrille Chest and other improvements, patented 1876-7. 1. Main Centre Stop, 16 ft. 2. English Horn, 8 ft. Viola, 4 ft. 4. Viola Dolce, 4 ft. 5. Sub-Bass, 16 ft. Treble. 6. Octave, 16 ft. 7. Melodia, 8 ft. 8. Piccolo, 4 ft. 9. Sesquialtra, 5 ft. 10. Vox Celestes, 8 ft. 11. Throughout Full Organ. (Open stop.) 12. Vox Humana. 13. Octave Coupler. (coupling up.) 14. Knee Swell. I. Forte. II. Forte.)

The Mason & Hamlin Organ Co. have the pleasure of announcing that specimens of this fine instrument (which forms the musical part of the famous Dr. Franz Liszt,) are now ready, and may be seen at their Warerooms and Principal Agencies. (320 pages of this improved Organ, and its merits, is as follows:

Having occasion to review an organ expressly for the newly celebrated Dr. Franz Liszt, in which full success, power, was especially desired, as well as which delicacy and purity of tone as could afford satisfaction, I am critical, a judgment as that of this a great man, I have had the opportunity of carefully out and thoroughly improvements which had been first introduced in our Organs, at the U. S. Centennial Exhibition, with others which had been introduced since. The result, we more than satisfactory, the improvement greater than I had ventured to expect. In our own warerooms in Boston and New York the new instrument was submitted to a number of the best musicians in the country, who pronounced it a material advance upon all that had before been accomplished. In the minds of the Agent for the sale of the Organs in Hanover, Germany, it was most greatly admired. The Hanover Courier declared it to be "at the very height of development of instruments of the class, evincing extraordinary progress." After its receipt and trial, Dr. Franz Liszt wrote to the Agent: "The beautiful organ of Mason & Hamlin Organ Company of Boston receives no less praise here than in Hanover. It fully justifies the remarkable, well-founded, and widespread renown of these superb instruments." It was immediately put in use in Albert Hall.

We are confirmed in our judgment then, that the latest of these new Organs are the finest that have ever been produced from reeds, not because of mere novelty of effect, but from their true dispassionate quality and fulness, and from their excellent power and pervading and sustaining effect; and that, as a whole, it is, in proportion to its size and cost, much in advance of anything we have before been able to produce.

Circulars with full particulars, also Catalogues illustrating and describing all the styles of the celebrated MASON & HAMLIN CABINET ORGANS, which have taken highest honors at all the World's Exhibitions of recent years, are the only American Organs which have ever taken highest award at any such, cost free.

MASON & HAMLIN Organ Co.
154 Tremont St., Boston; 25 Union Sq., N. Y. 250, and 252 Wabash Avenue, Chicago.

F. F. HANSELL,

JAS. A. GRESHAM, Manager.

BOOK-SELLERS, PRINTERS, AND STATIONERS.

No. 30 CAMP STREET.

Would respectfully announce to the readers of the ADVOCATE their facilities for doing all kinds of Printing and Job Work for PARTIES, BALLS, and BUSINESS PURPOSES.

Methodist Hymn Books, Disciplines and Bibles

Will be furnished at Northern Prices.

FAMILY BIBLES,

from $2 50 to $10 00. Orders from the country will receive prompt attention, and all orders filled as low as if brought in person.

Address, as above,

F. F. HANSELL,
30 Camp street, New Orleans, La.
Box 84. [jal4-77-3m.]

Virginia Roofing Slate.—The best and strongest in the world, not excepting the well-known Welsh Slate.

The undersigned having accepted the agency for the sale of the celebrated ORE BANK and IMPERIAL QUARRIES, is now prepared to fill orders at prices much below those of Welsh and but little in excess of those of ordinary American Slates. Builders, contractors, and slaters generally are invited to submit them to the severest tests.

ALEXANDER HILL,
may1-76 1y] 110 Carondelet st., N. O.

Madame FOY'S

Corset Skirt Supporter

Is the most useful article of the kind ever invented. Ladies who have worn it for years say it is the greatest boon to women they have ever seen. It is the only article of the kind that can be worn with perfect ease and comfort. Sold by all leading merchants. Beware of worthless imitations. Ask for Madame FOY'S Corset Skirt Supporter, and take no other. Sold by all leading merchants. Beware of worthless imitations. Ask for Madame FOY'S Corset Skirt Supporter, and take no other.

MANUFACTURED SOLELY BY FOY & HARMON, New Haven, Conn.

[illegible] CENTS, and 3 cent stamp for postage, we will send [illegible] MODEL PRINTER'S GUIDE [illegible] How to Print [illegible] MODEL PRINTING PRESS. [illegible]

[illegible] SING AGENTS [illegible] FURNISHES FREE. SEND FOR OUR MANUAL.

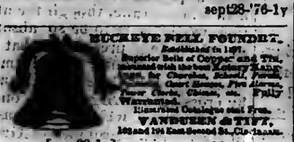
AYER & SON'S MANUAL For Advertisers

A complete guide to advertisers. New Haven Journal.—A valuable book for advertisers. Louisville Commercial. [illegible] N. W. AYER & SON'S ADVERTISING AGENCY, TIMES BUILDING, PHILADELPHIA.

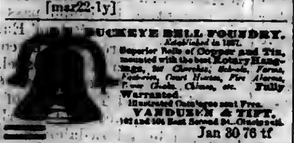
THE NEW ELASTIC TRUSS

[illegible] SCOLLETON TRUSS CO., Sharpsburg, Mich. Mar28-77-eow13t

RIYMYER [illegible] BELLS, [illegible] CHIMES, [illegible] Co., Cincinnati, O. sept28-'76-1y



BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY. Established in 1837. Superior Bells of Copper and Tin, mounted with the best Rotary Hangings, for Churches, Schools, Farms, Factories, Court Houses, Fire Alarms, Time Clocks, Chimes, etc. Fully Warranted. Illustrated Catalogue sent Free. VANDUZEN & TIFT, 102 and 104 East Second St., Cincinnati. [mar22-1y]



BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY. Established in 1837. Superior Bells of Copper and Tin, mounted with the best Rotary Hangings, for Churches, Schools, Farms, Factories, Court Houses, Fire Alarms, Time Clocks, Chimes, etc. Fully Warranted. Illustrated Catalogue sent Free. VANDUZEN & TIFT, 102 and 104 East Second St., Cincinnati. Jan 30 76 tf

ONE QUARTER FOR TEN QUARTERS.

MASON & HAMLIN CABINET ORGANS.

HIGHEST AWARDS AT

FOUR GREAT WORLD'S EXPOSITIONS

Paris, 1867; Vienna, 1873; Santiago, 1875; PHILADELPHIA, 1876.

ONLY ORGANS AWARDED FIRST RANK AT CENTENNIAL.

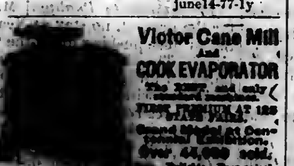
Great variety of styles at prices which would be impossible for work of such excellence without unequaled facilities for manufacture.

EXAMPLES OF NET CASH PRICES:

Five octave double reed organ, with tremulant, $100
Five octave organ, nine stops, with voix celeste, $114

Sold also for monthly or quarterly payments, or rented and rent paid. A superior organ may now be purchased on the easy payment of $1.00 per quarter for ten quarters. Catalogues free.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN CO.
154 Tremont St. BOSTON. 25 Union Sq. NEW YORK. 250 Wabash Av. CHICAGO
june14-77-1y



Victor Cane Mill And COOK EVAPORATOR

The best and only [illegible] FIRST PREMIUM AT 129 STATE FAIRS. Capacity [illegible] Gallons. Over 44,000 sold. Reliable, Economical. Cane Growers can't afford to risk Oregon [illegible] Circulars and Price Lists free. Address VICTOR MILL CO., Cincinnati, O.

LADIES Blanket Satin [illegible] GRAY HAIR, Beards and Moustaches [illegible] Druggists and Perfumers. [illegible] Oakley and Jones.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine. [Dec 21 76 1y

THE

SINGER AGAIN TO THE FRONT!

GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICES

—OF THE—

WORLD-RENOWNED

Singer Family Sewing Machine!

THE SINGER MANUFACTURING COMPANY, ever awake to the interests of the public, have determined to PUT THE PRICE OF THEIR MACHINES within the reach of every man, woman and child in the land.

THE GENUINE SINGER SEWING MACHINE IS NOW OFFERED AT PRICES BELOW THE BOGUS ONES, OR ANY OTHER.

The fact that the only Sewing Machine which unscrupulous men have ever attempted to imitate, is the Singer, is sufficient evidence of its superiority over all others. There is no longer any excuse for buying any of the cheap machines hawked about the country, with no claim for patronage but their cheapness.

THE SINGER MANUFACTURING COMPANY,
S. E. RUNDLE, Agent.
may24-6m] No. 91 Canal Street, New Orleans, La.

WHEELER & WILSON

STILL AHEAD!

PRICES GREATLY REDUCED.

The Acknowledged Family Favorite.

NO NOISY COGS, AND NO RATTLING SHUTTLES.

Ease of manipulation, simplicity of construction, and rapidity of motion, have always placed the

Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine

Above all its competitors. The WHEELER & WILSON Manufacturing Company have determined not to be outdone by the manufacturers of inferior sewing machines.

Get a First-Class Machine at astonishingly low prices.

$40 to $75 will buy a New Improved Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine, at Liberal Discount for Cash.

Send for Circulars and Price List.

2,000,000 in Daily Use,

AND STILL THE FAMILY FAVORITE.

WHEELER & WILSON MAN'F CO.,
M. A. PECK, GEN'L AGENT,
june 14-76. 4m.] 149 Canal Street, New Orleans, La.

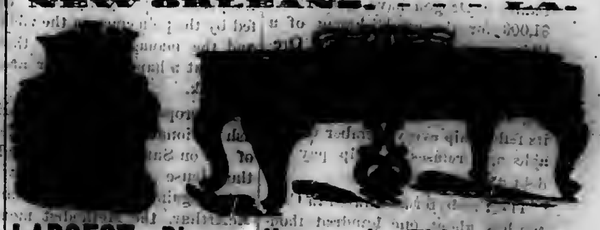
PHILIP WERLEIN,

Nos. 78–90 Baonne Street,

NEW ORLEANS. - - - - LA.



LARGEST Piano House in This Cuntry,

—OFFERS—

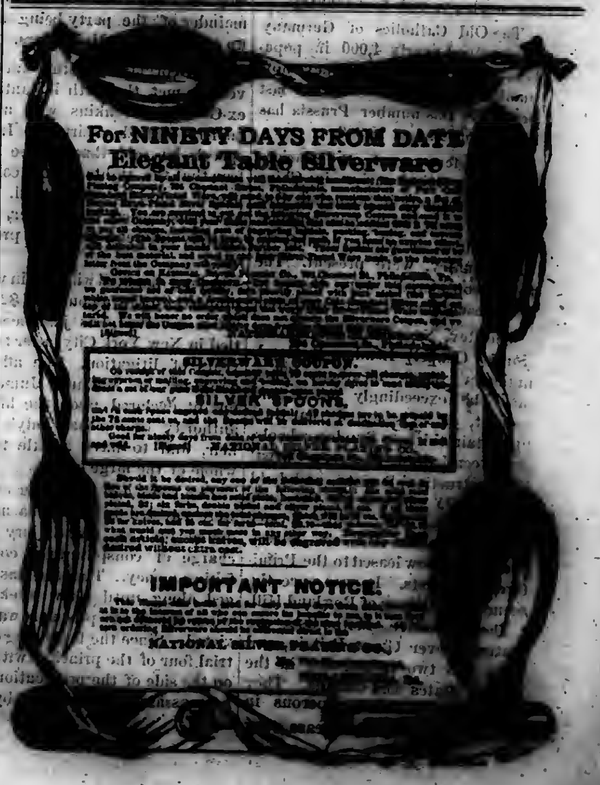
Chickering's New Scale PIANOS.

HALE'S PIANOS, HARDMAN'S PIANOS.

ESTEY & CO. ORGANS. MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

As low as any house North. Monthly Payments. Discounts for cash.

Music and Musical Instruments of Every Description. [feb22-1y



Southwestern Christian Advocate.

NEW SERIES—VOL. 1—NO. 31. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, AUGUST 2, 1877. WHOLE NUMBER 261.

SOUTHWESTERN

Christian Advocate.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT

39 Natchez St., New Orleans.

BY

NELSON & PHILLIPS,

FOR THE

Methodist Episcopal Church.

Terms: $2 a year, Cash in Advance.

All Travelling Preachers of the Methodist Episcopal Church are authorized Agents.

Subscriptions may begin at any time and the paper will be sent as long as paid for.

Remittances must be made by Registered Letter, P. O. Money Order, or by Express.

Advertising Rates.

(Per Nonpareil line, each insertion.)

One time ...	8 cents
One month, (4 times)	7 "
Three months, (13 times)	6 "
Six months, (26 times)	5 "
One year, (52 times)	4 "
Marriage notices	25 "
Special Notices	8 cents, net cash

NEW YORK OFFICE:
805 Broadway, New York,
WILLIAM BALDWIN, Special Agent.

JERUSALEM.

Thy queenly name, Jerusalem!
Goes journeying down the years,
Still wearing on its front a crown
Of glory and of tears;
The songs that sounded on thy hills
When Adam's race was young,
Those lofty hymns to Israel's God,
Shall never be unsung.

Around thy walls old empires prowled
Like hungry beasts of prey;
Or, hovering on thy mountain paths,
In cunning ambush lay;
From age to age thy captive sons
Went forth in weeping bands,
To toil beneath the bloody rod,
In lonely tyrant hands.

These empires now are ground to dust,
While thine undying race
Still finds in God—its fathers' God,
Some secret hiding place,
The seed of Abraham is not lost;
That tribe of wondrous birth
Still wanders as a scattered host
In all the lands of earth.

Thy temple, O Jerusalem!
On Zion's lordly height,
Has shed on nations, near and far,
A strange and holy light;
The watchmen, on thy towers beheld
The glad unnumbered throngs,
The gathering tribes—that filled thy courts
With thy great festal songs.

From year to year—from age to age.
The long procession flowed
Through all thy vales, and o'er thy hills,
To [illegible] shade;
Their white tents glistened on the slopes,
While they with one accord,
Told the old legends o'er and sung
High praises to the Lord.

Along thy streets, Jerusalem!
The man of Sorrows trod,
And there didst nail upon the cross
The loving Son of God.
That record of thy sin and shame
Was washed in thine own blood,
When war and storms swept o'er thy walls,
A wild devouring flood.

But over all thy shame and guilt,
[illegible]
[illegible] wrought for [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] shall still go sounding on,
To every time and clime,
A glorious and immortal name,
[illegible] time.

WHAT IS LIFE?

A little crib beside the bed,
A little face above the spread;
A little frock behind the door,
A little shoe upon the floor.

A little lad with dark brown hair,
A little blue-eyed face and fair;
A little lane that leads to school,
A little pencil, slate and rule.

[illegible]

[illegible] at Funerals.

[illegible]

By Lamplight.

THE MINISTRY No. 4.

The Savior calls men to follow him. His life was one of activity; going about doing good. Hence his followers are called to work. This is true of all Christians, but especially true of the ministry. If there is any position in the world, that demands good, honest work, it is that of the Christian Minister. He deals not as other men, with interests that belong mainly to time, but with those of eternity; not with the perishable material of earth, but with immortal souls; not with things that can be priced with silver and gold, but that which cost the precious blood of Calvary. A ship freighted with its hundreds of passengers, nears the rocky coast, on a stormy night; the captain sleeps, the officers are drunken, the noble vessel strikes the reefs, and all are lost; what words can paint the blackness of the crime of the captain of that vessel? But only life is lost there. What of the minister, who sleeps when souls are lost because of his slumbers! The minister is called to labor. He must be prepared for his work. First, intellectually. No extent of intellectual culture should be considered too great for the ambassador of the Cross. The Bible is so simple, yet so profound; the Sunday-school youth may comprehend its practical teachings, and the mightiest intellect be overwhelmed with its grandeur, and astounded at its revelations. This book will bear years of earnest, laborious research, and will return a rich harvest for all labor spent in honestly seeking for the true meaning of its sacred pages. The candidate for the ministry can not well spend too much time in Bible study. This is to be the study of the minister all through life. He must constantly inquire what his King and Lord would have him declare. The Ambassador who never referred to the instructions of his government would soon be recalled. So the minister who does not study his Bible will lose the endorsement of Heaven. It is expected that ministers will not now enter this responsible position who cannot read God's word. The time was when this ignorance on the part of the colored preachers was a necessity; when to learn to read was a crime; but that has passed, and the young man who does not use his utmost efforts to prepare himself for the work of the ministry by securing the best education within his reach, will soon find himself dropping down to the poorest filed of labor, and not wanted there. Howling over a "heartfelt religion," as is sometimes done, and over a "cornfield religion," which were not received through the Bible, and a sort of ridiculing of the Book religion, belongs to a class of preachers that must soon pass away from our church and from the whole South. This sort of preaching may produce wonderful effects upon a certain class of Christians in the way of great physical manifestations, of shouting, jumping, &c., but its fruits mostly end with the noise and confusion produced. The preacher must have as good an education, at least, as his congregation. A good, English education is the requirement of all churches, theoretically, of those who enter the ministry. This is true of the M. E. Church, but the condition of the colored people, the pressing need for men to preach, seemed to make it necessary to admit very incompetent men into this work. The time has nearly come when none but those who can pass a creditable examination on the common English studies will be admitted to the ministry. This is right. The priest under the Mosaic dispensation was to be thirty years of age before he was permitted to enter upon his office, and he was under training by his constant association with the older priests. Jesus had his disciples associated with him for three years, before he sent them out to teach all nations "to observe all things whatsoever he had commanded them." In this age of the world, and in this country where books are cheap, and schools within the reach of every energetic young man, to license men to preach the Word who can not read it, is a premium on the laziness of the young man licensed, a crime against the church, and dishonoring God. The broadest views of ministerial preparation should be held by those who are to say by their votes who shall enter the work of the ministry. No more men who cannot read, no men who are not industrious as students, diligent in the improvement of their opportunities to secure a fair English education, should be admitted to any of our conferences, or be licensed as local preachers, [illegible] to teach the way of the Cross, and persuade men to [illegible]. To do this he needs to [illegible] needs to know Christ [illegible] and needs to know [illegible] knowledge in [illegible] men to [illegible]. His argu[illegible] and clear [illegible]. The minister is to [illegible] charge of the children and young people of the Sunday-schools, catechise, instruct, encourage. He is to administer discipline where he is to be virtually judge, jury, accuser and defender. He is to oversee the selection of sites for churches, and building them. He is to instruct his official members in their duties, examine the class-leaders and instruct them how to improve their class-meetings. He is to be the spiritual adviser of the ignorant who cannot read a word, and also the educated and refined. He is to visit in the cabin of the poor, or to find his way to the homes of the rich. He is to preach to all classes the Word of Life. Does not the man who is to be engaged in such duties need the broadest culture within his reach? Should any church consent to admit a man to this sacred office who has not, at least, a common English training? Even if he is only to preach to the ignorant, shall the blind lead the blind? Secondly, he should have a spiritual preparation—which will be continued at another time.

J. BRADEN.

Nashville, July 23, 1877.

To our Preachers---For our Freedmen.

Dear Brethren—The Freedmen—their necessities and the agencies for their salvation—must be kept before our Church yet many years. Two hundred years of oppression kept them in a condition which can not be remedied in a day. You are the master-builders by whose hands the ex-slaves shall be raised to the fair proportions of manhood. You did more than any other class of men to free them. You have done most to educate them, in originating plans, arousing interest, and bestowing gifts.

To your fidelity, chiefly, it is owing that Christian schools and teachers have been sent into the Southern States and supported by our Church.

In proportion to your wealth, your gifts are the largest. Exemplary liberality adorns the record of our ministry. You have lead the Church in giving. Will you not still lead it to give? Follow up your praiseworthy example by instruction and exhortation.

The presentation of any of the benevolent causes of the Church, indorsed by you, guarantees its success. You are the leaders of Churches and formers of public opinion in communities. Your people, in the main, think as you think, and depend upon you for information concerning our general Church charities.

If every preacher will inform his people and take the collection, our contributors will be greatly increased, no one impoverished and all our work prospered. Give your people the privilege of giving, and of giving intelligently, to the Freedmen.

It is a good thing to ask money for a good cause,—a blessing to the preacher who asks, to the giver and the receiver. "It blesseth him that gives, and him that takes." And such is the deserved confidence which the people repose in you, that they will give to the cause which you present, even though they have little information about it. But truer liberality, of better quality and more abundant in quantity, comes through an intelligent view of the necessities to be met. Every man will give more, and be more profited by the act, if he knows to what use the consecrated offering is to be applied. We are to get the minds and hearts of the people first, then they will give their money. Not as spoils to be seized, but as a benefit to be bestowed, the money of our people should be sought.

Sources of information are open to you. The Annual Report of the Corresponding Secretary, full of facts and suggestions is in your hands, so that, in as much time as you use for preparing a sermon, you can get a knowledge of our Freedmen's work to lay before your people, which will thrill your heart and theirs, and turn their sympathies into those serviceable gifts by which our work can be accomplished.

Such presentation of this great work as will lead our people to an active interest in it is Gospel preaching. Are not exhortation and application as valuable as doctrine? It is not aside from your sacred commission to present the Freedmen's cause, but a necessary duty under it. Did not St. Paul gather and distribute to the necessities of the poor saints at Jerusalem? He who "determined to know nothing among them but Jesus Christ and him crucified" counted himself obedient to that high resolve when he was hurrying to Jerusalem with the gifts of the Gentile Church or writing immortal chapters to the Corinthian brethren on the spirit and manner of benevolence. But these were contributions for the physical aid of men, while our work among the Freedmen is the literal obedience to Christ's command, "Go teach." Nay, the Gospel is not preached unless it is applied and practiced, and the duty of a minister of the Lord is not done unless he keeps his people in lively sympathy with all who needs the help of a Christian hand. "Thy kingdom come," we must obediently pray, before we ask for "our daily bread."

The subjects of our Christian care are close at hand. Here, at our doors, dear brethren, the pleaders stand. Their intelligence is shrunken by having been forbidden knowledge, but they have enough left to beg for more, with a prayer at once more earnest and more meek than ever arose from any other people.

The garments of their morality, which should be a seamless robe, are all rent and ragged. Yet they try, with the few threads of instruction which they have picked up, to close these rents. Shall their moral nakedness be our shame?

They have peculiar love for religion and the Protestant faith. Our Freedmen's schools are the folds in which they find refuge from the Romish wolf. Yet we can not shelter half who run to us, and even now the wolf tears the flock.

They are to evangelize a continent, and many want to go thither to seek and to save. Let us furnish them with the outfit of sanctified learning, and their explorations of Africa will become more memorable than those of Livingstone. They will there not only discover great waters and numerous peoples, but will uncover to those millions the fountains of life, and lead them to the skies.

Our brothers cry. They cry to us at our thresholds. They cry at our very altars and communion-tables. We cannot leave them to themselves. We cannot remand them to the care of others. No other Church or organization can fill our place or do our work. God has graciously and yet imperatively put a large share of this work on our Church, and we must not evade it. Their cry is to us, we alone must meet it. We must not forsake these poor. Already many who have received the truth at our schools are filled with heroic desires for their people's salvation.

Brethren, servants of God, ministers and representatives of Jesus Christ, lift with a steady, untiring, and helpful hand, until these in the pit stand up clean, clothed, taught, saved, and saviors among the men of this and other lands.

The honor of the nation which freed these men is dear to us. It was honored in their liberation. That was the barest justice. It should be honored by their education and salvation. That will be heavenly philanthropy. And highest among all motives, exalt that allegiance to Christ which bids us, for love of him, to 'Secure the perishing, care for the dying,

Snatch them in pity from sin and the grave."

Gather the facts. Pray over them with your Bibles open. Tell them to your people; and let the people's answer be the Bread of Knowledge, held out in generous contributions to the Freedmen's Aid Society, and broken by the faithful teachers now among the Freedmen. These teachers are true disciples. As of old, the starving multitudes sit by thousands, lowly on the ground. Obeying the Lord who blesses, at his direction, pass the gifts to these teaches, and they to the multitude, and when all are filled, you shall gather up and carry away manifold more than at first you had.

Affectionately yours in Christ,

R. S. RUST, Cor. Sec.
ISAAC J. LANSING.

Dear Brother,—The above is not a mere formal address to you, but is an urgent appeal growing out of the necessities of the work and the Society. Its design is to lead you to realize the importance that you should bring this subject before your people at you best opportunity and take the collection and forward the amount to the Treasurer. In this view we join our request with the Secretary and his Assistant.

I. W. WILEY, President,
J. M. WALDEN, Rec. Sec.

Why They Often Fail.

Young men often fail to get on in the world because they neglect small opportunities. Not being faithful in little things, they are not promoted to the charge of greater things.

A young man who gets a subordinate situation sometimes thinks it is not necessary for him to give it much attention. He will wait till he gets a place of responsibility, and then he will show people what he can do. This is a very great mistake. Whatever his situation may be, he should master it in all its details, and perform all its duties faithfully.

The habit of doing his work thoroughly and conscientiously is what is most likely to enable a young man to make his way. With this habit a person of only ordinary abilities would outstrip one of greater talents who is in the habit of slighting subordinate matters.

But, after all, the mere adoption by a young man of this great, essential rule of success shows him to be possessed of superior abilities.

Presbyterian Council.

The great Presbyterian Council, composed of representatives from all the families of this ecclesiastical order, has held a very imposing series of services in the old Presbyterian city of Edinburgh, Scotland. Delegates were present from all the quarters of the globe—some three hundred in all. America, and nearly every European nation, were represented. Missionaries were present from Asia, Dr. Moffat from South Africa, and two from Australia. Men of national prominence from this country well sustain by their papers and speeches the reputation of the large and influential divisions of this venerable body in our country. Chancellor Crosby, Drs. Prime and Schaff, Dr. Stuart Robinson, of Louisville, Ky., Dr. Ormiston, of the Reformed Church, are found among the honored delegates from the United States. Dr. Prime presented a full and valuable compendious history of the Presbyterian Church in America, which is published in last week's Observer. Dr. Schaff introduced a discussion upon the Harmony of Confessions of the Reformed Churches. Dr. A. A. Hodge has been recognized for his ability in debate upon the principles of Presbyterianism. Singularly enough, at the great public reception given the Museum of Science and Art, where five thousand were present, the presiding officer, who is Lord Provost of Edinburgh, was a Wesleyan Methodist—Sir James Falshaw—the first Arminian who ever held this high office in this Calvinistic metropolis. His welcome to the delegates was hearty and graceful. Prophecy was then fulfilled—the lion and the lamb sat down in peaceful satisfaction at the same feast; and a small foretaste of millennium ecstasy formed the richest element in the remarkable entertainment! In the midst of a very eloquent response of Dr. William Adams, of New York, to the Lord Provost, he suddenly stopped, and remarked that he had said overmuch about his own Church. Then seizing the hand of Sir James, he broke out as few better than he could do it, into a glowing eulogy of Wesleyan Methodism, amid the tumultuous applause of the happily excited audience. The council was in session on the Fourth of July. They hung their dining-room, on that day, with the Stars and Stripes, and had specimens of the purest kind of Independence—after dinner, speaking; Dr. McCosh leading off in the liveliest style of spread-eagle rhetoric. Altogether it was good for both Britishers, Americans, and foreigners to be there! Philadelphia has sent on a request, which has been accepted, that the next Pan-Presbyterian Council, to be held in 1780, should be convened in that city. Those international, denominational gatherings are admirable. When will Pan-Methodism witness the gathering of representatives of all her tribes?—Zion's Herald.

The Sweden Conference.

The Mission Room has news from Bishop Andrews from Horten, Norway, under date of June 28th, He says: "The Sweden Conference closed on Monday, the 18th inst. The session was harmonious and the brethren begin to learn and use our Conference methods with evident pleasure and profit. The feeling was one of great cheerfulness and elation, until the statistical tables were presented, wherein appeared the following facts." He then summarises the statistical returns. These show a "gain in full members of forty-eight and in probationers of 547; total, 595, a good gain, but not so many, by many, as had been anticipated from accounts of revivals which had been published." This is accounted for in great part by the fact that the names of a large number of absentees and unknown members had been removed from the books, and by a secession of quite a number of sympathizers with a minister who was expelled last year.

The total of collections for the year was not as large as had been hoped for, nor had the advance in the direction of self-support been what was anticipated. On the oteer hand, the collection for the General Missionary Society was nearly 8,000 crowns, which was an advance of 1,700 crowns upon the preceding year. In explanation of the failure to realize their highest anticipations in financial returns, the Bishop says: "It should be borne in mind that the business difficulties which are felt in America are also severely felt in Sweden, and church building and collections therefor could not be pressed as in former years." The Bishop concludes by saying: "I more and more believe that God has led our Church to Sweden and that He is honoring us with great success in up-building His kingdom there."

NORWAY CONFERENCE.

Bishop Andrews writes to the Missionary secretaries: "The Norway Conference prospers; over six hundred additions; the future bright."

Old White Billy.

When I was about twelve years old, my father bought "White Billy," as we called him, for he was certainly the whitest horse I ever saw. He bought him because he was said to be so very kind and gentle, and father had been wanting just such a one, that mother could drive about with a carriage load of children, and not be a bit afraid.

Billy was seven years old when we first had him, and mother had driven him almost every day for three years, loving him more and more for his goodness, before what I am going to tell you took place.

One morning mother was out riding with her own four, and one of the neighbor's little children, and had started towards home, when we came to what was called "High Bridge," because of its being so very high above the river that it crossed. Billy trotted along up to it, a bridge he had gone over many and many a time, and, placing one foot onto it, he suddenly drew back and stood stock still.

Of course we were all very much surprised, and mother began to talk to him in the gentle way in which she always spoke to him, and said: "Well, well, Billy, what's the matter? What do you see that you don't like the looks of? I am sure there is nothing to be afraid of. Come, get up there, old fellow!"

But no, he wouldn't stir an inch, and when she urged him again, instead of starting ahead he tried to turn around. For the first time since we had owned him, mother feared that somewhere in Billy's nature there was an obstinate streak, and although she couldn't bear to do it, she felt he really needed a little punishment. So, taking up the whip, which she scarcely ever used she gave him a pretty hard cut with it.

I don't think Billy was ever so astonished in his life, for he just reared up in the air and stood on his hind legs for a second, then quieted down again and stood perfectly still; but go on he wouldn't; and he acted as though he was saying to himself: "I know best about this, and if you kill me, I won't take you over this bridge."

Finding that he was determined, mother at last said to him: "Well, if you won't go over, you won't, I suppose; but sometime when we don't have a load of little folks in, old fellow, you and I will settle this question on this very spot. But now, you certainly seem to have the best of me; so turn about, if you wan't to, and we will see if you like the lower road any better."

This evidently suited Billy exactly, for as soon as he found that he had carried the day, he trotted along as lively as possible, but now and then he would hang his head as though he was thinking of that cruel cut his mistress had given him, and how, if he could only have spoken to her and told her why he was afraid to take them over the bridge, she would never have treated him so badly.

That night, when my father came home, he was very sad, and the first thing he said was: "There has been a fearful accident at High Bridge to-day. About eleven o'clock this forenoon, old Deacon Hopkins and his boy were driving over it with his gray mare and the farm wagon, when just as they got in the middle of it, the whole bridge gave way and went crashing down! The poor old man was killed outright, and the boy is so badly hurt that they fear he cannot live. And the mare had two of her legs broken, so they had to kill her on the spot to put her out of her misery. I declare," said my father, "it has made me down sick, as I have thought that it was just as likely to have been you and the children."

"And so it would have been us," mother cried out, "had it not been for that wise old saint of a Billy. Deacon Hopkins must have driven over it right after we left, for it was just eleven o'clock when we were there."

We were so excited that we all began to talk at once; but before father could possibly get it through his head what had happened, mother broke off the middle of her story, and started for the stable. Of course we all rushed after her, but by the time we got there she had Billy out of his stall, and with one arm about his neck she was stroking his face, and caressing him. She told him how sorry she was for having struck him, and asked him to forgive her, and Old Billy rubbed his head against her, and in many ways acted as if he was trying to say to her, "Yes, I understand you, I know you love me, and of course you couldn't know why I should be afraid to go over that bridge; but you see just as I put my fore foot onto it, I felt it jar and tremble, and I loved you too well to trust you to it." Then we children each took turns in hugging him, and told him how much we loved him, and that we would always take care of him.

That night father wrote a paper in which he said that as long as he lived, and he hoped his children after him would do the same, he would celebrate, with all the happiness possible, the sixteenth day of July, as the day on which Old Billy saved the lives of his wife and children. On that day everything should be done to show their love for, and their gratitude to him. That he should die a natural death, and be decently buried with his shoes on.

Billy is still living, and is twenty-six years old. We have never yet failed to celebrate "his day," as we call it. Last year when I went up home we kept the day in great style. Father and mother had invited all the children to "Billy's party," and we had it in the carriage house.—Golden Rule.

General News Items.

Corpus Christi, Texas, will export this year six million pounds of wool.

Alabama produced 4,000 tons of coal in 1873, and 65,000 tons this year.

A very extensive of mine of black lead has been discovered in Floyd county, Ga. The mine will soon be opened.

The sugar cane crop of Texas is said to be in fine condition. It is more extensive than at any time since the war.

The Rome (Ga.,) Courier says the mills of that place ship an average of 75,000 pounds of flour per day. They grind 9,000 bushels of wheat per day.

General Toombs introduced a resolution in the Georgia Convention to repeal the prohibition against duelling. It was voted down by a vote of 119 to 38.

The hard times and the great success of temperance movements have reduced the number of saloons in New York City about 1,200.

According to the last census out of a total population of 38,589,377 there were 2,885,996 engaged in agriculture, 62,383 physicians and surgeons, 40,736 lawyers and 43,874 clergymen.

The contract awarded by the Turkish government to a single corporation in Rhode Island is said to involve the enormous sum of $17,000,000.

A Florida paper says: There are fig trees in Pensacola known by living men to be more than sixty years old, but how much older is not known. Sixty years more, or a hundred years, may be the limit of their thrifty lives; but we have no data for prediction. They still yield profusely, and are in full vigor.

President Hayes and his cabinet have been invited to attend the National Industrial Exhibition in Louisville, Ky., September, 17th, the anniversary of the adoption of the Federal constitution. He has accepted the invitation and some of his cabinet will also come.

At Waynesville, Mo., six men have been indicted for wrecking a railroad train on June 2d. by which three persons were killed. The infernal plan of the wreckers was to cause a smash up, kill and rob the passengers, and burn their bodies with the train.

Queen Victoria caused four ladies of her Court to be censured for wearing unbecoming costumes. It is understood that their fault lay in wearing garments abbreviated about the neck and shoulders. One of the ladies censured was the Viscountess Mandeville who is an American by birth.

For admission at West Point cadets must be between the ages of 17 and 22, and for admission at Annapolis between the ages of 14 and 18. They are appointed by the Secretary of War to West Point, and by the Secretary of the Navy of Annapolis upon the nomination of a member of Congress in whose district a vacancy occurs. Each Congressional district in the United States is entitled to one pupil in each constantly, and the President can also appoint ten to each at large. All must be regularly appointed.

The President has decided a case which will serve as a precedent in several applications for pardon made in behalf of men convicted of ballot-stuffing and other frauds in elections. The case is that of a young lawyer of considerable standing in New York City, named Ely, who was convicted of assisting in procuring fraudulent naturalization papers for use at the polls. He was sentenced by Judge Benedict to two years in the penitentiary. One year of his sentence has not expired, but a heavy petition for his pardon reached the President a short time since, signed by some very prominent Republicans. The district-attorney opposed the pardon on the ground that Ely was a man of education and position, and that, therefore, his offense was less excusable. The President took prompt and decisive action, refusing to pardon. The grounds of this action are such as to render it morally certain that the President will refuse all similar requests, no matter what the excuse for attempts to currupt the ballot may be.

SOUTHWESTERN
Christian Advocate.
39 Natchez St., New Orleans.

J. C. HARTZELL, B. D., EDITOR.

THURSDAY, AUG. 2, 1877.

Things are quieting down all over the country. The roads that have been blockaded are now moving their trains and business will be resumed. Such demonstrations soon run their course always. It is to be hoped that matters may be soon adjusted between all parties as to secure immunity from similar disturbances in the future.

Rev. Thos. Wadkins, Sutherland Springs, Texas, in writing us mentions that Jacob Pierson has found a sister whom he had not seen and from whom he had not heard for over twenty years. Each one supposed that the other was dead. A notice in our "Lost Friends" column was the means of bringing to them joyful tidings that the lost was found. Several such instances have come to our knowledge.

The death last week of that eminent and excellent lady, Mrs. Nancy M. Taylor, has caused a feeling of profound sorrow in this community. Mrs. Taylor's name will always stand out brightly on the pages that record the noble deeds of the loyal women of the land during our great civil war. A Memorial Service was held at Ames M. E. Church on Sabbath morning last, at which Dr. J. H. McCarty, the pastor, delivered an appropriate sermon. The Times, of Monday morning, gives an extended abstract of the discourse which we will reproduce in our next issue.

In the Year Book of our Sunday School Union and Tract Society we notice the statement that Father Daly, a Roman Catholic priest, had told Dr. Vincent that if the Methodists would publish the Douay Testament and distribute it as widely as possible, he would furnish a testament authorized by the Archbishop of Dublin. Dr. Vincent came home and submitted the matter to the tract board, and the proposition was accepted, and quite a large number of the testaments have been distributed. The difference between the Douay Testament and the authorized version is very slight.

Movements in the East indicate evidently the intention of England not to keep out of the Russo-Turkish war. England has much at stake. Her Eastern boundary is greatly affected by the situation as it now stands between Russia and Turkey. [illegible] have all along intimated, the [illegible] ties are in favor of a general European war eventually. If England enters the field it may involve Austria. And this may give France some opportunity to win back her lost laurels from Germany. In view of these complications [illegible] prolonging the contest, and for the purpose of affording our readers every facility for gaining information, we have presented in this [illegible] Southwestern a com[illegible] of the country now [illegible] field of hostilities [illegible] We are in advance of all [illegible] papers in this [illegible] order to make room for [illegible] interesting matter has [illegible] this week.

[illegible] accordance [illegible] of our institution [illegible] of an army in time of [illegible] citizen soldier is sup[illegible] all times able and [illegible] the emergencies of [illegible] may take a les[illegible] of the past few [illegible] great State of [illegible] the pres[illegible] most pitiable [illegible] regiments of [illegible] may call [illegible] an immense [illegible] waste of [illegible] bloodshed, [illegible] war is to [illegible] have an [illegible] men, [illegible] quell [illegible]

Invoice.

We stepped into a store a few days ago and noticed that the dull season was being improved by the proprietor and clerks in taking an "account of stock." An occasional careful invoice is one of the very best possible safeguards against financial disaster. Every good business man understands this. A man who never "takes an account of stock" is certain to be a bankrupt sooner or later. The more shrewd he is the longer the disaster may be postponed, but in the end it is quite certain to come.

In times of old the same principle held good, a man's fortune then generally consisting in cattle, herds, flocks, and the advice was to take an account of stock. "Be thou diligent to know the state of thy flocks and look well to thy herds."

About the first of June in the South and January in the North generally you will find men everywhere acting on this principle. Go into the stores and while one set of salesmen are waiting upon customers, others are taking down goods, examining cost marks and bills of sale—measuring, weighing, calculating and re-arranging the whole business. They are examining the foundation of the business house. They are trying to see if the base walls are still in place—if the sills of trade are sound. So that if there is decay or crumbling or rottenness, the house may be saved—in a word, they are "taking account of stock"—to see what has been made or what has been lost during the business just closed.

Let us moral, responsible beings learn a lesson from all this. Let us take an invoice of ourselves—examine ourselves.

We all sustain a double relation, first to the past and then to the future. O the past! As we look back over it how much there is in it to mourn over! How many failures we have made! how many unkind words we have spoken and would recall if we could!

It is commonly said "to err is human," as if a quotation from a poet could counterbalance a thousand wrongs in our lives. But alas! the memories of past follies, mistakes, harshness of judgment, neglects of duty, do not make the atonement we crave. These memoirs go with us till we descend to the quiet of death and lie ensepulchred with our fathers. Mistakes may be corrected so as not to rise against us in the near or far off judgment. The wounds we have inflicted may heal over, but they will leave a scar. It is a truth we should not forget, that every blow we strike upon another has its rebound on our own soul; and he who smites, is often smitten harder than the one at whom the blow was aimed. Excessive persecution or harshness of treatment turns the tide of pity where the persecutor would not have it go.

In our past lives we think we may all see where we have made the mistake of uncharitableness—where we have been unwilling to do our part—were we have neglected duties to God and man. These cannot be forgotten, but they may be forgiven—the ragged wound will not go bleeding through all time—it will heal—thank God! There is a moral as well as physical recuperative power!

But let us take an account of stock from a personal stand-point. Forgetting the things of the past, if we can, let us look forward. What have we left to-day, counting out "bad debts" in the way of rash and unholy promises to the world? What have we left after all our losses of time spent in studying how to dress—in conversation which, if some short-hand writer had taken it down, and should read it to us, would make us blush for very shame. What have we left after counting out our damaged goods in the shape of wasted opportunities and slighted grace. What have we left after deducting the spurious money we have taken in the way of things temporal and worthless, which the Devil palmed off upon us as pure gold?

Perhaps we have yet a reasonable degree of capital. But another [illegible] living may see us [illegible] our capital will [illegible] the loss account [illegible] of the gain [illegible] will release us [illegible] will serve [illegible] —our [illegible] that our [illegible] throb, [illegible] on our door will be a muffled step—"closed out" may be written on our coffin lid!

Our future prosperity is conditioned on this, that we are industrious. All good business implies activity—work while the day lasts. We must be vigilant—we must watch and pray. We must avoid extravagance. The spendthrift soon runs through with a fortune. We must be saving of time; not a moment must be thrown away. We must go no where, in which we would be unwilling to be found dead. How would you like to be stricken down at the gaming table, or in the ball-room?

Each year gives us fifty-two Sabbaths; during each year we may redeem the past. We may make no "bad debts" this year—we may get rid of that class of customers who never pay—men who live only to tempt us to do wrong. Shake them off; they waste our substance and do us no possible good. Let us pay our debts of gratitude and love to God. We may do much for those around us, and mount up toward the throne by the regenerating influence of the Divine Spirit.

Dress.

The question is sometimes asked how should a Christian dress? We do not know that we can answer this question to suit everybody, but we venture a few thoughts which may at least set the matter before the mind in a proper light. We say in this, as in everything else, avoid extreme. We notice that God has impressed his thoughts visibly on the world about us. He has dressed the fields and landscapes in the most beautiful manner. He has carpeted the earth in green, and has ornamented it with the studied care of an artist in form and color.

We cannot believe that He who has made nature so beautiful all around us—who has made the human form so graceful—who has placed within man's grasp so much material and given us such exquisite patterns of loveliness—we cannot believe that He designed us to ignore all good taste and go through the world such slovens as we so often meet with in life even among Christians. We cannot believe there is any piety in making one's self offensive to the educated good taste of society by a disregard of even the common proprieties of life. A foul breath will not add to the devotional spirit of those who sit near you in church. There is no special virtue in propping one's self up in the house of the Lord "unwashed, unshaven and unkempt"—it does violence to the sacred place and is displeasing to God. Half the world needs to be better dressed than it is. We cannot think much of any one who disregards the laws of good society. A human being is too grand to be thus degraded. Nor is it any greater a sin to be even a little extravagant than to be offensive in person.

Religion prescribes no style of dress. It does not command the priest to wear a gown, nor to omit it. The Quaker is just as good but no better because he goes through the world in his sombre drab. Methodists were not any holier when they made church membership to depend on the absence of a ruffle or the cut of a coat. All true piety is opposed to extravagance, all true christianity is antagonistic to pride and vanity, but true religion is not to be guaged by the outward garments. It is a conviction we feel that there is about as much pride in plainness sometimes as in fashionable dressing. They who are very much opposed to the mere style are generally scrupulously exact about the material. There certainly can be no propriety in Christian people trying to distinguish themselves by their clothes. We look rather for the exhibition of true piety in the conversation and life—in charity—in love and good works—in noble deeds. Get the heart right and all this matter of dress will adjust itself.

But how should a Christian dress? As well ask us how a Christian should walk or eat? We answer, like other people. Then how should other people dress?

We should dress to secure comfort. It has been said that whatever is fashionable is becoming. That certainly can not be. One thing is certain, whatever is fashionable is not always comfortable. The human body has a natural grace when it is left to itself which may be spoiled, ruined by the wrongs of mere fashion. Our girls often torture themselves by fashions which no money could hire them to endure, and if imposed upon them by law or religion would be deemed a hardship of the severest kind.

People should dress for their health. We should dress to suit the seasons. Thin dressing in cold weather has sent many a fine young woman to a consumptive's grave. And thousands have gone into incurable diseases by undue compressions, not only making them unnatural, but really unhappy as well as unhealthy.

People should dress according to their business. It would be wretched taste and worse economy for the mechanic in his shop to dress as he would for a special entertainment or the church.

People should dress according to their means—that is they should not be extravagant—but there can be no rule, for what would be very cheap for one man's pocket book would be very expensive for another.

Let people appear as their circumstances will allow. Let not the rich despise the poor nor the poor envy the rich.

Economy should be studied by all. No one has any right to be wasteful in dress or in anything else. "Gather up the fragments that nothing may be lost" said the great Teacher of the world. Just here is where thousands fail. Give us the absolute waste and we will feed the hungry and clothe the naked. Give us the money expended for mere display and we will relieve the wants of millions.

These ever changing fashions deplete the pockets of men and are often a prolific cause of bankruptcy. Many a hard worked business man goes under from this cause.

Be not vain-glorious, but be sober. Let the true adornment consist not in outward ornamentation, but in a good heart. Do not attract the world by oddity, but win applause by gentleness and by holy living. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness and all things else shall be added unto you."

The Strikes.

The questions uppermost in the mind of the American people at the present time are those which relate to the strikes. What has really caused them? How long will they continue, and what will be their practical results on the industries of the country and on its morale?

The best sentiment is everywhere opposed to all such demonstrations of violence and lawlessness. It is equally opposed to the abuses of trust and power in the hands of railroad men and great corporations. We do not justify the extreme measures of the strikers, nor do we believe that several thousands of hardworking men have become thieves and outlaws in a single day. A gigantic wrong exists somewhere, and it is the duty of all men to find it out and correct it.

The cry of "hard times" has been common for a long while. The effects of a money panic usually pass away within a couple of years, but the country has not yet recovered from the panic of 1873. Why have we hard times? Not because money is scarce—that article is as plenty as ever it was, but it is in the hands of rich men and rich corporations. The men who do not need it can obtain all they want, while the class who need it most are reduced to semi-pauperism. The only way to make money easy is to pay promptly and well the laboring men. When the working class are well paid the money of the nation circulates freely and money is easy. Now of late such has not been the case. Wages have been constantly coming down. Three or four great railroad corporations, the Baltimore and Ohio, New York Central, Pennsylvania Central and the Erie are stronger than the States through which they pass. Col. Tom Scott has had more power in Pennsylvania than its governor, and has positively controlled its legislature for a number of years. These roads have been determined to destroy each other if possible. Competition has cut down tariffs on freights until the roads have earned simply nothing. The only way to save themselves, and a very bad way it is, was to reduce the wages and thus compel the poor man to save the rich one from loss. It may be an unpleasant truth to utter, but such is the fact, and it is high time a change had come. Then again, the pass system is ruinous. The equitable way would be to reduce passenger rates about one-third everywhere and abolish the pass system absolutely. The number of persons who travel free on most of our roads is very great. They are mostly a class able to pay, or they would not have influence enough to procure passes. This revenue alone would go a great way toward paying the engineer and fireman who run the train a living salary.

Members of Congress ride free on all the roads in the United States. So do the members of the several State legislatures and State officers in their respective States. Well, this secures the influence which the railroad "kings" want, and this is how it comes to pass that railroads have such power. Men are bought with favors as well as money.

We do not approve the severe measures of the strikers, but we believe good will come of this. We shall see a return to living wages and a freer circulation of money among the people. This will react in favor of every department of industry. The farmer—the mechanic—the professional man—the merchant and manufacturer and the railroad—all departments of business in a word will improve the very day that we return to living wages among the men who do the hard work.

The country is passing through a labor crisis and we believe, hard as the ordeal may be, it will work to the advantage of the whole country; and if we are to have such a lesson, we may as well have it one time as another. This is no time for men in high places to stand on their dignity, and say they won't yield that capital must control labor. Better yield gracefully to the inevitable and save us from a reign of Communism.

The scarcity of money, and the lack of remunerative labor have thrown on the world a race of men called "tramps," and they are just numerous enough to create an immense disturbance on the slightest opportunity. To these more lawless and idle bands rather than to the railroad strikers, is to be attributed the incendiarism and anarchy which made such sad havoc in Pittsburg. Pay the laborer better wages and all will be well.

Up Grade.

No one can doubt that society is making progress. We admit that the world is wicked, but we must also admit it always was so. There never was a period when people in all the walks of life were not more or less guilty of crime. But then let us not forget that this very sensitiveness on the part of the people, this watchfulness, which is increasing continually, indicates a healthiness which is inspiring. Crimes which once were winked at by the masses are now viewed with horror. We say this is a sign that the world is not retrograding "from bad to worse."

There is another point which we may note. This moral growth of the world is a slow one. From our stand-point we almost wonder why by some spiritual dispensation the Almighty has not blotted out the evil and planted the good. Could he not do so? To this we answer—we are beings of reason; all moral growth implies the use of the reasoning powers. The world's real goodness must rest on choice, and we very well know that mankind are dull scholars. Little by little however, the world is growing wiser—little by little the truth is shining out, and the darkness is disappearing so that it is safe to say that all the wrongs of society are ultimately to be overcome. The day may be far distant, but such a day will dawn, when the whole earth shall be covered with the glory of God.

The inspired writer has said: "Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good." Good is the great overcoming agency in this conquest. The spirit of goodness must ever enter into all christian effort. We see daily around us those whom we look upon as wretchedly vile, we "pass by them on the other side," more easily than we approach them. They hate us and we feel no natural love for them. They know better than they do. Our hearts quite naturally say let them alone, let them go if they will to destruction—but stop a moment. This rule carried out in this spirit would blight all the hopes of humanity. Not a spot on earth would be visited with aught of life begetting; such a creed would have left us in deepest moral gloom. We have been benefitted by the labors of others, labors that were given freely with sacrifice—out of pity and love. What a perfect example did Jesus give the world on this; He did not lay down his life for his friends, friends who had loved him, but he did lay it down for his enemies, his bitter, his unrelenting enemies, his murderers. Over their mockery faces; over their bloody hands; above their horrid cries, hear Him say, "Father forgive them they know not what they do!" He comes to save the men who thirst for his blood, who spill it. There is a degree of pure love and real unselfishness which must indeed move us. Would we could feel it deep down in our hearts, and would it might pulsate out through our lives in every act!

The heart of the Christian must feel for the man of sin. He may be bitter against us, but we must love him. He may seek to destroy us, we must seek to save him.

The Return Stroke.

We are constantly reminded in the every day operations of nature around us that an equilibrium is always sought. If the waters of a stream are pent up in some way unnaturally they will accumulate until a certain point is reached, when they will burst their barriers and sometimes cause great destruction to life and property. These waters thus seek their proper and normal equilibrium. The same is true of the electrical fluid when electricity accumulates unnaturally in one section of space, it seeks a return to its normal equilibrium, which gives the "return stroke," or current. If it is positive in the cloud and negative on the earth under the cloud, the stroke is earthward. Sometime the stroke is upward from the ground along the trunk of the tree toward the sky, as when the earth is positive and the cloud negative. We think human society is subject more than most persons have thought to this same law of equilibrium. The history of the world shows us that mankind have generally borne with oppression, with much patience before lighting the torch of revolution. But at last the hour comes when the tightly wound spring will recoil, and often with terrible power.

We are experiencing something of this recoil just now. Society is getting a shock from the return stroke; these rumblings of thunder in the industrial world, indicate a restoration of equilibrium; things are going to be adjusted, and after the storm is over, the sky will be more serene and the social air more clear.

We have no fears about the outcome—law will be enforced over all mere mob rule, and quiet, and peace will be restored. But in the return stroke somebody may lose place and power, and most likely that is just what should happen. Money, like the waters and the electrical fluids, has been thrown out of a healthy level; it has been dammed up in certain quarters subject to the will of a few men or a few great corporations. The time has come for the restoration to a healthy equilibrium. We cannot see why a few railroad magnates should live like princes, receiving salaries ranging from $10,000 to $100,000 a year while the men in their employ, who day and night do the hard service, must be crushed down to the merest pittance on which to support themselves and families. We are experiencing the effects of a storm which will soon be over we hope, and which will leave things in the financial and business world healthier than they have been for several years.

See the advertisement of Central Tennessee College in another column.

Sunday School.

AUGUST 12, 1877.—PAUL AND SILAS IN PRISON.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"And he hath put a new song in my mouth, even praise unto our God; many shall see it and fear, and shall trust in the Lord."—Ps. 40: 3.

TOPIC.—God is able to Deliver.

(Condensed from National S. S. Teacher.)

UNBOUND (25, 26).—In such a place, and under such circumstances, cheerfulness was the last thing to be expected of the prisoners. They had been condemned without a hearing, beaten without mercy, and now had fallen into the hands of a brutal jailer, who because he had been charged to keep them safely, thrust them into "the inner prison," without food, without light, without caring for their wounds, and besides, subjected to the unnecessary torture of the stocks.

At midnight there penetrated through the wall the sound of singing. There could be no doubt from whose cell it came, for the singers were praising God. Their prayer was a song and their song a prayer. Unto his children God "giveth songs in the night." But their prayer-songs were interrupted—by the answer to them. An earthquake put a period to their singing.

UNBINDING (27-34).—The keeper of the prison was awakened by the earthquake shock instead of by the songs. If songs of praise will not arouse the impenitent, God has rougher ways at his command. He sprang to his feet, his first thought being one of fidelity to his post—to prevent his prisoners from escaping. Seeing the prison doors open, his rapid inference was that his prisoners had already fled. Without waiting to verify his conclusion, he drew his sword and would have killed himself. His life, as he supposed, was forfeited, because of the escape of his prisoners. He would not wait to endure an ignominious death at the hands of an executioner, but preferred what was then considered honorable, destruction by his own hand. Before the fatal blow could be struck, and while the sword was poised in air, came the arresting cry: "Do thyself no harm, for we are all here!" How did Paul know that the keeper intended suicide? It was midnight—the entrance to the "inner prison" was through the roof, and it is not probable that the jailer was near enough to this door to be in the line of his vision, supposing that he could see the things which were without. The inference very strongly is that the fact was supernaturally communicated to him. There is another notable fact connected with Paul's assurance to the jailer. It is that "we are all here." Paul speaks for more than Silas and himself. What had overcome the natural instinct of liberty, and prevented the other prisoners from making the best of this opportunity of escape? Plainly, nothing but those prayer-songs and their remarkable answer. They were held by these wonders spell-bound to the place. When God in so remarkable a way answered prayer, it was a place to fly to instead of one to flee from. The impression among the prisoners was so strong that the conclusion that some of them must have been that night converted is almost unavoidable.

The jailer then called for lights (plural, not singular) and sprang into the prison and came, trembling, and fell down before the feet of Paul and Silas. Why should he tremble? He is in no danger. The prætors can prefer no charges against him, for not a prisoner has escaped. But he has given up one fear only to experience one still greater. He trembles, for, for the first time, he realizes the presence of GOD. He recognizes these despised Jews, whom with insolent indignity and cruelty he cast into the inner prison, and whose feet he put in the stocks, as the ambassadors of the Most High. His fear was of no earthly magistrate, but of the great Judge of all. Him he was afraid of having irretrievably offended, and hence his cry of anguish: "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?"

When one is in such a frame of mind, he wants not a sermon, but a text—not a discourse on the whole gospel, but the whole gospel concentrated into one verse. And the last is just what Paul's reply is: "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house." In that the whole plan of salvation is presented. Faith in Christ is all that is required from the sinner for his salvation. Works are insisted upon, not as necessary to save him, but as evidence of the genuineness of his faith. And thy house. The promise was larger than the request. When God gives a blessing it is sure to be so large as to overflow, and, so cause others to share in it.

But after the text had found a lodgment, then Paul and Silas more fully unfolded the gospel. "They spake unto him the word of the Lord and to all that were in his house." The life, death, and resurrection of Christ were all fully explained. The fact that this was done "to all that were in his house" indicates that the members of his household were baptized on account of their own faith, and not merely on the strength of his.

With his new revelation came an entire revulsion of feeling toward Paul and Silas. To him they were no longer despised Jews, to be ignominiously treated. He behaved toward them with the greatest respect. He brought them out of the prison "the same hour." He tenderly washed their stripes. They in return baptized him and all his house. He washed away their pain—they washed away his sin; he washed away the clotted blood which had clung to their wounds—they washed his soul clean in the blood of Christ. He set meat before them—but not until they had fed him with the Bread of Life, of which, if a man shall eat, he shall never hunger. The keeper, by far, was the greater debtor. He was full of rejoicing—because, it will be noticed, of the new belief of himself and his house. What a change there was in the character of the jailer and his house. The brutal man had become tender and thoughtful for the welfare of those whom, before, he had been wont without scruple to outrage. The home which had been familiar with sighings and groans was now illuminated with the pure joy and peace of Calvary.

Map of the Seat of War Between Russia and Turkey.

The Queen and the Child.

Frederick the Great, king of Prussia, had a palace at Schon[illegible]. One day Queen Elizabeth, the wife of Frederick, was walking in the garden connected with this palace. Her gardener had a little niece named Gretchen with him in the garden. She was [illegible] to her uncle. Gretchen [illegible] of Berlin. Her [illegible], too. He [illegible], but he was a [illegible] and he had taught his [illegible] to know and love [illegible].

[illegible] queen talked with little [illegible] was so much pleased [illegible] simplicity, and her bright, [illegible] answers to the questions [illegible] she told her [illegible] to the palace the next day and make her a visit.

So Gretchen dressed herself very [illegible] to the palace at the [illegible] who knew [illegible] coming, and told [illegible] then at dinner, [illegible] pleased [illegible] ordered her to be [illegible]. Gretchen ran [illegible] to [illegible] kissed [illegible] on a chair [illegible] she could see at [illegible] which [illegible]. There was a [illegible] with the [illegible] and [illegible] ladies [illegible] [illegible] felt [illegible] it [illegible] at the [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] the table [illegible] not want the rich and beautiful things that were before her in that great palace.

A College Joke.

True Christian wisdom and presence of mind often turn the most embarrassing and ludicrous situation to good account. Certainly in all cases where a jest borders on irreverence the moral advantage is against the joker and on the side of the joker's victim.

Every college has its undergraduate wags, and among these there is generally some one chief genius. The leader in such fun in Asbury University, Indiana, six or seven years ago, was a young man whom we will call Harry Trask. He was an amiable fellow but thoughtless, and perpetually running over with merriment. Very few of the grotesque, practical jokes which came to light from time to time in the college, were contrived without his inspiration or assistance. There were enough others like him, however, to keep his secret and divide suspicion.

One morning in chapel, Dr. Bowman (the president) had taken his place on the platform as usual, with the other members of the faculty, to open the day with religious services. As he lifted the lid of the desk to take out the Bible, a rat leaped from under it directly into the doctor's bosom. Of course a scene ensued entirely out of keeping with the place and occasion, but it was all over in a moment. The rat ran under the feet of the students, causing laughter and much confusion, and when order was restored, the doctor, with no appearance of ruffled temper, went on with the services.

That the affair which had caused such unseemly interruption was not an accident he well knew, though he could not tell who was responsible for it. He made no comment, but read a chapter specially chosen for its warning against irreverence and then he prayed.

He prayed for the perpetrator of the trick, whoever he was, that he might be brought to a better mind, [illegible] be made to see the wickedness of [illegible] a place of divine worship and learn to honor and love the service of God instead of de[illegible] it.

[illegible] touching this matter [illegible] brief, and only one among [illegible] but it was a most earnest [illegible] one, with happily [illegible], and evidently indi[illegible] sincerity of a great and [illegible]

[illegible] too. Not very [illegible] student most [illegible] joke with the chapel Bible was touched by God's Spirit, and soon after openly professed love for his Savior. It was no fault of his if the president still remained ignorant as to the way by which the rat was imprisoned in his reading desk. But report says it was not till quite recently, when called to a distance to dedicate a new meeting-house, that the good doctor, better known as Bishop Bowman, discovered in the pastor of the church there the very youngster who planned the reckless fun, and for whom he so fervently and kindly prayed.—Youth's Companion.

The Source of Peace.

People who study their troubles all the time will always be troubled. Looking at the miseries, they grow worse and worse, and in proportion as pains are noticed and nursed will they increase and deepen. If we would have peace, we must look away from ouselves to Jesus, and casting all our care upon Him, we will feel the sting of our misfortunes to disappear.

"The Sure Witness."

"The nineteenth century is the age of novels," remarks a literary historian,—he might have added with equal truth, "and novel impositions." Studied politeness has been passed off on us for native refinement, the forms of devotion for its essence, and speculation for science, until askance at every new person or thing, and to an assertion of merit, invariably exclaim, "Prove it!" In brief, Satan has made himself so omnipresent, that we look for his cloven foot everywhere—even in a bottle of medicine. Imagine a lady, having a complexion so sallow that you would deny her claims to the Caucasian type if her features did not conform to it, purchasing her first bottle of the Golden Medical Discovery. The one dollar is paid in the very identical manner in which Mr. Taylor might be expected to purchase a lottery ticket after his experience with "No. 104, 163," with this difference, his doubt would be the result of personal experience, while hers would be founded on what a certain practitioner (who has been a whole year trying to correct her refractory liver) has said concerning it. At home, she examines the bottle half suspiciously, tastes of its contents carefully, takes the prescribed dose more carefully, and then proceeds to watch the result with as much anxiety as a practitioner would count the pulse-beats of a dying man. She takes another dose, and another, and shows the bottle to her friends, telling them she "feels better." Her skin loses its bilious tint, her eyes regain their lustre, her accustomed energy returns, and the fact that she purchases another bottle is a sure witness that she has found the Golden Medical Discovery to be a reliable remedy for the disease indicated. The lady wisely resolves that in future her estimate of any medicine will be based upon a personal knowledge of its effects, and not upon what some practitioner (who always makes long bills rhyme with pills) may say of it. Dr. Pierce is in receipt of letters from hundreds of the largest wholesale and retail druggists in the United States stating that at the present time there is a greater demand for the Golden Medical Discovery and Purgative Pellets than ever before. In affections of the liver and blood they are unsurpassed.

We call attention to the advertisement of the Virginia Female Institute, of Staunton, Va. The thirty-third annual session will commence September 12th. Catalogues furnished on application to the Rector, Rev. R. H. Phillips.

Quarterly Meetings.

Okolona (Miss.,) District.

THIRD ROUND.

Okolona, August 18-19; Corinth, August 4-5; Tupelo, August 11-12; Spring Valley and Union Grove, August 25-26; Houston, September 1-2; West Point, September 8-9; Tampico, September 10-11; Columbus and Circuit, September 15-16; Athens, September 17-18; Spring Valley and Union Grove, September 22-23; Big Black, September 24-25; Pontotoc, September 29-30; Union Grove, October 6-7; Tibbe, October 13-14; Calhoun, October 20-21; Aberdeen, October 27-28; Beuna Vista, October 26.

The Okolona District Conference, will meet at Aberdeen, October 29. All the Traveling and Local Preachers, Exhorters, District Stewards and Sunday School Superintendents, are requested to be present.

D. McLACHLAN, P. E.

San Antonio (Tex.,) District.

Colombus, August 4 and 5; Columbus circuit, August 4 and 5; Alleyton, August 10 and 12; Eagle Lake, August 14 and 15; San Antonio, August 18 and 19; Henry, August 25 and 26; Texana, September 1 and 2; Victoria circuit, September 8 and 9; Mission Valley, September 15 and 16; Indianola, September 29 and 30; Speaksville, September 29 and 30; Victoria, October 6 and 7; Peach Creek, October 6 and 7; Corpus Christi, October 6 and 7; Hondo, October 6 and 7; Floresville, October 6 and 7; Southerland Springs, October 6 and 7; Nockernut, October 6 and 7; Lavernia, October 6 and 7; Belmont, October 6 and 7; Riddleville, October 6 and 7; Oakland, October 6 and 7; Halletsville, October 6 and 7.

D. GREGORY, P. E.

Murfreesboro (Tenn.,) Dist.

FOURTH ROUND.

Stone River, 4 and 5; Murfreesboro Circuit, August 9 and 10; Murfreesboro, August 11 and 12; Alexandria, August 15 and 16; Carthage, August 18 and 19; Lebanon, August 25 and 26; North Lebanon, August 29 and 30; Hartsville, September 1 and 2; Gallatin, September 1 and 2; Mitchellsville, September 8 and 9; Springfield, September 15 and 16; Dickson, September 22 and 23; Nashville Circuit, September 26 and 27; Clark Chapel 29 and 30.

C. PICKETT, P. E.

Memphis (Tenn.,) Dist.

FOURTH ROUND.

Memphis, July 7; Adamsville, July 14 Shiloh, July 16; White Sulphur, July 18; Saltillo July 21; Lexington July 25; Decaturville, July 28; Camden, August 1; Clarksburg, August 4; Benton, August 8; Weakley, August 11; Alamo, August 15; Lake, August 18; Carroll and Huntingdon, August 25; Dickson, September 1; Dickson circuit, September 5; Buffalo, September 8; Wayne, September 12; Indian Creek, September 15; Lawrenceburg, September 22.

The Memphis district Sunday-school Extension Society, composed of the members of the district conference, will hold its second session at White Sulphur, Hardin county, July 17th to 20th. Opening service, 17th, at 8 o'clock p. m.

The district conference will meet at Shoat's Creek, Giles county, September 26th. Opening sermon at 7 o'clock p. m., by Rev. E. N. Williams.

J. L. CHANDLER, P. E.

Houston, (Texas) District.

THIRD ROUND.

Richmond and Forest Chapel, July 1-2; Church Houston, July 7-8; Edwards Chapel, July 9-10; Harrisburg and West Point, July 14-15; Columbia and Brazoria, July 21-22; 1st Church Houston, August; 4-5; Spring Creek, 25-26; East Church Tabernacle, September 1-2; Galveston, Staffords, September 8-9; Cypress, September, 15-16; Oyster Creek, September 22-23.

W. L. MOLLOY, P. E.

Marshall (Tex.) District.

THIRD ROUND.

Coffeeville, June 30 July 1; Marion, July 7-8 Marshall, July 14-15; Jefferson, Circuit July 21-22; Jefferson, July 28-29; Hickory Grove, July 28-29; Clarksville, August 4-5th; Union, August 4-5; Paris July 11th-12; Quitman, Aug. 18-19; Vanzant, Aug. 25-26; Greenville, Sept. 1st. 2nd; Sulphur Springs, Sept. 8-9th; Mt. Pleasant, Sept. 15-16.

F. C. MOORE, P. E.

Holly Springs (Miss.) District.

SECOND ROUND.

Mt. Pleasant, July 7-8; Kosciusko, July 14-15; French Camp, July 16-17; Greensboro, July 17-19, Winona and Vaiden 21-22; Duck Hill, July 26-27; Granada, July 28-29; Geenada Circuit, July 23-29; Oxford, Aug. 4-5; New Albany, Aug. 8-9; Ripley, Aug. Hickory Flat, Aug. 15; Holly Springs Aug. 18-19; Byhalia, Aug. 21-22; Chulahoma, Aug. 24; Abbeville, Aug. 25-26; Ellas, Aug. 30 and Sept 1st. First District Conference for Holly Springs District will meet on the 14th day of June, at Grenada; all the brethren are requested to be present.

J. G. JOHNSON, P. E.

Greenwood (Miss.) District.

Second Round.

Wesley Chapel, 9 and 10th of June; Silver Creek, 16th and 17th of June; Yazoo City, 23rd and 24th of June; Piney Grove, 30th of June and 1st of July; Deasonville, 7th and 8th of July; Pickens, 14 and 15 of July; Lexington, 21st and 22d of July; Goodman, 28th and 29th of July; Jones Chapel, 4th and 5th of August; McNutt, 11th and 12th of August; Caney Creek, 18th and 19th of August; New Midway, 25th and 26th of August; Hernando, 1st and 2d of September; Panola, 8th and 9th of September; Cold Water, 15th and 16th of September; Walnut City, 22nd and 23d of Sept; Shiloh 26th and 30th Sept.

J. W. DUNN, P. E.

Meridian (Miss.) District.

Rome, June 23-24; Ex-Prairie, June 30 and July 1; Macon, July 7-8; Shuqualak, July 11-12; DeKalb, July 14-15; Lauderdale July 21-22; Daleville, July 24-25; Meridian 28-29; Meridian Circuit August 4-5; Quitman August 11-12; Shubuta Circuit, August 15-16; State Line, Aug. 18-19; Shubuta, August 21-22; Enterprise Circuit, Aug. 25-26; Enterprise, Aug. 28-29.

M. ADAMS, P. E.

San Antonio (Tex.) District.

Sutherland Springs, June 23-24; Nockernut, July 1; Cibolo, July 4 and 5; Riddleville, July 4 and 5; Lavernia, 7 and 8; Goliad Circuit, July 11 and 12; Belmont, July 14 and 15; Refugio, July 18 and 19; Wrightsboro, July 21 and 22; Goliad, July 28 and 29.

D. GREGORY, P. E.

Virginia Female Institute,

STAUNTON, VIRGINIA,

The 33rd annual session of this institution will commence Sept. 12, 1877. Buildings spacious, heated by steam and lighted by gas. Hot and cold water on the several floors. Grounds extensive. Large corps of experienced teachers. Patronage represents 19 States. Methodist church within three minutes' walk. For catalogue address REV. R. H. PHILLIPS, Rector.

Staunton Female Seminary.

STAUNTON, VIRGINIA.

Rev. J. I. Miller, A. M., Principal, with a full corps of teachers, including Mrs. Gen. J. E. B. Stuart. School not sectarian. Four denominations represented in the faculty. Board and home comforts the best. Positively no extravagance in dress allowed. Terms liberal. Session opens Sept. 6th, 1877. Send for catalogue to the Principal. [Jy26-4t.

Heathen Woman's Friend.

24 PAGES MONTHLY.
PRICE 50 CENTS.

Specimen Copies sent Gratuitously.

MRS. L. H. DAGGETT, Agent.
36 Bromfield street, Boston, Mass.

july19-tf

ROANOKE COLLEGE, SALEM, VA.

Next session begins September 5th, 1877. Collegiate, elective and preparatory, courses. Unsurpassed location. Mountain climate. Moral community. Five Churches in town. Expenses for 9½ months, including tuition, board, etc., from $160 to $240. Students from fifteen States, Indian Territory, and Mexico. Patronage constantly increasing. For catalogues, etc., address

jy12-4t] SECRETARY OF FACULTY.

NEW ANTHEM BOOK, JUST PUBLISHED

Chapel Anthems

By Dr. J. B. Herbert, assisted by the best writers of the day. Supplies a long felt need for a collection of new, short, and practical Anthems for Choirs, Conventions, Singing Classes, etc. Sample copy mailed on receipt of retail price, $1 25. Liberal discount on quantities.

Heavenward! Is the leading new book of Sunday-school Songs, By Jas. R. Murray, P. P. Bliss and others, and the only new book containing Mr. Bliss' best songs. Send 25 cts. for sample copy, in paper covers. Price in boards, 35 cents, or $30 00 per hundred.

Songs of Faith New Gospel Hymns and Sacred Songs by the best writers including Moody & Sankey's famous songs. The latest and best book for Revival, Praise or Camp Meetings. Price, words and music, 35 cts. $30 per 100. WORDS ONLY, 5cts. $5 00 per hundred.

SONGS OF P. P. BLISS

A collection of about forty of the best and most popular Songs, Duets, Quartets etc., secular and sacred, by the late P. P. Bliss. Most of the songs in this little volume can be found in no other book. Contains also a fine portrait of P. P. Bliss and sketch of his life. Edited by James R. Murray. PRICE, tinted paper, neatly bound in boards, 30 cts., in cloth, red edges, 50 cts., in cloth, full gilt, 75 cts. Sold by most book and music dealers, or mailed on receipt of price.

☞ Catalogue of Sheet Music and Music Books sent FREE.

S. BRAINARD'S SONS, Publishers, Cleveland, O.

Hospital College of Medicine.

(The clinical School of the West.)

Med. Dept. of Central Univ., Louisville, Ky.

Distinctive features: A thorough didactic course, unsurpassed clinical facilities, eighteen clinics per week, the student being daily required to examine and prescribe, a high standard of graduation, both a didactic and a practical clinical examination being required.

For catalogues and information concerning special advantages address

DR. W. H. BOLLING, DEAN,
Cor. Third and Jefferson Sts., Louisville, Ky.

SOUTHWESTERN AGENCY

FOR

School and College Text Books.

Office No. 80 CAMP STREET (up stairs).

Below we submit the MODEL SERIES of books (so conceded by the leading educators of this country) for use in PRIMARY, INTERMEDIATE and GRAMMAR schools. To insure their adoption by the progressive teacher we have only to ask a careful comparison with books of a like grade, a critical examination and a thorough, practical test in the class-room:

	Prices.
Harper's Introductory Geography	60
Harper's School Geography	$1 25
" United States First Reader	15
" " " Second "	28
" " " Third "	37
" " " Fourth "	56
" " " Fifth "	75
" " " Sixth "	90
Wilson's Primary Speller	15
" Larger "	30
" New "	24
Lamson's Penmanship, per dozen	1 08
French's First Lessons in Numbers	25
" Elementary Arithmetic	37
" Mental Arithmetic	36
" Common School Arithmetic	70
Swinton's Language Primer	30
" Language Lessons	37
" School Composition	37
" Progressive Grammar	55

Catalogues, circulars, and testimonials sent on applications. Correspondence solicited and will receive prompt attention, when addressed

W. P. ROGERS & W. L. JARVIS, Agents for the introduction of Harper & Brother' Educational Works; New Orleans, La.; Lock Box 134.

Texas Lands.

Best Investment in the Nation!

640 acres rich prairie loam, producing cotton, grains, fruit and vegetables, and adapted to stock, lying in the high and healthful latitude of Northwestern Texas for the nominal sum of $320.

Title Patent, direct and perfect. Taxes low. Worth several times the cost. Now is your time to plant a small sum fruitfully. No fraud. All work personally supervised. Handled in the interest of education in Texas. Full particulars furnished on application, (with stamps).

References: Rev. Wm. Brush, D.D., P. E. Austin District, Austin, Texas; First National Bank, Dallas, Texas; State Savings Bank, Dallas, Texas, or editor of this paper. Address

REV. L. H. CARHART,
West Texas Conference.

☞ Box 377, Dallas, Texas. [a19-tf

"The principle of combining English and American writers in a common literary enterprise, merits all encouragement."—J. Anthony Froude.

THE

INTERNATIONAL REVIEW,

A NEW YORK AND LONDON REVIEW.

EMINENT CONTRIBUTORS ON BOTH SIDES OF THE ATLANTIC. (No articles at second hand. All articles original.)

CONTENTS.—MAY-JUNE—NOW READY.

The New Administration.
The Life Insurance Question. Carlton T. Lewis.
Disestablishment of the Church of England, Dr. James H. Rigg, London.
The Philadelphia Exhibition.—Part I. [illegible] and Administration, Francis A. Chief of the Bureau of Awards.
Tennyson.—A Criticism. Bayard Taylor.
Our Foreign Service. Hon. John Jay.
American and European Literature, Philip Gilbert Hamerton.
Contemporary Events.

Price, Single Number, $1. For six months $3. Annual subscription (6 numbers) $5.

New York: A. S. BARNES & CO.,
apr27-10t] Publishers.

NEW ENG. CONSERVATORY of MUSIC.

16,000 pupils since 1875, 75 eminent instructors. 115 hours instruction for $15. Musical, Literary and Art courses. 4 terms a year. Address E. TOURJEE, Music Hall, Boston, Mass. [july 19-[illegible]

PAN-HANDLE
AND PENNSYLVANIA
Railroad Route.

The Favorite Trunk Line.

Only one change of cars to New York, and that at 7:30 in the morning, at Cincinnati.

No omnibus transfers on any part of the line.

Best equipped and shortest route to all the eastern cities.

Best Route to Long Branch, Caps May, Atlantic City, New Port, and all the Atlantic sea-coast watering places.

Best route to Cresson, Altoona, the celebrated Bedford Springs, and all the noted mountain retreats of the Alleghany range; and also the best route to Bethlehem on the Lehigh river, and all the noted resorts in the Anthracite coal regions of Pennsylvania.

This route is supplied with all the modern improvements for speed, safety, and comfort; and continuous trains run without stoppages for fuel or water, as the water is supplied while the trains are in motion.

Palace and Drawing Room coaches on all trains.

Double tracked, stone balasted, free from dust, and steel rails laid according to scientific principles, to avoid jarring which is the cause of annoyance to many.

All trains, which have availed themselves of the superior efforts to be found on the old Pennsylvania Railroad, Middle and Pensylvania, unbesetting for families and tourists, it is unsurpassed while for business men who value safety and promptness it is far above all of all opposition.

The refreshment saloons and eating houses are all first-class and all have an enviable reputation for their cuisine—the tables being supplied with the best that the markets of Ohio and Pennsylvania afford.

Be sure and ask for tickets via Louisville Cincinnati and the Pan Handle Route.

W. L. O'BRIEN,
Gen. Pas'r and Ticket Agent, Columbus, Ohio.
SIDNEY B. JONES,
General N. W. Agent, Cincinnati, Ohio.
W. M. WALLINGTON,
Gen. Southern Agent, New Orleans, La.
[June14-77-tf

FOUR MONTHS OF
GOOD HEALTH
FOR 25 CENTS.

ANY PERSON WHO WILL BUY A BOX OF Parson's Purgative PILL

and will take one (1) each night for four (4) nights, and will do this every third (3d) week during the months of June, July, August and September, will not be troubled with Fever and Ague, nor Malarious Fever, nor any of the diseases resulting from intermittent poison, common to Missouri, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas. If Parson's Purgative Pills cannot be obtained of your druggist, send 25 cts. to the proprietor, and the pills shall be sent, post paid, by return mail. Physicians supplied at $3.50 per thousand in bulk. As these pills save more than half price for doctors bills, by the thousand, cash must accompany the order. The Receipe will be sent to any physician on application. Parson's Pills by mail prepaid on receipt of price, at $2 per dozen, or assorted at $2 per dozen, or assorted dozens at $1 35, cash with order.

WHOLESALE AGENTS.

Logan Bros., ... St. Louis, Mo.
W. Jennings Co., ... Memphis Tenn.
Hery & Co ..... New Orleans, La.
Barnes & Co. ..... Little Rock, Ark.
O. Thompson & Co ..... Galveston, Tex.
ADDRESS ALL ORDERS TO
I. S. JOHNSON & CO.
[1y] Bangor, Maine, Proprietors.

THE Co. LIMITED
Orleans, La.

popuused Pressman
ly, the
Co., Limited, sole & Biddle, have, in now on hand,
sizes, sufficient
for Cotton Ties, coming season,
generally ble ARROW per cent.
complete, being of the plain hoop and widely all with Dealers, at the above
Delivery
ments
Co.,
La.

SON,
Blank
Pressman

D. HEATH. W. R. PIPPEY, M. LARA.
HEATH, PIPPEY & LARA,
90 ..... CAMP STREET 90
NEW ORLEANS.
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
UPHOLSTERERS MATERIALS,
Wall Paper,
Window Shades, Cornices, and
CURTAIN GOODS.
FIXTURES, FRAMES,
MIRRORS,
LOCKS, WIRE-CLOTH,
WINDOW & DOOR SCREENS
DONE TO ORDER.
14-1y

CENTRAL TENNESSEE COLLEGE,
Nashville, Tennessee.

This Institution, supported by the Freedman's Aid Society of the M. E. Church, is open for all. The following departments are now organized: Academic, Normal, Scientific, Preparatory, Collegiate, Theological, Law and Medicine.

The Academic furnishes a thorough business education, or prepares for the study of the professions.

The Normal, qualifies for teaching. The demand for thorough teachers is so great that special efforts are made to meet the requirements of young men and women who expect to teach.

The Scientific is the College course omitting Latin and Greek.

The Preparatory and College courses embrace the studies usually required for the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

The Law School just organized is to fit students to practice in any of our Courts.

The Meharry Medical School opens its second session October 1st, and continues twenty weeks. A full course of study, in the various branches of medicine, and a satisfactory examination, is required in order to graduation.

The Theological School is open to all the candidates for the ministry of any denomination, who come recommended by the church to which they belong, or bring with them a license to preach or exhort. Students in this department are not required to pay tuition, and their other expenses will be made as low as practicable. The expenses in this department need not exceed $7 50 or $8 00 per month. Students are required to bring satisfactory evidence of good character.

EXPENSES:

Tuition, Room Rent and Board per month of 4 weeks	$ 8 00
Lights, Fuel and Washing " " " ..... $1 25 to	2 00
Music, with use of Piano or Organ, per month	3 00
Expenses for year of nine months, including books and Christmas Vacation, from ..... $90 00 to $100 00
Medical School Tuition	30 00
Matriculation Fee	5 00
Graduation Fee	10 00
Law School Tuition, per year	30 00

The next session of College and Law School opens Sept. 5th, 1877. The Medical School opens Oct. 1st, 1877, and closes Feb. 22d, 1878. College year closes May 16th, 1878.

For further information address,

REV. J. BRADEN, Nashville, Tenn.

F. F. HANSELL,
JAS. A. GRESHAM, Manager.
BOOK-SELLERS, PRINTERS,
AND STATIONERS.
No. 30 CAMP STREET.

Would respectfully announce to the readers of the ADVOCATE their facilities for doing all kinds of Printing and Job Work for PARTIES,
BALLS,
and BUSINESS PURPOSES.

Methodist Hymn Books, Disciplines and Bibles

Will be furnished at Northern Prices.

FAMILY BIBLES,

from $2 50 to $10 00. Orders from the country will receive prompt attention, and all orders filled as low as if brought in person.

Address, as above,

F. F. HANSELL,
30 Camp street, New Orleans, La.
Box 84. [je14-77-3m.]

A. P. HARRINGTON,
No. 118 Canal Street,
Now Orleans, - - - - - - La.
Dealer in
LAW, MEDICAL, SCHOOL, RELIGIOUS, AGRICULTURAL AND MISCELLANEOUS
BOOKS
Stationery, Gold Pens and Pencils.

Pocket Books, Card Cases, Pocket Knives, Scrap Books, Chromos, Photograph Albums, Stereoscopes, Maps, Globes, Writing Desks, Etc.

PRINTING, RULING and BINDING.

Subscriptions taken for Newspapers and Magazines, Payable in advance.

Country Orders Solicited.
feb10-77-1y

THE
Houston and Texas Central Railroad,

Operating over 500 miles of superior road, runs North and South through the

FINEST AGRICULTURAL and GRAZING DISTRICTS in TEXAS

And offers the most desirable sites for location to parties immigrating to that great State. The

NORTHWESTERN BRANCH

Of this road, which is now being pushed forward beyond Waco, will pierce the Great Mineral region of

NORTHWESTERN TEXAS.

For further information, address
J. E. COFFIN, S. P. A., Chattanooga, Tenn.
C. R. WHITNEY & CO., New Orleans, La.
J. WALDO, G. P. A., or J. DURAND, Gen'l Superintendent, Houston, Texas. [mar22-77-1y

IMPROVED
CABINET ORGANS.
EXCELLING WHAT HAS PREVIOUSLY BEEN ACCOMPLISHED IN POWER, PURITY AND DELICACY OF TONES.

THE LIST CABINET ORGAN

(Style No. 501.—Five Octave; Seven Sets of Reeds of Two and a Half Octaves each, and One Set of One Octave; Fifteen Stops; New Scale of Reed-Board, Reeds and Actions, with Ventrillo Chest and other Improvements, patented 1876-7.

Base.—Contra Basso, 16 ft.; English Horn, 8 ft.; Viola, 4 ft.; Viola Dolce, 4 ft.; Sub-Base, 16 ft. Treble.—Corno, 16 ft.; Melodia, 8 ft.; Piccolo, 4 ft.; Seraphone, 8 ft.; Voix Celeste, 8 ft. Throughout.—Full Organ, (knee stop,) Vox Humana, Octave Coupler, (coupling up,) Knee Swell, I. Forte, II. Forte.

The Mason & Hamlin Organ Co., have the pleasure of announcing that specimens of this fine Organ, (fac similes in their musical part of one furnished Dr. Franz Liszt,) are now ready, and may be seen at their Warerooms and Principal Agencies. The origin of this improved Organ, and of its name, is as follows:

Having occasion to make an organ expressly for the very celebrated Dr. Franz Liszt, in which full sonorous power was especially desired, as well as such delicacy and purity of tone as could afford satisfaction to so critical a judgment as that of th ogreat maestro, we took the opportunity to carry out and introduce improvements which had been first presented in our Organs, at the U. S. Centennial Exhibition, with others which had long been in progress. The result was more than satisfactory to ourselves; the improvement greater than we had ventured to expect. In our own warerooms in Boston and New York the new Instrument was seen and tested by a number of the best musicians in the county, who pronounced it a material advance upon all that had before been accomplished. In the rooms of the Agent for the sale of our Organs in Hannover, Germany, it was also greatly admired. The Hannover Courier declared it to be "at the very height of development of instruments of the class," evincing "extraordinary progress." After its receipt and trial, Dr. Franz Liszt wrote to the Agent: "The beautiful organ of Mason & Hamlin Organ Company of Boston receives no less praise here than in Hanover. It fully justifies the remarkable, well-founded, and widespread renown of these superb instruments." It was immediately put in use in his orchestra.

We are confirmed in our judgment then, that the tones of this new Organ are the finest that have ever been produced from reeds, not because of mere oddity of effect, but from their true diapason-like quality and fulness, and from their excellent power and pervading and sustaining effect; and that, as a whole, it is, in proportion to its size and extent, much in advance of anything we have before been able to produce.

Circulars with full particulars, also Catalogues illustrating and describing all the styles of the celebrated MASON & HAMLIN CABINET ORGANS, which have taken highest honors at all the World's Exhibitions of recent years, are the only American Organs which have ever taken highest award at any such, sent free.

MASON & HAMLIN Organ Co.
154 Tremont St., Boston; 25 Union Sq., N. Y.
250, and 252 Wabash Avenue, Chicago.

Madame FOY'S
Corset Skirt Supporter
Increases in popularity every year.
And for HEALTH, COMFORT and STYLE is acknowledged the BEST ARTICLE of the kind ever made. For sale by all leading jobbers and retailers. Beware of imitations and infringements.
MANUFACTURED SOLELY BY
FOY & HARMON,
ml-13t] New Haven, Conn.

$66 a week in your own town. Term and outfit free. H. Hallet & Co.
Dec 21 76 1y] Portland, Maine.

Victor Cane Mill
And
COOK EVAPORATOR
The BEST, and only standard machines.
FIRST PREMIUM AT 125 STATE FAIRS.
Grand Medal at Centennial Exhibition.
Over 44,000 sold.
Safe, Reliable, Economical.
Cane Growers can't afford to risk Crops With light work, unfinished mills, liable to break in the midst of the season. They can't afford to waste crops with mills that do not press out all the juice, or evaporators that make syrup and sugar unfit for market, and too little in proportion to the labor and fuel they require. Stymyer Manufacturing Co., Cincinnati, O. Steam Engines, Threshers, Bells. Circulars sent free.

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY.
Established in 1837.
Superior Bells of Copper and Tin, mounted with the best Rotary Hangings, for Churches, Schools, Farms, Factories, Court Houses, Fire Alarms, Tower Clocks, Chimes, etc. Fully Warranted.
Illustrated Catalogue sent Free.
VANDUZEN & TIFT,
102 and 104 East Second St., Cincinnati.
Jan 30 76 1f

LADIES' Elegant Imitation CORAL SET, Brooches and Pendant Drops, Sent Postpaid to any Reader of this Paper for 25 cents. Three Sets for 50 cents. In Currency or Stamps.
L. A. THOMSON,
Clinton Place, New York

Lungs and Throat.

Inhalation of common air in Incipient Consumption will cure. Dr. J. M. Howe, of Passaic, N. J., sends his Tube, with full directions, post free for $3 50. Send for iroulars. may2tf.

10,000 COPIES SOLD IN EIGHT WEEKS.
THE LATEST,
FRESHEST,
and MOST COMPLETE
OF ALL THE MOODY LITERATURE.

FIVE BOOKS IN ONE.

MOODY: His Words, Work and Workers.

EDITED BY REV. W. H. DANIELS, M. A.

With an Introduction by Rev. Chas. H. Fowler, DD., LL.D.

Of the many volumes called out by the wonderful career of Messrs. MOODY AND SANKEY, all have hitherto been more or less fragmentary, and without systematic arrangement. In the above work the design has been to bring within the compass of a single volume of generous size

THE MAN HIMSELF: A full and Systematic Presentation of his Bible Doctrines: An account of his most prominent CO-WORKERS: and a chapter on that most marvelous movement in modern evangelism, THE GOSPEL TEMPERANCE REVIVAL.

In order to make the volume fresh and complete, Mr. Daniels, who edits this work, has made a visit to Boston, to learn, by personal observation, as he has done in the case of the Moody and Sankey revivals in other great cities on both sides of the Atlantic, the progress of the revival work there.

This volume contains 552 pages, crown octavo, including twelve full-page illustrations; is elegantly printed on fine paper; is handsomely bound; and is not only a book of the widest and most permanent interest and value of any yet published in this line, but is also the

CHEAPEST FOR ITS PRICE.

Full Cloth, Gilt Stamp	$2 00
Half Morocco, Marble Edge	$2 75

AGENTS WANTED EVERYWHERE.

The publishers are appointing from fifteen to twenty agents daily, which is the very best evidence of the fact that the book meets the popular want. Many who are canvassing for other similar works are dropping them and taking this.

MINISTERS, STUDENTS, TEACHERS, LADIES,

And other intelligent persons, are wanted to canvass for this work. It will be SOLD ONLY BY SUBSCRIPTION.

READ HOW IT SELLS.

Rev. J. S. Wickline, one of our Agents, writes, under date of June 12, as follows: "Messrs. Nelson & Phillips: I sold twenty-four books in two days; showed the book to twenty-five persons, and took twenty-four subscribers."

No other book in the market, now being sold by subscription, is selling so fast.

It is preeminently the best book on Mr. Moody and his Work that has yet appeared.

Send postal card for full description, circulars, and terms to

NELSON & PHILLIPS,
Lock Box B., New Orleans.

P. S.—Where we have no Agents, the book will be sent, postage prepaid, on receipt of retail price.

Appearance of a line of Type; to read, hold before a looking-glass.

FOR 10 CENTS and a 5 cent stamp for postage, we will send for one year, our handsome new 8-page paper, THE Model Printer's Guide
and also one copy of our superbly illustrated, 100 page Printer's Instruction and Specimen Book, entitled
How to Print
worth of itself ten times the whole cost. Everybody delighted. Circulation already 21,000. Send on at once. J. W. DAUBHADAY & Co., Publishers, 723 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia. Also manufacturers of the Celebrated
Model Printing Press
the best for all kinds of fine Card work and Business printing. The greatest invention of the age. In use in every civilized country in the world. Nine styles. Latest improvements. Price, from $5.00 up. The Model Press is now giving employment to thousands of persons, and is the means of enormous saving to Business men everywhere. Full particulars in "How to Print."

PER QUARTER FOR TEN QUARTERS.
MASON & HAMLIN CABINET ORGANS.
HIGHEST AWARDS AT FOUR GREAT
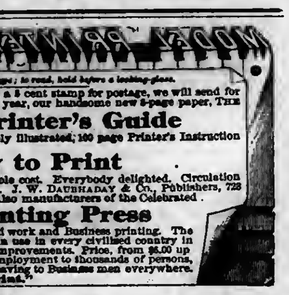
WORLD'S EXPOSITIONS
Paris, 1867; Vienna, 1873; Santiago, 1875;
PHILADELPHIA, 1876.
ONLY ORGANS ASSIGNED FIRST RANK AT CENTENNIAL.
Great variety of styles at prices which would be impossible for work of such excellence without unequaled facilities for manufacture.
EXAMPLES OF NET CASH PRICES:
Five octave double reed organ, with tremulant, $100
Five octave organ, nine stops, with voix celeste, $114
Sold also for monthly or quarterly payments, or rented until cost pays. A superior organ may now be purchased by the easy payment of $7.50 per quarter for ten quarters. Catalogues free.
MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN CO.
154 Tremont St. BOSTON. 25 Union Sq. NEW YORK. 250 Wabash Av CHICAGO.
june14-77-1y

BLYMYER MANUFACTURING CO'S BELLS.
CATALOGUE SENT FREE. BLYMYER MANUFACTURING CO., Cincinnati, O.
sept28-'76-1y

$12 a day at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. True & Co.,
Dec 1 76 1y] Augusta, Maine.



AYER & SON'S MANUAL For Advertisers
A complete guide to advertisers. New Haven Journal.—A necessity to all who advertise. Louisville Commercial.—The most complete and reliable work of the kind. Pittsburg Gazette.—Sent free to all who advertise.
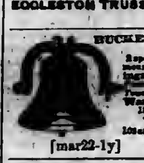
N. W. AYER & SON AGENTS, TIMES BUILDING, PHILADELPHIA.
Get our Estimate before making any advertising contracts. Our business is large. Facilities unsurpassed. Prices the lowest. Terms the best.

THIS NEW
ELASTIC TRUSS
Has a Pad differing from all others, in cup-shape, with Self-Adjusting Ball in center, adapts itself to all positions of the body, while the ball in the cup prevents back the intestines just as a person would with the finger. With light pressure the hernia is held securely day and night, and a radical cure certain. It is easy, durable and cheap. Sent by mail. Circulars free.
ECCLESTON TRUSS CO., Marshall, Mich.
Mar28-77-eow13t



BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY.
Established in 1837.
Superior Bells of Copper and Tin, mounted with the best Rotary Hangings, for Churches, Schools, Farms, Factories, Court Houses, Fire Alarms, Tower Clocks, Chimes, etc. Fully Warranted.
Illustrated Catalogue sent Free.
VANDUZEN & TIFT,
102 and 104 East Second St., Cincinnati.
[mar22-1y]

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine. [Dec 21 76 1y

THE
SINGER AGAIN TO THE FRONT!
GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICES
—OF THE—
WORLD-RENOWNED
Singer Family Sewing Machine!

THE SINGER MANUFACTURING COMPANY, ever awake to the interests of the public, have determined to PUT THE PRICE OF THEIR MACHINES within the reach of every man, woman and child in the land.

THE GENUINE SINGER SEWING MACHINE IS NOW OFFERED AT PRICES BELOW THE BOGUS ONES, OR ANY OTHER.

The fact that the only Sewing Machine which unscrupulous men have ever attempted to imitate, is the Singer, is sufficient evidence of its superiority over all others. There is no longer any excuse for buying any of the cheap machines hawked about the country, with no claim for patronage but their cheapness.

THE SINGER MANUFACTURING COMPANY,
S. E. RUNDLE, Agent.
may24-6m] No. 91 Canal Street, New Orleans, La.

WHEELER & WILSON
STILL AHEAD!
PRICES GREATLY REDUCED.

The Acknowledged Family Favorite.

NO NOISY COGS, AND NO RATTLING SHUTTLES.

Ease of manipulation, simplicity of construction, and rapidity of motion, have always placed the

Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine

Above all its competitors. The WHEELER & WILSON Manufacturing Company have determined not to be outdone by the manufacturers of inferior sewing machines.

Get a First-Class Machine at astonishingly low prices.

$40 to $75 will buy a New Improved Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine, at Liberal Discount for Cash.

Send for Circulars and Price List.

2,000,000 in Daily Use,
AND STILL THE FAMILY FAVORITE.
WHEELER & WILSON MAN'F CO.,
M. A. PECK, GEN'L AGENT,
June 14-76. 4m.] 149 Canal Street, New Orleans, La.

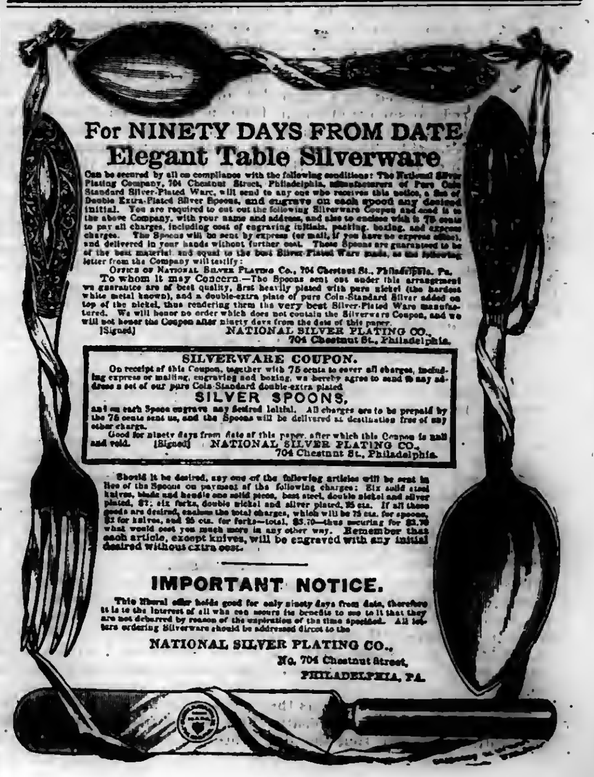
PHILIP WERLEIN,
Nos. 78--90 Baonne Street,
NEW ORLEANS. - - - LA.

LARGEST Piano House in This Cuntry,
—OFFERS—
Chickering's New Scale PIANOS.
HALE'S PIANOS, HARDMAN'S PIANOS.
ESTEY & CO. ORGANS. MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.
As low as any house North. Monthly Payments. Discounts for cash.
Music and Musical Instruments of Every Description. [feb22-1y



For NINETY DAYS FROM DATE
Elegant Table Silverware

Can be secured by all on compliance with the following conditions: The National Silver Plating Company, 704 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, manufacturers of Pure Coin Standard Silver-Plated Ware, will send to any one who receives this notice, a set of Double Extra-Plated Silver Spoons, and engrave on each spoon any desired initial. You are required to cut out the following Silverware Coupon and send it to the above Company, with your name and address, and also to enclose with it 75 cents to pay all charges, including cost of engraving initials, packing, boxing, and express charges. The Spoons will be sent by express (or mail, if you have no express office), and delivered in your hands without further cost. These Spoons are guaranteed to be of the best material and equal to the best Silver Plated Ware made, as the following letter from the Company will testify:

OFFICE OF NATIONAL SILVER PLATING CO., 704 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

To whom it may Concern.—The Spoons sent out under this arrangement we guarantee are of best quality, first heavily plated with pure nickel (the hardest white metal known), and a double-extra plate of pure Coin-Standard Silver added on top of the nickel, thus rendering them the very best Silver-Plated Ware manufactured. We will honor no order which does not contain the Silverware Coupon, and we will not honor the Coupon after ninety days from the date of this paper.

[Signed] NATIONAL SILVER PLATING CO.
704 Chestnut St., Philadelphia.

SILVERWARE COUPON.

On receipt of this Coupon, together with 75 cents to cover all charges, including express or mailing, engraving and boxing, we hereby agree to send to any address a set of our pure Coin Standard double-extra plated and on each Spoon engrave any desired initial. All charges are to be prepaid by the 75 cents sent us, and the Spoons will be delivered at destination free of any other charge.
SILVER SPOONS,

Good for ninety days from date of this paper, after which this Coupon is null and void. [Signed] NATIONAL SILVER PLATING CO.,
704 Chestnut St., Philadelphia.

Should it be desired, any one of the following articles will be sent in lieu of the Spoons on payment of the following charges: Six solid steel knives, blade and handle one solid piece, best steel, double nickel and silver plated, $7, six forks, double nickel and silver plated, 75 cts. If all these goods are desired, deduct the total charges, which will be 75 cts. for spoons, $1 for knives, and 50 cts. for forks—total, $2.25—thus securing for $2.75 what would cost you much more in any other way. Remember that each article, except knives, will be engraved with any initial desired without extra cost.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

This liberal offer holds good for only ninety days from date, therefore it is to the interest of all who can secure the benefits to one to it that they are not debarred by reason of the expiration of the time specified. All letters ordering Silverware should be addressed direct to the

NATIONAL SILVER PLATING CO.,
No. 704 Chestnut Street,
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Southwestern Christian Advocate.

NEW SERIES—VOL. 1—NO. 32. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, AUGUST 9, 1877. WHOLE NUMBER 262

SOUTHWESTERN
Christian Advocate,
PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT
38 Natchez St., New Orleans.
BY
NELSON & PHILLIPS,
FOR THE
Methodist Episcopal Church.

Terms: $2 a year, Cash in Advance.

All Travelling Preachers of the Methodist Episcopal Church are authorized Agents.

Subscriptions may begin at any time and the paper will be sent as long as paid for.

Remittances must be made by Registered Letter, P. O. Money Order, or by Express.

Advertising Rates.
(Per Nonpareil line, each insertion.)

One time ordered	8 cents
One month, (4 times)	7 "
Three months, (13 times)	6 "
Six months, (26 times)	5 "
One year, (52 times)	4 "
Marriage Notices	25 "
Special Notices	9 cents, net cash

NEW YORK OFFICE:
[illegible] Broadway, New York,
WILLIAM BALDWIN, Special Agent.

COME, LABOR ON!

Come, labor on!
Who dares stand idle on the harvest plain,
While all around him waves the golden grain,
And to each servant does the Master say,
"Go, work to-day!"

Come, labor on!
Claim the high calling angels cannot share—
To young and old the Gospel-gladness bear;
Redeem the time; its hours too swiftly fly,
The night draws nigh.

Come, labor on!
The laborers are few, the field is wide,
New stations must be filled, and blanks supplied;
From voices distant far, or near at home,
The call is, "Come!"

Come, labor on!
The enemy is watching, night and day,
To sow the tares, to snatch the seed away;
While we in sleep our duty have forgot,
He slumbered not.

Come, labor on!
Away with gloomy doubts and faithless fear!
No arm so weak but may do service here;
By feeblest agents can our God fulfil
His righteous will.

Come, labor on!
No time for rest, till glows the Western sky,
While the long shadows o'er our pathway lie,
And a glad sound comes with the setting sun,—
"Servants, well done!"

Come, labor on!
The toil is pleasant, the reward is sure,
Blessed are those who to the end endure;
How full their joy, how deep their rest shall be,
O Lord with Thee!

The Death of the Saint.

[illegible] morning, July 29th, a [illegible] memory of the late Mrs. [illegible] Taylor, was preached [illegible] Church by the pastor [illegible] McCarty. We take [illegible] of the next morning [illegible] of the sermon: [illegible] of the Lord is the [illegible] —Psalm 116:15. [illegible] defined the word [illegible] what is holy. [illegible] and life does not [illegible] accident, occasion; [illegible] qualities. To [illegible] The saint is one [illegible] bright [illegible] of [illegible] around him [illegible] We [illegible] of heart [illegible] We can [illegible] and [illegible] with all [illegible] [illegible] we [illegible] people [illegible] It is [illegible]

Such a life is not lost. Here are elements of holy living. This is practical Christianity. Work is the true standard of worth. The men and women who live righteously are the ones pronounced to be so by the judgment of mankind—and we all know that while there are many whose lives do not entitle them to be enrolled among the saints, yet others there are who compel the vedict in their favor. We feel that they are what they profess to be. Through all time God's dearest children have been found among the women of the world. In all the ages and lands, among the true she has been truest. Take the women out of our churches and away out of the reform movements, and what a blank space there would be left. There is not a man in all this congregation, doubtless, but can trace his best thoughts and purest purposes back to his mother. This is indeed a talismanic word. A mother's prayers and sweet words of counsel go with us through the years of sturdy manhood. We carry her image in our recollection, and it never quite fades out. Woman is better than man. She is religious when he is untrue. She is faithful and true when he is untrue. She is often patriotic when he is disloyal. She will stand up for the right amid corruption that sickens, when he yields to it. I think it is a great truth that the average woman is purer than the average man, the world over. "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His saints." Death is one of the natural steps in our life journey. Life is not a brief span whose extremes are the cradle and the grave. Death is not the drop curtain before a chasm of impenetrable darkness, but the opening in the heavens through which the redeemed soul passes to its highest glory. It will be precious to die conscious that we are God's children—precious to know that we shall see our loved ones in the land where death never comes and where we shall look upon the "King in his beauty."

Mrs. Nancy Maria Taylor, in whose memory these services are held, was born in the State of New York, in the year 1821. Her maiden name was Dewey. She belonged to a family of New Englanders who have to-day many able living representatives. At an early day the parents of Miss Dewey moved to the West and settled in Indiana, where she developed up into the beauty and strength of womanhood. She married Dr. Taylor early in life, and removed to New Orleans in 1847, where she has resided ever since. Many things have occurred within a few years to affect her life—the death of her husband and the sad events of the great civil war, her sympathy being entirely on the side of the Union. Mrs. Taylor was not the kind of a person to be neutral on so great a question, nor to be overcome by adversity. She accordingly entered the schools and has there done great and good service. When the city was full of sick and dying soldiers, she gave herself up almost entirely to the care of the sick, purchasing with her own money and conveying with her own hands the little delicacies so grateful to the sick. Her noble charity rose above all mere partisanship, and she administered alike to all, whether Protestant or Catholic, Federal or Confederate.

An analysis of her character shows that she had a strong womanly nature, and hence was a noble wife and most affectionate mother. She was possessed of more than the ordinary culture of mind. She was, notwithstanding all her family cares, a reader, a writer, and a teacher. Her heart was gifted in a large degree with all the affectionate impulses—hence she was always trying to do good. She always succeeded in her mission. Then there was a very marked individuality and self-reliance in her nature. She was a most thorough and conscientious Unionist, and was fearless and outspoken at a time when it cost much to be so. Many of her old friends were estranged from her in those times of our country's trial, but when the war closed and peace returned, many of these old friends came back to her. Her warm and tender nature drew all to her as the sun draws up the tidal waves of the sea. She was untiring in her efforts to do good and unyielding in her devotion to whatever she believed to be right.

Superadded to all these was the beauty of a Christian life. As the sun gilds the mountain tops to brightness, so did the religion of Jesus brighten and beautify all the natural graces of her womanhood. [illegible] in the memory of all who [illegible] a fragrant recollection, [illegible] to her children and [illegible] a precious legacy [illegible] Over her remains [illegible] "Precious in [illegible] of the Lord is the death of [illegible]

[illegible] debt, brought [illegible] is gradually [illegible] for the [illegible] was [illegible] 000 in [illegible] made the [illegible]

By Lamplight.

THE MINISTRY, No. 5.

An untarnished moral character is an essential preparation of the young man entering the ministry. Education is good, but it cannot atone for a viled reputation, or a character stained with crime. No young man can consent to enter on the sacred office, who has any correct idea of its high responsibilities, its holy duties, while he is guilty of secret crime, or is harboring in his soul those propensities, which will make him an easy prey to the peculiar temptations which surround the minister. There are temptations peculiar to individuals. The Apostle recognizes this in the "easily besetting sin," which he urges every one to lay aside. There are trials peculiar to the different relations we sustain to each other, in social circle, in business life, as farmers, mechanics, laborers, merchants, doctors, lawers, preachers. The farmer may make his bundles of oats, etc. small, the mechanic slight his work, the laborer drone through the day, the merchant sell damaged goods, etc. Every station in life has its own trials. The only security against these temptations is a good character, based on an enlightened conscience, quickened by habitual obedience to its voice. In all the business of life a conscience is an absolute necessity to strict integrity. In no station in life is this more needed than in the ministry. The preacher must have a conscience enlightened by the word of God, and then be governed by it. A preacher without a conscience is likely to be the sport of his own weaknesses, and the tool of designing men and women. Such a preacher will attend his appointments if he feels like it, he will preach if he feels like it, he will visit the sick if he feels like it, he will work among the children in the Sunday school if he feels like it, he will attend the class meetings and prayer meetings if he feels like it, he will study if he feels like it; he will be governed by his impulses, and to neglect any of his ministerial duties, does not interfere with his peace of mind, for he hears no voice of conscience. He can stay at home and sleep on Sunday morning till after the hour for Sunday school, or till it is too late to reach his appointment, and for him to disappoint a congregation is a very trivial matter. He can spend his time about the store, or even in a whisky saloon, he can stay where the coarsest jokes are uttered, and join in the laugh of fools, he can seek the places where least is said about religion, and most about the grovelling things of earth; he can be found at all times on the outmost verge of propriety, in all his intercourse with women, and it is the circumstances which surround him, rather than his own integrity, if he is found far beyond the bounds of propriety in his associations with females. A preacher without a conscience is a wolf among the flock. When the church licenses a young man to preach, it is her endorsement of his character. Such license says virtually this person has a good character, so good, that he can be trusted in the highest and holiest calling among men, he can be trusted to set examples worthy of imitation, he can be trusted with the oversight of the moral and religious training of our Sunday school children, he can be trusted with the care of souls, he can be permitted to associate with our families, our sons, daughters, sisters, wives, with perfect safety; for he has character, based upon a conscience, regulated by the word of God. Such is the kind of endorsement which a license to preach, virtually gives to the one so licensed. Yet young men, who have no character, only a reckless, chaffy, worthless one, ask the church to put its strong endorsement upon them. It is to be feared, that through the partiality of friends, and the weakness of others, such young men are sometimes put into the ministry, and the church and the reputation of the ministry suffer as is evident in almost every conference, and among the local preachers in many of our charges. In view of the high calling of the preacher, of the responsibilities placed upon him, of his access to the families of the church, of his influence over the young, of the nature of the instructions he is to impart, can any young man, whose character is evidently unsound and whose life is not regulated by a high sense of duty, be placed in the ministry without crime by those, who knowing the facts, place him there? That there has been a disregard of this qualification, in many cases is too evident to be denied. Our quarterly and district conferences can apply the remedy. Young men, who do not live peaceably at home, who do not honor their parents, who do not provide for their families, if they have them, who are constant in their attendance at all the parties and festivals in their reach, who seldom attend the Sunday school, and who make it a special point to attend all the funerals, and not to attend the prayer meetings, unless they are appointed to lead them, who find the class meeting unprofitable, are not the kind of men out of which good and true Methodist preachers can be made. The world demands that preachers should be better than other christians. This seems to be the tenor of the Bible teachings. The priests were required to be specially clean; Timothy was commanded to be "an example of the believers, in word, in conversation, in charity, in spirit, in faith, in purity." Let the candidate for the ministry see to it that he has a good character to offer to the church for her endorsement; a character built on the work of grace in the heart, a conscience that is enlightened by the Bible and has been brought into activity because it has been obeyed.

J. BRADEN.

Nashville, Tenn., July 28th, 1877.

Our Mission Work in India.

For some years we have been giving our money for building churches and school-houses in large heathen cities, in the very center of the population. The following letter will illustrate the good use that they are now serving us. Rev. E. W. Parker writes to the Mission-rooms about a work which it would have been impossible to have conducted in the confusion of the bazar. He also shows how we work in Hindu society by getting within a caste, and then working locally on that line. He says:

"We have been having a series of meetings at Moradabad, that have been full of interest. As soon as I got round my district and got a little leisure, we started some extra meetings among the Chamar inquirers. We held these in the open air after 8 o'clock each evening, for about three weeks. Only one man, a leader, came out fully in favor of Christianity, yet we made a tremendous stir, and fruit will follow. The city was full of panchayats (meetings for counsel), for two weeks with the purpose of heading off every movement towards Christianity. This leading man who was converted is now preaching Christ; living as he was and where he was though zamladár (land-owner) and panchayats have brought all their force to bear to turn him out of the house and ward. This work will go on continuously and increasingly. After this effort in this ward, we sent out invitations all through the city to a series of services in the "Bell-house," our city church. We circulated twenty-five thousand of these letters of invitation, having the letter on one side and passages of scriptures on the reverse. All the native preachers in the Zila District were in here and we had preaching in the bazar at three points just before service time. All the Christians attended the service, and we had the organ and good singing led by Mrs. McGrew and Mrs. Parker's girls as usual.

Our church was well filled each evening and many Hindoos and Mohammedans heard plain Gospel, and often listened with intense interest. The Mohammedans, however, complained that they had no opportunity to state objections to what we said. Hence, when one week was up, we circulated another notice and sent out another letter of invitation, stating that six lectures would be delivered on Christianity in the Bell-house, "On God," "The Word of God," "Sin," "Way of Salvation," "Christian's New Life," and "Future Condition of Man," and that any one could ask questions or make objections after the lecture. The subjects with passages of Scripture were printed on the back of the circular letters of invitation, so that all knew what were to be the topics. At our first meeting the house was packed as I never saw a house packed, before the time of commencing, every place where a man could sit, stand, or squat, was occupied. Seats designed for four held six and seven and our windows opening to the floor gave room for quite one hundred persons. They all listened to the lecture or sermon, setting forth our views of God, with proofs, for forty minutes. Then forty minutes more were given to objections and replies. These as you will conceive were on the Trinity and on the Son of God, and as we kept to the record we came away well pleased. For six evenings we continued this with a full house though after the third evening, nearly all could find seats as some who came just to see us defeated gave up. The forty minutes sermon was what we especially desired as we have never had an opportunity for giving a clear presentation of our doctrine to the Mohammedans of the city before. Discussions are not often voted successful as promoters of the truth, especially as no Mohammedan disputant ever keeps to the truth in his statement; but these discussions resulted in good I am sure, for we had first explained and proved our point in the lecture or sermon. After our six days were over, the Mohammedans asked for one day more on "The Corruption of Our Scriptures," stating that they could prove that we had only the ruins of the old books. We gave them this day, also asking one more for ourselves to make our objections to their religion. Brother Scott came up and gave the lecture on the Scriptures, and, strange to say, they did not touch one of his arguments, but tried to show that some passages did not agree with their ideas of what should be, and that there were discrepancies in the Bible. The next evening brother Scott lectured on Mohammedanism to a crowded house of intelligent Moslems. He told them plain truths in as kind a tone as possible, and all listened to the end. They replied as well as they could, but went away feeling angry, and yet feeling that only the truth had been spoken. One more lecture on "God and Christ" closed the course, and we parted with the best of feeling apparently, on both sides. The whole city is, however, stirred up, and all have something to think and talk about. The entire controversy with Mohammedanism is turning on the corruption of the Scripture. It just takes this turn:

1. The Koran came to attest and affirm the existing Scriptures, and is the same as they in all its doctrines. This is the teaching of the Koran itself.

2. The Koran in reality does not affirm the "former books," but directly and clearly contradicts those books in most important points. For example, the Koran clearly affirms that Jesus Christ was not crucified, nor did he die, nor rise from the dead. Thus contradicting the New Testament, and making the entire book void.

3. Hence a Mohammedan must prove that we have not now the real Scriptures, or he must give up his own book. The two can not as now existing stand together, as in all main points they contradict each other, and the Mohammedan "must accept and obey all, or be lost in the hell of hells." The Mohammedans of India are at present fully awake to this difficulty, and hence all their forces are turned against our Scriptures to prove that the Scriptures do not now exist, or if these are the remains of what God gave, they are only the ruins of that grand structure of truth which God erected. On this line the fight now goes on. We shall invite our Moslem friends to lectures again, with opportunity to object, and this work will continue. Many suppose that discussion is to be regretted, but it is the desire to object that leads them to come to the lectures, and we believe that it is to be a hand to hand fight, and the sooner we throw our whole time and strength into it the better. If the opposers will not hear the Gospel except at discussions, they give us the discussions arranged as above, so that clear presentations of truth be first made to a quiet audience. The oftener the Mohammedans present their objections the more will they see their weak points, and will be constantly driven from one thing to another. Such is our work now. Village work for the simple Hindoos, where many are almost persuaded. I go to Sambhal next week for more of this in a week of extra meetings, bazar work, Church work, discussions, lectures, schools, etc. Everything and anything to reach and shake this people so as to get them out of their old ruts. All of the larger boys of our high-school attended the lectures and stood by us as though belonging to our side. Mansell and Wheeler were here with us, and gave each a lecture. Hagg gave one, Scott three, and I three.

First Street Church Beneficence.

At the last regular meeting of the Benevolent Association called the Pound Society, of First St. M. E. Church, the contributions consisted in part of 172 lbs. of groceries, and $7 85 cts., cash. A general reception followed, at which addresses were delivered by several of our own citizens and a few visiting guests, and the evening closed with light refreshments, ice-cream, cake, lemonade, etc.

The succeeding day was devoted to the distribution of the donations.

The largely increasing need of charities has determined the members of this church, to make an effort to secure a home for the suffering and indigent. A few preliminary meetings have been held, and so earnest is the spirit of the originators that a considerable amount of money, has already been secured, and a square of ground bargained for. At the few meetings at which we were present, we were surprised at the energy and zeal displayed by the people. Speaking in a worldly sense. "These people mean business." And to crown their intelligent Christian enterprises, they are about organizing a local Mission work. We learn that the health of the President of the Association, Mother Gantt, has become so impaired by her unremitting labors, that her friends have sent her over the Lake to rest and recuperate. We hope that the dear old lady may find the strength she so much requires.

VISITOR.

New Orleans, July 29th.

Joshua's Dying Testimony.

When he came to divide up the land, Joshua took the poorest portion himself that he might be near the ark. And there, on Mount Ephraim, he died at the ripe old age of 110; and during all these years not one single, solitary man was able to stand before him. See the contrast between his dying testimony and that of Jacob. "Few and evil have the days of my life been." He had a stormy voyage. Now, look and see this old warrior going to rest. He had tried God forty years. He had heard the crack of the slave-driver's whip down there in Egypt, but probably he had a praying mother, who talked to him about this King of the Hebrews, about the God of Abraham, of Isaac and of Jacob; and he believed in that God, and when Moses came down into Egypt he finds this young man just in the prime of his life; and Joshua recognizes in Moses that he was the instrument of the Almighty, that the King of the Hebrews had sent him there to deliver His people. He had tried God forty years in the wilderness, and when eighty years old he was called into the promised land. He had tried God thirty years in Canaan, and now, at the age of 110, the old warrior is going home, and he is not going to die like an infidel. He knows he is going to die, and he calls for all the tribes of Israel and their elders, and they come up from the tribe of Benjamin, the tribe of Simeon, the tribe of Zebulon, and so on, and they gather in at Shiloh to be there to hear the old prophet and the old patriarch, and that man of God speaks, and what does he say? What is his dying testimony? How we linger round the couch of our dying friends! How anxious we are to get their last words! Well, let us turn back. What are the last words of this man who has tried God and proved God? This is it, "I am going the way of all the earth; and ye know in your hearts and in all your souls that not one thing hath failed of all the good things which the Lord your God spake concerning you; all are come to pass unto you, and not one thing hath failed thereof." "Not one thing hath failed." God has kept His word. God has made his word good. "Not one good thing hath failed." What a dying testimony! How glorious! In the beautiful sunset light the old warrior sank away like he was going to sleep. In the dusk of a beautiful summer's evening he passed away. There is the old man's dying testimony. He could tell the people of God. He was the only one left. The rest had gone. Moses had sunk into his desert grave, and the other leaders of the tribes of Israel had passed away. But now he was going to die in the promised land. This is the dying testimony. "I go this day the way of all the earth; and ye know in your hearts and in all your souls, that not one thing hath failed of all the good things which the Lord your God spake concerning you, and not one thing has failed thereof." My friends, let us take God at his word. Let us try him. Let us prove him. We will find that God is true. All these men that are trying to pick the Word of God to pieces, trying to destroy our confidence in the Word of God, tell us it is not true; but any one who has ever tried God, who has ever proved God, has found him to be true.—Moody.

Romantic Incident of the Rebellion.

In one of the hotly contested fights in Virginia during the war, a Federal officer fell wounded in front of the Confederate breastworks. While lying there, wounded and crying piteously for water, a Confederate soldier (James Moore, of Burke County, N. C.) declared his intention of supplying him with drink. The bullets were flying thick and fast from both sides, and Moore's friends endeavoring to dissuade him from such a hazardous enterprise. Despite remonstrances and danger, however, Moore leaped the breastworks, canteen in hand, reached the wounded enemy and gave him drink. The Federal, under a sense of gratitude for the timely service, took out his gold watch and offered it to his benefactor, but it was refused. The officer then asked the name of the man who had braved such danger to succor him. The same was given, and Moore returned unhurt to his position behind the embankment. They saw nothing more of each other. Moore was subsequently wounded, and lost a limb in one of the engagements in Virginia, and returned to his home in Burke County. A few days ago he received a communication from the Federal soldier to whom he had given the "cup of cold water" on the occasion alluded to, announcing that he had settled on him the sum of $10,000, to be paid in four annual installments of $2,500 each. Investigation has established the fact that there is no mistake or deception in the matter.—Raleigh (N. C.) News.

News Items.

Advices from Ecuador, South America, state that the damage done by the late eruption of Cotopaxi amounts to over $1,000,000. Many lives were lost, and over 1,500 head of cattle destroyed.

Among the persons present at the reception of President Hayes in Providence was Mr. May Mason, Pawtucket, R. I., who is ninety-five years old, and who shook hands with Washington.

The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, who is fond of hunting, has been shooting pheasants, in violation of the laws of that State. He has been legally notified to appear for trial as a violator of law, and intends to plead guilty. Let the law have free course with him.

The Ohio State Democratic Convention has nominated for Governor, Richard M. Bishop of Cincinnati. Mr. Bishop is the head of one of the largest wholesale grocery houses in the West. He was elected Mayor of Cincinnati on a combined Republican and Know-Nothing ticket in 1859, and served with great credit to himself. Mr. Bishop has for years been a prominent member of the Disciples or Campbellite Church.

The hight of the cables which have just been suspended over the East River between Brooklyn and New York in their final position is 145 feet above high water in the center of the river. The hight of the roadway will be 118 feet above high water at the towers, and 135 feet at the center of the river. That is, the highest point on the roadway will be 10 feet lower than the lowest point of the cables.

It is generally believed that the Cuban question is about to be solved without outside interference. General Martinez Campos, commander-in-chief of the Spanish forces in Cuba, has sent an envoy to Madrid proposing a settlement with the insurgents on the basis of the recognition of Cuban independence, with a very limited Spanish protectorate and advantageous commercial relations with the mother country. General Campos has assured the Madrid Government that nothing short of a reinforcement of 60,000 men will be of any effect in putting down the rebellion, and his dispatches convey a virtual acknowledgement that Spain is unequal to the emergency.

The tax-payers of Allegheny county, Pennsylvania, will have to pay the losses, ($5,000,000,) caused by the rioters in Pittsburg. This is Pennsylvania law, and the same law exists in New York. In 1863, at the time of the draft riot, New York City had to pay millions of dollars for damages to property. In 1844 the city of Philadelphia had to pay all the losses, amounting to millions, caused by what is called the Native American riot. The New York Tribune office was gutted in 1863. The city paid Horace Greeley several thousand dollars damages. In 1841 the Philanthropist, a Cincinnati Abolition paper, was mobbed. The city footed the bill.

On the Sunday after Mr. Bliss's death, Mr. Moody issued a call to the Sunday schools of the United States for a penny collection to aid in caring for the boys, and to erect a monument to the memory of the departed ones. So generous was the response that a message to stop supplies was soon issued. From thirty-six States and territories, and from England, Ireland, Scotland, Canada, India, and the West Indies, as well as from schools of all denominational connections, the contributions flowed in. From a little boy's donation of one cent, and a little girl's gift of five cents, the sums ranged upward to as much, in a few cases, as thirty, and in one case to about fifty dollars. Three thousand and sixty-three schools responded to the call, representing over a half million of contributors. The total amount sent in is $11,663 85; $10,600 have been invested in United States bonds; $1,000 is appropriated for the monument.

The steamer California from Sitka, Alaska, arrived on the 22d ult. at Fort Townsend, Washington Territory, and reports great danger of the destruction of the entire town of Sitka, with all the inhabitants, by the Indians. The troops had hardly got out of sight of the town when the Indians came pouring inside of the stockade, and entered and pillaged all the Government buildings vacated by the troops. Sitka Jack, head chief of the Kolosh tribe, himself told captain Thorne that the country was his, and on the return of his men from fishing he would take possession of the town. At evening entertainments among the whites in the town the Indians came boldly and refused to leave. There will be 1,000 Indians about Sitka on the return of Jack's men from fishing, and as the whites only number forty the probabilities are our next intelligence will be of their utter destruction.

SOUTHWESTERN
Christian Advocate.
39 Natchez St., New Orleans.

J. C. HARTZELL, B. D., EDITOR.

THURSDAY, AUG. 9, 1877.

It has been decided to hold the next international Sunday-school convention at Atlanta, Ga., April 17th, 1878.

Bishop Peck has changed the time of the session of the Wisconsin Conference from the 17th to the 11th of October.

Among the most thorough and popular private schools in New England is the Gannett Institute, Chester Square, Boston. By sending to Rev. Geo. Gannett, principal, 69 Chester Square, a catalogue may be secured, which will afford interesting information.

We have received a copy of the Annual Circular of Cookman Institute, Jacksonville, Florida; Rev. S. B. Darnell, B. D., Principal. The Institution is in a flourishing condition. Whole number of students during the past year 102. No charge is made for tuition. The next session begins October 15.

Rev. Dr. Nast, editor of the Christian Apologist, is in Germany visiting the scenes and friends of his youth. He lately spent a Sabbath in Berlin with Bishop Andrews. The Doctor preached in our German church in that city in the morning, and the Bishop preached to an English congregation in the afternoon, and by means of an interpreter, to the Germans at night.

Rev. Dr. A. J. Kynett, Secretary of the Board of Church Extension, has prepared blank forms of deeds for church and parsonage property that may be used in any of the States. He will furnish them on application—address 1020 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.—to any who may need them. In all cases a few stamps should accompany the request for them, to pay postage and cost of printing.

[illegible] Methodist Episcopal Church [illegible] to Rev. W. C. Graves [illegible] Advocate, has more [illegible] members in East Tennessee, [illegible] the Methodist Episcopal [illegible] South. The former Church [illegible] two thousand colored members [illegible] the same territory. In the [illegible] of this fact it is decidedly cool for the Church South to claim exclusive Methodistic rights in that territory. Let both churches [illegible] do their best to save souls. [illegible] good work cannot be [illegible] where. If either church is [illegible] see the other succeed, [illegible] dissatisfied one will come [illegible] for "unto him that [illegible] given."

[illegible] Dr. McCarty, the popular [illegible] Ames M. E. Church of [illegible] together with his family, [illegible] New York on steam- [illegible] on Thursday of last [illegible] recently mentioned, [illegible] undertaken the task [illegible] the remnant of an [illegible] has been hanging [illegible] Church for some time [illegible] North in prose- [illegible] work. He will [illegible] of New Or- [illegible] the Grand Army [illegible] deliver some [illegible] States [illegible] the Soldiers' [illegible] built at Chal- [illegible] members of Ames [illegible] other friends of [illegible] were at the [illegible] and the [illegible] at the [illegible] presented [illegible] fund to [illegible] church [illegible]

[illegible]

The colored people in Richmond, Va., are making commendable efforts toward providing themselves with churches. It is stated that every colored church, both Baptist and Methodist, "is either now purchasing or preparing to purchase a building."

[illegible] was re-nominated by [illegible] of Mississippi. No [illegible] has place on their [illegible]

[illegible] of Presby- [illegible] in the re- [illegible] Council.

Methodism.

As a Methodist, we should take pride in our Church, for God has been with us in the past in a gracious manner. From a small beginning of a few devout young men a little over a century ago, she has grown steadily until to-day her numbers swell up into the millions. We do not glory in her numbers merely, but in her spirit. From the very beginning Methodism has been missionary in her aims. She has been in the highest sense aggressive. She has looked and does yet look to the conquest of the world. If her inroads upon the realm of darkness shall continue in the years to come as they have in the past, one can almost calculate just when there will be a Methodist church in every village in every land beneath the sun, and when her system will have permeated the society of all lands and her communicants be numbered by hundreds of millions.

Methodism does not aim to be a political power. This is her chief danger, and should she fall into this snare she would only do what the Church of Rome has done, what Episcopalianism, Presbyterianism, and what Lutheranism has done. Methodism, if true to herself, will avoid this. Her mission is not in this field, but it is to move the heart, to quicken the conscience, to deliver the oppressed, to reach out a benevolent hand to the needy, to educate the ignorant, to save the perishing—in a word, to build up a spiritual kingdom in the earth, which shall embrace all languages, all races, all political faiths, and be the great conservator of society.

We glory in Methodism because she is radical and reformatory. She has been the friend of the slave. She is the oldest temperance society in Christendom. Her very first organizations embraced the Sunday School idea. She no sooner had existence than she moved right forward to save the world. Her sons have shrunk back from no deprivations; they have "endured hardships as good soldiers" in all lands; they have braved dangers on sea and land which struck terror to the hearts of men trained to battle. And there never has been a day since her battle colors were unfurled and her martial trumpet sounded out when she has not labored to conquer all the world in the name of Christ and to the religion of Jesus.

To-day her congregations are gathered everywhere. It is said the sun never sets on the empire ruled by Victoria. The British lion symbolizes British power around the great circle of the globe. And so we may say of our Church. Wherever the light of Christian civilization has gone Methodism has unfurled her banner, and when once she takes possession of a land she never leaves it. Should all her sons be martyred others would rush in to fill up the gap.

To-day men are preaching this gospel in Germany, and far off in India, and amid the docile Chinese, and in progressive Japan, and on distant islands of the sea. Our men are preaching this gospel where the Crescent waves over the dominions of the Sultan, and where the Aztec has lived in stolid indifference to law or gospel. Far away yonder on the savannas of the tropical South, where the adventurous Spaniard, lured by visions of gold, found something better—a rich soil and a home. Yes, we say it is a glorious thought that we are busily at work overcoming with good the evil of the world. It is the glory of the Methodist Church that like Jesus she would "all mankind embrace." It is a glory to us as a Church that we are hemmed in by no decree which teaches that a few only can be saved, or that restricts the communion of saints to those only of our faith and practice. We publish to the world that Christ died for all. Whosoever will may come and partake of the waters of life freely. We shall not furl up the banner until the "kingdoms of this world become the kingdom of Our Lord and of His Christ."

Overcoming Evil.

The existence in the world to-day of two distinct principles, one called evil, the other good one represented as darkness the other light, the one antagonistic to human good the other promotive of that good. The existence of two such agencies is a fact which all men every where admit. Men do not agree upon the theory of evil, but all men admit its existence. All theology and religion aim at accounting for these facts, and all ages and nations have produced men who have claimed the ability to reinstate man in his true relations.

While good and evil are recognized factors in the make up of the thought and feeling of the word of mankind, no one can claim that they are equal. The old Persian idea of the universal prevalence of these two principles of light and darkness, good and evil, still has in it the recognition of the ultimate overthrow of darkness. We think this would be a conclusion to which any healthy, active mind would quite naturally come. It cannot be that evil as we see it, or know it to exist, can hold equal sway with good. It cannot be that the chief agent of evil is as omnipotent as the supreme agent of God. There is more good than evil in the natural world. There are more bright days than cloudy ones, more sweet refreshing breezes than storms, more lucious fruits than poisoned herbs. God is stronger than Satan. There are clouds and storms and poisons, and wrongs, and wickedness. One sees the record of them in every newspaper, but the bad is told more than the good. A good deed is published in a few lines and produces no sensation, but the bad is made to fill whole columns with displayed head lines. Sin loves display, holiness is modest and rejoices rather in her fruits.

He whose hope is anchored within the great sea of love and goodness feels that in the end, good will be triumphant, evil will be overcome. Sin shall give place to holiness, vice to virtue.

We must not forget that all is not evil that we sometimes call by that name. The same might be said of good. The idea which the word good expresses is that of joy, strength, completeness, perfectness; while the word evil has in it the idea of falling, descending. Hence we say of the saved they go up to heaven and of the lost they go down to hell.

But from our human stand-point we sometimes call evil good, and good evil. We put bitter for sweet, and sweet for bitter. Man clings to his sins and follies and calls them good; and mistakenly repels influences that would raise him from his depression and calls them evil.

There is not one who has not felt the bitterness of sin. Its power has been on us and we have been made to bow beneath the yoke. St. Paul putting himself in the place of us all said: "I find then a law that when I would do good, evil is present with me," again, "I see another law in my members warring against the law of my mind, and bringing me into captivity to the law of sin which is in my members." "Who shall deliver me from the body of this death?" "I thank God through Jesus Christ our Lord!"

But not only in our experience have we this knowledge of evil. We turn to history, and away back in the very beginning do we track the footsteps of the monster. From the very beginning of human records down along the ages, wickedness in thought, in word, in act has been the disgrace of mankind. Ever and anon crimes have been committed that have startled society, while at times it has been so brazen as to defy all just sentiment, and sap even the foundations of government itself. Let him who will lift his voice against the church, still he cannot deny the fact that the church is the only organized body in existence for the obliteration of moral evil from the world. If you hate evil you ought to love the church and support it on the ground that it exists to put an end to what you hate.

The bill of rights adopted by the Georgia Constitutional Convention, pledges equal privileges and protection to all classes of citizens, prohibits whipping as a punishment for crime, and imprisonment for debt, and declares the right of the people to change the constitution at pleasure. Lobbying in the legislature is pronounced a crime.

The National Educational Association meets this year at Louisville, Ky., the 14th of August.

Moral Advantages of Education.

We have in the United States at the present time fourteen million five hundred thousand children of school age—that is between five and fifteen years. We expend annually about ninety-five million dollars for school purposes, which is equal to about one-third one per cent. on the value of the property, real and personal of the whole country. This was true in 1870. We employed at that date 221,000 teachers. This is our army that wages war on ignorance, with such weapons as spelling books and readers and pen and black-board. The forts and arsenals are common school houses which dot the land go where you will. We have declared that the property of the State shall educate the children of the State. Hence rich and poor fare alike—the common school is a great equalizer.

The greatest uplifting force in this world is secular education. Religion may start with a change of heart, but if it does not include mental culture it is a failure. Educated Christians are the most consistent and reliable. When religion is limited to a simple impulse it is unstable.

It is an old and true saying that "figures will not lie." Hence the best way to prove that education is the best antidote for crime is to look at figures. "In France from 1867 to 1869 one-half of the inhabitants could neither read nor write—and this one-half furnished 95 per cent. of the persons arrested for crime and 87 per cent. of all who were convicted for civil offenses."

In the six New England States, only 7 per cent. of the inhabitants over 10 years could neither read nor write, and yet 80 per cent. of the crime committed in those States was by this small minority. A person in New England without education commits 53 times as many crimes as one with. By accurate tables we find that in the whole United States an uneducated person commits ten times as many crimes as an educated person.

The same law holds good in the old world. In the Kingdom of Bavaria it was accertained that crime decreased (in 1870) almost in the same ratio that schools increased. So that statesmen and philanthropists have about come to the conclusion that "universal education tends to universal morality."

The same is true of pauperism. As education increases pauperism decreases. In several of our States it has been ascertained that of illiterate people one in ten is a pauper, and among educated people only one in 300 ever becomes a claiment on public charity. In other words there are thirty times as many paupers among the uneducated as among the educated, and ten times as many criminals. So we say that "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of care." It costs far less to prevent crime and pauperism than to take care it; it is cheaper to educate than to punish and take care of criminals.

It may startle some when we affirm that the common school has a greater influence in preventing crime than the Church. But the reader will see the reason at a glance. The child becomes interested in the exercises of the school before it does in those of the Church. The desciplinc of the school tends to keep the mind in its normal relation, and hence the influence of the school on morality.

The Sunday-school, too, exerts a powerful influence, but the Sunday-school is limited to one hour a week, while the day school operates through the whole week.

We would have you note the additional fact that criminals, as a rule, are not the finely organized and cultured men that some have talked about. They are as a class below the mediocity in mental acuteness—and as a rule they have no cultivation. Not one in a hundred is profound. The State should have a deep interest in the citizen, in the individual, and she has shown this by the ample provision made for universal education in this country. Hence education should be compulsory, for in whatever relation the citizen may act, whether in private life or public office, his acts influence the life of the nation. From justice of the peace to president, we need men of culture. And by just as much as we educate we elevate, and lessen the burden imposed on us by the criminal classes, and by pauperism.

An equally careful examination has brought out the fact that the education of the common school not only prevents crimes, but it adds on an average fifty per cent to the producing capacity of the citizen, while a higher training increases it to not less than two or three hundred per cent.

Prussia is a good example. From the rank of a third rate power, through her system of popular education, with compulsory law, in half a century she became the leading Empire of Europe.

Let us as a people look well to our schools. They are our strong tower. As the school, so will be the Church; as our school so will be our enterprise and thrift—as the school so will be our national independence. The school is the bottom layer in the foundation of the Republic. This gone all is lost and we will be forgotten as a people.

"What constitutes a State?
Not high raised battlement nor labored mound
Thick wall or moated gate;
Not cities proud with spires and turrets crowned,
Not bays and broad-armed ports
Where laughing at the storm rich naives ride,
Not starred and spangled courts,
Where low-browed baseness wafts perfume to pride.
No: men, high-minded men
Men who their duties know,
But know their rights and knowing dare maintain,
And crush the tyrant when they rend the chain;
These constitute a State."

San Antonio Methodism.

DEAR BROTHER.—I have just returned from San Antonio; I spent some fifteen days there. Our church is prospering well under the pastorate of Rev. L. Carper. The $548 25 of Missionary money due the preachers of San Antonio District were somehow or other transferred by Rev. T. T. Leach to the churches, who obligated themselves to pay the preachers. They have paid already some $301 90 to the different preachers; besides this, they have paid $66 50 interest, due on loan funds, making a total of $368 40 paid since Conference. I asked Bro. Carper how far his people were behind with pastor's support? He answered, "not a nickel." The people, though burdened with heavy debts, are striving energetically to meet every obligation—for the people have a mind to work. Mr. A. L. McGraw is Recording Steward and Superintendent of the Sunday-school. He is a live man. He informs me that they had $400 more to pay within the next four months to the Church Extension Society. This they expect to raise by giving festivals. They say that they understand the financial condition of the church better now than they ever did before. If they had understood the matter they would have prevented so enormous accumulation of debt. The spiritual condition of the church is good; the Sunday-school numbers eighty-odd scholars; the attendance is not what it should be.

San Antonio has improved very rapidly since the Railroad reached that metropolitan center. It has increased in population as well as in many grand and stately buildings. Business is very active. Day laborers get from $1 25 to $1 50 per day. Our church means to have her share of the increasing population. You shall hear from me again soon. Camp-meeting season is now at hand; I expect to attend all in my reach.

Yours truly,
MACK HENSON.

Religious Items.

The historical oak under which, it is said, Wesley preached his first sermon in America, is still standing at Frederick, Ga.

Rev. Dr. Philip Schaff says the Bible is the best hand-book of the Holy Land, and the Holy Land the best commentary on the Bible.

The Presbyterians in the United States gave last year for home missions, $313,694; for foreign missions, $399,767; for education, $81,182; for publication, $36,945; for support of pastors and maintainances of Churches, $6,633,577; total, $9,810,223.

Two little children of C. L. Vanderbeck, of Englewood, N. J., recently died, leaving at the time of their death in the savings-bank $161 50. Their father has decided to give this to the missionary societies of the Presbyterian and M. E. churches, as his children had attended both schools. The donations will be gratefully and tearfully received.

The Bible Society is now publishing books at Constantinople, Beirut, Bremen, Berlin, Paris, Stockholm, Foochow, Shanghai, Lucknow, Lodiana, Yokohama, Bangkok and Vienna. Some versions can be published cheaper at these points, than at New York.

The Methodist Ladies' Five Points Mission, of New York, is doing a good work. Last year a thousand children were taught in its schools, and three hundred families, including two thousand persons, were aided with food and clothing. The mission received during the year $21,980, and expended $19,320.

The Open-Air Meetings carried on by the Washington, D. C., Young Men's Christian Association, are held in the most public portions of the city and thus far proven very successful. A large number of persons have begun to lead a new life—results of these efforts.

The American Bible Society has made the Bible the cheapest, as it is the best of all books—selling it without profit. A good reliable Bible for thirty-five cents. And yet the demand upon the benevolence of the Society, has for the year amounted to $230,435 68. Of this amount $78,655 00 have been expended in foreign lands.

The New York Tribune makes the amazing statement that the churches of that city are mortgaged to the amount of $2,367,886, and this is said to be below rather than above the truth. The debts are divided among the denominations as follows: Presbyterian, $706,000; Reformed, $640,000; Episcopal, $453,000; Roman Catholic, $229,000; Baptist $212,000; Methodist, $79,000; Lutheran, $44,886. This represents the churches in New York, while it is said those of Brooklyn are in a situation no more encouraging.

General News Items.

One-eight of the land in Alabama belongs to the United States Government.

Tuition at the Vanderbilt University has been reduced from $80 to $50 per annum.

The cost of the Paris Exposition of 1870 is estimated at 35,313,000 francs, or about $7,062,600.

A half-ton of gold is used annually for filling teeth in the United States, by 12,000 dentists.

The servant girls at a hotel in Fort Wayne, Indiana, struck for an addition of fifty cents to their weekly pay and carried their point.

The Samoan Islanders have run up the stars and stripes and asked to be received under the protection of the United States.

Postmaster-general Key has appointed as postmaster of his own home, Chattanooga, an out-and-out Republican, a northener.

The Agricultural Department estimates that the wheat havest will reach 300,000,000 bushels, of which 100,000,000 bushels can be spared for export.

It is estimated that the laboring classes in this country have, within four years, lost by strikes at least $300,000,000.

At the commencement of the Louisville, Ky., Medical School, five of the ten prizes were taken by one student. He is the son of Rev. Dr. Carnachan of Meadville, Pa.

A great civil war is raging in Japan. The rebels, said to be about 50,000 strong, claim that they do not make war upon the Mikado, but upon his advisors. The imporial and rebel armies are about equal, and results doubtful.

There appears too much reason to believe that a second period of famine is setting down over the vast district which constitutes southern India, and that the famine cannot do otherwise than produce terrible mortality.

A special from Alexandria, says: "The obelisk (Cleopatra's needle) and the ship for its conveyance to London will be launched about August 10, if the weather is favorable."

A correspondent at Liverpool, England, gives a very gloomy account of the condition of affairs there. About fifty thousand colliers and miners are out on a strike against reduced wages, and although they have powerful Unions at their back, the result in the end, as experience teaches, must be starvation, for employers will not yield. In Scotland things are no better, 30,000 shipwrights have been "locked out" on account of a strike for higher wages in one yard. These are hard facts for men to ponder over who are dissatisfied with their lot in this country because of a temporary depression in business.

Russian Defeat.

We take from Sunday's Times, of this city, the following condensed statement of the recent important movements of the Russian and Turkish armies. The defeat of the former seems to have been as decisive as it was unexpected:

The Russians first crossed the Danube at Ibraila, near the mouth, and entered the Dobrudsha, the old line of advance towards Constantinople. The objective points of this column were Silistra and Varna, the former on the Danuble and the latter on the Black Sea. These are two of the "quadrilateral" of Turkish fortresses in Eastern Bulgaria, Silistria being the most formidable of the four. It has resisted successfully many sieges and is affectionately named by the Turks "Our trusty Silistria." Neither of these places has been captured or is likely to be soon, and in consequence the Russian column in the Dobrudsha has affected nothing. It cannot join the column advancing from Sistova without first capturing these places.

Later, the main column of invasion crossed at Sistova, which is about midway between the mouth of the Danube and the Hungarian frontier, thus cutting the Turkish line of defense in halves. Sistova is west of the four fortresses of the "quadrilateral," and as the garrisons at those points were not disturbed the invading column left a powerful army well entrenched on its flank and close by its line of communications. This column speedily captured Tirnova, half way between the Danube and the Balkan passes, and pushed across the range by an unguarded pass. This force, though without artillery, attacked the Turks defending the main or Shipka pass in the rear and defeated them. This gave the Russians possession of that important road, over which they brought artillery and reinforcements and began another rapid advance, under General Gourka, through Roumelia towards Adrianople. In the meantime, Nikopolis, a strongly fortified town on the Danube, west of Sistova, had been taken by storm by the Russians, while another Russian force turned east and moved against Rutschuk. As the Danube and the Balkans were considered the great defensive lines of European Turkey and both had been passed with such ease, it looked, for a while, as if the Russian advance upon Constantinople would be an uninterrupted march of triumph. But recent events have changed the aspect of affairs and show the Russian plan of attack to have been as dangerous as it was brilliant. They drove their invading column far into the enemy's territory, where it sticks and seems likely to be pulverized by the pressure accumulating on all sides of it.

The Turks abandoned the campaign in Montenegro—none too soon—and rapidly transferred the armies of Suleiman Pasha and Mehemet Ali by sea to Constantinople. A few days later Suleiman, having been appointed to command the forces south of the Balkans, was able to interpose his army between Gen. Gourka and Adrianople, while Mehemet went by the Black Sea and Varna to Shumla, where he took command of the Turkish forces in the quadrilateral. The Russians met their first check at Plevna on the 19th of July. Plevna is directly south of Nicopolis, and the corps which had captured the latter place seemed to have set out for the Balkans on a line parallel with Gourka's advance. But they were met by Osman Pasha at Plevna and turned back with loss. The Russians assailed the army of Ahmed Eyoub, near Rutschuk, last Sunday and reported a great victory there, but the fact that their army found it necessary to withdraw from Rutschuk and mass as rapidly as possible seventy miles west where they were reinforced by the beaten divisions south of Nikopolis, does not confirm the report. These two corps, the 9th and 11th, making a force of about 65,000 men, under Krudener and Schilder, attacked Plevna again on the 29th, but met with what appears to be an overwhelming repulse and the most signal defeat of the war at the hands of Osman Pasha, who had managed to get together an army of 50,000 men behind the earthworks at that place. This army of Osman Pasha is one of the unexplained mysteries of the war. It could not have come from the quadrilateral as Osman was cut off from all those points by the Russian advance. A portion of it may have been the force driven out of Nikopolis, but the bulk of it must have been gathered from Widdin and other points on the Danube and the Servian frontier. At any rate, it was organized from a region cut off from all the other Turkish commands. At the same time, Gen. Gourka, south of the Balkans, was defeated by Suleiman and is now retreating into the passes before a greatly superior force. Mehemet Ali, who superceded Abdul Kerim as commander-in-chief in Bulgaria, was said to be within twenty miles of Tirnova on the 1st with 60,000 men. Suleiman has now a still larger army. Osman must have by this time an equal number. The whole force of the Russians at Tirnova and under Gourka can not exceed 50,000. Upon this force, defeated and retreating, Suleiman is pressing in front, while Mehemet and Osman are between it and the Danube and the supporting army of the Russians is so badly cut up as to be useless. The Russian advance is checked and a large portion of their army in serious danger of annihilation. It can only be rescued by heavy Russian reinforcements from the north of the Danube. Even if the Russians save Gourka now they will be left in a rather worse position than when they first crossed at Sistova, and a new advance upon Constantinople can not be undertaken for some time to come. The probable result, therefore, of the Russian disaster at Plevna will be to prolong the war at least a year longer than it seemed likely, a month ago, to continue.

The Great Strike.

The main outrages growing out of the strike may be summed up as follows: Pittsburgh was for 24 hours, from Saturday night 21st of July, in the hands of a mob. All day on Sabbath a work of destruction went on there. The Union Depot was burned, and about 2,000 freight cars with their loads of oil, stock, and produce. Great quantities of plunder were carried away. While hundreds were engaged in firing the cars and making certain the destruction of the valuable buildings at the outer depot, thousands of men, women, and children were engaged in pillaging the cars. The men, armed with heavy sledges, would break open the cars, and then the contents would be thrown out and carried off by those bent on [illegible] the reign of terror existed [illegible] street was almost completely [illegible] by persons laboring to carry off the plunder they had gathered together. In hundreds of instances wagons were pressed into service to enable thieves to get away with their goods. Mayor McCarthy, early in the day, endeavored to stop the pillage, but the handful of men at his command were unable to control the crowd, who were desperate in their anxiety to secure goods. At one time the pillage was checked, but the mob fired the cars, and then proceeded with the work of destruction. Here a brawny woman could be seen hurrying away with pairs of white kid slippers in her arms. Another, carrying an infant, would be rolling a barrel of flour along the side-walk, using her feet as the propelling power; here a man pushing a wheelbarrow loaded with white lead. Boys hurried through the crowds with large-sized family Bibles as their share of the plunder, while scores of females utilized their aprons and dresses to carry flour, eggs, dry goods, etc. Bundles of umbrellas, fancy parasols, hams, bacon, leaf lard, calicoes, blankets, laces, and flour were mixed together in the arms of robust men, or carried on hastily constructed hand-barrows. The buildings burned were two round-houses, one machine shop, superintendent's office, car repair-shop, blacksmith shop, three or four oil houses, Union Transfer Depot and offices, Pullman Car Company's laundry and offices, dispatcher's office, powder house, Union Depot Hotel, Pan-Handle Railroad engine house, general offices and freight depot of the Adams Express Company. About 50 engines were destroyed; and also the great elevator [illegible] grain was [illegible] of [illegible] by the [illegible] The Philadelphia [illegible] been ordered to [illegible] into collision with [illegible] and firing began; and a [illegible] were killed and wounded, [illegible] and rioters. The [illegible] to the Pennsylvania road will [illegible] $10,000,000. At [illegible] occurred between the military and the rioters, [illegible] ber were killed. Camden [illegible] the Baltimore and Ohio [illegible] fired and a square of it [illegible] At Reading, Pa., the [illegible] costing $150,000, [illegible] troops fired upon [illegible] persons were [illegible] 14 soldiers [illegible] wave of strik[illegible] over the whole [illegible] parts of the [illegible] trunk lines [illegible]

Sunday School.

Aug. 19, 1877.—THESSALONIANS AND BEREANS.

SCRIPTURE.—Acts 17: 1-14.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"These were more noble than those in Thessalonica, in that they received the word with all readiness of mind, and searched the Scriptures daily whether these things were so."—11.

TOPIC.—Search the Scriptures.

[Condensed from National S. S. Teacher.]

Paul and Silas, bearing on their backs the marks of the Roman scourge, and as proud of their stripes as other men are of decorations and badges of honor, set out for Thessalonica. Timothy (1 Thess. 3: 6) and Luke remained behind to comfort and still farther strengthen the new converts in the faith.

Paul stopped neither at Amphipolis or Apollonia, from the fact that there was no synagogue in either place. His "manner" was to preach in synagogues whenever he could find them, offering salvation first to the Jews and afterward to the Gentiles. At Thessalonica there was such a place of worship. Into that immediately he went "as his manner was."

His "manner" was to preach the Gospel everywhere. When he traveled he took his religion with him. He did not mind contempt, he was unconquered by blows, unsubdued by prisons—nothing could close the mouth of this witness for Christ. His "manner" was to reason" with people. His preaching was not dogmatic. He asked no one to believe without being first convinced. He addressed himself to the judgment, and for an example of how cogently he could reason read the 7th and 8th of Romans. His manner was to reason with them out of the Scriptures. He made his hearers feel that it was not Paul's words, but the Word of God, and that compelled their faith. It is the men who have been "mighty in the Scriptures" that have shaken continents for Christ. In proportion as he is ignorant of the Bible and unable to apply its truths man is weak as a soldier of the Cross.

At first the Jews appear to have made no opposition. But when the multitude began to be followers of Paul they were "moved with envy." They saw their own influence completely supplanted by this newcomer. Judaism was thrown into the background—Christianity was the theme of converse. Taking unto them "certain lewd fellows of the baser sort"—or, more literally, "the market-men, certain wicked fellows"—they began, like the Jews of Antioch and Iconium, to foment violence against the missionaries. There are always a plenty of lewd fellows of the baser sort who can be stirred up to lawless measures against all efforts to spread the Gospel.

Their first effort was to mob Paul and Silas. The two were stopping at the house of Jason, who is mentioned as being a kinsman of Paul's. Rom. 16: 21. Fortunately, and, probably, on account of timely warning, Paul and Silas were not in the house when the mob surrounded it. Failing of their expected prey, they drag Jason and certain of the brethren before the "rulers" with the cry that "these who have turned the world upside down have come hither also." Of course, as they intended it, the aspersion was utterly false, they themselves being the real troublers of the peace; but in another sense the accusation was true. They were "turning the world upside down"—putting it with its temptations and its sins out of sight while they directed the thoughts of men away from it to heaven. They turned the world upside down that heaven might be right side up.

Nevertheless, they so pressed their point, and so wrought upon the people and the rulers, who feared a riot from the inflamed, reckless mob that had been aroused, that the rulers took security from Jason and his companions either that Paul and Silas should no more preach or they should depart out of the city—the first being equivalent to the last. By night, therefore, that they might not fall into the hands of the rabble, the brethren sent them away to Berea, about fifty miles distant.

The lights and shades follow each other very rapidly in this narrative. At Berea the missionaries had a glimpse of sunshine. "These were more noble than those in Thessalonica in that they received the Word with all readiness of mind, and searched the Scriptures daily whether these things were so." Here are all the elements of a noble character. It is implied that Paul presented the same truths as he did in Thessalonica, and yet they accepted the Word of God with all readiness.

Therefore many of them believed. Their belief was the result not of Paul's preaching, but of their own patient, careful, thorough research. They knew what they believed and why they believed it. Would we had more such converts! The conclusions that they reach are such as will be reached by any candid enquirer. The trouble, first, is to get [illegible] to study the Bible at all, second, to do so with a mind [illegible] to acknowledge that which is [illegible]. Truth is willing to stand and [illegible] cross-questioned, but she [illegible] her face to one who [illegible] as his when the [illegible]

[illegible] the Commandments in [illegible] Sunday School, a [illegible]

The Soul's Cry and the Savior's Answer.

Psa. 30: 10, "Lord, be thou my helper."

Isa. 41: 13, "Fear not; I will help thee."

Psa. 31: 9, "O Lord, I am in trouble!"

Psa. 50: 15, "Call upon me in the day of trouble, and I will deliver thee."

Psa. 51: 2, "Wash me thoroughly from mine iniquity, and cleanse me from my sin."

Matt. 8: 3, "I will; be thou clean."

Psa. 141: 3, "Keep the door of my lips."

Exod. 4: 12, "I will be with thy mouth, and teach thee what thou shalt say."

Luke 18: 13, "God be merciful to me a sinner."

1 Tim. 1: 15, "Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners."

Acts 16: 30, "What must I do to be saved?"

Acts 16: 31, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved."

Job 23: 3, "O that I knew where I might find him."

Jer. 29: 13, "Ye shall seek me and find me when ye shall search for me with all your heart."

Job 40: 4, "Behold, I am vile; what shall I answer thee?"

Isa. 1: 18, "Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow."

Psa. 5: 10, "Create in me a clean heart, O God."

Ezek. 36: 26, "A new heart also will I give you."

Psa. 6: 6, "I am weary with my groaning."

Psa. 55: 22, "Cast thy burden upon the Lord."

Psa. 27: 9, "Leave me not, neither forsake me, O God of my salvation!"

Heb. 13: 5, "I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee."

2 Cor. 2: 16, "Who is sufficient for these things?"

2 Cor. 12: 9, "My grace is sufficient for thee."

Psa. 42: 2, "My soul thirsteth for God, for the living God."

Isa. 33: 17, "Thine eyes shall see the King in his beauty!"

Psa. 30: 6, "My soul waiteth for the Lord more than they that watch for the morning."

Isa. 40: 31, "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength."

Psa. 55: 4, "The terrors of death are fallen upon me."

John 11: 25, "He that believeth on me, though he were dead, yet shall he live."

Rev. 22: 20, "Come, Lord Jesus."

Rev. 22: 20, "Surely, I come quickly."

Origin of "He Has an Ax to Grind."

We owe more of our common sayings and pithy proverbs to Dr. Franklin than many of us think or know. We say of one who flatters or serves us for the sake of some secret, selfish gain or favor, "He has an ax to grind." In the Doctor's "Memoirs" is the following story (much after the manner of the "whistle" story), which explains the origin of the phrase:

Franklin says: When I was a little boy, I remember, one cold winter morning, I was accosted by a smiling man, with an ax on his shoulder.

"My little boy," said he, "has your father a grind stone?"

"Yes, sir," said I.

"You are a fine little fellow," said he. "Will you let me grind an ax on it?"

Pleased with the compliment of "a fine little fellow," "O yes, sir," I answered; "it is down in the shop."

"And will you, my man," said he, patting me on the head, "get me a little hot water?"

How could I refuse? I ran, and soon brought a kettle-full.

"How old are you? and what's your name?" continued he, without waiting for a reply. "I'm sure you're one of the finest lads that ever I have seen. Will you turn a few minutes for me?"

Tickled with the flattery, like a fool I went to work, and bitterly did I rue the day. It was a new ax, and I toiled and tugged till I was almost tired to death. The school-bell rang, and I could not get away. My hands were blistered, and it was not half ground. At length, however, the ax was sharpened; and the man turned to me, saying:

"Now, you little rascal, you've played the truant; now, send away to school, or you'll get it."

Alas! thought I, it was hard enough to turn a grindstone this cold day, but now to be called rascal was too much. It sunk deep in my mind, and often have I thought of it since.

When I see a merchant over-polite to his customers, begging them to take a little brandy and throwing his goods on the counter, thinks I, "That man has an ax to grind."

When I see a man flattering the people, making great professions of liberty, and prating loudly about economy, who is in private a tyrant, methinks, "Look out, good people, that fellow would see you turning a grindstone."

Beware of people who pay compliments when there is no particular occasion for so doing. They have an ax to grind, and it is not yours.—Christian Advocate.

The amount of four per cents popularly taken approximates to $70,000,000.

A Drunkard Hiding Behind Predestination.

While waiting for a train, the last day of June, at the station of Gilman, Ill., two men, each beyond threescore and ten, straggled into the depot, strangers to us and to each other. To an observer they were far unlike. The one, ragged and miserable, sat down close beside us, and evidently sought to attract our notice, fixing his glaring, inquisitive eyes upon us. At last, pointing to his own breast, he said; "It's a perfect wreck—in here—this old man's life—a perfect wreck."

"What made the wreck?" we interposed.

"Made it?" he replied, "Whisky, my son, made it all. I'll tell you my story, and you may give me a dime or two, if you choose." He brushed away a tear and proceeded: "I was born in Murfreesboro', Tenn. I was rich, my son, had thousands at interest, was valued at forty thousand, but, fool that I have been, it all went for whisky; and now I haven't got a cent. Then my wife"—and he brushed aside another tear—"She is gone, too—left me; and I—I didn't speak to her when she left—I was drunk. She is a most beautiful woman, a dear woman; not a gray hair like this old head, though nearly as old; but she's gone. Oh! I can never feel right till this is fixed up."

But why don't you stop drinking, be a man, and seek your wife again?" we enquired.

"Me stop drinking?" he repeated with weeping emphasis. "My son, I can't; it's impossible; might as well stop eating; have no more responsibility than a baby; can't help it; God don't regard me responsible."

"Were you never religious?" we interposed.

"Religious? Yes, I'm religious now, but I'm drunk; never was a more religious being; I'm a good Presbyterian; but I'm not responsible."

The other old man, neat, venerable and attractive, had nervously listened to all the foregoing, but at these last utterances he twitched upon his feet, saying, with a quick utterance, "You drunk, and not responsible, and religious, too? You are of those who say hell is paved with infant skulls, are ye? I belong to the big Church, but I know better than that. You burn your finger and not suffer the penalty, eh? Better be a man, be sober, and find your wife!"

"I'm a wreck; I can't; I can't; she's gone, gone, sighed the old man, as he staggered across the street to the nearest grocery, to beg more of the fiery liquid.

Yes, wed, thought we, like thousands, to the glass; and yet he claims to be both religious and irresponsible, and seeks to hide behind the decrees of Jehovah. What a hideous apology for a more hideous sin! How awful is the slavery of the cup!—Zion's Herald.

The Hearts of the Lowly.

One day three or four weeks ago a gamin, who seemed to have no friends in the world, was run over by a vehicle on Gratiot avenue and fatally injured. After he had been in the hospital for a week a boy about his age and size, and looking as friendless and forlorn, called to ask about him and to leave an orange. He seemed much embarrassed, and would answer no questions. After that he came daily, always bringing something, if no more than an apple. Last week, when the nurse told him that Billy had no chance to get well, the strange boy waited around longer than usual, and finally asked if he could go in. He had been invited too many times before, but had always refused. Billy, pale and weak and emaciated, opened his eyes in wonder at the sight of the boy and before he realized who it was the stranger bent close to his face and sobbed:

"Billy, can ye forgive a feller? We was allus fighting and I was allus to much for ye, but I'm sorry! Fore ye die won't ye tell me yo haven't any grudge agin me?"

The young lad, then almost in the shadow of death, reached up his thin white arms, clasped them around the others neck, and replied:

"Don't cry Bob—don't feel bad! I was ugly and mean, and I was heaving a stone at ye when the wagon hit me. If ye'll forgive me I'll forgive you, and I'll pray for both of us!"

Bob was half an hour late the morning Billy died. When the nurse took him to the shrouded corpse he kissed the pale face tenderly and gasped:

"D-did he say anything about—about me!"

"He spoke of you just before he died—asked if you were here," replied the nurse.

"And may I go—go to the funeral?"

"You may."

And he did. He was the only mourner. His heart was the only one that ached. No tear was shed by others, and they left him sitting by the new made grave with heart so big that he could not speak.

If, under the crust of vice or ignorance, there are such springs of pure feeling and true nobility, who shall grow weary of doing good?—Detroit Free Press.

A Yankee editor, in his financial article, says, "Money is close, but not close enough to reach."

Water.

Some years ago a ship sailing in the South Atlantic saw another making signals of distress. They bore down toward the sufferers, and hailed them.

"What is the matter?" cried the captain, through his trumpet.

"We are dying for water," was the feeble response.

"Dip it up, then!" shouted back the astonished captain; "you are in the mouth of the Amazon river."

And sure enough, there those sailors were, with parched lips and swollen tongues, supposing that there was nothing but the ocean's brine around them, when they were in the mouth of the mightiest river on the globe, with three hundred miles of fresh water all around them.

Thus are we, poor thirsty souls, sailing on the boundless ocean of God's love, heedless of the Divine voice which saith, "If thou knewest the gift of God, and who it is that saith to thee, 'Give me to drink,' thou wouldst have asked of Him, and he would have given thee living water."

Our Standard.

1. He that walketh uprightly;
2. And worketh righteousness,
3. And speaketh the truth in his heart.
4. He that backbiteth not with his tongue.
5. Nor doeth evil to his neighbor.
6. Nor taketh up a reproach against his neighbor.
7. In whose eyes a vile person is contemned;
8. But he honoreth them that fear the Lord.
9. He that sweareth to his own hurt, and changeth not.
10. He that putteth not out his money to usury,
11. Nor taketh reward against the innocent.

He that doeth these things shall never be moved.

The standard of a citizen of Christ's kingdom is embodied in the above eleven inspired propositions laid down in the fifteenth Psalm.

The society of Orangemen is a political one, and was formed in 1795, in Northern Ireland, and named in honor of King William III., who was the Prince of Orange. It was formed in opposition to the Roman Catholic organization of Ribbonmen, and for the purpose of defending the Protestant religion in Ireland and the legislative union of Great Britain and Ireland. The association was dissolved in 1836, but was revived in 1845, although its processions are still forbidden in Ireland. In 1829 the institution was transferred to British America with great success, where it has large numbers, principally in Canada. It celebrates the 12th of July because on that day, 1690, the battle of the Boyne was fought, in which William III. defeated James II.

A deputation of forty men, each representing a different trade, and representing altogether about 1,000,000 English workingmen, waited on ex-President Grant, June 3rd, and presented him with an address welcoming him to England, and assuring him of their good wishes and deep regard for the welfare and progress of America, where British workmen had always found a welcome. Impromptu speeches were then made by members of the deputation, all of which were extremely cordial. General Grant replied in a very appropriate speech

Wanted.

At Meridian, Miss., a first class lady teacher, colored, to take charge of a school first week in September next. Address Rev. M. Adams, Meridian, Miss.

Quarterly Meetings.

Okolona (Miss.,) District.

THIRD ROUND.

Okolona, August 18-19; Corinth, August 4-5; Tupelo, August 11-12; Spring Valley and Union Grove, August 25-26; Houston, September 1-2; West Point, September 8-9; Tampico, September 10-11; Columbus and Circuit, September 15-16; Athens, September 17-18; Spring Valley and Union Grove, September 22-23; Big Black, September 24-25; Pontotoc, September 29-30; Union Grove, October 6-7; Tibbe, October 13-14; Calhoun, October 20-21; Aberdeen, October 27-28; Buena Vista, October 26.

The Okolona District Conference, will meet at Aberdeen, October 29. All the Traveling and Local Preachers, Exhorters, District Stewards and Sunday School Superintendents, are requested to be present.

D. McLACHLAN, P. E.

San Antonio (Tex.,) District.

Columbus, August 4 and 5; Columbus circuit, August 4 and 5; Alleyton, August 10 and 12; Eagle Lake, August 14 and 15; San Antonio, August 18 and 19; Henry, August 25 and 26; Texana, September 1 and 2; Victoria circuit, September 8 and 9; Mission Valley, September 15 and 16; Indianola, September 29 and 30; Speaksville, September 29 and 30; Victoria, October 6 and 7; Peach Creak, October 6 and 7; Corpus Christi, October 6 and 7; Hondo, October 6 and 7; Floresville, October 6 and 7; Southerland Springs, October 6 and 7; Nockernut, October 6 and 7; Lavernia, October 6 and 7; Belmont, October 6 and 7; Riddleville, October 6 and 7; Oakland, October 6 and 7; Halletsville, October 6 and 7.

D. GREGORY, P. E.

Murfreesboro (Tenn.,) Dist.

FOURTH ROUND.

Stone River, 4 and 5; Murfreesboro Circuit, August 9 and 10; Murfreesboro, August 11 and 12; Alexandria, August 15 and 16; Carthage, August 18 and 19; Lebanon, August 25 and 26; North Lebanon, August 29 and 30; Hartsville, September 1 and 2; Gallatin, September 1 and 2; Mitchellsville, September 8 and 9; Springfield, September 15 and 16; Dickson, September 22 and 23; Nashville Circuit, September 26 and 27; Clark Chapel 29 and 30.

C. PICKETT, P. E.

Memphis (Tenn.,) Dist.

FOURTH ROUND.

Memphis, July 7; Adamsville, July 14 Shiloh, July 16; White Sulphur, July 18; Saltillo July 21; Lexington July 25; Decaturville, July 28; Camden, August 1; Clarksburg, August 4; Benton, August 8; Weakley, August 11; Alamo, August 15; Lake, August 18; Carroll and Huntingdon, August 25; Dickson, September 1; Dickson circuit, September 5; Buffalo, September 8; Wayne, September 12; Indian Creek, September 15; Lawrenceburg, September 22.

The Memphis district Sunday-school Extension Society, composed of the members of the district conference, will hold its second session at White Sulphur, Hardin county, July 17th to 20th. Opening service, 17th, at 8 o'clock p. m.

The district conference will meet at Shoat's Creek, Giles county, September 26th. Opening sermon at 7 o'clock p. m., by Rev. E. N. Williams.

J. L. CHANDLER, P. E.

Houston, (Texas) District.

THIRD ROUND.

Richmond and Forest Chapel, July 1-2; Church Houston, July 7-8; Edwards Chapel, July 9-10; Harrisburg and West Point, July 14-15; Columbia and Brazoria, July 21-22; 1st Church Houston, August; 4-5; Spring Creek, 25-26; East Church Tabernacle, September 1-2; Galveston, Staffords, September 8-9; Cypress, September, 15-16; Oyster Creek, September 22-23.

W. L. MOLLOY, P. E.

Marshall (Tex.) District.

THIRD ROUND.

Coffeeville, June 30 July 1; Morion, July 7-8 Marshall, July 14-15; Jefferson, Circuit July 21-22; Jefferson, July 28-29; Hickory Grove, July 28-29; Clarksville, August 4-5th; Union, August 4-5; Paris July 11th-12; Quitman, Aug. 18-19; Vanzant, Aug. 25-26; Greenville, Sept. 1st. 2nd; Sulphur Springs, Sept. 8-9th; Mt. Pleasant, Sept. 15-16.

F. C. MOORE, P. E.

Holly Springs (Miss.) District.

SECOND ROUND.

Mt. Pleasant, July 7-8; Kosciusko, July 14-15; French Camp, July 16-17; Greensboro, July 17-19, Winona and Vaiden 21-22; Duck Hill, July 26-27; Granada, July 28-29; Geonada Circuit, July 23-29; Oxford, Aug. 4-5; New Albany, Aug. 8-9; Ripley, Aug. Hickory Flat, Aug. 15; Holly Springs Aug. 18-19; Byhalia, Aug. 21-22; Chulahoma, Aug. 24; Abbeville, Aug. 25-26; Eliza, Aug. 30 and Sept 1st. First District Conference for Holly Springs District will meet on the 14th day of June, at Grenada; all the brethren are requested to be present.

J. G. JOHNSON, P. E.

Greenswood (Miss.) District.

Second Round.)

Wesley Chapel, 9 and 10th of June; Silver Creek, 16th and 17th of June; Yazoo City, 23rd and 24th of June; Piney Grove, 30th of June and 1st of July; Deasonville, 7th and 8th of July; Pickens, 14 and 15 of July; Lexington, 21st and 22d of July; Goodman, 28th and 29th of July; Jones Chapel, 4th and 5th of August; McNutt, 11th and 12th of August; Cooey Creek, 18th and 19th of August; New Midway, 25th and 26th of August; Hornando, 1st and 2d of September; Panola, 8th and 9th of September; Cold Water, 15th and 16th of September; Walnut City, 22nd and 23d of Sept; Shiloh 26th and 30th Sept.

J. W. DUNN, P. E.

Meridian (Miss.) District.

Roma. June 23-24; Ex-Prairie, June 30 and July 1; Macon, July 7-8; Shuqualak, July 11-12; DeKalb, July 14-15; Lauderdale July 21-22; Daleville, July 24-25; Meridian 28-29; Meridian Circuit August 4-5; Quitman August 11-12; Shubuta Circuit, August 15-16; State Line, Aug. 18-19; Shubuta, August 21-22; Enterprise Circuit, Aug. 25-26; Enterprise, Aug. 28-29.

M. ADAMS, P. E.

San Antonio (Tex.) District.

Sutherland Springs, June 23-24; Nockernut, July 1; Cibola, July 4 and 5; Riddleville, July 4 and 5; Lavernia, 7 and 8; Goliad Circuit, July 11 and 12; Belmont, July 14 and 15; Refugio, July 18 and 19; Wrightsboro, July 21 and 22; Goliad, July 28 and 29.

D. GREGORY, P. E.

Gannett Institute FOR YOUNG LADIES, BOSTON, MASS.

The 24th year will begin Wednesday, Sept. 26, 1877. For Catalogues and Circular, apply to Rev. Geo. Gannett, Principal, 69 Chester Square, Boston, Mass. Aug. 7-5t.

Church Furniture.

MENEELY BELLS.

The genuine Troy Church Bells, known to the public since 1826.

CATALOGUES FREE.

Post-office address, either Troy or West Troy, N. Y. MENEELY & CO. Aug. 9-1 y.

Every Lady Her Own Physician.

Ladies' own Prescription. Information of great value to every lady sent free, by addressing Dr. W. C. Stevens, 911 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa. [aug16-tf

ROANOKE COLLEGE, SALEM, VA.

Next session begins September 5th, 1877. Collegiate, elective and preparatory courses. Unsurpassed location. Mountain climate. Moral community. Five Churches in town. Expenses for 9½ months, including tuition, board, etc., from $160 to $240. Students from fifteen States, Indian Territory, and Mexico. Patronage constantly increasing. For catalogues, etc., address jy12-41] SECRETARY OF FACULTY.

Hospital College of Medicine.

(The clinical School of the West.)

Med. Dept. of Central Univ., Louisville, Ky.

Distinctive features: A thorough didactic course, unsurpassed clinical facilities, eighteen clinics per week, the student being daily required to examine and prescribe, a high standard of graduation, both a didactic and a practical clinical examination being required.

For catalogues and information concerning special advantages address:

DR. W. H. BOLLING, DEAN, Cor. Third and Jefferson Sts., Louisville, Ky.

Staunton Female Seminary.

STAUNTON, VIRGINIA.

Rev. J. I. Miller, A. M., Principal, with a full corps of teachers, including Mrs. Gen. J. E. B. Stuart. School not sectarian. Four denominations represented in the faculty. Board and home comforts the best. Positively no extravagance in dress allowed. Terms liberal. Session opens Sept. 6th, 1877. Send for catalogue to the Principal. [jy26-4t

Heathen Woman's Friend.

24 PAGES MONTHLY.

PRICE 30 CENTS.

Specimen Copies sent Gratuitously.

MRS. L. H. DAGGETT, Agent. 36 Bromfield street, Boston, Mass. july19-4t

SOUTHWESTERN AGENCY

FOR

School and College Text Books.

Office No. 80 CAMP STREET (up stairs).

Below we submit the MODEL SERIES of books (so conceded by the leading educators of this country) for use in PRIMARY, INTERMEDIATE and GRAMMAR schools. To insure their adoption by the progressive teacher we have only to ask a careful comparison with books of a like grade, a critical examination and a thorough, practical test in the class-room:

	Prices.
Harper's Introductory Geography	60
Harper's School Geography	$1 25
" United States First Reader	15
" " " Second "	26
" " " Third "	37
" " " Fourth "	56
" " " Fifth "	75
" " " Sixth "	90
Wilson's Primary Speller	15
" Larger "	30
" New "	34
Lamson's Penmanship, per dozen	1 08
French's First Lessons in Numbers	25
" Elementary Arithmetic	37
" Mental Arithmetic	36
" Common School Arithmetic	70
Swinton's Language Primer	30
" Language Lessons	37
" School Composition	37
" Progressive Grammar	55

Catalogues, circulars, and testimonials sent on applications. Correspondence solicited and will receive prompt attention, when addressed

W. P. ROGERS & W. L. JARVIS, Agents for the introduction of Harper & Brother' Educational Works; New Orleans, La.; Lock Box 134.

NEW ANTHEM BOOK, JUST PUBLISHED

Chapel Anthems

By Dr. J. B. Herbert, assisted by the best writers of the day. Supplies a long felt need for a collection of new, short, and practical Anthems for Choirs, Conventions, Singing Classes, etc. Sample copy mailed on receipt of retail price, $1 25. Liberal discount on quantities.

Heavenward! Is the leading new book of Sunday-school Songs. By Jas. R. Murray, P.P. Bliss, and others, and the only new book containing Mr. Bliss' best songs. Send 25 cts. for sample copy, in paper covers. Price in boards, 35 cents, or $30 00 per hundred.

Songs of Faith New Gospel Hymns and Sacred Songs by the best writers including Moody & Sankey's famous songs. The latest and best book for Revival, Praise or Camp Meetings. Price, words and music, 35 cts. $30 per 100. WORDS ONLY, 6cts. $5 00 per hundred.

SONGS OF P. P. BLISS

A collection of about forty of the best and most popular Songs, Duets, Quartets etc., secular and sacred, by the late P. P. Bliss. Most of the songs in this little volume can be found in no other book. Contains also a fine portrait of P. P. Bliss and sketch of his life. Edited by James R. Murray.

PRICE, tinted paper, neatly bound in boards, 30 cts., in cloth, red edges, 50 cts., in cloth, full gilt, 75 cts. Sold by most book and music dealers, or mailed on receipt of price.

☞ Catalogue of Sheet Music and Music Books sent FREE.

S. BRAINARD'S SONS, Publishers, Cleveland, O.

Texas Lands.

Best Investment in the Nation!

640 acres rich prairie loam, producing cotton, grains, fruit and vegetables, and adapted to stock, lying in the high and healthful latitude of Northwestern Texas, for the nominal sum of $266.

Title Patent, direct and perfect. Taxes low. Worth several times the cost. Now is your time to plant a small sum fruitfully. No fraud. All work personally supervised. Handled in the interest of education in Texas. Full particulars furnished on application, (with stamps).

References: Rev. Wm. Brush, D.D., P. E. Austin District, Austin, Texas; First National Bank, Dallas, Texas; State Savings Bank, Dallas, Texas, or editor of this paper. Address

REV. L. H. CARHART, West Texas Conference.

☞ Box 377, Dallas, Texas. [a19-tf

"The principle of combining English and American writers in a common literary enterprise, merits all encouragement."—J. Anthony Froude.

THE

INTERNATIONAL REVIEW,

A NEW YORK AND LONDON REVIEW.

EMINENT CONTRIBUTORS ON BOTH SIDES OF THE ATLANTIC. (No articles at second hand. All articles original.)

CONTENTS.—MAY-JUNE—NOW READY.

The New Administration.
The Life Insurance Question. Carlton T. Lewis.
Disestablishment of the Church of England, Dr. James H. Rigg, London.
The Philadelphia Exhibition.—Part I. Mechanism and Administration. Francis A. Chief of the Bureau of Awards.
Tennyson.—A Criticism. Bayard Taylor.
Our Foreign Service. Hon. John Jay.
American and European Literature. Phillip Gilbert Hamerton.
Contemporary Events.

Price, Single Number, $1. For six months $3. Annual subscription (6 numbers) $5.

New York: A. S. BARNES & CO., apr27-10t] Publishers.

NEW ENG. CONSERVATORY of MUSIC.

16,000 pupils since 1875, 75 eminent instructors. 115 hours instruction for $15. Musical, Literary and Art courses. 4 terms a year. Address E. TOURJEE, Music Hall, Boston Mass. [july 19-4teow

E. HEATH. W. F. PIPPEY, M. LARA.

HEATH, PIPPEY & LARA,

99.........CAMP STREET.........99

NEW ORLEANS.

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

UPHOLSTERERS MATERIALS,

Wall Paper,

Window Shades, Cornices, and

CURTAIN GOODS.

PICTURES, FRAMES,

MOULDINGS, MIRRORS,

LOCKS, WIRE-CLOTH,

WINDOW & DOOR SCREENS

FRAMING DONE TO ORDER. 14-1y

F. F. HANSELL,

JAS. A. GRESHAM, Manager.

BOOK-SELLERS, PRINTERS,

AND STATIONERS.

No. 30 CAMP STREET,

Would respectfully announce to the readers of the ADVOCATE their facilities for doing all kinds of Printing and Job Work for PARTIES, BALLS, and BUSINESS PURPOSES.

Methodist Hymn Books, Disciplines and Bibles

Will be furnished at Northern Prices.

FAMILY BIBLES,

from $2 50 to $10 00. Orders from the country will receive prompt attention, and all orders filled as low as if brought in person.

Address, as above, F. F. HANSELL, 30 Camp street, New Orleans, La.

Box 84. [je14-77-3m.]

E. D. ELLIOTT,

PRINTER

39 Natchez st., New Orleans.

THE NEW MOON.

Dear mother, how pretty
The moon is to-night,
'Twas never so cunning before;
Her two little horns
Are so sharp and so bright,
I hope she'll not grow any more.

If I were up there,
With you and my friends,
I'd rock in it nicely you'd see.
I would sit in the middle,
And hold on by both ends;
O what a bright cradle 'twould be!

I would call to the stars
To keep out of the way,
Lest we should rock over their toes;
And then I would rock
Till the dawn of the day,
And see where the pretty moon goes.

And then we would stay
In the beautiful skies,
And through the bright clouds we would roam;
We would see the sun rise,
And see the sun set,
And on the next rainbow come home.

A Fly's Toilet.

The toilet of the fly is as carefully attended to as that of the most frivolous of human insects. With a contempt for the looking-glass, he brushes himself up and wabbles his little round head, chuck full of vanity, wherever he happens to be. Sometimes, after a long day of dissipation and flirtation, with his six small legs and little round body all soiled with sirup and butter and cream, he passes out of the dining-room and wings his way to the clean white cord along which the morning glories climb, and in this retired spot, heedless of the crafty spider that is practising gymnastics a few feet above him, he proceeds to purify and sweeten himself for the refreshing repose and soft dreams of the balmy summer night, so necessary to one who is expected to be early at breakfast. It is a wonderful toilet. Resting himself on his front and middle legs, he throws his hind legs rapidly over his body, binding down his frail wings for an instant with the pressure, then raking them over with a backward motion, which he repeats until they are bright and clear. Then he pushes the two legs along his back under the wings, giving the latter structure a thorough polishing every now and then throwing out and rubbing them behind to remove what has collected upon his corporeal surface. He then goes to work upon his van. Resting on his hind legs and midway, he raises his two forelegs for a vigorous scraping of head and shoulders, using his mouth a little while to push off the dust from his limbs. He is so energetic that it seems as if he were trying to pull himself out; but no fly ever comes out. Some of his movements resemble those of a quiet. It is plain, to the eye, that he does it thoroughly, for when he has finished he looks like a new pin, and neat has he made himself in a few minutes. The toilet is decided, but Floppy is at it again, and he bids the spider a very good evening.—Journal.

[illegible] who neglects her husband is not the wife of [illegible]

FRIENDS.

Letters asking for information will be answered. All such letters will be [illegible]. We make no charge for these announcements to the general public, enclose fifty cents for postage. Pastors [illegible] of churches where friends reside, or letters in the [illegible]

[illegible] whose name was [illegible] James [illegible] belonged to Mr. Bar[illegible] Virginia. [illegible] small, they were [illegible] named [illegible] I will be [illegible] concerning Mrs. Charlotte [illegible], P. O.

[illegible] of my brother, [illegible] aged to a [illegible] Middle [illegible] Mrs. Jeannette D. Moore, Lewis[illegible]

[illegible] Jackson [illegible]

AGAIN.

[illegible] route [illegible] with [illegible]

[illegible] Chicago [illegible]

[illegible] New Orleans, La. [illegible]

CENTRAL TENNESSEE COLLEGE,

Nashville, Tennessee.

This Institution, supported by the Freedman's Aid Society of the M. E. Church, is open for all. The following departments are now organized: Academic, Normal, Scientific, Preparatory, Collegiate, Theological, Law and Medicine.

The Academic furnishes a thorough business education, or prepares for the study of the professions.

The Normal, qualifies for teaching. The demand for thorough teachers is so great that special efforts are made to meet the requirements of young men and women who expect to teach.

The Scientific is the College course omitting Latin and Greek.

The Preparatory and College courses embrace the studies usually required for the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

The Law School just organized is to fit students to practice in any of our Courts.

The Meharry Medical School opens its second session October 1st, and continues twenty weeks. A full course of study, in the various branches of medicine, and a satisfactory examination, is required in order to graduation.

The Theological School is open to all the candidates for the ministry of any denomination, who come recommended by the church to which they belong, or bring with them a license to preach or exhort. Students in this department are not required to pay tuition, and their other expenses will be made as low as practicable. The expenses in this department need not exceed $7 50 or $8 00 per month. Students are required to bring satisfactory evidence of good character.

EXPENSES:

Tuition, Room Rent and Board per month of 4 weeks	$ 8 00
Lights, Fuel and Washing " " " $1 25 to	2 00
Music, with use of Piano or Organ, per month	3 00
Expenses for year of nine months, including books and Christmas Vacation, from $90 00 to $100	00
Medical School Tuition	30 00
Matriculation Fee	5 00
Graduation Fee	10 00
Law School Tuition, per year	30 00

The next session of College and Law School opens Sept. 5th, 1877. The Medical School opens Oct. 1st, 1877, and closes Feb. 22d, 1878. College year closes May 16th, 1878.

For further information address,

REV. J. BRADEN, Nashville, Tenn.

A. H. NELSON,

Commercial Stationer, Printer, Blank

BOOK MANUFACTTRER and LITHOGRAPHER.

THE best assortment of Blank Books in the city.
The Finest Specimens of Lithographic work to be found in New Orleans.

No. 57 CAMP STREET,

Sign of the Mammoth Letter Press.

☞ Call and Prove My Statements. [oct12-76 1y

THE

Houston and Texas Central Railroad,

Operating over 500 miles of superior road, runs North and South through the

FINEST AGRICULTURAL and GRAZING DISTRICTS in TEXAS

And offers the most desirable sites for location to parties immigrating to that great State. The

NORTHWESTERN BRANCH

Of this road, which is now being pushed forward beyond Waco, will pierce the Great Mineral region of

NORTHWESTERN TEXAS.

For further information, address
J. R. COFFIN, S. P. A., Chattanooga, Tenn.
C. R. WHITNEY & CO., New Orleans, La.
J. WALDO, G. P. A., or J. DURAND, Gen'l Superintendent, Houston, Texas. [mar22-77-1y

PAN-HANDLE

AND

PENNSYLVANIA Railroad Route.

The Favorite Trunk Line.

Only one change of cars to New York, and that at 7:30 in the morning, at Cincinnati.

No omnibus transfers on any part of the line.

Best equipped and shortest route to all the eastern cities.

Best Route to Long Branch, Cape May, Atlantic City, New Port, and all the Atlantic sea-coast watering places.

Best route to Cresson, Altoona, the celebrated Bedford Springs, and all the noted mountain retreats of the Allegheny range; and also the best route to Bethlehem on the Lehigh river, and all the noted resorts in the Anthracite coal regions of Pennsylvania.

This route is supplied with all the modern improvements for speed, safety, and comfort; and continuous trains run without stoppages for fuel or water, as the water is supplied while the trains are in motion.

Pullman and Drawing Room coaches on all trains.

Double-tracked, stone balasted, free from dust, and steel rails laid according to scientific principles, to avoid jarring which is the cause of so many [illegible] who have availed themselves of the comforts to be found on the old Pan-Handle and Pennsylvania, unhesitatingly [illegible] that for families and tourists, it is the best route; for business men who appreciate promptness it is far [illegible] and eating houses [illegible] will have an enviable reputation—the tables being [illegible] with the markets of the country.

[illegible] Via Louisville and Pan-Handle Route.

W. L. GARRIEN,
Agent, Columbus, Ohio.

[illegible] Ohio.

[illegible] New Orleans, La.
[June14-77-6t.

IMPROVED

CABINET ORGANS.

EXCELLING WHAT HAS PREVIOUSLY BEEN ACCOMPLISHED IN

POWER, PURITY AND DELICACY OF TONES.

THE LIST CABINET ORGAN

(Style No. 501.—Five Octave; Seven Sets of Reeds of Two and a Half Octaves each, and One Set of One Octave; Fifteen Stops; New Scale of Reed-Board, Reeds and Actions, with Ventrillo Chest and other Improvements, patented 1876-7.

Base.—Contra Basso, 16 ft.; English Horn, 8 ft.; Viola, 4 ft.; Viola Dolce, 4 ft.; Sub-Base, 16 ft. Treble.—Corno, 16 ft.; Melodia, 8 ft.; Piccolo, 4 ft.; Seraphone, 8 ft.; Voix Celeste, 8 ft. Throughout.—Full Organ, (knee stop,) Vox Humana, Octave Coupler, (coupling up,) knee Swell, I. Forte, II. Forte.

The Mason & Hamlin Organ Co., have the pleasure of announcing that specimens of this fine Organ, (the similes in their musical part of one furnished Dr. Franz Liszt,) are now ready, and may be seen at their Warerooms and Principal Agencies. The origin of this improved Organ, and of its name, is as follows:

Having occasion to make an organ expressly for the very celebrated Dr. Franz Liszt, in which full unusual power was especially desired, as well as such delicacy and purity of tone as could afford satisfaction to so critical a judgment as that of the great maestro, we took the opportunity to carry out and introduce improvements which had been first presented in our Organs, at the U. S. Centennial Exhibition, with others which had long been in progress. The result was more than satisfactory to ourselves; the improvement greater than we had ventured to expect. In our own warerooms in Boston and New York the new Instrument was seen and tested by a number of the best musicians in the country, who pronounced it a material advance upon all that had before been accomplished. In the rooms of the Agent for the sale of our Organs in Hannover, Germany, it was also greatly admired. The Hannover Courier declared it to be "at the very height of development of instruments of the class," evincing "extraordinary progress." After its receipt and trial, Dr. Franz Liszt wrote to the Agent: "The beautiful organ of Mason & Hamlin Organ Company of Boston receives no less praise here than in Hannover. It fully justifies the remarkable, well-founded, and widespread renown of these superb instruments." It was immediately put in use in his orchestra.

We are confirmed in our judgment then, that the tones of this new Organ are the finest that have ever been produced from reeds, not because of mere oddity of effect, but from their true diapason-like quality and fulness, and from their excellent power and pervading and sustaining effect; and that, as a whole, it is, in proportion to its size and extent, much in advance of anything we have before been able to produce.

Circulars with full particulars, also Catalogues illustrating and describing all the styles of the celebrated MASON & HAMLIN CABINET ORGANS, which have taken highest honors at all the World's Exhibitions of recent years, are the only American Organs which have ever taken highest award at any such, sent free.

MASON & HAMLIN Organ Co.
154 Tremont St., Boston; 25 Union Sq., N. Y
250, and 252 Wabash Avenue, Chicago.

Madame FOY'S
Corset Skirt Supporter
Increases in popularity every year.
And for HEALTH, COMFORT and STYLE is acknowledged the BEST ARTICLE of the kind ever made. For sale by all leading jobbers and retailers. Beware of imitations and infringements.
MANUFACTURED SOLELY BY
FOY & HARMON,
New Haven, Conn.
[m1-13t]

A. P. HARRINGTON,

No. 118 Canal Street,

New Orleans, - - - - - - La.

Dealer in

LAW, MEDICAL, SCHOOL, RELIGIOUS, AGRICULTURAL AND MISCELLANEOUS

BOOKS

Stationery, Gold Pens and Pencils.

Pocket Books, Card Cases, Pocket Knives, Scrap Books, Chromos, Photograph Albums, Stereoscopes, Maps, Globes, Writing Desks, Etc.

☞ PRINTING, RULING and BINDING.

Subscriptions taken for Newspapers and Magazines, Payable in advance.

☞ Country Orders Solicited. ☜
feb19-77-1y

Virginia Female Institute,

STAUNTON, VIRGINIA,

The 33rd annual session of this institution will commence Sept. 12, 1877. Buildings spacious, heated by steam and lighted by gas. Hot and cold water on the several floors. Grounds extensive. Large corps of experienced teachers. Patronage represents 19 States. Methodist church within three minutes' walk. For catalogue address REV. R. H. PHILLIPS, Rector.

10,000 COPIES SOLD IN EIGHT WEEKS.

THE LATEST, FRESHEST, and MOST COMPLETE OF ALL THE

MOODY LITERATURE.

FIVE BOOKS IN ONE.

MOODY: His Words, Work and Workers.

EDITED BY REV. W. H. DANIELS, M. A.

With an Introduction by Rev. Chas. H. Fowler, DD., LL.D.

Of the many volumes called out by the wonderful career of Messrs. MOODY AND SANKEY, all have hitherto been more or less fragmentary, and without systematic arrangement. In the above work the design has been to bring within the compass of a single volume of generous size THE MAN HIMSELF: A full and Systematic Presentation of his Bible Doctrines: An account of his most prominent CO-WORKERS: and a chapter on that most marvelous movement in modern evangelism, THE GOSPEL TEMPERANCE REVIVAL.

In order to make the volume fresh and complete, Mr. Daniels, who edits this work, has made a visit to Boston, to learn, by personal observation, as he has done in the case of the Moody and Sankey revivals in other great cities on both sides of the Atlantic, the progress of the revival work there.

This volume contains 552 pages, crown octavo, including twelve full-page illustrations; is elegantly printed on fine paper; is handsomely bound; and is not only a book of the widest and most permanent interest and value of any yet published in this line, but is also the

CHEAPEST FOR ITS PRICE.

Full Cloth, Gilt Stamp	$2 00
Half Morocco, Marble Edge	$2 75

AGENTS WANTED EVERYWHERE.

The publishers are appointing from fifteen to twenty agents daily, which is the very best evidence of the fact that the book meets the popular want. Many who are canvassing for other similar works are dropping them and taking this.

MINISTERS, STUDENTS, TEACHERS, LADIES,

And other intelligent persons, are wanted to canvass for this work. It will be

SOLD ONLY BY SUBSCRIPTION.

READ HOW IT SELLS.

Rev. J. S. Wickline, one of our Agents, writes, under date of June 12, as follows: "Messrs. Nelson & Phillips: I sold twenty-four books in two days; showed the book to twenty-five persons, and took twenty-four subscribers."

No other book in the market, now being sold by subscription, is selling so fast.

It is preeminently the best book on Mr. Moody and his Work that has yet appeared.

Send postal card for full description, circulars, and terms to

NELSON & PHILLIPS,
Lock Box B., New Orleans.

P. S.—Where we have no Agents, the book will be sent, postage prepaid, on receipt of retail price.

$12 a day at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. True & Co., Augusta, Maine.
Dec 1 76 1y]

FOUR MONTHS OF

GOOD HEALTH

FOR 25 CENTS.

ANY PERSON WHO WILL BUY A BOX OF

Parson's Purgative PILL

And will take one (1) each night for four (4) nights, and will do this every third (3d) week during the months of June, July, August and September, will not be troubled with Fever and Ague, nor Malarious Fever, nor Bilious Fever, nor any of the diseases resulting from miasmatic poison, common in Missouri, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas. If Parson's Purgative Pills cannot be obtained at your nearest store, send 25 cts. to the undersigned, and the pills shall be sent, post paid, by return mail. Physicians supplied by mail at $2.50 per thousand in bulk. As this is but little more than half price for standard pills by the thousand, cash must accompany the order. The Receipe will be cheerfully sent to any physician on application. We will send Parson's Pills by mail to responsible parties on commission at $2 per dozen, sample dozens at $1 35, cash with the order.

WHOLESALE AGENTS.

COLLINS BROS.....St. Louis, Mo.
G. W. JONES & CO.....Memphis Tenn.
E. J. HART & CO.....New Orleans, La.
C. J. LINCOLN & CO.....Little Rock, Ark.
T. C. THOMPSON & CO.....Galveston, Tex.

ADDRESS ALL ORDERS TO

I. S. JOHNSON & CO.
Bangor, Maine, Proprietors.
je21-1y]

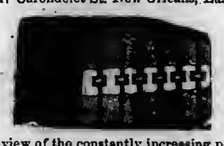
$66 a week in your own town. Terms and outfit free. H. Hallet & Co., Portland, Maine.
Dec 21 76 1y]

FOR 10 CENTS, and 3 cent stamp for postage, we will send for one year, the handsome 8-page paper, Model Printer. Address, J. W. Harpersbay & Co., 706 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Publishers, and Manufs of the Celebrated

MODEL PRINTER'S GUIDE
also our superbly illustrated 100 page Instruction and Specimen Book, entitled
How to Print
Worth ten times the cost to every Business Man and Printer. Address, J. W. Harpersbay & Co., 706 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Publishers, and Manufs of the Celebrated

MODEL PRINTING PRESS.
For Cards and Business, the best. Nine styles, from $4.00 up.

OFFICE AMERICAN COTTON TIE CO. LIMITED
47 Carondelet St. New Orleans, La.



In view of the constantly increasing popularity and demand for the Celebrated Arrow Tie, the universally recognized favorite Tie of Planters, Cotton Pressman and Shippers of Cotton generally, the American Cotton Tie Co., Limited, sole proprietors and manufacturers of said Tie, commanding unequalled facilities, have, in addition to the large stock now on hand, contracted for increased quantities, sufficient to meet the largest demand for Cotton Ties, to cover the entire crop of the coming season, and now, through their Agents generally, offer the popular and irrepressible ARROW TIE at $2.50 per bundle, less 2½ per cent. discount for cash, in Bundles complete, being less than the market value of plain hoop iron; and it being the purpose of the Company to merit the continued patronage of the Planting community and to defy all competition that may arise; their Agents are instructed to contract with Dealers, Factors and country Merchants at the above named price and terms for future delivery up to the first of August in quantities as may be required from time to time, settlements being made on delivery.

R. W. RAYNE, & CO.,
GENERAL MANAGERS,
je-21-77-1y] New Orleans, La.

Lungs and Throat.

Inhalation of common air in Incipient Consumption will cure. Dr. J. M. Howe, of Passaic, N. J., sends his Tube, with full directions, post free for $3 50. Send for circulars. may2tf.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine. [Dec 21 76 1y

THE

SINGER AGAIN TO THE FRONT!

GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICES

—OF THE—

WORLD-RENOWNED

Singer Family Sewing Machine!

THE SINGER MANUFACTURING COMPANY, ever awake to the interests of the public, have determined to PUT THE PRICE OF THEIR MACHINES within the reach of every man, woman and child in the land.

THE GENUINE SINGER SEWING MACHINE IS NOW OFFERED AT PRICES BELOW THE BOGUS ONES, OR ANY OTHER.

The fact that the only Sewing Machine which unscrupulous men have ever attempted to imitate, is the Singer, is sufficient evidence of its superiority over all others. There is no longer any excuse for buying any of the cheap machines bawked about the country, with no claim for patronage but their cheapness.

THE SINGER MANUFACTURING COMPANY,
S. E. RUNDLE, Agent.
many24-6m] No. 91 Canal Street, New Orleans, La.

WHEELER & WILSON

STILL AHEAD!

PRICES GREATLY REDUCED.

The Acknowledged Family Favorite.

NO NOISY COGS, AND NO RATTLING SHUTTLES.

Ease of manipulation, simplicity of construction, and rapidity of motion, have always placed the

Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine

Above all its competitors. The WHEELER & WILSON Manufacturing Company have determined not to be outdone by the manufacturers of inferior sewing machines.

Get a First-Class Machine at astonishingly low prices.

$40 to $75 will buy a New Improved Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine, at Liberal Discount for Cash.

☞ Send for Circulars and Price List. ☜

2,000,000 in Daily Use,

AND STILL THE FAMILY FAVORITE.

WHEELER & WILSON MAN'F CO.,
H. A. PECK, GEN'L AGENT,
June 14-76. 4m.] 149 Canal Street, New Orleans, La.

PHILIP WERLEIN,

Nos. 78–90 Baonne Street,

NEW ORLEANS, - - - LA.

LARGEST Piano House in This Cuntry,

—OFFERS—

Chickering's New Scale PIANOS.

HALE'S PIANOS, HARDMAN'S PIANOS.
ESTEY & CO. ORGANS. MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

As low as any house North. Monthly Payments. Discounts for cash.

☞ Music and Musical Instruments of Every Description. [feb22-1y

TEN PER QUARTER FOR TEN QUARTERS.

MASON & HAMLIN CABINET ORGANS.

HIGHEST AWARDS AT

FOUR GREAT WORLD'S EXPOSITIONS

Paris, 1867; Vienna, 1873; Santiago, 1875;

PHILADELPHIA, 1876.

ONLY ORGANS AWARDED FIRST RANK AT CENTENNIAL.

Great variety of styles at prices which would be impossible for work of such excellence without unequaled facilities for manufacture.

EXAMPLES OF NET CASH PRICES:

Five octave double reed organ, with tremulant, $100
Five octave organ, nine stops, with Voix celeste, $114

Sold also for monthly or quarterly payments, or rented until rent pays. A superior organ may now be purchased by the easy payment of $1.00 per quarter for ten quarters. Catalogues free.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN CO.
154 Tremont St. BOSTON. 25 Union Sq. NEW YORK. 250 Wabash Ave CHICAGO.
June14-77-1yc

Victor Cane Mill And COOK EVAPORATOR

The BEST, and only standard machines.

FIRST PREMIUM AT 128 STATE FAIRS.

Grand Medal at Centennial Exhibition.

Over 44,000 sold.

Safe, Reliable, Economical.

Cane Growers can't afford to risk Crops With light, weak, unfinished mills, liable to break in the midst of the season. They can't afford to waste crops with mills that do not press out all the juice, or evaporators that make syrup and sugar unfit for market, and too little in proportion to the labor and fuel they require.

Blymyer Manufacturing Co., Cincinnati, O.
Steam Engines, Thrashers, Mills. Circulars and Prices.

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY.
Established in 1837.
Superior Bells of Copper and Tin, mounted with the best Rotary Hangings, for Churches, Schools, Forges, Factories, Court Houses, Fire Alarms, Tower Clocks, Chimes, etc. Fully Warranted.
Illustrated Catalogue sent Free.
VANDUZEN & TIFT,
102 and 104 East Second St., Cincinnati.
Jan 30 76 tf.

E. N. FRESHMAN & Co.'s
ADVERTISING AGENTS
186 W. FOURTH ST.
CINCINNATI, O.
ESTIMATES FURNISHED FREE. SEND FOR OUR MANUAL.

AYER & SON'S MANUAL For Advertisers
A complete guide to advertisers. New House Journal.—A necessity to all who advertise. Louisville Commercial.—The most complete and reliable work of the kind. Pittsburg Gazette.—Next Time to all who advertise.
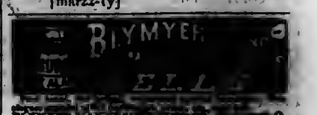
N. W. AYER & SON'S ADVERTISING AGENTS, TIMES BUILDING, PHILADELPHIA.
Get our Estimate before making any advertising contracts. Our business is large. Facilities unsurpassed. Prices the lowest. Terms the best.

THE NEW
ELASTIC TRUSS
More Pad differing from all others, in shape, with Self-Adjusting Ball in center, adapts itself to all positions of the body, while the ball in the cup presses back the intestines just as a person would with the finger. With light pressure the Hernia is held securely day and night, and a radical cure certain. It is easy, durable and cheap. Sent by mail. Circulars free.
EGGLESTON TRUSS CO., Marshall, Mich.
Mar28-77-cow13t

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY.
Established in 1837.
Superior Bells of Copper and Tin, mounted with the best Rotary Hangings, for Churches, Schools, Forges, Factories, Court Houses, Fire Alarms, Tower Clocks, Chimes, etc. Fully Warranted.
Illustrated Catalogue sent Free.
VANDUZEN & TIFT,
102 and 104 East Second St., Cincinnati.
[mar22-1y]



Blymyer Manufacturing Co., Cincinnati, O.
sep[illegible]-76-1y

LADIES Hygeist Institution [illegible] CORAL SET, Brooklyn and Portland, Oregon. Best Portland to our Readers of this Paper for 10 cents. Three Sets for 50 cents. In Currency or Stamps. by A. Vandusen & Co., Clifton Place, New York.

Southwestern Christian Advocate.

NEW SERIES—VOL. 1—NO. 33. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, AUGUST 16, 877. WHOLE NUMBER 263

SOUTHWESTERN

Christian Advocate,

PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT

29 Natchez St., New Orleans.

BY

NELSON & PHILLIPS,

FOR THE

Methodist Episcopal Church.

Terms: $2 a year, Cash in Advance.

All Travelling Preachers of the Methodist Episcopal Church are authorized Agents.

Subscriptions may begin at any time and the paper will be sent as long as paid for.

Remittances must be made by Registered Letter, P. O. Money Order, or by Express.

Advertising Rates.

(Per Nonpareil line, each insertion.)

One time or more	8 cents
One month, (4 times)	7 "
Three months, (13 times)	6 "
Six months, (26 times)	5 "
One year, (52 times)	4 "
Marriage notices	25 "
Special Notices	8 cents, net cash

NEW YORK OFFICE:
805 Broadway, New York,
WILLIAM BALDWIN, Special Agent.

HAVE COURAGE TO SAY NO!

You are starting on life's checkered journey,
Alone on the highway of life;
You'll meet with a thousand temptations;
Each city with evil is rife.
This world is a stage of excitement,
There is danger wherever you go,
But if you are tempted in weakness,
Have courage, my boy, to say no.

The Siren's sweet song may allure you—
Beware of her cunning and art;
Whenever you see her approaching,
Be guarded and haste to depart.
The billiard saloons are inviting,
Decked out in their tinsel and show,
You may be invited to enter;
Have courage, my boy, to say no.

The bright ruby wine may be offered—
No matter how tempting it be,
From poison that stings like an adder,
My boy, have courage to flee.
The gambling saloons are below you,
Their lights, how they dance to and fro
If you should be tempted to enter,
Have courage, my boy, to say no.

In courage alone lies your safety,
When you the long journey begin,
And trust in a heavenly Father,
Who will keep you unspotted from sin.
Temptations will go on increasing,
As streams from a rivulet flow;
But if you are true to your manhood,
Have courage, my boy, to say no.

By Lamplight.

THE MINISTRY, NO. 6.

The religious experience of the preacher must be Scriptural. Methodism has always insisted on an experience, which could be spoken of, at proper times, in Scriptural language or at least the Scriptural ideas of christian experience could be clearly expressed, as having been [illegible] in the heart of the believer. The [illegible] should have a clearly [illegible]. This experience is [illegible] for in preaching. [illegible], several times, to [illegible] experience on the way to [illegible], and after his arrival [illegible] it is not beneath the [illegible] the pulpit now to ring [illegible] an earnest narration of a [illegible] christian experience. When [illegible] speaks of the hateful [illegible] can refer to his own [illegible] when the light shone [illegible] own heart, and he saw him[illegible], and sighed for deliver[illegible] the sinner, [illegible] as to [illegible] with sin [illegible] hold on [illegible] in thanks [illegible] Jesus [illegible] will [illegible] than a simple [illegible] facts, stated by [illegible] any reference [illegible] preacher [illegible] he will [illegible] sinner's [illegible] but [illegible] the [illegible] of soul, [illegible] him in [illegible]. To [illegible] must [illegible] [illegible] people become the slavery of sin and to do it, he must have felt this deliverance. He must be able to tell what is meant by "Being justified by faith, we have peace with God, through our Lord Jesus Christ," and, "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature; old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new," by an experience which is his own. Then beyond this be is to tell of the fruit of the Spirit; the perfect love which casteth out fear; the faith that rejoiceth in tribulations; the patience that "hath its perfect works;" the life that is "hid with Christ in God," and that confession that brings the cleansing from all unrighteousness. These are to be presented to the people and urged upon their acceptance. These blessings are not reserved for a select few of God's people; for with Him there is no respect of person. Christ "tasted death for every man," hence all may enjoy whatever Christ has bought for any. Is the preacher ready to speak of his experience, for all the points presented in the whole scheme of the gospel? If not, is he prepared to preach a gospel of which he can have no true conception? Is the unregenerate man prepared to declare the doctrine of the new birth? It is now universally admitted that he is not.

All evangelical churches require what they understand by regeneration, as a qualification for the ministry. The Bible urges believers to be perfect. Christ commands it; "Be ye perfect even as your Father in heaven is perfect;" the Apostle Paul says "Go on to perfection;" these commands are to be obeyed in this life. The Bible gives no commands, that are to be obeyed in the future world, the instructions it contains are designed to point out to us clearly the duties of the present. The promises of a perfect peace, of an indwelling Savior, of the witnessing Spirit are for preacher and people. The preacher as the shepherd, is to go before, leading the flock into green pastures. Whatever the Bible promises as the inheritance of the Christian here on earth, the preacher should be fully prepared to declare, and having done this to verify that statement by his own experience. The man who enters the ministry, to preach God's truth, is not prepared to do so till he possesses the experience that he declares on Bible authority is the privilege of all christians to enjoy. If any hesitate about seeking for this spiritual preparation for the work of the ministry, let him remember that Jesus says, "According to your faith, so be it unto you."

J. BRADEN.

Nashville, Tenn., July 28, 1877.

Letter From Dr. Revels.

We make the following extracts from a letter addressed by Dr. H. R. Revels to Mrs. Dr. R. S. Rust, and published in the Western:

I am aware of the kindly feeling of yourself and your husband toward my poor and unfortunate people, and your earnest desire for their elevation and welfare. The sacrifices and constant labors of yourself and Dr. Rust in behalf of my people fully attest the depth of your friendship toward them. The moral and social condition and wants of the colored people of the South cannot even be imagined, from what is seen of them in many of our cities, towns and some country neighborhoods. As to some of them it is bad enough in the above-named places. But if you travel through the interior of Mississippi, and carefully examine into their condition in the above respects, you will find in them an ignorance of the pure morals and virtues of life which is fearful and discouraging. That enlightening and refining intelligence and taste, which are essential to the proper appreciation of the sacred marriage relation, the proper training of children, and the formation and preservation of good and respectable society are fearfully wanting in every nine persons and families out of ten. From close observation and study I have been led to the conclusion that the condition of the colored people of the South, as just described, is the result of two evils. The first is an ignorant and (as to some) immoral ministry. Many colored (so-called) preachers being as ignorant as most of their hearers, and more ignorant than many of them, cannot interest and enlighten them. This class of preachers, and they number largely here, try to succeed in their assumed profession by loud speaking, beating the Bible and hymn-book to pieces, and stamping the floor of the pulpit in a deafening manner. As a general [illegible] a preacher whoops and [illegible] his ignorant [illegible] that they shout [illegible] drown his voice [illegible] they cannot [illegible] from the [illegible] the ignorant [illegible] religion here [illegible] [illegible] for [illegible] intelligent [illegible] people become drowsy and restless, and show him by their actions, that he is not the kind of preacher they want to hear. Many of these so-called preachers are loose in morals; and it is true of their hearers, that those who afford little and, in some cases, no evidence of piety, are most noisy. Then is it any wonder that colored churches are without reputation and influence, that, instead of being the means of elevating the colored people of the South, they are absolutely holding them in ignorance and degradation. I would not be understood as saying that we have no exemplary, pious, intelligent and useful colored ministers and churches—thank God! we have many such—but when they are compared with others that I have described, they number very few indeed.

The next evil is, a want of moral and social culture among the colored women of the South. I refer, not entirely, but mainly to those found in swamp lands and on plantations generally, in Mississippi, and other Southern States. In these places you may find here and there numbers of women (intended by God to be the highest type of creation) bearing the most glaring marks of moral and social degradation. Those priceless and adorning virtues, which shine most brilliantly, beautifully, and attractively in the character of women, they are ignorant of; and being destitute of that which renders women lovely above every other type of creation on our globe, they are only admired by those who equal themselves in ignorance and degradation; and, as it is a fact, that the moral and social status of women forms that of men, in any race of people, can it be denied that the colored people of this country can never be lifted out of that ignorance and degradation in which slavery left them while the status of the colored women, in the above respects, remains as it is?

But what is the remedy for these two evils? As to Mississippi, let the friends of humanity and of the Christian religion aid in the employment of a sufficient number of competent theological teachers to instruct, annually, from forty to fifty young men in the study of theology, in connection with Shaw University, at Holly Springs, Mississippi; and in assisting the young men while they are studying for the ministry. If it should be said that what I here recommend has been attempted, the answer is, that in the right direction for the establishment of a theological seminary in connection with Shaw University the first step has not been taken. When I shall see in Mississippi a theological seminary for the training of pious colored men for the work of the Gospel ministry, instructed and supported in the way I have described, I shall rejoice in hope of much being done through the Church for the elevation of my people. There must be an extraordinary effort in behalf of the education of the girls and young colored women of the South. There are now three high-schools of learning in this State, to which they have access, but those schools are mixed as to the sexes.

But, in my judgment, the end which we should have in view, in this connection, can only be accomplished by a purely female seminary or high-school of learning. There should be buildings sufficient to accommodate from three to four hundred colored girls and young women from every part of the State. Let the matron be a lady of finished learning, large and ripe experience in her profession, and one who, in her department, will be able to give her pupils a portion of that training which they so much need. Let her teachers be ladies who possess all the necessary qualifications for the delicate work to be done, and whose souls are in the work. Let the students be instructed not only in their books, but also in morals, and the worth of virtue in the character of women, in the family, in society. In such a school the moral and social culture of the students would be more rapid than that of their intellect; and the result would be that they would, by contact, commence elevating the youths of their race of both sexes, even before they could get through their school studies. Money spent in this way would do more for the benefit of the colored people of the South than would double the amount in any other way. The wise and necessary policy of President Hayes toward the South is proving a success; and the day will come when it will accomplish everything intended by its pure, benevolent hearted author, and when friendship and mutual confidence will exist between the white and colored people of the South.

Holiness is genius. Holiness has keen, piercing eyes, that see every filament of divine truth and communication to men. When the ministry is holy, when the Church is holy, when every man, high-priest and door-keeper, is holy, the world will begin to feel that there is something in it that is not of its own nature.

America in Africa.

BY BISHOP GILBERT HAVEN.

Africa is to-day in the realms of romance. It is the central fascination of the scholar, the explorer, the philanthropist, the man of business. It is the one spot of earth which draws all eyes and hearts to its majestic mysteries. Books of travel, voluminous and costly, are pouring constantly from the presses of Europe and America. When a Geographical Congress was held in Brussels last Autumn, the King of the Belgians expressed a willingness to preside, provided the topic for consideration was Africa. Its explorers are feted, and receive the costliest medals from kings and learned societies. To get the first name in modern discovery one must devote himself to Africa. From Mungo Park to Cameron, its explorers hold the highest rank. Barth and Lander, Grant and Speke, Schweinfurth, Stanley, and Baker, surpass their rivals in other regions. We care but little for Schuyler and Burnaby in Turkistan, for Burton in Arabia, Arnold in Persia, Wallace in the Archipelago, or travelers in China and Japan, in comparison with the admiration in which we hold the African discoverers. Chief of all travelers, by uncontested suffrage, is Livingstone, who spent a lifetime in threading its jungles, floating down its rivers, circumnavigating its lakes, crossing its paradises, dwelling in its villages; who penetrated more unknown lands and disclosed them to the civilized world than any traveler of any age. . . .

But Africa is not only the land of romance, it is the land of the future. A romance once read is rejected. A secret once solved is spurned. If the unknow is miraculous, so the known is despised. "Ignotum mirabile; res cognita sordet." When the North Pole is discovered all interest in the problem will disappear, for it never can be utilized. But Africa is more than a romance; it is a reality. It has a future as great as our own continent, perhaps greater. It is a land of wonderful abundance, animal, mineral, and vegetable, a land of rivers and mountains, and plains and forests, of every variety and of unequalled richness. To it the eyes of commerce, no less than of science, are turned.

Africa is looked upon as the greatest of unappropriated treasures on the world's map to-day. America, three and almost four hundred years ago, was the chief object of desire on the part of European nationalities, and Spain, Portugal, Holland, France and England fought for the prize, and continued fighting for over three centuries. So Africa to-day is the center of European attractions, in the interests of commerce no less than in those of science and humanity.

Chief of these nations in her commercial activity is Great Britain. No other nation has an approximate control of that continent. Two lines of steamers connect Liverpool with the west coast. One steamer leaving every two weeks gives to that coast a steamer every week either going out or returning. Almost equally numerous are her South, and East African steamers, while her connections with the Nile and the Red Sea are closer than with her colonies in America, or even than with her Empire in India. England has girdled Africa preparatory to transferring it as a whole to her own flag.

The European governments not only look to Africa as the future outlet for their manufactures, they also see in it an outlet for their population. The explorers of the Nile basin had respect to the colonizing quality of the continent. Baker refers to it. Cameron speaks of it in the last and not least valuable contribution to African exploration. It is already well developed at Sierra Leone, at Lagos, and at other ports on the west coast, while in South Africa it becomes a strong colony. The beauties of the land, Livingstone, Baker, and Cameron never tire of praising.

But what has this to do with America in Africa? Much every way. We have an Africa in America. The air has been full of that Africa for almost half a century. It is full of it to-day. The solution of the Americo-Afric problem is slow and unsteady, though advances toward it, as toward the solution of the African geographical problem, are plainly perceptible if we observe large spaces of time. From the seisure of naked people on their native coast, and the horrors of "the middle passage," to the emancipation and enfranchisement of their children, and their partial advancement to political and social equality with their enslavers, the steps are marked and marvelous. What yet remains before the presidential promise is fulfilled of blotting out the color-line, is but a trifle to that already achieved, though the path to its accomplishment may be long, costly, and even bloody, as has been the road to the hights already attained. Africa in America is an accomplished fact. In the whole continent, including its islands, there are probably more than ten millions which draw some of their blood from that source. In our own land there are over five millions, and their number is steadily increasing. * *. The African is the forerunner of the Englishman. He was brought over by Spaniards in the beginning of the sixteenth century. The first permanent English settlement was not established until the beginning of the seventeenth. So that the Anglo-American is almost a century the junior of the Afric-American. Whatever contributions he may make to the settlement of America in Africa, he will not perceptibly diminish his numbers here; nor will the problem, going forward to its solution here—the problem of the Declaration of Independence, the liberty, equality, and fraternity of all men—be perceptibly affected by any emigration to Africa, however extensive and persistent.

Nor, it should be said, will America in Africa be of any one class exclusively of the American population. While undoubtedly many of partial African descent will be among its colonists, others of pure European descent will likewise go. As we have seen, England not only looks on Africa as a field of romance and a mart of business, but a land to be occupied. So will white colonists settle in those mid-land perfections of soil and climate as numerously as they have in the Australian wilderness, and more numerously than they have in the plains of India.

In 1820, then, the American colony of eighty-eight persons landed on the shores of Africa. They were long looking for a habitation. They did not get a permanent foothold until 1822, the jealousy of the English and the natives preventing earlier success. January 7, 1822, they found their Plymouth Rock on a small island at Cape Mesurado, a few rods from the shore. April 25 they effected a perment lodgment on the continent.

Even then the enterprise was on the point of being abandoned. But for one man it would have been. Rev. Elijah Johnson, who had walked the beach from Sherbro to Mesurado, a distance of nearly two hundred miles, carrying his babe in his arms, became the Elder Brewster of the Pilgrims. The agents of the society were tired out. They wished to give up the undertaking. The few colonists chose rather to return to the evils that they had known than to endure those upon them and before them there. But this minister declared he would not retreat. "I have been two years searching for a home in Africa," he said. "I have found it. I shall stay here." No wonder that a marble monument to his memory stands in the grounds of the only public building owned and occupied by the Republic in the capital; the only marble monument yet erected by the citizens of the Republic to any of her settlers or sons.

Not less significant and prophetic was his act and word when the captain of a British man-of-war offered to protect him from the natives if he would cede a few feet of ground on Cape Mesurado to that government, where they might simply erect a flag. Much as he needed their help to overcome the enemy thronging upon them, his American instinct caught the full significance of the request, and he promptly declined, saying, "It would cost more to pull down that flag than it will to whip the natives!" . . .

The American public has been compelled, the last two decades, to turn its attention to the Afric-American in its own land. It has been compelled to wrestle with the problem of emancipation, a vastly greater theme than that of colonization. It has been compelled to settle that problem on the field of wasting war. It has been compelled to consider the problems that have arisen out of that settlement, the permanency of the Union, enfranchisement, civil rights, education, and other duties of an imperatively national obligation. It is far from having exhausted these obligations. Can it, ought it, to look across the seas and not be kindly affectioned toward a colony planted more than half a century ago, in contempt and weakness immeasurable: planted by captured natives and expatriated slaves, who had been crushed by local laws, so that neither writing nor reading, nor handicrafts, except in rare instances, nor self-reliance, nor experience in political or any other matters, had been enjoyed by any of them?

Look at the colony after the lapse of this half-century, and see if it has attained in any direction to the stature of manhood; see if America in Africa has any value to America in America. . . .

Equally unsettled were New York and Virginia in 1660—1670. The little colonies were dependent entirely on the home government for protection, and even for preservation. It took a hundred year more before they were strong enough to stand alone and to resist Indian and French attacks, and even these were not repelled without the aid of troops from the mother-land. Let not then Liberia be lightly esteemed if at the end of fifty years she is no farther advanced than Plymouth and Connecticut and Virginia were in the same lapse of time. If she is equal to these she is superior; for if with her far inferior advantages she attained an equal condition, she is entitled to the greater honor.—North American Review.

Thrilling Story.

Years ago, before the Temperance Reformation had begun its work, and when drinking was fashionable among all classes, at a certain town meeting in Pennsylvania, the question came up whether any person should be licensed to sell rum. The clergyman, the deacon, the physician, strange as it may now appear, all favored it. One man only spoke against it, because of the mischief it did. The question was about to be put, when there arose from one corner of the room a miserable woman. She was thinly clad, and her appearance indicated the utmost wretchedness, and that her mortal career was almost closed. After a moment's silence, and all eyes being fixed upon her, she stretched her attenuated body to its utmost height, and then her long arms to their greatest length, and raising her voice to a shrill pitch, she called to all to look upon her.

"Yes!" she said, "look upon me, and then, hear me. All that the last speaker has said relative to temperate drinking, as being the father of drunkenness, is true. All practice, all experience, declares its truth. Drinking of alcoholic poison, as a beverage in health, is excess. Look upon me! You all know me, or once did. You all know I was once the mistress of the best farm in the town; you all know, too, I had one of the best—the most devoted of husbands. You all know I had three, noble-hearted, industrious boys. Where are they now? You all know. You all know they lie in a row, side by side, in yonder churchyard; all—every one of them filling the drunkard's grave! They were all taught to believe that temperate drinking was safe—that excess alone ought to be avoided; and they never acknowledged excess. They quoted you, and you, and you, pointing with her shred of a finger to the minister, deacon, and doctor, as authority. They thought themselves safe under such teachers. But I saw the gradual change coming over my family and its prospects, with dismay and horror. I felt we were all to be overwhelmed in one common ruin. I tried to ward off the blow; I tried to break the spell, the delusive spell, in which the idea of the benefits of temperate drinking had involved my husband and sons. I begged, I prayed; but the odds were against me. The minister said the poison that was destroying my husband and boys was a good creature of God; the deacon who sits under the pulpit there, and took our farm to pay his rum bills, sold them the poison; the doctor said a little was good, and the excess only ought to be avoided. My poor husband, and my dear boys fell into the snare, and they could not escape; and one after another were conveyed to the sorrowful grave of the drunkard. Now look at me again. You probably see me for the last time. My sands have almost run. I have dragged my exhausted frame from my present home—your poor house—to warn you all; to warn you, deacon! to warn you, false teacher of God's word!" And with her arms flung high, and her tall form stretched to its utmost, and her voice raised to an unearthly pitch, she exclaimed, "I shall soon stand before the judgment seat of God. I shall meet you there, you false guides, and be a witness against you all!"

The miserable woman vanished. A dead silence pervaded the assembly; the minister, the deacon and physician, hung their heads; and when the president of the meeting put the question, "shall any license be granted for the sale of spiritous liquors?" the unanimous response was "No!"

Divisibility of Gold.

The divisibility of gold almost surpasses belief. Mr. A. E. Outerbridge, jr., of the Philadelphia Assay Office, recently exhibited before the Franklin Institute some thin films of gold obtained by electric deposition upon copper and afterward detached. These pieces of gold-leaf were transparent, and gave a green color to transmitted light. Mr. Outerbridge has thus produced films of gold so thin that one grain of the metal would cover nearly four square feet. This is 10,000 times thinner than ordinary writing-paper; and 2,798,000 of such films together would only make one inch.

The Son of God came from Heaven to earth in order that the sons of men might go from earth to Heaven.

General News.

The first book printed in America was printed in the City of Mexico in 1540.

Prof. Bell's telephones are now being manufactured at the rate of 25 per day.

There are 3000 head of cattle at Punta Rassa, Florida, awaiting shipment to Cuba.

Pennsylvania oil men have recorded two hundred and fifty leases of land in Rockcastle county, Kentucky.

Henderson county, Tennessee, claims to have a citizen one hundred and twenty-four years old, Mr. Hendrix, who lives about twelve miles west of Clarksburg.

A Mr. Wilson, of Chowan county, North Carolina, sold one field of melons (five acres) for $400, delivered on the wharf. And yet land can be bought equally as good at from five to ten dollars per acre.

The farmers of Wilson county, Texas, are in a quandary how to utilize the enormous acorn mast this fall. Not more than ten per cent. of the yield could be consumed by the hogs of the county.

At the close of the war, wheat-growing was almost entirely abandoned in Texas. Within the last three years it has been recommenced, and last year 13 counties raised 7,600,000 bushels, the average price of which was a dollar a bushel.

Judgment has been entered against Tweed, the New York ring thief, in favor of the State of New York for $6,635,652 19. His lawyers have prepared a petition to permit him to make an assignment of all his property for the benefit of his creditors.

The young ladies of Neward, N. J., who belong to temperance organizations, pledge themselves not to associate with young men who use intoxicating drinks. Their influence is being felt by the young men, some of whom have signed the pledge rather than lose the society of the fair temperance advocates.

The fruit canning trade of Cincinnati is important. During 1876 the quantity put up was as follows: Tomatoes, 1,200,000 cans; blackberries, 60,000 cans; raspberries, 120,000 cans; cherries, 60,000 cans; damson plums, 72,000 cans; string beans, 36,000 cans; pickles, 6000 packages; tomato catsup, 500 barrels.

The suit by the government against Wm. McKee, in which the damages claimed aggregate $2,314,200, is set for trial on the third Monday of September, in the United States Circuit Court at St. Louis. This is the civil suit brought to recover the sums in which the government was defrauded through the operations of the St. Louis whisky ring. Interesting developments are expected.

The value of the precious metals, including gold dust and bullion, silver bullion, and ores and base bullion, produced in the States and Territories west of the Missouri river during the last year, was about ninety-one millions of dollars. Of this amount California furnished $18,615,807; Nevada, $49,280,764; Oregon, $1,149,071; Washington, $62,372; Idaho, $1,674,361; Montana, $2,777,032; Utah, $5,207,519; Colorado, $6,990,647; New Mexico, $350,294; Arizona, $1,111,992; Mexico, $2,213,748; British Columbia, $1,441,556.

President Vanderbilt, of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad, has issued a circular, stating that of twelve thousand employes of the company, less than five hundred struck, and no injury was done to property. In recognition of their fealty, he directs that one hundred thousand dollars be divided ratably, according to their positions on the pay-roll, among all the employes engaged in operating the road. He says no men who, in time of trial embarrass the company can remain in or re-enter the service, and adds that the pay will be increased the moment the business justifies it.

The scholastic honors of the year, at Newport, Long Island, were taken by a colored girl, Josephine Amelia Silone, who graduated at the head of her class in the Rogers High School. She received the gold medal awarded with the first scholarship, and pronounced the valedictory. Her examination and recitations have been pre-eminently satisfactory, her average in every study being within a fraction of one hundred, which is the maximum. Miss Silone, who is quite dark complexioned, took her last two years' studies in one year, which makes her case all the more remarkable. She excels in Latin, Greek, French and German. She is a native of Nattituck, Suffolk county, Long Island, and now goes to college. Her mother is a cook, the young girl earning her own living by working when not at school.

SOUTHWESTERN
Christian Advocate.
30 Natchez St., New Orleans.

J. C. HARTZELL, B. D., EDITOR.

THURSDAY, AUG. 16, 1877.

Ex-President Grant is in Italy.

Rev. M. M. Parkhurst, of Chicago, sailed for Europe on the 11th inst.

Rev. M. A. Daughterty, of Denison, Texas, is spending a few weeks in the North.

Philip Phillips, after a three years' tour around the world, has just returned to America.

Bishop Andrews has returned from his trip of Episcopal visitation in Europe and Asia.

Ex-Governor Warmoth, of Louisiana, is traveling in Europe with Ex-Gov. Hendricks of Indiana.

The gospel was not proclaimed to give you a creed, but to render possible to you a devout life.—Zion's Herald.

The railroad strikers are all receiving their wages now—the wages of sin—fines, penalties and prison cells.

Mrs. Annie E. Howe, wife of the late Bishop Thomson, of the M. E. Church, died at Dalaware, Ohio, July 29th.

Scribner and St. Nicholas for August are Midsummer Holiday Numbers, and both are superior in matter and illustration.

A note from Rev. E. Werner, pastor of our Second German Mission, in Galveston, states: "Our chapel is now being built. It will be one of the finest in the State I think—our work goes on slowly."

Russia, up to July 27th, had lost about ten thousand men. This does not count the seven thousand killed, and fifteen thousand wounded at Plevna. Oh, the horrors of war!

Francis Murphy, the great temperance reformer, says: "Make the world's Redeemer the center of all you do and victory is certain." Excellent counsel is this. If we have Christ we can do all things.

Bishop Wiley held the Rocky Mountain Conference, at Salt Lake City, Aug. 10, and will hold the [illegible] California Conference at [illegible] Barbara, Aug. 17. Sept. 1, he [illegible] from San Francisco for [illegible] and Japan.

W[illegible] pained to learn that Rev. [illegible], one of our most [illegible] in New York, is [illegible] by continued ill health to [illegible] preaching. May he speedily [illegible]

[illegible] Southern Postal Con[illegible] at Fortress Monroe, [illegible] gathering. Gen. [illegible] this city, presided. [illegible] be memorialized to [illegible] in the South, [illegible] establish more steam[illegible]

[illegible] Every Preacher.

[illegible] should have the best [illegible] now before the [illegible] surpass in value to [illegible] His Words, [illegible] It is published [illegible] Concern and [illegible] W. H. [illegible] contains the life [illegible] and of his [illegible] the text col[illegible] published [illegible] and will be [illegible] account [illegible] the book will [illegible]

[illegible] from [illegible]

The Papacy and Civil Power.*

Irrespective of all questions growing out of the overthrow of the Confederacy, the destruction of slavery, and the complete reconstruction of the South, the American Republic stands face to face to three momentous questions. These are the Catholic question, the financial question and the capital-labor question. A failure to fully comprehend and master either of these, means ruin to the Republic. A failure to rightly adjust labor and capital, so each shall have its rights and not interfere with the rights of the other, must lead to "strikes" and business disasters, of which the late troubles in the North were but small beginnings, and which must end in national ruin. The real estate of the nation is threatened with universal confiscation. Money is plenty but the people cannot get it, either on usury or for labor. There is a radical error somewhere and it must be found out and corrected. The Roman Catholic Church is a political power of foreign birth and instinct, and in her principles of government, has not a single teaching, that is not directly opposed to the cherished political ideas of the American Republic. It is needless to underrate the numbers and power of the Roman Catholic Church. They claim and probably have six millions of people in the United States that is, about one-seventh of its whole population. While the political parties are evenly divided, the Pope at Rome can dictate which of the Presidential candidates shall be elected. In the last Presidential election the colored people of the South decided the contest. In the next, the Catholics of half a dozen large cities in the North probably, will give us our President.

Mr. Thompson, now Secretary of the Navy, has given the American people a most timely book. The title is,—The Papacy and the Civil Power—and the book as a whole is a complete expose of the principles, policy and intrigues, of the Roman Papacy, respecting the civil power of nations, from the first until now. It is a book for the people rather than for the scholar, although it is a scholarly book. Indeed, books best adapted to the people are the most scholarly. None but a scholar can clearly see and plainly state fundamental truths, or clearly see and plainly expose fundamental errors. Mr. Thompson can, and his book it is therefore scholarly.

The danger to the American Republic from Roman Catholicism centers in the Papacy. The fatal error of the Papacy is that its head, the Pope as the personal representative of Christ, speaks for Him, acts for Him, and is as infallible as He was. Founded upon this blasphemous error the Papacy claims to be the sole source of authority, temporal as well as spiritual. It is in this claim to temporal authority, that the Papacy places itself in opposition to all civil power, and makes itself the enemy of every government. The present Pope denounces the idea that, "the will of the people, manifested by public opinion," can ever becomes the law of a country independent of the "divine and human sanction." By divine and human sanction he means the authority conferred upon him, by God, and which he can give or withhold as he pleases. The present Pope denounces also the doctrine that any political fact, as for example the success of the revolution—can have the force of right, unless he as God's vice gerent, shall consider it legitimate. This denies the right of revolution only as Papal authority shall decide it just, and as the principles on which the American Government is founded, are declared to be, "pernicious to the Catholic Church and the salvation of souls," it follows that the American Republic is not yet a legitimate government, and cannot be in the judgment of the Pope, if it should stand a thousand years. The present Pope denounces those who deny to the Church the right to "bind the conscience of the faithful in the temporal order of things; and also those who say that the right of the Church is not competent to restrain, [illegible] temporal penalties, the violators [illegible] her laws."

[illegible] enumerating further, or [illegible] into details, these three [illegible] the Pope, show how ex[illegible] are the political pre[illegible] Roman Catholic [illegible] principles on which [illegible] Republic. Ameri[illegible] that the right of government by the people is an inalienable right, given by God himself, without regard to Popes or Councils, or titled despots, or hereditary kings. Americans believe that the right of revolution, as a refuge from tyranny, is God-given, and that the legitimacy of this Republic is not to be questioned. Americans believe that the civil power has its sphere of being and action, separate and distinct from the church. They believe in, obey, and protect the Divine authority of of the Church in the matter of spiritual things. They are, therefore, not "infidel," as the Pope says and means.

In this Catholic question, the most pressing duty of Protestants, is to circulate proper literature among the people. Americans read, and if only the facts upon any great question are kept before them, we need not fear the decision. The judgment of 40,000,000 of people will be right.

* [illegible] Papacy and the Civil Power, by R. W. [illegible] & Phillips, New York. 750 [illegible]

The Ocean Route.

We are very glad that we selected the ocean route to New York, instead of the railroad, for thereby we avoided all the dust which at this season of the year on all the great railroad lines is very abundant. We also avoided all danger of strikes and "smash ups." We had at times warmer state rooms than we cared for, but could always find a cool breeze on deck. The voyage up to the point at which we write, "off Cape Hatteras," has been very pleasant. The sea has been very smooth at times; a little more roughness would have given variety and broken up the monotony. People of weak stomachs prefer a smooth to a rough sea, it is better to be either smooth or rough, for when it is neither, the victim is only rendered miserable. A good, rough sea acts on the principle of "over and done with it;" a half rough sea keeps those inclined that way sick all the time. So far the writer has escaped this malady altogether. But some have been compelled to pay their devotion to Neptune daily. At Cape Hatteras, or thereabout, we leave the gulf stream and turn more directly north, with the expectation of reaching New York, at 9 o'clock on Wednesday morning, Aug. 8th.

The steamer Hudson is indeed a very fine ship, Capt. Gager is a very capable officer and attends strictly to business. Mr. Paulson, the chief steward, takes admirable care of the "outer man." The tables are all that any one can desire. The Hudson boasts of a very superior officer in chief Engineer, Staats. Indeed it is a most beautiful trip. We advise all who contemplate visiting New York, to take this or one of the other vessels of the Cromwell line.

Our list of passengers includes people of all shades of politics and all religious faiths. On Sabbath at the invitation of the Captain and by request of many of our fellow travelers we held religious services in the cabin, discoursing from the words in Revelation 22: 2-15 "Worship God." We took a subject which would unite all. The congregation embraced Jews, Catholics, and Protestants. Among the Protestants were Methodists, Episcopalians, Presbyterians, and some who might be classed as "nothingarians." We thus took ground on which all could stand and tried to preach what all could believe. It is indeed a good thing that this world has some common ground on which to stand. The day may yet come, when all man shall "see eye to eye." Denominationalism is certainly Providential and if any one is so erratic in his belief as not to be able to feel at home in any one of his sixty-six sects of Christianity he is certainly to be pitied.

To one who has never traveled in the Gulf stream it is a wonder, yea a wonder of wonders. A river in the sea thousands of times larger than the Mississippi, flowing for three thousand miles as a distinct current is indeed a study. Science cannot explain it. No calculation concerning it which does not take God into the account is any where near the truth. It is God's method of cooling off one portion of the globe and heating another.

J. H. McCarty.

Col. Scott, President of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, says that not over ten per cent of the employes of that road were engaged in the strike. This is an important statement, and shows that the railmen were the least to blame for the great damage done in the late strikes.

Bishop Haven at Saratoga.

Bishop Haven tells in the New York Advocate of Aug. 9, why he is at Saratoga. He is there to receive medical treatment, to relieve his system of the malaria imbibed during his late trip to Africa. He was forty-six days on the coast. For ninety-seven days he slept on ship-board. He had no attack of fever in Africa. Speaking of his work he says: "It was done as well as it could have been done by this servant of the church, not "hastily" as one editor has generously observed, nor carelessly. It was done successfully as far as health was concerned." On his return voyage, at Santa Cruz, the port of Teneriffe he was sick one night. His suffering was intense, but as the morning came bringing medical aid he recovered, and pursued his journey. On arriving home he undertook to labor but found he could not; his physician said he must take rest. Persons who have never gone through a process of acclimation, or felt the debilitating power of tropical malaria, can scarcely understand how a man may look so well externally and even not feel very badly himself, and yet be wholly incapacitated for work for months at a time—and he liable to fall a victim to almost any local dangerous sickness. Our personal experience in this city the past years enables us to speak understandingly. We trust Bishop Haven will remain at Saratoga or such other point his physician may direct until he is thoroughly well, no matter what time is required. Years ago the church came very near losing Bishop Simpson from the malarial poison taken into his system during a single sail up the Danube.

Tobacco and Paying the Preacher.

A brother asks: "Can a person be a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church in good standing, and never pay one cent to help to support the different enterprises, on the ground of being too poor, and yet be a great user of tobacco in its various forms?"

We answer, no. We do not say that a person should be turned out of the church for using tobacco. But we do say that a person who can find money enough the year round to supply himself with tobacco, has no excuse on the ground of poverty, for not paying anything to the church. He may not be able to pay much, but he can pay something. When members are received into the Methodist Episcopal Chuch, the last question and answer are as follows:

"Will you contribute of your earthly substance according to your ability, to the support of the Gospel and the various benevolent enterprises of the Church?"

Answer. I will.

That is a very solemn pledge.

Rioting continues in the coal mining regions of Pennsylvania. Soldiers have been freely used to restore order and a large number of arrests have been made. Governor Hartranft is determined to restore order. Evidently this is the first and only right thing to do no matter how many lives it may cost. On the other hand there is a view of the condition of those miners which must awaken the sympathies of all. A correspondent in the New York Times given an account of a visit to the miners in the vicinity of Scranton, Pennsylvania, one man said to him, "We may as well starve as try to work longer for wages that are not sufficient to keep body and soul decently together." Wages have been cut down 35 per cent. since January 1875. The last reduction of 15 per cent. was made last March, and it is this last that has caused the trouble. The men at best have only half work, and this with the reduction of wages brings families into conditions of want most deplorable. After the restoration of order by force, will come the much more difficult task of establishing just relations between the mining companies and their employes.

The alumni of Garrett Biblical Institute, our theological school located at Evanston, Illinois, have undertaken to raise money enough to endow a professorship in that institution, to be known as the alumni professorship. The local committee having the matter in hand consists of R. D. Shepherd, W. A. Spencer and T. S. Berry.

The Independent asks: Does the Methodist Episcopal Church publish the Atlanta Republican, as well as the Atlanta Advocate, or is The Advocate published from The Republican office? There is a marvelous similarity between them. The Republican of July 26th has 18 columns of general and religious matter which appeared in The Advocate of the day following, and all in exactly the same type. The Advocate, out of 26 columns, had only seven which had not appeared in The Republican of the day before.

The Methodist Episcopal Church publishes the Methodist Advocate in Atlanta, and does not care how many other papers copy its contents. We suggest, however, that the Methodist Advocate should see that the matter appears in its own columns first, and not the "day before" in the Republican.

Another Mormon "Bishop" has been arrested for murder. This time it is Robert T. Burton, a Major-General in the Navoo Legion, acting bishop of a part of Salt Lake City, and a man of the highest social standing. He is charged with murdering Joseph Morris and others in 1861. Morris was esteemed a prophet by his followers, and the successor of Brigham Young. Burton was sent to capture him and his followers, and having done so, there are those who testify that he deliberately shot Morris, one Banks and two women who upbraided him for his crime.

We lately spent a Sabbath with Dr. J. P. Newman, in Washington City. We listened to one of his grand sermons in the morning, and preached for him at night. Although it was summer, and Congress was not in session, and the President nolonger worships at the Metropolitan Church, the audiences were very large. Dr. Newman's strength lies in his character, culture and devotion to the Master, and loyalty to the Church by whose authority he preaches.

Hon. E. Heath and family of this city, are spending a few weeks in Waukesha, Wisconsin. In a note Mr. Heath says: "We are enjoying our vacation very much. There are at least seventy-five to one hundred people here from New Orleans—this State reminds me of my own (Maine). The people are thrifty, industrious and contented. The wheat crop of this State alone is estimated at 40,000,000 bushels! Put it at $1 00 per bushel (now worth $1 40), and what a sum of money for a single State!"

A pleasant surprise was given the Rev. H. S. Thrall and wife, of the Methodist Church South, at San Antonio, Texas, on Saturday evening, July 25th, it being the 25th Anniversary of their marriage, all of which has been spent in Texas. Among the donations was a beautiful silver ice pitcher, twenty-five silver dollars, etc., etc. Rev. Mr. Thrall is the author of the history of Texas, and well known in the State.

Secretary Evarts has eleven daughters, all unmarried and at home. The Inter-Ocean says that when Mr. Evarts takes his family on a journey, and goes to engage eleven Pullman car berths, the agents usually asks whether he is not the manager of a troupe. To avoid embarrassment he now just charters a car.

Rev. D. Gregory, Presiding Elder of the San Antonio District, West Texas Conference, makes the following offer: He will give any of the books in the Conference course of studies as a present to the preacher of his District who brings the most missionary money to Conference at its next session.

The Sunday Delta of the 12th, says: "Mr. Madden, a school teacher in Plaquemines parish, has been the victim of a brutal and murderous assault which leaves him in danger of death."

We suppose this to be Rev. T. E. Madden of the Louisiana Conference, but do not know. Will give facts as soon as received.

There is a heavy decline in sugar in New York. It is caused by the overloaded condition of the market. The New York Tribune fears many sugar firms will go down, and mentions one holding 25,000 hogsheads, which, if forced to sell, would lose $800,000.

Governor Packard returned from his northern trip in good spirits and health, and in time to be the happy recipient of a pair of twin sons.

Mrs. Grant is said to be in danger of becoming totally blind.

Our Southern Methodism.

Rev. H. Cawthorn, Brookville, Miss., says: "We are in the midst of a gracious revival, many enquirers after salvation, and there have been four accessions to the church. There are three Sunday-schools on this work, numbering 150 scholars. We have built one new church this year."

Rev. W. M. Payne, New Albany, Miss., says: "We have a meeting now in progress. So far there have been fifteen conversions and ten accessions to the church. The interest in the work is unabated. Pray that the Lord may direct us."

Rev. H. T. O. Abbott, Shreveport, La., writes: The accessions to St. James M. E. Church, of this city during past three months are as follows: on profession of faith, 54; on probation 38; by letter 11; reclaimed 6, making in all 109. The meeting was brought to a close that the members might have rest, although the interest was unabated."

Rev. R. Anderson, St. Paul's circuit, Miss, says: "We have just closed a two week's protracted meeting, in which there were sixteen conversions and twenty-two accessions to the church. A great religious awakening is manifesting itself among the people on this circuit. Our congregations and Sunday-schools show the increase of spiritual interest."

Rev. J. F. Marshall, Cheneyville, La., writes: "Since the close of the revival at Holmesville we have been holding meetings at this place. The Lord has graciously smiled upon us and crowned our labors with success. There have been twenty-four convertions and sixty-eight accessions to the church. Our congregations are large and an excellent spirit prevails among the membership."

Rev. J. D. Walden, Goodman, recently held, was the occasion of Miss., says: "Our Quarterlymeeting, much blessing to us. We held services for a few days previous to and succeeding it. Six persons professed saving faith in a crucified Redeemer, and eight united with the Church. Presiding Elder Dunn was with us and preached a sermon which will long be remembered for its influence for good."

Rev. W. P. Forest, Clinton St. Church, of this city, says: "We have been holding protracted meeting for two weeks past. During that time there have been twenty-two conversions, and thirty-nine accessions to the church; and the altar is yet filled every night with enquirers after salvation. May the Holy Spirit direct them and may we yet see scores of believers gathered into the Church of Christ."

Rev. V. M. Cole, Presiding Elder of Navasota, Texas, District, writes: "The Lord has blessed us in this district this year. The preachers are hard at work and have been ever since the close of the Conference; they are holding protracted meetings, sinners has been awakened and numbers has been converted. We are now preparing for Camp Meeting, and we hope, that everybody will pray that we may have a good time. We are building churches and are buying land, and getting good chains of title, and we are also praying to reap for our Annual Conference a good harvest. Our accessions have been up to this date about three hundred."

Rev. D. W. Hays, Murfreesboro, Tenn, writes: "We learn that Rev. Wesley Lillard, in charge of Woodberry Circuit, has just closed an interesting revival meeting. Thirty one persons, mostly heads of families. professed faith in Christ and united with the church. It is somewhat remarkable that Bro. Lillard, a young man comparatively, and of limited education has succeeded in leading such a large number of sinners to the Savior each year since he commenced to travel. He strikes for souls and gets them by scores. He speaks of starting a work at two other points soon. May the blessing of God continue to crown his efforts."

A friend sends us this note: Methodism in San Antonio is not doing what it seems could be done. In a population of 20,000 are only three Methodist churches; one Methodist Church South, white, one Mexican Methodist Church South, and one M. E. Church, colored, the last of which is decidedly the most prosperous so far as can be learned, and have the second best Protestant church building in the city.

Religious Items.

The new Roman Catholic Cathedral, Fifth avenue, New York, will have new pews.

Bishop Cheney, of the Reformed Episcopal church, was one of the speakers at the class-leaders' convention recently held at Lake Bluff.

The Christian at Work says Northern and Southern Presbyterians can't sit together in the same Assembly in the United States; but in Edinburg, lo! Dr. Howard Crosby and Dr. Stuart Robinson sitting side by side as joint Moderators of the same General Council!

The Episcopal General Convention, to be held in the Fall at Boston, will consider some important subjects. It is expected the questions of suffragan bishops, provincial synods, the establishment of an order of deaconesses, the disciplining of divorced members who marry again, rubrical revision, lessons for the week days of Lent which were before the last General Convention will come regularly before the next.

The Cumberland Presbyterians have done but little for foreign missions. They have now opened a mission in Japan, with one missionary, and are endeavoring to obtain means to send out another, who is ready to go. Last year the Church raised $2,693 for foreign missions, which small as it is, is said by the secretary to be an increase of 400 per cent. over the contributions of the previous year.

General News.

Secretary Sherman predicts 20,000 Republican majority in Ohio.

Gen. Grant laid the corner stone of the new American Protestant Church at Geneva, Switzerland.

The Jewish population in this country is about 250,000. They have 152 synagogues.

Fifty skilled carpenters left New York for England last week, under contract to work at $1 75 per day.

A letter bearing a Confederate 10 cent postage stamp passed the inspection of two Virginia Postmasters recently, and reached its destination unchallenged.

The Free Soilers of 1848 are to have a reunion at Downer Landing, Boston Harbor, on the 9th inst., at which Charles Francis Adams will preside.

A German paper concludes that the richest man in the world is an American, J. W. Mackey, whose fortune has been acquired in silver-mining in Nevada. His income is said to be $35,000 per day.

Five Japanese young men are on the way to this country, and will soon arrive at San Francisco, to be educated at Indiana Asbury University. Four of these are converts.

On a California ranch recently, wheat which was standing in the ear at a quarter before five in the morning, was eaten as biscuit at a quarter before seven, having been cut, threshed, ground and baked in two hours.

A suit is in progress between the United States and a prominent Virginian for the recovery of $20,000 in gold which the latter took possession of at the overthrow of the Confederacy. It should have been included in the general surrender to the Union.

President Hayes' Southern trip, which was prevented by the railroad strike, will be taken at the Christmas holidays. He hopes to come as far as to New Orleans and make short visits at several of the important cities in South Carolina, Georgia, Louisiana, Alabama, Tennessee and Virginia.

Frank Walworth, who was sentenced to life imprisonment for shooting his father, in 1870, was last week pardoned by Governor Robinson. For some time he was confined in the insane department of the Auburn Prison, and a commission decided that further detention would result in complete idiocy.

Will you be Saved?

Spurgeon makes a very practical turn, well worth considering, to the query sometimes made, "Will the heathen be saved if we do not send them missionaries?" by asking, "Will you be saved if you do not send out any missionaries?—because I have dreadful doubts about whether you will. The man that does nothing for his Master, will he be saved? The man that never cares about the perishing heathen, is he saved? Is he like Christ?"

The Georgia Convention.

"Prince," a correspondent of the Chicago Inter-Ocean, writing from Atlanta, Ga., under date of July 24, says:

The constitutional convention, now in session at this place, has gone far enough in its work to furnish a basis on which the constitution it will make may be clearly predicated.

It is exceedingly important that the people of the whole United States should be thoroughly conversant with not only the technical work of the convention, but also the motive and manner of thought that lies behind the real work. It is the people of the leading Democratic State in the South assembled for the purpose of making a constitution that shall be of domestic manufacture, and at the same time accommodate itself to the order of things brought about the by war. For the first time, a constitution is being made in the new South, unembarrassed by the fear of outside interference. Mr. Hayes has said to the country with deliberation and emphasis that the South must be left to manage its own affairs, and that the negro, up to this time a ward over which the nation has exercised an active care, must now be left to the trusteeship of his old masters. Georgia, before this trust has been fairly placed in her hands, meets to reconstruct her fundamental law and readjust the relations of the races. There is but one Republican (and no negro) in the convention that has assembled for this purpose, and its work will consequently be the resultant of the sentiment and purpose of the new Democratic South.

The opening speeches of the presidents of the convention, permanent and pro tem., touched upon national subjects. The president pro tem. alluded, with some bitterness and a deal of buncombe, to the fact that carpetbaggers had inserted the word "rebel" in the present constitution. He inveighed somewhat furiously against this offensive word, his remarks being received, however, in deadly and oppressive silence. It became apparent at once that the people of Georgia had no sympathy with such stuff. His remarks were not printed in the newspaper reports next day.

Gov. Jenkins, permanent president, said that there was little necessity for him to ask the convention to recognize to its fullest extent, and protect in the most faithful manner, the rights of the negro in his new position. He felt assured that when the constitution was made the negro would soon come to regard it as the "palladium of his liberties." These remarks were received with the heartiest applause, and were commended on all sides. The convention then went to work, with the following results, that have a national interest:

In the bill of rights the word "rebel," which was to be found in the Constitution of 1868, was omitted without debate. The Union is declared to be, in the language of the committee on the bill of rights, "a federal, and not a consolidated government, depending on the inviolability of the reserved rights of the several States." This whole [illegible] before final [illegible] upon the mo[illegible]. A clause is [illegible] that "The people [illegible] have the sole, exclusive [illegible] inherent right of regulating [illegible] internal government, of [illegible] their Constitution or form of [illegible] whenever it may be necessary for their peace or happiness." It is further prescribed that "the [illegible] status of the citizen shall never be the subject of legislation," and that "the writ of habeas [illegible] shall not be suspended." All [illegible] citizens of the United States [illegible] State" are declared [illegible] and the legis[illegible] enact such laws [illegible] in all the [illegible]. The present [illegible] a clause forbid[illegible] for [illegible] in [illegible], which also [illegible] shall be no [illegible] in [illegible] for [illegible] shall be no [illegible] crime. Imprison[illegible] also forbidden, [illegible] reached after a [illegible] the report of [illegible] franchise, [illegible] excit[illegible]. Several [illegible] as it [illegible] in [illegible] right to [illegible] months [illegible] from [illegible]. This [illegible] the [illegible] citizens, [illegible] that may have accumulated against him after the passage of this Constitution. Gen. Wofford, who is leader of the independent movement in this State, protested against the passage of this clause in the most vehement manner, but was over-ruled by a large majority of the convention.

It is safe to say that in the above will be found all legislation possible with the convention that may be said to have an influence upon one race of the people more than the others. An attempt will be made to abolish the present public-school system, in which the negro gets over one-third of the school fund while paying only one-thirtieth of the tax. This attempt will very certainly fail. It may be at last said that the people of Georgia will accept the inevitable results of the war, and that their new Constitution will be founded upon the logic of these results, and framed to meet their requirements.

From Mission Rooms.

The German and Switzerland Conference opened on July 12th. Dr. Nast was there and Bro. Flocken, of Bulgaria, on his way to Hungary to see his sick wife. His work of course is interrupted in Rustchuck.

FROM BISHOP ANDREWS.

Bishop Andrews left for America July 28th, in the Alsatia of the Anchor Line. He writes to the Mission Rooms of our Norway work and says: The financial management of that mission has been excellent. There was a reduction in the missionary collection, but advance in the matter of self-support. The amount assessed on the societies for self-support for the coming year is $3,167, as against $2,210 raised in 1876-7. The increase of church property has been $13,765; of church debts $3,438; missionary collections were $749 60. Total collections from the people $20,807 60.

The Superintendent of the Norway Mission writes to the Missionary Secretaries, saying: "Our dear Bishop Andrews left us on the 3d of July for Copenhagen. His stay among us, gave us a precious time. He preached in Christiana, Kampen, Frederickstad, Sharpsborg, Frederickshold and Horton to the great rejoicing of the people. It was indeed a time of refreshing, strengthening and edification of God's people. He presided in our Annual Conference with great love, wisdom and care, and thereby won all hearts. Seven brethern were ordained deacons and one elder. His wise consel and loving kindness to me I shall never forget—I cannot express how lonely I felt when I had to part with our dear Bishop. The prayers and good wishes of all our brethren do follow him.

Bishop Wiley expects to be at St. Denver, Aug. 1-6; Salt Lake City, Aug. 10-13; Santa Barbara, Aug 17; San Francisco, Aug. 25. "About the glorious and thrilling work here you shall hear plenty betimes," is the word 'from the front' in South America.

SYMPATHY WITH TURKEY FROM INDIA.

The Mission Rooms learn from India that, "the Mussulman population is very much excited over Turco-Russian war, and are subscribing large sums of money to help the Turks. The proclamation of a Jahad, or religious war by the Sheikh-ul-Islam at Constantinople is being felt in this country. It would not take much to excite the Mohammedans to another terrible mutiny. We are better prepared for it, however, now than we were in 1857; we are in God's hands now as we were then." The writer of this had terrible experience in the India mutiny of '57.

Letter from Florida.

Methodism of the old stock and new growth has had many struggles in this sparely settled State, but the old fire and new flame are rising up to a position of usefulness to all who accept her teachings or come within the radius of her influence.

The men who lead the flocks have not the largest pay nor the best house, but they take their places in the rank and file of other preachers, and get as much of the "milk of human kindness" as others of their might. They do not retreat, desert nor starve, but hold on, work on and push up to the mark; nor need "Part curb their steeds nor shun the goal with rapid wheels," for win they will as the reports from different charges indicate.

At several places new churches are being erected. New books, papers and appliances for Sabbath-schools have been secured. Zion M. E. Church, of this city, has points of interest which belong to our best churches.

The utterances of the pulpit have [illegible] uncertain sound, nor do they [illegible] arrest attention, awaken the [illegible] produce conviction and [illegible]. A single week [illegible] not passed without [illegible] accession of [illegible] class meetings [illegible] by a large majority of [illegible], and they are seasons of "refreshing from the presence of the Lord."

The Sabbath-school teachers are availing themselves of the privilege of a normal exercise every week, and the regular attendance in the classes show the scholars' appreciation of these advantages. Our preachers have been blessed with a donation of the "Weekly Witness" for a year, by the generosity of philanthropists and Mr. Dougal. We will soon see the beneficent results of this weekly visitor to the homes of men who were a few years ago in mental blindness.

Our project for a conference library has succeeded at last, and a number of the best books for our preachers, such as are prescribed in the conference course, has been purchased, covered, labelled and put into their hands, and now our examinations need no longer be a farce, but the brethern will be held strictly to a part of required course. How important it is while "many are running to and fro" in this new field of Christian work that knowledge shall be increased. Burning zeal needs gospel truth to direct it, and through the aid of Cookman Institute we hope to furnish the necessary assistance to our work. Many gratifying results appear already, and a score or more now teaching will not fail to demonstrate the value of this school to the people and State. Many new applications are made for admission, and the roll bids fair to have a large increase. Our new brick building, erected with the means collected from Northern friends, gives standing to our work, and accommodates over a hundred pupils.

Let it be a tower into which men and women may enter and prepare for the responsible positions God has called them to fill.

S. B. DARNELL.

Jacksonville, Fla., Aug. 7, 1877.

Letter from East Feliciana.

When I came to this circuit at the first of the year, I found the membership greatly reduced in numbers. Out of an enrolled membership of 312, I found but 110; they had gone to other parishes, and over into Mississippi. The cause of their removal was the reign of terror under which they had lived the previous year.

During this year a better condition of affairs has continued, and our membership has gradually increased; and a few weeks since, when there had been 92 accessions, we decided to hold a protracted meeting, and accordingly made preparations to do so. But we found the enemies of the Cross ready to oppose our efforts. The following notice we found upon our pulpit:

"To the Rev. John Wesley, and others whom it may concern: we would say this night meeting must and shall be stopped. (We have had enough of it). Take warning and govern yourself accordingly."

BULLDOZER.

Trusting to Him whose work we were endeavoring to do, we went forward with our meeting, disregarding the threats made against us, and the Lord has greatly blessed our efforts. Up to this time, there have been forty-two conversions, and the interest in the meeting is unabated. Among the converts is a son of Rev. James Monroe, one of our ablest local preachers in this District. Most of them are young people, who are more or less educated, and thereby the better qualified to make themselves useful as soldiers of the Cross. One great need of this parish at this time, is earnest workers in the cause of temperance. Strong drink is a great curse to our people.

JOHN WESLEY.

CLINTON, LA., August 6.

Pittsburgh Female College.

Among the very best colleges for ladies in the United States is the Pittsburgh Female College, presided over by Rev. Dr. I. C. Pershing.

The buildings are large, giving ample room for several hundred students; and completely fitted up and furnished, giving choice accommodations. There are eight departments; diplomas are given in the regular college courses, English and classical, in the Seminary course, in the teacher's course, and in three musical courses. The Faculty numbers upwards of twenty instructors; eleven of them in the conservatory of music connected with the building. Pittsburgh is one of the healthiest cities in the Union. The college is located near excellent churches of different denominations, where students can choose their places of attendance. Every winter several courses of lectures are delivered in the city, which the students can attend. The school has a very high moral tone, and parents need have no fears in placing their daughters under the care of Dr. and Mrs. Pershing. They will have the counsel and advice of earnest Christians, and experienced educators. During the past year over two hundred students have attended, and in prosperous times over four hundred have attended. This indicates the large patronage of the institution. Instructions are given in painting. The charges are moderate.

A fully furnished, carpeted room, light, fuel, church sitting, ten pieces of washing per week, and tuition in all the English branches, and Latin, costs but $282 per collegiate year. Any person wishing information should address Dr. I. C. Pershing, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Sunday School.

AUGUST 26, 1877.—PAUL AT ATHENS.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"For there is one God, and one Mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus.—3 Tim. 2: 5.

TOPIC.--God Revealed.

(Condensed from the S. S. Teacher.)

At Athens Paul's powers were put to a severe test. It was the city of culture. It had given birth to philosophers, orators, and poets. It was prominent for learning, for philosophy, science, art, and architecture. The city was full of gods. Statues of deities were on every hand. Every public building was dedicated to and was the shrine of some god.

In his address it is to be noted: 1st, That Paul does not begin with denunciations of idolatry. That would have arrayed against him, at the very outset, all of his auditors. On the contrary, he in a manner identifies himself with his hearers. He refutes the idea that he is a setter forth of strange gods, by showing that the God whom he does set forth is the very one whom already they have been worshipping under the title of "An Unknown God." He obtains their attention, without awakening their animosity, by assuming to instruct them in a matter in regard to which they had confessed their own ignorance. No one can reach another except he first finds some common ground upon which both can stand.

GOD THE FATHER (26-29).—The fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of men is asserted in a single sentence. There is in it still the thought of God as the maker—"hath made of one blood all nations of men"—but the idea of human brotherhood in it stands out prominently also. Creator not only of things, but of nations of men, and made them kin in order that they might dwell together in peace. This brotherhood of races was no palatable thought to the Athenians, who, proud of their culture and their intellectual superiority, supercitiously divided the world into "Greeks and barbarians." The potency of God, Paul continued, was not limited with creation. The power that gave life could also take it away: "And hath determined the times, before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation." The duration of the existence of nations and the bounds of their territory were fixed by him. Athens was as dependent upon him as a child upon the favor of a parent. "He increaseth nations and destroyeth them; he enlargeth the nations and straighteneth them again." The very God of whom they knew so little as to call him "unknown" was the one in whose hands was the life and death of nations.

Next Paul gives the reason why God became the Father of mankind and exercises such care over their destinies. It was that all might seek him. He hungers for the love of men as a father for the love of his children. Paul gives us the key to interpret all of God's providences. He sends blessings and judgments, pleasure and pain, prosperity and adversity—all that men may seek him. If haply they might feel after him. With all that God does for men there is only a mere chance, and "if haply," that they will seek after him. Though he be not far from every one of us. There is no occasion to ascend into heaven to bring him down or descend into the depths to bring him up. The gracious, and, when realized, the thrilling fact is that he is ever present with us—he is the seeker, we the sought. For in him we live and move and have our being. Stated as a reason why he is not far from every one of us. The child is not far from the mother from whose breast it is drawing its nourishment, and we can not be far from him in whom we dwell, and move, and have our being. This nearness of God is a fact that has existed since man was formed in the image of his Maker, and yet it is never realized but what it comes upon one as a surprise. God, the Near Friend of all, is still to be discerned by the world. How patiently he has waited for a recognition! Paul preached a doctrine which contravened the teachings both of the Epicureans and of the Stoics. The first declared that there was no God, and the second that every thing was a part of God. In the face of the first, Paul declared God to be not only an existence, but the author of all existence, and, in the face of the second, he asserted, not that all men are a part of God, but that they are in him and absolutely dependent upon him.

God the Judge (30-35).—Two farther reasons are given why they should no longer worship idols. The first was, that although God in times past has overlooked (not "winked at") such ignorance, now he commands every one to repent. The glad tidings of salvation were about to be proclaimed all over the world. Its ignorance was to be dissipated. Henceforth there was to be no excuse on account of want of knowledge. The second reason was—the day of judgment. That day lifts up its awful front against all those that turn away from God. and the judge will be—"that man whom he hath ordained." We shall be judged by one who has had experience of our humanity—our Advocate will also be our Judge. This judgment day and this Judge are not lightly to be dismissed from one's fear. God, to prove that it was no light, trifling matter, "hath given assurance (offered faith—so the margin) unto all men in that he hath raised him from the dead." The sufferings, death, and resurrection of Christ are portentous proofs of the character of that dread day.

Inasmuch as the dead must be raised to be judged, Paul's statement involved the general resurrection of the dead as well as that of Christ. At this some "mocked;" the Stoics because every man was a part of God, and, at death, would be absorbed in him, the Epicureans because death was the end of life.

Paul's audience, like almost all modern ones, was composed of three classes: 1.—those who mocked—who openly made sport of his religion; 2.—those who hesitated—who said," "we will hear again of this matter;" 3.—those who believed. The latter "clave" unto him. The matter was so new, so absorbing, so joyful, that they could not let him go. They wanted further instructions. They were babes in ignorance, and needed that he should teach them. The second class was the largest one. Many will say to those who teach this lesson: "We will hear thee again of this matter"—and that will be the last of it. A few will mock, and a very few will believe. But what joy will be in their hearts, and how they will cleave to those who have taught them the true way.

Paul departed. Mocking and indifference were worse than opposition and stoning and imprisonment. In places where he was shamefully treated there a strong church was formed, but we hear of no church at Athens. Dionysius, the judge, and a woman named Damaris were the only converts of note. Courteous skepticism and mocking disdain are more armor-proof than open opposition.

The Old Disciple.

There is something peculiarly dignified and gentle in the experience of aged believers whose serene piety and mellowed characters develop the child-spirit of the genuine disciple. We see the last tints glowing on the golden grain; the shock of corn coming in his season, when it is fully ripe. How beautiful is that memorial in the Acts of the Apostles: "And Mnason, an old disciple." That is all we know of him, but that is enough to let us see "the crown of glory" silvering his noble head. There it will stand as long as the world lasts, a monumental inscription more enduring than brass. "Second childhood," in the common meaning of the words, indicates the painful lapse of age into childishness. But there is a "second childhood" which is the beautiful childlikeness of the hoary head when it is "found in the way of righteousness." Then it becomes "a crown of glory." It is not merely growing old gracefully, but growing old graciously, which makes the beauty of reverend age. Not seldom we may see the gradual mellowing of character, like the ripening of golden grain in the waving harvest field. It bends and sways before the breeze as readily as when it was still green; but its waves are tinted with sunset hues, and every day makes it more ready for the sickle. Infirmities of the flesh scarcely touch the spiritual past, and even amid the weakening of both mind and body the refining process goes on silently, but with increasing power; unconsciously, perhaps, to the subject of it, but manifest to all around. Sometimes old age is peevish, fretful, cross and morose, but where grace is working, it as often loses its asperity and softens into serene and happy contentment. And then, when sickness brings the latter day visions of eternal things close to view, how gently does the Lord our Shepherd lead down into the valley, and beside the still waters, for his own name's sake!

Surely, the old age of such believers is more than venerable. It is apostolic, saintly, Christ-like.—Christian Intelligencer.

Married,

At the residence of the bride, in Carrollton, by Rev. J. Gould, MISS SWAN TOMPKINS and MR. PAUL R. MYERS, of Kentucky, on the 19th of July, 1877.

Every Lady Her Own Physician.

Ladies' own Prescription. Information of great value to every lady sent free, by addressing Dr. W. C. Stevens, 911 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa. [aug16-tf

Quarterly Meetings.

Navasota (Tex.) District.

THIRD ROUND.

Brenham, Sept. 1-2; Navasota, Sept. 8-9; Courtney, Sept. 15-16; Plantersville, Sept. 22-23; Anderson, Sept. 29-30; Millican, Oct. 6-7; Bryan, Oct. 13-14; Brewer Hill, Oct. 27-28; Hempstead Circuit, Nov. 3-4; Hearne, Nov. 10-11; San Phillip, Nov. 17-18; Cotton Gin, Nov. 24-25, Fairfield, Dec. 1-2.

The District Conference will be held at Hempstead Oct. 18-19-20.

W. M. COLE, P. E.

Okolona (Miss.,) District.

THIRD ROUND.

Okolona, August 18-19; Corinth, August 4-5; Tupelo, August 11-12; Spring Valley and Union Grove, August 25-26; Houston, September 1-2; West Point, September 8-9; Tampico, September 10-11; Columbus and Circuit, September 15-16; Athens, September 17-18; Spring Valley and Union Grove, September 22-23; Big Black, September 24-25; Pontotoc, September 29-30; Union Grove, October 6-7; Tibbe, October 13-14; Calhoun, October 20-21; Aberdeen, October 27-28; Beuna Vista, October 26.

The Okolona District Conference, will meet at Aberdeen, October 29. All the Traveling and Local Preachers, Exhorters, District Stewards and Sunday School Superintendents, are requested to be present.

D. McLACHLAN, P. E.

San Antonio (Tex.,) District.

Columbus, August 4 and 5; Columbus circuit, August 4 and 5; Alleyton, August 10 and 12; Eagle Lake, August 14 and 15; San Antonio, August 18 and 19; Henry, August 25 and 26; Texana, September 1 and 2; Victoria circuit, September 8 and 9; Mission Valley, September 15 and 16; Indianola, September 29 and 30; Speaksville, September 29 and 30; Victoria, October 6 and 7; Peach Creek, October 6 and 7; Corpus Christi, October 6 and 7; Hondo, October 6 and 7; Floresville, October 6 and 7; Southerland Springs, October 6 and 7; Nockernut, October 6 and 7; Lavernia, October 6 and 7; Belmont, October 6 and 7; Riddleville, October 6 and 7; Oakland, October 6 and 7; Helletsville, October 6 and 7.

D. GREGORY, P. E.

Murfreesboro (Tenn.,) Dist.

FOURTH ROUND.

Stone River, 4 and 5; Murfreesboro Circuit, August 9 and 10; Murfreesboro, August 11 and 12; Alexandria, August 15 and 16; Carthage, August 18 and 19; Lebanon, August 25 and 26; North Lebanon, August 29 and 30; Hartsville, September 1 and 2; Gallatin, September 1 and 2; Mitchellsville, September 8 and 9; Springfield, September 15 and 16; Dickson, September 22 and 23; Nashville Circuit, September 26 and 27; Clark Chapel 29 and 30.

C. PICKETT, P. E.

Memphis (Tenn.,) Dist.

FOURTH ROUND.

Memphis, July 7; Adamsville, July 14 Shiloh, July 16; White Sulphur, July 18; Saltillo July 21; Lexington July 25; Decaturville, July 28; Camden, August 1; Clarksburg, August 4; Benton, August 8; Weakley, August 11; Alamo, August 15; Lake, August 18; Carroll and Huntingdon, August 25; Dickson, September 1; Dickson circuit, September 5; Buffalo, September 8; Wayne, September 12; Indian Creek, September 15; Lawrenceburg, September 22.

The Memphis district Sunday-school Extension Society, composed of the members of the district conference, will hold its second session at White Sulphur, Hardin county, July 17th to 20th. Opening service, 17th, at 8 o'clock p. m.

The district conference will meet at Shoat's Creek, Giles county, September 26th. Opening sermon at 7 o'clock p. m., by Rev. E. N. Williams.

J. L. CHANDLER, P. E.

Houston, (Texas) District.

THIRD ROUND.

Richmond and Forest Chapel, July 1-2; Church Houston, July 7-8; Edwards Chapel, July 9-10; Harrisburg and West Point, July 14-15; Columbia and Brazoria, July 21-22; 1st Church Houston, August 4-5; Spring Creek, 25-26; East Church Tabernacle, September 1-2; Galveston, Staffords, September 8-9; Cypress, September, 15-16; Oyster Creek, September 22-23.

W. L. MOLLOY, P. E.

Marshall (Tex.) District.

THIRD ROUND.

Coffeeville, June 30 July 1; Marion, July 7-8 Marshall, July 14-15; Jefferson, Circuit July 21-22; Jefferson, July 28-29; Hickory Grove, July 28-29; Clarksville, August 4-5th; Union, August 4-5; Paris July 11th-12; Quitman, Aug. 18-19; Vanzant, Aug. 25-26; Greenville, Sept. 1st. 2nd; Sulphur Springs, Sept. 8-9th; Mt. Pleasant, Sept. 15-16.

F. C. MOORE, P. E.

Gannett Institute FOR YOUNG LADIES, BOSTON, MASS.

The 24th year will begin Wednesday, Sept. 26, 1877. For Catalogues and Circular, apply to Rev. Geo. Gannett, Principal, 69 Chester Square, Boston, Mass. Aug. 7-5t.

Church Furniture.

MENEELY BELLS.

The genuine Troy Church Bells, known to the public since 1826.

CATALOGUES FREE.

Post-office address, either Troy or West Troy, N. Y. MENEELY & CO.

Aug. 9-1 y.

ROANOKE COLLEGE, SALEM, VA.

Next session begins September 5th, 1877. Collegiate, elective and preparatory, courses. Unsurpassed location. Mountain climate. Moral community. Five Churches in town. Expenses for 9½ months, including tuition, board, etc., from $160 to $240. Students from fifteen States, Indian Territory, and Mexico. Patronage constantly increasing. For catalogues, etc., address

jy12-4t] SECRETARY OF FACULTY.

Hospital College of Medicine.

(The clinical School of the West.)

Med. Dept. of Central Univ., Louisville, Ky.

Distinctive features: A thorough didactic course, unsurpassed clinical facilities, eighteen clinics per week, the student being daily required to examine and prescribe, a high standard of graduation, both a didactic and a practical clinical examination being required.

For catalogues and information concerning special advantages address

DR. W. H. BOLLING, DEAN,

Cor. Third and Jefferson Sts., Louisville, Ky.

Staunton Female Seminary.

STAUNTON, VIRGINIA.

Rev. J. I. Miller, A. M., Principal, with a full corps of teachers, including Mrs. Gen. J. E. B. Stuart. School not sectarian. Four denominations represented in the faculty Board and home comforts the best. Positively no extravagance in dress allowed. Terms liberal. Session opens Sept. 6th, 1877. Send for catalogue to the Principal, [jy26-t

SOUTHWESTERN AGENCY FOR School and College Text Books.

Office No. 80 CAMP STREET (up stairs).

Below we submit the MODEL SERIES of books (so conceded by the leading educators of this country) for use in PRIMARY, INTERMEDIATE and GRAMMAR schools. To insure their adoption by the progressive teacher we have only to ask a careful comparison with books of a like grade, a critical examination and a thorough, practical test in the class-room:

	Prices.
Harper's Introductory Geography	60
Harper's School Geography	$1 25
" United States First Reader	15
" " " Second "	26
" " " Third "	37
" " " Fourth "	56
" " " Fifth "	75
" " " Sixth "	90
Wilson's Primary Speller	15
" Larger "	30
" New "	34
Lamson's Penmanship, per dozen	1 08
French's First Lessons in Numbers	25
" Elementary Arithmetic	37
" Mental Arithmetic	36
" Common School Arithmetic	70
Swinton's Language Primer	30
" Language Lessons	37
" School Composition	37
" Progressive Grammar	55

Catalogues, circulars, and testimonials sent on applications. Correspondence solicited and will receive prompt attention, when addressed

W. P. ROGERS & W. L. JARVIS, Agents for the introduction of Harper & Brother' Educational Works; New Orleans, La.; Lock Box 134.

NEW ANTHEM BOOK, JUST PUBLISHED

Chapel Anthems

By Dr. J. B. Herbert, assisted by the best writers of the day. Supplies a long felt need for a collection of new, short, and practical Anthems for Choirs, Conventions, Singing Classes, etc. Sample copy mailed on receipt of retail price, $1 25. Liberal discount on quantities.

Heavenward! Is the leading new book of Sunday-school Songs. By Jas. R. Murray, P.P. Bliss, and others, and the only new book containing Mr. Bliss' best songs. Send 25 cts. for sample copy, in paper covers. Price in boards, 35 cents, or $30 00 per hundred.

Songs of Faith New Gospel Hymns and Sacred Songs by the best writers including Moody & Sankey's famous songs. The latest and best book for Revival, Praise or Camp Meetings. Price, words and music, 35 cts. $30 per 100. WORDS ONLY, 6cts. $5 00 per hundred.

SONGS OF P. P. BLISS

A collection of about forty of the best and most popular Songs, Duets, Quartets etc., secular and sacred, by the late P. P. Bliss. Most of the songs in this little volume can be found in no other book. Contains also a fine portrait of P. P. Bliss and sketch of his life. Edited by James R. Murray.

PRICE, tinted paper, neatly bound in boards, 30 cts., in cloth, red edges, 50 cts., in cloth, full gilt, 75 cts. Sold by most book and music dealers, or mailed on receipt of price.

☞ Catalogue of Sheet Music and Music Books sent FREE.

S. BRAINARD'S SONS, Publishers, Cleveland, O.

Texas Lands.

Best Investment in the Nation!

640 acres rich prairie loam, producing cotton, grains, fruit and vegetables, and adapted to stock, lying in the high and healthful latitude of Northwestern Texas, for the nominal sum of $266.

Title Patent, direct and perfect. Taxes low. Worth several times the cost. Now is your time to plant a small sum fruitfully. No fraud. All work personally supervised. Handled in the interest of education in Texas. Full particulars furnished on application, (with stamps).

References: Rev. Wm. Brush, D.D., P. E. Austin District, Austin, Texas; First National Bank, Dallas, Texas; State Savings Bank, Dallas, Texas, or editor of this paper. Address

REV. L. H. CARHART, West Texas Conference.

☞ Box 377, Dallas, Texas. [a19-tf

"The principle of combining English and American writers in a common literary enterprise, merits all encouragement."—J. Anthony Froude.

THE INTERNATIONAL REVIEW,

A NEW YORK AND LONDON REVIEW.

EMINENT CONTRIBUTORS ON BOTH SIDES OF THE ATLANTIC. (No articles at second hand. All articles original.)

CONTENTS.—MAY-JUNE—NOW READY.

The New Administration.
The Life Insurance Question. Carlton T. Lewis.
Disestablishment of the Church of England. Dr. James H. Rigg, London.
The Philadelphia Exhibition.—Part I. Mechanism and Administration. Francis A. Chief of the Bureau of Awards.
Tennyson.—A Criticism. Bayard Taylor.
Our Foreign Service. Hon. John Jay.
American and European Literature. Phillip Gilbert Hamerton.
Contemporary Events.

Price, Single Number, $1. For six months $3. Annual subscription (6 numbers) $5.

New York: A. S. BARNES & CO., Publishers.

apr27-10t]

NEW ENG. CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC.

16,000 pupils since 1875. 75 eminent instructors. 115 hours instruction for $15. Musical, Literary and Art courses. 4 terms a year. Address E. TOURJEE, Music Hall, Boston Mass. [July 19-4teow

E. HEATH. W. F. PIPPEY, M. LARA.

HEATH, PIPPEY & LARA,

99.........CAMP STREET.........99

NEW ORLEANS.

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

UPHOLSTERERS MATERIALS,

Wall Paper,

Window Shades, Cornices, and

CURTAIN GOODS.

PICTURES, FRAMES,
MOULDINGS, MIRRORS,
LOCKS, WIRE-CLOTH,
WINDOW & DOOR SCREENS

FRAMING DONE TO ORDER.

14-1y

F. F. HANSELL,

JAS. A. GRESHAM, Manager.

BOOK-SELLERS, PRINTERS, AND STATIONERS.

No. 30 CAMP STREET.

Would respectfully announce to the readers of the ADVOCATE their facilities for doing all kinds of Printing and Job Work for PARTIES, BALLS, and BUSINESS PURPOSES.

Methodist Hymn Books, Disciplines and Bibles

Will be furnished at Northern Prices.

FAMILY BIBLES,

from $2 50 to $10 00. Orders from the country will receive prompt attention, and all orders filled as low as if brought in person.

Address, as above,

F. F. HANSELL,

30 Camp street, New Orleans, La.

Box 84. [je14-77-3m.]

Heathen Woman's Friend.

24 PAGES MONTHLY. PRICE 50 CENTS.

Specimen Copies sent Gratuitously.

MRS. L. H. DAGGETT, Agent.

36 Bromfield street, Boston, Mass.

july19-1f

ONLY A BOY.

Only a boy with his noise and fun,
The veriest mystery under the sun;
As brimful of mischief, and wit, and glee,
As ever a human frame can be,
And as hard to manage as—ah! ah, me!
'Tis hard to tell
Yet we love him well.

Only a boy, with his fearful tread,
Who cannot be driven, but must be led;
Who troubles the neighbors' dogs and cats,
And tears more clothes, and spoils more hats,
Loses more tops, and kites, and balls,
Than would stock a store
For a year or more.

Only a boy, with his wild, strange ways;
With his idle hours on busy days;
With his queer remarks and his odd replies;
Sometimes foolish, and sometimes wise,
Often brilliant for one of his size,
As a meteor hurled
From the pleasant world.

Only a boy, who will be a man
If Nature goes on with her first great plan,
If water, or fire, or some fatal snare
Conspire not to rob us of this our heir,
Our blessing, our trouble, our rest, our care,
Our torment, our joy.
Only a boy.

Jimmy, the Cow-Boy.

An eccentric old gentleman of wealth, named Morgan, invested a sum of money, the income of which he designed to be used for the liberal education of the most deserving lad in town.

He made his plan known to five gentlemen, requesting them privately to make observations and report to him in six months.

Had the boys known this, many of them might have used every means to gain his favorable opinion; but as the matter was a secret, he had an opportunity to watch them without their suspecting his motive.

At the end of six months the five gentlemen met at Mr. Morgan's and discussed the question in all its bearings. Each had his favorite, whom he considered most worthy.

"There is Jimmy Ingalls, who is a most exemplary lad," said one. "What fault can you find with him, Mr. Morgan?"

"I will tell you," was the reply. "I once hired him to take some important letters to the morning mail, but he met a companion on the way, and was so anxious for his amusement that he neglected my letters till it was too late, and they were delayed a day," and a gentleman overheard him say to a companion that "he did not mean to, so long as the old fellow might never find it out." But the loss caused me the loss of quite a sum of money."

"Gentlemen," continued Mr. Morgan, "I have tried in one way and another all the boys you have mentioned, but none of them satisfied me."

"Then you have to give up your money," said one; "for I think we have discussed the merits of nearly every boy in town."

"Not quite; Jimmy has not been tried," said Mr. Morgan.

"Jimmy, the crow-boy?" with a smile.

"I believe he drives cows for farmers."

"Mr. Morgan, you must be joking; and had I any money I should not take a boy for a subject."

"Gentlemen, do you know of any harm of him?"

"No, not special; but does he do anything except to drive cows?"

"I know of no opportunity, but he shall have. I am willing to give him the benefit of the doubt."

"Well, what are the reasons for your pleasure? You know we are interested."

"Well, that does not in any way or another because I know of no one else to have the preference. I drive cows myself, and the only one I can truthfully say, though, the cows know when I was out on the road, and I was obliged to be in them at night."

"Gentlemen, Jimmy Ingalls is the boy I have decided on."

"Mr. Morgan, you must be joking."

"Gentlemen, I am not joking in the least. I shall send for Jimmy immediately."

Jimmy was found, and when he came he was asked if he would like to go to school a year or two longer.

"Yes, sir, I would like to very much."

"Can you pay your board?"

"No, sir, I can't pay anything but what I can earn."

"Do you think you can earn your way?"

"I can try, sir."

"Jimmy, do you think you can be a gentleman?"

"I don't know what you mean by a gentleman, sir; I can try to be a good boy."

"Jimmy, I shall be your friend if you do your best. I shall place you in a good family where you will have good clothes and good food, and I shall pay your tuition at the best school in town. I shall also pay you five dollars a month for your services, and I shall be your friend so long as you deserve it."

Jimmy's eyes opened wide with surprise, and he said, "Sir, I don't know why you should be my friend, but I will try to be a good boy and deserve your kindness."

Jimmy was placed in a good family, and his employer was pleased with his progress. At the end of the year he was asked if he would like to go to school another year

Southwestern Christian Advocate.

NEW SERIES—VOL. 1—NO. 34. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, AUGUST 23, 1877. WHOLE NUMBER 264

Southwestern.

PUBLISHED BY THE
METHODIST BOOK CONCERN,
39 Natchez St., New Orleans, La.
NELSON & PHILLIPS, Agents.
J. C. HARTZELL, D. D., Editor.

Terms: $2 a year, Cash in Advance.

All Travelling Preachers of the Methodist Episcopal Church are authorized Agents.

Subscriptions may begin at any time and the paper will be sent as long as paid for.

Remittances must be made by Registered Letter, P. O. Money Order, or by Express.

Advertising Rates.
(Per Nonpareil line, each insertion.)

One time .... 8 cents
One month (4 times) .... 7 "
Three months (13 times) .... 6 "
Six months (26 times) .... 5 "
One year (52 times) .... 4 "
Marriage notices 25
Special Notices .... 8 cents, net cash

NEW YORK OFFICE:
805 Broadway, New York,
WILLIAM BALDWIN, Special Agent.

THE PASTOR'S REVERIE.

The pastor sits in his easy chair,
With the Bible upon his knee,
From gold to purple the clouds in the west
Are changing momently;
The shadows lie in the valleys below,
And hide in the curtain's fold;
And the page grows dim whereon he reads,
"I remember the days of old."

"Not clear nor dark," as the Scripture saith,
The pastor's memories are;
No day that is gone was shadowless,
No night was without its star;
But mingled bitter and sweet hath been
The portion of his cup;
"The hand that in love hath smitten," he saith,
"In love hath bound us up."

Fleet flies his thought over many a field
Of stubble and snow and bloom,
And now it trips through a festival,
And now it halts at a tomb;
Young faces smile in his reverie
Of those that are young no more,
And voices are heard that only come
With the winds from a far off shore.

He thinks of the day when first, with fear
And faltering lips, he stood
To speak in the sacred place the Word
To the waiting multitude;
He walks again to the house of God,
With the voice of joy and praise,
With many whose feet long time have pressed
Heaven's safe and blessed ways.

He enters again the homes of toil,
And joins in the homely chat;
[illegible]

[illegible]
And who to-day are the poor,
And who are the rich? Ask Him who keeps
The treasures that ever endure.

Once more the green and the grave re-[illegible]
With the merry children's din;
He hears their shouts at the Christmas [illegible]
When Santa Claus stalks in.
Once more he lists, while the camp fire [illegible]
On the distant mountain-side,
[illegible] where young troutlings hide.

[illegible]

Methodism in the Cities of United States.

Rev. J. Atkinson, A. M. of Chicago, discusses the subject of Methodism in the cities of United States, in the current Methodist Quarterly: we extract the following:

In the following paragraphs the figures represent communicants. Probationers in the Methodist Episcopal Church are included because they are communicants, and virtually, if not formally, members of the Church. They were always reported as members until 1849, and consequently, until then there was not any chance for discussion about what becomes of the probationers. In 1849, when probationers began to be reported separately, there were 639,066 members, probationers included in the Methodist Episcopal Church. In November, 1876, there were about 1,480,000 full members, not including more than 225,000 probationers. Thus it appears that there are now considerably more than twice the number of full members than there were of both members and probationers twenty-eight years ago, and in that time almost a generation of Methodists have gone to their reward. It is very plain, therefore, that the probationers are constantly filling up the ranks of full members. I give the number of full members and probationers in each city, and the total of both. The Church South has abolished the probation feature, consequently there are probationers in the statistics of that branch of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The paragraphs show the numerical status of each of the above Churches in the fourteen largest cities in the United States. The data are derived from authentic sources, and, with trifling exceptions, from the latest official statistics:

New York—Methodist Episcopal Church, full members, 10,445; probationers, 1,902; total Methodist Episcopal Church, 12,347. M. E. Church, South, none; total Methodists, 12,347. Presbyterian Church, 16,483; Southern Presbyterian Church, none; total Presbyterians, 16,483. Baptist Church, 12,073. Episcopal Church, 15,318. Congregationalists, 1,863.

Philadelphia.—Methodist Episcopal, full members, 20,111; probationers, 3,790; total Methodist Episcopal Church, 23,901. Methodist Episcopal Church, South, none; total Methodists, 23,901. Presbyterian Church, 23,480; Southern Presbyterian Church, none; total Presbyterians, 23,480. Baptist Church, 15,105. Episcopal Church, 16,958. Congregationalists, 571.

Brooklyn—Methodist Episcopal Church, full members, 10,716; probationers, 1,811; total Methodist Episcopal Church, 12,527. Methodist Episcopal Church, South, none; Total Methodists, 12,527. Presbyterian Church, 9,145. Southern Presbyterian Church, none. Total Presbyterians, 9,145. Baptist Church, 7,340. Episcopal Church, 9,340. Congregationalists, 7,000.

St. Louis—Methodist Episcopal Church, full members, 1,381; probationers, 100; total Methodist Episcopal Church, 1,481. Methodist Episcopal Church, South, 1,437, total Methodists, 2,918. Presbyterian Church, 2,250. Southern Presbyterian Church, 1,463. Total Presbyterians, 3,713. Baptist Church, 1,783. Episcopal Church, 2,306. Congregationalists, 843.

Chicago.—Methodist Episcopal Church, full members, 5,663; probationers, 630; total Methodist Episcopal Church, 6,293; Methodist Episcopal Church, South, none. Total Methodists, 6,293. Presbyterian Church, 4,661. Southern Presbyterian Church, none. Total Presbyterians, 4,661. Baptist Church, 6,100. Episcopal Church, 2,549. Congregationalists, 3,623.

Baltimore—Methodist Episcopal Church, full members, 15,676; probationers, 1,331; total Methodist Episcopal Church, 17,007. Methodist Episcopal Church, South, 1,432. Total Methodists, 18,439. Presbyterian Church, 2,713, Southern Presbyterian Church, 752, total Presbyterians, 3,465. Baptist Church, 4,643. Episcopal Church, 8,267. Congregationalists, 100.

Boston—Methodist Episcopal Church, full members, 4,525; probationers, 620; total Methodist Episcopal Church, 5,145. M. E. Church South, none. Total Methodists, 5,145. Presbyterian Church, 1,569. Southern Presbyterian Church, none. Total Presbyterians, 1,579. Baptist Church, 8,287. Episcopal Church, 4,405. Congregationalists, [illegible].

Cincinnati—Methodist Episcopal Church, full members, 4,202; probationers, 576; total Methodist Episcopal Church, 4,778. M. E. Church, South, none. Total Methodists, 4,778. Presbyterian Church, 3,417. Southern Presbyterian Church, none. Total Presbyterians, 3,417. Baptist Church, 2,000. Episcopal Church, 1,564. Congregationalists, 736.

New Orleans.—Methodist Episcopal Church, full members, 2,537; probationers, 654; total Methodist Episcopal Church, 3,191; Methodist Episcopal Church, South, 1,488. Total Methodists, 4,679. Presbyterian Church, 218. Southern Presbyterian Church, 2,154. Total Presbyterians, 2,384. Baptist Church, 375. Episcopal Church, 2,226. Congregationalists, 187.

San Francisco.—Methodist Episcopal Church, full members, 1,307; probationers, 162; total Methodist Episcopal Church, 1,469. Methodist Episcopal Church, South, 100. Total Methodists, 1,569. Presbyterian Church, 2,234. Southern Presbyterian Church, none. Total Presbyterians, 2,234. Baptist Church, 1,500. Episcopal Church, 912. Congregationalists, 1,035.

Buffalo—Methodist Episcopal Church, full members, [illegible]; probationers, 145; total Methodist Episcopal Church, 1,939; Methodist Episcopal Church, South, none. Total Methodists, [illegible]. Presbyterian Church, [illegible]. Southern Presbyterian Church, none. Total Presbyterians, 2,377. Baptist Church, 1,683. Episcopal Church, 1,747. Congregationalists, [illegible].

[illegible]—Methodist Episcopal Church, full members, 4,938; probationers, 613, total Methodist Episcopal Church, 5,551. M. E. Church, South, 225. Total Methodists, [illegible]. Presbyterian Church, 2,809. Southern Presbyterian Church, 116. Total Presbyterians, [illegible]. Baptist Church, [illegible]. Episcopal Church, [illegible]. Congregationalists, [illegible].

[illegible]

Louisville—Methodist Episcopal Church, full members, 912; probationers, 156; total Methodist Episcopal Church, 1,068. M. E. Church, South, 1,898. Total Methodists, 2,966. Presbyterian Church, 1,499. Southern Presbyterian, Church, 902. Total Presbyterians, 2,401. Baptists Church, 2,102. Episcopal Church, 1,948. Congregationalists, none.

Grand total—M. E. Church, full members, 88,701; probationers, 13,650; total M. E. Church, 102,851. M. E. Church, South, 6,840. Total Methodists, 108,691. Presbyterian Church, 77,048. Southern Presbyterian Church, 5,269. Total Presbyterians, 82,317. Baptist Church, 69,472. Episcopal Church, 70,716. Congregationalists, 25,064.

In studying these figures some points should be especially noted:

1. Methodism is first, as to communicants, in nine of the fourteen cities. Presbyterianism is first in New York, Saint Louis, San Francisco, and Buffalo. The Baptists are first in Boston. In Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Chicago, Baltimore, Washington, New Orleans, Newark, and Louisville, Methodism leads all the other denominations.

2. In these fourteen cities the Presbyterian Church is the chief competitor of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The excess of communicants, however, of the latter over the former is 25,303. The two branches of the Methodist Episcopal Church (North and South) have 26,374 more communicants than the two branches (North and South) of the Presbyterian Church.

3. The communicants of the Methodist Episcopal Church (North) exceed in number the combined aggregates of communicants of the Presbyterian (North) and the Congregational Churches in the fourteen cities.

4. According to the ninth United States census the fourteen cities have a total population in round numbers of 4,180,000, of which 1,472,000 are foreign born. Over thirty-five per cent., therefore, of the inhabitants of these cities are of foreign birth. The whole foreign-born population of the United States is 5,566,546. Hence it appears that more than a fourth, or over twenty-six per cent., of all the foreigners are in the fourteen largest cities. In addition to the thirty-five per cent. of foreign-born population in these cities are the children of foreign parents, who, like their parents, are generally hostile to evangelical Protestantism. This element added to the foreign-born population must make at least one-half of the population of the fourteen cities inaccessable to the evangelical Protestant Churches. In addition to this, ignorance of the English language among the foreign-born people is a formidable barrier to their entering the Churches. It is, therefore, quite just to say that more than half the population of these fourteen cities is practically beyond the reach of Methodism and of the other Protestant sects.

How different is the field which the country presents. After subtracting the foreign-born population of the fourteen cities from the total foreign-born population of the United States we have remaining 4,094,482. The foreign-born population outside of these cities is to the total population of the United States exclusive of them—which is 34,426,094—in the ratio of 11 89-100 per cent., or considerably less than one-eight. The communicants of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the fourteen cities are 2 47-100 per cent. of the population, or about one in forty. But more than half of the population, as we have shown, is inaccessable to Methodism, consequently the real proportion is about one communicant to twenty of the population. Exclusive of the fourteen cities the ratio to the population is 4 41-100 per cent., or about one Methodist Episcopal communicant to twenty-two inhabitants. But the fact to which we have previously alluded, that in large portions of the country the other denominations have left the field almost wholly to the Methodists, must be considered in this computation. Who doubts that Methodism would have immensely more adherents in the cities than it has if the other denominations had not so zealously contested the ground? They have striven to attain the greatest success in cities. In the country, and especially in the more sparsely settled districts, they have expended less strength, and frequently have no existence. The Methodist Church cultivates equally both the urban and the rural fields, but the Presbyterian and Protestant Episcopal Churches are chiefly confined to the cities and larger villages. The Rev. Dr. Harrison, of Atlanta Ga., furnishes us a striking illustration of this fact. He says that in the field which comprise the States of Georgia and Florida the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has 100,000 members, while in the same field the Presbpterian Church has only 7,000. The same authority gives the number of Protestant Episcopal communicants in the same territory as 4,990. That field is quite remote from the large cities, and we see who has cultivated it. The same thing exists, though not always in such a remarkable ratio, throughout the rural portions of the Republic. Had the other denominations contested the field so vigorously in the country as they have in the cities, they would, no doubt, be more numerous than they are, and the Methodist Church would be proportionately less numerous. It must be conceded in view of the difference in the population Methodism is called to address in city and in the country, and the difference likewise in the competition offered by other denominations in the two fields, that the success of the Methodist Episcopal Church is greater in the fourteen largest cities than it is in the rural districts, and that instead of being a failure, the career of Methodism in the cities has been both brilliant and triumphant.

5. The preceding paragraphs do not make a complete showing of Methodists in the fourteen cities. In addition to the communicants shown there are considerable numbers who belong to the African Methodist Episcopal Church, or to the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church. These two organizations are understood to have at least four hundred thousand communicants in the United States. They are two branches of the Methodist vine, and in a full enumeration of Methodism in other cities they must be included. The Methodist Protestant Church has many adherents in Baltimore, Philadelphia, and other cities. Exclusive of the Churches of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and Methodist Episcopal Church, South, there are eighteen Churches in Baltimore occupied by other branches of Methodism. The Evangelical Association, often called the Albright Methodist Church, which is almost identical in government with the Methodist Episcopal Church, has considerable strength in some of the cities. In Chicago it has six or seven Churches. The Methodist Church and the Free Methodist Church have communicants in these cities. If all the communicants of the different branches of Methodism in the fourteen cities were aggregated, and then if against that aggregate were placed the united aggregates of the communicants of the Presbyterian Church, and of the Congregational Church, and of every possible branch of Presbyterianism, not excepting the Reformed Church, the German Reformed, and the Cumberland Presbyterian, it would, no doubt, appear that in those cities the Methodists outnumber the whole.

Salvation by Faith.

Mr. Moody's sermon from the text, "What must I do to be saved?" He said:

We have for our text a very solemn question, an important question, "What must I do to be saved?" You will find it in the sixteenth chapter of Acts, and a part of the thirtieth verse. That Phillipian jailor was in great trouble when he asked the question, "What shall I do to be saved?" What was Paul's answer? Was it that he was to weep or pray? or that he was to work for the Lord for fifteen or twenty years? or give money to the poor? or was he to build churches? or endow colleges? or seminaries? was there any work about it at all? No; he was to "believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved." But people in reading this very often stop right here. But in the next verse we read, "And they spake unto him the word of the Lord, and to all that were in his house." Paul speaks of being saved by the "word" of God. If men will only lay hold of that they will be saved. God has offered salvation to all who want it. In the second of Acts, when there were 3000 converted, what was the word that Peter used? "And it shall come to pass that whoever shall call on the name of the Lord shall be saved." That is the only way. People have tried a good many physicians, and they have not helped them, and then they have come and cried out to God.

When they heard the words of Peter they were pricked in their hearts, and said unto Peter and the rest of the apostles, "Men and brethren, what shall we do?" I wish I could wake this audience up so that it would cry out like that. I wish I could have this assembly so moved that people all over the house would cry out, "What shall I do to be saved?" We have not got one-half waked up yet. Three thousand right there were born of God and converted. They laid hold of the life right there in the word that was preached to them. That jailor was not only convicted of sin, but he was converted and baptized. He went to bed a careless, indifferent man. He had treated Paul harder than he had any need to. He had stripped him and put him in a close cell, and yet this wretch, this hard-hearted man was in Christ the day after. And yet people stand up here with open Bibles, and say they do not believe in instant conversion. They say they believe that if a man is faithful and works hard he can be saved in a few years. I once knew of a man who was in the habit of going down a stream to relieve a miller at midnight. He would take his boat and hitch it near the dam. One night he fell asleep, and he floated down until, when he awoke, he was nearly over the dam, and he was startled, and tried to seize the oars and pull, but he was too late. But he managed to get hold of a twig and to hold on to that, and it began to give way and to come up by the roots, and he felt around for another twig. But he found that when he tried to pull himself up he was loosening the twigs at the roots, so he just held right on and cried, "Help, help," and this he did for a long time, and by and by his cries for assistance were heard. They threw a rope and he laid hold of that, and they pulled him up from the jaws of death. If you want to be saved, let go of all your good resolutions, let go of all but God, and lay hold of eternal life. You can be saved, while I am preaching, if you will lay hold of God's strength. He has offered this for you, and all you have to do is to just say you will take Him. You cannot save yourself by your own exertions. God offers you His help. Will you not accept it? In the sixth of Hebrews and the eighteenth verse we read that it is impossible for God to lie, and we have a hope spoken of. Now we are saved by just laying hold of that hope. I have yet to find a man or woman that laid hold of that hope, the word of God, that was ever disappointed. It brings peace, comfort, joy, rest to the weary soul. If every man will say, "I will trust the Lord," there will be light, there will be peace there. Let me give you another word. You know what it is to look. Well, you are to look unto Jesus as the author and finisher of your faith. I once heard of a woman who was greatly troubled by her sins, and she never could find out what the matter was. Why? Because she was always looking within, and one night when she went to bed greatly troubled, she had a dream, and she dreamed that she was down in a deep pit, and that she was trying to get out. And she would step up and when she had nearly got up to the top she would slip back. And she would climb up again, and then she would slip back again. And she tried and failed, and she gave up all hope, and she lay down there to die, and she looked up and saw a little star, and it seemed in the dream as if that little star lifted her up, and she kept her eye upon it, and she was nearly out when she took her eyes off it and looked at herself, and then she went down again; the second time the same thing happened; but the third time she did not take her eyes off the star and she soon was lifted up higher and higher, until she felt her feet upon the rocks above, and she saw that if she were to be saved she must look to the Star of Bethlehem. No minister can save you. Nothing in the world can save you. You cannot save yourself. There is no other way but through Jesus. What does He say? "Look unto Me all the ends of the earth." Will you look to-night? You need not look anywhere else. You are saved by just looking. An old man got up in one of our meetings and said he was for forty-two years finding out three things: First, that he could not do anything toward his own salvation; next, that God did not require him to do anything; third, that Christ had done it all Himself. These are three things that he had been forty-two years learning. That little child can learn it to-night if she will. But you say, don't I have to do anything? No, God does not require it. He does not want you to do anything. If it is a new birth, it is the work of God. We cannot give a new birth. We cannot create. The greatest philosopher cannot give life to a little insect. God only can create life, God only is the author of life, and it is a new life when we are born of God. God will save us if we will only let Him. If we will only stop trying and just let him save us. I kept trying and trying and it did no good until I just stopped and gave myself up to God. That was my experience, and it is the experience of all. Some one asked an Indian how he was saved; how God saved him; and he took a lot of leaves and he placed them in a circle and he started them on fire, and he placed a little worm in the center; and the worm tried to get out, and he went to one side and he was turned back by the fire; and he went to another side and was driven back; and he ran this way and that way and was driven back every time; and then he curled up in the center of the circle and gave himself up for lost. And then the Indian took hold of him and lifted him out. That was how the Lord saved him. The Lord took him right up when he himself gave up everything. A friend of mine named Wells was drowned in Lake Michigan. A man named Baker, was in bathing with the unfortunate man. Wells was seized with a cramp. He called for help. Baker swam to his help. He seized hold of him, and the drowning man grasped him, and clung to him, and they both went under. Baker shook himself free. He called to his friend to keep quiet and he would save him. He said he would, but when Baker took hold of him again he did not keep his word, but seized him, and again they sank. He would not keep quiet and allow himself to be saved, but insisted upon trying to save himself, and thus his friend Baker saw him die right before his eyes when he might have saved him. Stop trying to save yourself. If you ever get into the kingdom of God, you have got to stop trying to save yourself.

A good many men say that if they were converted they are afraid they would not hold out. God's saving grace not only saves us, but keeps us well. Some men are addicted to habits that they think will not let them get into heaven, habits that they think they cannot break. But God can break them. He came to do that. You want to know what you have to do? Just trust, believe, receive, take, look to Christ, and you will be saved. You do not need to do anything, but simply accept Him. If you have not accepted Him, do it to-night.

No Room.

Ever since the time when the Divine Child was born in the city of David, out among the patient cattle of the stalls, because "there was no room for Him in the inn," men have not ceased to neglect Him. From his rightful home in the affections and thoughts of His redeemed ones, He has been crowded out by the vanities, the business, or the sorrows of life. His presence, which brought the riches of foreign lands into the humble Judean stable, and graced it with the high honors of Oriental learning, is capable yet of bestowing far greater glory upon the heart into which it comes; but alas! what with the many allurements from without and the evil suggestions from within, there is no place for him!

The Savior asks for admission into whatever quarters the human soul is forced. Wherever it must go He can go! Is it to the counting house, the store, the factory, the tedious route by rail in the pursuit of honest gains for the necessaries of life? He will be there, and will make the labor lighter and the way shorter by His gracious consolations. He will make the accounts balance justly, the weights and measures respond correctly, and save the business traveler away from home, to a course of rectitude and Christian dealing. He is needed in business. Where he is not, there is scheming, extortion, double-dealing and fraud. Christianity to-day is suffering more from those who profess it, yet let their business careers run counter to it, than from downright infidelity itself. Christ must come into men's bargains before the world will be led to Him at the invitation of ministers. Let those who name His name depart from the usual iniquities of their down-town lives, and the unbeliever will see and accept the doctrine as worthy. Sermons have been preached over counters where honest men dealt honestly with their fellows, and these have had greater weight for the cause of truth than the most elaborate discourses from the pulpit could ever have had. Theory is good, but practice is the soul of it and far better.

And Jesus claims a place in the pleasures and diversions of the disciple. These were always approved by Him while on earth, so long as they were free from objectionable features. He visited weddings with His friends, and consented cordially to be present at dinners and feasts. True, we have no record of Jesus being invited by any of the twelve to attend places of improper amusements. The dignity of His presence, and the matchless purity of His life precluded the possibility, and if a disciple went to such places he must go alone. To this day the case remains the same. Every individual heart has its inner prompting. If it were left uncertain, the matter would be a sad one; but the heart always knows. So here arises the rule: If the Master can go too, and bless the pleasures and diversions, no danger can be incurred, but if not, the disciple should not venture. Where the Savior is crowded out, his soul will not be dealt with safely, even in amusement. He is needed always and at all times—in sickness, grief, and anxiety. He should be allowed to share the burden. He lingers near, ever and anon knocking, knocking, and grieving that other guests are within, while he must stand without; sorrowing because of the harm those guests are doing, while He would give joys and all good gifts. Let Him come in, oh, every heart! Let it be no longer said, "There is no room—no room!"—Methodist Recorder.

The voting on the location of the West Virginia Capital gave to no point a majority of votes. A second election will have to take place in October, 1878, which is the date of the next general election in West Virginia. The competing points will be Clarksburg and Charleston.

General News Items.

The convention between England and Egypt for the suppression of the slave trade, has been signed.

The new Constitution of Georgia cuts the Governor's salary down from $4000 to $3000.

Near Columbia, S. C., an exchange says, they are utilizing peaches to fatten hogs with.

The North Carolina Commissioner has established an agricultural museum, to exhibit the resources of the State.

William Ashurst, of Bourbon Co., Ky., has sold his peach crop, estimated at 2,000 bushels, at 1 50 per bushel.

It is estimated that the Government has lost one million dollars of internal revenue in consequence of the strike.

An establishment in St. Louis cans from 2000 to 7000 beeves daily. Part of this is exported to Europe, and an agent is said to have gone to Russia to obtain an army contract.

Jay Gould, one of the wealthy men of New York City, and forty-seven others, were fined each $250, a few days since, for failing to answer when called on the list of petit jurors.

Notwithstanding the interruption of business by the recent strike, the earnings of the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern railroad last month were $292,468, against $252,821 the same month last year, an increase of $39,647, or about 17 per cent. The Missouri, Kansas and Texas also shows increased earning of about 30 per cent. over July of last year.

A sheep farmer in California drove a flock of 1600 pure blooded Merino sheep to Colorado. He was sixteen months on the way, and brought in his Merinos in good order. It is stated that a number of sheep raisers in California, having 20,000 sheep on those ranges, contemplate driving them to Texas, on account of the splendid pasturage to be obtained in that State.

The Texas Register and Journal says:

The population in Texas in 1850 was	212,000
" " " 1860 was	609,000
" " " 1870 was	818,000
" " " 1875 was	2,000,000
The taxable property in 1850 was	$51,000,000
" " " 1860 was	294,000,000
" " " 1870 was	174,818,960
" " " 1875 was	275,000,000
" " " 1876 was	300,300,000

From a cotton crop not exceeding 25,000 bales thirty years ago, Texas has become this day the largest cotton-producing State in the Union, reaching 680,000 bales. Her annual exports of cattle are estimated at $10,000,000; and her other exports nearly $8,000,000. Massachusetts has a population of 192 persons to the square mile, England has 412 to the square mile, Texas with her agricultural capacity, and over 274,000 square miles, can sustain a population of forty millions.

The Queen of England is the richest woman in the world, totally apart from the sum she annually receives from the country. When the Prince Consort chose South Kensington as the site for the great exhibition, he invested a large amount of money in lands thereabouts, and that money has by this time increased forty or fifty fold, and brings in a revenue adequate in itself to cover the expenses of a good-sized kingdom. The Queen herself is an excellent manager, and had she begun life with a capital of £500 she would by this time have made it £50,000, for she has a turn for money-making and never loses a chance of increasing her shining store. It may be doubted whether she spends much, if any, more than £25,000 a year, for she rarely receives anybody even to dinner, and although she has to keep up a large class of servants, £25,000 will go a long way even here to defray all expenses of that description. The Queen receives £385,000 a year from the nation, about £40,000 more from the duchy of Lancaster, and not less than £200,000 from her investments, or £3,125,000 a year. The Prince of Wales receives £40,000 from the nation, about £60,000 from the duchy of Cornwall, and his wife £10,000 from the nation—altogether, £110,000, and upon this he has to keep a large family, and to receive and entertain numerous visitors and guests, give garden parties, balls, dinners, and incur vast expenses generally which ought properly to fall upon the monarch. No wonder that he is relatively a poor man. The prospect before him is not very bright, for the Queen may reign for twenty years to come yet. She is only fifty-eight, and as strong as a lion, in perfect health, and probably hopes to reign as long as her distinguished ancestor, George III., who was on the throne for sixty years—peace to his memory! And certainly no one wishes any evil to happen to the Queen, or to see the shortening of her days; for, after all, it is by no means certain that a change, whenever it may come, will necessarily be for the better.

Southwestern.

39 Natchez Street, New Orleans.

THURSDAY AUGUST 23, 1877.

Dr. and Mrs. R. S. Rust will leave Liverpool on the 22 inst. for America.

Dr. G. R. Crooks, formerly editor of the New York Methodist, is now upon the editorial staff of the New York Tribune. Dr. Crooks is one of the ablest, Christian writers of America.

The Freedmen's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, has during the past year collected and expended nearly $70,000, taught 3,170 pupils, and employed 65 teachers.

The Presbyterians in the United States gave last year for home missions, $314,693; for foreign missions, $399,767; for education, $81,182; for publication, $36,945; for support of pastors and maintenance of churches, $6,633,577. Total, $9,810,223.

Senator Morton of Indiana has had another paralytic stroke. He has for the time lost the use of his left arm. But his mind is unimpaired, and it is thought by his physician that a few week's rest will restore him to his usual health.

The re-opening services at the M. E. Church, Donaldsonville, La., will take place on Sunday, the 26th instant. Revs. E. Williams, M. Dale, Jos. Gould and W. P. Forest, are expected to be present to aid the pastor, Rev. Jas. Hayward, in the services. Tickets will be sold on the Railroad to persons desiring to go from this city to Donaldsonville, on the 25th, and return on evening of 26th, for $1 25 for the round trip.

A recent ride to Donaldsonville by steamer and back by rail, gave us a view of the vast cane and rice fields for a hundred miles up the Mississippi. The sight is one of marvelous beauty. The cane is now from four to eight feet high, everywhere looking splendid. The rice is almost ready to harvest, and its great yellow clusters hang in richest profusion, waiting for the reaper.

The Colorado Conference of the M. E. Church met at Denver Aug. 1, Bishop Wiley presiding. Thirty members present. The business of the Conference was carefully attended to, and reports showed the work to be in a good condition throughout the State. The Bishops were requested not to transfer men to the Conference with impaired health until they had first tried the Church. $1,350, benevolent collections were reported: there are two districts of which Drs. Crary and J. H. Merritt have charge.

Just now the business men of New Orleans are greatly alarmed lest the mouth of Red River should become impassable. A certain dam by [illegible] was made to flow [illegible] has been washed [illegible] it is not replaced [illegible] days be so little [illegible] leading into [illegible] that the smallest [illegible] enter, or come out [illegible] cut off all trade with [illegible] and North East [illegible] Governor Nich[illegible] no law by which [illegible] to avert the [illegible] will ask the legisla[illegible] any money that [illegible] business men may [illegible]

[illegible] of the Nashville [illegible] does not believe [illegible] fermented [illegible] He [illegible]

Methodism in American Cities.

Two or three years ago it was proclaimed by the press of the nation, that Methodism was a failure in cities. Some who were enemies of the Church, caught up the cry and made the most of it. Others, in the Church, who favored changes in Methodist Church polity, were easily convinced that the report was true, and that therefore, the particular change advocated by each party was, in its judgment, the needed antidote to restore and utilize the old Methodist zeal and power. The brunt of this criticism fell upon the largest and most influential Methodism—that is, the Methodist Episcopal Church. It is proper, therefore, that a complete refutation of this false statement should come from a minister, and be published in the Quarterly Review of that church. That minister, Rev. John Atkinson, A. M., of Chicago, gives an article in the Methodist Quarterly, which covers the whole ground, and demonstrates, that while Methodism has had its greatest success in gathering membership in the country and smaller cities, still it has steadily increased in all the large cities. The average increase of membership for each decade in ten principal American cities is 81.2 per cent. That is: in 1800, there were in New York, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Chicago, (from 1840); Baltimore, Boston, Cincinnati, Buffalo, Washington, and Newark (from 1820), 3,256 Methodists, and, 1876 in these same cities, there were 94,952. The only exception, is in the case of New York, where there was the slight decrease of one per cent. from 1870 to 1876. This slight decrease is esily explained. Business men of New York are constantly removing to suburban towns to reside. Brooklyn Methodism, for example, increased nearly a hundred per cent. from 1870 to 1876. During the same time that Methodism decreased one per cent., the Presbyterian church in New York decreased five per cent. This shows that all churches are affected by the outflow of people from the city to the suburbs to reside.

Over thirty-five per cent. of the inhabitants of the great American cities, are foreign born, who, with their children, make up about one-half their population. These people, as a rule, are not accessable to Evangelical Protestant Churches. This fact operates against Methodism in our American cities; and equally against all other Protestant Churches.

In the fourteen largest cities of the United States, Presbyterianism is the chief competitor of Methodism, but in these cities the latter has 25,303 more members than the former. In New York, St. Louis, San Francisco and Buffalo, Presbyterianism is ahead. Baptists are ahead in Boston. In Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Chicago, Baltimore, Washington, New Orleans, Newark, Louisville and Cincinnati, Methodism leads all other denominations. As compared with other Protestant denominations in American cities, Methodism, therefore, stands at the head.

This showing is especially favorable to Methodism, when it is remembered that when it began its career in the oldest cities of America, the other denominations were well established. In New York, the first Methodist sermon was preached in 1766. The other churches were strong, and looked contemptuously upon the small Methodist band. Up to 1790, the Society scarcely survived. Then came a great revival, when four hundred were gathered into the church in eight weeks. It took thirty-seven years for Methodism to gather one thousand members in New York, and in fifty years the church only numbered 2,572, one-third of whom were colored. What was true of New York was true of Boston, Baltimore and Philadelphia.

Another fact to be remembered is, that while other denominations concentrated their greatest efforts in the cities, Methodism did not permit her best ministers to re[illegible] in any one city more than [illegible] years. This law was repealed only twenty years ago. The great [illegible] of early Methodism, gave most of their time to the country. This helps to explain the [illegible] growth of early Methodism in the rural districts, and [illegible] that without making cities a [illegible], it has surpassed the other [illegible] in her city member[illegible] the other [illegible] to monopolize city [illegible] It is a fact as seen [illegible] Dr. Atkinson's collected figures, that Methodism as compared with other denominations, not only is a success in the cities of the United States, but leads them all.

This conclusion based as it is upon facts, suggests two very important practical points. It shows that all talk about the inefficiency of Methodism in cities because of its itinerancy is without good reason. Until the critics of the itinerancy can prove that Methodism has failed in cities up to this time, with the itinerancy as it is, they will have little ground on which to assume that by modifying the itinerancy, Methodism would be more efficient in cities in the future. The other point suggested it this: if Methodism has taken the front rank in American cities, without making city evangelization a specialty, as the other churches have; ought she not now to make city evangelization a specialty, and concentrate the power of her organization, and the enthusiasm of her faith, upon the work of saving the great masses of unredeemed, who throng our great cities? We believe she ought, and that to this work God now calls the sons and daughters of Wesley.

Donaldsonville, La.

The Quarterly Meeting Conferences and services at Donaldsonville Saturday and Sunday Aug. 18 and 19, were attended with God's blessing. The Presiding Elder was present, and all the interests and work of the church were thoroughly canvassed. The pastor, Rev. J. Hayward, is at his post, and with his excellent wife now settled in the parsonage, is prepared to lead the church to yet greater victories. He is surrounded by a noble band of brethren. Among them stands Hon. P. Landry, one of our State senators, respected by all, no matter what their politics, for his past honorable record and present manly course in all that pertains to the interests of his parish and church. He made the presiding elder his guest. Sabbath morning Bro. Hayward and his presiding elder visited and addressed the Sabbath-School. At eleven o'clock came the quarterly sermon which was followed by the sacrament of the Lord's supper. It was a gracious season to all present.

The brethren of Donaldsonville, have just finished painting the audience room of their church adding greatly to its appearance and comfort. Next Sabbath special re-opening services are to be held. Bro. Hayward expects several leading ministers from New Orlean, to be present, and extends a cordial invitation to his friends to attend.

Success to our pastor and people at Donaldsonville.

Death of Dr. John M. Angell.

Dr. John M. Angell of this city, died at the residence of his father, 152 Julia street, on Tuesday Aug. 14th. Death in this case removed a most excellent Christian gentleman. He was an officer in the Confederate army, and after the war returned to New Orleans and began the practice of dentistry. His health was shattered in the army, and for several years he has been delicate. He was an active worker in the Episcopal Church, always among the foremost in every kind of Church and missionary labor. He was a leader in the temperance work of the city. He was a man of catholic spirit, and to him all Christians were the same. His death is a great loss to New Orleans. His wife died some years since. May his holy example be followed by the many young men of the city, who knew and respected him.

Senator Conkling reached New York on his return from Europe, and was warmly welcomed by many of his political friends. In the evening at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, a grand serenade was given him. In a neat responsive speech he spoke concerning Gen. Grant as follows:

Many of you gave me messages to General Grant. They were delivered and appreciated, and greetings sent you in return. Wherever he goes honors wait upon him, but they do not seem to wean him from things at home. He may remain long abroad, but when he returns you are likely to find that all the distinctions poured upon him have not washed out a jot of his Americanism, or made him any thing save the same upright, downright patriot, without cant or palaver—the same modest, unpretending citizen you have ever known him.

The Deleware Conference held its annual session at Chestertown, Md., 26th to 30th ult., Bishop Scott presiding. Rev. G. H. Waters was elected Secretary. Rev. G. H. Landin was received by transfer from Newark Conference, and Rev. Thomas A. Scott on credentials from the African Methodist Episcopal Church. Four were received on trial. Five were admitted into full connection. The report shows an increase of members and probationers of 348; ten local preachers less; churches and parsonages, two each; three Sunday-schools, and 572 scholars. An increase was also reported in nearly all the collections. The next session is to be held at St. Michael's Md.

The increase of the primitive Methodists in members for the year is a little over 1,000; of traveling preachers, 40; of local preachers, 92; of class-leaders, 56; of connexional chapel, 88; of Sunday-schools, 95; of Sunday-school teachers, 1,697; of Sanday-school scholars, 12,970.

The new Methodist hymn book, which will be issued sometime within the next six months, will contain 1,150 hymns. About one-third of these are new hymns,—the others selected from the old book.

Bishop Haven says that Christian people are the only ones who undress when they go to bed. He makes this remark while writing of his trip in Africa.

Our Southern Methodism.

Rev. Alexander Campbell, Calvert, Texas, writes: "We are in the midst of a gracious revival. Up this time, there have been twenty-five conversions, forty baptisms, and sixty accessions to the church. Our Sunday-school shares in the revival influence."

Rev. H. Wyatt, Enterprise, Mississippi, says: "We have had a meeting in progress during the past three weeks. There have been seventeen accessions so far, and the interest is unabated. We are praying for an abundant outpouring of the Spirit."

Rev. A. Hilton, Washington, La., says: "Our meeting has now been in progress thirty-two days. The conversions so far number twenty-three, and the accessions to the church thirty-four. May the Heavenly manna continue to fall upon us until every soul in this community shall have been fed."

Rev. Austin Kennedy, Terrebonne, Lonisiana, says: "We have just closed a three week's meeting, in which there were twenty-five conversions. The total number of accessions so far this year, is fifty-three—baptisms, adults twenty-three; children, seven."

Rev. F. Carson Moore, Presiding Elder of the Marshall District, Texas Conference writing from Austin, says: "Our Annual Conference will be held at Jefferson, December 5, Bishop Foster presiding. Our District Conference, held at Marshall, was a profitable occasion. Dr. Meredith of Philadelphia Conference is here regaining his health. He is deeply interested in our Southern work."

Rev. Joseph Gould, P. E., of Baton Rouge District, reports concerning points recently visited on his work: "At Baton Rouge I found Rev. I. Hayward just closing a two weeks' protracted meeting, in which there were twenty conversions, and many accessions to the church. During the progress of the meeting, a young lady upon her death-bed, Miss Alice Beshears, was brought to know the Savior, in the pardon of her sins, and died, on the following day, a very triumphant death. At Scott's Chapel, Rev. Alexander Martin is looking after the temporal as well as spiritual interests of the Church. He has a new parsonage in process of building, and attends two other preaching appointments. At Jones' Creek, Rev. Plasker Davis reports nine recent accessions, and the membership united and zealous. At Bayou Goula, Rev. Geo. Lacy could point us, with pride, to a completed church building, and a parsonage well advanced toward completion. And his people are alive, too, in spiritual matters. At all these points, we found large and flourishing Sunday-schools. Our Quarterly services were largely attended, the people manifested the spirit of true worshippers, and all indications are, that the work is in a very satisfactory condition."

A flouring mill, with the capacity of 300 bushels a day, is in full operation at Montgomery, Ala.

General News.

Last year's census shows an increase in the population of Ireland, the first since the great famine.

Next year's tuition in the University of Mississippi will be free. The State appropriation is $20,000.

Alexander H Stephens appeared in a Justice's Court in Crawfordsville, Georgia, the other day, as the attorney for a blind colored man.

The Chinese of California bring in a bill of $100,000 against the United States Government for damages done to their property in the riots.

Bishop Lynch, of Charleston, South Carolina, has been appointed coadjutor bishop to Cardinal McCloskey, with the right of succession.

Miss Helen V. Osborn, editress of the Golden Hours, published at the Methodist Book Concern at Cincinnati, was married, recently, to Mr. Krehbiel, of the Gazette.

J. P. McKee, of Wilcox county, Ala., raised 230 bushels of Irish potatoes from one acre of land, which was then cleared off and planted in corn on June 8, which is now very promising.

The death of two of the giants of the earth is announced; Ruth Benton, of Wisconsin, age 54, hight 7 feet 4 inches, weight 585 pounds; and Modeste Malhiot, of Quebec, Canada, age 68, hight 6 feet 8 inches, weight 618 pounds.

The New York Aquarium has sustained a severe loss in the death of a large number of the most rare fishes. Nearly all the fishes in twenty-three tanks died last week, and an analysis of the water shows that they must have been poisoned, but by whom or what reason is unknown. The pecuniary loss is very large.

The blackberry industry in Georgia, North Carolina, and other Southern States, is in the aggregate, a big business. Salem, North Carolina, a little town of 2,000 inhabitants, has shipped during three years over 3,000,000 pounds, and received half a million dollars therefor—the equivalent of over 9,000 bales of cotton at ten cents a pound.

Pittsburg is the birth place of a new secret order, the Universal Brotherhood. Its members are laborers, mechanics and farmers, all who earn their living by manual labor. Professional men, and especially capitalists, are rigidly excluded. Whether this attempt to league laboring men has politically significance is not announced.

The Cabinet have received a communication from the Canadian government requesting the appointment of a commission to consult with Sitting Bull, our truant Sioux who is now quartered upon our neighbor's territory, with the hope of inducing him to return to our soil. The commission will be appointed and instructed to negotiate with the chieftain, or with the Canadian government, only with the condition of his immediate surrender as a prisoner of war.

The manufacture of paper flour barrels is one of the new industries of Wisconsin. These barrels are made from straw-paper pulp, which is run into molds in the shape of half barrels, and subjected to great pressure. The ends are made in the same way, and so perfectly does the machine do its work that any piece in a barrel may be substituted for a similar one. The barrels have an average thickness of three sixteenths of an inch, and are very light. Their advantage over other barrels is found in their lightness, durability, and cheapness, for they do not cost a third of the ordinary price. Moreover, the grooves fit so perfectly that no flour is lost by sifting through in transportation.

Official information was received at Chicago on the 8th inst., at military head-quarters, confirming the rumor received a few days since regarding a fight between the Indians and United States troops in Texas. It is ascertained that a disastrous encounter was had on the Staked Plains, in which there were two officers and twenty-six enlisted soldiers killed. The remnant of the party continued its march; after having suffered this loss, and has since reached Fort Conder with an additional loss of five privates and forty horses and mules. The unfortunate command was without water for eighty-six hours, and the suffering they endured in consequence was terrible.

The Two Systems.

Hon. R. W. Thompson, now Secretary of War, in his book on "Papacy and the Civil Power," says:

The two systems, that is the Protestant and the Romish stand in direct antagonism with each other. The Protestant has separated the State from the church; the Papal proposes to unite them again. The Protestant has founded its institutions upon the will of the people; the Papal proposes to reconstruct and found them upon the will of the Pope. The Protestant secures religious freedom; the Papal requires that every man shall give up his conscience to the keeping of ecclesiastical superiors. The Protestant develops the faculty of the mind by inciting the spirit of personal independence and manhood; the Papal crushes out all this spirit by its debasing doctrine of passive obedience and submission. The Protestant has put the world upon a career of progress and prosperity; the Papal desires to arrest this career, and turn it back again into those old grooves which have led so many nations to wreck and desolation. The issue is made between these systems in so bold and manly a manner, that its authors are entitled to that consideration which the possession of high moral courage always excites in generous minds.

"Pius IX. demands in the name of the Deity, that we bow down before him in passive submission, and accept his commands as if uttered by a voice from heaven.

"A commanding sense of duty demands that we look this haughty and imperious adversary full in the face, understand his machinations, strip him of his disguises, unravel his plots, and meet him at every point of attack. If we shall remain insensible to any of the obligations of this duty, now that the battle-cry is sounding in our ears, it may be too late after the storming party has mounted the walls of our fortress, pulled down our flag, and planted that of Papal and ecclesiastical absolutism upon the grave of popular institutions."

Living Out Our Religion.

There was a time when he who spent his days in the cell of the hermit, had his name written in the calendar, his praises chanted in the churches, and his bones carefully gathered after death and laid up in golden altars, whither mitred bishops and high officials came kneeling to touch them in solemn devotion. But God does not mean that we should be morose and misanthropic eremites, but bold and active confronters of the trials and evils of life, men and women who shall act well our parts in the common relations in which he has created man, and earnest copyists of the example of that Holy One "who went about doing good." Jesus did not flee to the solitudes and keep aloof from intercourse with men. He remained among his fellows. He visited their habitations; He gave attention to their tears and distress; He wept with them when they wept, He rejoiced with them when they rejoiced. His whole life was one ever blooming charity. And the Spirit that was in the Master is that which constitutes the most heavenly goodness in his followers: "Love thy brother;" "Love thy neighbor as thyself; as ye would that others should do unto you, do ye even so unto them."—Dr. Seiss

The Planets.

The Heavens declare the glory of God at all seasons, and we cannot drink in too heartily their sweet and inspiring influence. This month and next the evening sky will present a spectacle of unusual radiance. The Winter constellations, rich in nebulæ and stars of the larger magnitudes, are coming towards the evening meridian and the four favorite planets of our system are visible together. Soon after the going down of the sun, Venus appears in her gloaming and shines for an hour. Jupiter is next seen, directly South, the brightest star in the Heavens. As he passes westward Mars and Saturn come into prominence from the East. Mars leads and will be known by his exceeding redness. Saturn is but a few degrees farther East, pale by contrast but a star of attractive appearance. These two planets will be close together about the first of September. At that time Mars will be more brilliant than he has been since 1845 or will be again before 1924, when most of those who read this paragraph will have gone into the realms where stars rise and set no more forever.—Northern Advocate.

The Episcopal Bishop Tuttle, says the Oregon Churchman, being on one of his visitations in Montana, met in the stage-coach a very respectable colored woman, and a physician who resides in the territory. The doctor, having been drinking, commenced insulting the woman. The bishop told him he must desist. The doctor continuing his insults, the bishop took him by the back of the neck and gave him a severe shaking. The iron grip brought him to his senses. He cowed down in his seat, and at the next stopping-place, though not his destination, he left the stage and would not again risk himself in company with the bishop.

Sunday School.

SUPPLEMENT TO BEREAN LESSONS, 1877.

BY JOSEPH LONGKING.

THIRD QUARTER. Lesson X. Paul at Corinth. Acts xviii, 1-11. September 2.

LESSON.

1. After these things] The "things" recorded in our last lesson. Came to Corinth] One of the most famous of Grecian cities. It was situated on the neck of land connecting Northern Greece and the Peloponesus, (the Morea,) having a port on each side, Cenchrea on the eastern, and Lechæum on the western side; the isthmus being, perhaps, about eight miles wide. Corinth was said by Horace to stand on two seas, the gulf of Ægina and the gulf of Lepanto.

2. A certain Jew] One of Jewish parentage and faith. Aquila.... Priscilla] Both Roman names: perhaps assumed by them, in accordance with a frequent custom, while residents of Rome. Born in Pontus] A territory of Western Asia, bordering the Euxine Sea. Lately.... from Italy] Of which Rome was the capital city. Claudius] The reigning emperor. Had commanded all Jews to depart from Rome] the historian Suetonius mentions the decree, and says it was "on account of the continual disturbances they made at the instigation of one Chrestus." Who is meant by this appellation is not positively known. The disturbances may have originated with some turbulent Jews in opposition to the Christian assertion that Jesus was the Messiah. It is not improbable that Christians and Jews were confounded in the edict, and that both were banished. It is supposed the exclusion was of but short duration. Came unto them] Came to their house; became a member of the family. He had already made their acquaintance.

3. Of the same craft] They had each learned the art of tent-making. "There was a great demand for tents in ancient times, both for travelers and soldiers. They were most frequently made of hair-cloth, especially of the coarse hair furnished by a species of goat which abounded in Cilicia. As Paul was a native of that country, and as it was a rule for every Jewish boy to learn some art, this may account for Paul's becoming a tent-maker."—Alexander. Wrought] Labored at his trade with Aquila. Paul afterwards reminds the Corinthians of this fact. See 1 Cor. ix, 5, and 2 Cor. xi, 7, etc.

4. He] Paul. Reasoned in the synagogue] Here, again, Paul first addresses himself to his natural co-religionists. The Jews were numerous in Corinth. The "Greeks" spoken of we take to be proselytes from among the Greeks to the Jewish faith. Persuaded] Sought to convince them that the Messiah of the Jews was really the Christ. The faithful teacher will imitate Paul in this, and persuade his pupils that Jesus is the Savior.

5. When Silas and Timotheus were coming from Macedonia] The text does not state from what part of this province, but, judging from the passage before cited, from 1 Thess. iii, we infer from Thessalonica. Luke thus appears incidentally to confirm that statement of Paul's. Pressed in spirit] Namely, as the next clause denotes, to "testify that Jesus was Christ." This was the burden of his mind. It was a constraining affection with him, which he could not, and, we may presume, desired not, to throw off. Such should be the pressure on the heart of every minister of Christ and of every teacher.

6. When they opposed] To be understood especially of the Jews. These arrayed themselves against Paul and his teaching. The word is said to imply "not more private or fortuitous, but systematic and concerted, opposition." Blaspheming] Probably meant of their reviling Christ. Shook his raiment] A strong symbolic act, (like that of shaking off the dust from the feet,) denoting rejection, or casting off. He would no longer labor with or for them. Your blood be, etc.] Ye are responsible for your own spiritual destruction. I will go unto the Gentiles] So far as the Jews of that place (Corinth) were concerned, he would no longer seek to reason or persuade.

7. He departed thence] Not from Corinth, but from the Jewish synagogue. Entered into a certain man's house] Not a place of abode, but as a place in which to preach to such as chose to attend. He continued to reside with Aquila and Priscilla. We must suppose that Justus had offered his house as a "preaching-place," as the old Methodists would say. Worshipped God] A proselyte, he doubtless soon became a believer in Christ.

8. Crispus....ruler of the synagogue] As this person's name is Roman, it is thought he, also, was of Gentile birth, but had embraced Judaism. If consistent and devout, his foreign birth need not prevent his holding the office of ruler. With all his house] His family. This speaks well for his character as a religious man. The word had not been in vain. Many Corinthians] It was Paul's success among these proselytes and others that excited the envy of the Jews, and led them to array themselves against him. Crispus is mentioned, 1 Cor. i, 14, as among the few persons whom Paul personally baptized.

9, 10. Spake the Lord to Paul] The Lord Jesus. In the "pressure of his spirit" before spoken of Paul had, doubtless, pleaded much with God: and as a consequence, and perhaps to cheer him under his trials and discouragements, this vision is vouchsafed. It is generally when most burdened that God is nearest to his servants. Be not afraid] From this it may be inferred Paul had become somewhat disheartened. I am with thee] Then no matter who should be against him: having the Lord "with" him—we suppose in a special sense—he need not fear. No man shall set on thee to hurt thee] Meaning, shall not succeed in hurting thee; although they might and did try. See verse 12, etc. I have much people in this city] Not yet his, but whom he foresaw would become his "people," by their reception of and adherance to his truth.

11. Continued there a year and six months] Quite a long stay for our apostle, whose impetuous spirit was continually impelling to regions beyond. His ministry at Corinth and vicinity resulted in the establishment of a large church in that city, of one at Cenchrea, and probably others in the province.

A Pleasant Incident.

While on our journey home from New Hampshire and Boston a few days since, we stopped over one day in New York and fell into the company of our genial friend, Mr. F. G. Smith, successor to Bradbury, the music and piano man. Mr. Smith said: "I made a call at the White House in Washington a few days since, when Mrs. Hayes, wife of the President, said, 'Do you know a teacher of music in this city I could employ to teach our children?' "Yes," said Smith, "Mr. Copp, of the Interior Department, is a fine teacher, and would render you good service."

"Will you be kind enough to send him up?" said Mrs. Hayes. So Mr. Smith strolled away and found his man, and the next day he called at the White House. Mrs. Hayes received him in the red room, and after the usual introduction she remarked, "So your name is Mr. Copp; the name sounds very familiar. Have you ever taught music?" "Yes. I made it a profession about twenty years in Columbus, Ohio." "Can you remember the names of any of your pupils?" "Oh, yes. There was Anna Wright, Martha Jones, and Lucy Webb." "Do you know where Lucy Webb is now?" inquired Mrs. Hayes. "No; I have lost sight of her entirely," Mr. Copp replied. Then Mrs. Hayes handed him a piece of paper with a request that he should give her his autograph. This being done, Mrs. Hayes cast her eyes on the paper and remarked, "That looks familiar; my name was Lucy Webb, and you were my music teacher twenty years ago." Mr. Copp was then engaged as the musical instructor of the children in the White House. Mrs. Hayes closed the interview by saying, "Mr. Copp, I suppose you remember the hours of evening song we enjoyed so much in those early [illegible] I remember [illegible] then ap[illegible] and invited Mr. [illegible] and daughter, to [illegible] the White House and sing [illegible] the good old Methodist hymns to some of the good old Methodist tunes.—Herald of the Cross.

James Harper.

He was an habitually early riser. D[illegible] rarely found him in bed. [illegible] rising and breakfast there was time for his devotions. For much of the time his wife was an invalid, and her rest must not be broken, [illegible] his morning devotions [illegible] alone. [illegible]

Comparitive Figures.

The figures below give the death rate per one thousand inhabitants of the cities mentioned, for the week [illegible] July 20:

[illegible] N.Y.	22.56
[illegible] Ohio	26.88
[illegible] Ohio	17.64
[illegible]	22.60
[illegible]	32.54
[illegible]	26.31
[illegible]	28.22
[illegible]	22.59

[illegible]

respondence; and Fletcher keeps every thing moving like a steam engine. But I never see you doing any thing. Now what do you do?"

"Well," was the reply, "there's an awful lot of bores who come here, and somebody must attend to them. My business is to attend to the bores, and I think I have the very hardest share of the work."—National Repository for September.

A Dangerous Enemy.

It is a very significant fact that on the occasion of the recent strikes among rail-road men, it was deemed necessary to the public safety to have all the liquor saloons in certain places closed. In some cases the authorities, and in others even the strikers themselves demanded that no liquor be sold during the continuance of the strike. Everybody can see what this means. It is the strongest possible condemnation of the dangerous business of the liquor dealers. It is an endorsement of the Christian sentiment that brands the whole business and the men engaged in it as public enemies who must be watched, guarded and restrained on occasions of public excitement. Everybody knows that strong drink inflames the worst passions of the drinker, and drives excited men into mad frenzy that defies all restraints, and riots in all wickedness. With this knowledge of the inevitable effects of strong drink, the conscienceless wretches whose business it is to destroy their fellow men, would not hesitate to feed the fury of a mad mob with liquor. They must be restrained by force.

Has it ever occurred to anybody to ask why it is found necessary to shut up liquor saloons only? Why not close bakeries, groceries, and dry goods stores? Why not order schools and Churches closed? Why discriminate in favor of all these when riotous demonstrations are threatened in a community, and shut only the liquor saloons? Anybody can answer the question. It would not hurt a rioter or a striker to eat bread or drink coffee, or wear a new coat, or listen to hymns and prayers and sermons. It would not endanger the peace and safety of a community to allow all sorts of business to go on at all times, until we come to the liquor traffic. That is the great demoralizer, riot breeder and destroyer. It must be chained and watched like a mad dog. It ought to be killed and put out of the way; and men are beginning to see more and more clearly the true nature of this horrible parasite which is fattening on the blood of our people. The great day of its final destruction will be the immortal gala-day of national history.—Selected.

What Makes a Wise Preacher.

The preacher described by Solomon, Eccl. 12. 9–11, who was himself a preacher, and the wisest of his race, was wise, prudent, diligent, studious and faithful in teaching the people knowledge. And he was so successful that his words were "as good as nails fastened by the master of assemblies." Here we may observe that, according to Solomon, the preacher was painfully elaborate in preparations, and careful in selecting his themes. Nor did he carelessly repeat himself. He set in order many proverbs. He was not content with the surface. He digged deep into the mines of knowledge. He was not content with turning up the old barrel, or feeding the people on old and moldy fodder. He was not content with mere twaddle or dull sayings. But, "because he was wise, he still taught the people knowledge; yea, he gave good heed, and sought out and set in order many proverbs." He was not, then, a loose, extemporaneous writer or preacher. "Extemporaneous preaching is often extemporaneous nonsense." But by extemporaneous preaching I do not mean preaching without manuscript—to be able to do so is a great gift, and to be earnestly sought for. I mean writing and preaching without laborious preparation. Extemporaneous harangues are bad enough, but extemporaneous writing is worse still. Our preacher did not expect knowledge as oysters gain their growth. He did not presumptuously depend on Divine Wisdom to put right words into his mouth without seeking them. He did not dare to preach just whatever might come to hand. Nay, "He gave good heed, and sought out acceptable words," to express the true knowledge of things, that this presentation of the truth might appear in its proper strength and lustre. And he was perfectly sincere—full of his subject; and what he wrote and preached was "upright, even words of truth." And his words of truth "were as goads, and as nails fastened by the master of assemblies."

Truth.

Miss Francis E. Willard says: The grog-shop is a two-edged sword, and cuts both ways at once. It is a rotating machine for the snaring of souls. It catches our young men and boys before they reach the church and Sabbath-school—while they are on their way—and they never reach its doors; or else it catches them as they return, and mars or neutralizes the lessons there imparted. Between the two, there is the old "irrepressible conflict" over again. It is war to the knife, and knife to the hilt, and only one can win. And in this warfare we of Christ's army are outnumbered. There are twelve saloons to every church; twelve bar-keepers to every minister. The church opens its doors two or three days in the week. The saloon grinds on and on with its mill of destruction, all the days of every week, all the months of every year. That we are outnumbered is not all. We are outgeneraled as well. The people of the rum-shop propose in their hearts, not only to mar and neutralize, but to obliterate and displace the lessons of church and Sunday-school. They have their series of lessons with which our International series cannot at all compete. They have studied carefully the tastes, tendencies, and preferences of boys and of young men, their natural and innocent taste for variety, fondness for amusement, preference for young company, and they pander to all these, in ways that take hold upon death.—Temperance Ensign.

Tested.

Bunyan's pilgrim prayed himself out of the giant's dungeon. His devotion won him the key that unlocked the way to liberty. A story of a similar divine rescue from a situation that would have brought despair to a wicked man is told in the writings of Hugh Miller, who probably heard it from the descendants of the chief actor in the scene:

A Highlander in the British army, during the war of the Revolution, was caught one evening creeping out of a thicket just beyond the lines, evidently returning from some secret errand. The American outposts (along the Hudson) were then quite near those of the British, and being concealed in the forests, their exact numbers and distance were always uncertain.

Under the circumstances the Highlander was suspected of being an informer, that is, in communication with the enemy. It was shortly after the execution of Major Andre, and the enraged British were in no humor to let a man go who was accused of sympathy with the Americans. The soldier was taken before his colonel, and the witnesses of his presumed guilt told their story.

"What have you to say for yourself?" demanded the colonel with a threatening frown.

"Only this, sir; I had got away slyly from my comrades to pray a bit while in the bush, and was coming back when the soldiers took me."

"Are you in the habit of praying?" demanded the officer.

"Yes, sir."

"Then pray now. You never needed it more in your life." And the colonel took out his watch.

Fully believing he had but a few minutes to live, the Christian soldier knelt and poured out his soul in such language as only a friend of God can use. All who heard it were astonished, the commander himself among the rest.

"Go," said he. "You have told the truth. If you had not been often to drill, you could not have done so well at review."

A correspondent of the Richmond (Va.) Advocate, "L. H. D." writing from Salem, Illinois, gives a doleful account of the Illinois Conference of the M. E. Church, South. He says that the original organization consisted "of ministers and laymen who, on account of their political views, had either withdrawn or been expelled from the Methodist Episcopal Church." This is a true statement, although we have been censured for making it. The M. E. Church, South, in the North is not proving a success although it has met with little opposition and much sympathy. Our people have admitted their preachers into our churches, contributed to their public collections, and helped to take care of their conferences. We do not deny the right of the M. E. Church, South, to occupy Northern territory, nor do we desire it to withdraw, much less make its withdrawal a condition of fraternity there or elsewhere. The writer of the letter to which we refer gives it as his opinion that the people of the two sections can not understand each other, and the bulk of his letter is chiefly an illustration of it.—Central Adv.

One of the latest Yankee ideas is a Turkish bath on wheels. It is a car that can run behind the sleeping-coaches of an express train. It has a drawing room, a Russian and plunge bath, shampooing rooms, and all other accommodations of a Turkish bath-house. The temperature of the rooms varies from eighty to one hundred and sixty degrees, and the compartments are lighted from the room with blue glass. Travellers can bathe as well as eat, drink and sleep on the rail. Such a car can be switched off on a side track in any town or village and remain a day or two for the accommodation of the residents.

Boys Wanted.

Men are wanted. So they are. But boys are wanted—honest, manly, noble boys. Some one has declared, and truly, that these boys should possess ten points, which are thus given: 1. Honest. 2. Intelligent. 3. Active. 4. Industrious. 5. Obedient. 6. Steady. 7. Obliging. 8. Polite. 9. Neat. 10. Truthful. One thousand first-rate places are open for one thousand boys who come up to the standard. Each boy can suit his taste as to the kind of business he would prefer. The places are ready in every kind of occupation. Many of them are already filled by boys who lack some important points, but they will soon be vacant. Some situations will soon be vacant, because the boys have been poisoned by reading bad books, such as they would not dare show their fathers, and would be ashamed to have their mothers see. The impure thoughts suggested by these books will lead to vicious acts, the boys will be ruined, and their places must be filled. Who will be ready for one of these vacancies? Distinguished lawyers, useful ministers, skillful physicians, successful merchants, must all soon leave their places for some one else to fill. One by one they are removed by death. Mind your ten points, boys; they will prepare you to step into vacancies in the front rank. Every man who is worthy to employ a boy is looking for you if you have the points. Do not fear that you will be overlooked. A young person having all these qualities will shine as plainly as a star at night.—Golden Rule.

Observations.

On this (the first day) the world began, light was created, Christ arose, the Holy Spirit descended. This is, therefore, of all days, the day of our Maker, our Redeemer, and our Sanctifier.

"I was in the spirit of the Lord's day," seems to be the soul of the Christian Sabbath. In this view of the day, a thousand frivolous questions concerning its observance would be answered.

The performance of so many miracles on the Sabbath day seems to intimate its being the most "acceptable time" for our doing good to the souls and bodies of men.

After that Christ, by resting in His grave, had fulfilled the type of the Jewish Sabbath, its observance ceased.

The old Sabbath appertained to the law: therefore when Christ came, and was (became) what the law prefigured, the Sabbath (with the rest of the ceremonial law) ceased, (the Lord and his day taking their place,) as a candle is put away at the rising of the sun.

Bible Terms.

Readers of the Bible will be interested in the following explanation of expressions frequently met with in the Holy Scriptures. They are believed to be entirely correct: A day's journey was 33¼ and 1-5 miles. A Sabbath day's journey was about one English mile. Ezekiel's reed was 11 feet nearly. A cubit is 22 inches nearly. A fingers breadth is equal to one inch. A shekel was about 50 cents. A shekel of gold was $8.09. A talent of silver was $1,518.32. A talent of gold was $23,309. A piece of silver, or a penny was 13 cents. A farthing was three cents. A gerah was two cents. A mite was one and a half cents. A homer contained 76 gallons and five pints. An ephah, or bath contained seven gallons and four pints. A hin was one gallon two pints. A firkin was seven pints. An omer was six pints. A cab was three pints. A log was one-half pint.

New Books and Periodicals.

The Homilist—Published by N. Tibballs & Co., 37 Park Row, New York; 344 pages—price $1 50.

The Homilist is edited by Dr. David Thomas, in England, and costs by importation $2 50; but N. Tibball & Co. republished it and sell it at $1 50 per volume. It contains sketches of sermons, gems of thought, extracts from great sermons by the greatest preachers of the age, biblical criticisms from eminent scholars, etc., etc. The book give in a small compass a very great amount of splendid material for ministers, to aid them in the study of God's word, and in fixing upon the best texts to preach from, and to aid them in gleaning the best thoughts of living preachers. Dr. Nast rightly says: "It is a work of great merit. We recommend this work to ministers and Sunday-school teachers."

Mr. Horn and his Friends, or Givers and Giving, by Mark Guy Pearce, 180 pages, 16 mo. Price in cloth, extra $1 00, with paper cover 50 cts., Nelson & Phillips.

This is an exellent book for stingy people to read. It is written in a quaint almost comical style. The duty and blessedness of giving are set forth in splendid style. No better book for a minister to circulate among his people. It will show stingy people how God looks upon them, and will keep people who are not stingy from falling into that sin. It costs only 50 cts.

Daniel Quorum and his Religious Notions, by Mark Guy Pearse, bound in cloth $1 00, and with paper cover 50 cents. Nelson & Phillips.

Daniel Quorum was a shoemaker in an English mining town and a Methodist class leader and steward. He was illiterate in many things but was deeply pious and a thorough student of his Bible and human nature. His notions are just such notions as every Christian should have.

John Tregenoweth, His Mark, by Guy Pearse. Nelson and Phillips.

This is a touching story told in the very best of style. The history of the hero enforces with great power the lesson of temperance. All our young people should read this book.

The National Repository for September. Dr. Daniel Curry, Editor. A good number. Three illustrated articles: Over the Alps, William Cullen Bryant, and the exposition at Munich. Dr. Daniels story—That Boy: Who shall have him? continues with unabated interest. The Editorial Miscellany in the National is always excellent. In the Editor's Study, we have a very able article on The Russian National Church, by D. W.—Dr. Daniel Wise we suppose who does not think that the church of Russia is capable of caring for the interests of Christian people. He says, Russia as a nation is intellectually ignorant, spiritually dead, ethically corrupt, and theologically ignorant, Its Christianity is very little more than a baptized paganism."

The National costs $3 00 a year and is an illustrated popular magazine of the highest character, pervaded by a thoroughly Christian spirit. Twelve numbers a year contain 1,152 pages equal to fifteen books costing $1 50 a-piece. Send names and money to Nelson & Phillips, Lock Box "B." New Orleans.

Harpers Magazine for September. This standard magazine has no peer in its usual class of articles. $4,00 a year. Address Harper Bros. New York, or buy single copies of any news-dealer.

America not Discovered by Columbus, $1,00, S. C. Griggs & Co., Chicago.

This is a historical sketch of the Discoveries of America by the Norsemen, in the 10th century. The author is Prof. R. B. Anderson of the University of Wisconsin. In an appendix is given statements showing the Historal, Literary, and Scientific value of the Scandinavian Language. The author is master of his theme and make many new enterprising statement. It is a valuable book.

The Edinburgh Review for July is republished by Leonard Scott Publishing Company, 41 Barclay street New York, and is for sale by George Ellis, New Orleans. This number contains ten articles, among which are: The Life and Correspondence of Kleber; Indian Famines; Conference in Italy; the England of Elizabeth; The Russians in Asia Minor.

Boston University Year Book 127 pages. Whole number of students in all the colleges for 1876–1877 was 665, of these 163 were young women. For information concerning the University, address the President Rev. Dr. W. F. Warren, Boston.

LITERARY INSTITUTIONS

OF THE

Methodist Episcopal Church in the South.

TENNESSEE.

EAST TENNESSEE WESLEYAN UNIVERSITY, Athens. Rev. J. F. Spence, A M, President. First term: August 7—Dec. 24. Second term, Jan. 10—May 29.

CENTRAL TENNESSEE COLLEGE, Nashville. J. Braden, D D, President.

HOLSTON SEMINARY, New Market. Rev. R. Pierce, A M, Principal.

WEST TENNESSEE SEMINARY, Hollow Rock, ———, Principal.

TULLAHOMA COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE, Tullahoma. Rev. T C Carter, President.

GEORGIA.

CLARK UNIVERSITY, Atlanta, ———, President.

ELLIJAY SEMINARY, Ellijay. ——— Principal.

HAVEN NORMAL SCHOOL, Waynesboro, Rev. C W M'Mahon, Principal.

LA GRANGE SEMINARY, La Grange. Rev. J H Owens, Principal.

NORTH CAROLINA.

CANDLER COLLEGE, Asheville. Rev C S Long, Principal. Opens in August.

BENNETT SEMINARY, Greensboro. Rev E O Thayer, Principal.

MARYLAND.

CENTRAL BIBLICAL INSTITUTE, Baltimore, ———, President.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

CLAFLIN UNIVERSITY, Orangeburg. E Cook D D, President.

FLORIDA.

COOKMAN INSTITUTE, Jacksonville. Rev S B Darnell, A M, Principal.

ALABAMA.

RUST INSTITUTE, Huntsville. W R Falls, Principal.

ANDREWS INSTITUTE, Collinsville. Rev J P Blakemore, A M, Principal.

DADEVILLE SEMINARY, Dadeville. ——— Principal.

MISSISSIPPI.

SHAW UNIVERSITY, Holly Springs, W W Hooper A M, President.

LOUISIANA.

NEW ORLEANS UNIVERSITY, New Orleans, W D Godman, D D, President.

LA TECHE SEMINARY, Baldwin, Miss H A Mahaffey, Principal.

TEXAS.

WILEY UNIVERSITY, Marshall. Rev. W H Davis, A M, President.

Quarterly Meetings.

Meridian (Miss.,) Dist.

Paulding, Aug., 30 to September 8; Garlandsville, September 5 and 6; Newton Sept., 8 and 9; DeKalb, September 13 and 14; Shuqualak, September 18 and 19; Mishularville, September 19 and 20; Ex Prairie, September 22 and 23; Rome, September 22 and 23; Louisville, September 15 and 16; Carthage, September 15 and 16; Whitefield, September 15 and 16; Brooksville, Sept., 26 and 27; Crawford, September 29 and 30; Trenton, September 29 and 30; Claiborne, September 29 and 30; Landerdale, October and 7; Delesville, October 13 and 14.

Macon, October 27 and 28; Meridian November 3 and 4; Meridian circuit, Nov. 7 and 8; Shubuta, November 10 and 11; Quitman, November 13 and 14; Waynesboro, November 17 and 18; State Line, November 17 and 18; Enterprise, November 24 and 25; Enterprise circuit, November 26 and 27.

The District Conference will be held at Starksville, October 17 and 21.

M. ADAMS P. E.

Navasota (Tex.) District.

THIRD ROUND.

Brenham, Sept. 1-2; Navasota, Sept. 8-9; Courtney, Sept. 15-16; Plantersville, Sept. 22-23; Anderson, Sept. 29-30; Millican, Oct. 6-7; Bryan, Oct. 13-14; Brewer Hill, Oct. 27-28; Hempstead Circuit, Nov. 3-4; Hearne, Nov. 10-11; San Phillip, Nov. 17-18; Cotton Gin, Nov. 24-25, Fairfield, Dec. 1-2.

The District Conference will be held at Hempstead Oct. 18-19-20.

W. M. COLE, P. E.

Okolona (Miss.,) District.

THIRD ROUND.

Okolona, August 18-19; Corinth, August 4-5; Tupelo, August 11-12; Spring Valley and Union Grove, August 25-26; Houston, September 1-2; West Point, September 8-9; Tampico, September 10-11; Columbus end Circuit, September 15-16; Athens, September 17-18; Spring Valley and Union Grove, September 22-23; Big Black, September 24-25; Pontotoc, September 29-30; Union Grove, October 6-7; Tibbe, October 13-14; Calhoun, October 20-21; Aberdeen, October 27-28; Beune Vista, October 26.

The Okolona District Conference, will meet at Aberdeen, October 29. All the Traveling and Local Preachers, Exhorters, District Stewards and Sunday School Superintendents, are requested to be present.

D. McLACHLAN, P. E.

San Antonio (Tex.,) District.

Columbus, August 4 and 5; Columbus circuit, August 4 and 5; Alleyton, August 10 and 12; Eagle Lake, August 14 and 15; San Antonio, August 18 and 19; Henry, August 25 and 26; Texana, September 1 and 2; Victoria circuit, September 8 and 9; Mission Valley, September 15 and 16; Indianola, September 29 and 30; Speaksville, September 29 and 30; Victoria, October 6 and 7; Peach Creek, October 6 and 7; Corpus Christi, October 6 and 7; Hondo, October 6 and 7; Floresville, October 6 and 7; Southerland Springs, October 6 and 7; Nockernut, October 6 and 7; Lavernia, October 6 and 7; Belmont, October 6 and 7; Riddleville, October 6 and 7; Oakland, October 6 and 7; Halletsville, October 6 and 7.

The District Conference will meet at Goliad on October 16th.

D. GREGORY, P. E.

Murfreesboro (Tenn.,) Dist.

FOURTH ROUND.

Stone River, 4 and 5; Murfreesboro Circuit, August 9 and 10; Murfreesboro, August 11 and 12; Alexandria, August 15 and 16; Carthage, August 18 and 19; Lebanon, August 25 and 26; North Lebanon, August 29 and 30; Hartsville, September 1 and 2; Gallatin, September 1 and 2; Mitchellsville, September 8 and 9; Springfield, September 15 and 16; Dickson, September 22 and 23; Nashville Circuit, September 26 and 27; Clark Chapel 29 and 30.

C. PICKETT, P. E.

Memphis (Tenn.,) Dist.

FOURTH ROUND.

Memphis, July 7; Adamsville, July 14; Shiloh, July 16; White Sulphur, July 18; Saltillo July 21; Lexington July 25; Decaturville, July 28; Camden, August 1; Clarksburg, August 4; Benton, August 8; Weakley, August 11; Alamo, August 15; Lake, August 18; Carroll and Huntingdon, August 25; Dickson, September 1; Dickson circuit, September 5; Buffalo, September 8; Wayne, September 12; Indian Creek, September 15; Lawrenceburg, September 22.

The Memphis district Sunday-school Extension Society, composed of the members of the district conference, will hold its second session at White Sulphur, Hardin county, July 17th to 20th. Opening service, 17th, at 8 o'clock p. m.

The district conference will meet at Shoat's Creek, Giles county, September 26th. Opening sermon at 7 o'clock p. m., by Rev. E. N. Williams.

J. L. CHANDLER, P. E.

Houston, (Texas) District.

THIRD ROUND.

Richmond and Forest Chapel, July 1-2; Church Houston, July 7-8; Edwards Chapel, July 9-10; Harrisburg and West Point, July 14-15; Columbia and Brazoria, July 21-22; 1st Church Houston, August 4-5; Spring Creek, 25-26; East Church Tabernacle, September 1-2; Galveston, Staffords, September 8-9; Cypress, September, 15-16; Oyster Creek, September 22-23.

W. L. MOLLOY, P. E.

Marshall (Tex.) District.

THIRD ROUND.

Coffeeville, June 30 July 1; Marion, July 7-8 Marshall, July 14-15; Jefferson, Circuit July 21-22; Jefferson, July 28-29; Hickory Grove, July 28-29; Clarksville, August 4-5th; Union, August 4-5; Paris July 11th-12; Quitman, Aug. 18-19; Vanzant, Aug. 25-26; Greenville, Sept. 1st. 2nd; Sulphur Springs, Sept. 8-9th; Mt. Pleasant, Sept. 15-16.

F. C. MOORE, P. E.

AGENTS WANTED $50 To $200 Per Month,
—A New, Clear, and Concise—
Universal History,
Commencing with the earliest periods, closing March, 1877. Three volumes of the world's great Grand History in one. Ancient, Middle Ages and Modern, including history of Centennial Exhibition, Inauguration of President Hayes, and Turkish difficulties. A book of thrilling interest and universal need. Sells faster than any other. Beautiful illustrations, low prices, quick sales, extra terms, circulars free. Address, J. C. McCURDY & CO., Philadelphia, Pa.; Cincinnati, O.; Chicago, Ill.; St. Louis, Mo. (aug23-5t

Every Lady Her Own Physician.
Ladies' own Prescription. Information of great value to every lady sent free, by addressing Dr. W. C. Stevens, 911 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa. [aug16-tf

Staunton Female Semin ay.
STAUNTON, VIRGINIA.
Rev. J. L. Miller, A. M., Principal, with a full corps of teachers, including Mrs. Gen. J. E. B. Stuart. School not sectarian. Four denominations represented in the faculty. Board and home comforts the best. Positively no extravagance in dress allowed. Terms liberal. Session opens Sept. 6th, 1877. Send for catalogue to the Principal. [jy26-4t

Gannett Institute FOR YOUNG LADIES, BOSTON, MASS.
The 24th year will begin Wednesday, Sept. 26, 1877. For Catalogues and Circular, apply to Rev. Geo. Gannett, Principal, 69 Chester Square, Boston, Mass. Aug. 7-5t.

Church Furniture.
MENEELY BELLS.
The genuine Troy Church Bells, known to the public since 1826.
CATALOGUES FREE.
Post-office address, either Troy or West Troy, N. Y. MENEELY & CO.
Aug. 9-1 y.

Hospital College of Medicine.
(The clinical School of the West.)
Med. Dept. of Central Univ., Louisville, Ky.
Distinctive features: A thorough didactic course, unsurpassed clinical facilities, eighteen clinics per week, the student being daily required to examine and prescribe, a high standard of graduation, both a didactic and a practical clinical examination being required.
For catalogues and information concerning special advantages address
DR. W. H. BOLLING, DEAN,
Cor. Third and Jefferson Sts., Louisville, Ky.

SOUTHWESTERN AGENCY
FOR
School and College Text Books.
Office No. 80 CAMP STREET (up stairs).
Below we submit the MODEL SERIES of books (so conceded by the leading educators of this country) for use in PRIMARY, INTERMEDIATE and GRAMMAR schools. To insure their adoption by the progressive teacher we have only to ask a careful comparison with books of a like grade, a critical examination and a thorough, practical test in the class-room:

	Prices.
Harper's Introductory Geography	60
Harper's School Geography	$1 25
" United States First Reader	15
" " " Second "	26
" " " Third "	37
" " " Fourth "	56
" " " Fifth "	75
" " " Sixth "	90
Wilson's Primary Speller	15
" Larger "	30
" New "	34
Lamson's Penmanship, per dozen	1 08
French's First Lessons in Numbers	25
" Elementary Arithmetic	37
" Mental Arithmetic	36
" Common School Arithmetic	70
Swinton's Language Primer	30
" Language Lessons	37
" School Composition	37
" Progressive Grammar	55

Catalogues, circulars, and testimonials sent on applications. Correspondence solicited and will receive prompt attention, when addressed
W. P. ROGERS & W. L. JARVIS; Agents for the introduction of Harper & Brother' Educational Works; New Orleans, La.; Lock Box 134.

NEW ANTHEM BOOK, JUST PUBLISHED
Chapel Anthems
By Dr. J. B. Herbert, assisted by the best writers of the day. Supplies a long felt need for a collection of new, short, and practical Anthems for Choirs, Conventions, Singing Classes, etc. Sample copy mailed on receipt of retail price, $1 25. Liberal discount on quantities.

Heavenward! Is the leading new book of Sunday-school Songs. By Jas. R. Murray, P. P. Bliss, and others, and the only new book containing Mr. Bliss' best songs. Send 25 cts. for sample copy, in paper covers. Price in boards, 35 cents, or $30 00 per hundred.

Songs of Faith Now Gospel Hymns and Sacred Songs by the best writers including Moody & Sankey's famous songs. The latest and best book for Revival, Praise or Camp Meetings. Price, words and music, 35 cts. $30 per 100. WORDS ONLY, 6cts. $5 00 per hundred.

SONGS OF P. P. BLISS
A collection of about forty of the best and most popular Songs, Duets, Quartets etc., secular and sacred, by the late P. P. Bliss. Most of the songs in this little volume can be found in no other book. Contains also a fine portrait of P. P. Bliss and sketch of his life. Edited by James R. Murray.
PRICE, tinted paper, neatly bound in boards, 30 cts., in cloth, red edges, 50 cts., in cloth, full gilt, 75 cts. Sold by most book and music dealers, or mailed on receipt of price.
☞ Catalogue of Sheet Music and Music Books sent FREE.
S. BRAINARD'S SONS, Publishers, Cleveland, O.

Texas Lands.
Best Investment in the Nation!
640 acres rich prairie loam, producing cotton, grains, fruit and vegetables, and adapted to stock, lying in the high and healthful latitude of Northwestern Texas, for the nominal sum of $266.
Title Patent, direct and perfect. Taxes low. Worth several times the cost. Now is your time to plant a small sum fruitfully. No fraud. All work personally supervised. Handled in the interest of education in Texas. Full particulars furnished on application, (with stamps).
References: Rev. Wm. Brush, D.D., P. E. Austin District, Austin, Texas; First National Bank, Dallas, Texas; State Savings Bank, Dallas, Texas, or editor of this paper.
Address
REV. L. H. CARHART,
West Texas Conference.
☞ Box 377, Dallas, Texas. [a19-tf

"The principle of combining English and American writers in a common literary enterprise, merits all encouragement."—J. Anthony Froude.
THE
INTERNATIONAL REVIEW,
A NEW YORK AND LONDON REVIEW.
EMINENT CONTRIBUTORS ON BOTH SIDES OF THE ATLANTIC. (No articles at second hand. All articles original.)
CONTENTS.—MAY-JUNE—NOW READY.
The New Administration.
The Life Insurance Question. Carlton T. Lewis.
Disestablishment of the Church of England, Dr. James H. Rigg, London.
The Philadelphia Exhibition.—Part I. Mechanism and Administration.
Francis A. Chief of the Bureau of Awards.
Tennyson.—A Criticism. Bayard Taylor.
Our Foreign Service. Hon. John Jay.
American and European Literature, Phillip Gilbert Hamerton.
Contemporary Events.
Price, Single Number, $1. For six months $3. Annual subscription (6 numbers) $5.
New York: A. S. BARNES & CO., Publishers.
apr27-10t]

NEW ENG. CONSERVATORY of MUSIC.
16,000 pupils since 1875, 75 eminent instructors. 115 hours instruction for $15. Musical, Literary and Art courses. 4 terms a year. Address E. TOURJEE, Music Hall, Boston Mass. [July 19-4teow

E. HEATH. W. F. PIPPEY, M. LARA.
HEATH, PIPPEY & LARA,
99..........CAMP STREET..........99
NEW ORLEANS.
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
UPHOLSTERERS MATERIALS,
Wall Paper,
Window Shades, Cornices, and
CURTAIN GOODS.
PICTURES, FRAMES,
MOULDINGS, MIRRORS,
LOCKS, WIRE-CLOTH,
WINDOW & DOOR SCREENS
FRAMING DONE TO ORDER.
14-1y

Heathen Woman's Friend.
24 PAGES MONTHLY.
PRICE 50 CENTS.
Specimen Copies sent Gratuitously.
MRS. L. H. DAGGETT, Agent.
36 Bromfield street, Boston, Mass.
july19-tf

ROANOKE COLLEGE, SALEM, VA.
Next session begins September 5th, 1877. Collegiate, elective and preparatory courses. Unsurpassed location. Mountain climate. Moral community. Five Churches in town. Expenses for 9½ months, including tuition, board, etc., from $160 to $240. Students from fifteen States, Indian Territory, and Mexico. Patronage constantly increasing. For catalogues, etc., address jy12-4t] SECRETARY OF FACULTY.

PUSSY'S LESSON.

O Pussy, what a fuss you make!
  You needn't 'spect to be
A tru-ly ed-u-cated cat
  Un-less you 'tend to me.

Look! That is C. Just speak it out,
  And show what you can do;
'Tis easy, if you'll na-ly try,
  And not keep saying "mew."

You're not a beau-ty, puss, but then
  Beau-ty is hard to find;
You need not fret a-bout your looks.
  If you im-prove your mind.

You have a very o-pen face—
  A speak'g face in-deed;
Now lis-ten, C-A-T spells cat.
  Come, straight-en out and read.

O dear! you do not try to learn,
  No mat-ter what I say,
You na-ly whine, "Meow, meow,"
  And try to pull a-way.

Well, if you mean to be a dunce,
  I s'pose you'll have to be;
But you're the ig-no-rant-est cat
  That ever I did see.

Lizzie's Naughty Fingers.

"Mamma," said Lizzie before she was undressed for bed, this finger and that thumb have been naughty to-day."

"What have they done?" asked mamma.

"They took some raisins from your cupboard," said the little girl.

"Did nobody tell them to do it?" asked mamma. Lizzie looked down.

"I did not hear anybody tell them," she answered, softly.

"Did they eat the raisins?" asked mamma.

"They put them in my mouth," answered Lizzie.

"Were you not to blame for taking them?" asked mamma. "Your fingers had no right to them, you know."

"They gave them to me," said the little girl.

"But the Bible says 'If thy right hand offend thee, cut it off.' Must we cut any part of this little hand off?" asked mamma.

"What is offend?" asked the child.

"Making you do wrong," said mamma.

"But it was only one finger and one thumb," said Lizzie.

"They are two little thieves then, for they took what did not belong to them. They can no longer be trusted, we must shut them up," said mamma.

Lizzie looked very sorry, while her mother found some black cloth and wound round the finger, then the thumb. Her hand felt very clumsy. She went to bed, and arose in the morning with them still shut up.

"Shall I take this ugly black cloth off now?" she asked on going to be washed.

"Oh no," said mamma. "We have no proof that they are sorry yet, therefore it is not safe to trust them; they may go right away to the cupboard again."

"I think they are very sorry," said Lizzie in a painful tone.

"But they have not said so," said mamma.

Lizzie went down to breakfast with the ugly black rags on. How she held her spoon I cannot tell. I do not think she ate much, for she looked unhappy. By and by the little girl came to her mamma, with tears rolling down her cheeks.

"Mamma," she sobbed, "it was I made my fingers naughty—I—naughty I'm to blame;" and soon the black rag was off from her little finger.

Betsey and I.

Mr. Will Carleton should be appointed a sort of general referee in [illegible] cases of "incompatibility." The Inter-Ocean gives an account of a venerable man who called upon the [illegible] for the purpose of obtaining a divorce from his wife, with whom he had lived forty years and raised a large family. There had been no incompatibility, only a lively difference of opinion between Mr. Pethbil, the attorney, and his partner with the old gentleman. Mr. Pethbil, most Illinois [illegible] lawyer, and concluded [illegible] he had ever read Will Carleton's "Betsey and I are out." "I had never heard of it," said the lawyer; "perhaps you'll let me read it." "Certainly, sir, anything special to your mind, sir, I'll do it." A few days after the attorney received the following letter by mail:

"Iowa, June 10, 1877.

"Sir:—I can never be [illegible] to you for your [illegible] in my behalf. I acted upon your [illegible] and the desired result, never [illegible] to part until the [illegible] one of us. [illegible] for his little [illegible] you for making [illegible] May you live long and prosper, but never [illegible] of Will [illegible] by the fact [illegible] sold [illegible] of his [illegible] at [illegible] Betsey [illegible] Why [illegible] but peace, [illegible] dix'cumparents at [illegible] Yours [illegible]

The Atheist and the Flower.

When Napoleon Bonaparte was Emperor of France he put a man by the name of Charney into prison. He thought Charney was an enemy of his government, and for that reason deprived him of his liberty. Charney was a learned and profound man; and as he walked to and fro in the small yard into which his prison opened he looked up to the heavens, the work of God's fingers, and to the moon and stars, which he ordained, and yet excaimed "All things come by chance."

One day, while pacing his yard, he saw a tiny plant just breaking the ground near the wall. The sight of it caused a pleasant diversion of his thoughts. No other green thing was within his enclosure. He watched its growth every day. "How came it there?" was his natural inquiry. As it grew other queries were suggested. "How came these delicate little veins in its leaves? What made its proportions so perfect in every part, each new branch taking its exact place on the parent stock, neither too near another nor too much on one side?"

In his loneliness the plant became the prisoner's teacher and his valued friend. When the flower began to unfold he was filled with delight. It was white, purple and rose-colored, with a fine silvery fringe. Charney made a frame to support it, and did what his circumstances allowed to shelter it from pelting rains and violent winds.

"Things come by chance," had been written by him on the wall just above where the flower grew. Its gentle reproof, as it whispered: "There is One who made me so wonderfully beautiful, and He it is who keeps me alive," shamed the proud man's unbelief. He brushed the lying words from the wall, while his heart felt that "He who made all things is God."

But God had a further blessing for the erring man through the humble flower. There was an Italian prisoner in the same yard, whose little daughter was permitted to visit him. The little girl was much pleased with Charney's love for his flower. She related what she saw to the wife of the jailor. The story of the prisoner and his flower passed from one to another until it reached the ears of the amiable Empress Josephine. The Empress said, "The man who so devotedly loves and tends a flower cannot be a bad man;" so she persuaded the Emperor to set him at liberty.

Charney carried his flower home and carefully tended it in his own green-house. It had taught him to believe in a God, and had delivered him from prison.

The Old Reliable Jackson Route.

TO THE FRONT AGAIN.

This old favorite passenger route has been greatly improved with steel rails, new iron bridges and new cars, and is now run with great regularity, making sure connections and quick time, and is the shortest and best route to the East via Louisville and Cincinnati.

Pleasure seekers by this route can go via Chicago and through Canada, or via Buffalo and Niagara Falls, to New York and the Northern watering places, at the same fare as via Louisville or the lines through Georgia and Virginia.

A full line of tourist and excursion tickets now on sale at the Jackson Sailroad ticket office, No. 22 Camp street, under City Hotel, to all important summer resorts in the East, North and Northwest, by all desired routes.

Only one change of cars between New Orleans and New York and other Eastern cities. No change between Chicago, Cincinnati, Louisville and New Orleans, or from St. Louis to New Orleans.

Palace sleeping cars on all through trains.

Try the old Jackson route.

Lungs and Throat.

Inhalation of common air in Incipient Consumption will cure. Dr. J. M. Howe, of Passaic, N. J., sends his Tube, with full directions, post free for $3 50. Send for Circulars. may2tf.

Virginia Female Institute,

STAUNTON, VIRGINIA,

The 53rd annual session of this institution will commence Sept. 12, 1877. Buildings spacious, heated by steam and lighted by gas. Hot and cold water on the several floors. Grounds extensive. Large corps of experienced teachers. Patronage represents 19 States. Methodist church within three minutes' walk. For catalogue address REV. R. H. PHILLIPS, Rector.

F. F. HANSELL,

JAS. A. GRESHAM, Manager.

BOOK-SELLERS, PRINTERS,

AND STATIONERS.

No. 10 CAMP STREET.

Would respectfully announce to the readers of the ADVOCATE their facilities for doing all kinds of Printing and Job Work for PARTIES, BALLS, and BUSINESS PURPOSES.

Methodist Hymn Books, Disciplines and Bibles

Will be furnished at Northern Prices.

FAMILY BIBLES.

$8.50 to $25. Orders from the country promptly attention, and [illegible] as if brought in person.

Address, as above,

F. F. HANSELL,

10 Camp Street, New Orleans, La.

Box 84. [je14-77-3m.]

THE ORIGINAL

KING OF PAIN.

A Family Medicine,

Sure Cure for

CRAMPS, COLICS, DIARRŒA, SORE THROAT, HEADACHE, TOOTHACHE, EARACHE, RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, COLDS, COUGHS, PALPITATION OF THE HEART, NERVOUSNESS, CUTS, SPRAINS, BRUISES, BURNS, BITES OF VENOMOUS REPTILES, Etc.

Persons suffering from the above complaints might find it to their advantage to try KING OF PAIN, before sending for a physician, as a careful notice of the above directions may enable any person to learn how to use the medicine, which will prove beneficial in many complaints not mentioned in the above circular. This Medicine is Guaranteed to give satisfaction, or the money will be refunded.

In putting this valuable medicine on the market, I have forgone the old stereotyped practice of appending a long list of certificates of Doctors and others, as the KING OF PAIN is so favorably known in this city and State, as I have prepared and put it up since 1864, for Dr. McBride and other agents, and sold by me.

Since I have retired from the drug business I have been compelled to furnish it to many parties who had used it and learned its value. In order that this great household Remedy may reach the poor as well as the wealthy, its price has been reduced to 25 cents 50 cents and $1 00 per bottle.

For sale by all druggists and country stores.

Prepared by

W. H. PEMBERTON, M. D., an g23-79-6m New Orleans, La.

A. H. NELSON,

Commercial Stationer, Printer, Blank

BOOK MANUFACTTRER and LITHOGRAPHER.

THE best assortment of Blank Books in the city.

The Finest Specimens of Lithographic work to be found in New Orleans.

No. 57 CAMP STREET,

Sign of the Mammoth Letter Press.

☞ Call and Prove My Statements. [oct12-76 1y

THE

Houston and Texas Central Railroad,

Operating over 500 miles of superior road, runs North and South through the

FINEST AGRICULTURAL and GRAZING DISTRICTS in TEXAS

And offers the most desirable sites for location to parties immigrating to that great State. The

NORTHWESTERN BRANCH

Of this road, which is now being pushed forward beyond Waco, will pierce the Great Mineral region of

NORTHWESTERN TEXAS.

For further information, address

J. R. COFFIN, S. P. A., Chattanooga, Tenn.

C. R. WHITNEY & CO., New Orleans, La.

J. WALDO, G. P. A., or J. DURAND, Gen'l Superintendent, Houston, Texas. [mar22-77-1y

PAN-HANDLE

AND

PENNSYLVANIA Railroad Route.

The Favorite Trunk Line.

Only one change of cars to New York, and that at 7:30 in the morning, at Cincinnati.

No omnibus transfers on any part of the line.

Best equipped and shortest route to all the eastern cities.

Best Route to Long Branch, Cape May, Atlantic City, New Port, and all the Atlantic sea-coast watering places.

Best route to Cresson, Altoona, the celebrated Bedford Springs, and all the noted mountain retreats of the Alleghany range; and also the best route to Bethlehem on the Lehigh river, and all the noted resorts in the Anthracite coal regions of Pennsylvania.

This route is supplied with all the modern improvements for speed, safety, and comfort; and continuous trains run without stoppages for fuel or water, as the water is supplied while the trains are in motion.

Palace and Drawing Room coaches on all trains.

Double tracked, stone balasted, free from dust, and steel rails laid according to scientific principles, to avoid jarring which is the cause of nausea to many.

All travelers who have availed themselves of the solid comforts to be found on the old reliable Pan Handle and Pensylvania, unhesitatingly say that for families and tourists, it is unequalled; while for business men who desire reliability and promptness it is far ahead of all opposition.

The refreshment saloons and eating houses are all first-class and all have an enviable reputation for their cusine—the tables being supplied with the best that the markets of Ohio and Pennsylvania afford.

Be sure and ask for tickets via Louisville Cincinnati and the Pan Handle Route.

W. L. O'BRIEN,

Gen. Pass'r and Ticket Agent, Columbus, Ohio.

SIDNEY B. JONES,

General S. W. Agent, Cincinnati, Ohio.

W. M. WALLINGTON,

Gen. Southern Agent, New Orleans, La. [june14-77-tf

10,000 COPIES SOLD IN EIGHT WEEKS.

THE LATEST, FRESHEST, and MOST COMPLETE OF ALL THE

MOODY LITERATURE.

FIVE BOOKS IN ONE.

MOODY: His Words, Work and Workers.

EDITED BY REV. W. H. DANIELS, M. A.

With an Introduction by Rev. Chas. H. Fowler, DD., LL.D.

Of the many volumes called out by the wonderful career of Messrs. MOODY AND SANKEY, all have hitherto been more or less fragmentary, and without systematic arrangement. In the above work the design has been to bring within the compass of a single volume of generous size

THE MAN HIMSELF: A full and Systematic Presentation of his Bible Doctrines: An account of his most prominent CO-WORKERS: and a chapter on that most marvelous movement in modern evangelism, THE GOSPEL TEMPERANCE REVIVAL.

In order to make the volume fresh and complete, Mr. Daniels, who edits this work, has made a visit to Boston, to learn, by personal observation, as he has done in the case of the Moody and Sankey revivals in other great cities on both sides of the Atlantic, the progress of the revival work there.

This volume contains 552 pages, crown octavo, including twelve full-page illustrations; is elegantly printed on fine paper; is handsomely bound; and is not only a book of the widest and most permanent interest and value of any yet published in this line, but is also the

CHEAPEST FOR ITS PRICE.

Full Cloth, Gilt Stamp.....$2 00

Half Morocco, Marbla Edge.....$2 75

AGENTS WANTED EVERYWHERE.

The publishers are appointing from fifteen to twenty agents daily, which is the very best evidence of the fact that the book meets the popular want. Many who are canvassing for other similar works are dropping them and taking this.

MINISTERS, STUDENTS, TEACHERS, LADIES,

And other intelligent persons, are wanted to canvass for this work. It will be

SOLD ONLY BY SUBSCRIPTION.

READ HOW IT SELLS.

Rev. J. S. Wickline, one of our Agents, writes, under date of June 12, as follows:

"Messrs. Nelson & Phillips: I sold twenty-four books in two days; showed the book to twenty-five persons, and took twenty-four subscribers."

No other book in the market, now being sold by subscription, is selling so fast.

It is preeminently the best book on Mr. Moody and his Work that has yet appeared.

Send postal card for full description, circulars, and terms to

NELSON & PHILLIPS,

Lock Box B., New Orleans.

P. S.—Where we have no Agents, the book will be sent, postage prepaid, on receipt of retail price.

IMPROVED

CABINET ORGANS.

EXCELLING WHAT HAS PREVIOUSLY BEEN ACCOMPLISHED IN

POWER, PURITY AND DELICACY OF TONES.

THE LIST CABINET ORGAN

(Style No. 501.—Five Octave; Seven Sets of Reeds of Two and a Half Octaves each, and One Set of One Octave; Fifteen Stops; New Scale of Reed-Board, Reeds and Actions, with Ventrillo Chest and other Improvements, patented 1876-7.

Base.—Contra Basso, 16 ft.; English Horn, 8 ft.; Viola, 4 ft.; Viola Dolce, 4 ft.; Sub-Bass, 16 ft. Treble.—Corno, 16 ft.; Melodia, 8 ft., Piccolo, 4 ft.; Seraphone, 8 ft.; Voix Celeste, 8 ft. Throughout.—Full Organ, (knee stop,) Vox Humana, Octave Coupler, (coupling up,) knee Swell, I. Forte, II. Forte.

The Mason & Hamlin Organ Co., have the pleasure of announcing that specimens of this fine Organ, (as similes in their musical part of one furnished Dr. Franz Liszt,) are now ready, and may be seen at their Warerooms and Principal Agencies. The origin of this improved Organ, and of its name, is as follows:

Having occasion to make an organ expressly for the very celebrated Dr. Franz Liszt, in which full sonorous power was especially desired, as well as such delicacy and purity of tone as could afford satisfaction to so critical a judgment as that of th great maestro, we took the opportunity to carry out and introduce improvements which had been first presented in our Organs, at the U. S. Centennial Exhibition, with others which had long been in progress. The result was more than satisfactory to ourselves; the improvement greater than we had ventured to expect. In our own warerooms in Boston and New York the new Instrument was seen and tested by a number of the best musicians in the county, who pronounced it a material advance upon all that had before been accomplished. In the rooms of the Agent for the sale of our Organs in Hannover, Germany, it was also greatly admired. The Hannover Courier declared it to be "at the very height of development of instruments of the class," evincing "extraordinary progress." After its receipt and trial, Dr. Franz Liszt wrote to the Agent: "The beautiful organ of Mason & Hamlin Organ Company, of Boston receives no less praise here than in Hannover. It fully justifies the remarkable, well-founded, and widespread renown of these superb instruments." It was immediately put in use in his orchestra.

We are confirmed in our judgment then, that the tones of this new Organ are the finest that have ever been produced from reeds, not because of mere oddity of effect, but from their true diapason-like quality and fulness, and from their excellent power and pervading and sustaining effect; and that, as a whole, it is, in proportion to its size and extent, much in advance of anything we have before been able to produce.

Circulars with full particulars, also Catalogues illustrating and describing all the styles of the celebrated MASON & HAMLIN CABINET ORGANS, which have taken highest honors at all the World's Exhibitions of recent years, are the only American Organs which have ever taken highest award at any such, sent free.

MASON & HAMLIN Organ Co.

154 Tremont St., Boston; 25 Union Sq., N. Y. 250, and 252 Wabash Avenue, Chicago.

FOUR MONTHS OF

GOOD HEALTH

FOR 25 CENTS.

ANY PESSON WHO WILL BUY A BOX OF

Parson's Purgative PILLS

And will take one (1) each night for four (4) nights, and will do this every third (3d) week during the months of June, July, August and September, will not be troubled with Fever and Ague, nor Malarious Fever, nor Bilious Fever, nor any of the diseases resulting from miasmatic poison, common in Missouri, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas. If Parson's Purgative Pills cannot be obtained at your nearest store, send 25 cts. to the undersigned, and the pills shall be sent, post paid, by return mail. Physicians supplied by mail at $2.50 per thousand in bulk. As this is but little more than half price for standard pills by the thousand, cash must accompany the order. The Receipe will be cheerfully sent to any physician on application. We will send Parson's Pills by mail to responsible parties on commission at $2 per dozen, sample dozens at $1 85, cash with the order.

WHOLESALE AGENTS.

COLLINS BROS.....St. Louis, Mo.

G. W. JONES & Co.....Memphis Tenn.

E. J. HART & Co.....New Orleans, La.

C. J. LINCOLN & Co.....Little Rock, Ark.

T. C. THOMPSON & Co.....Galveston, Tex.

ADDRESS ALL ORDERS TO

I. S. JOHNSON & CO.

je21-1y] Bangor, Maine, Proprietors.

$12 a day at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. True & Co., Dec 1 76 1y] Augusta, Maine.

OFFICE AMERICAN COTTON TIE CO. LIMITED

47 Carondelet St. New Orleans, La.

In view of the constantly increasing popularity and demand for the Celebrated Arrow Tie, the universally recognized favorite Tie of Planters, Cotton Pressman and Shippers of Cotton generally, the American Cotton Tie Co., Limited, sole proprietors and manufacturers of said Tie, commanding unequalled facilities, have, in addition to the large stock now on hand, contracted for increased quantities, sufficient to meet the largest demand for Cotton Ties, to cover the entire crop of the coming season, and now, through their Agents generally, offer the popular and irrepressible ARROW TIE at $2.50 per bundle, less 2½ per cent. discount for cash, in Bundles complete, being less than the market value of plain hoop iron; and it being the purpose of the Company to merit the continued patronage of the Planting community and to defy all competition that may arise; their Agents are instructed to contract with Dealers, Factors and country Merchants at the above named price and terms for future delivery up to the first of August in quantities as may be required from time to time, settlements being made on delivery.

R. W. RAYNE, & CO.,

GENERAL MANAGERS,

je-21-77-1y] New Orleans, La.

A. P. HARRINGTON,

No. 118 Canal Street,

New Orleans, - - - - - - La.

Dealer in

LAW, MEDICAL, SCHOOL, RELIGIOUS, AGRICULTURAL AND MISCELLANEOUS

BOOKS

Stationery, Gold Pens and Pencils.

Pocket Books, Card Cases, Pocket Knives, Scrap Books, Chromos, Photograph Albums, Stereoscopes, Maps, Globes, Writing Desks, Etc.

☞ PRINTING, RULING and BINDING.

Subscriptions taken for Newspapers and Magazines, Payable in advance.

☞ Country Orders Solicited. ☜

feb10-77-1y

...20 PER QUARTER FOR TEN QUARTERS.

MASON & HAMLIN CABINET ORGANS.

HIGHEST AWARDS AT

FOUR GREAT WORLD'S EXPOSITIONS

Paris, 1867; Vienna, 1873; Santiago, 1875;

PHILADELPHIA, 1876.

ONLY ORGANS ASSIGNED FIRST RANK AT CENTENNIAL.

Great variety of styles at prices which would be impossible for work of such excellence without unequaled facilities for manufacture.

EXAMPLES OF NET CASH PRICES:

Five octave double reed organ, with tremulant, $100

Five octave organ, nine stops, with Voix Celeste, $114

Sold also for monthly or quarterly payments, or rented until rent pays. A superior organ may now be purchased by the easy payment of $7.50 per quarter for ten quarters. Catalogues free.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN CO.

154 Tremont St. BOSTON. 25 Union Sq. NEW YORK. 250 Wabash Ave CHICAGO.

june14-77-1y

Madame FOY'S

Corset Skirt Supporter

Increases in popularity every year.

And for HEALTH, COMFORT and STYLE is acknowledged the BEST ARTICLE of the kind ever made. For sale by all leading jobbers and retailers. Beware of imitations and infringements.

MANUFACTURED SOLELY BY FOY & HARMON, New Haven, Conn.

m1-13tj

E. N. FRESHMAN & BRO.

ADVERTISING AGENTS

186 W. FOURTH ST. CINCINNATI O.

—ESTIMATES FURNISHED FREE. SEND FOR OUR MANUAL—

$66 a week in your own town. Term and outfit free. H. Hallet & Co. Dec 21 76 1y] Portland, Maine.

THE

SINGER AGAIN TO THE FRONT!

GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICES

—OF THE—

WORLD-RENOWNED

Singer Family Sewing Machine!

THE SINGER MANUFACTURING COMPANY, ever awake to the interests of the public, have determined to PUT THE PRICE OF THEIR MACHINES within the reach of every man, woman and child in the land.

THE GENUINE SINGER SEWING MACHINE IS NOW OFFERED AT PRICES BELOW THE BOGUS ONES, OR ANY OTHER.

The fact that the only Sewing Machine which unscrupulous men have ever attempted to imitate, is the Singer, is sufficient evidence of its superiority over all others. There is no longer any excuse for buying any of the cheap machines hawked about the country, with no claim for patronage but their cheapness.

THE SINGER MANUFACTURING COMPANY,

S. E. RUNDLE, Agent.

may24-6m] No. 91 Canal Street, New Orleans, La.

WHEELER & WILSON

STILL AHEAD!

PRICES GREATLY REDUCED.

The Acknowledged Family Favorite.

NO NOISY COGS, AND NO RATTLING SHUTTLES.

Ease of manipulation, simplicity of construction, and rapidity of motion, have always placed the

Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine

Above all its competitors. The WHEELER & WILSON Manufacturing Company have determined not to be outdone by the manufacturers of inferior sewing machines.

Get a First-Class Machine at astonishingly low prices.

$40 to $75 will buy a New Improved Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine, at Liberal Discount for Cash.

☞ Send for Circulars and Price List. ☜

2,000,000 in Daily Use,

AND STILL THE FAMILY FAVORITE.

WHEELER & WILSON MAN'F CO.,

M. A. PECK, GEN'L AGENT,

june 14-76. 4m.] 149 Canal Street, New Orleans, La.

PHILIP WERLEIN,

Nos. 78-90 Baonne Street,

NEW ORLEANS, - - - LA.

LARGEST Piano House in This Cuntry,

—OFFERS—

Chickering's New Scale PIANOS.

HALE'S PIANOS, HARDMAN'S PIANOS.

ESTEY & CO. ORGANS. MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

As low as any house North. Monthly Payments. Discounts for cash.

☞ Music and Musical Instruments of Every Description. [feb22-1y

Appearance of a line of Type; to read, hold before a looking-glass.

FOR 10 CENTS and a 3 cent stamp for postage, we will send for one year, our handsome new 8-page paper, THE

Model Printer's Guide

and also one copy of our superbly illustrated, 100 page Printer's Instruction and Specimen Book, entitled

How to Print

worth of itself ten times the whole cost. Everybody delighted. Circulation already 71,000. Send on at once. J. W. DAUGHADAY & Co., Publishers, 728 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia. Also manufacturers of the Celebrated

Model Printing Press

the best for all kinds of fine Card work and Business printing. The greatest invention of the age. In use in every civilized country in the world. Nine styles. Latest improvements. Price, from $6.00 up. The Model Press is now giving employment to thousands of persons, and is the means of enormous saving to Business men everywhere. Full particulars in "How to Print."

HAND & FOOT POWER.

Victor Cane Mill

And

COOK EVAPORATOR

The BEST, and only standard machines.

FIRST PREMIUM AT 125 STATE FAIRS.

Grand Medal at Centennial Exhibition.

Over 44,000 sold.

Safe, Reliable, Economical.

Cane Growers can't afford to risk Crops With light, weak, unfinished mills, liable to break in the midst of the season. They can't afford to waste crops with mills that do not press out all the juice, or evaporators that make syrup and sugar unfit for market, and too little in proportion to the labor and fuel they require.

Blymyer Manufacturing Co., Cincinnati, O. Steam Engines, Threshers, Mills. Circulars sent free.

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY.

Established in 1837.

Superior Bells of Copper and Tin, mounted with the best Rotary Hangings, for Churches, Schools, Farms, Factories, Court Houses, Fire Alarms, Town Clocks, Chimes, etc. Fully Warranted.

Illustrated Catalogue sent Free.

VANDUZEN & TIFT,

102 and 104 East Second St., Cincinnati.

Jan 30 76 tf

BLYMYER MANUFACTURING CO'S BELLS.

Cincinnati, O.

sept28-'76-1y

AYER & SON'S MANUAL For Advertisers

A complete guide to advertisers. New Haven Journal.—A necessity to all who advertise. Louisville Commercial.—The most complete and reliable work of the kind. Pittsburg Gazette.—Sent free to all who advertise.

N. W. AYER & SON, Advertising AGENTS, TIMES BUILDING, PHILADELPHIA.

Get our Estimate before making any advertising contracts. Our business is large. Facilities unsurpassed. Prices the lowest. Terms the best.

THIS NEW

ELASTIC TRUSS

Has a Pad differing from all others, in construction, with Self-Adjusting Ball in center, adapts itself to all positions of the body, while the ball in the cup presses back the intestines just as a person would with the finger, with the hand, yet retains the hernia in place as surely day and night, and a radical cure certain. It is cheap, durable and sheap. Sent by mail. Circulars free.

ECCLESTON TRUSS CO., Marshall, Mich.

Mar28-77-eow13t

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY.

Established in 1837.

Superior Bells of Copper and Tin, mounted with the best Rotary Hangings, for Churches, Schools, Farms, Factories, Court Houses, Fire Alarms, Town Clocks, Chimes, etc. Fully Warranted.

Illustrated Catalogue sent Free.

VANDUZEN & TIFT,

102 and 104 East Second St., Cincinnati.

[mar22-1y]

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine. [Dec 21 76 1y

Southwestern Christian Advocate.

NEW SERIES—VOL. 1—NO. 35. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, AUGUST 30, 1877. WHOLE NUMBER 265

Southwestern.

PUBLISHED BY THE

METHODIST BOOK CONCERN,

39 Natchez St., New Orleans, La.

NELSON & PHILLIPS, Agents.

J. C. HARTZELL, D. D., Editor.

Terms: $2 a year, Cash in Advance.

All Travelling Preachers of the Methodist Episcopal Church are authorized Agents.

Subscriptions may begin at any time and the paper will be sent as long as paid for.

Remittances must be made by Registered Letter, P. O. Money Order, or by Express.

Advertising Rates.

(Per Nonpareil line, each insertion.)

One time, or more........8 cents
One month, (4 times)........7 "
Three months, (13 times)........6 "
Six months, (26 times)........5 "
One year, (52 times)........4 "
Marriage notices........25 "
Special Notices........8 cents. net cash

NEW YORK OFFICE:
805 Broadway, New York,
WILLIAM BALDWIN, Special Agent.

THE BURIAL OF MOSES.

And he buried him in a valley in the land of Moab, over against Beth-peor; but no man knoweth of his sepulchre unto this day.—Deut. 34. 6.

By Nebo's lonely mountain
On this side Jordan's wave,
In a vale in the land of Moab,
There lies a lonely grave;
And no man dug that sepulchre,
And no man saw it e'er,
For the angels of God upturned the sod,
And laid the dead man there.

That was the grandest funeral
That ever passed on earth,
But no man heard the trampling
Or saw the train go forth—
Noiselessly as the daylight
Comes when the night is done,
And the crimson streak on ocean's cheek
Grows into the great sun.

Noiselessly as the spring time
Her crown of verdure weaves,
And all the trees on all the hills
Open their thousand leaves;
So, without sound of music,
Or voice of them that wept,
Silently down from the mountain's crown
The great procession swept.

Perchance the bald old eagle,
On grey Beth-peor's height,
Out of his rocky eyrie
Looked on the wondrous sight.
Perchance the lion stalking
Still shuns that hallowed spot;
For beasts and birds have seen and heard
That which man knoweth not.

But when the warrior dieth,
His comrades in the war,
[illegible] reversed and muffled drum,
Follow the funeral car.
They show the banner taken,
They tell his battles won,
And after him lead his masterless steed,
While peals the minute gun.

Amid the noblest in the land
Men lay the sage to rest,
And give the bard an honored place
With costly marble dressed,
In the great minster transept,
Where lights like glories fall,
And the sweet choir sings, and the organ rings,
Along the emblazoned wall—

This was the bravest warrior
[illegible] sword—
[illegible] poet
[illegible] ever breathed a word;
[illegible] never earth's philosopher
[illegible] with his golden pen
[illegible] truths half so sage
[illegible] a form.

And had he not high honor?
The hill-side for his pall;
To lie in state while angels wait,
With stars for tapers tall;
And the dark rock-pines like tossing plumes
Over his bier to wave,
And God's own hand, in that lonely land,
To lay him in the grave.

In that deep grave without a name,
[illegible] clay
[illegible] again, most wondrous
[illegible] Day
[illegible] wrapped around
[illegible] never trod,
[illegible] of the strife that won our life
[illegible] Incarnate Son of God.

[illegible] Nebo's land,
[illegible] hill,
[illegible] hearts of ours,
[illegible] be still.
[illegible] of grace,
[illegible] till;
[illegible] secret deep

Pansy.

[illegible] about a
[illegible] at once,
[illegible] to pine
[illegible] was
[illegible]
[illegible] in the
[illegible] die, since
[illegible] bush.
[illegible] the
[illegible]

West Tennessee.

This is a fine farming country; the land is generally fertile; corn and cotton are the staple products; wheat, oats, potatoes, fruits and tobacco are also raised in considerable quantities. The land is generally level; vegetation abundant, and the stagnant or sluggish waters, together with the decayed vegetable matter, gives many parts of the country the reputation of being sickly. The prevalent diseases are bilious fevers, and chills, which were quite abundant during our recent trip in this part of the State.

In company with Prof. A. K. Spence, of the Fisk University, and Prof. L. Tefft, of the Baptist Normal and Theological Institute, of Nashville, we held Teachers' Institutes for colored teachers, in Huntingdon, Brownsville, Mason and Alamo. These institutes were well attended. We found the colored people earnest in their desire for educational advantages for their children. Some of the people attended the institutes from a distance of twenty miles. One man rode eighteen miles after 11 o'clock at night, and sent his family to call the young people in the neighborhood, and was back with his company at the institute the next morning, having had about one hour's sleep.

The whites, and especially the more intelligent land owners, were most cordial in their approbation of the work done by the institutes, in rousing a desire on the part of the colored teachers to improve the character of their teaching. These land owners say that they can get along better with the intelligent colored men, who can keep their own accounts, than with the ignorant, who always say they do not owe so much. There are some men in Tennessee who do not favor schools for the colored people, but it is a matter for rejoicing, that they are not men of influence.

Tennessee is fully committed to her Public Free School System, which is second to none of the Southern States, excepting Virginia. This system is growing in popular favor every year.

We were impressed from what we saw, more than ever, with the wants of the colored people. First, Better teachers. In many localities persons are teaching who can hardly read intelligibly, whose writing is execrable, and their spelling barbarous. County Superintendents are compelled to give certificates to these persons, because they are wanted by their friends, and do not know more than most of their scholars, or because they are the best that can be had. The standard of qualification is rising, however, and many of the present teachers will be laid aside, unless they improve very rapidly. This is the determination of the County Superintendents. It is to be hoped they will enforce it rigidly.

Second. The need of intelligent preachers, is manifestly imperative. This is not confined to any one denomination. Our own church is sadly deficient in this respect. Too many of our young men are entering the ministry, so poorly prepared, that they are continued from year to year, in the same year's studies of the Conference course. Other churches are not better off generally, than ourselves. This ignorance produces a sectarianism that is carried even into educational matters. Our public schools for the colored children are generally held in the colored churches. We heard of instances where, in a Baptist church, no one was allowed to teach unless he was a member of that church. That Baptist parents would not send to a Methodist teacher, and vice versa.

There is a story told of Rev. H. W. Key, the former Presiding Elder of the West Tennessee District, a man of catholic spirit, and respected by all, that during the past month he attended the funeral of a Baptist minister, Rev. Harry York, with whom he had been intimate, and requested on his death bed that Bro. Key should take some part in his funeral services. Bro. Key was present, and as the services progressed, some of the congregation requested that he take some part in the services. The leader of the occasion remaked that it was against their rule to have any but Baptists take part in the services, but he would put it to a vote, whether Bro. Key should pray or not. The vote being taken, it was decided in the negative. In the same place a member of the Episcopal Church was told when she presented her letter, that all who were not baptised by a Baptist preacher were on the road to perdition. This peculiarity on the subject of baptism may be confined to the Baptists, but the ignorance [illegible] the cause of this bigotry, [illegible] sectarian strife is quite [illegible] the colored [illegible] West Tennessee. We [illegible], in view of the [illegible] ministry, to find [illegible] on the part [illegible] pleasing unin[illegible] [illegible] is quite prevalent. One planter stated that he paid his employes, last year, after settling all their debts, fifteen hundred dollars, and he estimated that not less than twelve hundred of it was spent for intoxicating drink.

There are some true men in all the churches, and they are lifting their voices against sin. God bless them, for they have much to contend with. We found Bro. Butler, the Presiding Elder of the West Tennessee District, and Bro. Key, P. C., engaged in a protracted meeting at Mason; several conversions. Bro. Townes, at Alamo, was also having an excellent meeting, with eight or ten conversions by the fourth day of the meeting. We heard of other meetings where the Lord was reviving His work. After a two week's sojourn, we returned hopeful to our work in the College, notwithstand the discouraging features we have mentioned.

Progress has been made in the past ten years, and we hope for more rapid advancement in the right direction in the future.

J. BRADEN.

NASHVILLE, Aug. 17, 1877.

Shaw University.

We have just closed a very interesting summer term of ten weeks. Although the number of students in attendance was not large, most of them were well advanced and all thoroughly in earnest. The principal object of this term is to accommodate teachers who are not then engaged in that work, nearly all of whom seem anxious to improve every moment of time.

During the spring and summer we have had our building thoroughly repaired both within and without and it now presents the appearance of a new building. Our grounds also, unsurpassed for natural beauty of form and location are being constantly improved so that in time the M. E. Church and friends of education in Mississippi may well feel proud of so pleasant and healthful a place to which they send their sons and daughters for intellectual and moral training.

The fall term of the University opens September 13th, and the prospects for a full attendance are unusually flattering. It is very important that those who wish to be accommodated with such studies as shall be best for them, should be present the first day of school as classes are formed for the best interests of those present, and those who come in late are often greatly embarrassed; many heretofore instead of making a special effort to be present the day of opening seem to have purposely waited a few days or a few weeks, thinking that it would be time wasted to be present, simply for the arranging of classes the first few days. Nothing could be farther from the truth, although nothing seems more difficult to impress upon the minds of many students.

The 12th of September will be devoted to the examinations of those who wish to enter school for the first term, and also former students who were compelled to leave school before examinations when school closed.

It is expected of all, and especially the ladies in our church, who are interested in the education of our youth that they will lose no opportunity in brining this subject before the minds of parents and children, and urging every one who possibly can, to spend at least three months or more in the University. As time passes and new developments are brought before us the great truth that, "we must educate or we must perish," is more and more emphatically impressed upon us. There is no surer nor shorter road to distress and ruin than popular ignorance. Shall our condition grow worse and worse and more unbearable until we perish, or better and better until we enjoy every blessing of liberty, peace and prosperity; our actions will answer the question.

For catalogues or other information respecting the school address the president, W. W. HOOPER, Holly Springs, Miss.

What They Do In Africa.

Cameron's "Across Africa" says that on the death of a Urua chief it is the custom "to divert the course of a stream, and in its bed to dig an enormous pit, the bottom of which is then covered with living women. At one end a women is placed on her hands and knees, and upon her back the dead chief, covered, with all his beads and treasures, is seated, being supported on either side by one of his wives, while his second wife sits at is feet. The earth is then shovelled on them, and all the women are buried alive, with the exception of the second wife. To her, custom is more merciful than to her companions, and grants her the privilege of being killed before the huge grave is filled in. This being completed, a number of male slaves—sometimes forty or fifty, are slaughtered and their blood poured over the grave, after which the river is allowed to resume its course."

A Safe Young Zealot.

There is a man with a short history in the New Testament, to whom we make allusion sometimes in our prayers when we say, "Paul may plant and Apollos water, but it is God that giveth the increase." Although the expression is not a perfectly accurate citation of the apostle's words, it is surely full of profitable meditation for all. This man Apollos comes quite abruptly on the stage, like Elijah the Tishbite in the Old Testament, unannounced and unattended, but in the end proves to be one of the master-spirits of the age.

In his sudden and zealous assumption of the work of a public preacher, Apollos affords one of the best illustrations that can be found of obedience to the command, "Let him that heareth say Come." He had not heard much, if the truth he told; but he put into rapid use all he knew. He seems to have sprung forth from among the common people all at once, and commenced his exhortations. His religious education was Jewish; in the Christian scheme he had advanced only so far as to receive the baptism of John; that is to say, he had learned only that a Messiah was coming very soon, and that the proper preparation for his advent was personal repentance for sin. And what he knew he told as far as he knew it. He kept right on close up proclaiming truth as he gained it.

Now, we like this much, and we think the times are ripe for receiving the example. Talent is extirpated by disuse. Truth augments its volume and increases its value in the soul by extensive distribution. Even a partially-instructed man may be extremely efficient, if he will not go beyond his attainment, and will temper his zeal according to knowledge. Ignorance on some points is no reason for backwardness or reserve in others. "True fortitude," says Lord Bacon, "consists in not permitting what we do know to be disturbed by what we do not know."

Let every young Christian say what he can be certain is true, and let the rest go. If opposers drive him to the wall with questions he cannot answer, with cavils he cannot dispute, or with arguments he cannot meet, let him turn back upon the facts which his experience has established. The cured man in gospel history was not good in discussion; philosophies worried him, and the Jews tried to confuse his conceptions and so to break the force of his testimony. But he showed himself obstinate after a most exemplary fashion. What he knew he knew. But he declined debating the moral character of Jesus. "Whether he be a sinner or no, I know not; one thing I know, that whereas I was blind now I see."

The usefulness of any earnest Christian will not depend upon the many things of which he is ignorant, but upon the vigorous few things he is sure of. It requires a good deal of steadiness to hold one's self firmly to the duty of urging simple gospel duly, when everybody is determined to have him make an excursion away from his point upon inability or the decrees. It is really very dignified, as it certainly is very safe, for one to say quietly, "I have stuck unto thy testimonies; O Lord, put me not to shame."

